Principles of construction that architects have slowly worked out, Lord Avebury suggests, were adopted by plants millions of years ago. Some plant stems are round, others are triangular, others quadrangular, and so on, and it seems possible to give a mechanical explanation of the differences. Builders have adopted the girder as the most economical method of resisting a strain in one direction. Plants seem to have built on a like plan, tree trunks being round to resist strain from all directions, while plants with opposite leaves and strain in two directions have two girders, giving a quadrangular stem, and triangular and pentagonal stems may be accounted for as strengthening against like obvious strains.

The Art of Eating Properly.

Pawlow has lately established the physiological importance of the mental state on digestion, having shown, for instance, that delicacies produce secretion of gastric juice as soon as they are perceived by the eye, even before they are eaten.

The food must not only be palatable, but must be served in an attractive manner (fine dishes, table decorations, etc.).

In eating we must take time to chew our food thoroughly. This serves a double purpose: (1) Through the act of mastication the coarser particles of food are broken up; (2) more saliva is secreted and is thoroughly mixed with the food. The digestion of starch is thus materially aided, and the proteids are made more easily accessible to the action of the gastric juice.

Water should accompany each meal. It increases the appetite and the enjoyment of food.

After eating we should rest a little while before returning to our work.—Dr. Max Einhorn, in the Medical Record.

Wanted Her Name.

A minister of this town was moved by the grief of a husband whose wife was to be buried, and sought to commiserate him in the following manner: "My brother, I know that this is a great grief that has overtaken you, and though you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one who was your companion and partner in life I would console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfailing love." To this the bereaved man replied by asking, as he gazed through tears into the minister's face: "What's her name?"—Fulton (Kan.) Gazette.

Japanese Trains.

Some of the institutions on Japanese trains are peculiar to that country. One of these is a smear of paint across the windows of third-class carriages. This is made necessary because thousands of native travelers in Japan, accustomed only to paper wall for letting in light, have no knowledge of glass. Its utter transparency leads them to believe that the window is simply a hole in the side of the car. With painful results many native passengers have stupidly attempted to stick their heads through the glass. The square of paint takes its place with the "Don't blow out the gas" signs in Anglo-Saxon hotels.

Red-Capped Customs Officials.

According to a recent decision of the Treasury Department, the customs officials will wear a red cap after May 1. The reason of this is the difficulty experienced by travelers in finding these officials on the wharves in the crowds which are usually present upon the arrival of a vessel. The customs inspectors all wear uniforms, but even then it is difficult to pick them out, but the appraisers are only designated by means of a small badge worn on the lapel of the coat. With a red cap, these officials will all be readily discernible and the business of the office will be greatly facilitated.

RAW ITCHING ECZEMA

Blotches on Hands, Ears and Ankles For Three Years—Instant Relief and Speedy Cure by Cuticura.

"Thanks to Cuticura I am now rid of that fearful pest, weeping eczema, for the first time in three years. It first appeared on my hand, a little pimple, growing into several blotches, and then on my ears and ankles. They were exceedingly painful, itching, and always raw. After the first day's treatment with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, there was very little of the burning and itching, and the cure now seems to be complete. (Signed) S. B. Hege, Passenger Agent B. & O. R. R., Washington, D. C."

The capital invested in the mineral water industry in Great Britain is $75,000,000.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle.

In Germany only 413 out of 1000 males reach the age of fifty years.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'Brien, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

The English language is spoken to-day by 135,000,000 of people.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Freezing politeness is on a par with cold comfort.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The French provincial railroads are among the poorest in the world.

Missouri has more live stock farmers than any other state in the union, and the live stock on its farms is valued at over $200,000,000.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, and all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

The First White House.

The residence of Daniel Parke Custis, first husband of Martha Dandridge, was called the White House. George Washington lived there for a short time after their marriage, and from it the White House at Washington was named.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.
We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.
West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

All Due Precautions Taken.

Nervous Old Lady (on seventh floor of hotel)—"Do you know what precautions the proprietor of the hotel has taken against fire?"

Porter—"Yes, mum; he has the place fushoored for twice wot it's worth."—Pittsburg Gazette.

Millions in Oats.

Salzer's New National Oats yielded in Mich., 240 bu., in Mo., 255 bu., in N. D., 310 bu., and in 30 other states from 150 to 300 bu. per acre. Now this Oat if generally grown in 1905, will add millions of bushels to the yield and millions of dollars to the farmer's purse!

Homebuilder Yellow Dent Corn grows like a weed and yields from 157 to 260 bushels and more per acre! It's the biggest yielder on earth!
Salzer's Speltz, Beardless Barley, Macaroni Wheat, Pea Oat, Billion Dollar Grass and Earliest Cane are money makers for you, Mr. Farmer.
JUST SEND THIS NOTICE AND 10c in stamps to John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., and receive their big catalog and lots of farm seed samples. [A. C. L.]

Public Houses in Belgium.

Belgium, where public libraries are almost known, enjoys 19,000 public houses. That means one public house for thirty-six inhabitants, or one public house for twelve men above 17 years of age. During the last fifty years the population has increased 50 per cent; the number of public houses 258 per cent.

Health of American Women

A Subject Much Discussed at Women's Clubs—The Future of a Country Depends on the Health of Its Women.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen Miss Mattie Henry

At the New York State Assembly of Mothers, a prominent New York doctor told the 500 women present that healthy American women were so rare as to be almost extinct.

This seems to be a sweeping statement of the condition of American women. Yet how many do you know who are perfectly well and do not have some trouble arising from a derangement of the female organism which manifests itself in headaches, backaches, nervousness, that bearing-down feeling, painful or irregular menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement of the uterus, ovarian trouble, indigestion or sleeplessness? There is a tried and true remedy for all these ailments. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored more American women to health than all other remedies in the world. It regulates, strengthens and cures disenses of the female organism as nothing else can. For thirty years it has been curing the worst forms of female complaints.

Such testimony as the following should be convincing.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Ia., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I can truly say that you have saved my life and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For two years I spent lots of money in doctoring without any benefit for menstrual irregularities and I had given up all hopes of ever being well again, but I was persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three bottles have restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Miss Mattie Henry, Vice-President of Danville Art Club, 429 Green Street, Danville, Va., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Many years' suffering with female weakness inflammation and a broken down system made me more anxious to die than to live, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health and I am so grateful for it that I want every suffering woman to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for her."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. No other medicine in the world has received such unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

A light heart, a cheerful countenance, and all the charms of grace and beauty are dependent upon proper action of the bodily organs. You cannot look well unless you feel well.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. How can he know, where it originally came from, how it was blended—or with what—or when roasted? If you buy your coffee loose by the pound, how can you expect purity and uniform quality?

LION COFFEE, the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES, is of necessity uniform in quality, strength and flavor. For OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, LION COFFEE has been the standard coffee in millions of homes.

LION COFFEE is carefully packed at our factories, and until opened in your home, has no chance of being adulterated, or of coming in contact with dust, dirt, germs, or unclean hands.

In each package of LION COFFEE you get one full pound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon getting the genuine. (Lion head on every package.)

(Save the Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Telegraphy College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

25 CTS
PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

GOOD LUCK

Get Double Returns

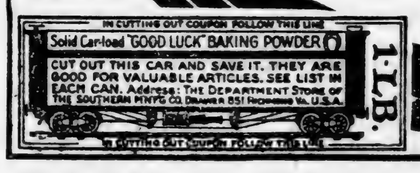
on your money by saving the freight-car coupons on Good Luck Baking Powder can labels. In exchange for them we send you free your choice of 56 useful premiums—valuable articles of jewelry, dress and house furnishings. The Premium Book found in each can tells all about them.

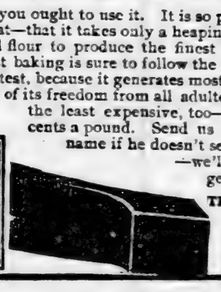
The absolute, unquestioned purity of

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

is another reason why you ought to use it. It is so pure—its leavening force is so great—that it takes only a heaping teaspoonful to a quart of sifted flour to produce the finest results. The lightest, whitest baking is sure to follow the use of Good Luck—lightest, because it generates most gas; whitest, because of its freedom from all adulteration. It is the least expensive, too—costs only 10 cents a pound. Send us your grocer's name if he doesn't sell Good Luck—we'll see that you get it.

This is the Coupon on each can.





THE SOUTHERN MFG. CO. Richmond, Virginia.

THE DUST.

BY LIZETTE WOODWORTH REESE.

The dust blows up and down
Within the lonely town;
Vague, harrying, dumb, aloof,
On sill and bough and roof.

What cloudy shapes do fleet
Along the parched street;
Clerks, bishops, kings go by—
Oh, will you so shall I!
—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Elevation of Maria.

By CLINTON DANGERFIELD.

"SHE was blowed up, warn't she?" inquired Barton easily, as he tilted his hat back and chewed a strand of the cemetery grass. It was cool and pleasant there in the July moonlight, after a very warm day.

"Yes, blowed up on the down train," assented his companion moodily, his eyes resting on Miss Maria's tall, white tombstone. "The hull car was sent to flinders with dynamite at Ross Switch. Folks said 'twas because the president was on board somewhere, and somebody had a spite agin him."

"Hard on them not connected with the president," observed his friend, throwing a pebble at a slow-moving grasshopper which had just crawled into the light. Then he added reflectively, "I guess I be as orthodox as any feller, yit it does eternally bother me how folks that was slew like that—desecrated into fragments—is going to be gethered up by the angel at jedgment day and put together proper."

"Jest what I say. I'd be afraid of puttin' somebody else's laig or arm—er boss. Fer instance, ef I had to stammick the widder Malory's red hair, er Deacon Haddock's pop eyes, I'd never forgive Gabriel hisself for puttin' me up wrong."

Rutherford moved uncomfortably.

"It does n't sound right to talk that way," he said repovingly. Then he added mournfully, "She didn't have no red hair, nor pop eyes, Maria was jest as purty as—" words failed him.

"She warn't much for purty of late years. She used to be kinder nice lookin' when you first courted her. Why'd she give you the mitten?"

Rutherford blushed.

"She didn't never give me no mitten, I didn't never propose. Couldn't git up the spunk. Dick Barton, what's that passing through them firs?"

"You ain't superstitious, be ye? It was nuthin' but imagination, or else them consarned Bostwick boys a-doin' to play some joke on us. I'll larrup 'em both, ef they don't look out. But no, it wasn't nuthin'."

"You always talk so bold," said Rutherford admiringly, fixing his gentle gray eyes on his friend's rotund form and round face. "Now ef you had been courtin' Mariar—" he paused expressively.

"She'd 'a been darnin' my socks ten years ago. And you never told her you loved her?"

"Not till now."

"Not till now!" You ain't goin' to pome of them mejums, be ye?"

"Consarn it, no! But somehow I never could feel that Mariar wuz dead. Why, even this very minute sooner 'n I could matchully feel her presence in the air. It's queer how folks live on after they done buried—ef you love 'em."

"Nothin' but plum imagination," said the practical Barton. "But what's them words on that their stun? Seems 's ef that it didn't have nuthin' but her name on it afore."

Rutherford blushed deeply.

"That's what I brought ye here to see. That's joy my—"

"Your what?"

"Well, you read it an' see if it ain't plain, why it's there."

Roused into genuine interest, Barton leaned over the mound, squinting his eyes to get the best effects from the shining rays. Fortunately, all clouds had rolled away by this time and he began without difficulty:

"Here lies the person of Miss Mariar.' I thought you said they didn't find nothin' but a piece of her dress an' her Sunday hat."

"It's poetry," retorted Rutherford in some natural irritation, "and in poetry well you see in poetry—"

"Folks don't have to stick very close to the truth in poetry," chuckled Barton, and then resumed.

"'Here lies the person of Miss Mariar.
She earnt the right to go up higher'—Don't that sound like you insinuated that it had orter be considered a privilege to be blowed up?"

"Will you go on?" demanded the exasperated author.

"'She earnt the right to go up higher—
She was full of virtues and full of years.
Of her place in Heaven we have no fears.'

Come now, Rutherford, seems s'if you are sorter over-confident about that. The preachers tell us to work out our salvation in fear an' tremblin'. There ain't no exception. So ef we'd ort to have fears about salvation, there ain't no tellin' where Mariar is now."

"You mean she hed her own way; I should admire to see anybody who could ha' prevented it! But lemme read while the light holds out.

"'Of her place in Heaven we have no fears.
I put this handsome tombstone above her.
An' carved these lines on it because
As I always did I still love her.

Ain't there suthin' wrong with the way you measure off them last lines?"

"How?"

"Oh, I dunno. Only, experts in this kind of business tell me you must have a rule. I think it's three feet to a line."

"Three feet indeed!" said the poet angrily. "That would mean thirty-six inches to each line, and you'd spread your poetry over all creation."

"That's a fact," admitted Barton reluctantly. "No tombstun would hold a pome like that. I guess yours is all right. Only I will say that ef Marin could look down—er up—I guess she wouldn't be very well pleased about that 'full of years' statement. It hits too nigh the truth. But whyn't you give your pome a name?"

"A title?" Rutherford looked fearfully around, then started, fancying a footfall in the coppice just behind him, for Maria's tomb was near the western edge of the cemetery. Then, reassured, he said slowly, "I thought mebbe ye'd infer the title."

"Infer it?"

"Y—y—yes," stammered the embarrassed poet, who, however, felt the need of unloading his bursting soul, "it's called 'The—The Proposal.'"

"Sufferin' Moses—what?"

"'The Proposal,'" said Rutherford slowly and firmly. "You see, I never could seem to speak it out while she lived. But now—now she's dead an' gone, I thought mebbe—well, that mebbe some of them angels up there would—well—would repeat it to her."

For an instant Barton stared blankly at his friend. Then he gave way to a wild peal of laughter, rolling over and over on the grass in inextinguishable mirth, while Rutherford, hurt and bewildered, was powerless to check him.

But an angular, resolute figure, with snapping black eyes, strode, rather than glided, out of the coppice, and a shrill feminine voice said bitingly:

"Cracklin' of thorns under a pot is a good description of you, Dick Barton."

Both men sprang to their feet as though touched by an electric current. Barton's mirth froze in his lungs. His dropped jaw remained pendent.

The newcomer nodded in satisfaction.

"I guessed ye'd quit that cacklin'. Oh, I ain't no ghost, nor yit no imagination. A woman's dress an' a woman's best hat ain't no reel proof she was blowed up, Gabriel won't hev to do no collectin' on my account. I wuz stunned, thet was all. When I come to I was off my head an' wandered and wandered. I couldn't even recollect my own name. Full memory never come back till yisterday. Ye see I pulled up in a strange place miles away and was nursed in a hospital. Not to say that I consider keepin' a chart of folks and stickin' thermometers in their mouths, s'if they was a spell of weather, to be good nursin'. But I got discharged at last, after my recollectshun all came back, which was yisterday. I took the train hum today an' when I got off, about an hour ago, I concluded I'd come through the cem'tery—that being the nearest way to the village. Then I seen you two an' heerd what you was a-sayin'—an' so—I waited. Folks certainly has a right to listen to the discussin' of their own obituary," she added grimly.

"And you're acshully back!" gasped Barton.

"Ain't you got no sensibler remark to make?" demanded Maria scathingly. "But there ain't no use expectin' much from a person who would crit'cise Mr. Rutherford's po'try as you done. I guess it's time I'm back! Me with such a sight of prop'ty to manage—which I s'pose it's all gone to that smart-Alec nephew of mine. He'll find ther'e a few slips 'twixt sup an' lip. But to come back to po'try—you thought I'd be ashamed of my years, Dick Barton. Well, I ain't! I'm full six months older nor you be, but I ain't bald nor my teeth ain't damaged—like some folks'."

Barton rubbed his hand consciously over an elongated forehead, and felt with his tongue for the gap in his incisors.

"I—I—didn't mean no harm," he stammered.

"Mebbe not. Not even when you said—" here Miss Maria advanced steadily on him while Barton fell back in hopeless confusion. "Not even when you said—'There ain't no tellin' where Mariar is now!'"

"And the Lord knows I spoke the truth!" cried Barton. With which remark he turned and fled ignominiously, leaving the lovers to themselves.

Anger faded from Miss Maria's face. Something very like a faint blush stole over it. She pointed with a sturdy umbrella to "The Proposal," gleaming chastely in the moon-rays.

"Do you want to take it back?" she murmured.

"The tombstun? Oh—the verses. Not ef you'll accept of them—and me."

Miss Maria dropped the umbrella and surrendered herself gracefully to her lover's arms. As she looked up into his patient face, now shining with a radiance which made it positively handsome, she whispered.

"I wish I'd been blew up ten years ago!" The Criterion.

Benefits of Proper Breathing.

The habit of slow, measured, deep breathing that covers the entire lung surface is of more value and importance than you will believe until you have tried it, and when you have established the habit of breathing in this manner you will say some remarkable things in its favor. It will reach all points of your physical system. All the benefits that occur from a healthy condition of the blood will in a greater or less degree be yours, for the manner and completeness with which the inspired air comes in contact with the blood in the lungs is of the utmost importance to every vital process.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

BLOW AT THE STANDARD OIL

Kansas Legislature Passes Bill For State Refinery.

CONGRESS ACTS IN THE MATTER

Convict Labor to Be Provided For the Works—Offers From New Yorkers to Enter the Kansas Field—President Gives Orders to Secretary of Commerce—Oil Trust Discharges Men.

Topeka, Kan.—Kansas struck a blow at the Standard Oil Company's business in this State. The House passed the bill which gives the State $410,000 to build and operate an oil refinery. The bill passed the Senate the week previously.

Governor Hoch announced that he would sign the bill immediately. Hoch had been against the bill until the Standard Oil Company announced its boycott on Kansas oil. The bill passed the House by a vote of 91 to 30.

The oil bill provides for a refinery to be erected at Peru, Kan. Another penitentiary will be built there to provide convict labor for the refinery.

This ends one of the most bitter fights ever waged before a Kansas legislature. The Standard Oil Company and the railroads have maintained strong lobbies here to defeat the bill, which also makes pipe lines common carriers.

The Kansas House also passed the Maximum Freight bill, which will keep the railroads from favoring the Standard Oil Company.

However, the bill which prevents the Standard Oil Company from discriminating and underselling the State refinery was referred, after a fight, to the Judiciary Committee, but not before the friends of the State refinery tacked to it an amendment that will save the bill. The men who fought this bill said the underselling would apply to all commodities. To have said oil alone would have made it class legislation, which would have been unconstitutional. The amendment tacked on refers only to trust made goods.

Apparently there will be no lack of capital enlisted in the fight against the Standard Oil Company in this State as soon as the Legislature gives evidence of its intention to protect independent operators. The oil producers have received a number of requests from independent refiners who want to get into business in the State. Senator F. Dumont Smith received the following telegram on this subject:

"F. Dumont Smith, Topeka:

"Can raise $600,000 for independent oil refinery if can get proper protection from Legislature; answer quick.

"J. D. CAMERON, Waldorf Hotel."

Senator Smith answered: "Will guaranteed absolute protection for independent refinery. State refinery will not interfere with independents in the least."

Kansas City, Mo.—The Oil Producers' Association of Kansas sent an appeal to President Roosevelt asking the aid of Congress and the President in its fight against the Standard Oil Company.

CONGRESS TO INVESTIGATE.

House of Representatives Passes Sweeping Set of Resolutions.

Washington, D. C.—Without a single dissenting vote or voice, the House adopted the most drastic anti-trust solution yet considered in Congress. It provides for the investigation of the Standard Oil Company from top to bottom by the Department of Commerce and Labor.

The resolution was introduced by Representative Campbell, of Kansas, with the special object of investigating the oil situation in his State, but it is much broader in scope and requires the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to investigate the whole organization, capitalization, profits and management of the business.

This resolution is even more sweeping than that presented by Mr. Martin, of South Dakota, which was the basis of Commissioner Garfield's investigation of the Beef Trust. The fact that it was passed by the House unanimously, without even reference to a committee, is most significant of the disposition of the popular branch of Congress in regard to anti-trust measures.

Many members consider this, under the circumstances, the most remarkable action of the kind ever taken in Congress. Such a thing would not have been possible a year ago.

Mr. Campbell does not conceal the fact that he aims at the criminal prosecution of the Standard Oil men.

Representative Campbell had a conference with the President, and set forth the conditions in the Kansas oil fields and the need of an investigation. President Roosevelt acted promptly. He sent a note to Mr. Garfield, directing him to enter upon the investigation, and he arranged that Mr. Campbell and Mr. Garfield should confer without delay as to the details of the investigation.

Oil Trust Retalites.

Atkison, Kan.—The Standard Oil Company has discharged 900 employes in Kansas on account of action by the Legislature adverse to the Trust's interests.

Failed to Kidnap Child.

The Saxon King's emissary sent to Florence, Italy, failed in his attempt to kidnap ex-Crown Princess Louise's babe.

Shoots Off His Hand.

Opelika, Ala.—Tuesday morning J. J. Barnes, Opelika's manager for the Atlantic Compress company, accidentally shot off his right hand. He had taken the gun to shoot cats making disturbance in the backyard of his residence. He tripped, fell and dropped the gun, which was accidentally discharged. His arm was so lacerated amputation below the elbow was necessary.

PRESIDENT URGES TREATY

His Letter to the Senate Regarding Santo Domingo.

TEST OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

States That We Have No Purpose of Seizing More Territory—New Convention Repeats Provisions For Our Control of Santo Domingo's Customs—Protectorate Means Its Extension.

Washington, D. C.—The new Santo Domingo protocol and the President's message accompanying it were made public by the Senate. There was no discussion of the protocol's provisions in the brief executive session that was held to determine whether the seal of confidence should be removed from these important State papers.

Mr. Roosevelt made plain his view that if the American Government is to maintain the principle that no non-American Power shall acquire territory on the western hemisphere, it must be willing to assume responsibilities for the conduct of American republics. He showed that he regarded the Dominican arrangement as a necessary step in the direction of undertaking such responsibilities and as affording a practical test of this Government's efficiency in maintaining the Monroe Doctrine.

The trend of his argument was that if the United States Government denied the right of European nations to the collection of their Latin-American debts, through seizure of territory, or, what was practically equivalent, the seizure of custom houses, it must assume responsibility itself for the payment of these obligations, or take the consequences.

It does not pledge the United States to guarantee the integrity of Santo Domingo, but its preamble contains a modified form of that provision, this Government merely "agreeing to respect the complete territorial integrity of the Dominican Republic."

Another important provision, giving the protocol all the force of a treaty, is that the agreement is to take effect after its approval by the United States Senate and the Dominican Republic. That the purpose of the arrangement provided by the protocol is to overcome "the imminent peril and urgent menace of intervention on the part of nations whose citizens have claims already established or to be established," is set forth also.

The protocol as submitted provides that the United States, when agreeing to respect the complete territorial integrity of the Dominican Republic, agrees to attempt the adjustment of all the obligations of the Dominican Government, foreign as well as domestic, including the determination of the validity and amount of all pending claims. If, to reach such adjustment, it shall be considered necessary to name commissions, the Dominican Government shall be represented on said commissions.

The United States shall take charge of the existing custom houses and those which may hereafter be created, name the employes necessary to their management and collect and take charge of all custom house receipts. The Dominican Government may appoint in each of the custom houses an officer for making an inspection on behalf of Dominican interests.

Out of the revenues collected the United States shall deliver to the Dominican Government not less than forty-five per cent. for meeting the needs of the public service. The United States shall apply the fifty-five per cent. which it retains toward the payment of the employes of the custom houses and to the interest, amortization and instalments of the Dominican debt, foreign and domestic. The surplus which may remain at the end of each fiscal year shall be delivered to the Dominican Republic, or shall be devoted to the payment of its debt, if it shall so determine.

Any reform of the system of duties and taxes shall be made in agreement with the President of the United States, and, therefore, the present tariff and port duties may not be reduced except with his consent.

The United States, at the request of the Dominican Republic, shall grant the latter such other assistance as the former may deem proper to restore the credit, preserve the order, increase the efficiency of the civil administration and advance the material progress and welfare of the Dominican Republic.

STATUE OF MISS WILLARD.

First of a Woman to Be Placed in Statuary Hall.

Washington, D. C.—The first statue of a woman to be placed in Statuary Hall has been raised to its pedestal. It is the figure in marble of the late Frances E. Willard. The sculptor is Miss Temple, of Wisconsin, whose achievements in art are little known in the East.

The State of Illinois placed the statue in the Capitol.

Drops Dead on Train.

Returning home from a business trip, S. D. Works, head of the operating, manufacturing and construction departments of the National Biscuit Company, dropped dead on a train at Elkhart, Ind.

New Cruiser in Commission.

The United States protected cruiser Galveston went into commission at Norfolk, Va.

Wants to Build a Skyscraper.

Mobile, Ala.—A syndicate composed of New York and Mobile capitalists have made an offer of $150,000 to William Vizard for the site of the destroyed Battle House. The proposition is to erect a ten-story steel hotel building. The offer is said to be under consideration, but Mr. Vizard asks $200,000 for the property. A compromise on the price may be effected.

RUSSIA'S AWFUL LOSSES

More Than One Hundred and Eighty Thousand Disabled.

DEAD NEARLY FIFTY THOUSAND

Appalling Figures Given Out in the St. Petersburg Messenger, an Official Army Journal—Activity in Manchuria—Admiral Togo Leaves Japan Again.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—The premature publication here of the official returns of losses in the war with Japan has caused a sensation. The figures were used in the official Messenger, evidently without the sanction of the War Department, but now carry with them an official character that cannot be denied. Their tremendous importance to the people of Russia is shown in the fact that these figures prove that more than one-third of the entire Russian army in the Far East has passed through the hospitals since the beginning of the war. The total is 130,439 officers and men, and this does not include the dead.

The wounded were 1710 officers and 53,890 men. The sick were 2248 officers and 72,581 men, thus showing that the absence of proper sanitary precautions did more against the Russian army than the rifles of the Japanese. Of those wounded or ill 4007 died in hospitals, 17,722 were permanently invalided, 9429 were returned to Russia and 21,554 are still in hospitals. The report does not say how many were killed in battle, but roughly estimates the number at between 40,000 and 50,000.

Thus, if the Russian army strength in Manchuria be taken at 450,000, the statistics show that at least 180,000 of this number were within a year killed, wounded or sent to hospitals. These appalling figures have opened the eyes of St. Petersburg to the frightful losses of the war, and as they will now be sent to every city and town in the empire there is no doubt that the Government, should the war contine, will have extreme trouble in forcing the reservists in going to the Far East.

Tokio, Japan.—Manchurian headquarters says: "The Russians shelled and twice attacked Waitao Mountain, but were repulsed. Small forces of Russian infantry attacked Lapatai and Hanshantai, but were defeated. The Russians continued to construct intrenchments in the neighborhood of Haikoutai."

Reports from Liaoyang place the total Russian force at 280,000 on the fighting line. The condition of the prisoners and of the bodies of the dead indicate that the Russians are short of shoes and winter clothing. Some of the officers are wearing Chinese shoes. It is believed that exposure to the cold is greatly increasing sickness among the Russians. Later estimates of the Russian losses at Haikoutai place the number at 25,000.

In discussing a report that colliers had refused to accompany the Second Russian Pacific Squadron on its way north, a member of the Japanese naval staff said: "Our commanders will fire on and sink any colliers found in company with the Russian warships, regardless of their nationality." Vice-Admiral Togo departed from Kure, his destination being kept secret. It was presumed, however, that he was proceeding south on the battleship Mikasa.

RESERVISTS MUTINY.

Four Thousand Surrounded in Camp and Will Be Starved Into Submission.

Paris, France.—A dispatch to the Aurore from St. Petersburg says that 4000 Russian reservists revolted at Bolozoya. They have been surrounded in their camp, and an effort was made to starve them into submission.

Serious disturbances occurred at Kieff on the arrival of 12,000 reservists. On leaving the trains they objected to being led off in batches by an escort sent to meet them. They mutined, attacked the troops and killed several of them.

They occupied the railroad station and pillaged it. It was surrounded by a battalion of troops, sent to the rescue.

The troops fired two volleys, killing fifty of the reservists. The mutineers eventually surrendered and were led off.

ANARCHIST STABS ASSOCIATE.

Gil, Acquitted in Spain, Tries to Kill Apolo, Who Was Acquitted.

Madrid, Spain.—The Anarchist, Gil, who was arrested here last September for designing to assassinate Senor Maura, the then Prime Minister, was sentenced to twelve and a half years penal servitude. Apolo, the editor of an Anarchist newspaper, who was arrested with Gil, was acquitted.

When Gil was taken back to prison he ferociously attacked Apolo, stabbing him five times with a poignard before the guards could interfere.

Casino to Reopen.

It was announced that the Casino Theatre, New York City, recently burned, would probably be reopened as a first-floor theatre.

To Tax Stock Transfers.

A bill to tax stock transfers $2 a hundred shares was introduced at Albany, N. Y.

Burns Caused Death.

Brewton, Ala.—The little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Price died as the result of burns received. The child's clothing caught from fireplace and the screams attracted his mother in an adjoining room, but she arrived too late and death resulted a few hours later.

Albertville, Ala.—Much damage is done to fruit trees, especially peach trees.

News of the Week

WASHINGTON.

Hard blows were aimed at the Appropriation bill in the House special efforts are being made vent the authorization of any tle ships.

It was announced at the White that all the members of the except Postmaster-General will be reappointed on March Cortelyou will become Post General and Mr. Wynne will Consul-General at London, Eng

It was announced by Secreta that the arbitration treaties by the Senate will not be pres the governments with which th negotiated.

OUR ADOPTED ISLAND

The Committee on Interisland portation of the Philippine C sion, headed by Commissioner C Forbes, has recommended that of army transports be discontin rapidly as commercial steamshi are extended to cover the po served by the transports. Th commercial lines are to be sub Government regulation as to i spection and quality and freque service. The committee also mends the withdrawal of several guard vessels which are now u carrying freight and passenge favor of commercial vessels.

Government control of the traffic in the Philippines and its ishment after three years were mended by a commission in a re Secretary Taft.

The death in the Honolulu M of a young Hawaiian through on a model of an altar such as once used for human sacrifices caused a revival of fear of the h gods in the Hawaiian Islands.

DOMESTIC.

James H. Hyde, of New York was re-elected Vice-President Equitable Life Assurance Society also Chairman of the Executive Finance Committees, from all of positions the Alexander faction to oust him.

Harrison F. Johnson, a Brooklyn lawyer, died from a drug t a resort. Two women were held.

W. C. Smith, of New York C Woerz hold-up man, was sente twenty-five years in State prison

The senior class of the Mass setts Agricultural College at Am Mass., voted to withdraw becau the suspension of three of its me

Train service was reported as tled up by snow at Syracuse, N.

George E. Priest, President New York State Tax Commissi nounced at Ithaca, N. Y., that he retire from the service of the Sta

It was stated in Appleton, Wis a new pulp mill combination had organized there.

To evade a British law forbidd man to marry his deceased wife ter, Mr. Herbert Allen and Miss lotte M. Meade came to New York London to wed.

J. Pierpont Morgan was app one of a committee of directors New Haven road to hear the griev of the Brotherhood of Locomotive men at the Grand Central Station York City.

Edward L. Harper, who was co ed of wrecking the Fidelity Ban Cincinnati, in 1887, and served years in the Ohio Penitentiary, gained the confidence of the fin world in New York City, and is the head of a great corporation.

Mrs. Elsie Laux, of Bloomfield, suffering from asthma and fearin same affliction in her children, her two babes by gas and nearly ceeded in ending her own life.

By a rear end collision in the way between 116th and 122d st several persons were cut and b by pieces of flying glass and the were seriously damaged.

FOREIGN.

Venezuela's Supreme Court cont the appointment of a receiver fo American Asphalt Company's proj

Four men were killed and fou injured by two explosions on bo British submarine boat in the h of Queenstown.

Mr. Asquith's resolution dema immediate submission of the question to the voters of Great Br was defeated in the House of mons, the Government obtaining jority of sixty-three.

Mr. Theodore M. Davis, a s cable dispatch from Cairo stated, discovered a royal tomb near L containing intact sarcophagi a beautifully preserved chariot.

The news of the Grand Duke's der caused consternation at Tsar Selo. The Emperor is said to been prostrated, and all festivit honor of Prince Leopold of Pr were at once abandoned.

Moscow women petitioned the ina to use her influence to bring to a distracted country.

It was said at St. John's, N. F., there was much disappointment the rejection of the Hay-Bond tre Four thousand men, following lead of the St. Petersburg iron w ers, struck at Kharkoff.

St. Petersburg remained quiet o to the military precautions; many rests were made, and the strike sp to a number of factories.

All railroad traffic in the neig hood of Batoum has ceased, a famine threatens the city.

Forty thousand men were locke in Lodz, a special cable dispatch s

In the House of Lords the Ma of Lansdowne defended the Under retary for the Lord Lieutenant of land, Sir Anthony Maedonnel, ac of collusion with revolutionists.

A steam automobile omnibus Paris traffic, a special cable dis said, constructed by M. Leon Serp has been tested successfully.

A special dispatch from Bu Ayres stated that several high officers were suspected of being i cated in the recent revolt.

THE

VOL. II.

OSSED THE SHAKHE

Advance of the Japanese Checked by the Russian Reinforcement.

RUSSIANS STILL STAND PAT

Not to be Considered Until Al Rojestvonsky Meets Togo and the Battle Ends.

Petersburg—Ac... to ... Press dispatches from M... the Japanese Sunday ... the Shakhe river, ... ssing was eliminated by the ... The advance was checked ... reinforcements. This is the important news from the seat ... Monday night. Fighting is con... on the Russian left flank, with ...ions that the Japanese are plan... demonstration against the cen... the Russians believe their ...us are impregnable.

ather Makes Sudden Change.

...quarters of General Kuroki ...apanese army now holds ... extending from the vicinity of ...m river to several miles east ... The weather took a ... change today, becoming mild ... for further operations. The morn... was cloudy and ... a driving storm of wind and ... which was almost a blizzard ... cold and ... with the ... subsiding.

Petersburg Denies Rumor.

Petersburg—The report tele... here from New York that ... had intimated to Secretary Hay ... upon which he is waiting for ... peace and that Mr. Hay has in... Ambassador McCormick to ... the intimation to the Russian ...ment has created much interest ...coming on the heels of rumors ... in St. Petersburg that Russia ...ing to end the war upon sub... the same terms as those at ... to Japan. The foreign office ..., declares that no such intima... has been received and further ... professes itself as extremely ...cal regarding the reliability of ... report.

The foreign office also repeats the ...ce that Russia's position is as ..., intimating the purpose to ... the outcome of the impending ... on the Shakhe river, and a pos... ...ngagement between the fleets ...evstvensky and Togo.

Gorky Released—Rearrested.

Petersburg—Maxim Gorky had ... short climpse of liberty Monday ... on a $500 bail, the noted au... was immediately rearrested and ...ed to a place of confinement ... deportation to some distant ... province, where his continued ..., it is thought, will not be ...gerous to the welfare of the ... as it would be here in St ...burg.

...lease of M. Gorky was effec... ...rder of Governor General Tre... ...ter the friends of the writer ...ercome obstacle after obstacle ... the grudging consent of the ...y and officials to the signing ...mandate admitting him to bail ...arrest was also the act of the ...rful governor general, who is ...g to allow a fire brand to be ... in the capital of which he is ...ly the supreme ruler.

B. and O.'s Big Buy.

...more, Md.—The Baltimore and ...Road Company has authori... ... of 175 consolidation ... and 10 ... thousand ... cars. This will be the ... for the present year, and ... far the largest purchase made ... years by any ... The ... will soon ... and ... delivery of cars will commence ... and in time for ... It is expected the ... ...es will be delivered in June ... deliveries of cars and the loco... completed by November 1 ... order to take care of next ... business requirements.

Ex-Mayor Arrested.

...gham, Ala.—James L. Cole ... or Intendant of North Bir... has been arrested on the ... embezzlement. He was ar... Monday afternoon early on an ...t returned by the January ... the Jefferson county grand ...ch adjourned that day. Bond ... at $2,000, which was made ... Cole when the papers were ... him Monday afternoon.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., MARCH 2, 1905. NO. 49

OSSED THE SHAKHE

Advance of the Japanese Checked by the Russian Reinforcement.

SSIANS STILL STAND PAT.

Not to be Considered Until Af

Rojestvonsky Meets Togo and the Battle Ends.

According to the As dispatches from Muk the Japanese Sunday evening the Shakhe river, but the place ing was eliminated by the cen The advance was checked by an reinforcements. This is the important news from the scene Monday night. Fighting is con on the Russian left flank, with es that the Japanese are plan a demonstration against the cen but the Russians believe their ns are impregnable.

Weather Makes Sudden Change.

quarters of General Kuroki.— manes army now holds a ending from the vicinity of ver to several miles east The weather took a sud turn today, becoming unfavor for operations. The morn gray and the afternoon a blinding storm of wind and which was almost a blizzard cold and clear, with the

Petersburg Denies Rumor.

Petersburg The report tele graphed here from New York that had intimated to Secretary Hay upon which she is willing to peace and that Mr. Hay has in ed Ambassador McCormick to the intimation to the Russian has created much interest coming on the heels of rumors St. Petersburg that Russia to end the war upon sub ly the same terms as those at to Japan The foreign office declares that no such intima been received and further professes itself as extremely regarding the reliability of foreign office also repeats the that Russia's position is un eliminating the purpose to come of the impending Sankhe river, and a pos ment between the fleets sky and Togo.

Gorky Released—Rearrested.

Maxim Gorky had purpose of liberty Monday. bail, the noted au immediately rearrested and a place of confinement, exception to some distant where his continued thought, will not be to the welfare of the as it would be here in St.

of M. Gorky was effect of Governor General Tre the friends of the writer obstacle after obstacle granting consent of the officials to the signing admitting him to bail was also the act of the governor general, who is a fire brand to be cabinet, of which he is moderate ruler.

P. and O.'s Big Buy.

The Baltimore and company has author of 175 consolidation and ten thousand cars will be the new the present year, and largest purchase made by the company. The will be awarded and cost will range between $15,000,000.

Tests of cars will commence at once in time for navigation is expected the first lo will be delivered in June lots of cars and the loco completed by November 1 owing to take care of next business requirements.

Ex-Mayor Arrested.

Selma, Ala.—James L. Cole ex-mayor intendant of North Bir has been arrested on the of embezzlement. He was ar Monday afternoon early on an returned by the January Jefferson county grand which adjourned that day. Bond of $2,000, which was made when the papers were on him Monday afternoon.

Negroes Kill Planters.

Yazoo City, Miss.—A difficulty occurring late Saturday afternoon between Ed Stevens, a prominent planter living near this city, and four negroes, led to the killing of Stevens and his brother, W. H. Stevens, and the wounding of a negro named Wilder, one of the slayers of the Stevens brothers. The negroes escaped.

A sheriff's posse is now scouring the country for the quartette of blacks and a lynching is believed to be inevitable if the negroes are caught.

Details regarding the killing of the Stevens brothers, which occurred on a plantation two miles from this city, are meagre. Ed Stevens, it is said, had gone to the cabin of Wilder, near the former's home, and became engaged in a quarrel with him. Wilder's wife and two other negroes, W. H. Stevens, running up to the cabin, tried to quiet the disturbance.

Later the quarrel was renewed and he hastened back to the scene when he saw Wilder's wife rush upon his brother. W. H. Stevens raised a shotgun and fired at the woman. Wilder and his companions promptly drew pistols and fired on the Stevens brothers, killing both.

Ferry Boat Sunk By Floating Ice.

Cairo, Ill.—The ferry boat Katherine, which plies between Cairo and Bird's Point, was struck near here by a large piece of ice and sank in several feet of water.

Many passengers were aboard the boat, including a number of Cairo traveling men, and a panic followed the sinking of the vessel. The passengers after much difficulty were all taken off in safety.

The Katherine is an old boat and had been in service for many years. Ten years ago she was overturned in the middle of the Ohio river by severe storm and a dozen or more lives were lost. The boat was in command of Captain J. W. Hacker.

Found Dead.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Herman Akard, aged 14, son of A. D. Akard, a well-to-do farmer residing near Bristol, was found dead in his father's field, near his home, Saturday afternoon with a revolver lying by his side. Whether he suicided or shot himself by accident will never be known. The shot had been fired into his mouth and passed through his brain. The clothing was partly burned from the body when it was found. The boy left home early in the morning with a neighbor boy, but the latter returned home at noon, claiming he did not know what became of the Akard youth.

Committed Murder Two Years Ago.

Denver, Colo.—James Neal, 18 years of age, who has been living here under the name of Roy Ealew, has given himself up to the police and confessed that he killed Cynthia Johnson, a widow who lived on a farm near Kennison, I. T. Neal declares he killed the woman because she had drawn a gun on him and she was going to kill him. He says the crime was committed on June 28, 1903, and that he was driven to confess the crime through remorse. The local authorities have telegraphed Vinita, I. T., to have Neal's statement verified.

$25,000 Fire at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Planters' building, a five-story structure at 123 Madison street, located in the heart of the business district, and opposite the Commercial Appeal building, was partly destroyed by fire. William H. Powell, an insurance clerk, who was working in his office when the fire broke out, jumped from a third-story window and sustained serious injuries. He was taken to a hospital. The fire started in the basement, and through the elevator shaft was quickly communicated to the upper floors. The loss will probably reach $25,000.

Another Mine Explodes.

Bluefield, W. Va.—As a result of an explosion in shaft No. 1 of the United States Coal and Coke Company, at Wilcoe today, twenty-three miners are supposed to have lost their lives, and it is possible that the number will exceed this. Up to 8 p. m. Sunday fifteen dead bodies had been taken from the shaft. A large rescuing party are in the mines tonight.

It is barely possible, but not likely that some of the remaining entombed miners will be rescued alive. The explosion was of terrific force, and shattered glass windows a mile distant.

Davis Can't See It.

Paris.—Rear Admiral Charles H Davis, the American member of the commission on the Hull affair said to the Associated Press that he was unable to see the slightest grounds for the view expressed that the commission's findings established a precedent which menaces neutral commerce.

JORDAN SAYS HOLD IT.

Do Not Loan Your Cotton; For If The Demand Is Supplied It Will Not Go Up.

HOLD FOR TEN CENTS.

Warns Against Furnishing Spinners and Thus Killing All Demand for Cotton.

Atlanta, Ga.—According to reports which have been received by President Harvie Jordan, of the Southern Cotton Association, a number of farmers are being appealed to by the buyers of cotton to let them have cotton at the present prices and should any advances occur between now and next September the farmers will be paid the additional amount on cotton they now release.

Mr. Jordan is out in an interview, in which he strongly advises against the practice of lending cotton, and urges upon the farmers and those who have cotton to hold on to it. He says:

"Reports are coming to me from many sections of the south indicating that farmers are being appealed to by buyers and spinners to get possession of the spot cotton on the agreement to pay present market prices and any advances that may accrue between now and September 1. If the buyers and spinners can get enough cotton under this plan to meet the needs of present consumption it will be impossible to advance prices. It looks like a good business proposition, but in the end it will prove disastrous to the holders. All holders of spot cotton are warned against schemes of this kind.

"Do not let any cotton pass into the hands of the buyers on any partial trade of any kind, and do not lend cotton or turn any of it over to the people who must have it for spinning purposes or filling contracts upon which they are now short.

Hold Your Cotton Tight.

"Hold your cotton tight and refuse to deliver it on any kind of trade. It will be unfair to those who are holding and ruinous to your own interests in the end. Stand pat, hold your ground and don't give away at any point along the line. We are sure to win.

"It is reported to me that some of the mills are proposing to local holders of cotton a proposition to take cotton from them at present prices and free of storage and insurance, provided such cotton is delivered at the mills, and any further advance will be paid between now and September 1. In the meantime the mills can proceed to spin this cotton, and to that extent will not have to go into the market to make purchases. If this plan was generally adopted there would soon be no demand whatever from the southern mills, which would seriously affect the present holding movement.

"I do not charge that southern mills are advising this course to defeat any advance in prices, because many of our mills are in favor of higher prices, but the effect will be the same. In Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and other states exporters are actively soliciting cotton, so I am informed, under the form of an agreement to pay present prices and any advances that might accrue in the near future, provided the cotton is now delivered to them.

Proposition Will Decrease Price.

"While it is true that this proposition will in some instances relieve the holders from interest on borrowed money, storage and insurance, yet the buyers will have but one object in view, and that is to get in possession of cotton which they cannot otherwise secure for the purpose of relieving the critical situaitno they are in—namely, to fill the contracts they are short on. If they succeed the price of cotton can be depressed by increasing the receipts and relieving the situation, which is now extremely critical for the exporters.

"Farmers must not allow themselves to get caught by these flattering propositions. I know that local buyers and exporters are short. I know that vessels are now standing at the ports waiting to receive cotton that is yet to be bought and that spinners are meeting and refusing to extend their contracts with the buyers any longer. The farmers have every encouragement for higher prices if they will continue to stand firm and refuse to let their cotton go out of their possession. Let there be but one answer to the buyers, and that is: 'Ten cents at the ports or nothing!'"

NOT IMPEACHED.

In the Senate, as a Court, the Florida Judge is Acquitted on each Charge.

VOTE ALONG PARTY LINES.

Few Changes Noted During the Proceedings.—Not Even Majority Favor Conviction in Any Count.

Washington, D. C.—The senate, sitting as a court of impeachment for the trial of Charles Swayne, district judge for the Northern district of Florida, Monday acquitted him on all of the twelve articles of impeachment brought by the house of representatives. On none of the articles was there even a majority for conviction, although it required two-thirds to convict. The closest vote was on the last articles, the contempt case of W. O'Neal, when 35 senators voted guilty and 47 not guilty, while on two articles only thirteen senators voted for conviction.

The voting for the most part was on party lines, though there was not a strict alignment on any article.

At the conclusion of the voting the presiding officer directed the secretary to enter an acquittal upon the records, and the court then adjourned without delay.

The judge was not in the senate during the roll calls, but in the president's room just back of the chamber. The result of each ballot was sent to him by his attorneys. Five of the house managers attended during the proceedings.

Vote Is Along Party Lines.

Washington, D. C.—The voting on the impeachment case of Judge Swayne began at 10:10 Monday on the first article, which charged Swayne with certifying a false claim for expenses. The vote was, guilty, 33; not guilty, 49.

The detailed vote on the first article follows:

Guilty—Bacon, Bailey, Bard, Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Carmack, Clark (Montana); Clay, Cockrell, Culberson, Daniel, Foster (Louisiana); Gorman Kittredge, Latimer, McCreary, McCumber, McEnery, McLaurin, Mallory, Martin, Money, Morgan, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Patterson, Pettus, Simmons, Stone, Taliaferro, Teller—33.

Not Guilty—Alger, Alee, Allison, Ankenny, Ball, Beveridge, Burnham, Burrows, Clapp, Clark (Wyoming); Crane, Cullom, Depew, Dick, Dietrich, Dillingham, Dolliver, Dryden, Dubois, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Foster, Washington, Frye, Fulton, Gallinger, Gamble, Gibson, Hale, Hansbrough, Heyburn, Hopkins, Keen, Kearns, Lodge, Long, McComas, Millard, Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Connecticut); Platt (New York; Proctor, Quarles, Scott, Smoot, Spooner, Stewart, Warren—49.

The vote on the second and third articles being similar charges, resulted in each case 32 guilty and 50 not guilty.

Clark, of Montana, voted not guilty on the second and third articles, and this was the only change from the first.

The fourth article related to Swayne's use of the private car of the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railroad Company. The vote resulted, guilty, 13; not guilty, 69. The senators who voted guilty were: Bailey, Berry, Blackburn, Carmack, Cockrell, Culberson; Daniel, McLaurin, Martin Money, Morgan, Newlands, Pettus.

The fifth charge was similar to the fourth and the vote was the same as the vote on the fourth.

The six article charged Judge Swayne with non-residence in the district. The vote was: Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

The vote was the same as on the second and third articles except the votes of Dubois and Gibson were for conviction for the first time, and Clark (Montana), who voted for conviction, and the vote of Kittredge, which was for acquittal.

The seventh article was similar to the sixth and the vote was: Guilty, 19; not guilty, 63.

The eighth article related to the contempt case of E. T. Davis. Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

On the ninth article the vote was guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

Article 10 related to the contempt case of Simeon Beldon and the vote was: Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

Article 11 was similar to article 10 and the vote was the same.

The twelfth and last article was the contempt case of O'Neal and the vote was: Guilty, 35; not guilty, 47.

This acquitted Judge Swayne of all charges.

Loss at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Ark.—Sunday has been a day of gloom in Hot Springs. The first estimates of the damage done by the great conflagration were not exaggerated. More than forty blocks were eaten away by the flames and the most conservative estimates place the loss at a million and a half dollars and several insurance men state the figures will reach two millions.

The three unknown bodies recovered are the only known fatalities. The citizens' relief committee has the situation well in hand. Mayor Belding is at the head of this body, and Charles N. Rix, president of the Arkansas National Bank, is acting as treasurer. The amount subscribed for the relief work totals $12,000, and the sum is being steadily increased. The citizens of Hot Springs can take care of the homeless, but voluntary subscriptions from the outside are being donated and are accepted.

Several excursion trains arrived here bringing visitors from adjacent cities and towns to view the ruins.

Mayor Belding ordered all saloons closed and it was a "tight" Sunday in Hot Springs. The following statement has been issued:

"To the public:

"The fire swept an area principally in the residence portion of the city. While the loss is enormous, the principal business portion of Hot Springs, including hotels and bath houses, are not affected. We think, therefore, it proper to request the Associated Press to state that our city has ample accommodations for all who may desire to visit it for health or pleasure, and no advance in rates will be tolerated.

(Sig.) "GEO. R. BELDING,
"Martin A. Eisele, Mayor.
"Supt. of Gov. Reservation."

The relief committee has systematized its work to such an extent that no deserving person rendered destitute by the conflagration has suffered for the ordinary comforts of life.

Nearly every residence in the city has been thrown open to such persons and the management of the Oaklawn race track has tendered the use of its grand stand and cottages.

That the devastated district will be speedily rebuilt is evidenced by the ex-owners are already planning with architects and in three instances carpenters began work today on temporary structures.

Sheriff Williams was one of the heaviest individual losers. His residence, one of the finest in the city, was destroyed with a number of cottages and other outhouses.

Escambia Fruit Company.

Brewton, Ala.—The Escambia Fruit Company, with a capital stock of $25,000, has been incorporated by John T. Shanahan, L. E. Winne, J. H. Pool and Wm. Davis. The company will grow and ship fruits, vegetables and other products. Messrs. Pool and Winne are the parties who recently purchased 200 acres of fine fruit and truck land from Lovelace Bros., 130 acres of which are in a state of cultivation, paying the sum of $10,000 for the 200 acres. Messrs. Lovelace had started the fruit business on a large scale and these gentlemen foresaw the flattering outlook for this section, and when they came here and looked over the field they at once decided to close a deal for the farm and orchard that was already started. Messrs. Lovelace have started another similar orchard near the one sold, and it will soon be demonstrated that Escambia county has as fine peach land as South Georgia, where the peach growers have made fortunes in the industry.

Lady Protects Father's Property.

Memphis, Tenn.—A special from Oxford, Miss., says that as a result of a prank played by students of the University of Mississippi in the recent removal of a gate from the premises of W. H. Johnson, proprietor of a local boarding house, a rough and tumble fight occurred in the Johnson house Sunday afternoon, in which the young daughter of the boarding house keeper, Miss Tick Johnson, it is alleged, shot J. C. Finley, of Tupelo, a student, through both wrists.

Johnson himself, it is said, was roughly handled by two other students named Butler and Ogilvie. Ogilvie and Butler had had an altercation with Johnson in regard to the missing gate. A fight was in progress when Finley rushed in to separate the trio. Miss Johnson appeared on the scene at the same moment, and, it is alleged, opened fire with a pistol, inflicting flesh wounds on Finlay. No arrests have been made.

Benefit For Caleb Powers Fund.

Louisville, Ky.—Judging from the advance sale a substantial sum will be realized from the benefit performance at the Masonic theater for the Caleb Powers defense fund. The fund will be used to provide first-class legal talent for the defense of Powers, who is soon to be placed on trial again for complicity in the Goebel murder.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House.
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

A French professor is the owner of a collection of 920 human heads, representing every known race of people.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Going to Plant
Fruit Trees of any kind this season? write me a postal for my new manual "How to Plant and Cultivate an Orchard" and price list, now ready and free to all.
P. C. Smith, Thorsby, Ala.

PROVIDENCE.

Somewhere, underneath the sky,
While the summer winds pass by,
Fed by sunshine, soil and rain,
Springs and grows the ripening grain
That with wheaten bread shall feed
Thee and thine, in time of need.
While thou toilest, heavy hearted,
As if hope and thou were parted

Some stout hand the furrows made,
And the seed within them laid;
And some watchful eye took care,
Lest, from out the earth or air,
Weed or winged or creeping creature
To the toil should bring defeature.
God and man the wheat have tended,
And from drought and deluge 'fended.

By some river, never still,
Stands the dusty, hurrying mill,
That shall grind thy grain to flour,
Waiting now the day and hour.
Somewhere ship and train are keeping Room for it. While thou are sleeping
They may bring their freight anigh thee,
But thy own will not pass by thee.

Is it well to sigh and fret
When God's workmen all are set
Each at his own task for thee?
And His messengers will be
All so fleet and free, transmitting Treasure for thy benefiting?
Naught can hinder or evade Him—
Sun, earth, seas, He has to aid Him.

—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

A WIFE'S WARNING

* * * * * * *

By PAUL MONTEVERD.

IT was a slight, girlish figure, that of Bessie Grey, as she sat by the fire her soft eyes, that gleamed like stars under her low, smooth forehead, fixed intently on the coals, and an unusual flush on the rounded cheek that had the bloom of a ripe peach; for, though two years a wife, Bessie was but nineteen.

The fire glowed and crackled in the grate, the kettle hummed, and the most matronly of cats purred a duet as Bessie sat on a low stool awaiting her husband's return to dinner, her thoughts running something like the following: "I wish I could have that dress; Charley is downright stingy, so Kate thinks only two dollars a yard, and really worth four—such a bargain! and that lovely lavender color, so becoming to me! Why does Charley say he can't afford it? Kate Belcher's husband gave her one without a word. I do wish she wouldn't aggravate me so by showing me her nice things, just as if she didn't know that I might have had Tom Belcher ten times over, and had a nice, large house and velvet carpets as well as she; and my Charley—oh, no! all the velvet carpets in the world couldn't make Tom Belcher bearable! I don't believe he is so much richer than Charley, and why can't I have a dress, too? I will have one!"

But at this point Bessie's musings suddenly ended by the entrance of her husband, and she sprang up quickly to welcome him and receive the customary embrace.

The little lady had taken unusual pains with her dinner to-day; a prudent woman she fed her lion first and teased him afterward—preserving, however, a serious demeanor until Charley arose from the table, when, with both hands on his broad shoulders, she said, coaxingly:

"Charley, dear, I do want that silk at Marsh's."

"Dress, puss?" said Charley, pulling one of the clustering ringlets, shading her white brow. "I have already told you that I cannot afford it. What an obstinate thing you are! Don't you know times are hard?"

"Then it will be a piece of real economy to purchase the silk," said Bessie, determined upon carrying her point. "It would wear, and look handsome for a dozen years to come. It is only two dollars a yard, and Kate says it is really worth four."

"Ah!" aspirated Charley, "so Mrs. Kate Belcher has been paying us another visit, has she?"

"Yes," said Bessie, with a light laugh, "otherwise I should never have known how cheap Marsh is selling his goods. Tom gave her the money yesterday to buy a silk dress pattern for herself," she added, glancing up at him from under her long lashes.

A shadow of pain flittered over Charley's face, and he took a turn or two across the room before he spoke again.

"Granting all you can say, my dear, do you think you can really afford to wear the dress?"

Bessie's face wore a puzzled look, but she said nothing.

"The fact is," he continued, "the purchase of the silk would necessitate another run upon our little bank, in order to make the other articles of your wardrobe correspond. In short, little wife," he added, lightly, "I fear it would prove as expensive as did Mrs. Lake's new carpet, which, when put down by that lady in her parlor, turned the hitherto good enough sofa, chairs and window curtains directly out of the room even the wall paper."

"There! I knew you would say something horrid," said Bessie, with a little deprecatory laugh.

"You know, Bessie, how gladly I would give you the money if I could, but my note at the bank must be paid in a few weeks. But I can linger no longer," he added preparing to depart.

Bessie rose, and held up her face to be kissed, perversely turning it till Charley's lips only touched the pink tip of her ear, instead of the scarlet lips that were smiling saucily up at him.

Charley Grey was an intelligent young mechanic, who, at the age of three and twenty had saved from his hard-won wages the sum of $1000, the money having been expended in the purchase of the pretty cottage where the young couple now resided.

Some two hours later Bessie, in her pretty afternoon attire, seated herself upon her low rocker with her sewing, her thoughts busy, as her needle flew in and out, in laying plans for the future. At length, somewhat wearied with her monotonous labor Bessie dropped her sewing upon her lap, leaning back in her easy chair to enjoy a little quiet rest.

The fire danced and quivered in the shining coils of her hair, the rain pattered outside like the tread of little feet, the cat rose and rubbed against her mistress' dress, but Bessie did not heed her. There was the rustle of a silken robe, and Bessie started up to find Kate Belcher standing in the open doorway regarding her.

"Come, Bessie," said Kate, "get your hat and jacket and we'll go down to Marsh's and get your dress."

"I have decided not to take the silk," said Bessie. "Charley thinks he cannot afford it."

"Can't afford it!" repeated Kate, mockingly. "You do your own work, Bessie Grey, thus saving the expense of a servant, and it is a pity if you can't have a dress when you want it. Take my advice and buy the dress. You'll never regret it—such a bargain, too, if you would only consider it."

"I know it, Kate," said Bessie sadly. "But to tell you the truth, in the drawer yonder are the savings of a year—$200—deposited there $2 and $3 at a time, for the purpose of paying up the mortgage on the cottage."

"Good!" said Kate, airily. "Be a woman, Bessie Grey, and stand up for your rights. Take part of the money, buy your silk and say nothing to Charley about it. You can easily save up $25 from the market money and your allowance to replace it, and no one will be the wiser."

We need not narrate all the arguments resorted to ere Bessie assented to the plan; suffice it to say that an hour later the two ladies emerged from the store, the coveted silk in their possession.

"Now, whom shall we engage to make the dress?" questioned Kate, as they reached the street.

"Myself, Mrs. Belcher," said Bessie, gayly. "I am a capital dressmaker."

"Make it yourself! My dear child, are you crazy? Ruin that elegant dress for you would ruin it! Don't think of such a thing, Bessie."

"But whom can I engage?" said Bessie.

"Well, I always go to Mme. Arnault. Ah! that's the woman for you. You stand up, the modiste takes your measure, and the trouble is over."

"But isn't she very exorbitant?" timidly asked Bessie.

"She has her fixed prices," replied Mrs. Belcher, "and they are a little high. Of course, if you can't afford it—"

"It is not that," hastily interrupted Bessie, "but I don't know what Charley will say."

"Charley, indeed! What has he to do with it, I should like to know?"

"He must pay the bills," whispered Bessie's conscience. But there sat Mrs. Grundy, in the person of her friend, watching her out of her green eyes, and after wavering a moment, Bessie followed her friend into the handsome parlor of the complaisant Mme. Arnault.

"Madame has de—de what you call it?—de figure parfait," said the lady, as she busied herself in measuring Bessie—casting meanwhile an almost imperceptible glance at Mrs. Belcher. "Dat belle lavender—the trimmings, ah! what will madame have? Some of de most exquis—dis velveet?"

And so the lady rattled on, to the utter confusion of Bessie, who finally made her escape, dimly conscious that she had given her consent to all manner of extravance, and wondering how it would all end.

"What a novice you are," said Kate, laughingly. "Do you know, my dear, I was actually on thorns when you attempted to cheapen that trimming. However, I told madame that your husband was very rich, but a perfect miser, and you, being very young, were too much in awe of him."

"Oh, Kate, how could you?" exclaimed Bessie, so drearily that her friend laughed louder than before.

"Never mind, Bessie; wait till the dress comes home."

And so Bessie tried to still the dull pain in her heart, and smiled brightly as ever in her husband's face, and Charley, noticing the change in her demeanor, only fancied that she was ill.

In about a week the dress came. Tremblingly Bessie undid the package, held it up, turned it round and round and finally tried it on. It was a perfect fit. The trimming was superb.

"Didn't I tell you to wait?" asked Mrs. Belcher, triumphantly.

Bessie did not answer. She had caught sight of a piece of paper attached to the sleeve, and was reading it with blanched cheeks and quivering lips:

"To Mme. Arnault, Dr.:

"To Makings and Trimmings of Dress, $45.75."

Bessie sank down and burst into tears.

"Pooh, pooh! be a woman," said Mrs. Belcher, a little scornfully. "It is reasonable for Mme. Arnault. Then look at it—isn't it worth double the money?"

"But what will Charley say?"

"By cutting down your expenses, as I suggested, you will be able to replace the money before he counts it again. Charley will never know, and besides, it is downright mean in him to stint you so. I think you are quite justified in helping yourself."

So Bessie took the money, and felt quite relieved, till a week later she discovered that her superb silk put her simple straw hat, with its ribbon trimmings, entirely out of countenance.

"It will never do to wear it with that silk," said Kate, and took Bessie forthwith to a fashionable millinery establishment down town.

"Now, here's a love. Just try this on, Mrs. Worth, how much is this with the flowers and the blond fall?"

"Thirty dollars, Mrs. Belcher, and cheap at that. It is imported, as madam can see. Where do you see anything so stylish in this country?"

"It is too dear," said Bessie, decidedly, looking at it, however, with longing eyes.

At length a hat for half that sum was selected by Kate, but Bessie again expostulated by declaring that she had only ten dollars in her purse.

"Take the other five out of your money drawer at home."

"But Charley——"

"Oh, that for Charley!" snapping her fingers. "You are not a slave, I hope. Have a little spirit, do!"

And again Bessie yielded, only to discover that she absolutely required several other articles that go to make up a lady's toilet, which, when duly purchased and paid for, left the money drawer empty.

Mrs. Belcher accompanied her on all these shopping excursions, buying for her, and invariably selecting the choicest articles, with a readiness not a little astonishing to Bessie, who had seen her haggle half an hour for a dime, and had to learn how much easier it is to buy when the money comes out of your neighbor's pocket.

Poor Bessie! her little heart was very sore of late. Her new clothing had brought her small pleasure, for, apart from the agonies of terror when Charley approached his desk, wherein was the money drawer, she was exceedingly uncomfortably when arrayed in her purchases. She could not breathe, except with difficulty, in the very tight waist; the long, full train proved very cumbersome; her hat—she could scarce keep it on her head, neither could she drape the lace mantle over her arms to her satisfaction.

People stared and smiled at the little fussy, overdressed woman with such a pretentious air; and Bessie heard two plainly dressed ladies, who had just alighted from an elegant carriage, whisper, one to the other:

"What a pity that she spoils so sweet a face by such a vulgar dress!"

"They are jealous," said Mrs. Belcher, consoling her.

"They are right," said Bessie to herself. "I look ridiculous; I am justly punished."

What a miserable life it was! How unspeakably happy had she been ere the demon of dress took possession of her! How she longed for the old times when she was haunted by no vision of a remorseless money drawer, which, sooner or later, must betray her folloy to the husband whom she so passionately loved!

Nor was this all. Mrs. Belcher, now esteeming Bessie presentable, had insisted that she should accompany her on a visit to the house of a friend. Under Kate's supervision she was soon arrayed and ready for the street; but as she was buttoning on her number six lavender kids, she heard her husband's footsteps in the hall below.

In this supreme moment, Bessie stood still, her face white as death, unable to move or speak. She looked with an appealing glance about the room, but Kate had disappeared. She heard Charley bound up the stairs, two at a time, and the next instant his face appeared at the door.

Charley stopped aghast, gazing at his wife from head to foot for the space of half a minute, his eyes dilating, his features working convulsively. Then he stalked across the room to his desk, wherein was the drawer in which he kept his money. It was empty. With bloodshot eyes he turned and faced his trembling wife, saying, hoarsely:

"Wretched woman! is this the price you pay for the gratification of your vanity—your husband's happiness and honor for these paltry things? My note will be protested, and I dishonored, by your treachery. Behold your work!" he added, pressing a revolver to his temples.

A clock on the mantel chimed the hour of 6.

Bessie sprang up, with a sob, rubbed her eyes, and stared wildly around her, to find Charley standing smiling beside her chair.

"Charley! Charley! thank Heaven! oh, thank Heaven, it was only a dream!"

Charley wondered a little at the unusual warmth with which she flung her arms about his neck, till, seated on his knee, she told him her dream, adding:

"And, Charley, I will never tease you again for anything. The lesson I have received was needed, and will last me a lifetime."—New York Weekly.

The Mount Vernon Estate.

Mount Vernon was called the Hunting Creek Estate, when Laurence Washington inherited it from his father. He changed the name in order to call it after the gallant Admiral Vernon. This estate, when Washington came into it, along with the paternal plantation on the Rappahannock, made him one of the wealthiest Virginia land owners.

THE MAN NEXT ∴ DOOR.

By R. A. H. GOODYEAR.

MISS MELINDA TEMPLETON quivered with indignation from the crown of her head to the soles of her pretty feet.

"Call away your dog, sir," she demanded, with flaming cheeks. "He is a terror to the neighborhood, and ought never to leave his kennel. He snaps and snarls at me fiercely every time I pass the gate."

"You should not let him frighten you," the young man calmly returned. "Honestly, there isn't a more affectionate dog in the world. Speak to him in a coaxing manner as you pass—his name is Ludwig—and in a few weeks he will be your devoted slave."

"Thank you," said Melinda, her red lip curling disdainfully, "but I shall take no such pains to cultivate his friendship. I think a stout muzzle would considerably improve his appearance. There is one at home which we have no further use for. Will you permit me to present it to you?"

Beneath the healthy tan of the young man's boyish face a deeper color began to show.

"You are very good," he said, "but it will be time enough to muzzle poor Ludwig when the authorities compel me. If my dog really annoys you, may I suggest that you make a more frequent use of the front street? This back road is not, properly speaking, a thoroughfare, and I fear you must often find it unpleasantly muddy."

"But, surely," she protested, "you will allow me to choose my own method of leaving the house! You can't control the incomings and outgoings of all the people on the terrace. I repeat, sir, that your dog is becoming an intolerable nuisance, and you must please keep him on that side of the gate, or take the consequences."

"It is kind of you to speak so frankly," he said, with a faint touch of mockery in his tone; "but if I am stupid enough to disregard your warning, what do you suppose will happen?"

"I have heard of savage dogs being shot before to-day," she hinted transparently.

"I am happy to say I have no neighbors who would be mean enough to do that," he said. "Besides, the term 'savage dog' does not fit old Ludwig. See how fondly he licks my hand!"

"Oh, yes," she retorted; still in rebellion, "it is a pretty enough picture now; but if you had seen the reverse side of it a few minutes ago, you might have been less inclined to pet and fondle him. I tried to stroke him with my umbrella, but he bit at it furiously. Here are the marks of his teeth."

And with quick little fingers she raised the umbrella for his inspection.

The young man was all regrets and apologies in a moment, and his concern was so obviously real that the girl's conscience pricked her for distressing him needlessly.

"Please don't give it a second thought," she said. "After all, the dog probably believed that I meant to strike him, and the umbrella is so old-fashioned and worthless that I only bring it out on dry days. But all this talk is quite beside the mark," she continued, mounting her high horse again with a suddenness that was almost comical. "To put it plainly, sir, you must either chain up your dog or muzzle him. You decline?"—as the young man shook his head. "Very well, then: I shall invoke the aid of the local magistrate."

"As you please about that, Miss Templeton," he said, "but I fancy you will meet with disappointment. The magistrate is an uncle of mine, and he and Ludwig are fast friends!"

Treating this inference with the contempt it deserved, Miss Melinda gathered up her skirts with a little hand as white as milk, and tiptoed past the gate in an adorably timid fashion, while the young man pretended to put out all his strength to keep back the "savage" Ludwig. But in his breast there was an unholy feeling of satisfaction at the complete success of his little scheme.

At last, he told himself exultantly, his proud, lovely little neighbor had looked into his face with those heavenblue eyes of hers, had opened that rosered mouth to speak to him, had rejoiced him with the soft, rare sound of her beautiful voice.

Next day, however, he waited and watched for her in vain. She took the advice he had given her and left the house by the front door, hoping against hope that Mr. Paul Learey, the junior partner (ornamental rather than useful) of the city firm which employed her, would not pester her with his unwelcome attentions. But she had barely managed, by walking at top speed, to gain the end of the street before footsteps pattered behind her, and a whiff of the last "smart" thing in perfumes heralded the approach of the dreaded beauty man.

"Ah! Miss Templeton, how are you? I feared my lucky star had set for ever," he fussed, ranging himself alongside her without a shadow of doubt that his company would be agreeable to her. "It's a mystery how we've managed to give each other the slip lately. It isn't my fault, though, for I've always been early at the tryst."

"What tryst, Mr. Learey?" she asked, snapping him up with lightning quickness. "This is quite the first time I've heard of it."

"All serene, Miss Templeton, don't jump down a fellow's throat," he said, chuckling in huge delight as she haughtily shook away the hand he had dared to place on her arm. "What a little spitfire you are! Come for a trip on the river; it will cool you."

"Thank you, Mr. Learey, but I am not paid to take trips on the river," answered Melinda, a frosty gleam coming into her eyes. "I have my duty to the office to consider."

"Duty diddlesticks!" was the charming young gentleman's comment. "Business won't be paralyzed because you and I are absent half a day. You're looking pale, and a spin on the river will put color into those pretty cheeks of yours. You can plead a headache, and I'll make it all right with the old man, 'pon my honor."

Now Mr. Paul Learey, according to his lights, really meant to be kind, but he committed an alarming indiscretion when, undeterred by his previous rebuff, he passed his arm coolly through Melinda's and tried to turn her steps in the direction of the river.

In an instant she flung around on him, with a burning tide of blood rushing to her brow.

"Your honor!" she repeated, cuttingly. "What do you suppose it is worth, Mr. Learey? Put it up for auction, and there won't be a ghost of a bid for it. It is indeed a strange kind of honor which tempts a girl to scamp her work, and then puts a lie into her mouth to gloss over the transgression. Once for all, Mr. Learey, will you understand that your company is distasteful to me?"

Then Melinda stumbled into a passing omnibus, leaving behind her an abashed and crestfallen man, who for the first time in his life began to doubt his own powers of fascination.

That night Melinda, having registered an inward vow never to trust herself to the front street again while there was a possible chance of encountering Paul Learey there, consulted a solicitor concerning the dog next door. But it was small comfort the man of law could give her.

"I have seen the deeds of Mr. Leonard Pottar's property, and you have no right of road past his garden gate," he advised.

The result of this eye-opening consultation was that a very fluttered heap of lovely maidenhood besought Leonard Pottar's pardon next day, and received it, with a readiness which brought stinging tears of self-reproach to her eyes.

"And you need not fear Ludwig any more, Miss Templeton," the young man said, kindly. "I have chained him tightly to his kennel."

But Melinda, desperately determined to make full atonement, would not rest content until Ludwig had been released from the degrading chain which galled his neck; and the old dog, to show his gratitude, relaxed his canine dignity, and let her caress his velvety ears with a still more velvety hand.

Leonard Pottar had never been a keen horticulturist; but all at once he developed an astonishing zeal for the cultivation of flowers, and it became quite a common sight to see him wandering up and down the garden paths with a big water can in his hand, busily sprinkling everything that grew, whether it needed it or not.

Happening to glance through a gap in the hedge one day he beheld her in angry converse with Paul Learey, who had recovered from his fit of the sulks and was once more carrying on his senseless persecution of her.

The young man heard her, in scornful tones that cut like a whip, bid her employer an emphatic "Good evening," at the same time extending her hand as a still broader hint that this graceful retirement was expected. But there are some men whose conceit is impervious to snubs, and Paul Learey was one of them. He drew nearer to her and fatuously tried to put his hand beneath her rounded chin, and all in her white heat of anger she spread out her little fingers and smartly boxed his ears.

The next moment a cry of "At him Ludwig!" rang out on the still evening air, and the old dog's few remaining teeth fastened themselves on the flying Mr. Learey like a vice, and all the dandy's kicking and cursing would not serve to dislodge him.

"Whistle back this brute of a dog, Mr. Pottar," he blustered, "or I will call a policeman."

"Don't do that if you value your liberty," retorted Leonard, sarcastically. "The policeman might take the wrong animal."

Then he gripped the tall dandy by the shoulders and bundled him ignominiously out of the garden, returning a few minutes later with a slightly heightened color, but otherwise quite cool and composed.

"There is a pond at the bottom of the field, and Mr. Learey fell into it," he explained, in answer to Melinda's anxious inquiry. "It's all right," he added, as the girl's eyes dilated; "he scrambled out again on the other side."

On the morrow there was a vacant place in the office of Messrs. Learey & Son, for their young lady typist, whose sweet presence had so long made sunshine in the dingy room, was busy receiving the congratulations of her friends on her engagement to the charming young man next door.—New York News.

The Czar's Wealth.

The Czar's income from crown and state domains is reckoned at $7,500,000 a year, or more than three times as much as England's King is allowed. More than forty members of the imperial family have enormous revenues from property set aside by the Government for their support. The jewels in possession of the Russian royal family are unequaled in value and splendor.

Of the 136,561 freight cars ordered for American railroads last year, 25,000 were of steel construction.

AN UNCONSCIOUS BENEFA

Ole Bill Smithers stood a[cross]
Runnin' everybody down
Used to stop his work to sav[e]
Things about folks out on [the]
Used to make us all so mad
By the way he got
That we lived in mortal fe[ar]
O, his tongue 'was that s[harp]

Used to do our level best
Raisin' crops to beat the rest
'Cause Bill said, with mean
Wa'n't no use ass cultivate Tried the very best we knew
Fur to raise big cotton,
Hustled day an[d] night
That Bill Smithers didn't

Bill kep' [on]
That he'[d]
Now, [I]
Is mortgages Bin [as] Prospered
He was
We are [all]

Washington Star.

FLASHES OF FU[N]

"The simple life and [the]
do not go hand in hand" does a frenzied [fi]
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Miss Snowflake: "Wasn't Jackson got married for?" Mr. Stubb: "Goodness only knows right on workin'!"—Puck.

Behold how week a thing
The friendship that goes,
Though it for years has g[one]
I will loudly stand a loan.

"Did you find a husband at the stay at the winter resort?" plenty of 'em. The trouble there were no single men.—Leader.

Sunday school Teacher: "Willie, how many commandments there?" Willie: "Dere was Sunday, but Jake broke one, dere's nine left."—Puck.

Teacher: "What great dif[ficulty] Demosthenes compelled to [overcome] before he became an orator?" Pupil: "He had to learn how more Greek."—Philadelphia Press.

Gladys and Gertrude said: "[Let's]
And Beryl and Gwendolen: "[Yes]
When their mother made [inquiries]
And painful mistakes
But Imogene only said: "Mum[my]

"Is Mr. Cumrox going to have his portrait done in oil?" "No," answered Mrs. Cumrox, "we feared it would not be in good taste. You see, our friend Mr. C made most of his money in Washington Star.

"I met the minister this morning," said the little boy in red mitts, "and he did you take your hat off?" asked his fond mother. "No, I took his hat off, "Tommy!" "Yes, with a shovel."—Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. Gadabout: "Did Hepsy Jones ever say anything to you about Mirandy?" Mrs. Stayabilt: "Not a word, Jane. If Hepsy Jones has something good of a person to say anything."—Puck.

First Young Highwayman: "A fine and deserted street." "Say, Cyrus, is dey any danger in bein' out night like dis?" Second Highwayman: "Naw! O' course dey ain't; we is de real dangers!"—Life.

"D'ye know, Miss Hotshot, I detested Fordy, I don't know why, but sometimes, bah Jove, he made me think——" "Indeed?" asked Miss Hotshot; "then Fordy lived in vain!"—Cleveland Leader.

Mrs. Hix: "What makes you so happy, my dear?" Mrs. Dix: "My husband and I have just had a quarrel." Mrs. Hix: "I fail to see as it seemed unfamiliar so long had been since she had seen one like connection." Mrs. Dix: "Why, I've a new sealskin sack in it when he asked me to forgive him!"—Chicago News.

Aunt Peggy (apropos of the letter from college): "I'm afraid Jack is goin' ter turn out a reformer instead of a business man. He sez he'd like ter tear up evil by the roots. Uncle Jabez (sententiously): "Jes' yew worry, wife. They are plenty teachin' him thet money is the root of all evil."—Judge.

Device to Wake Sluggards.

One of the most amusing [inventions] which Mr. Cunynghame showed [was a] mechanical means of getting [people] of bed in the morning at a given [hour]. A model boy, or rather a model [of a] naughty boy, was in a model [bed] the time when he should have [risen] for his model cold bath an electric [bell] rang. The boy paid no heed [whatever] ently the bed clothes were pulled [off] him by a cord from the wall. [He] evidently enjoyed the warmth [of the] bed, for even then he did not [move]. Presently a trap opened in the [ceiling] above his head and a cisternful [of wa]ter descended on the slothful [boy], who then reluctantly sat up. His [hair], which was previously curly, [now] looked as if some one had [tried to] comb it out after ducking [his head] in a glue pot.—London Daily News.

Getting It Over With.

"Miss Dasher," said Mr. De Bore, as he rose to go, "may I give myself the pleasure of calling on you again some day evening?"

Miss Dasher gasped, but recovered herself quickly. "No, Mr. De Bore," she said sweetly. "I am very sorry, but I am to join a theatre party on Monday evening."

"Then may I come Tuesday evening?"

"Ah—er—no. I shall be out of town on Tuesday evening."

"Then perhaps you will be at home on Wednesday evening?"

"Well, really, Mr. De Bore, I have an important engagement for Wednesday."

"Well, then, how about Thursday?"

"Oh, my goodness! Come Monday!"—Cleveland Leader.

Lullaby

[Now the] sun[set] [Or] And [the] Sleep [with] [Be] [In] [Rock] [And] [Wi]th [Sl]eep [Wa]king [Ho]me

AT THE RINGING C[HIMES]

A NEW YEAR'S STORY

[The] man behind the [bar] [in] the Impecunious Loan Co[mpany] glanced at the pathetically [shabby] figure, adorned peculiarly carved brooch [and] it in his hand, and with a swift [and] fleeting look into the sweet [face] [of] in the window, dropped his [eyes] suddenly, and exclaimed in a [voice] dress like tone: "Three dollars."

"Very well." The words were [scarcely] spoken, so low the man [could] really heard. "Three dollars," he [repeated] and was rewarded by a nod in [affirmative], as he again absorbed [with] that fleeting glance the beauty and [sadness] of the young face before him.

"It is the very last thing I had to [pawn]," the woman murmured as she [passed] swiftly homeward through the [busy] streets. "What the future will [bring]—I dare not think.

[The] crowd that jostled and pushed [her] [aside] and you was a good [natured] crowd, elated and cheered by [the] Divine thought of the approach [of] New Year.

[Shaking] some of its spirit, the woman [quickened] her steps and stopped [suddenly] at last in front of a decidedly [squalid]-looking house in a poverty-[stricken] quarter of the city.

"I'll get the things first," she smiled [faintly], and when she ascended the [stairs] a little later her arms were [laden] with sundry mysterious packages, [topped] by one great paper parcel, [from] which protruded frivolously [some] toothsome chocolate éclairs and [other] dainties, interspersed here and [there] by New Year's candles of variegated hues.

"Was she much trouble, Mrs. Mulligan?" she asked, as in response to [her] knock a door to the left of the [small] hall was thrown open, and a [frowsy], betousled head thrust forth.

"Ah! is that you, Mrs. Relevan," [replied] "I'm glad you kem home. No, [ma'am] she wasn't the shlightest trubble, not the shlightest."

"Mamma," called a sweet, childish [voice], as a little white-robed figure [ran] forward. "Ooh, what lots o' [nice] things you got. Can we have a [party], to-morrow, mamma, an' can I [sit] up to-night to hear the chimes [ring]?"

"First, supper, darling, and then—I see."

She set a dainty table, such a [contrast] as seemed unfamiliar so long had been since she had seen one like [it], and when it was all complete, she [called] Mrs. Mulligan.

"A faste, a faste." As Mrs. Mulligan stood in the doorway wiping her [reddening] red arms on her apron, she [presented] a picture of good nature, good [humor]. Many a time had she given her own limited store, rejecting [vehemently] Mrs. Relevan's objections. "I'd [be] you'd do the same 'f you had [a] darlint. Toosh—don't be foolish." She was the life of the little party [in] all evil."—Judge.

What the future will bring—I dare not think."

[Sud]denly, and little Margaret, climbing [into] her lap, threw her diminutive [arms] around her neck, and rested her [tired] small head lovingly against her [mother's] shoulder. "I'm going to stay [up] to hear the chimes ring," she murmured sleepily, but even while she [spoke] the last remnant of candy [dropped] from her small, clinched fist, [and] she fell fast asleep.

"An' that divil," muttered Mrs. Mulligan as her mother softly tucked the [scarlet] around the small [figure], "could have a cheek like that, [begorra], the min have no hearts—no hearts!"

Lullaby

Now the evening shadows fall
On the mossy garden wall,
And the birdies, soft and woe,
Sleep within the cherry tree.

But the bee is busy yet
Where the leaves are dewy wet
In the honeysuckle vine,
Baby darling, baby mine.

And the West is full of dreams,
Rosy glows and golden beams,
Made for slumbers, calm and deep,
By the lovely Lady Sleep.

With the woolly lamb to hold,
And the bedtime story told,
Sleep for rosy dreams are near,
Waiting for my baby dear.

—Brooklyn Eagle.

AT THE RINGING of the CHIMES

A NEW YEAR'S STORY

BY MARY MORRIS

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

...mat behind the little half-moon ...w in the "Impecunious Loan Of...glanced at the pathetically old-...ned peculiarly carved brooch he ...n his hand, and with a swift ...ering look into the sweet face ...d in the window, dropped his ...suddenly, and exclaimed in a ...ess like tone, "three dollars."

"...ry well." The words were so ...w spoken, so low, the man ...ly heard. "Three dollars," he ...ted again in a slightly raised ..., and was rewarded by a nod in ...firmative, as he again absorbed ...l fleeting glance the beauty and ...s of the young face before him.

"...s the very last thing I had to ..." the woman murmured as she ...swiftly homeward through the ...streets. "What the future will ... I dare not think."

...crowd that jostled and pushed ...her and you was a good-...d crowd, elated and cheered by ...vine thought of the approach-...New Year.

...ting some of its spirit, the wom...quickened her steps, and stopped ...ly at last in front of a decid...ly and looking house in a rather ...ked quarter of the city.

"...get the things first," she smiled ..., and when she ascended the ... a little later her arms were ... with sundry mysterious pack...topped by one great paper par...from which protruded frivolously ...toothsome chocolate eclairs and ...r dainties, interspersed here and ...by New Year's candies of vari...hues.

"...s much trouble, Mrs. Mulli...," she asked, as in response to ...knock a door to the left of the ...hall was thrown open, and a ...y, befrousled head thrust forth.

"...is that you, Mrs. Relevan? ...I'm glad you kem home. No, ...m she wasn't! the shloightest ...bby not the shloightest."

...lamma," called a sweet, childish ..., as a little white-robed figure ...ded forward. "Ooh, what lots o' ...things you got. Can we have a ...tomorrow, mamma, an' can I ...up to-night to hear the chimes ...

...per, darling, and then—

...set a dainty table—such a ta... seemed unfamiliar, so long had ...been since she had seen one like ...and when it was all complete, she ...Mrs. Mulligan.

"...faste, a faste." As Mrs. Mulli...stood in the doorway wiping her ...ming red arms on her apron, she ...ed a picture of good nature, good ... Many a time had she given ...r own limited store, rejecting ...ently Mrs. Relevan's objections. ...re you'd do the same 'f you had ...arlint. 'Toosh—don't be foolish." ...was the life of the little party

...hat the future will bring—I dare not think."

...and little Margaret, climbing ...her lap, threw her diminutive ...s around her neck, and rested her ...small head lovingly against her ... shoulder. "I'm going to stay ...ear the chimes ring," she mur...sleepily, but even while she ...the last remnant of candy ...ped from her small, clenched fist, ...she was fast asleep.

"...s a divil," muttered Mrs. Mulli... as mother softly tucked the ...ed the small, childish ... "...as a choild like that. ...e must have no hearts—

...gan began tentatively, "I saw him to-day."

Mrs. Relevan relieved her of the sleeping child and buried her face in its soft, golden curls.

"He wants to koom back. An' he looks moighty prospherous too. 'A misunderstanding,' he says, but—if you would forgive——"

She never forgot the look on the white face, as it slowly upreared itself from the mass of tumbled curls.

"Forgive," she cried brokenly, and then as the chimes began their pealing the door opened and closed noiselessly, and Mrs. Mulligan slipped quietly out.

A moment later a handsome, white-faced man stood on the threshold. His arms were outstretched. His voice pleading. Its tones mingled vibratingly with the music of the chimes.

"Let us begin the New Year together, Margaret," he said humbly. "Together—dear."

The child on her knee stirred restlessly. She quietly reached out her hand.

THE ONE GREAT PROBLEM.

Question of Distribution That Has to Be Solved.

George L. McNutt, the preacher-laborer and social economist, otherwise known as "The Dinner Pail Man," told recently of a conversation he once had with a multi-millionaire. After lecturing in the plutocrat's mansion on the inequalities and struggles of life, he seized the occasion to investigate the rich man's point of view.

"What's the matter with this old world, anyway?" he asked. "Did the Creator overlook something in his plans?"

"That's not it at all," was the reply. "It's all a question of distribution. I made my money by handling just one of the world's many products—just one—but every item of waste was eliminated from the handling. This wasteful duplication in distributing is what picks our pockets and keeps the poor man down. Why, grapes that I raise on my farm in the West cost to produce just one cent a pound, but to put them on the table in New York makes the price soar to twelve cents a pound. In other words, God gives us grapes for one cent and our wasteful way of distributing them around makes them cost us eleven times more than they are actually worth.

"You will say that our method of handling products makes work for many men, but the high prices they are obliged to pay for everything makes it a game of taking in with one hand and paying out with the other. There's no doubt of it, much of the world's misery hinges on this one thing—the question of distribution."

Maximilian's Officer Saw Him Shot.

A beneficiary of the will of Ferdinand Maximilian, emperor of Mexico from 1864 to 1867, lives in Vineland, N. J., in the person of Rudolf Stinerter, now 62 years old. He was a captain of artillery on the ship Penosola, and was sixty-five miles off shore the night Gen. Lopez betrayed the emperor. He started on land for his beloved commander with 11 guns and 940 men, and cutting his way through surrendered with 440 men and 3 guns. Stinerter, with other officers, saw his commander shot. He differs with historians in describing the death scene. He says Maximilian refused to have his eyes bandaged, and stood up with one hand on his heart, marking the spot where the four soldiers were requested to fire, and with the other hand outstretched fell back and expired immediately. Maximilian left each of his officers $100 a year in his will. The only other officer Stinerter knows to be living is Baron Fulmer of Philadelphia.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

To a Critic.

I sometimes wonder which the earliest thrived,
The mind creative or the analytic;
Whether the writer first arrived,
Or first the critic.

'Tis certain that in Paleolithic times
Men fully understood the art of slating;
And earlier than the birth of rhymes
They practiced ratings.

Dear Critic, do not think we value less
The potency of your perennial function
Because you sometimes curse and bless
In strange conjunction.

'Tis true as the generations pass,
There is a deal of imputation breaking;
The ages write you down an ass,
And no mistaking.

But let not this disturb your candid mind;
The monkey's ears are very slow in showing;
The lion's skin you hide behind
Is vast and flowing.

You need not think about posterity,
When bolstering the false or scouting beauty,
To rectify your faults will be Oblivion's duty.

—Pall Mall Gazette.

Onions as Weather Prophets.

One of the rites performed by the French peasants on New Year's eve is the forecasting of the weather for the coming year by means of onions.

When the bells ring for midnight mass they scoop out the middles of twelve onions and set them in a row on the kitchen table, fill them with salt and name them for the months in the year. Then, when they return from mass they examine the condition of the salt. If it has melted in any of the "months" those months will be rainy; if the salt remains dry it indicates drought; if half melted the first fortnight of the month will be wet.

The peasants have such implicit faith in this means of foretelling the weather that they plant their crops in accordance with the prophecy of the onions.

Fox in a Dining Room.

A fox, being hard pressed by the Tidworth Hunt, washed through the large window of the dining room of the residence of Major Foyle, R. E., at Netheravon, escaping through the front door.—London Express.

GOT EVEN WITH CRITIC.

Wife's Arrangement Effectually Muzzled Captious Husband.

A certain well known politician's daughter has a husband who is disposed to be critical. Most of his friends are men of great wealth, who live extremely well, and association with them has made him somewhat hard to please in the matter of cooking.

"What is this meant for,' he would ask, after tasting an entree his wife had racked her brain to think up.

"What on earth is this?" he would say when desert came on.

"Is this supposed to be a salad?" he would inquire sarcastically when the lettuce was served.

The wife stood it as long as she could. One evening he came home in a particularly captious humor. His wife was dressed in her most becoming gown and fairly bubbled over with wit. They went in to dinner. The soup tureen was brought in. Tied to one handle was a card containing the information in a big round hand:

"This is soup."

Roast beef followed, with a placard announcing: "This is roast beef."

The potatoes were labeled, the gravy dish was placarded, the olives bore a card marked "Olives," the salad bowl carried a tag marked "Salad," and when the ice cream came in a card announcing "This is ice cream" came with it.

The wife talked of a thousand different things all through the meal. Never once by word or look did she refer to the labeled dishes. Neither then nor thereafter did she say a word about them, and never since that evening has the captious husband ventured to indulge in criticism of his home dinners.—New York Press.

"Mrs." Not Put on Tombstones.

"How often one hears the expression, "She just got married because she wanted to have Mrs. put on her tombstone." Now, this seems a very natural statement to the natural listener, says the Philadelphia Record, but, as a matter of fact, there are few tombstones that have "Mrs." on them, as very recent interviews with grave-diggers and church sextons have demonstrated, so the woman who intends plunging into matrimony with the idea that she is going to be known as Mrs. Jackson or Mrs. Blackson after death had better hesitate before she takes any desperate step.

Even after death a married woman is only considered part of her husband's property, for out of several hundred tombstones investigated none had the appellation Mrs., while every one had "Sarah, wife of," or "Jane, wife of." When the investigator asked an old sexton well versed on tombstone lore if there were any tombstones with "Mrs." on them he replied:

"Well, I've been seein' to the buryin' of married women for the last fifty years, but I ain't never seen a tombstone yet that had a 'Mrs.' on it."

After the Votes Were Counted.

The editor of this paper met the enemy last Tuesday and we are theirs in carload lots. We lost out and our opponent won in. The only way we can account for this is that he got more votes than we did. We are not lame, maimed or sore over the result. A number of voters promised to vote for us, but made a mistake on election day and voted for the other fellow—such is politics.

Hereafter this paper will be more of a religious paper than a political one. We have to do something to square ourselves for the lying we have done in behalf of ourselves and others.

We find ourselves now without friends, influence, money, credit or a meal ticket, and those owing us will come to our relief at once. No apologies or excuses will be received unless it bears the mark of the sender—that is, gold, silver or currency. We will be found at the Gem office during business hours, unless we are dodging our creditors.—Flagstaff Gem.

The Warning in a Sneeze.

"As a general thing, sneezing is Nature's warning to get warmer in some way or other and quickly," is the gist of an article by Dr. W. R. Conant in Modern Medical Science.

"The question of temperature and ventilation," he says, "is one of the most difficult winter problems. So much depends upon circumstances and individual idiocyncrasy that it is hard to lay down any definite rules. An indoor temperature which is suitable for a vigorous person or one in active motion is dangerous for one who is delicate or sitting and doing head work exclusively.

"As a general rule it may be said that a temperature that falls much below 70 degrees at four feet from the floor is dangerous for sedentary workers; and any one who continues sitting when he feels chilled does so at the risk of his life."

By-Low, By-Low.

Here's the way she sang to me,
By-low, by-low,
As she held me on her knee,
Long ago, long ago.
Oh, the years between are long
And their haunting specters throng,
Yet I hear her olden song;
By-low, by-low.

I have wearied on the way—
By-low, by-low—
And the sunset is but gray,
Well I know, well I know,
Yet, my mother, through the stress
Comes your song, my heart to bless;
Comes your song, like a caress—
By-low, by-low.

Hold me, mother, as of old—
By-low, by-low—
Let your song of love untold
Ebb and flow, ebb and flow;
Hold me to your loving breast—
Sing the songs of songs the best:
By-low, by-low.
—A. J. Waterhouse in Sunset Magazine.

A woman's intellect is seldom up to the standard of her conversational ability.

Where Tom O'Brien Died

When "Tom" O'Brien, ex-Chicagoan and ex-"gold-brick" king, died in New Caledonia he was a very long way from home. New Caledonia is in the tropics, far down in the Pacific. The nearest land of size is Australia, which is 900 miles distant. New Caledonia is known throughout the world as a great penal colony. France has used it for storage purposes of this kind since 1864 and especially since the fall of the Paris commune, after which it was made the place of exile of thousands of Frenchmen who were involved in the storms of that time. Since then this Melanasian land has become the jail of thousands of others condemned by the laws of their country. The greater part of the white inhabitants therefore are interesting, but not socially select. The island itself is described by George Griffith, an English traveler, as a paradise. The climate is delightful, the mountainous scenery most beautiful.

New Caledonia's soil is fertile and its mountains full of treasures. According to Mr. Griffith, "when nature made New Caledonia she set herself to dump down as many ores and minerals in as small a space as possible. There is hardly a mineral known to science that is not represented in greater or less quantities in that island. A mining expert once went over from Australia to make a survey for the International Copper company and afterward he made his report in person to the board in London. He knew as much about mining as anybody in the southern hemisphere, but his language was that of the bush. A noble lord asked him of he could give any estimate of the amount of copper, nickel, cobalt, iron, silver, gold and so on that might be found in the central chain of mountains. This was his answer: 'My lord, if you were to take out all the —— minerals of these mountains the —— island would —— well fall to pieces.' The report was taken as satisfactory."

Until 1853 New Caledonia was a sort of no-man's land. Then both England and France decided to annex it and orders came to two warships to proceed thither at once. They started the same day. The English captain had heard of the reefs that surround the island and he was cautious. The Frenchman went ahead without regard for the reefs. When the British captain arrived he saw the tricolor flying from a hill and he was invited to come in and lunch on French soil.

Moral in Giving Alms

The woman sang her ballad to the sky
Of the keen night, flinging on high
The notes that fluttered to my window-pane
Like birds, and beat against the glass in vain
Until I opened, and from out the gloom
Let them flock into my room, firelit room.

There was no more of meaning in the words
That came than in the jargoning of birds,
But in the voice, and in the plaintive air
There was an intimation of despair
From killing sorrow, and the appealing cry
Or sorest need, which no man might deny
And cover from himself his own disgrace.
So, thoughtfully, as one does in such a case,
From among several coins in hand I chose
That of the smallest worth, and wrapped it close
In paper, so that it might not be lost, Striking the frozen ground below, and tossed My gift down from the window at the feet
Of the poor singer in the wintry street.

But she, as if she neither saw nor heard, Rapt in her song, sang on, and never stirred,
While one, that opportunely strolled around
The corner nearest her, both heard and saw,
Stooped, and put out a predatory claw,
And clutched the paper; felt and recognized
The coin within (that somehow suddenly sized
My own soul up to me, in an odd way),
And then deliberately, but without stay
For all my frantic shouts and signs, kept on
To the next corner, turned it, and was gone.

What should I do? Let the poor singer go Unhelped because of this misdeed? Not so!
Such a conclusion even I could not brook,
A coin of the same worth again I took,
Wrapped it again in paper, and again
Tossed it down to the singer—not in vain,
This time! She saw it coming through the air
And heard it fall upon the ground, and there,
While she still sang, curtseyed her thanks
to me,
Until I turned away and left her free.

And I was well content, and glad at heart;
For having doubly done a noble part?
I was not sure. Had it been heaven's intent
That I should twice give the sum I had meant
To give but once? Perchance, unknown to me
Both women were in equal misery,
Though not of equal merit. Then, had
I won
A twofold blessing by what I had done?

These things are mysteries, but my story's moral Seems one with which no one can justly quarrel:
If there is suffering that you would relieve,
Give twice the sum at once you meant to give;
And do not wait for wrong to come your way
And force your unwilling hand, for though it may,
Again, it may not, and, for your own sake,
The chance is such as you ought not to take.
—W. D. Howells in Harper's Weekly.

In Safety and Danger

The Scientific American recently called attention to the odd fact that the man who rides a few score feet in a New York city elevator runs a greater risk of injury than the man who travels from New York to Chicago and back on the fastest trains. No fewer than thirty persons were killed, and many more hurt, in New York elevator accidents in the first nine months of this year. No such proportion of those who traveled on the fast passenger trains between the two cities were even hurt.

Yet the average man buys an accident insurance ticket whenever he starts on a railway journey of any length, and never thinks of such precautions before entering the car that lifts him to his office. Whenever a notable railway accident occurs he talks for days about the great loss of life. But he never thinks of the proportionately greater loss of life every day from accidents that befall men at home in their own houses. The returned missionary who publicly complained the other day that, after living entirely unhurt for four years among the wildest savages of Africa, he had no sooner returned to civilization than he met with a railway accident that kept him in a hospital for six months curiously illustrated the habit of the human mind to dwell upon remote dangers and ignore those near. Yet the fact is indisputable—the accident insurance companies have proved it to their financial loss and gain—that one of the most dangerous places a man can be is in his own home, whereas one of the safest is in a first-class railway train at full speed, while the very safest place on earth is aboard a first-class steamship in the middle of the Atlantic.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Light in Darkest Africa

Twenty-five years ago there was not a single school in Central Africa. To-day there are nearly 170 in the Livingstonia mission alone. Twenty-five years ago no one in Central Africa knew a letter of the alphabet, says the Southern Workman. To-day there are more than 20,000 pupils in the schools. Twenty-five years ago there was no Christian in all the country. To-day 300 native teachers preach Christ in the villages every Sabbath day. Twenty years ago there was only one inquirer after Christ. Last year there were more than 3,000 catechumens in the baptism classes, and in a single day at one of the stations more than 300 adults were received by baptism into the church of God. Up to 1890 slave caravans were as numerous as ever.

To-day a strong British protectorate has made slave raiding impossible, and this much is certain that if Christianity had not entered Nysaland there would be no British administration there to-day, and Central Africa would still be a land of darkness, of spoliation and of blood.

Each week volunteer evangelists go out two by two from the mission. No pay is given them, but a few beads are usually furnished to enable them to buy food at the distant stations. To reach these the evangelists have to leave on Saturday afternoon, descend some 2,900 feet to the lake shore and walk five to ten miles along rough broken paths to their destinations. They return on Monday in time for afternoon to descend some 2,900 feet to the lake less than forty-four village services are held in a day.

German War on Phthisis

Consular Clerk Murphy of Frankfort sends to the state department the "measures for preventing the spread of consumption" recommended by the city authorities.

Every consumptive and every person who coughs should take care that it is received in spittoons or similar vessels containing water or, still better, chloride of lime or salt water. Such liquids prevent freezing and also the drinking of the water by animals.

These cuspidors should be two inches high and eight to ten inches in diameter. They should have smooth, slightly curved edges and should be made of smooth glass, porcelain, china or enameled iron. They should contain water to a depth of four-fifths of an inch.

As the water evaporates more should be added. The cuspidors should be cleansed daily with boiling water.

Consumptives should give especial attention to cleanliness. The sitting-rooms and bedrooms of consumptives should have only such curtains, bed coverings and the like as can be easily washed. There should be no carpets.

The entire floors of such rooms should be washed daily, and even in the winter the rooms should be properly aired daily for at least one hour.

Uncooked milk may become a transmitter of consumption. The public is warned against its use.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and
Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser. $1.25

The UNION and
Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and
Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

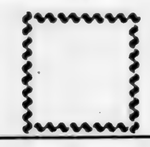
Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?



Yes, everybody will be glad to learn that the man who played the piano for sixty hours without stopping has been stopped at last, and is in the Baltimore (Md.) jail, affirms the Orange (Va.) Observer.

A man arrested in Harlem as a highway robber gave as his occupation "cabman," which is a novel way of pleading guilty, declares the New York Herald.

Chicago will probably never cease to crow over her traditional rival St. Louis on the subject of world's fairs. At the Chicago fair there was a total of 27,539,000 admissions, or a net of 21,480,000 paid admissions, while at the St. Louis exposition there were only 19,700,000 admissions in all, of which only 12,805,000 were paid.

Professor Seward, of Stanford University, questions the value to Americans of the Rhodes scholarships, states Punch. His countrymen, he declares, have nothing to learn from England. Four hundred undergraduates of Columbia University, in a hunt after a freshman last week, broke innumerable windows in New York and destroyed the railings of a Subway station.

Advices from New York state the custom of hiring rather than owning horses and carriages is becoming much more general than it has been among the wealthy people of that city, states the Breeders' Gazette. It is related that many of the rich ladies have this season hired complete outfits and that additions are being made to their ranks every day. This custom has prevailed in Britain for a long time.

If in a less fortunate time than ours, when the resources of mind and body were less varied and plentiful than they are now, men and women took delight in life, warmed both hands at its fire, and filled their hearts with joy and gladness, may we not conclude that they were happy simply because they lived, as we might, in the right way, and put to their right uses that which was provided for them? asks the Christian Register.

WORK OF COTTON ASSOCIATION IS MANIFEST.

W. H. Seymour, President of the Alabama Cotton Association, was yesterday busied with sending out letters to the heads of the County organizations, urging activity in every beat and better organizations according to the New Orleans plan of reducing this year's cotton acreage and use of commercial fertilizers 25 per cent.

Pledge forms to this effect have been sent by Secretary Jesse C. Adams to all the beat organizations so that the signatures of the growers on the question of reduction will be obtained at once. More blanks are expected to arrive from Atlanta and New Orleans every day.

President Seymour said yesterday that he found the work now started for higher cotton prices is the most gigantic that has ever confronted the south.

"This becomes more apparent every day," he said. "It is strictly a task for the South and the South alone. It appeals to the patriotism of the Southern States, and it is to be hoped that every man living in Dixie will interest himself in the cause.

"I believe that although we may not succeed to all the intents of the Southern Association, we are accomplishing an incalculable good."

The loyalty of Alabama farmers to the recommendation of the New Orleans convention is being demonstrated from day to day by actual statistics. This is the reduction of the use of fertilizers. The books of Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole show that up to February 27, 1905, tags representing the sale of 40,769 tons of fertilizers were issued. At the same time in 1904 there were 79,903 tons sold.

This makes a remarkable decrease in the contemplated use of fertilizers in this State. It is a decrease that, in the opinion of Commissioner Poole, can be accounted for only by a concerted determination of the farmers to use less fertilizer this year than last year.—Montgomery Advertiser.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY AT THORSBY.

John W. Johnston, who has been living at Thorsby for about four months, and who married a Miss Wright about two weeks ago, was arrested last Friday night and taken to Montgomery Saturday and had a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Elmore on Monday, who held him in $1,000 bond to answer to the Federal grand jury. Johnston's wife accompanied him to Montgomery. He claimed to come from Oklahoma, but on being at the Montgomery jail from marks found on him, the authorities seem to think they have got hold of a person who may be wanted in other states. The formal charge against him is "a felonious attempt to burglarize the postoffice at Thorsby, Ala." The following account of the examination, taken from the Advertiser, tells the whole story:

"The young man appeared in the court yesterday morning perfectly cool and calm. He made no attempt at defense. He waived examination and seemed anxious to get back to prison.

The government made a good case against Johnston. Jonathan Bice, the postmaster of Thorsby, was the first to testify. He told how several weeks ago he had been informed by Joe Gabbard that an attempt would be made to burglarize the postoffice. He asked Gabbard who the person was, but was denied the information. Later he was informed that Johnston was the man. Friday he was told by Gabbard that the attempt would be made that night. He consulted the town marshal, John L. Robinson, and Friday night with Robinson, Charles Dudley, Doyle Dudley and Leonard Martin, the postmaster secreted himself in the postoffice. The place was dark and the men waited until after 11 o'clock before any signs of the burglary were apparent. They first heard the window sash being raised and then heard footsteps approaching the locality of the safe. When the person halted, the witness called for a light and at the same time commanded the intruder to hold up his hands.

Johnston was disclosed. On his person was found a pair of saws and in his hand he held a crude lantern made of a tomato can. On his person he had a piece of paper on which were figures supposed to be the combination to the safe.

When asked what he was doing in the postoffice the postmaster said he exclaimed: "My God, wouldn't you make a try if you thought that you could get $4,000 as easy as picking it up?" Johnston wore no shoes.

The testimony was corroborated by Joe Gabbard and John L. Robinson.

The decision of the commissioner was announced and Johnston was taken back to jail.

It was disclosed yesterday that Johnston and other white prisoners occupying the front rooms on the second floor of the jail made an attempt at a jail delivery Sunday with no other tools than the handles of their eating spoons and a few nails.

The men were allowed the privileges of the corridor, in order that they might get some exercise. Jailer F. M. McLemore Sunday afternoon discovered that some of the paneling of the corridor had been broken off. He took down the broken panels and found that a number of bricks had been removed. The brick work of the jail is done with mortar and the rude instruments used were sufficient.

The men were transferred from the corridor to the steel cage, where the strongest saws will be required to cut out into the corridor. All of the men deny any attempt at a delivery."

MARS HILL.

The people of this settlement are improving in health since the fine weather came; many are sowing oats. J. N., D. W. and A. J. Scott went to Montevallo Wednesday, and D. W. and A. J. sold two bales of cotton for 7 1-2 cents. E. G. Cofer is getting in a lot of new goods, and wants people to come and see them. J. N. Scott killed a fine beef Thursday. Willie Gothard's little daughter was buried at this place on the 18th. We all mourn the loss of the dear little one. Success to THE UNION and its many readers.

MARSHILLIAN.

PLEASANT GROVE.

Editor Union:

I see that some of our people are somewhat in doubt of the farmers holding cotton and reducing acreage, but I've never seen the people more determined on anything than they are on these points. However, I think it's a mistake to reduce fertilizer for instead of less guano per acre, we ought to reduce acreage 40 per cent and increase guano 50 per cent, thereby making our land better for the future. But, brother farmer, be sure and make your feed and grocery store at home. Some pick at the one mill school tax, and I think they would kick if they were sentenced to hang; give us the special school tax and stop this fuss about supplement money, and while we are holding a special election for school tax, let's economize and vote on stock law at the same time. I've always been against stock law; but I am now in favor of it, as I think the time has come when it will be a benefit to the greatest number of our people. Some farmers have fenced all their land and rented it out, and run their stock on their neighbors' land for support. What we need is good bred stock, good hogs instead of razor backs, hogs that at ten months old will weigh 200 to 400 pounds, which is much easier than to make that weight in 4-year-old razorbacks. Let us all go to Clanton on the 16th. Besides the county cotton meeting there will be some good stock there on show. Success to the good old Chilton farmer, hurrah for the telephone, wouldn't it be nice to sit at home and talk to your dealer at Clanton? Success to THE UNION.

Yours as ever,
JOSEPH H. THOMAS.

LIBERTY HILL.

Well, the cold spell is broken, and people and stock are glad, for it has been a severe winter on all. We are glad to hear that Rev. B. H. Vickers' family are improving from a severe attack of "la grippe," while little Esther is doing fairly well. Mrs. J. M. Maddox is improving and we hope she'll soon be out. Miner Littlejohn has about completed his new house. Look out, Judge Reynolds, for a call soon. Jeff Baker is putting a nice fence around his new residence, making it the prettiest place between here and Clanton. Pate Thomas and son have been visiting Tom Allen's, near Coopers. C. H. Cooper and his fair bride visited C. C. Swint's family Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mims visited his parents last week. J. A. Logan and wife visited her parents Saturday week. Mrs. Susan Cooper and daughter, Essa, have been visiting C. C. Swint, Mrs. Swint being a daughter of Mrs. Cooper's. L. T. Vickers visited his uncle last week. Rev. S. Smitherman filled his appointment here on the third Sunday and Saturday before, and preached an excellent sermon Sunday to a large and attentive congregation. Some think Alfred Maddox was visiting relatives around here, but I think it's a young lady's bright, smiling face that attracts him. Well, the fact that's been smiling so brightly on Sunday evenings, looked very sad at the non-appearance of some one Sunday before last. Success to THE UNION.

"ONE AT HOME."

BETH-SALEM.

All I can hear in this community is cotton reduction and special school tax, but I think the cotton association is the right thing. I'm not in favor of the tax, for the farmer has enough tax to pay without adding any more to it. It is some big man has got it up because he thinks he'll make us farmers do just as he wants us to do, but when voting day comes, let's all turn out and see that he doesn't get it as he wants it. Wishing success to THE UNION and its readers.

"THE NEW CARPENTER."

RANDOLPH.

We are pleased to see so much correspondence in the Union. Let the good work go on, and we'll be a Union family and talk to each other through its columns. Mrs. C. W. Brand is sick with "la grippe." J. B. Cummings' little child came near being fatally burned last week. Its dress caught fire and but for the timely assistance of John Helton it might have resulted seriously. M. L. Cleveland is making some improvements to his store. Among our visitors we noticed F. J. Fitts, of Hubbard; J. P. Nix, of Macedonia; J. C. C. Woolley, of Lawley; Rev. A. J. Lumpkin and son, Mr. McMillan, and S. E. Waldrop, of Macedonia. A real estate agent, formerly of Sweden, was here a couple of weeks ago, looking over Major Howison's land, with a view to locating a colony here. A goodly number of Chilhowites come to Randolph to trade, but they never lounge around the stores, but get through their business and go back home to look after matters there. This is the way to do.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

JEMISON, ALA.

Jemison, Ala., Feb. 27, 1905.

Editor Union:

Please let me say a few words through your columns to my brother farmers. I want every farmer to come out on March 4th, or some nearby day, and organize and discuss plans of improving their farms, and elect three delegates to the county association that meets at Clanton on March 16th. Also, every one who has cotton is urged to come, whether he joins the association or not. Now brother farmers, let's lose a few days' time and make a grand success of our organization. The cry of "wolf" has been heard often, but in my judgment the "wolf" is at the door now. When we look at statistics we find that 99 per cent of the people own only 1 per cent of the property; the other 99 per cent of the property is owned by 1 per cent of the people, so brethren you will see that the people need financial education. We have the financial ability of the south with us now, and we can't fail of success if we come together and stick like men. Let us all sail in the same boat, and float or sink together. Let us diversify our crops, that is plant more corn, cane, peas, etc., and less cotton; and turn our attention to raising of stock. If you don't understand the objects of our association, come and be with us on the 16th and hear what is said. While our nation produces $10.40 per day per capita and the wages paid labor is $3.00, the average wage for farming is $275 a year, or 75 cents per day. The average price of a pound of cotton after it is manufactured is 75 cents, so you see the condition we are in. Now, the capitalists of the south are willing to reach down and take our hands and lift us up to them if we will just put out our hands toward them. Let's all reach out together. Can't there be one man found in each school district that will take hold and work it up? Let us make Chilton the banner county of the state. We want three delegates from every school district in the county, and also EVERY man that is HOLDING COTTON to meet in mass meeting at Clanton on March 16th. Yours for better times.

W. H. CONWAY.
Pres. Co. Cotton Ass'n.

SALEM-PROVIDENCE.

Well, the weather has finally changed, though for a while it looked as if nature was going to take cotton reduction in her hands and cut it all off. Mrs. D. S. Robinson visited her father, N. J. Calloway, last week. Miss Laura Robinson is on the sick list. Mrs. B. F. Higgins, Jr., has been spending some days with her mother, Mrs. N. J. Calloway, who has been confined to her bed with pneumonia. D. S. Robinson was in Clanton a week ago Saturday. T. L. Robinson attended the cotton convention. We're glad to report a good attendance at our Sunday schools last Sunday.

C. A. L.

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.

tf

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-We ly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the n of the national campaign, and all the news of all the you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases a Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bran

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabam

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Living a Lie.

Those People Who Dress or Live Beyond Their Mea

By O. S. Marden.

DRESSING or living beyond one's means is nothing less than ab lute dishonesty. If you are trying to do what you cannot af to do, you are living a lie; if you are wearing clothes that y cannot afford, they are perpetual witnesses against you. T are labeled all over with falsehood; your jewelry, your carria your furs and your costly gowns tell me that you are rich w you live in a poverty-stricken home and when your mother obliged to make all sorts of sacrifies to enable you to make this false displ you lie just as surely as you would if you should try to deceive me your words.

The consciousness of being well dressed, and yet owing for it, of rid in carriages which one cannot afford, or of patronizing expensive hotels a restaurants which one cannot by any stretch of imagintion or sophistry affo is destructive to all respect, to truth and honesty and to manhood and womanhood. You cannot afford to wear lies or to eat lies any more than can afford to tell lies.

There is only one possible result upon character of falsehoods whet acted or told, and that is perpetual deterioration and demoralization. No can live a lie, or act a lie, without being dishonest. When a man sacrifi his honesty he loses the mainspring of his character, and he cannot be p fectly honest when he is lying by frequenting costly hotels or restaurants, wearing expensive clothing or by extravagant living when he cannot afford it. Success.

Ice Breaks at Madison.

Madison, Ind., February 26.—The ice in the Ohio river at this point broke Sunday. Little damage was done to shipping.

Young Woman is Scalped.

Vincennes, Ind.—Miss Josephine Haller was completely scalped Sunday night while working in the Vincennes button factory by her hair catching on the shafting. The scalp was torn from the eyebrows back to base of her neck, tearing one ear completely off. She can not recover.

Peaches Killed.

Huntsville, Ala.—It is believed experts who have made an investi tion that the recent extremely c weather either killed or greatly c tailed the prospective peach crop this section. Many trees of six va ties of fruit were examined and dormant buds were found to have be killed.

Railways Under Martial Law.

St. Petersburg—All the Russi railways except the Central Asi have been placed under martial la

CITY OFFICIALS.

Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rol W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
Clerk—J. Watts Moore
Marshal—Ed Smitherman.

COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

Spring Term—Third Monday in May Fall Term—Fourth Monday in No ember.
Judge—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee
Solicitor—W. B. Bowling, Da
Clerk—Sam W. Collins

Chancery Court.

Spring Term—Second Mo
March
Fall Term—Second Monday in Se ember.
Chancellor—Hon. W. W. W
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Cla

County Court.

First Monday in ea

Commissioners' Court.

Second Monday F
April
May
Monday Nov

County Off
Judge of Probate
Treasurer W. T.
Sheriff J. M.
Tax Assessor A. C. Mims
Tax Collector F.

County Commissioners.

First District—W.
Second District—A.
Third District—R. P.
Fourth District—Moses Reed

Supt. of Education.

Prof. J. W. Moore,

County Surveyor.

J. P. R. Dahl, Calera

State Senator.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

Pastors and clerks are cordially ... to send the editor any news regard... their churches, which they wou... wish published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send cor... rections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday; E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings ley R. F. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk

Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason 4th Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman 1st Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman 3rd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk

New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman 2nd Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk

Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee 4th Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Primitive Baptists.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor, Saturday before the second Sunday; J. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song service every 2nd and 4th Sunday at noons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—3rd Saturday, Clanton.

Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No —First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 534—Saturday on or before full Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Tuesday on or before full moon, Clanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 386—Second and fourth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Coronermo Tribe, No. 90—First and third Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. ...; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

ombination Offe
ish the Twice-a-Week
ssue of the Globe-Democra
WITH e Union
FOR rs One Year Only $1.
-Democrat is issued Semi-Wee every Tuesday and Friday. It and has no equal or rival a dern Newspaper.
of the World's Fair, all the ne and all the news of all the ear
-Democrat during the coming ye
S THE TIME.
and get your best home paper a r of the World's Fair City, t Clanton, Ala.

acobs & Bros.,
re and Rugs.
AGENTS
lastic Book Cases an g Cabinets.
ing.
MINGHAM, ALA

ERCHANDISE AN TILIZERS
R SALE.
l & Mule Brand
Best on Earth"
JONES,
Alabama

PRINTING CO.
ers and Lithographers.
e Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, AL

Restaurant,
Reasonable Prices
th 20th Street,
IAM, ALABAMA.

Lie. s or Live Beyond Their Mean
. S. Marden. ond one's means is nothing less than ab es are trying to do what you cannot affo ards. If you are wearing clothes that y perpetual witnesses against you. Th h falsehood; your jewelry, your carriag
's gowns tell me that you are rich wh ticken home and when your mother to enable you to make this false displ if you should try to deceive me and yet owing for it, of ridi es of patronizing expensive hotels a reach of imagination or sophistry affor and honesty and to manhood and ways lies or to eat lies any more than y upon character of falsehoods whet ion and demoralization. No c be dishonest. When a man sacrifi ss of his character, and he cannot be p squandering costly hotels or restaurants, extravagant living when he cannot afford it.

Peaches Killed.

Huntsville, Ala.—It is believed by fruit experts who have made an investigation that the recent extremely cold weather either killed or greatly damaged the prospective peach crop in this section. Many trees of six varieties of fruit were examined and the dormant buds were found to have been killed.

Railways Under Martial Law.

St. Petersburg—All the Russian railways except the Central Asian have been placed under martial law.

CITY OFFICIALS.

Mayor—Judson Strock.
Council—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Roi-
W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
J. Watts Moore.
Ed Smitherman.

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

Third Monday in May.
Fourth Monday in No-

S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

Second Monday in Second Monday in Sep
Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

February, first Mon-
Monday June, second Monday August
November.

County Officers.

Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
W. T. Cullen.
M. Morgan.
D. Middleton.
A. C. Mims.
T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

W. H. Conway.
Alex Glasscock.
P. Kendrick.
Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

W. Moore, Clanton

County Surveyor.

Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

and clerks are cordially ask-and the editor any news regard-churches which they would published. Also if there are any services please send cor-

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Beech Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley R. F. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 1st Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Corinth—Rev. S. Smitherman 1st Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman 3rd Sunday. B. H. Armstrong, clerk.

New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 1st Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Primitive Baptists.

Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; fourth before the second Sunday; J. clerk, Verbena.

Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song every 2nd and 4th Sunday at Prayer meeting every Wed-

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—1st Saturday, Clanton.

Amanda Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No First Saturday, Clanton.

Country Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. First Saturday, Billingsley.

Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Saturday on or before full Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Saturday on or before full moon.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Tuesday on or before full moon.

I. O. O. F.

Lodge—First and third Sat-

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Tribe, No. 90—First and Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Lodge, of Thorsby—Second fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Mch 1, '05, 6,280.
Price on same date, 7 1-4c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,594.
Price same date, 14c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Frank McCary and J. F. Klinner were in Clanton Thursday.

J. W. Hayes was in town Thursday.

J. G. Hayes was a pleasant visitor Friday.

J. M. Gray and wife were in Clanton Friday.

Rev. C. K. Helland, pastor of St. Olaf's church at Thorsby, was in Clanton Friday en route to Georgia on a missionary trip.

R. G. Hall was a pleasant visitor Friday.

R. A. Hancock was in Clanton Saturday.

If you want good chickens or a hog that will pay you for the feed you give him, look at W. Y. Nix's advertisement.

Mrs. H. C. Maddox, who has been visiting relatives and friends near Clanton, returned to her home in Birmingham Sunday.

J. H. Jones was in Clanton Saturday.

The Peoples Bank has sent $5.00 to the fund which the banks of Alabama are getting up in aid of the cotton association.

Prof. J. H. Anderson was in Clanton Saturday.

J. A. Logan was in town Saturday.

Elbert Littlejohn left for his Prattville home Monday, may he have good luck.

County Surveyor Dahl was in Clanton Monday on his way to do some surveying on Yellow Leaf.

B. Easterling was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

Judge Reynolds spent Monday in Jemison.

Dr. Sanders, State Health Officer was in Clanton Monday night confering with the mayor and council about sanitary methods. Many of our doctors, also Judge Reynolds, were present by invitation.

Don't forget the district cotton meetings on Saturday, March 4th.

The Capitola Hotel in Montgomery is a good place for Chilton county people to stop at when they go to Montgomery. It is handy to the depot and business section, and is managed by Mr. Nat Comer, who many of our people know, as he taught school four years at Union.

W. H. Conway was in Clanton Tuesday. He has received some cotton blanks. If you need any, write him.

H. W. Devaughan was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

J. M. Robinson, of Waudy, was in Clanton Tuesday.

Uncle Billy Mills, a well known and honored resident of our county who resided between Kincheon and Billingsley, died last Saturday and was buried on Sunday.

Sam P. Collins and Miss Minnie Gore were married Wednesday at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. George W. Gore.

W. P. Eason, of Calera, was in Clanton Tuesday to make a final settlement as guardian of Miss Zenie Atchison as to her inheritance of the estate of J. F. Atchison.

Former Probate Judge R. M. Honeycutt spent Sunday with his son, H. I. Honeycutt. We all would like to see the Judge more often.

C. S. Montgomery and Miss Neva Cooper were married Saturday at the court house by Clerk H. I. Honeycutt.

Robert Popwell has bought the Clanton livery stable and will manage it himself. He is a popular man and will do a good business. Go see him when you want a team.

J. A. Caddell, who has been on a visit to his family, returned to his duties in the probate office Wednesday.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

C. M. Fitts and Miss C. M. Whaley.
Sam P. Collins and Miss Minnie Gore.
C. L. Montgomery and Miss Neva Cooper. G. N. Easterling and Miss Anna Mims.

COLORED.

Thomas Green and Annie Wilson.

NOTICE!

The next county meeting of the Southern Cotton Association will be held at Clanton, March 16, at 11 a. m. Each school district organization is entitled, to 3 delegates; all districts should meet on March 4th and elect these delegates and attend to such other business as may come before them.

W. H. CONWAY,
tf. County President.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Probate Court.

To John O. Dunovan, Claud B. Dunovan and Robert Dunovan.

Whereas, Beulah Matthews, an heir at law of the estate of Jeremiah Dunovan, deceased, has filed her application in said court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said decedent, for the purpose of division, upon the ground that said land can not be equitably divided, and the 6th day of March, 1905, has been appointed for the hearing of said application, you are, therefore, hereby notified to appear before said court on said 6th day of March, 1905, to contest said application, if they think proper.

Witness my hand, this 31st day of January, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
2-2-05 3 Judge of Probate.

MASAI CREATION MYTHS.

Close Resemblance to Old Testament Narrative.

Capt. Merker, a German officer, who has spent some ten years in German East Africa, has written a very interesting ethnographical monograph on the Masai natives, in which he describes not only the manners and customs of that race, but also their language and traditions. According to Capt. Merker, the Masai have had handed down to them a story of the first creation of the world and the human race which bears a remarkable resemblance to that contained in the Old Testament.

The Masai relate that:

In the beginning the earth was a barren, dry desert, in which there lived a Dragon. Then God came down from heaven, fought against the Dragon and vanquished it. There where God slew the beast and poured out its blood there arose a Paradise luxuriant with the richest xegetation. (The natice word for this Paradise is "Kerio.") Then God created by His word sun, moon, stars, plants and animals, and last of all He made the first human couple to arise.

Hereupon follows a description of how God commanded the couple in question to abstain from eating the fruit of a certain tree, and how on His one day paying a visit, as was His custom, to Paradise, He found them guiltly trying to hide from Him. It was the Serpent here, too, who was at fault, and the woman who had succumbed to its temptation to eat the fruit. The Serpent, according to the Masai tradition, had three heads, and was punished by God by being commanded to live forever in the "holes of the earth."

The two human beings were then driven out of the Garden of Paradise by the "Morning Star," which was ordered to stand at the gate to keep it. Then the human race grew in number, and genealogies are recorded very similar to those in the Bible account, until the first murder was committed, when a flood was caused to appear. Instead of Noah, a good old man named Tumbainot was bidden build a "wooden chest" and betake himself into it with his belongings and animals of every kind. From the ark, too, as in the Bible story, Tumbainot sent out a dove, but besides the dove, he also despatched a vulture to find out how the flood was looking. At the conclusion of the flood a four-fold rainbow appeared as proof of the cessation of God's ire.

The Jacob's ladder also plays a part in the Masai tradition, but it used for a purpose very different from that in the Old Testament, being a means whereby God climbs down from heaven to visit the human race on earth. Mention is also made in the native tradition of the deception of the first born, and of the law of circumcision, the latter being sent through Marumi, the Moses of the Masai. Moreover, the Masai tell of the giving out from a mountain top of the Ten Commandments, among which are special commands not to have more gods than one, not to kill, and not to commit adultery.—London Standard.

The Wheat Map.

The Northwestern Miller, in its beautiful holiday edition, issues a wheat map of the United States which shows some startling comparisons.

Vermont was once the granary of New York city. It now produces only one bushel of wheat for more than 200 in Minnesota, the banner state.

Rochester was once known as the "Flour City." Now it is called the "Flower City." But new York still raises as much wheat as Wisconsin. Maryland produces more than either, Texas nearly twice as much and Pennsylvania three times as much. Only eight states surpass Pennsylvania in wheat-raising.

Kansas produces nearly as much wheat as both the Dakotas, which are much more often mentioned as wheat states.

Only a trifle more than half of the wheat crop grows west of the Mississippi. Illinois, Indiana and Ohio still produce 80,000,000 bushels, which is more than any far western state, and over one-eighth of the whole crop.

Little Delaware raises more wheat than all New England. Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina raises 35,000,000 bushels.

New York is the second flour-milling centre in the United States, though far behind Minneapolis, which can grind 82,000 barrels a day to New York's 14,000.—New York World.

A Kansas "Leader."

An Erie man, who has no ambition to be a Chesterfield or a leader of Erie's 400, was invited out to dinner a few evenings ago. He conjured up every excuse imaginable, and as a last resort tried to make his wife believe she was sick and unable to go, but she gave him to understand that she was going and he must accompany her. "Well," he said, "I'm sick myself, but I reckon I'll have to go." And they went. When the first course was brought on the old gentleman filled up pretty well, but seemed to be getting along all right. In the middle of the second course he declared he was full "clean up," and pushed back from the table. "Ahem, you folks jist go ahead an' eat your supper an' don't mind me. I've got to go home an' feed the pigs."—Erie (Kan.) Record.

A scientist, who has investigated the matter, states that men who are employed in the Paris sewers are as healthy as the average person, and no other eight hundred men in that city are so free from zymotic diseases.

FIRST IRON WORKS IN AMERICA.

On Falling Creek, a Tributary of the James River in Virginia.

It is not very widely known that the first iron manufactured in America was from bog oak taken from the meadows along Falling Creek, a tributary of the James River a few miles below Richmond.

In 1619, the London Company, the proprietors of the colony of Virginia, sent over a Mr. King and one hundred and fifty skilled iron workers to erect furnaces on Falling Creek. These men came chiefly from Warwickshire and Staffordshire, and when once in Virginia named the village that grew up about their iron works Warwick. The company spent about $200,000 in the erection of a furnace and opening the mines, from which for three years they produced a good quality of iron. Mr. King soon dropped out of the enterprise, and a Captain Bluett superintended the erection of the works; but his career was a short one, after which John Berkeley, son of Sir John Berkeley, a nobleman of much distinction, succeeded to the superintendency of the establishment, and conducted it ably until one day—March 22, 1622—the Indians under Opitchapan, a brother of Powhatan, who had succeeded the latter on his death in 1618, surprised the village and murdered Berkeley and one hundred and fifty men and women. The only survivors of the village were a boy and a girl, who hid in the bushes. This terminated the iron industry, and Warwick was but a name associated with the massacre for a long time. In 1700 mills were built upon the ruins of the iron furnace. In those mills was ground the first flour exported from America, much of it going to South America. From that time on Warwick grew rapidly until it became an important manufacturing and shipping village, as it was at the head of navigation. Shortly before the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, Colonel Archibald Cary acquired possession of the vast estate known as Ampthill, that lay on the James River and inland along Falling Creek for a distance. The estate was named after one in England. Colonel Cary was an active revolutionist, being chairman of the committee that drafted the first Bill of Rights and State Constitution in America, that of Virginia. When the war broke out, he took an active part in the military operations of his country in the South. Tarleton, the British general, sailed up the James River and burnt Warwick and Colonel Cary's mills on Falling Creek. It is said that Benedict Arnold, the traitor, accompanied Tarleton on this voyage. It was an act in keeping with the baseness of his character to have taken part in such retaliation against the patriotic Cary.

The old Ampthill house occupied by Colonel Cary at the time is still standing, and portions of the ruins of Warwick are to be seen. On my recent visit to the locality, a rainstorm drove me into the old Ampthill manor house, where I was kindly received by the present owners, who are descendants of the Cary family. The day was a cloudy one, and I could do but little with the camera, getting only two fairly good views of the site of the old iron works and the Cary mills; but a heavy rain prevented me from taking the house at Ampthill.—Scientific American.

Pas Failures Redeemable.

There is no failure for a man whose spirit is unconquered. No matter how late the hour, or how many and repeated his failures, success is still possible. The evolution of Scrooge, the miser, in the closing years of his life, from a hard, narrow, heartless money-grubber, whose soul was imprisoned in his shining heap of hoarded gold, to a generous, genial lover of his kind, is no mere myth of Dickens's brain. Time and again, in the history of our daily lives, chronicled in our newspapers, recorded in our biographies, or exhibited before our eyes, we see men and women redeeming past failures, rising up out of the stupor of discouragement, and boldly turning face forward once more.—O. S. Marden, in Success.

Don't look for trouble in this year of grace. Trouble will save you that trouble by looking for you, the Atlanta Journal says.

This is a world in which there is always something coming off, the Dallas (Texas) News declares.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes,
FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

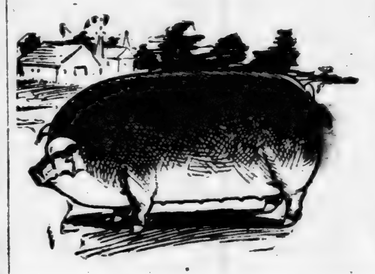
..My Specialty..
SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.
Barred Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh eggs for 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED
Duroc Jersey Hogs.
Write us for prices before you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

Cheaper automobiles are promised. They are too cheap now, but not nearly so cheap as human life.

The man who is really the head of his house lives in bachelor's quarters, avows the Newport News Press.

Now the bachelor men and bachelor maids can breathe again; the dangers and responsibilities of leap-year are past.

A scientist declares that the best thing possible for one's health is having a hobby. Then most of us should be in robust health.

The Treasury Department is calling in all the $10,000 bills in circulation. If you find any of these in your old clothes kindly send them on.

The Port Arthur band, which played every evening during the siege, may have adopted Japanese tunes and signed up for the new campaign.

A Chicago man with sixteen children complains that he is not able to send six of them to school. He might get a blackboard and start a school of his own.

The Cincinnati Express Gazette reports that in the last fifteen years there have been 354 train and stage hold-ups in this country, involving the loss of 103 lives.

Admiral Doubassoff says that Russia "may decide to leave Port Arthur in the hands of the enemy." That's one decision that Japan will do her best to aid Russia in carrying out.

It appears by the statistics that there are fewer marriages in leap-year than in ordinary years. The girls hate to be married during leap-year for fear people will think they had to do the asking. Now is their chance to even up however, by making the young men come to terms without needless parley.

In railroad gross earnings last year the United States came within a few thousands of being a two billion-dollar country, states the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Dividends amounted to $181,000,000, an increase of $23,000,000 over the fiscal year 1903. The 200,000 miles of railway in the United States are a productive property.

The physical and moral advantages of large families are well recognized, says the Lancet. Members of small families, like only children, are poorly equipped for the struggle of life, and the avoidance of obligations and responsibilities on the part of the parents does away with a very powerful factor in the education of the individual.

The New York World says: "With California reporting a production of 125,000,000 pounds of prunes the boarding house keeper can be as optimistic as Senator Depew." Yes, that figure represents a good many prunes—62,500 tons, or about 3125 carloads. But that is less than one-eighth of this season's orange production, concludes the Los Angeles Herald.

Japan's official control of the use of opium in Formosa is a success. Its import into that island fell from $769,110 in 1902 to $594,095 in 1903, a decrease of $175,000. The price is fixed by Government, and selling agents are only allowed a profit of 1½ per cent. Since late in 1900 the number of opium smokers in Formosa has decreased by about a thousand a month. Each opium smoker has to be registered. Public opinion as well as the law is against its use.

A few years ago the forest fires of Michigan and Wisconsin horrified the public by their destruction of human life, remarks Forest and Stream. Lumbering towns, saw-mills, and the log cabins of settlers, were swept out of existence, while men, women and children fled to swamps, rivers and lakes, that were not overtaken before reaching such refuges, and those hid themselves beneath the waters in the effort to escape from the flames. As settlements have increased in the more remote districts, and as the horrors of fire have become more and more appreciated, people have learned to take greater precautions. Almost all the Western States have laws—more or less well enforced—prohibiting under severe punishment carelessness with regard to outdoor fires. Since cattle became so numerous on the prairies west of the Missouri River, and since the burning over of the range is the greatest misfortune that can happen to a cattleman, every cowboy is a fire guard. Those who have read President Roosevelt's interesting book, "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail," are familiar with some of the expedients to which cowmen resort to extinguish fires that have unluckily started on the range.

THE FIRELIGHT SWEETHEART.

She comest to me often and often,
As I sit by the grate alone—
My dear little firelight sweetheart,
With a face that is like your own.
She's beckoning there in the embers,
And saucily nodding her head.
In a flickering frock of crimson
And a tiny, wee tippet of red.

Those quivering, scarlet streamers
Are the ribbons she loves to wear;
And that radiant, glowing coronal
Is a poppy she put in her hair.
Can't you see her dainily bruising
That tossing, stray lock from her brow—
Down there where the coals are the brightest,
Where that reddest one fell just now?

And now she is archly smiling,
And she roguishly beckons again
In the door of a little red cottage
At the turn of a little red lane.
And now she has come to the window
Where a clambering flame-vine clings;
And the murmuring croon of the embers
Is a love song that she sings.

And ever and ever she cheers me
As I sit by the grate, alone—
My dear little firelight sweetheart
With a face that is like your own,
As there in the dancing doorway
She saucily nods her head,
In a flickering frock of crimson
And a tiny, wee tippet of red.
—Maurice Smiley in New York Tribune.

THE ARTIST'S STORY.

Doubtless, most uptown New Yorkers remember a distinguished looking man who used to ride in Central Park every morning last spring and summer on a magnificent cream-white Arabian stallion. Be that as it may, it is certain his advent caused quite a flutter of curiosity. I have known him since we were boys together—boys in a little North of England town. He's in South Africa now and will hardly resent what I am going to tell the readers of the Pathfinder about him. His name is Ford—Charlmers Ford. It is a name not unknown among artists. If you have attended the exhibitions you have probably seen it at the bottom of more than one water color.

I happened in at his cozy studio one evening last August, only a day or two before he sailed. The walls of the room were covered with the trophies of his travels. My attention was fixed by a sketch in water colors of a young girl of the dark-haired Eastern type. On it I read the name "Zuleika."

"You world-rovers gather a good many barnacles in your wanderings," I remarked. "I suppose, too, many of these relics of yours have a history," I added, desirous of drawing him out.

"Yes, that's so. That sketch, for instance could tell a story, and this old thing here could corroborate it," he answered, handing me a venerable pistol with a long barrel of large caliber. "That ancient piece of ordnance not only saved my own life, but was the chief instrument in the rescue of one of her majesty's vessels out in the Persian Gulf last December."

Ford is a man singularly reticent about his own exploits, though he has had enough of them. But the cigar I handed him made him communicative. I only wish I might have taken his story down in shorthand, for he told it infinitely better than I can. However, this is about what he said:

"I had taken passage on the British India Company's steamer Kilwa at Bassorah, for Bombay. I was just reaching comparative civilization again after more than six months of privation and adventure in the interior of Asiatic Turkey. With much difficulty I had made my way overland all the way from Trebizond, on the Black sea. Part of the distance I had followed the route traversed by Xenophon and his devoted 10,000 in their disastrous "Katabasis." I had visited the squalid city of Mosul—once renowned for its muslins and like fabrics, and whence, in fact, the name 'muslin' is derived—to make some drawings in the excavated ruins of ancient Nineveh, near by. It is there, by the way that the royal palaces of Sennacherib and Sardanapalus, after twenty-six centuries of oblivion, have been laid bare. After stopping en route at now decayed and inglorious Bagdad, I had completed my arduous journey at Hillah, a modern town built near the site and from the ancient brick of Babylon. Finally having finished some further archaeological observations in the neighborhood, respecting some ancient irrigating works, I had caught passage on a small dhow loaded with dates and floated down the lazily-flowing, mystic Euphrates. At first, beyond the willow and plane-lined banks of the great river, stretched the once blossoming levels of Yrak, the very cradle of history; then came lagoons which merged ultimately into a pestilential swamp. Thus had I reached Bassorah, the modern Balsora of the Arabian Nights tales—once, during the ascendency of the Caliphs, the port and entrepot of Bagdad, but now, like that city, dilapidated and dwindled into insignificance.

"The Kilwa had sailed from Bassorah at midnight. It was late in the afternoon of the next day when, after touching at Bushire, an important town about 200 miles down the Persian coast, we headed for the small Arab port of Linga, where we were to leave some cargo.

"As the sun sank toward the watery horizon and dissolved in the purplish vapors of the west, a Parsee merchant a so-called 'fire-worshipper,' first removing his odd-looking, shining oil-cloth hat, paced the deck, repeating devoutly his adoration of the orb that he looked upon, not as an intrinsic deity, but as the highest manifestation of God. A crowd of Musselmans kneeled on their praying carpets, with their faces turned toward Mecca, and, with swaying bodies and changing intonation of voice, invoked the Prophet, careless of public gaze and laudably courageous in the faith. One old man in particular, a white-bearded patriarchial personage, prolonged his devotions till late in the evening, first reading half aloud from an ancient copy of the Koran, illuminated with characters in colors and gold, then praying, then anointing his loins with oil, then lighting his bubble-bubble, or water pipe, aromatic of sandal and rose water, and puffing reflectively for an interval, then finally praying again. It was much like a protracted meeting.

"Our cargo consisted mainly of horses—noble Arabian animals—for Kurrachee and Bombay; and they nearly monopolized the deck space. There were, as it proved, eleven Arab horse dealers in charge of the drove, to a man admirable fellows physically, with the fierce, untamed look of a tiger when pressed to bay by the elephants. A few Koords, dead-black Nubians, dusky Hindoos and dignified Afghans, an Armenian emmigrant or two, and a motley contingent of natives from the Persian interior brought the number of deck passengers up to about twenty-five. These passengers lived entirely on deck. They boiled their rice themselves, which, with a few dates or other fruit and frequent potations of black coffee, furnished the simple diet of most of them. They slep in the open air along the scuppers or on some convenient hatch. What with the horses and the bales of forage, the passengers and their always multifarious effects, there was hardly an available inch of deck-space that was not occupied.

"Besides the eight officers of the vessel I was the only English-speaking person on board. Among the deck passengers I had noted a handsome Arab girl. I longed to put her face on paper but I well know the stern antipathy the Moslems cherish against having their picture taken in any form. However I ran the risk of resentment and surreptiously made the sketch you are looking at. It was Zuleika, daughter of Sheik Abdul, the chief of the horse dealers.

"I had grown sleepy listening to the third officer's yarns, and in preference to tossing away the night in a superheated stateroom I brought my mattress up on the windward side of the promenade deck, where I found the soft eastern breeze delightfully cooling. It was pleasant to be out where, when I happened to be roused momentarily, I could see the stars shining overhead and hear the soothing splash of the water against the vessel's side, the soporific, even pulsations of the engines, and at intervals the bell on the bridge giving the hour of the watch, repeated by the lookout in the bows with an accompanying 'all's well.'

"At midnight the chief officer went below, and the second officer, Mr. Newhall, took his place on the bridge. We expected to make Linga shortly after daybreak, and as we had already come out of our course, Captain Sargent begrudged any unnecessary delay and left orders to have everything put in readiness for a quick discharge of the Linga consignment. To get at the cargo with a steam windlass it was necessary to remove the forward hatch. This had been appropriated as a choice position by the somewhat overbearing Arab horse dealers, and it was covered with their prostrate forms. One of the watch unceremoniously wakened the sleepers, and with an imshi ('get out of the way') ordered them off. They resented being so rudely disturbed in the middle of the night and refused to move, glowering at the sailor with sullen anger. Thereupon the second officer called Captain Sargent, who promptly came forward and proceeded to clear the hatch by force. By this time the Arabs were thoroughly enraged. The sheik excitedly directed a few words to his companions, and seizing a winch lever advanced fiercely on the captain before the latter could lay hold of anything to defend himself with. The whole party rose en masse, and brandishing their murderous-looking crooked knives frantically in the air drove the two officers before them into the saloon and held them there in terror of their lives.

"I was awakened by the uproar, and without knowing just what the matter was rushed below in quest of my revolver. But I found the way to my stateroom cut off by two sturdy guards. Suddenly it occurred to me that the second engineer had shown me an ancient pistol taken from the French in the Peninsular war. I slipped down the engine-room hatchway unseen and found it was loaded and primed. With it I mounted guard, leaving the senior engineer free to watch the engines.

"Heantime the third and fourth officers and one of the engineers had been discovered and added to the list of the captured in the saloon. The mutineers having thus become masters of the ship, a posse of them invaded the furnace room and scared the stokers away. Next they set upon me with knives and sticks. But this time they met with a repulse, for I discharged the pistol in self-defense and shot one of my assailants in the leg. This seemed to check the ardor and quell the impetuosity of the ruffians, and they withdrew, dragging their wounded comrade with them, and remained quiet for an interval.

"Meantime the third and fourth officers kept up by the stokers and the man at the wheel had stuck to his post through thick and thin, so that the vessel was still making some headway. At length, however, the engines stopped, the fires having run very low. Fortunately, the season being favorable, there was little sea on, but as we drifted into the trough, the Arabs began to realize that they were powerless to keep the machinery in motion or to navigate their prize. The sheik poked his head under the skylight and began to parley with the incarcerated Britons in the saloon below. Through the ventilating funnel leading to the engine room I could hear the soft voice of Zuleika as she tried to pacify her father.

"After protracted negotiations it was arranged that some of the officers should be liberated on condition that that they take the ship into the Arab port of Linga and there abandon her. Though Captain Sargent made some show of protestation to this condition he was secretly overjoyed to accept it, as he well knew that Her Majesty's gunboat Redbreast was ahead of him, she having left Bushire for Linga shortly before the arrival of the Kilwa.

"Steam therefore was soon gotton up and the course resumed. Not long after daybreak, about five leagues off Linga, we sighted the Redbreast, and when we had nearly come up with her Captain Sargent ran up the signal for assistance. Commander Scott, R. N., of the Redbreast, promptly manned a pinnace and boarded the Kilwa with a squad of marines, and the mutineers, much to their horror and disappointment, found themselves prisoners on board an English man-of-war. The injured man was taken care of, his would not having been fatal after all, and the rest of the party were deprived of their coffee and tobacco—the worst punishment an Arab can conceive of.

"You will naturally ask how it was that a handful of these barbarians managed not only to defy the whole crew of a British merchant vessel, but to drive the officers before them into the saloon like sheep into a pen. But the attack was made in the dead of night without the slightest warning, the officers were practically defenseless and the Lascar crew were intimidated into perfect submission at the first onset. It is a favorite ruse with Chinese, as well as Arab, pirates to take passage on a vessel in the guise of casual deck passengers, and then when once aboard, to watch their opportunity to murder the officers, loot the vessel, and make good their escape. For this reason, it is usual for vessels trading coastwise in these Eastern waters to keep a stand of arms in the saloon against emergency, but this time, as it often happens in such cases, the provision was lacking just when most needed. A pistol, handed down as a relic of the Peninsular war, is hardly an adequate armament for a large vessel under such conditions.

"The Kilwa proceeded on her way down the gulf, and we arrived at Kurrachee in safety three days later. The Redoreast reached there a little time after us, and the culprits were handed over to the civil authorities of Kurrachee. It was represented at the hearing that the horse dealers were in reality a gang of freebooters. I was present, and being familiar with the Arabic language, volunteered to state their defense to the magistrate. They urged that they had not premeditated the assault, that they had been provoked to it, and that they did not appreciate at the time the seriousness of their offense. Still their action was piratical, according to the letter of the law, and an example has occasionally to be made of these restless, lawless gentry, else the gulf would become once more a runway for cut-throats and sea robbers, to the great hazard of trade and travel. I appealed to the mercy of the justice, and the sheik and three of the ringleaders were let off with a month's imprisonment, while the rest were not detained.

"A week later, in Bombay, I was sauntering through the bazar when I felt a gentle pull at my sleeve. Turning round, I saw Zuleika standing before me. She was holding by the bridle the most beautiful Arabian horse I ever saw—none other, in fact, than my Yussef that you have seen so often. Zuleika placed the rein in my hand and I received it mechanically. 'He is yours,' she said. 'Sheik Abdul never forgets his friend.' Before I could recover from my surprise she had vanished, lost in the great current of humanity that floods the native quarter."
—Archibald Hobson, in The Pathfinder.

American Shoes in France.

Among the features of 1904 has been the general appearance of shoes closely resembling in form and style those made in the United States.

The clumsy, ungainly and heavy French shapes are gradually disappearing. In their stead are coming gracefully cut and finely finished shoes of a decided American appearance. The fact is, however, that it is rather our shoe-making machines than the shoes themselves that have come to France. In any event, the American-appearing shoes which are now quite generally seen in this city and elsewhere in the provinces are made principally in Paris with machinery imported from the United States.

This does not alter the fact that some bona-fide American shoes are on sale here, but they are much dearer than the French-made articles, and it is not likely that they will make headway against the strong combination which is represented by cheap French labor and prolific American machinery.—From United States Consul Ridgely, Nantes, France

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A Chicago man who says he never earned more than $9 a week has raised nineteen children, whom he now accuses of ingratitude, relates the Washington Post. Divide $9 by 19, after paying the rent and the grocer's bills, and there does not seem to have been enough left to inspire much gratitude.

The conditions produced by lax divorce laws are bad enough, but the discouragement of marriage by fanatical legislation would have results incalculably worse, thinks the New York Evening Sun. It is all very well to say that amending the divorce laws is beginning at the wrong end—that there will be fewer divorces if safeguards are thrown round the marriage relation at its inception.

In the pretypewriter age—looked back to now by many as the golden age—men did no more than carry half the burden, declares the New York Post. The actual proportion of women then hard at work was larger than it is today. For, singularly enough, the very conditions which added one class of women to the ranks of wage-earners, created a class of women who do practically nothing at all that could be called labor.

During 1903 railway building in Japan on one extension of eleven miles called for the construction of two tunnels, 633 feet and 2,235 feet in length respectively, and one bridge of 2,009 feet. Another extension of fourteen miles was built last year. This line also required several bridges. Other shorter and temporary lines were built in 1903. The Sobunkie Bridge, on one of these smaller lines, is 2,302 feet long. Evidently the Japanese are able to accomplish large engineering results.

Do you feel a "cold coming on?" askes the Boston Herald. Then don't try to ward it off, but welcome it warmly. Treat it well; don't let it alone or attempt to be "brave" or funny with it, for then it will turn and rend you. A cold is as treacherous as a—well, as anything. It marks its victim, and then goes ahead. "Breaking up" a determined cold delays the inevitable, and then, when all's done, ten to one it starts off into bronchitis or pneumonia, while staying indoors with it and giving it full swing would have disarmed its fury at each new stage. The "fresh air cure" is capital for every malady save this familiar cold.

After the discovery of a cheap way to make calcium carbide, about a dozen years ago, a great revolution in modes of lighting was anticipated, says the New York Tribune. Accidents which resulted from the careless handling of acetylene rendered it unpopular for a time, and it has come into favor more slowly than was expected. Among the hopes that were cherished for a time was that a lamp for household use might be devised in which water and calcium carbide would take the place of kerosene. Hundreds of devices of that sort have been patented, but it is hard to find one that is thoroughly "foolproof." Acetylene gives such a beautiful light and is so cheap that the failure to develop a perfectly satisfactory portable lamp for its utilization is greatly to be lamented.

One of the most significant movements in the Middle West, and especially in southern Iowa, is the decrease in the number of acres in the farms that are worked. In the early days, when land was cheap, the farmer could afford to attempt to farm all he could see, and if he did not succeed it did not make much difference, but since this land has risen in value from $10 to $100 per acre it has been found necessary to decrease the size of the farm. The farmer himself is better off for this, because he is not working so hard to make both ends meet, nor trying to cover so much ground. He is making, in fact, about as much on 160 acres rightly conducted as he did on a section of land in the old days.

Wherever the Briton goes in wild countries he devastates the land of its game; but, on the other hand, wherever he settles for a permanent abiding place he takes good care to conserve the game and the fish, or if there be no native species worth preserving, he introduces the best of the home country or of other lands. Forest and Stream states. The Antipodes, bare of game, have been stocked with European deer; and now the hunting in parts of New Zealand is as good as in Scotland; while the brown trout from Europe and the rainbow from the Pacific waters of America there thrive and multiply and grow to prodigious weights.

Our great Northwest and Canada's contain many regions as yet wholly unexplored by naturalists and scientific sportsmen, says Victor Smith in the New York Press. In northern British Columbia, Alaska and the Yukon country zoological explorations have only fairly begun. There are vast territories containing we know not what new animal life which have remained practically untouched by the zoologist. Wouldn't you think this a grand opportunity for young men whose inherited fortunes make them muti-millionaires? But our gilded youth seem to care for nothing but sport and a little more money. As a class they are utterly worthless. They do nothing for the betterment of the world or the people in it.

FRUIT FOR BREAKFAST.

Fruit should never be omitted the breakfast card. It may be ed first or last or at any stage the game as desired. While fruit is usually preferred, ste fruit, jams and marmalades have their place and welcome. Bake ples with whipped cream are cious. California prunes cooked or with French chestnuts and are excellent, while a breakfast made of a melange of fruit is cially popular. An excellent com tion now is sliced pears and pea just enough lemon juice to bring the flavor.

TO DEFECT ADULTERATION

One who has handled coffee many years says that adultera can be detected in many ways more common way is to press a ple of ground coffee in the pa the hand, and if it contains or any substance besides pure it will form into a little mass particles sticking together. A method of detecting the presen a substance other than coffee is a little ground coffee in a gla clear cold water. Cover the the glass and shake thoroughly the coffee is pure, the water w main almost clear and the gr will float on the surface. Pure c contains an oily substance which vents the grains from mixing the cold water. Adulterations are so protected, and soon color the noticeably.

NEWEST TABLE LINEN.

An authority on tea table describes the newest and smartes fects as a mixture of cutwork and lace insertions. A large cloth to fit an oblong diningroom table on its edge a row of hemstitchin second row of hemstitching just inside the edge of the table, part hanging being otherwise lutely plain. The top of the tab entirely covered with work, which the silver, crystal and tea things are daintily set off. for decoration inside the hems ing there is a wide band of cut in English embroidery design, pattern accented at wide inte with a small filet lace motif. polished mahogany must through the design; only with lace cloths does one put silk or of gold or silver beneath. The center of the cloth in questio decorated only with two rows of insertion having a square or fil each corner, the inner row of i tion and squares being narrower the outer one.

The corresponding hemstitched kins have an inset square of fil each corner, the design of this being quaint with medieval figure Philadelphia Bulletin.

RECIPES.

Bacon and Mushballs—Have the con well broiled in a wire toaste set it in the oven in the toaster ed over a pan. Do not fry the b until hard and dry. For mush take cold mush left from breakf the day before or cooked for the pose and make into balls, using blespoon for each. Dip the balls a beaten egg, then roll in fine s bread crumbs, and fry in deep fat, using a frying basket to them whole. Garnish with the fa

Clover Leaf Salad—Cook one cu English walnut meats for ten min with a slice of onion, three pe corns, and a silver mace, in sli salted water. Drain and pour water through, then take off the skin. Cut enough celery into crosswise slices to make one cup ing the crisp white stalks. Mix celery and nuts and put a spoo in the center of three heart le leaves. Put a spoonful of ma naise on top and serve.

Codfish with Rice and Tomato Soak half a pound of salted co over night in plenty of cold w Fry a tablespoon of minced onio a tablespoon of butter and when onion is slightly yellow add the d ed codfish, cut into three or pieces. Put over this a cup of ed rice and then pour on two cup strained canned tomato. Dust salt and pepper, cover and cook ter of an hour. Serve in the dish after adding a tablespoon of ter and a dash of paprika.

Windsor Peach Cakes—Beat sponge cake batter in small tins, cool and hollow out a little in the center of each for half canned peach. If the peaches are soft and sweet cook them a sweeten and cool before using. layer of meringue over each spirnkle with a little powdered s Set in the oven to color. Ma sauce of the syrup drained from peaches and serve with the c which will be warmed through.

Small Chocolate Cakes—Cream half cup of butter with one-thir cocoa, add the beaten yolks of eggs, beat well, add one cup of s mixed with a level teaspoon of c bread flour with three level teasp of baking powder and add to the mixture alternately, with one-half of water. Last add the stiffly be whites of three eggs and a teas of vanilla flavoring. Have round iron gem pans heated and tered, fill two-thirds full and Cool and cover with boiled or icing.

HEALTHY OLD AGE

IS THE BEST PART OF LIFE

For Women Passing Through Change of Life

Providence has allotted us each at seventy years in which to fulfill mission in life, and it is generally own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease this statement is the positive truth When everything becomes a burden you cannot walk a few blocks with excessive fatigue, and you breat into perspiration easily, and your flushes, and you grow excited and ly at the least provocation, and cannot bear to be crossed in any ng, you are in danger; your nerves e given out; you need building up once! To build up woman's nerv system and during the period of nge of life we know of no better dicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's getable Compound. Here is an stration. Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 field Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable pound for years in my family and it er disappoints; so when I felt that I was ring the change of life I commenced treat with it. I took in all about six bottles it did me a great deal of good. It ped my dizzy spells, pains in my back the headaches with which I had suffered months before taking the Compound. I that if it had not been for this great med for women that I should not have been e to-day. It is splendid for women, old or ng, and will surely cure all female disor

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in s all sick and ailing women to write for advice. Her great experience t their service, free of cost.

Am. 9. 1905

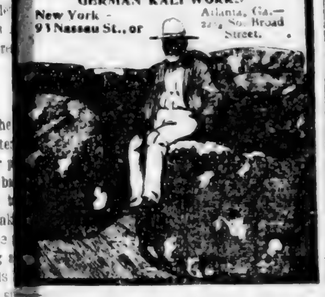
Potash

is necessary for cotton to produce high yields and good fibre.

Write for our valuable books on fertilization; they contain information that means dollars to the farmers. Sent free on request. Write now while you think of it to the

GERMAN KALI WORKS

New York - 93 Nassau St., or Atlanta, Ga.— 24½ So. Broad Street.



Chance For a Reformer.

Some day a great reformer, in whose aspirations sense is duly blended with enthusiasm, will make and win a great fight for pockets in women's street clothes. Why woman does not have more and better pockets in her clothes is one of the mysteries of civilization.—Harper's Weekly.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Cleveland's three electric suburban lines carried 8,509,000 passengers in 1902, as against 130,264 carried by the competing steam roads.

Berlin's population by the new census lacks 713 of reaching a round 2,000,000.

The ink plant of New Grenada is a curiosity. The juice of it can be used as ink without any preparation. At first the writing is red, but after a few hours it changes to black.

Women Use the Sword.

All well educated Spanish women are taught from the earliest years to handle the sword, and as a result they are noted for their admirable figures and easy walk.

LOW EXCURSION RATES.

Mobile and New Orleans account Mardi Gras Celebration, March 2-7, 1905. On account of the above occasion the Southern Railway will sell tickets from each of the above points at the very low rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip. Tickets will be sold March 4th to 6th inclusive, also for trains scheduled to arrive at destination before noon of the 7th, with final limit returning March 11th, 1905. The final limit may be extended until March 25th upon depositing ticket with joint agent and upon payment of a fee of 50 cents. For further particulars, call on any Southern Railway agent, or address,

W. H. Harrison, District Passenger Agent, R. B. Creagh, Traveling Passenger Agent, Birmingham, Ala.

FRUIT FOR BREAKFAST.

Fruit should never be omitted from the breakfast card. It may be served at first or last or at any stage of the meal as desired. While fresh fruits are usually preferred, stewed fruits, jams and marmalades have their place and welcome. Baked apples with whipped cream are delicious. California prunes cooked and served with French chestnuts and blanched almonds are excellent, while a breakfast salad made of a melange of fruit is a comparatively popular. An excellent combination now is sliced pears and peaches with just enough lemon juice to bring out the flavor.

TO DEFECT ADULTERATIONS.

One who has handled coffee for many years says that adulteration can be detected in many ways. The more common way is to press a teaspoonful of ground coffee in the palm of the hand, and if it contains chicory or any substance besides pure coffee it will form into a little mass, the particles sticking together. Another method of detecting the presence of any substance other than coffee is to put a little ground coffee in a glass of clear cold water. Cover the top of the glass and shake thoroughly. If the coffee is pure, the water will remain almost clear and the ground will float on the surface. Pure coffee contains an oily substance which prevents the grains from mixing with the cold water. Adulterations are thus soon detected, and soon color the water noticeably.

NEWEST TABLE LINEN.

An authority on tea table linen describes the newest and smartest effects as a mixture of cutwork and filet lace insertions. A large cloth made to fit an oblong diningroom table has on its edge a row of hemstitching, a second row of hemstitching coming just inside the edge of the table, the part hanging being otherwise absolutely plain. The top of the table is entirely covered with work, upon which the silver, crystal and china for dinner are daintily set off. For the decoration inside the hemstitching there is a wide band of cut work in English embroidery design, the pattern accented at wide intervals with a small filet lace motif. The polished mahogany must glow through the design; only with real lace cloths does one put silk or cloth of gold or silver beneath. The very center of the cloth in question is decorated only with two rows of filet insertion having a square or filet in each corner, the inner row of insertion and squares being narrower than the outer one.

The corresponding hemstitched linens have an inset square of filet in each corner, the design of this being quaint with medieval figures.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

RECIPES.

Bacon and Mushballs.—Have the bacon well broiled in a wire toaster. Set it in the oven in the toaster pan to keep hot. Do not fry the balls until hard and dry. For mush boil cold mush left from breakfast the day before or cooked for the purpose and make into balls, using a tablespoon for each. Dip the balls in a beaten egg, then roll in fine stale bread crumbs, and fry in deep fat. Use a frying basket to keep the whole. Garnish with the lacy curled Leaf Salad. Cook one cupful each walnut meats for ten minutes with a slice of onion, three peppercorns and a silver mace, in slightly salted water. Drain and pour cold water through, then take off the skin. Cut enough celery into thin crosswise slices to make one cupful, using the crisp white stalks. Mix the celery and nuts and put a spoonful in the center of three heart lettuce leaves. Put a spoonful of mayonnaise on top and serve.

Codfish with Rice and Tomatoes.—Soak half a pound of salted codfish overnight in plenty of cold water. Fry a tablespoon of minced onion in a tablespoon of butter and when the onion is slightly yellow add the drained codfish, cut into three or four pieces. Put over this a cup of cooked rice and then pour on two cupfuls of strained canned tomato. Dust with salt and pepper, cover and cook for half an hour. Serve in the same dish after adding a tablespoon of butter and a dash of paprika.

Windsor Peach Cakes.—Make a sponge cake batter in small round tins, cool and hollow out a little piece from the center of each for half a canned peach. If the peaches are large cut and sweet cook them a little, sweeten and cool before using. Put a layer of meringue over each cake, sprinkle with a little powdered sugar and set in the oven to color. Make a sauce of the syrup drained from the peaches and serve with the cakes, which will be warmed through.

Small Chocolate Cakes.—Cream one half cup of butter with one-third cup of cocoa, add the beaten yolks of three eggs, beat well, add one cup of sugar mixed with a level teaspoon of cinnamon and beat again. Sift one cupful of bread flour with three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and add to the first mixture alternately, with one-half cup of water. Last add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring. Have small round iron gem pans heated and well greased, fill two-thirds full and bake. Cool and cover with boiled or white icing.

HEALTHY OLD AGE

TEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE

for Women Passing Through Change of Life

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth. Whenever anything becomes a burden to you; you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and irritable at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up once! To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 Orchard Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years in my family and it never disappoints; so when I felt that I was nearing the change of life I commenced treatment with it. I took in all about six bottles and it did me a great deal of good. It stopped my dizzy spells, pains in my back and the headaches with which I had suffered for months before taking the Compound. I feel that if it had not been for this great medicine for women that I should not have been alive to-day. It is splendid for women, old or young, and will surely cure all female disorders."

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

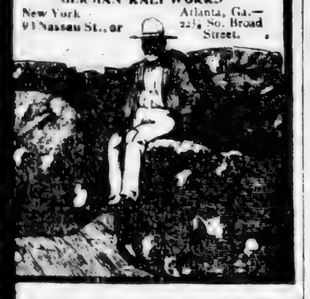
Am. 9, 1905.

Potash

is necessary for cotton to produce high yields and good fibre.

Write for our valuable books on fertilization; they contain information that means dollars to the farmers. Sent free on request. Write now while you think of it to the

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York 93 Nassau St., or Atlanta, Ga., 22½ So. Broad Street.



Chance For a Reformer.

Some day a great reformer, in whose operations sense is duly blended with nonsense, will make and win a great fight for pockets in women's street clothes. Why woman does not have more and better pockets in her clothes is one of the mysteries of civilization.—Saturday Evening Post.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Cleveland's three electric suburban lines carried 8,500,000 passengers in 1902, as against 130,264 carried by the suburban steam roads.

Berlin's population by the new census lacks 713 of reaching a round 2,000,000.

The ink plant of New Grenada is a shrub. The juice of it can be used as ink without any preparation. At first the writing is red, but after a few hours it changes to black.

Women Use the Sword.

All well educated Spanish women are taught from the earliest years to handle the sword, and as a result they are noted for their admirable figures and easy walk.

LOW EXCURSION RATES.

Mobile and New Orleans account Mardi Gras Celebration, March 2-7, 1905. On account of the above occasion the Southern Railway will sell tickets to each of the above points at the very low rate of one fare plus 25 cents for the round trip. Tickets will be sold March 4 to 6th inclusive, also for trains scheduled to arrive at destination before noon of the 7th, with final limit returning March 11th, 1905. The final limit may be extended until March 25th upon depositing ticket with joint agent and upon payment of a fee of 50 cents.

For further particulars, call on any Southern Railway agent, or address, J. N. Harrison, District Passenger Agent, R. B. Creagh, Traveling Passenger Agent, Birmingham, Ala.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

English women universally condemn the American short-skirt habit.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption and all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

A German in Mannheim, Baden, is said to have invented a cheap and effective substitute for leather and to have sold his invention to an American firm for $200,000.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Rear-Admiral Rojestvensky is fifty-six years of age.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Justice Clark, of New York, has decided that a sandwich is not a meal.

An engineer declares that 50,000 people now do the work with the aid of machinery which needed 16,000,000 persons to do a few years ago.

SALT RHEUM ON HANDS

Suffered Agony and Had to Wear Bandages All the Time—Another Cure by Cuticura.

Another cure by Cuticura is told of by Mrs. Caroline Cable, of Waupoca, Wis., in the following grateful letter: "My husband suffered agony with salt rheum on his hands, and I had to keep them bandaged all the time. We tried everything we could get, but nothing helped him until he used Cuticura. One set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills cured him entirely, and his hands have been as smooth as possible ever since. I hope this letter will be the means of helping other sufferers."

The oldest living senator is David Wark, who is a member of the Canadian senate and is 101 years old.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

The King of Italy spends much of his time hunting.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c. a bottle.

An expert is a person who knows a lot about things interesting to no one else.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Some men are cynics because they are unable to make a living at anything else.

There are 190,000 drinking places in little Belgium.

Millions of Vegetables.

When the Editor read 10,000 plants for 16c, he could hardly believe it, but upon second reading finds that the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., than whom there are no more reliable and extensive seed growers in the world, makes this offer which is made to get you to test Salzer's Warranted Vegetable Seeds. They will send you their big plant and seed catalog, together with enough seed to grow

1,000 fine, solid Cabbages,
2,000 rich, juicy Turnips,
2,000 blanching, nutty Celery,
2,000 rich, buttery Lettuce,
1,000 splendid Onions,
1,000 rare, luscious Radishes,
1,000 gloriously brilliant Flowers,

ALL FOR BUT 10c POSTAGE, providing you will return this notice, and if you will send them 20c in postage, they will add to the above a package of famous Berliner Cauliflower. [A. C. L.]

Japan Catches Most Fish.

Japan is the leading fishing nation today, although the value of her sea products is surpassed by that of two other countries. The United States, outside of Alaska, and Great Britain each produce about $45,000,000 worth annually, and Japan produces about $30,000,000 worth. Japan leads in the proportion of the total population engaged in the fishing industry, in the actual number of people living by the industry, in the relative importance of fish products in the country's domestic economy, and in the support given by the government to the industry.

COULDN'T LIFT TEN POUNDS.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger

J. B. CORTON.

J. B. Corton, farmer and lumberman, of Deppe, N. C., says: "I suffered for years with my back. It was so bad that I could not walk any distance nor even ride in easy buggies. I do not believe I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me, and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors, and they have also found good results. It you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble you are at liberty to do so."

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

"Strange," murmured the man, "that I have no appetite for breakfast. Here I've only eaten an ordinary meal. And me to be hung this morning, too."—Houston Chronicle.

That war is less injurious to our trade with the Far East than Russian occupation is shown by a statement by Mr. John Foord, in reviewing that branch of trade for the New York Times, that in July, August and September, 1903, the import of American cotton cloth in China—most of which goes into Manchuria—was 17,000,000 yards, and in the same months of 1904 it rose to 82,000,000 yards. Cotton cloth is not a munition of war, so that there is nothing in the hostilities to stimulate the demand, concludes the Philadelphia Record.

A rather notable discussion is going on in newspapers of importance concerning the social future of New York, states the Sun of that city. It seems to have been provoked by a remark in a real estate paper of this town, by "an authority who has made a specialty of high priced residential property in Manhattan," to the effect that there now appears in New York "a drift toward Washington" as the American "social centre," and that this tendency is growing steadily more noticeable. Harper's Weekly is also quoted in confirmation of that opinion, and the Boston Evening Transcript thinks "it were folly for New Yorkers to pretend indifference" to the subject.

Professor Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University, lectured in New York the other day on "The University and the Nation." President Wilson made some remarks that throw light on modern college education. He said: "You don't send a boy to college to find an education—it's to find himself, to orient himself, to find his relation to the life that is around, and to become of value to the nation. The class-room is not vital, because one man dominates—one mind is master. I believe that the only way to learn is by trying your mind alongside of some other mind and drawing conclusions. The thing is to get in the class-room the point of view. Nothing gives a youngster catholicity of view like rubbing against the men of various parts of his own country."

Mr. F. A. Vanderlip, in Scribner's Magazine, says: "One of the most striking differences between Europe and America is the persistence of racial types there and here the tendency to amalgamate all races into the American. Time seems to bring only increased bitterness to racial antagonisms in Europe, while with us the third generation, at the outside, is completely merged into the American type. I never have been able to understand just what it is that keeps the rancor of races at such a virulent pitch among near neighbors in Europe, when those same races will here renounce language, flag and racial aspirations, and joyfully and completely merge into the American—all patriotic, all loyal to the Government, all in a generation more anxious to cover every trace of foreign characteristics with the mantle of sovereign American citizenship than they are to perpetuate a single one of those racial prejudices which for generations made enemies of their fathers."

The Chicago newspapers continue to be deeply impressed from time to time by paroxysms of intelligence thrown by professors of the University of Chicago. They lately reported Professor Matthews as declaring to his class in physiological chemistry that "certain chemical substances coming together under certain conditions do and are bound to produce life, no matter what theologians may say." Why drag in the theologians? asks Harper's Weekly. All that an intelligent modern theologian would care to say is that God is everywhere, and the creative energy penetrates, and is co-extensive with, all substances. Professor Matthews may be a better chemist than theologian, but if his chemistry is sound, it can vex no sound theology.

The report of the Commissioner of Immigration for the fiscal year 1903-'04, just issued, exhibits the working of our immigration inspection system under the changed conditions created by the act of Congress of March 3, 1903. That legislation seems to have thoroughly justified itself. According to the showing made by Commissioner General Sargent, the flood of immigration has not been materially checked by the safeguards enacted. But the quality of the raw material offered us for citizenship has been distinctly bettered, and the "dumping" of paupers, defectives and derelicts generally has been effectively blocked. In last year's report Mr. Sargent expressed some rather pessimistic views on the immigration problem. This year he writes more optimistically, continues the New York Tribune, for he cheerfully admits that in the more recent inflow of immigration there has been "a marked improvement in character and thrift."

Huntsville, Ala.—Deputy Sheriff Bullard went to Birmingham to take charge of Will Wales, a negro murderer, arrested in that city city for the authorities of this county. Wales shot his wife in a quarrel about two weeks ago, and she has since died. The negro disappeared from here and there was no trace of him until a day or two ago. Last week the grand jury indicted Wales on a charge of murder in the first degree.

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

Are Never Without Pe-ru-na in the Home For Catarrhal Diseases.

MR and MRS. SCHWANDT, Sanborn, Minn.

MR and MRS. JNO. O. ATKINSON, Independence, Mo.

Remarkable Cures Effected By Pe-ru-na.

Under date of January 10, 1897, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

"My wife has been a sufferer from a complication of diseases for the past twenty-five years. Her case has baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. One of her worst troubles was chronic constipation of several years' standing. She was also passing through that most critical period in the life of a woman—change of life.

"In June, 1895, I wrote to you about her case. You advised a course of Peruna and Manalin, which we at once commenced, and have to say it completely cured her.

"About the same time I wrote you about my own case of catarrh, which had been of twenty-five years' standing. At times I was almost past going. I commenced to use Peruna according to your instructions and continued its use for about a year, and it has completely cured me."—John O. Atkinson.

In a letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr. Atkinson says, after five years' experience with Peruna:

"I will ever continue to speak a good word for Peruna. I am still cured of catarrh."—John O. Atkinson, Independence, Mo., Box 272.

Mrs. Alla Schwandt, Sanborn, Minn., writes:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism and catarrh for twenty-five years. Could not sleep day or night. After having used Peruna I can sleep and nothing bothers me now. If I ever am affected with any kind of sickness, Peruna will be the medicine I shall use. My son was cured of catarrh of the larynx by Peruna."—Mrs. Alla Schwandt.

When old age comes, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

Address Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio, who will be pleased to give you the benefit of his medical advice gratis.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee,

the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

LION COFFEE is sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages, and reaches you as pure and clean as when it left our factory.

Lion-head on every package.

Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

W. L. DOUGLAS

UNION MADE. $3.50 & $3.00 SHOES FOR MEN.

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more Men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost from $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

BETTER THAN OTHER MAKES AT ANY PRICE.

"For the last three years I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoe and found it not only as good, but better than any shoe that I ever had, regardless of price."
Chas. L. Farrell, Asst. Cashier The Capital National Bank, Indianapolis, Ind.

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape, and wear longer than other makes.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOES CANNOT BE EQUALLED AT ANY PRICE.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Coltskin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is considered to be the finest patent leather produced.

FAST COLOR EYELETS WILL NOT WEAR BRASSY

W. L. Douglas has the largest shoe mail order business in the world. No trouble to get a fit by mail. 25c extra prepays delivery. If you desire further information, write for Illustrated Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASSACHUSETTS

CONCENTRATED

Crab Orchard WATER

TRADE MARK.

—A SPECIFIC FOR—

Dyspepsia
Sick Headache
Constipation...

The Three "His" That Make Life a Burden.

Nature's Great Remedy

In Use for Almost a Century.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CRAB ORCHARD WATER CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.

To Merry Mardi Gras

VIA

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

A. G. S. R. R.

RATE—One fare plus twenty-five cents for the round trip to New Orleans and Mobile.

DATES OF SALE—March 1st to 6th.

LIMIT—March 11th, tickets can be extended until March 25th, by depositing before March 11th, and paying fifty cents.

Stop Overs Allowed. Special Sleeping Cars. Double Daily Service. Quickest Time.

For Sleeping Car reservation, and further information, write,

A. B. FREEMAN, Traveling Passenger Agent, 1025 1st Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO AVERY & McMILLAN,

51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

—ALL KINDS OF—

MACHINERY

Reliable Frick Engines. Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors. Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

Salzer's National Oats

Greatest oat of the century. Yielded in Ohio 187, in Mich. 231, in Mo. 255, and in N. Dakota 320 bus. per acre. You can beat that record in 1905.

For 10c and this notice

we mail you free lots of farm seed samples and our big catalog, telling all about this oat wonder and thousands of other seeds.

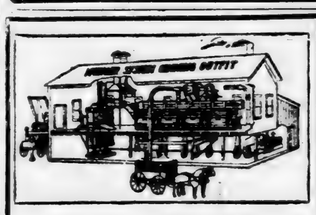
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. LA CROSSE, WIS.

ELECTRIC VEST POCKET LIGHTS

By Mail $1.00.

United Electric Co
1804 Fourth Avenue
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS



You want only the best

Cotton Gin Machinery

Ask any experienced Ginner about

Pratt, Eagle, Smith
Winship, Munger

We would like to show you what thousands of life long customers say. Write for catalog and testimonial booklet.

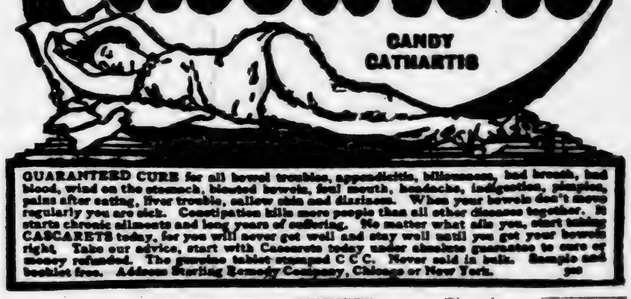
Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

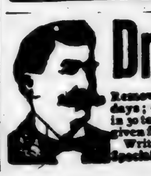
BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC



GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York.



Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 6 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. No hing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

PECANS WE SELL DIRECT TO PLANTER AT WHOLESALE. . .

AND ALL KINDS of NUT TREES.

NEW PLUM, MAYNARD, THE MONEYMAKER. The BEST that ever happened.

SEND FOR DESCRIPTION.

OAK LAWN NURSERY, Huntsville, Ala.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Current Events Gathered as They Happen.

Shot a Burglar.

Ozark, Ala.—About midnight or 1 o'clock Wednesday morning Dr. Norris, who lives at Charlton, discovered some one in his bed chamber. He rose up immediately and a voice cried, "Throw up your hands." Dr. Norris grabbed for his pistol and fired at the intruder, upon which he fled, the doctor in hot pursuit, and firing. As the negro cleared the gate Dr. Norris fired the fifth time, the ball piercing the negro's body, and he fell to the ground. The doctor still pursued, jumping astride the negro took the would-be burglar's pistol and beat him over the head with his own gun. The negro had fired at the doctor, but his bullets flew wide of the mark.

The negro was brought to jail at Ozark, having been hit with four bullets besides the abrasions made by his own gun in the hands of Dr. Norris. He will die. The negro had three suits of fine clothes, wore patent leather shoes, had a leather bag in which to carry plunder, a full kit of burglar's tools, large bunches of keys, a dark bull's eye lantern, a Colts' 44 revolver and two big knives. He says his name is Ed Smith.

Indicted for Peonage.

Montgomery, Ala.—The United States grand jury Friday morning returned indictments against sixteen men for alleged peonage. In some of the cases white men have held white men in a state of peonage according to the report, negroes have held negroes and white men negroes. One man is charged with killing a negro held by him in trying to return him to work after escape. The jury also returns three indictments for whitecapping and ten for conspiracy, but nothing can be secured about it. A morning paper prints that one of the indictments for peonage is said to be against S. D May, sheriff of Crenshaw county, who has not been seen at his home for several weeks, and who has been checking up short in his accounts with the state and county. When asked if this was so, Assistant District Attorney Julius Stornfield said he knew nothing of it, and was at a loss to know how the report became current.

Historic Tailor's Bench.

Athens, Ala. A. Anderson, tailor in this place, is daily using one of the most historic benches in America, it being a bench used by Andrew Johnson when a young man and working for a tailor named Sloss, who was a prominent tailor in this section in that day and time.

The old bench was found some years ago by the late Capt. R. B. Mason, and he, learning its history, bought it as a relic and it has been in his home for many years, but the recent fire destroyed the tailor shop of Mr. Anderson, and the sons of Captain Mason tendered him the use of Andy Johnson's old tailor bench to work upon and he is now sitting on it like the great commoner did before his greatness was discovered by the American people.

May Open Coal Mines.

Leeds, Ala.—It is learned on good authority that Colonel Henry F. De Bardeleben will open up new coal mines on some 8,000 acres of coal lands lying in the upper Cahaba coal fields near the new Seaboard Air Line railway. It is known that Colonel De Bardeleben has been making investigation and analysis of these lands for the past two years.

Burned to Death.

Florence, Ala. Three children within a month have been burned to death in East Florence, the last victim being the 3-year-old daughter of Mrs. James Rieharles, the mother of the child crossed the street on an errand, leaving her alone in a room with an open grate. She was gone but a few minutes when she returned, attracted by the screams of the little girl, who was in a mass of flames. The child's clothes were burned entirely off, and she was so badly injured that she died seven hours later.

After Insulting Negro.

Scottsboro, Ala. A sheriff's posse is after a negro who is charged with making insulting remarks to Mrs. Lingo, the wife of a well known farmer. The negro is said to have gone to the Lingo home when he knew the husband would not be present. When ordered to leave, he began to talk in a loud and threatening voice. Mr. Lingo who was approaching the house at the time, ran up and opened fire on the negro, who escaped in the woods.

Hester Held in $2000 Bond.

Montgomery, Ala.—After a hearing which began at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and was not concluded until late in the afternoon, United States Commissioner John A. Elmore fixed the bond of Eugene Hester, of Montgomery, a railway mail clerk accused of extracting $2,621.56 from registered letters, at $2,000 for his appearance before the next Federal grand jury.

President Seymour Talks.

Montgomery, Ala.—President W. H. Seymour, of the Alabama Cotton Association, expresses gratification over the great success of the state convention of cotton growers Tuesday.

The president, by invitation of Commissioner of Agriculture R. R. Poole, has established his office in that of the commissioner at the capitol. There he will make it convenient to associate with Secretary Jesse C. Adams, of the state association, who is chief clerk to the commissioner.

President Seymour will begin shortly to send out some literature to the sixty-seven county organizations in the state.

"The success of the delegates in perfecting a valuable state organization was far beyond my expectations," said President Seymour. "The men who were here were earnest and enthusiastic in the single aim of doing everything in their power for cotton.

"The fact that some counties did not send delegates can be easily explained when you recall the extremely bad weather that prevailed during the county and beat meetings this month. Over in the county of Sumter it was practically impossible to hold any meetings.

"During the severest weather the farmers were completely cut off from many county seats by swollen streams. The ice and slush were not calculated to bring the farmers out."

Thee executive committee of the state association will shortly proceed to arrange for borrowing $500 to cover the expense of the organization during the next thirty days. The amount will be repaid out of the first moneys that come to the treasurer from the county assessments.

$11,000 Shortage Reported.

Jasper, Ala.—Ex-Treasurer E. W. Miller, by the report of J. L. Morris who has been auditing his books, is about $11,000 in the state's debt. It is remembered that three weeks ago the receipt and disbursement books of the treasurer were found burned in the rear of the Little drug store. A state examiner was requested, and Mr. Morris was sent. His report shows that the treasurer is short $11,034.70. It is said that Mr. Miller is willing to settle the claims of the state when the amount is determined by an examiner appointed by the commissioners' court.

Killed by Lamp Explosion.

Jasper, Ala.—Mrs. Robert Waldrop met a horrible death at Oakman, twelve miles south of Jasper, a few days ago by the explosion of a lamp which she had been using around the stove in the kitchen. She had left the lamp on the reservoir of the range, on which she had been preparing breakfast. She took the lamp from the range and set it on a table nearby, and as she turned the lamp exploded. Her body was covered with the flames, and she was dead before succor could relieve her. Deceased had been married only a short while.

Killed His Uncle.

Dothan, Ala.—Thursday evening five or six miles below town Jesse Clark killed his uncle, George Clark. Both white men. George Clarke had shot at Jesse five times with a shotgun, and Jesse in turn and in self-defense turned loose on him with a Winchester rifle and shot him twice, killing him instantly. George Clarke was a very desperate man and of very bad character, and was always in some trouble. The dispute was about some family matter. Jesse Clark when he had killed his uncle came to town and gave himself up, and is in jail here.

Athens, Ala. While crossing a creek on a log George Rouse, a well-known young man of this place, accidentally shot himself in the shoulder. The wound may prove fatal.

Tax Collector Is Robbed.

Cullman, Ala.—W. H. Drinkard, tax collector of Morgan county, was robbed of $15 while asleep in the Mason House, a boarding house on First avenue, east, in Cullman last Tuesday night. He retired about 10 o'clock, leaving his trousers on a chair in the room. He had $15 in his trousers pockets. He had $100 in a purse which he put under his pillow. Next morning his trousers were found under the stairway in the hall rifled of all contents.

Young Man Shoots Himself.

Athens, Ala.—George Rouse, a young man living seven miles southwest of this place, met with a serious and what may terminate in a fatal accident. He and his brother were hunting, and in attempting to cross a creek on a log he let his gun slip and the hammer struck the log, causing the gun to be discharged, the load entering the upper part of and tearing away the arm and ten entering the shoulder, causing what prove a fatal wound.

Bottle of Poison Tells of Death.

Memphis, Tenn.—Ignatz Renner aged 40 years, was found dead in his room on Main street Feb. 27. A bottle half filled with poison was found on the bed. Renner is said to have arrived recently from Chicago.

Moscow.—Postal telegraph officials are threatening to strike unless their demands for the improvement of their conditions are granted.

$5,000,000 FIRE LOSS

New Orleans Visited by the Most Disastrous Fire of the Season.

NUMBERS OF CARS BURN.

Million Bushels of Grain Total Loss. Flames Discovered at Docks at About 7 O'clock.

New Orleans, La.—Fire involving millions of dollars loss in property, and that strikes a serious blow at the immense export trade of New Orleans, swept the river front Sunday night, and wiped out the vast freight terminals of the Illinois Central, known as the Stuyvesant docks. Nearly a dozen squares of modern wharves and freight sheds, two grain elevators, hundreds of loaded cars, and quantities of freight, including 20,000 bales of cotton, were destroyed, and a large number of small residences.

The fire was still raging furiously at midnight, when it had almost reached the upper end of the Illinois Central property. It has not been determined whether there has been any loss of life.

The ocean going shipping seems to have escaped damage. A number of firemen and employes of the docks were injured. Actual estimates of the losses are impossible, though they may exceed $5,000,000

Extend Twelve Squares.

The Stuyvesant docks extend from Louisiana avenue almost to Napoleon avenue, a distance of twelve squares. The wharves between these two points were covered with miles of trackage and steel and iron sheds ran the whole distance. The two grain elevators were of the most modern construction, the upper one having a capacity of a million bushels.

Thousands of bales of cotton, several thousand packages of sugar, quantities of cotton seed oil, and oil cakes, lumber and every conceivable variety of freight filled the warehouses and sheds. Practically all the export business handled by the Illinois Central was put aboard ships at these docks. The docks and improvements have been under construction for ten years past.

Beyond Control Instantly.

The fire was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock. It was said to have resulted from a journal that had not been sufficiently oiled. The whole plant was equipped with gigantic water tanks and fire extinguishing apparatus but the blaze, almost instantaneously got beyond control, communicating through the conveyors to the lower elevator, and some of the sheds.

The response of the fire department was prompt, but owing to the fact that the terminals were inaccessible partly due to fences and tracks, the engines found difficulty in reaching the flames. In half an hour the fire covered two squares, the lower elevator was practically consumed.

As soon as it became known that the scene of the fire was the Stuyvesant docks, harbor tugs hastened to the wharves and vessels that were moored there were pulled out into the river. At the same time switch engines were rushed to the wharves and hundreds of box cars loaded with freight were drawn to points above the upper end of the terminals before the fire reached them. Many hundreds more, however, were consumed.

Heavy Wind Was Blowing.

At midnight more than nine squares of the terminals had been completely destroyed, and it seems unlikely that the fire would be checked until it reaches Napoleon avenue, which also is a very broad street. During the fire a heavy wind blew, and the blaze was of indescribable fury, carrying brands to great distances, driving back the crowds of sight-seers. Immense pieces of corrugated iron, torn from the sides of the upper elevator, were carried through the air as if they were feathers, and dropping in every direction, constantly endangered the lives of the firemen and spectators. Probably fifty thousand people visited the scene during the progress of the fire.

Aside from the tremendous loss involved in the destruction of physical property, the fire is a calamity to New Orleans in the temporary abatement of the immense export business of the Illinois Central, particularly in the matter of grain shipments.

Union Springs, Ala.—A Jew, Mr. Nathan, who keeps a little store on the edge of town, was Thursday evening attacked by a negro with a stick and beaten unmercifully. The negro is now in jail awaiting trial, which will be held Friday.

Huntsville, Ala.—Deputy Sheriff Bullard went to Birmingham to take charge of Will Wales, a negro murderer, arrested in that city city for the authorities of this county. Wales shot his wife in a quarrel about two weeks ago, and she has since died. The negro disappeared from here and there was no trace of him until a day or two ago. Last week the grand jury indicted Wales on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Commits Suicide.

Atlanta, Ga.—For some unknown reason, presumably financial disaster, a young man who gave his name as George F. Morris and his home as Louisville, Ky., sent a bullet through his heart in a room at 17 Collins street Monday. Officers say the man's real name is George F. Matthews, of 614 Gray street, Louisville.

He had been living here about three weeks and had told a number of friends that he had three brothers in Louisville. Further investigation of the affair is being made by officers. The coroner's jury will hold an inquest tomorrow morning.

Louisville, Ky.—George F. Matthews, who committed suicide in Atlanta, was a bookkeeper for a Louisville manufacturing firm and highly esteemed in Louisville.

Robbed of Money and Jewels.

Birmingham, Ala.—A negro snatched a purse containing about $500 worth of jewels and money from Mrs. Samuel Cartwright Saturday night in front of the Athletic Club just after the basket ball game was breaking up.

Mrs. Cartwright and several friends had just started out Twentieth street when a negro stepped from the alley between the club and the Y. M. C. A. and snatched the purse.

Two or three men chased the negro, but he managed to escape by jumping the wall around the yard of the parsonage of the Church of the Advent, and disappearing in the darkness.

The purse contained several rings, two of which were quite valuable.

Will Consider It.

Anniston, Ala.—Definite action will be taken on March 9 regarding the beginning of the term of the Alabama Presbyterian College for Men. For some time past the matter has been at a standstill awaiting the action of Mr. A. L. Tyler, Sr., who had not signed the option for the Tyler Hill property, where it is intended to locate the college. This option was signed Friday. Dr. William E. McElwain has issued a call to the board of trustees of the Alabama Presbyterian College for Men to meet in this city March 9 to attend to business.

Looking for Dowie.

Mexico City.—Prophet Dowie, of Zion City, is expected to arrive here from Cuba. His five deacons now here refuse to talk on the Zionists' plans, but it is understood a Zionist colony will be settled in this country, and will devote itself to raising sugar cane, coffee, etc.

Chicago, Ill.—Miss Mary Catherine Mulveil, an heiress, was murdered by Danil Herman, a policeman, whose love she had refused. Herman, after killing the young woman, made his escape, and tonight committed suicide in a lodging house at 3165 Archer avenue, by shooting himself through the brain with the same revolver with which he had killed Miss Mulveil.

Gorge is Seven Miles Long.

Evansville, Ind.—The ice gorge at the mouth of Wolf Creek moved down the river Sunday and lodged against Flint Island. It is expected to break up during the night. The gorge is seven or eight miles long. With the breaking of the gorge the river will be practically clear from Louisville down.

Complaint Against Postmaster.

Washington—Additional complaint has been filed at the postoffice department against Postmaster Dutrow at Memphis, Tenn., alleging that he has sought to influence state legislation. The postmaster recently denied a similar charge.

Intercept Dutch Steamers.

London—A dispatch from The Hague to the Daily Telegraph reports that Japanese cruisers intercepted two Dutch liners near Formosa on the allegation they were carrying contraband of war.

Ma idservants Go on Strike.

Kieff.—The maid servants of this city went on strike and paraded the streets. The Cossacks were called out and they dispersed them, arresting many.

Injured By Mine Explosion.

South McAlister, I. T.—An explosion in mine No. 2 of Sample mine of the Great Western Coal and Coke company here injured ten men, one of whom will probably die.

Swayne Case Cost $8,000.

Washington—The estimated cost of the Swayne case to the government is $8,000. The sergeant at arms of the senate has already paid out most of it. Swayne pays his attorney's fees.

Thief's Nervy Deed.

Eufaula, Ala.—While attending an entertainment an the St. Julien Hotel a few evenings ago, Lee Shealley had his horses and surrey in which he and his family rode to the city stolen. The thief drove about two hours when he unhooked the horses and taking a portion of the harness turned them loose to graze. No clue to the guilty party has yet been found.

DUKE SERGIUS INTERRED

Solemn Religious Rites Held Over the Remains at Moscow.

TROUBLES FEARED IN POLAND

Continuance of Strikes and Violence Manifested on All Sides—Railways Badly Tied Up and Telegraph Lines Down—Japan Determines on a Fourth Domestic War Loan of 100,000,000 Yen.

Moscow, Russia.—The solemn ceremony of blessing the body of the Grand Duke Sergius was performed at 10 o'clock in the morning in the midst of the tolling of bells from all the churches and monasteries of the ancient capital. Immense crowds thronged the open squares in front of the palaces and there was a considerable display of troops in the streets. Grenadiers of the Kieff Regiment furnished the guard at the Chaudoff Monastery, which was the scene of the funeral service.

So far as the public was concerned nothing could be seen beyond the carriages of those invited to the funeral, who quickly filled the small available space.

After blessing the body it was conveyed to the adjoining Church of St. Andrew, where it was laid on a catafalque. The coffin was concealed by a mass of floral wreaths and crosses. The officials of Grand Duke Sergius' household and his aides-de-camp formed a circle around the bier, while the regiments of the Moscow garrison furnished contingents for the guard of honor.

The Grand Duke's widow, the Grand Duchess Elizabeth, took her place at the foot of the coffin in front of a group of other members of the imperial family. She was arrayed in the deepest black, save the scarlet ribbon of the Order of St. Anne, and was the centre of all eyes. Throughout the ordeal she displayed the same fortitude she showed when she followed the dead coachman to the grave.

The Metropolitan and ten bishops conducted the service, which was accompanied by recitative chanting by the imperial choir. The air of the church was heavy with the incense from swinging censers. When the Metropolitan read the prayer for absolution all present knelt, many of those in the rear of the church prostrating themselves.

St. Petersburg.—All the members of the imperial family who attended the requiem for Grand Duke Sergius at Tsarskoe Solo remained to a family council in the evening.

The Dowager Empress, who has been at Tsarskoe for some weeks, becoming impatient at the restrains which were advised by the police for her safety, rebelled against the alleged necessity of remaining at Tsarskoe Solo, declaring that she is not afraid, that the sands of her life have almost run out, and that if assassins want her life they may have it. The imperial family and authorities implored her not to return to St. Petersburg, and she finally yielded.

It is stated that Grand Duchess Elizabeth has visited her husband's assassin in prison.

Disturbances in Poland.

Warsaw, Poland.—Great anxiety was caused in all circles by the situation here. The assistant to the Governor General, who was interviewed, frankly admitted that the Government was at a loss to know what to do.

Employes of the Warsaw-Mlava section of the Vistula Railway have struck, cutting off the last direct line of communication with Germany. Only very circuitous routes were left open.

The strikers are resorting to violence. They have destroyed the great switch board station outside the city and cut a number of telegraph wires.

Alarming reports were current concerning the intentions and plans of the revolutionary party. The strike agitation is spreading in every direction, and bank clerks, journalists, office servants, printers, pressmen, drivers, stationary engineers and mechanics in general are all threatening to strike.

The Vienna Railway was completely at a standstill and there appeared to be no hope of a speedy settlement of the difficulty. The directors had a long session, but were unable to find a solution.

Western Poland was completely cut off from communication with Middle and Western Europe, except by telegraph. No mails are arriving or departing, the authorities apparently preferring to hold the mails rather than send them by circuitous routes. Commercial interests and private individuals are much inconvenienced.

Japan's Fourth Loan.

Tokio, Japan.—As a result of a conference with the bankers of Tokio, Yokohama, Osaka, Nagoya and Kioto, the Government has practically determined on a fourth domestic loan of 100,000,000 yen, to be issued at ninety-six per cent, and payable in seven years. The formal announcement of the loan is expected soon.

"West Virginia" in Commission.

The new armored cruiser West Virginia went into commission at Newport News, Va.

Jacob Worth Dead.

Jacob Worth, formerly leader of the Kings County (N. Y.) Republican organization, died in Hot Springs, Ark.

Hannah Elias Wins Suit.

John R. Platt's suit to recover from Mrs. Hannah Elias $685,000 was dismissed by Justice O'Gorman, in the Supreme Court, at New York City, who said the aged millionaire had not made out a case.

Argentina Students Coming Here.

Twenty Argentine students have been selected by the Minister of Agriculture of Argentina to proceed to Philadelphia, Pa., to study American agricultural methods.

LITTLE BOY SHOOTS B

Rudyard Foust, Four Years Old, His Younger Sister.

Mother Was in Adjoining Room in Indianapolis Home When Tragedy Occurred.

Indianapolis, Ind.—After [illegible] ery chamber in a heavy revolver Rudyard Foust, four years old, a wealthy parents in this city, ately aimed at his sister, three old, and shot her through the early in the morning. The case most remarkable in the records Police Department here. Althou boy apparently plotted the cri seemed to know exactly what doing, all questioning since his death has failed to draw fo indication that he is aware seriousness of his act.

Rudyard and the baby girl wer ing in the nursery. Their moth in bed with a severe headach bedroom, from which through t door she could hear the moven the children. The servants had out and there were only Mrs. F and the little ones in the house.

Mrs. Foust says she heard a report, but that she had not the est idea it was a pistol shot. S mained in bed until Rudyard in minutes tottered in with the pis his hand and his face blanched.

"Ma, Tottie's hurt," said the bo

The mother sprang to the floor, rushing into the nursery, found baby flat on her back with a ho hole in her forehead. Her ha tresses were stained with blood her face was crimson. Mrs. F lifted the tot in her arms and laid on a cot. Then, still maintaining coolness, she went to a telephon summoned a physician. When doctor arrived he found the mo crying in hysteria for her little c be given back to her. So great the shock that fear was held for M Foust's condition, and she has been der the care of physicians all day.

All the details of the shooting been linked together by the po Rudyard found the pistol on a shel a room off the nursery. The marks feet have been found on a t He climbed on the top of the and was just able to touch the rev He pulled it off the shelf by puttin second finger in the trigger guard pistol was empty and the cartri were taken from the trunk.

With an intelligence surprising one so young, Rudyard lifted a ke the lock and opened the heavy He threw out many articles on floor, and, having come across the ridges, he sat down on the carpet began filling the chambers. His s was watching him. Mrs. Foust a minutes before the shot heard the crowing in delight, and it is thou that she was giving way to baby enthusiasm over Rudyard's advent

When the revolver had been l loaded and the chamber snapped place the children returned to nursery. From the boy's story it been gathered that he was stand three feet from his sister when fired. Experiments have shown th he had just strength enough to l the weapon for an instant.

The baby died instantly. The bul went through the brain and was fal from the scalp at the back of the he It is reasoned by the detectives th the boy must have pointed the weap straight at his victim, as the course the bullet is in a straight line throu the head.

The boy was taken to Police Hea quarters, but all questioning was n less. He simply kept repeating that did not know what had happened: th he and "Dottie" had been playing, that the gun had gone off and that t she had fallen down. The little fel was so totally unaware of the natu of the crime that the police say a ing can be done.

In any event, no action would b taken, as Rudyard is under the age a legal charge. The police, however are unable to reconcile the boy's p cociousness in opening the trunk a loading the revolver with his appare ignorance of any wrongdoing. Ru yard is exceptionally intelligent, ready being able to read and write

CADETS DOWN THE "JAP."

Exponent of Jiu-Jitsu Thrown by W Point Athletes.

West Point, N. Y.—In the gymnasi here the art of Judo had a practic demonstration before the cadet cor and Academic Board. The board considering the advisability of addi the Japanese method to the acade curriculum. Professor Tomet, Japa most famous exponent of the art, a director in the school at Tokio, with h assistant, came to the academy throu the courtesy of the New York Japan Consul-General, who accompa them, to give the exhibition.

The professor wrestled with his a sistant, throwing him around like rubber ball. He then called for ca volunteers. Cadet Tipton, the hus All-American football centre, went the mat and football methods soon h jiu-jitsu beaten. The big fellow plan the wiry Jap flat on his back thr times without being thrown in the bo Cadet Daly also threw the professor.

Milk Trust to Squeeze Chicago.

Milk consumers of Chicago are no confronted by a combination of all th large dairy firms in the city, whi expects to control nearly the whol supply of milk and raise the price t eight cents.

Counterfeiting Plant in Jail.

In a cell at the penitentiary in Rich mond, Va., there has been found counterfeiting outfit, which convicts own and operate and from which they have turned out many ten cent pieces and quarters.

House Refuses Rental.

The House, Washington, 92 to 77, struck from the Civil Sundry bill the annual rental of $150,000 to the Na tional City Bank for the old Custom House in New York City.

TH

VOL. II.

GENERAL STAT

Current News Garnered as the Plant of Rep

Factory Was Destroyed.

[illegible] Ala. [illegible] Tuesday morning between the hours [illegible] the flames [illegible] is estimated at [illegible] ,000, and is partially cover [illegible]

This plant, a [illegible] was erected about two [illegible] largest industry in Girard

Burned With Powder.

Gadsden, Ala. An accident [illegible] prove serious, occurred Friday [illegible] ore mines of Hammond Bro [illegible] miles above [illegible] in [illegible] boys and a girl were badly burn [illegible] The children, who [illegible] from 5 to 14 years of age, were play [illegible] near an old powder magazine on [illegible] mountain and found a can of pow [illegible] which they broke open and pou [illegible] out a quantity threw it on a fire [illegible] had near by. The powder flashed [illegible] and quickly communicated with [illegible] can when it exploded with a deaf [illegible] report and the children were [illegible] and bruised about their faces [illegible] body. Two of the boys are in a [illegible] erous condition and may not sur [illegible] the accident.

Killed By Train.

Gadsden, Ala. An unknown white [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] Caldwell and Whitney by the fast [illegible] Great Southern railroad [illegible] ger, the news being brought to [illegible] by passengers on the train. [illegible] ems that the old man lived near [illegible] of the above named stations and [illegible] walking along the side of the [illegible] with a plow on his shoulder and [illegible] the train neared him the engineer [illegible] horrified to see the old man step [illegible] the center of the track. The en [illegible] shrieked out a warning applied [illegible] brakes and reversed his engine [illegible] to no avail and the man was run [illegible] His name could not be learned.

New Bank at Decatur.

Decatur, Ala. Official notice of the [illegible] ization of the Commercial Sav [illegible] Bank and Trust Savings Com [illegible] of New Decatur, was filed with [illegible] Secretary of state Friday. The [illegible] l stock of the bank is $25,000, [illegible] which is paid in. [illegible] The incorporators are L. J. Feni, A. [illegible] in, Mrs. Mary Jemmes, E. C [illegible] Samuel Blue [illegible] M. L. Hood [illegible] W. Walton, W. H. Sm [illegible] Malone, R. H. Wilson [illegible] I. W. Barton, A. A. Hardin [illegible] Jarvis, Mac Jones, C. R. Sm [illegible] W. R. Smith, G. H. Mar [illegible] Phippen, L. B. Wood, Willia [illegible] Hendrix, W. A. Wagner, E. L. [illegible] G. M. Rains, A. Z. Bailey [illegible] and Austin, A. J. Wilson, Mor [illegible] Wilson, Claude Wilson and G. L.

Home Destroyed by Fire.

[illegible]sboro, Ala. Fire destroyed the [illegible] of R. Scott Parks Monday after [illegible] at Randall's chapel, near Scotts [illegible] Everything Mr. Parks had in [illegible] me was burned, as all the fam [illegible] were here at the time of the fire. [illegible] use is unknown. There was no [illegible] ance.

Will Pay Dividends.

[illegible]elika, Ala.—The depositors of the [illegible] Bank, which failed in Opelika [illegible] a year ago, will be paid a divi [illegible] of 25 per cent. [illegible] are about $80,000 due deposi [illegible] and the assignees will pay out [illegible] $20,000 on the first dividend.

Santa Fe Included.

[illegible]ka, Kan.—The Atchison To [illegible] and Santa Fe railroad is to be in [illegible] In Attorney General Coleman's [illegible] conspiracy against the Stand [illegible] Company. Mr. Coleman said [illegible] Santa Fe was left out of the [illegible] dition by an error of the [illegible] my [illegible] ber. [illegible] file an amended pe [illegible] include the Santa Fe. The [illegible] brought against all the rail [illegible] the state. The strongest fea [illegible] the suit, according to the at [illegible] general, is that relating to the [illegible] of the Standard Oil Company [illegible] charter fees, thus having no au [illegible] to do business in the state.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., MARCH 9, 1905. NO. 50

Hon L H Reynolds

GENERAL STATE NEWS.

Current News Garnered as It Falls From the Plant of Report.

Factory Was Destroyed.

Ala.—The plant of the Chemical and Mining was destroyed by fire morning between the hours o'clock. It is not known fames originated, and the incendiarism has been ad- When the watchman discov- it was rapidly getting headway.

plant, including buildings, cars, four Central of Geor- and one thousand was destroyed. The at from $25,000 to partially covered by ina guano factory, was two years ago, and was industry in Girard.

Burned With Powder.

Ala. An accident which occurred Friday at of Hammond Bros., a above the city, in which and a girl were badly burn children, whose ages range 11 years of age, were play- old powder magazine on and found a can of pow- broke open and pour- threw it on a fire near by. The powder flashed communicated with exploded with a deaf- and the children were bruised about their faces Two of the boys are in a condition and may not sur-

Killed By Train.

An unknown white man and 'ground' to Wednesday morning be- and Whitney by the Southern northbound being brought to on the train. old man lived near named stations and the side of the his shoulder and him the engineer the old man step the track. The en- a warning, applied reversed his engine and the man was run could not be learned.

New Bank at Decatur.

Official notice of the of the Commercial Sav- and Trust Savings Com- Decatur, was filed with of state Friday. The bank is $25,000, paid in. ors are L. J. Fenn, A. Mary Jennings, E. C. Hardwell, M. L. Hard- W. H. Simpson, R. H. Walcott, James A. A. Hardage Jervis, G. R. Sulli- T. H. Mattocks, P. Wyatt, William A. Warner, B. L. Russell, A. Z. Bailey, A. J. Wilson, Mor- Wilson and G. L.

Destroyed by Fire.

Fire destroyed the Parks Monday after- chapel, near Sotts- Mr. Parks had in burned, as all the fam- the time of the fire, unknown. There was no

Will Pay Dividends.

The depositors of the which failed in Opelika ago, will be paid a divi- per cent. about $80,000 due deposi- assignees will pay out on the first dividend.

Santa Fe Included.

Kan.—The Atchison, To- Santa Fe railroad is to be in- Attorney General Coleman's against the Stand- company. Mr. Coleman said Santa Fe was left out of the by an error of the er. file an amended pe- ide the Santa Fe. The against all the rail- The strongest fea- according to the at- is that relating to the Standard Oil Company fees, thus having no au- business in the state.

New Railroad to Atlas Coal Mines.

Jasper, Ala.—Bowdry & Wilcox, the well known contractors, have begun the construction of a branch line from the main line of the Southern railway near Oakman to a point where the Atlas Coal Company proposes to open up new mines. The line will leave the main line about taree miles east of Oakman, and will run in a southeasterly direction about two and one-half miles.

The Atlas Coal Company has some very rich mineral holdings in that section, and it is proposed to open the best mining plants in the county.

Wants But One Phone System.

Sheffield, Ala.—The mayor and council of Sheffield at a meeting held Thursday night declined to grand a franchise for an exchange to be operated in competition with the exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, now in Sheffield. The application for a franchise was made by John C. Monteith, representing Barber & Brailey, owners of certain independent telephone properties. The matter received careful consideration at the hands of the members of the council, and after a full discussion it was unanimously decided that a second telephone system in Sheffield would result in an increased financial burden to the community, and very considerable annoyance as well. The service of the Southern Bell Company in Sheffield was pronounced excellent and the rates reasonable, and the mayor and council were unanimously of the opinion that a second telephone system would be highly undesirable.

Boyles Property Transferred.

Birmingham, Ala.—According to papers filed in the probate office, the South and North Alabama railroad (Louisville and Nashville) is now in full possession of the property at Boyles, north of the city, where large yards have been constructed. The transfer is made by the Louisville Development Company, a corporation in which are many stockholders in the Louisville and Nashville. The consideration is $120,000.

Bit By Mad Dog.

Opelika, Ala.—A few weeks ago a supposed mad dog bit the little boy of Solicitor C. A. L. Samford and the little daughter of B. E. Hudson. They were at once carried to Atlanta, Ga., for treatment, and the body of the dog was carried there for analysis and examination. It was decided that the dog was afflicted with the rabies, but the children have taken the necessary treatment and it is now thought that they are out of danger.

Child Victim of Grate Fire.

Florence, Ala.—The 7-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Longshore, prominent citizens of Lambs Ferry, in the eastern part of the county, was burned in a frightful manner. Mrs. Longshore had stepped from the room a few minutes when it is supposed the child went too near the grate and caught fire. When found the child's clothes were burned entirely off, and after lingering in horrible agony it died six hours later. This is the fourth victim, all of them white children, which the flames have claimed in Lauderdale county in a little more than a month.

Alabama Postmasters.

Washington, D. C.—Postmasters appointed:

Bingham, Elmore county, James B. Fain; Rockwood, Franklin county, Wylmer Crittenden; Show Creek, Cleburne county, Wm. E. Holdt.

Opera House Sold at Tuscaloosa.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—H. H. Leland and M. T. Ormond have purchased the opera house property from H. F. Brady, of Mobile. The property is a quarter of a block. The price paid was $4,500.

Brought from Florida.

Birmingham, Ala.—Ed G. Roach, a white man 36 years of age, was brought to Birmingham from Jacksonville, Fla., where he was arrested on a warrant from this county, charging grand larceny. He was arrested several days ago, and Deputy Sheriff George W. Courson was sent to Florida to bring him back.

Roach is charged with taking and disposing of a barrel of whisky from the Frisco system freight house in this city some time ago. For several weeks the special agent of the railroad has been working on the case, and he finally located Roach in Jacksonville.

Jordan at Opelika.

Opelika, Ala.—An immense audience of representative farmers from Lee, Chambers, Macon, Tallapoosa and Russell counties, assembled in Opelika to hear the addresses of Hon. Harvie Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association, and other distinguished speakers. Hon. N. P. Renfro, president of the Lee County Association, called the meeting to order and presented Hon. Lum Duke, of Opelika, who introduced Hon. R. R. Poole, commissioner of agriculture. Hon. R. R. Poole, in an address, described the organization, composition and purpose of the Cotton Growers' Association. His speech was enthusiastically received.

Colonel Duke then introduced Hon. Harvie Jordan, who delivered a most masterly address, discussing the cotton situation in the Southern States and eloquently appealed to the farmers to decrease the cotton acreage and the use of fertilizers.

W. H. Seymour, president of the Alabama Association, and E. D. Smith, of the South Carolina Association, delivered eloquent addresses on the line of the other speeches. All the speakers were enthusiastically applauded.

New Construction Company.

Birmingham, Ala.—The Jefferson Construction Company, of Birmingham, with a capital stock of $125,000, Friday gave notice of its incorporation to Secretary of State E. R. McDavid. The incorporators are W. H. Woodward, Frank Nelson, Jr., and F. B. Nabers.

Other notices of incorporation were filed as follows:

Alabama Mining Company, with a capital stock of $100,000. The headquarters of the company are at Birmingham. The incorporators are S. J. Simpson, E. D. Stone, and R. P. Gaines.

Crockett Wall Paper Company, of Birmingham, with a capital stock of $5,000. The incorporators are J. R. Adams, Kate C. Adams and W. J. Crockett.

Great Mining Improvement.

Ensley, Ala.—The Tennessee company is doing a large amount of improvement and repairing at mine No. 5, near Wylam, of the Pratt division. New machinery is being installed, the tipple is being repaired and new tracks are being laid. The company is also building fifty new houses near the mines in which the miners and their families will live.

For the past several weeks a large force of workmen have been engaged in installing new machinery and making other improvements.

When the plans projected are carried out No. 5 will be one of the best equipped mines in the state. For the past two or three years it seems that the policy of the Tennessee company is to equip all of its mines with modern machinery. No. 3 has recently been made one of the best mines in the state, and now No. 5 will soon rank in the same class.

The company is also sinking another shaft on its properties near Booker City.

White Men Sentenced.

Montgomery, Ala.—J. H. Wise and Lawrence McDonald, white men, charged with grand larceny, entered pleas of guilty in the criminal division of the city court of Montgomery and were sentenced to two years each in the penitentiary by Judge William H. Thomas.

Wise was charged with stealing an overcoat from J. H. Dodd at the Hogan house, where both men were rooming, while McDonald took a similar article of apparel from the residence of Patrolman T. J. Swearingen. He was employed to paint the house occupied by Mr. Swearingen, and was subsequently discharged. He returned, however, and took the overcoat.

The men will be taken to the penitentiary in a few days.

Heavy Damages.

Gadsden, Ala.—A verdict for $11,500 damages was rendered against the Alabama Steel and Wire Company in the city court in the case of the administrator of a man named Cahill, who sued for $25,000 for the death of Cahill.

Cow Ordinance in Force.

Florence, Ala.—The beginning of a new era was marked in Florence Friday when the ordinance prohibiting the running at large of cows within old Florence went into effect.

It is expected that the city, which is already one of the most beautiful in the south, will be greatly improved by the planting of trees and the removal of fences. The Civic Improvement Association worked long and faithfully for the cow ordinance with the view of planting trees in the streets and encouraging the planting of flowers in the yards.

The ordinance as originally passed has been amended so as to change the boundary, including East Florence.

BRILLIANT PAGEANTRY

The Inauguration National in Its Aspects, and Devoid of Sectionalism.

TENSION OF INTEREST.

Chief Justice Fuller of Supreme Court Administers Oath to Mr. Roosevelt.—Guns Salute.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt took the oath of office before a vast gathering of the people he has been elected to serve. The attendant scenes were not unusual. Inaugurations from the time the east front of the capitol first became the setting for the ceremony have been much the same. Many of the central figures have officiated in like capacity on other occasions when presidents have acceded to the highest office in the gift of the American people. Chief Justice Fuller, in administering the oath, repeated a solemn function he has performed four times—today his last. Yet, with all this repetition, nothing was jaded and everything appeared new.

The great crowd assembled for the crowning event of a day full of features, cannot be estimated even by comparison. It extended far beyond the reach of the voice and was so densely packed as to carry the stage out of the sight of many. The capitol plaza, resourceful in accommodating the thousands eager to view the ceremony was completely filled. People came by its numerous streets and avenues, which, like so many yawning, ravenous maws, greedily swallowed the throng until every coign of vantage was occupied. The trees, barren of foliage, carried their human burdens on limbs capable of bearing the weight of man or boy, and so far away as the terraces and marble steps of the library of congress thousands stood.

Spectators Sought Positions.

Hours before the ceremony could be expected to take place the people sought the most advantageous positions.

The scene was one of remarkable animation. Those who sought places maintained a running fire of raillery and pushed and jostled each other, the sound of their voices mingling with the shuffling of feet on the asphalted plaza.

Although the ceremony differed little from those that have preceded it, in the great sea of spectators probably there was a larger number of representative Americans than any inauguration has brought to Washington. The Eastern states were rivalled in point of attendance by reason of President Roosevelt's great popularity in the middle and far West.

National Inauguration.

It was the first national inauguration since the civil war.

The South sent up its warriors and its state officials. Men who fought each other for years under different flags; men who fought together in the war with Spain under one flag; executive officers of the state who upheld the stars and bars, and those who stood for the flag of the Union marched together in review before their common president, a soldier of the republic.

With these to illustrate our new nationality, came marching representatives from the Philippines and Porto Rico, lands where the sunset fading from the flag in the far Pacific is the sunrise on its folds along the Atlantic horizon.

Tension of Interest.

During the hours intervening between the gathering of the crowd and the cemetery there was no letting down of the tension of interest. The passing of a uniformed horseman was sufficient to call forth cheers, although in some sections the multitude showed signs of restlessness.

As rapidly as the troops arrived they took the position assigned to them. The military escort stretched far to the left and consisted of all branches of the service—horse, foot and artillery. To the right were grouped division after division of state troops and in different places of honor the other organizations took their stand to await the signal to move.

Inaugural Preparations.

The movements of the gathering troops and organizations were not all the crowd had for its entertainment. Directly in its front preparations were in progress for the inauguration itself. A monster stand in the form of an open amphitheater had been erected on a line with the rotunda of the capitol and there decorators were engaged in arranging for the ceremony and ushers busied themselves learning the sections to be assigned to the various officials and distinguished guests.

The Official Party.

At about 1 o'clock the official party came through the main door. Cheers were sent up from the enthusiastic multitude, all eyes were directed that way and strained to get the first glimpse of the president.

The official entrance was dramatic. All except those who were participating in the ceremony were stated. When the justices of the supreme court, with the exception of Chief Justice Fuller, emerged from between the Corinthian pillars and marched down the sloping carpeted aisle to their station, they were greeted with applause. The justices wore their robes and skull-caps. Then came the members of the diplomatic corps in their gorgeous uniforms, and they evoked thunderous applause. Led by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador and dean of the corps, and followed by the others in order of precedence, they took seats on the right of the stand. Strolling in after them came members of the cabinet, senators and representatives in congress.

Taking as a signal the arrival of Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of friends, and a moment later by Vice-President Fairbanks and his escort, the applause subsided to await the coming of the man of the hour.

President Roosevelt came forth from between the massive pillars quietly and composedly. He was escorted by Chief Justice Fuller. With measured tread in harmony with the dignified step of the chief justice, the president advanced in state down the long aisle of distinguished guests. By this time all were standing and nothing could be heard above the roar of thunderous welcome. Immediately following came, arm in arm, the members of the committee on arrangements. As the president passed down the aisle he bared his head and with characteristic sweep of his hat bowed in acknowledgement of the salutations from the stand and the ovation from the people.

Oath Administered.

At a sign from Chief Justice Fuller the clerk of the supreme court stepped forward holding a Bible. A hush fell over the crowd. The president raised his right hand and the oath to support the laws and constitution of the United States was reverently taken amid deep silence. When this had been concluded there was practically no demonstration and the president began his inaugural address. As soon as he finished speaking he reentered the capitol and as he disappeared within the building a signal was flashed to the navy yard and the roar of twenty one guns was begun in official salute to the president.

Fireworks Display.

Washington, D. C.—A great mass of people filled the ellipse south of the white house, and viewed the display of fireworks, the concluding outdoor feature of the day's program. The pyrotechnic display was one of the most elaborate ever undertaken in Washington on any similar occasion. For more than an hour the air was filled with whirlwinds and streaks of fire, showers of vari-colored sparks and bursting bombs.

The Washington monument, rising in the background of the pictures painted in fire, was the object of powerful searchlights, adding materially to the ever-changing scene. The white house. Many of the features could be seen all over the city.

First of all was the president's salute. Twenty-one aerial meteors bursting with terrific report high in the air, constituted the salute. This was followed by a grand illumination of the white house lot, or ellipse, with powerful colored lights.

Another honor shown the newly installed president was the displaying of a colossal fire portrait of himself.

A novelty was produced by mammoth shell which, at a height of 100 feet released a large bomb with red, green, blue and white stars, followed by a gold shell representing Cuba, and silver shells for Porto Rico, finishing with a number of smaller shells for the Philippines.

A huge pyrotechnic American flag 300 feet long and 150 feet wide, was unfurled at a high altitude to which it was carried by balloons.

An immense bouquet of American Beauty roses burst forth as a set piece, changing into a portrait of Mrs. Roosevelt.

A mammoth fire wheel, making a revolving ring of fire nearly 100 feet in diameter, was another attractive feature.

There was an ascent of 100 large prismatic whirlwinds forming umbrellas of fire and the flight of twenty 50-inch bombs produced pleasing combinations in color effect.

The display concluded with the flight of 350 colored bombs. At times the bursting of the shells gave the idea of a sham battle. A clouded sky added to the success of the fireworks program.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 11 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

If those Hollanders succeed in their project to elect their own king it might also be a good scheme for them to provide that he should only hold the job during good behavior.

HIS HANDICAP.

By GRACE S. RICHMOND.

"I'll be around to-morrow, Al—you can believe me!"

The big young fellow in the hospital bed stared back for a moment into the eyes of the other big young fellow who stood looking down at him. Then he put out one hand, the left one, and evidently tried to say something in reply, which did not, however, become audible.

But his friend understood. He grasped the thin left hand with his own, said cheerily: "All right; there's nothing I'd rather do," and hurried away.

When he had closed the door of the men's surgical ward he gave his broad shoulders a shake, and shut his lips firmly together a moment. As he went down the corridor he was saying to himself: "Oh, that's tough, tough! I don't blame the poor fellow for going blue like that. I believe he'd get well faster if he could have a bit of hope put back into him."

As he reached the hospital entrance he met one of the surgeons coming in, and ventured to delay him a moment. "Would you mind telling me, Doctor Stuart," he asked, "if you think despondency has anything to do with keeping my friend Caldwell down? Kirke Caldwell, in Ward F. The nurse told me you were seeing him now and then. Is there anything I can do——"

"Despondency has much to do with it," agreed the surgeon, promptly. "Cheer him up all you can. He's shown great courage and endurance all though this siege, but it's told on him. I suppose he thinks his ambitions are all thwarted, and that's enough to make him blue. Get him to believe there's something left for him to do in life."

"Yes, that's it," mused Tom Thorpe, as he went on his way. "I've got to do something for Kirke something positive, that will put him on his feet."

He thought about it all the way to the great manufactory where he held the post of electrical engineer. It was a fine position for a young man but two years out of a technical school. Kirke Caldwell had held an equally good position in a neighboring city. The two had been classmates, even rivals within the bounds of a sturdy friendship.

Three months before, Caldwell, superintending the installation of new electrical machinery, had seen one of his workmen accidentally short-circuit a powerful current with a pair of pliers, had pulled the man away somehow, but in wrenching his hand away from the pliers, had taken the deadly current himself. He had been so burned that amputation of one hand and one foot had been necessary to save his life. The man to whose rescue he had sprung, died, and there had been weeks during which it seemed that Caldwell must follow.

That danger was past for him now: he had his life, but it was a life seemingly so handicapped that it was small wonder if the splendid courage he had shown all through, had at last failed him. Alone in the world and dependent upon his own resources for a living, he felt that there was little use in trying to get well.

But Tom Thorpe knew better; and after thinking about his friend's case all day, he went to his father to ask his co-operation in a plan he had formed.

Tom Thorpe and his father lived together in a little flat, which was as homelike as a place with no wife and mother in it can be.

"He's a magnificent fellow!" Tom declared to his father, walking the floor, his face full of eagerness. "If we could just have him here for a month till he got enough strength, and then take him to see Wentworth, I believe the thing would be done. I don't know myself what he could do with his handicap in electrical engineering, but I believe he could be his own salvation if he got his brain working at it. You don't know what's in that boy, father.—He's twice as clever as I am, and he must be made to show it."

Mr. Thorpe smiled. He had his own opinion of his son's cleverness. He let Tom's modest estimate of himself pass, however, and agreed heartily that a month with themselves and a trip of a hundred and twenty miles to see a certain man in a university town might be the tonic Caldwell needed. Therefore Tom went to bed and to sleep with an easier mind.

* * * * * * *

"Kirke," said Tom Thorpe one morning, when Caldwell had been for three weeks a member of the Thorpe household, "I'm going on a little trip down to Remsen, and I've a mind to take you with me."

Caldwell, sitting in a big reclining chair by the window, looked round at Tom with an expression of languid surprise.

"There's no reason in the world why you shouldn't have an outing," pursued Tom, briskly. "We're only a few blocks from the station. I can wheel you over in your chair, put you into a Pullman, send the chair in the baggage car, and take you round Remsen as easily as if I were a cash carrier in a department store. We'll have a fine time out of it."

"It's good of you, Tom," said Caldwell, gratefully, "but——"

"You're going, that's all," said Tom, firmly. "I know you don't want to, but you're going, just the same, and you're going now. The train leaves in forty-five minutes—just time for me to put on your best coat and your handsomest cravat, and get you over to the station without running down any baby carriages on the way. Here you are—and you'll want your light overcoat; this April air's a little sharp."

He talked on busily, giving the invalid small chance to object, although he saw clearly enough that Caldwell dreaded the very idea of the trip. Until now he had ventured outdoors only for short rides round the little park on which the house fronted, and he had chosen the hour for these when the fewest people were likely to be there.

Tom could not wonder at this state of mind. He appreciated too well what it must mean to a fellow who had been a giant for physical strength to lie limply in a wheel chair, with a rug over his lap, his hat pulled over his hollow eyes, his pale face attracting the pitying gaze of every passer-by.

But Tom felt strongly the need for Kirke to get used to that sort of thing, to take up life again as nearly as possible where he had left it off, and to mingle with men instead of trying to hide away from them.

The beginning of the journey was accomplished with the ease Tom had prophesied, thanks to some previous planning. At the station Caldwell was brought by the most direct and least conspicuous route to the steps of the train, where Tom, assisted by a cheerful colored porter, conveyed him swiftly on board the Pullman, and established him, not in a private compartment Tom had considered that idea and rejected it—but in a chair at the rear of the car, where he could observe everybody else and be himself unnoticed.

As the train left the station, Tom was gratified to note that Kirke looked out of the window with more interest in his somber eyes than had been there in weeks.

Remsen was not a long distance away, but the luncheon hour arrived in the middle of the journey, and Tom ordered a lavish meal. Kirke, beginning languidly, was soon eating broiled bluefish and roast duck with his old-time zest. Tom, on the other side of the table, talked and joked, and brought to his friend's face a frequent smile.

At Remsen, Caldwell found himself being wheeled rapidly away through the wide, elm-bordered streets of the old university town. Several generations of Thorpes had been educated there, the succession being broken when Tom had insisted on going to a more famous centre of learning.

"Still, I sometimes wish I'd stayed by the family traditions," Tom declared, turning from the side street which had brought them from the station into the broad avenue which led toward the group of college buildings on the hill. "Whenever I come here I get a new respect for the place. There's a certain atmosphere in which one seems to breathe the very spirit of learning—the real thing. They've got some of the finest men here I ever knew. McIntosh, the mathematics instructor, and Bronson, in history, and Wentworth, the crack-a-jack in chemistry. I want to see them all, and I hope we'll be in time to get into Wentworth's chemistry lecture. You'll enjoy it, I know; there's nobody like him. He'd make a long-haired musician throw down his score and take to the Bunsen burner and the retort."

He was talking with a purpose—to keep Caldwell from refusing to go into the recitation rooms, as he feared he might do. But Caldwell, although he was dreading to be taken before the eyes of men of his own sort, had reached the point of understanding that Tom had a definite purpose in all this, which he did not mean to be coward enough to defeat.

So he set a grip on himself—easy enough in the old days, harder than could be believed now—and acquiesced pleasantly when Tom wheeled him down a long corridor of the Science Hall, and pausing at a certain door, whispered somewhat nervously:

"You won't mind my taking you in? The door's at the back of the room, and Wentworth won't see you, anyhow."

Caldwell's shaken spirit winced for an instant as he was drawn into the lecture room, and a hundred pairs of eyes looked curiously round at the unusual noise of a wheel chair bumping through the doorway. Tom was too much wrought up to steer straight.

But when the boys saw the pale face in the chair—a face which still showed both strength and charm—and took note of the feebleness of the tall figure resting in inert lines against the plainly needed support, they turned away again, and only a few fellows near the door gave attention to the newcomers. Those men made them welcome with friendly nods.

But after the first five minutes in the room, Kirke Caldwell needed nobody to divert his thoughts from himself. Tom Thorpe, breathing a little hard from mixed emotion and anxiety, might lean back in his seat and let his friend alone. Kirke had at last forgotten everything in the world but what he now saw before him.

The lecturer's face, although tanned to a healthy color, was scarred with irregular, blanched furrows, and his eyes were hidden from sight behind black spectacles.

His body was strong, magnificently built; the movement of his hands, as he talked, illustrating his words with gestures, was vigorous and full of meaning; his voice was deep and rich; his inflections were full of vivacity and enthusiasm; but the man himself was disabled by the absolute loss of his sight.

As Caldwell, watching him, thought back for an instant to all the blind people he had ever known, it occurred to him that although they had almost invariably been of kindly disposition, bearing their hard lot with patience and resignation, never once had he seen among them any one like this. And presently, as in the interest of the lecture itself he forgot to speculate or to compare, he became conscious that something he thought he had lost forever was returning to him—for the moment, at least—the old, keen joy in a scientific argument and demonstration, presented by a master of his subject.

The lecture concluded amidst an outburst of enthusiastic applause, of the sort which means not only honest appreciation of the thing that has been done, but hearty love and admiration for the doer. The class poured hurriedly into the laboratory, where certain important tests were now to be made, supporting a new and singular theory which the lecturer had propounded.

"Come down and see it, won't you?" a student urged Thorpe and Caldwell. "If you've never seen him in the lab, you ought not to miss it."

"How did he lose his sight?" Caldwell asked eagerly of the young fellow, who, with a hand on Kirke's chair, was accompanying them down the sloping aisle. Tom rejoiced within himself that it was all happening so naturally. If a stranger told the story it would not look to Caldwell so much as if Tom had meant to read a moral to him.

"Got hurt in a lab explosion," the boy said. "Freshman making carbon monoxid—sulphuric and oxalic acids in the generator, you know. Chump left out the safety bottle—had the burner too high—opened a window. Wentworth came in and saw him with his head over the retort—flame blowing one side in the wind—January wind. He jumped to disconnect, gave the fellow a shove one side just quick enough to save him, and got that awful explosion in his own face. Alkali, you see, drawn back into the acids by the generator cooling too quick in the zero wind. No safety bottle between."

Caldwell nodded, his face full of intense interest. They were at the laboratory door. The student went on in a whisper.

"I saw it all. I don't like to remember how he suffered—with the pluck of a bulldog all the time. Eyes blown full of glass as well as acid—face horribly burned. Never saw a ray of light again. Freshman wanted to die—to his credit. Wentworth made a chum of him. We'll have to hurry. He never loses a minute's time himself, or lets any one else lose it for him. This way."

The next half-hour passed for Caldwell in a haze of delight. He was less conscious of his pleasure—although that was very great—in the somewhat remarkable experiments which were made under Professor Wentworth's direction, than in the recognition of the great and noble spirit of the man himself.

Alert in every sense but one; eager as a boy to prove what he had asserted; intimately interested in the class itself, down to its individual members, with whom he showed perfect familiarity, calling upon one and another to note various steps of the work in confirmation or refutation of their personal notions concerning it—he was the genius of the place, a dominating personality, which it was an inspiration to each mind within its influence to know.

"Glad you enjoyed it," said the young man who had brought them in. "We're as proud of him here we never lose a chance to have others appreciate him. He never lets up on himself. Takes his cold tubs and his dumbbells just the same, and tramps miles with one or another of us every day. We count it a treat to go, you know."

Tom Thorpe kept Caldwell until the class had nearly gone, and the professor was left with his assistants, making ready to go to the next duty. Then he wheeled his friend up to the blind man and made a blunt introduction which came from his heart:

"Professor Wentworth, this is my friend, Kirke Caldwell, an electrical engineer, who was in my class. He can't give you his right hand, because he tried to save the life of one of his men last February, and lost a hand and foot and—some other things. I want——"

The strong left hand of Maurice Wentworth had found Kirke's long before Tom had struggled thus far. His face had lightened instantly at Tom's description with a peculiar tenderness of sympathy which as long as he lived Kirke never forgot.

"A handicap," he said, his fine lips smiling. "Ah, then we shall see what you are really made of. Electrical engineering—and your brains are left you. Let the other men put on the rubber gloves; it's you who can solve their problems for them."

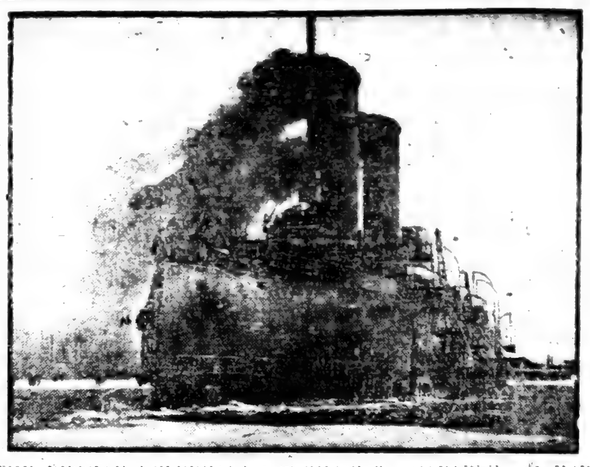
All the way home Caldwell sat staring out of the car window with eyes which took no note of the April landscape, just budding into beauty. Tom Thorpe sat and read a newspaper upside down, and hardly dared so much as glance at him. In the pale face grew and grew the thing Tom had longed to see there—courage.—Youth's Companion.

In Swiss Sanitariums.

It has been found that seventy to eighty per cent. of the consumptive patients at one of the Swiss sanitariums retain for several years the extra weight gained there during several months' treatment.

Burmese Mile.

The Burmese mile, which is equal to two English miles, is described by a word meaning "to sit," being the distance a man walks before he considers it necessary to sit down.



THE RUSSIAN ICE-BREAKER "ERMACK." CAPABLE OF FORCING HER WAY THROUGH ICE TWENTY-FIVE FEET THICK.

BIG ICE BREAKERS.

Modern Vessels Overcome Any Ice Resistance.

THE large modern ice breakers depend for their efficiency upon their ability to ride up onto the ice and break down the edge of the sheet by sheer weight, thus "biting" their way through the sheet. Such action requires that the hull shall be constructed with the greatest possible stiffness, the vessel being subjected to stresses which would break an ordinary ship in two. With this great strength there must be ample power, the combination of the two being needed to oppose the heavy resistance. Vessels of this kind are now in active service in Copenhagen, Kiel, Riga, Stockholm, Amsterdam and other ports, besides many small boats used as post boats and pilot boats in the Baltic, the German coast and the Black Sea. A typical example of the boats used in general service is found in the Sampo, operating in the port of Hango, in Finland. This vessel, which was built on the Tyne, has a propeller at each end, the bow engine having 1200 horse power and the stern engine 1350 horse power. She is 202 feet long and 2000 tons displacement, with a full draught of eighteen feet. This float breaks through field ice twelve to sixteen inches thick at a speed of eight knots, and she can work through drift ice eight to ten feet thick at a rate of two to three knots, also breaking down larger packs without much trouble.

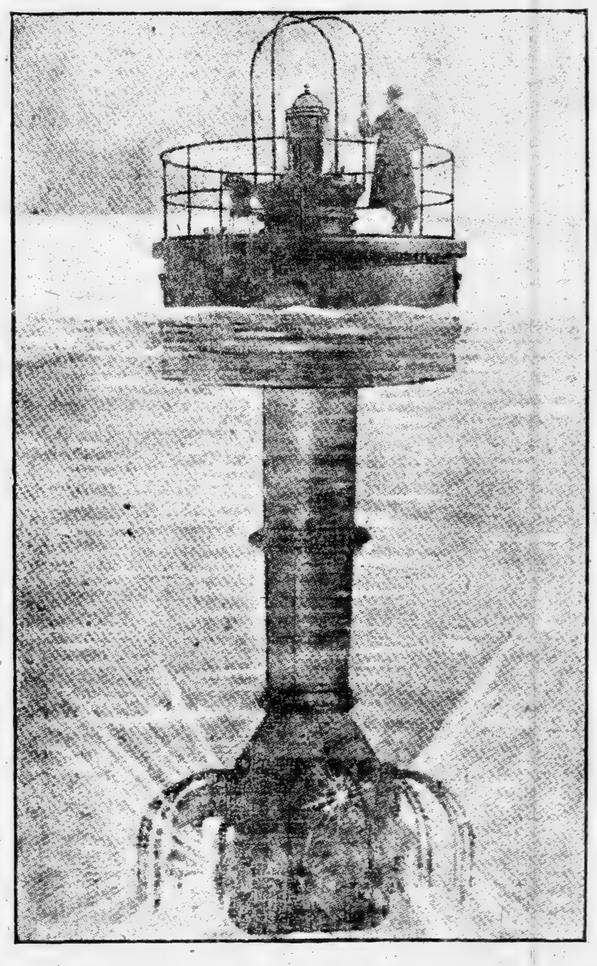
The greatest of modern ice breakers is the Ermack, built originally for use in the Baltic, but also occasionally employed elsewhere. This vessel is 335 feet long, seventy-one feet beam and 8000 tons displacement, with a draught of twenty-two feet. She was originally fitted with a bow propeller as well as the twin screws at the stern, this propeller, with its independent engine, being intended to aid in breaking up the ice. The bow propeller was found useful for one year old ice, but became choked and useless in polar field ice and hence was removed before the vessel was sent to the Arctic. In solid ice two feet thick, with six to twelve inches of snow on top of it, the Ermack can make a speed of nine knots, while she can charge and demolish parks of ice twenty to thirty-five feet in thickness.

Especial interest attaches at the present time to the ice breakers on Lake Baikal, in Siberia, these forming a portion of the system of the Trans-Siberian Railway. The Baikal, which is the powerful ice breaker for this service, is 202 feet long and 4200 tons displacement, and is fitted with three lines of rails for the locomotives and cars forming the train, there being also a promenade deck for the use of the passengers during the crossing. The field ice on Lake Baikal forms thirty-six inches thick, and also forms heavy packs, but the ice breakers have been found successful in carrying the regular passenger trains and the mails across throughout the winter.—Engineering Magazine.

Typical Buff Wyandotte Male.

Greece and the Ionian Islands produce more emery than any other country on the globe.

THE HYDROSCOPE IN THE WATER.



At the bottom are the lenses arranged round the steel tube. Steel protecting arms keep the lenses from damage by collision with rocks or spars. Generally the hydroscope will be used in the daytime when the ordinary sunlight gives plenty of illumination.

An Exposition in Liege.

Liege is busy with arrangements for an exposition to be opened there toward the end of April. A large amount of floor space has been reserved for the use of the many foreign countries that have signified their intentions of exhibiting. Germany and France are preparing to vie with one another.

Italy imports every year nearly 5,000,000 tons of coal, almost exclusively from the United Kingdom.

Oils From Vegetables.

An experimenter in India has shown oils from fifty-six kinds of common plants, such as the cucumber, tapioca plant, etc. Most of these oils have never been put to use, even if their properties are known, and it is suggested that a wide field for developing new industries is here open.

Vesuvius under a mantle of snow was one of the curiosities to be witnessed at Naples in the first week of January, 1905.

SCIENTIFIC & INDUSTRIAL

Dr. L. A. van Waster[illegible] has made [illegible] a method to the telephone [illegible] give information if there be [illegible] call across the [illegible] ent.

A wireless [illegible] cepted in a New York court during a trial for infringement, [illegible] two of the leading wireless companies. Messages were sent from one part of the building to another, the electric vibrations passing the walls of the structure.

Chairs for research and [illegible] protozoology and in helminthology about to be established at the [illegible] School of Tropical Medicine, [illegible] being provided by certain [illegible] ernments. The importance [illegible] branches of research in tropical [illegible] disease is unquestionable and [illegible] trying to know that the [illegible] by the governments [illegible] assisted the study of the [illegible]

A patent has been [illegible] to Garrett Wright, [illegible] old student at the Elmira, N. Y. Academy, for an automatic [illegible] for use in making flash light [illegible] of groups when the operators [illegible] ous of posing. The [illegible] clockwork, and it can be adjusted [illegible] give the operator plenty of time [illegible] in this group and to make any [illegible] preliminary arrangements which [illegible] be desirable.

Captain Baldwin, of the California Arrow, says that airships which [illegible] at present making use of are [illegible] affairs in comparison with those [illegible] he has under way. In these [illegible] of improvements have been made [illegible] hopes to make a flight with [illegible] them early in February at Los Angeles, Cal., where he has established [illegible] quarters, and by the spring [illegible] hopes to be in a position to make [illegible] long flights. He aims to do fifty [illegible]

Mr. A. Tingle, of the Imperial College, Chinanfu, Shantung, has sent a further communication on the flowering of the bamboo to the London journal. He is unable to name the species of the bamboos that flowered, but he reports that they are small, growing to height of about [illegible] metres. All the bamboos have [illegible] since flowering. Mr. Tingle points out that the bamboo will grow in Shantung only if carefully cultivated in a garden. The seasons, he says, have been in no way exceptional in Shantung.

Watterson Surrenders.

I am afraid that my friend Watterson is destined to be in a little while back number. The automobile has arrived, and, not alone in France, has come to stay. I attended the automobile show while in Paris and carefully examined the newest machines, especially the surely they are becoming speed. Gradually but surely they are adjusting themselves to roads and conditions. Mr. Bradley's time to have his duel at the Assassinat[illegible] Luther Davis both of White, but I fancy when Mr. Bryan visits Provence he will [illegible] a Mercedes or a Panhard[illegible] being both an American and a Tennessean, held out for a long time, put up as good a fight for the [illegible] as ever I made for [illegible] for-nowhere-ondy. No manner of [illegible] and now I experience that [illegible] irresistible [illegible] over feeling [illegible] Taggart must have had [illegible] the late election, as I [illegible] my ear murmur "Let her go, Gallagher!"—Sportsman-Journal.

Immigrant Steamship Companies.

The average run of folk [illegible] names of possibly half a [illegible] ship companies that are [illegible] commerce of this port. The [illegible] reality twenty-seven [illegible] They dumped upon the banks [illegible] hattan in 1904 the [illegible] of 735,187 persons. Of these [illegible] half a million were immigrants [illegible] to El Dorado America for [illegible] the total number 68,704 were [illegible] passengers, mostly Americans [illegible] ing from European tours [illegible] up the cafés [illegible] monarchies of the [illegible] World. Included among the [illegible] conceded, were sundry titled [illegible] in search of American millions [illegible] an American girl thrown in [illegible] measure here and there.—N. [illegible] Press.

Observations.

When you have made up [illegible] to find fault with somebody, [illegible] more irritating than to find [illegible] thereafter an objectionable [illegible]

When a man [illegible] the best party he [illegible] ing about himself, [illegible] himself is that right [illegible] virtues is re[illegible] times.

Seven [illegible] best [illegible] should be [illegible] highest for those who were [illegible] failed; the second [illegible] right and [illegible] wrong who were [illegible]

The social millennium will [illegible] arrived until every man is [illegible] his neighbors.—National Magazine.

Charity in Burma.

It is rather a suspicious thing [illegible] money for a charitable [illegible] convict[illegible] ma. It is supposed to [illegible] the donor has been very wicked [illegible] wishes to show his penitence.

Oysters to the number of 47 [illegible] were opened for pearls in the pearl fisheries in 1903.

In Corn[illegible]

A Purch[illegible]
CHRYSANTH[illegible]

Bradam found her one day.

"I, my father, my father will never consent," she whispered. "You know it isn't allowed, I think." And she shook her head sadly.

"Oh, but he must consent, my little Angold, he must, he must," declared Bradam vehemently.

The girl shook her head again. "But if he will not?" And she looked deep into Bradam's eyes doubtfully.

"Then we must run away," said Bradam with determination.

SCIENTIFIC & INDUSTRIAL

Watterson Surrenders.

Observations.

Oysters in Burma.

Oysters to the number of 41,18 were opened for pearls in the Ce pearl fisheries in 1903.

In Cornwall

The [illegible] I as he sat on the
[illegible]
[illegible] warning,
And [illegible] in the valley now.

[illegible] and listen, I hear the [illegible]
[illegible]
And the [illegible]
[illegible]

All the leaves of the valley are glad,
And the birds too,
For they had words to
Words tell of the joy they had.

Only you at the window, with rueful lips
Half pouting,
Stood dumb and blushing,
And drum your finger-tips.
—Arthur Symons, in Harper's.

A Purchase of CHRYSANTHEMUMS

BY CHAS. SLOAN REED

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

[illegible] had his first glimpse [illegible] a public library in Yeddo, [illegible] a position of some im- [illegible] he employ of an Amer- [illegible]rer; and there was [illegible] Oriental charm of her [illegible] face which had at once at- [illegible] attention. She was young, [illegible] more than a child, yet she, in [illegible]ghtly shown a liking for [illegible]erican's face. The great mass [illegible]rk hair had been artistically [illegible] on top of her pretty head, [illegible] fashion of her country wom- [illegible] Her brown eyes tilting [illegible]y upward toward her [illegible]ined a little frightened [illegible] as their gaze met the fire [illegible], and the veiled [illegible] her cheeks perceptibly [illegible]

[illegible]en this meeting, and the peculiar [illegible] of mutual admiration, [illegible] American tact, [illegible]ncovered his move- [illegible] soon bring himself near [illegible] garden. But she had [illegible] to exercise coy re- [illegible] shielding her flushed [illegible] book whose covers were [illegible] gilt designs.

[illegible] Bradam soon came [illegible] something in a [illegible] which he got a pleasant [illegible] and made bold to [illegible]ommendation and to [illegible] such a compliment- [illegible] keep the color of the [illegible] hide and seek [illegible]ent.

[illegible] quite two [illegible] metropolis, [illegible]en of the native [illegible] happiest; and [illegible] pretty smiles of [illegible] at his expense during that [illegible] But all of that was [illegible], for he was fasci-

[illegible] maid would not tell [illegible] and the American [illegible] to find that out for [illegible] was of such an easy [illegible] some time before he [illegible]overed her at home. Her [illegible]hop man; and among [illegible] had a great garden [illegible]ions, from which the Americans and Europeans, [illegible]

Bradam found her one day, [illegible] reared among the [illegible] like one of them; [illegible] he called her his [illegible]

[illegible] Bradam kissed her. It [illegible] which surround- [illegible]s garden, and a sensa- [illegible]ion of having [illegible] special fruit which [illegible] in his mouth with intox- [illegible]hat. But half under- [illegible]stood. She had un- [illegible]ve, and she [illegible] Bradam was pleading [illegible] his wife. But, [illegible] her with intense [illegible] was afraid.

But at this the girl shook her head with decision. "That can never be," she declared. "We must find some other way."

"We shall find a way," vowed Bradam. And, kissing her rapturously half a dozen times, he left her.

It required a week for Bradam to think it over, but he did it. Then he sought the little brown-eyed pearl of the Orient, as he liked to call her in his thoughts. The hedge had become their trysting place and when Bradam would creep along there and whistle a certain little air he had taught her to know, the girl would steal from the house to meet him.

It was with something like boyish glee that Bradam hurried along to the hedge that particular afternoon, and his whistle echoed shrilly from over the chrysanthemum beds. He waited a few moments; then, growing impatient, he was about to repeat the call, when some branches of the hedge parted, and the half frightened, half-smiling face of his sweetheart appeared. In a moment Bradam held her tightly in his arms.

"Everything that is contained here," he explained.

"Ssh," she whispered, as his lips parted to speak, "you whistled so loudly you almost frightened me from coming."

"Ah, my little Marigold, it was my happiness. You see, I have found a way."

The dreamy eyes of the girl looked their mingled admiration and joy

"You know, I call you my Marigold," he continued; and then he whispered the rest of it, with his lips close against her cheek.

She smiled and allowed her eyelids to veil her brown eyes for a momentary dream. Then she slipped from Bradam's arms and, running to a certain bed of chrysanthemums—they were Grandifloras—which he had pointed out to her, suddenly disappeared among them so completely, that not a tell-tale ripple appeared on the gaudy surface of the bed of blooms. Bradam now boldly entered the yard and called the florist.

"I wish to make a purchase of chrysanthemums," he said, coming to the point at once, after having led the old man into the yard. The owner of the flowers immediately became an eager tradesman. But he soon found that he was no more an eager seller than his customer was an eager buyer.

"It is this bed of Grandifloras," said Bradam, "the entire cluster that I want—everything that is contained here," he explained, pointing out the boundaries of the bed.

"You shall have all," declared Tenno; and he named a price.

Bradam drew from his pocket a purse and immediately paid over the sum asked.

"Now, it is understood," he said, "that everything which is contained in the cluster is mine?"

"Indeed, yes, you have paid," was the answer which came cheerfully, for the old man was delighted with the price.

At the conclusion of the transaction, the little brown-eyed daughter of old Tenno, taking her cue, arose from among the Grandifloras and ran to Bradam's arms.

For a moment Tenno stood aghast at the turn of the trade, but presently smiled his appreciation of the American's shrewdness; and, taking the two by the hands, led them into the house.

When Bradam, a little later, made a tour of Europe and America, his little bride from the Orient won loads of admiration everywhere.

Bradam found her one day.

"[illegible] my father, my father will nev- [illegible]ser," she whispered. "You [illegible] isn't allowed, I think." And [illegible] her head sadly.

"[illegible] he must consent, my little [illegible] he must, he must," declared [illegible] vehemently.

[illegible] girl shook her head again. "[illegible] will not?" And she looked [illegible] Bradam's eyes doubtfully.

"[illegible] we must run away," said [illegible]dam with determination.

GAMBLING IN FORMER DAYS.

High Play an Important Feature of English Society Life.

We hear a good deal of gaming in hares and other ways by society women to-day, says the Liverpool Post. In former days many titled women not only gambled, but kept gambling hells. In 1745 the Baroness Mordington, who kept one of these establishments in the great Piazza, Covent Garden, appealed to the House of Lords on the plea of her peerage to protect her from the intrusion of the law officers. Happily the Lords decided that no person is entitled to privilege of peerage against any prosecution for keeping a gaming house. Perhaps the most notorious gamestress, however, was the Countess of Buckinghamshire, who, in 1797, was fined £50 for gaming, while the man who kept the faro table for her was fined £200.

An extraordinary series of thefts were perpetrated at the house of the distinguished culprit, and the ruin of many men was traceable to her establishment. Among the notable names which occur in the list of gamblers of the old days there comes at once to mind those of Lords Halifax, Anglesey and Shaftsbury. It was of this trio that Locke tells the story of his sitting by and writing down the expletives they uttered as they sat at play. Being questioned as to his occupation, he replied to Lord Anglesey: "My lord, I am anxious not to lose anything you utter"—an irony which made the three ashamed and put an end to their gaming.—Exchange.

He Was Too Previous.

Bishop Ellison Capers of South Carolina recently addressed a meeting of confederate veterans in Columbia.

In the couse of his address Bishop Capers spoke of those men who deceive their wives, pretending that they are detained late at their offices on business, when really they are spending the evening at their offices or the club.

"These men," he said, "are fewer than the comic writers of the press would have us believe, but nevertheless, here and there, they do exist. I wish that they could all be caught as nicely as one of them, a resident of Columbia, was caught the other day.

"He said to his wife as he was leaving home in the morning:

"'Oh, by the way, my dear, if I find I canont get away from the works in time for dinner to night I'll send you a note by a messenger.'

"The wife in a tart tone replied:

"'You needn't bother. I have already found the note in your coat pocket.'"

A Fable.

There was trouble among the stars,
For Neptune and Saturn and Mars
In a vast dispute were involved,
And the question that was to be solved
Was which in the path in the sky
Should lead the procession on high?
Then intervened the remainder of them,
From the moon with her radiance dim,
To the smallest whose gleam you may trace
In the limitless bosom of space.

At length the dispute was declared
At an end, and the judgment was shared
And subscribed by them all. And they said
"We have all agreed to be led
By Saturn, and then shall come Mars
In the stately procession of stars."

When they tried to fall into line
A hitch that they could not divine Interposed. But never one saw
They were held in their place by a law
That could not be broken, although
They decreed that it should not be so.

We may argue and make smooth our plan
In all of the blindness of man;
Our Babels may build undismayed,
But the Immaculate Finger is laid
On it all! Though in purple we frame
Edicts and decrees in our name,
Yet still like the stars and the sun
In the orbit of nature we run;
For a churl will continue a churl
And a genius of heart and of brain
In a garret an emperor will reign!
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Decollete Not in Their Line.

An amusing story is told of the queen of Holland and the Misses Kuyper, daughters of the prime minister. It was the first court ball of the season and the Misses Kuyper were invited. They had never been to such a function before and at once the difficulty of dress arose; low-necked dresses, of course, must be worn, and the ladies did not consider the wearing of such dresses was consistent with their religious principles. They applied for a dispensation, but the mistress of the ceremonies replied curtly to the effect that there seemed to be no valid reason for any departure from the time-honored custom of the Dutch court. Then Dr. Kuyper made a direct appeal to the queen, when a compromise was effected. It ended by the ladies staying away from the ball, but taking tea with their young sovereign the same afternoon, when their high-necked dresses were, of course, the correct thing.

Brief, and to the Point.

Ex-Gov. Levi P. Morton was discussing with a friend the other day the proper form of acceptance to invitations for receptions. He recommended the form adopted by a Mr. McCarthy, a gentleman living in the interior part of the state, who received an invitation to attend a reception at Albany from Gov. Morton. Mr. McCarthy's reply was, "Yours received. I'll be there."—New York Times.

Applejack in Abundance.

Fully 1,000,000 gallons of applejack were distilled last year in northern New Jersey. The low prices prevailing for apples makes this method of disposing of the fruit more profitable to the owners of orchards.

ACTOR TOLD UNKIND TRUTH.

Cruel Speech That Brought Actress to Earth With a Jerk.

May Irwin is a round personage of middle years and more than middle weight; to look at her would not make one think of willows or slimly bending pines. She is, withal, of a frugal genius, and economical to a degree that would evoke plaudits from Hetty Green or Russell Sage. She told me this herself.

It was when she came from her dressing room ready to go on for the second act; I chanced to be on the stage. Miss Irwin was gorgeous in a red dress—arterial red. She swung around with the remark:

"Do you see this dress? Cost $180—and I hate parting with money. The first night I had it on Jim Ford spoiled it."

Thereat I expressed surprise and sympathy.

"It was like this," she observed. "I donned this dress, red being my weakness; I thought I'd never looked so well. Of course, I'm fat; but still I felt that for once I was beautiful. Jim Ford was back of the scenes; I confided to him that I expected to make the hit of my life. I pirouetted, even if I am the size of a load of hay.

"'Don't I look like a peach?' I asked.

"'No,' said Ford, 'you don't—you look like a tomato.'"—A. H. Lewis in Saturday Evening Post.

Man Who Did Too Well.

"A man may sell too much of the article which he is displaying to his customers, and I know of a case in point which happened to a friend of mine," said Hite Bowman.

"My friend had a fine place offered him with an organ factory, and he accepted it, the salary being up in the four figures. He went out, and to his first customer sold the entire output of the plant. The customer agreed to take all that the factory could make. Having nothing more to sell, my friend returned to the house well pleased with his success, and for several days sat around smoking good cigars, while the firm patted him on the back. One day he came in and the boss called him over, saying in this fashion:

"'I will have to give you the usual thirty days' notice. You have done so well that we have no further use for you or any traveling man. We are sorry to lose you, but you sold too much at the first crack.'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Manicured Newsboys.

The nails of nearly every newsboy on Park row were neatly trimmed and clean at least one day last week, a phenomenon many noted with surprise.

A vender with a patent manicuring tool, clippers, file and pick, three in one, and one for three cents, took up his stand on the surb. He demonstrated the ease with which the tool could be handled on the first newsboy who came along. The boy marched down the row, showing off his hands proudly.

"I've been manicured," he declared.

"Did it hurt?" "Was she a blond beaut?" "How much, Snickers?" were some of the questions.

"Naw, it didn't hurt, an' she ain't a blonde, an' it didn't cost nothing," he answered.

They made a 5 cent pool as the price of the secret, and the newsboys' manicuring shop, the first in history, was soon in operation.—New York Tribune.

Ask Me No More.

Ask me no more; the moon may draw the sea;
The cloud may stoop from heaven and take the shape,
With fold to fold, of mountain or of cape,
But, oh, too fond, when have I answered thee?
Ask me no more.

Ask me no more; what answer should I give?
I love not hollow cheek or faded eye;
Yet, O my friend, I will not have thee die!
Ask me no more, lest I shall bid thee live;
Ask me no more.

Ask me no more; thy fate and mine are sealed,
I strove against the stream, and all in vain,
Let the great river take me to the main.
No more, dear love, for at a touch I yield;
Ask me no more.
—Alfred Tennyson.

A Few Instances.

"Has it ever happened in your professional experience that an innocent man was sent to prison?" was asked of a Boston criminal lawyer.

"It has," was the prompt reply. "I was just figuring on that yesterday. Of the 400 criminal cases I have defended about fifty of my clients were convicted and sent up."

"And they were innocent?"

"They must have been. When I have appealed a case to the last court, wept while addressing the jury, talked of the man's dear old mother and as good as proved an alibi in his case, the jury must have rendered a verdict of guilty simply through ignorance or stupidity."

Getting Things Mixed.

When Walter Williams, from Columbus, Miss., was in Spain a year ago he called upon a provincial editor in the interest of the St. Louis exposition. The next day the paper had the following: "Walter Williams of the United States purchased the state of Louisiana, and next year will give a celebration, to which he has invited his fellow-journalists of Europe." Mr. Williams again called upon the editor and thoroughly explained matters. The editor apologized and printed this correction: "Gov. Francis of Missouri has purchased a large tract of land in the great American desert, and Walter Williams is here to invite the journalists of Spain to a show which the governor will give."

Saved Money for Client

"Our cleverest work," said the old lawyer reminiscently, "is not always done in court."

"No?" said the young man inquiringly, according to the New York Press. "Possibly you could give an illustration."

"Undoubtedly I could," replied the old lawyer. "In fact, I was thinking of the case of an irascible old fellow who once kicked a servitor out of the house. I believe there was a difference of opinion as to the amount of wages the man was entitled to. At any rate, the testy old gentleman put himself in the wrong when he ejected the man with the violence of both language and action and the man was smart enough to know it.

"He hunted up a lawyer immediately and put the case in his hands and then I was called in. The wrathy old fellow was mad clear through and he was going to fight the case all the way up to the highest court and back again if necessary. He was a personal friend of mine, and I didn't want to see him waste his money foolishly, so I advised him to compromise it.

"'Not if he offers to compromise for ten cents,' he asserted vociferously. 'I'll fight this case clear to the limit no matter what it costs.'

"I argued with him, but it was no use. He'd pay me anything I wanted to fight the case, but he wouldn't pay the plaintiff a cent. I would have been satisfied under the circumstances in going ahead and letting him run into a lot of expensive and useless litigation, but I didn't like to do it. So I went to see the laweyr on the other side. He knew he had a good case, but he also knew my client had lots of money and could make a prolonged and costly fight. Consequently he was inclined to be reasonable. He hunted up his client and talked it over with him and the client said he would compromise for $25. His lawyer made a reasonable charge and I closed with them on the spot and paid them.

"Then I went back to my client, told him I had put up such a bluff that he never would hear of the case again, turned in a bill that covered the cost of the settlement I had effected and he paid it without a murmur. He sometimes speaks to me now of the clever work I did in that case, but he doesn't know how clever it really was and what a lot of cash it saved him."

Booth Had Narrow Escape

There is a reminiscence of Otis Skinner's association with Edwin Booth that will bear repetition, having not been repeated for several seasons. It concerns an accident that came near resulting in the serious injury of Mr. Booth, and Mr. Skinner declares it to be the most dramatic moment in all his footlight career.

"It was in the fall of 1889, and I was playing the 'leads' with Edwin Booth and Mme. Helena Modjeska," relates the actor. "We were playing 'Macbeth,' Mr. Booth impersonating the King and I Macduff. You remember the scene in the last act, where Macduff rushes on, crying to the king, 'Turn, hell hound, turn!' and forces him to the combat. The great tragedian had been growing weaker and weaker that season, and, although an accomplished swordsman, had little strength in his guard. In the nervousness of the first performance I rushed on, crying the lines, and brought my blade down with a crashing blow square at his head. He held up his sword, but as the two weapons struck mine broke through his guard and struck him with stunning force on the head. Had he not worn a very heavy wig and about his head a circlet of iron, the blow would certainly have killed him on the spot before my terrified gaze. As it was, he was stunned for a moment, and after the act, when he took off his wig and heavy crown, there was a tremendous bump on his forehead where my sword had struck.

"It makes my blood run chill even now at the very thought of my emotions at that intensely dramatic moment, when the play ceased to be a mimic thing for me and real death stared me in the face. The weapons, by the way, both of them are now in my possession. They are heavy combat swords and I have never dared to use them since in any of my stage duels but I still treasure them as souvenirs of one of the most thrilling events in my stage life."

Solace of the Christian

Hope on, hope ever. Though dead leaves are lying
In mournful clusters 'neath your wandering feet;
Though wintry winds through naked boughs are sighing
The flowers are dead; yet is the memory sweet
Of summer winds and countless roses glowing
'Neath the warm kisses of the generous sun.
Hope on, hope ever. Why should tears be flowing?
In every season is some victory won.

Hope on, hope ever. Though you deck loved tresses
With trembling fingers for the silent grave;
Though cold the cheek beneath your fond caresses,
Look up, true Christian soul; be calm, be brave!
Hope on, hope ever. Though your hearts be breaking,
Let flowers of Resignation wreathe your cross,
Deep in your heart some heavenly wisdom waking,
For mortal life is full of change and loss.

Hope on, hope ever, for long-vanished faces
Watch for your coming on the golden shore.
E'n while you whisper in their vacant places
The blessed words, "Not lost, but gone before!"
Hope on, hope ever. Let your hearts keep singing,
When low you bend above the churchyard sod,
And fervent prayers your chastened thoughts are winging,
Through sighs and tears, to the bright throne of God!

Hope on, hope ever. Let not toil or sorrow
Still the sweet music of Hope's heavenly voice,
From every dawn some ray of comfort borrow,
That in the evening you may still rejoice.
Hope on, hope ever—words beyond comparing,
Dear to the hearts that nameless woes have risen;
To all that mourn, sweet consolation bearing,
Oh, may they prove the Christian's guide to heaven!

Willing to Swap Records

A man with a wild look of hope in his eye entered a West Baltimore street phonograph establishment, says the Baltimore American.

Stepping up to a salesman, he said:

"I've got one I'll trade to anybody on sight or unseen. So trot out any of 'em and I'll swap mighty quick and glad of the chance."

"One what?" asked the mystified salesman.

The visitor put his hand to his ear and looked puzzled, proving that his hearing was slightly defective. Being not quite sure that the salesman had spoken, the visitor went on:

"Yep, mine isn't a very good one, I'll admit, but it might suit some man with a tougher conscience than mine. Some fellow who has a longer life ahead of him in which to live it down might get along very well with mine, while I'm willing to take his and ask no questions."

Still more profoundly beaddled, the salesman called the proprietor and said:

"Here's one that's nutty for keeps. I'm away off from understanding what he's driving at. Come and take a whirl at him and see if you can get next."

The proprietor came forward briskly and said, with his lips close to the stranger's ear:

"What is it you want?"

"Why," said the stranger, "I want to patronize your place of business. I saw a sign out there on the window, 'Records Exchanged,' and I was telling your clerk I had an unenviable record that I would be willing to get rid of at any terms."

And the proprietor of the phonographery went out and changed the sign.

Traits of the Japanese

In "More Queer Things About Japan" Douglas Sladen says: "Perhaps one of the severest of etiquettes in Japan is that of smiles. When you have lived in that land of smiles you will learn in time that when you can understand a Japanese smile you may hope to understand the people. A daughter-in-law must always present a smiling face to her mother-in-law; the servant must smile when his mistress dismisses him. But the news of a death must be told with laughter. Laughter is reserved for very special occasions and has no relation to joy; smiles are used on every occasion to conceal real feelings; they are not always significant of pleasure.

"No wants has the Japanese," the same writer continues. "He can live in his clothes without a tent; he can live on rice or offal of the sea; and he is so accustomed to carrying heavy weights and running long distances that he can be his own commissariat and even his own horse. As England turned its foot soldiers into mounted infantry, so the Japanese can turn their riksha boys, of whom there are 50,000 in Tokyo alone, into unmounted cavalry. Their courage is wonderful. The Japanese does not fear death in any form."

If the Japanese are somewhat lax as regards their religion, they are at any rate believers in cleanliness. The writer says: "Personal cleanliness is a virtue which all Japanese servants possess. It is no unusual thing for a Japanese servant to apologize to a mistress for not having had time to bathe more than three times that day."

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

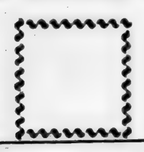
Several hundred subscribers will get this paper with a big red cross on it. It means that you owe us a dollar and we owe it to some other fellows. Some small fellow will make a big kick about this red cross and will stop his paper, and some clever fellows will come in and pay up like a white man always does, and tell us they had just forgotten all about it. tf

DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?



THORSBY.

We were up at Thorsby last Friday and found the town doing well. Not a vacant store or residence, we were told, in the place. Just look over the Business Directory published in this paper and it will give you an idea of the business transacted there. We have not got all the business interests represented yet, some of the manufacturing establishments not having been visited, but hope to have them all next week.

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

The first number of this magazine is now on our table. The book has an attractive cover and the contents—well, we quote the following array of subjects:

Politics by Hon. Thos. E. Watson: The Political Situation—An Open Letter to W. J. B.—To President Roosevelt—The Ship Subsidy—Hearst, the Myth Mr. Bryan's Race in Nebraska Let the Greenbacks Alone.

Serial: "The Heritage of Maxwell Fair," by Vincent Harper, a dramatic and exciting novel, begins in this number.

Novelette: "The House in the Jungle," by St. Clair Beall, a mysterious and alluring tale, ending in a most unexpected climax.

Poems by Edwin Markham, Ella Wheeler Wilcox and others.

Short Stories by Will N. Harben, H. B. Marriott-Watson, Robert Barr Chauncey C. Hotchkiss, Frank Savile and Walter E. Grogan.

Special Articles by Dr. John H Girdner, W. J. Ghent and Theodore Dreiser.

Other Contributors: Wallace Irwin, Tom P. Morgan and Alex Rickcetts.

128 pages of good reading to take home.

The Hon. Tom's article is worth more than the year's subscription amounts to. Even those who are opposed to the principles he advocates can not deny his very exceptional ability as writer and orator. Send us a dollar and fifty cents, and get THE UNION and the magazine for one year.

It seems to be the general opinion that the fall of Port Arthur will not by any means terminate the war between Russia and Japan.

A real estate broker made $50,000 while lying in bed. Then, we suppose he woke up.

LIBERTY HILL.

These nice sunny days have improved the health of our people, and farmers are working at their gardens and fields. The cotton association of this district met at the Littlejohn school house Saturday and elected three delegates to go to Clanton on the 16th, and we hope that every one will turn out on that day. Don't stay at home and say "there will be enough without me." Suppose every one would say that! We never would get out of the mire of low priced cotton. Elbert Littlejohn, who had taken a position at Prattville, returned home after 4 days' stay, said he was sick of that place on account of the water. Charlie Jones, of Lily, was in our settlement Sunday inquiring after a lost dog. Miner Littlejohn and Miss Riddle Price were married at the residence of the bride's father (Frank Price) on March 2d. I guessed well that time, so look out, Judge Reynolds, for another call soon, for A. M. is visiting his relatives again. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Atchley are visiting at J. M. Maddox's. J. C. Maddox and wife visited her father, J. J. Culp. Rev. Vickers and family visited J. W. Sorrell's Sunday. Noah Littlejohn has a new tenant, a Mr. Patton from near Maplesville. Success to the Union and its numerous readers.

"ONE AT HOME."

OUR POOR.

Editor Union:

I visited our poor farm last week and was very much pleased to find the inmates all pretty well in health and satisfied with their surroundings, and especially with their superintendent R. A. Miller, who has improved the place very much. He has lately built a nice new smoke house and has a fine garden for the old folks. The price of provisions is so high I don't see how Mr. Miller manages to do so well, for all the inmates say they have plenty to eat, and plenty to wear.

"JUST A VISITOR."

BETHANY.

The health of our community is fine at present, and the balmy, genial sunshine, with the singing of the birds, brings the happy thoughts of sweet spring to our minds. Rev. I. Bice filled his appointment here last Saturday and Sunday and had good congregations. L. B. Hnett was at Verbena Saturday and brought home a new wagon, a thing he needed badly. Peach trees are about ready to bloom. How pretty the blossoms will look if the cold does not nip them in the bud and beat us out of our "pie."

"SORGHUM."

ENERGY.

Well, I'm not dead, but I've been mighty sick and didn't care whether I lived or not. You see I've had the "grippe" and when that gets hold of a fellow he don't care much what becomes of him; anyhow, that was the way it acted on me. I felt about as bad as some of the defeated candidates looked after last election. But, now I am better, I think I'll go into Politics again. You see I was in Politics a few years ago and "Just a Voter" in alluding to "the gun" in his last letter brought to my memory a sad experience I had when I was in "Politics" (I suppose he meant the democratic gun, for I'm a democrat) and I wanted to be a magistrate, and my democratic friends told me I'd have to use the gun, so I loaded her up and shot one time, but that one time done me. I tell you, Mr. Editor, that gun is as dangerous as the very devil. You see she is easy on trigger and choke bore and is liable to go off any old way and shoots behind as hard, as she does in front, so I'll tell you now, Mr. Voter, it may do to "keep your eye on the gun," but it won't do to put your shoulder to the butt, for it will take years to get over the effects. Mr. Editor, I don't endorse everything Mr Edwards said in the banner, neither do I doubt the sincerity of our county board of education in trying to advance the cause of education; but when it comes to the pass that a man of Mr. Edwards' standing can't criticise the acts of our public officers for their mistakes without some little fellow saying "it's a shame," I think we're getting to a low ebb. If it is possible that there is any one man in Chilton trying to teach the children that comes from every conceivable class, it ought to be stopped. I see there is another brother that has decided it is wrong to graze his stock on his neighbors' woodland, and as he don't want the "bad man to get him," he is advocating stock law; stick a pin right here, brother. Well, "Just a Voter" reminded me when he said "some people was getting mighty thick at the court house." Dear reader, you know it has always been a custom to burn a tar barrel after election at the county seat. Some fellow always has one ready, and when he touches her off the Populists, Republicans and Democrats all come out by the light and spread their coat-tails (that are as clean as a politician's record) out, and sit down, and ask "how the folks is to hum," and some "pop" will walk up to a "dem" that he's been calling a thief for two years and say (in a tone that would make a hog weep) "you are the best feller this side of the pearly gates," and then the "dem" will take out his handkerchief and wipe his eyes, and'll say "you fellows never done a thing to us take a seat on my coat-tails." Right here, bud, is where the trouble begins. They've some kind of stuff they begin to drink. I don't know its name, but maybe I'll describe the effect it has on these fellows in my next letter.

Yours for office,

"RED HEADED BOY."

RANDOLPH.

This lovely spring weather makes everybody look cheerful. Rev. Mr. Harrison filled his regular appointment here Sunday. Dr. C. L. Wooley had an attack of vertigo Saturday. Rev. Mr. Connell, of Stanton is expected to preach at the Baptist church on the third Sunday. Mrs. J. T. Weeks is visiting her mother at Ashby. J. N. and O. P. Scott, of Mars Hill, were here Saturday. Rev. A. J. Lumpkin was in town Saturday. Mrs. Hardy Smitherman died last week after quite a long illness. Sunday evening a negro named Nix was knocked down by the north-bound mail just above the depot, but was not seriously hurt. Miss Pilgreen is visiting the family of Mr. Crim. J. W. Mahan went to Selma Monday.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

LOMAX.

La grippe has gone and spring is here and farmers are hustling for another crop. We haven't any small pox neither did a negro die here and lay 3 or 4 days before he was buried, as has been reported. School will close on the 27th. Our people are dissatisfied with the ruling of the county board, requiring schools to run continuously from beginning to end of term. Cotton association of district 40 met last Saturday and elected the following officers for the year: President, A. A. Jackson; Vice President Dock Rogers; Secretary and Treasurer, W. Q. Sanders. E. F. Taylor, A. E. Teel and T. J. Parker were elected delegates to the county meeting on the 16th. We have a paid up membership of 17 and will meet every first and third Saturday nights at 7 o'clock and urge all who live in district No. 40 to come out and let us educate ourselves upon the subject of other crops besides cotton. Come and meet with us It looks like old times around Lomax to see the boys coming in, and hear the buzz of the saw and the rattle of the lumber. Jackson and Robinson are doing a land office business in the merchandise line.

"OBSERVER."

Clanton, Ala., March 7, 1905.

Editor Union:

From the reports in to date on cotton acreage and use of commercial fertilizer in growing cotton, I find that there will be a reduction in cotton acreage of nearly 26 per cent and in use of commercial fertilizer of about 30 per cent from last year.

The above report includes those that did not join as well as those that did join in the districts heard from.

One district reports twenty persons who refuse to become members and who planted 332 acres to cotton and used 337 sacks of fertilizer in 1904, and intend to plant 214 acres to cotton and use 203 sacks fertilizer this year which is a good reduction.

Gentlemen, why don't you come in with us and help us in this movement? Surely it is not the fee that keeps you out. Remember that in union there is strength and that by all working together we can accomplish much good. Success to the Southern Cotton Association, the Union and its many readers.

J. N. DENNIS.

COUNTY COURT.

Regular session of the county court was held on Monday, Judge L. H. Reynolds presiding. Joel Fulmer, charge selling liquor; Jeff Durbin, charge trespass, and an additional charge of petit larceny, both waived to the grand jury. John C. Dennis, Enoch Wilson and Silas Watts, all charged with failure to work public road, were acquitted.

BEAT NINE ITEMS.

Fine spring weather and the farmers are putting it to good use. E. M. Pinkard and wife were in our vicinity Sunday. Wm. Weaver, of Stanton, visited relatives here last week. J. D Martin, of Cane Creek, visited relatives here Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Will Dennis paid a visit to Elmore county Saturday. Some of our people are opposing the special school tax. In my opinion we need better teachers for we are paying many of them more than they are worth, and if a special tax will give us our money's worth in the way of teachers, I say let her come. Several members of Cedar Grove church attended the quarterly conference at Thorsby Saturday and report a good meeting. Wishing THE UNION and all its readers prosperity, I'll ring off.

"NIM ROD."

NOTICE!

The next county meeting of the Southern Cotton Association will be held at Clanton, March 16, at 11 a. m. Each school district organization is entitled to 3 delegates; all districts should meet on March 4th and elect these delegates and attend to such other business as may come before them.

W. H. CONWAY,
tf County President.

The last survivor of the noble Six Hundred is dead—again.

Three Children Dead From Burns.

Gadsden, Ala.—Three of the little children of John Gray, the miner, who were so fearfully burned Wednesday in the powder explosion near their home on the mountain, have died from the effects of their wounds, after suffering great agony from the burns. George, Ernest and Ella were the ones who are dead, while another is yet lingering and suffering fearfully.

Clarence, the one still living, and who is only 11 years old, ordered all the others to lie down on the ground and roll over in an effort to put out the flames, while he himself ran to a small branch near by and waded in. He then went at least a mile after help for the children after he had seen to it that the flames were extinguished.

Breaks Jail.

Fayette, Ala.—J. W. Nix, who has been confined in the county jail for the past two months on the charge of raising bills of money, made a bold dash for liberty Sunday morning. Jailer A. J. Renfro carried breakfast to Nix as usual, and when he unlocked the cage door Nix slammed it around against him and made his escape, as the outer door was unlocked. City Marshal Bobo was not far away and heard the cry for help. He responded at once, and when he saw the fleeing prisoner he secured a horse and gave chase. Quite a number of citizens joined in, and there was a very lively race for nearly a mile, when Nix was overtaken and brought back and placed again behind the bars.

Rutherford Dies.

Montgomery, Ala.—Morris L. Rutherford, a boilermaker, who was shot and fatally wounded at a dance in West End, a suburb of Montgomery, late Saturday night, died early Sunday morning.

J. D. Glass and George Glass, brothers, and Frank Bedsole, popular young white men of the suburb, are held for the shooting. J. D. Glass admits he killed Rutherford, but Rutherford in his ante mortem state declared Geo. Glass shot him. Three young daughters of Rutherford were participating in the dance at a residence. The young men were cursing outside the house and Rutherford remonstrated with them when the fight ensued with fatal results.

Alabama Soldier Sentenced.

Florence, Ala.—Homer H. Abernathy, a Florence boy who enlisted in the regular army several years ago, has been sentenced to serve a term of three years in the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., for stabbing another private. The trouble occurred at Fort Snelling, Minn., where the regiment was stationed. The two men had been drinking until they became quarrelsome and a fight followed in which Abernathy stabbed his companion twice. At a general court martial he was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon and given the above sentence.

Comer President of R. R. Commission.

Montgomery, Ala.—B. B. Comer took his seat at 11 o'clock Monday morning as president of the Alabama railway commission. In the beginning he said that the recent election had placed the commission on a new basis; the people have decided that the railroads are not a "private snap" running through the land with unrestricted power to tax; also the commission must do its best for lower freight rates, better car service rules and prompt settlement of claims. These matters, he said, have heretofore been one-sided, in favor of the railroads.

Little Girl Drowns in Tub.

Gadsden, Ala.—The two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Carley was drowned at their home in Alfred addition to Alabama City late Saturday afternoon. The little girl had been playing around a tub of water when she fell in head foremost, and was unable to get out or even to cry out to attract the attention of her mother.

When the child was missed and a search made she was found dead standing on her head in the tub of water. The mother is almost on the point of losing her mind over the tragic death of her baby.

Will Build Children's Ward.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The board of directors of the Knoxville general hospital, at its regular meeting, gave permission to the woman's hospital board to build a children's ward at the hospital. Bauman Bros. will prepare the plans and steps will be taken at once to complete the ward.

Dormitory Burns; Cigarette Did It.

New Haven, Conn.—The "High Wall," one of the finest private dormitories for Yale students, was damaged $10,000 by fire Saturday. The fire is supposed to have started from a cigarette stub.

Steamboat's Fire Loss.

New Orleans, La.—The steamboat Colombia was badly damaged by fire Friday evening. The vessel, almost fully loaded, was lying at the wharf when the fire started and seemed to come from the hold. The upper works of the steamer soon collapsed. The cargo consisted of 1,182 bales of cotton and miscellaneous freight. Loss of boat and cargo estimated at $50,000. Well insured.

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.5

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weely, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the n of the national campaign, and all the news of all the you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases a Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bran

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabam

DISPATCH PRINTING CO

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Price

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

An Expert's Views On Checks For Horses

By J. S. Bristol.

AS to the check rein for horses, I will give you my opi based on an experience of about twenty years as an eq dentist; also as a humane agent.

First, there are very few horses that will attend to work without a check of some sort to remind them that are out for business when being used; and if they are ambitious, and take a hold of the driving bit, they will their heads and choke themselves by so doing. Accordi we must check them up in some way, and the only c that will throw their nose out and give free passage for the air is an overd or top check.

If the horse doesn't bear on the driving bit and needs but a gentle rem er, the side check adjusted so as to bear gently against the first upper mo is quite humane. If drawn too tightly, however, it will cause the horse to fer by drawing the cheeks between the molars and causing them to become erated, unless the teeth are in the best possible shape. But the driving bit with the side check usually is so much more brutal that the horse will fo the lesser trouble for the greater.

Now, the top or overdraw check is generally used with a plain humane so that it is obvious that if the horse was suffering from the effects of overdraw it would be a difficult matter to attract his attention to the dri bit, which must be done in order to guide him, particularly at speed.

Then, again, there are a great many horses being used that would be less without checks. Some would only stumble, while others would their heads, kick up and run away, some just for fun and some because are so much like some men, mean and vicious.

Now, if one cares to find out which is the more humane, let him check of his horses to a natural head with the side and the other with an overd and he will find that the one with the overdraw can hold his head anyway straight out and the check will be loose. I have seen a horse many times ing grass while being checked with an overdraw. He will find that with a check there is no position the horse can change his head or neck that wi lieve him.

CITY OFFICIALS.

—Judson Strock.
ell—W. M. Wilson E. G. Rol
. L. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
—J. Watts Moore.
hal—Ed Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

g Term—Third Monday in Mar
Term—Fourth Monday in No

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee
itor—W. B. Bowdon, Dadevi
—Sam W. Collins

Chancery Court.

g Term—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep

cellor—Hon W. W. Wil
ister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

nd Monday February, first Mon April, first Monday June, second July, second Monday August Monday November.

County Officers.

ge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
asurer—W. T. Callen.
iff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
District—R. P. Kendrick.
th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

f. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

ers and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard their churches which they would published. Also if there are any s in these notices please send cor ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore; 3rd E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings. F. D. No. 1.

nut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, nday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

rty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman nday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

donia—Rev. G. W. Freeman nday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

ar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd y. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Primitive Baptists.

—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; before the second Sunday; J. rnathy, clerk, Verbena.

y Mount M. E. Church—Rev Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song every 2nd and 4th Sunday af Prayer meeting every Wed night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

on R. A. Chapter, No. 116— Saturday, Clanton.

e Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. rth Saturday, Cooper.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No t Saturday, Clanton.

y Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. t Saturday, Billingsley.

an Lodge, A. F. and A. M., —Saturday on or before full Marbury.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. urday on or before full moon, Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. sday on or before full moon,

I. O. O. F.

n Lodge—First and third Sat

Lodge, No. 304— Second and turdays.

oodmen of the World.

ack Camp, No. 190—First and days.

R. M.

mo Tribe, No. 90—First and days sleep. Visiting chiefs invited. E. B. Langston, C. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Lodge, of Thorsby—Second Saturdays.

CLANT
Total
Price LOVE

1. M
Hart
Sat
Mrs. W died Sund ten days
A. C. M in Clanton ers' ad at Madison
P. J. M for North a position
J. P. R of Emery day.
Rev A appointme
Sunday out a goo
'Squire was in Judge
Tuesda
'Squire was in Elder
at N. G. of asses
MA
J. M ritta Pre
Mary L
Mrs. M has open Thorsby
millinery y county very re
Joseph & for five tress of her a ca her taste achieve it.
Th
Jones'
give two Clanton
free stre noon and will take return of ly and see high clas mended the low r well patro Thorsby o
NEW
A. C. M smith sho where he of work in tf
The Sw about to a forms.

Combination Offe

urnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the Globe-Democra

WITH

he Union

FOR

pers One Year Only $1.5

obe-Democrat is issued Semi-Wee ore, every Tuesday and Friday. It s and has no equal or rival as odern Newspaper.
news of the World's Fair, all the ne
gn, and all the news of all the cart obe-Democrat during the coming ye
IS THE TIME.
Day and get your best home paper a aper of the World's Fair City, bo ss
n, Clanton, Ala.

Jacobs & Bros.,
ture and Rugs.
SOLE AGENTS—
Elastic Book Cases an ling Cabinets.
asking.
RMINGHAM, ALA

MERCHANDISE AN RTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
ial & Mule Brand
e Best on Earth"
. JONES,
Alabam

PRINTING CO.
akers and Lithographers.
ffice Supplies a Specialty.

BIRMINGHAM, AL

s Restaurant,
at Reasonable Price
North 20th Street,
GHAM, ALABAMA.

xpert's Views
cks For Horses

By J. S. Bristol.

ck rein for horses. I will give you my opin experience of about twenty years as an equ
as a humane agent.
here are very few horses that will attend to th a check of some sort to remind them that t ssness when being used; and if they are v and take a hold of the driving bit, they will lo and choke themselves by so doing. According k them up in some way, and the only ch and give free passage for the air is an overd ng bit and needs but a gentle rem rear gently against the first upper mol ly, however, it will cause the horse to ween the molars and causing them to become the best possible shape. But the driving bit u much more brutal that the horse will for ver.
ock is generally used with a plain humane horse was suffering from the effects of matter to attract his attention to the dri der to guide him, particularly at speed.
reat many horses being used that would be a would only stumble, while others would away, some just for fun and some because t mean and vicious.
out which is the more humane, let him check d with the side and the other with an overdr with the overdraw can hold his head anyway ll be loose. I have seen a horse many times with an overdraw. He will find that with a e horse can change his head or neck that will

CITY OFFICIALS.

or—Judson Strock.
ncil—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rol
W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts. k—J. [illegible] Moore.
ble—[illegible] mitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

ng Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No-
S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
t—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
k—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

ng Term—Second Monday in Term—Second Monday in Sep-
r. ncellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
ister—Miss S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

nd Monday February, first Mon-
first Monday June, second
July, second Monday August,
day November.

County Officers.

e of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
asurer—W. T. Callen.
iff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
d District—R. P. Kendrick.
th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

ors and clerks are cordially ask-end the editor any news regard-eir churches which they would ublished. Also if there are any n these notices please send cor-
.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings-
F. D. No. 1.

ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
d Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

mut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, nday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

ty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman
nday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

doula—Rev. G. W. Freeman
nday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
nday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

r Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
nday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Primitive Baptists.

Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
Before the second Sunday; J.
achby, clerk, Verbena.

Mount M. E. Church—Rev.
pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song
every 2nd and 4th Sunday af-
Prayer meeting every Wed-
night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

R. A. Chapter, No. 116—
Saturday, Clanton.

Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. rth Saturday, Cooper.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
st Saturday, Clanton.

y Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
st Saturday, Billingsley.

am Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Saturday on or before full
arbury.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
day on or before full moon,

r Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
day on or before full moon,

I. O. O. F.

Lodge—First and third Sat-

Lodge, No. 304—Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

ek's Camp, No. 190—First and ndays.

I. O. R. M.

rmo Tribe, No. 90—First and ndays sleep. Visiting chiefs invited. E. B. Langston, C.
H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Lodge, of Thorsby—Second
th Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Mch 8, '05, 6,336
Price on same date, 7 1-4c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,634
Price same date, 15c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

W. T. Vinzant was in Clanton on Thursday.

L. B. Pounds and son, Arthur, were in town Taursday.

I. H. and M. H. Headley visited here Thursday.

R. J. Williams was in Clanton on Taursday.

E. B. Culpepper and wife were in town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Littlejohn were visitors here Saturday.

F. E. Gronquist was in Clanton Saturday looking for two stray horses.

J. S. Jones was in town Saturday.

Clerk Sam W. Collins spent a couple of days at Thorsby last week.

W. L. House was in Clanton Saturday.

Lum Smith and wife have a girl baby at their home about a week old Dr. Hayes says mother and child are doing well.

T. P. Crowson was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

T. S. Martin and F. D. Cherry were in Clanton Saturday.

Elbert Bean was in town Saturday.

J. P. Barrett called on Saturday.

E. H. Devaughan, J. W. and J. C. Harris and W. C. Kelley were in Clanton Saturday.

Miss Ressie Harris is quite ill.

W. M. Price, of Riderville, was in Clanton Monday.

John Mims, No. 1, was a pleasant visitor Monday. There being so many Mims' of about the same initials, he's concluded to call himself John No. 1. It is a splendid idea, and if more would follow that plan it would prevent confusion of mail, etc.

Calvin Dennis was in Clanton Monday.

J. M. Grant was in town Monday.

Elder Andrew Pittman, of Indiana a noted Primitive Baptist minister, will be at Bethel church this coming Saturday and Sunday.

W. H. Wilkins died at his home, near Beth-Salem, February 23, aged 81 years, and was buried at Beth-Salem cemetery the next day. He had been ailing some time and died full of years and honor, having been the father of 17 children.

Mrs. J. H. Moore, Mrs. W. M. Moore and Mrs. Lizzie Wilkins are all on the sick list.

'Squire E. B. Popwell was in Clanton Monday. See his notice about his court day.

W. J. Watson was a visitor Monday and paid $1.50 for THE UNION, Weekly Advertiser and map.

Major Gibson, of Verbena, is very ill.

Mrs. W. T. Manning, of Verbena died Sunday. She had been sick about ten days.

A. C. Marcus and J. D. Bean were in Clanton Monday. Notice Mr. Marcus' ad about his new blacksmith shop at Madison Bean's.

P. J. Massey left Tuesday morning for North Birmingham, where he has a position with the railroad company.

J. P. Rushing and W. M. Wilson, of Energy, were pleasant visitors Tuesday.

Rev. A. C. Swindall filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Sunday. The fine weather brought out a good attendance.

'Squire John S. Dennis, of beat one, was in Clanton Tuesday.

Judge Reynolds visited Montgomery Tuesday.

'Squire Jasper N. Dennis, of beat 10 was in town Tuesday.

Elder Pittman, of Indiana, preached at N. G. Ward's house last Sunday to a good assemblage.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. M. Littlejohn, Jr., and Miss Luritta Price. Samuel Scott and Miss Mary Lou Shaw.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results.

tf

THE COMING SHOW.

Jones' Model Plate R. R. Show will give two complete performances at Clanton Friday, March 10. A grand free street parade will be given at noon and a free outside exhibition will take place at show grounds at return of parade. Come to town early and see the whole show, which is high class and comes highly recommended by press and public, and at the low rate of admission should be well patronized. The show will be at Thorsby on Saturday, March 11th.

NEW BLACKSMITH SHOP.

A. C. Marcus has opened a blacksmith shop near Madison Bean's, where he is prepared to do the best of work in that line.

tf

The Swiss military authorities are about to adopt khaki for soldiers' uniforms.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM,

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises. Rev P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wffl.of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Elland

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO.
J. W. MOORE.
H. L. DAVIS.
W. O. PERRY.
tf Committee.

NOTICE.

Please take notice that the first Saturday in each month is my regular court day at Beth-Salem school house in beat 6

E. B. POPWELL,
tf Justice of the Peace Beat 6.

LOOK OUT!

It will soon be too late to plant trees. As a special inducement, I am selling peach trees in bunches of 20 or more at 5 cents each; plum trees in bunches of 10 at 7 1-2 cents each. Many good varieties are included in this offer. For a quantity I will take country produce of most any kind.

P. C. SMITH, Thorsby, Ala.

tf

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.

tf

Cheaper automobiles are promised. They are too cheap now, but not nearly so cheap as human life.

The man who is really the head of his house lives in bachelor's quarters, avows the Newport News Press.

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.

tf. T. M. Driver.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.

You will find a full line of

SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. | PAINTS OILS and GLASS.

We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.

CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

NOMINATIONS SENT TO SENATE.

Washington, March 6.—The president sent a large number of nominations to the senate today, including all the members of the present cabinet except Postmaster-General Wynne.

George B. Cortelyou was nominated for that office.

It was announced today that Secretary of the Treasury Shaw will retire from the cabinet in February, 1906.

Many Nominations.

The nominations include the names heretofore named as ambassadors and Senator Cockrell as interstate commerec commissioner. The nominations follow: John Hay, District of Columbia, secretary of state; Leslie M. Shaw, Iowa, secretary of the treasury; William H. Taft, Ohio, secretary of war; William H. Moody, Massachusetts, attorney-general; George B. Cortelyou, New York, postmaster-general; Paul Morton, Illinois, secretary of the navy; James Wilson, Iowa, secretary of agriculture; Victor H. Metcalf, California, secretary of commerce and labor.

Ambassadors Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary—Whitelaw Reid, New York, to Great Britain.

Robert S. McCormick, Illinois, to France.

George V. L. Meyer, Massachusetts, to Russia.

Edward H. Conger, Iowa, to Mexico.

Henry White, Rhode Island, to Italy.

Envoys.

Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary—William Woodville, Rockhill, District of Columbia, to China.

David J. Hill, New York, to the Netherlands.

Henry Lane Wilson, Washington, to Belgium.

William Miller Collier, New York, to Spain.

Brutus J. Clay, Kentucky, to Switzerland.

Thomas J. O'Brien, Michigan, to Denmark.

Charles H. Graves, Minnescta, to Sweden and Norway.

Edward C. O'Brien, New York, to Paraguay and Uruguay.

John B. Jackson, New Jersey, to Greece and Montenegro and diplomatic agent in Bulgaria.

John W. Riddle, Minnesota, to Roumania and Servia.

Samuel R. Gummere, New Jersey, to Morocco.

Cockrell Named.

Interstate commerce commissioner, Frances M. Cockrell, of Missouri.

Solicitor of the department of commerce and labor, Edward Walter Sims, of Illinois.

Consul Generals.

Stanley Stoner, Missouri, Calucutta, India; Henry B. Miller, Oregon, at Yokohama; J. Linn Rogers, Ohio, at Shanghai, China; George W. Roosevelt, Pennsylvania, at Brussels, Belgium.

Consuls.

Robert J. Thompson, Illinois, at Cienfuegos, Cuba; William W. Wedemeyer, Michigan, Georgetown De Marra, Guinea; Thomas H. Norton, Ohio, at Smyrna, Turkey; John W. O'Hara, Indiana, at Montevideo; Oscar Malmros, Minnesota, at Rouen, France; George L. Dodson, Iowa, at Nottingham, Eng.; Edwin N. Gunsalus, Ohio, at Cork, Ireland; John L. Griffith, Indiana, at Liverpool, Eng.; William R. Estes, Minnesota, at Selingen, Germany; Francis B. Keene, Wisconsin, at Milan, Italy.

Youthful Marriage.

Huntsville, Ala.—Martin King and Miss Annie Lemley, well-known young people of Merrimack Village, were married Thursday, having waited until the latter became old enough to be married. A license to marry was taken out some time ago, but the parents of the young lady would not allow the marriage to proceed on account of her youth. Miss Lemley became 14 years old a few days ago and the consent of her parents to the marriage was then obtained.

Race Riot Quelled in Mississippi.

Memphis, Tenn.—A special says that the threatened race riot Saturday night between a posse of white men and several negroes was quelled by the timely arrival of the sheriff of the county. Several shots were fired and a negro woman was slightly injured. All is now quiet.

Fire at Tuscaloosa.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—One of the biggest blazes Tuscaloosa has ever witnessed was the opera house, together with two large houses and some stables and outhouses on the corner of Sixth street and Twenty-second avenue, which were completely destroyed Saturday morning. The fire was first detected at about 3 o'clock in one of the dwellings and though the department worked faithfully the buildings were too close. The property was owned by Messrs. M. T. Ormond and H. H. Leland, who purchased it from P. F. Brady, of Mobile, only yesterday at a cost of $4,500. There was $2,800 insurance.

Montgomery, Ala.—Thomas Hines, a motorman for the Montgomery Street Railway, was badly mangled in being run over by his own car at 7:20 o'clock Monday morning. It may be necessary to amputate both legs. He was removed to St. Margaret's Hospital, where it is feared he may die.

The accident occurred at the head of Commerce street, at the head of the underpath. In an effort to adjust his car he was struck by the stone railing and dragged under the car.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

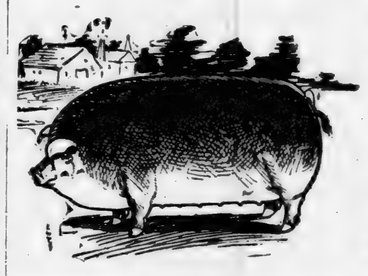
I. E. SARBER CO,
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eggs for 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices before you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

This My Life

I [illegible] keep me in the sun;
I [illegible] with the stars,
Nor will [illegible] not even the one
I [illegible] the shade.

I [illegible] by the mark;
I [illegible] 'twixt weed and
[illegible]
I do not [illegible] understand,
I take my lot.

The [illegible] is short at best,
I [illegible] what comes while I may;
I [illegible] the winds my breast,
[illegible] I seek the way.

A kind heart greets me here and there;
I hide from it my doubts and fears.
I wonder, and say the path is fair
Along the years.

John Vance Cheney in Independent.

THE CRUSHED MISS MITFORD

BY J. C. PLUMMER

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"My dears," said Mrs. Clark, looking up from a letter she had been reading, "Mollie Mitford is coming to pay us a visit. She will be here next week."

"But, Mamma," said Jane, with elongated visage, "Uncle Thomas will be here then."

"There's no danger," replied Mrs. Clark, placidly, "Mollie is crushed. She's not designing."

Jane shrugged her plump shoulders and Lydia turned up her pretty nose, but Mrs. Clark heeded not these manifestations of disagreement and went on with her breakfast.

It was Mrs. Clark's plain duty in life to prevent designing women forcibly marrying her brother-in-law. "He is not fitted for the matrimonial state," she would say to friends and when Captain Bascom spent his time at her seaside cottage, as he always did between voyages, he was carefully guarded against feminine attack. A regiment of sister-in-law and nieces shielded him from even a glance from the fair sex, and while he honored the cottage with his presence it was "Keep hands off" to all unmarried ladies. They never crossed the threshold of the Clark residence.

Cousin Bascom liked his sister-in-law and his nieces and enjoyed his visits, though he was bored at times over the presence of ancient matrons who were occasionally invited to tea. He sometimes asked, plaintively, if there were no well favored young women in Pugsford, but as he never received a satisfactory answer he doubtless reasoned that well favored young women were not indigenous to Pugsford and that those whom he occasionally saw on the street were strangers.

Captain Bascom had two thousand pounds invested in consols. Of a verity this sum would come to the two Miss Clarks on the captain's death, provided—but then, Mrs. Clark was resolved there should be no "provided" if she could help it. Hence marriageable and well favored spinsters were rigidly excluded from the Clark invitation list during the captain's stay.

With Miss Mitford it was different. She was not by any means bad looking nor unattractive, but she was crushed. Years before she had been engaged to be married and on the wedding day the groom had disappeared as if the earth had swallowed him. It was entirely proper that Miss Mitford should be crushed, and crushed she was. Young girls viewed her with intense interest as having a halo of romance around her head and spinsters while averring that it served her right for putting any sort of trust in man admitted that she was most becoming ly crushed in her manner.

It was an odd coincidence that Miss Mitford and Captain Bascom should [illegible] from London in the same [illegible] Mrs. Clark gave little [illegible] "my dear." She did, however, note a change in Miss Mitford's manner. There was a faint gleam of hopefulness about her which puzzled Mrs Clark. Miss Mitford had long ago forsworn man, and it was scarcely possible that she had become interested in someone. That something had happened, Mrs. Clark felt sure, and she resolved to watch closely for developments. The captain was as of yore. He shook the house with his roars of laughter and joked with his nieces. He drank with gusto the bowl of punch which Mrs. Clark, with prayers for forgiveness, mixed with her own hands. Mrs. Clark went to bed relieved. Evidently Miss Mitford's change of manner did not result from anything the captain had said to her in the railway carriage.

"There's no danger," replied Mrs. Clark, placidly, "Mollie's crushed."

In the morning the development came. Mrs. Clark beheld Captain Bascom and Miss Mitford talking earnestly in the parlor and Miss Mitford was wiping tears from her eyes. A conference was held. Again were Jane's plump shoulders shrugged and again Lydia's pretty nose upturned. The fiat was pronounced. Miss Mitford was to go. In the evening Jane came breathlessly upstairs. She was passing the parlor and had overheard the captain say to Miss Mitford, "Say yes, my dear." That was all, but it was enough and Mrs. Clark felt that the whole edifice she had so carefully built about those two thousand pounds was toppling to the ground.

Was wiping tears from her eyes.

Miss Mitford left early the next morning. What Mrs. Clark said to her man knoweth not, but a woman can get rid of a woman when she so desires in a way that is not chronicled. Mrs. Clark saw her go and drew a breath of relief.

But the house Mrs. Clark had builded about those two thousand pounds rested on the sand. That evening Captain Bascom announced that he was going to London the next morning.

"When he goes, I'll go, too," said Mrs. Clark; there was fight in Mrs. Clark.

Captain Pascom took the 9 a. m. train for London. Mrs. Clark took the 10 a. m. train, and on her arrival in London was driven directly to the docks, where lay the captain's steamer.

"You've just missed 'im," said the eagle, in answer to her enquiry for the captain. "'E's took a cab and gone without a half hour ago."

He, however, remembered the address given by the captain to the cabdriver, and Mrs. Clark re-entered her cab.

"He's taken lodging in Southwark, my dears," she said, with set face. "He wants to be near that designing baggage. I'll break up her game."

It was an unpretentious house in Southwark at which the cab stopped, and Mrs. Clark, finding the captain was within, entered.

"'E's hupstairs," said the girl who opened the door. "You can walk hup."

Plainly there was a woman's voice coming from the room which was designated as containing the captain, and Mrs. Clark shuddered and glanced at her daughters. It was too late, for the captain himself opened the door and beckoned them in.

Miss Mitford knelt by a bed and a thin, emaciated man held her hand.

"That's her lover," whispered the captain to Mrs. Clark, "the fellow who cut and run the day he was to marry her. It seems there was some money missing in a banking house where he was a clerk and they suspected him. His uncle, a proud old stick, made the loss good and told him to leave England. He went to Africa, up the Haut Congo, and saw nothing but niggers and malaria for ten years. Well, after he'd gone they found the robber but they never found the lover. He was among the niggers. He was brought down to London to die and I took him on my steamer so he could get a breath of God's air. He told me the whole story and when I met Miss Mitford in the railway carriage I remembered the name and I found out she was the woman. I managed to get her to come to see him and it's all right. His uncle's dead and left him his money so they can get married when he gets well."

Mrs. Clark walked over to Miss Mitford.

"Dearest Mollie," she said, "we will take him out to Pugsford. He'll get well quickly in that fresh air."

"She's a sweet woman," said Mrs. Clark as she and her daughters left the house. "There's nothing designing about Mollie."

HIS STEAK WAS READY.

Sarcasm of the Wife Not Wasted on the Delinquent Husband.

Sarcasm loses nothing by awaiting the psychological moment for its uaterance. Also it oftentimes is most fraught with the sharpness of a two-edged sword when it is contained in a simple statement of fact.

A husband given to periodical looks upon the cocktail when it contains a cherry, his glance at such times dwelling thereon for two or three successive days without interruption, arose one morning recently with a head out of all proportion to his hat measure, and a throat that felt like a limekiln. No explanation was needed when he told his wife he was going out for a moment to get rid of the olive green taste in his mouth; he would be back right away. All she said was: "Bring a steak home with you for breakfast."

He went to a cocktail dispensary and got his brace. As he was going out he met a friend, who told him he would feel better if he had another. He did feel better, so much better that he was prevailed on further to improve the state of his physical and mental being by a third diving after a cherry. He did not see his home for two days.

Again, one morning he awoke with iron hands pressing into his head and his tongue cleaving to the roof of his mouth. His wife heard him stirring and went to the door. "Your steak is ready," she said.

Revival of the Album.

The photograph album is about to be restored to popular favor. For the past ten years it has been relegated to the garret, while people have hung the pictures of relatives and friends in airy bits of wire known as the photograph holder, interjected into stray corners of bureaus or dressing tables and generally maltreated them and allowed them to be subjected to the dust and grime of the daily atmosphere.

The now general use of the camera has helped to restore the once passe picture album to its former dignified position on the parlor table.

The new photograph albums are different from those of the days of long ago. They are far more artistic and easy to handle. Sometimes they are made of fine leather, sometimes of soft kid, but at all events they are not so likely to jar upon artistic sensibilities as did the velvet and plush affairs which were once the pride and adornment of the parlor tables of all well-regulated households.

Raconteur.

When Uncle Jabez makes a joke, it's mighty hard to tell
'Jes what a feller ought to do.
'Cause if you laugh 'fore he gets through
It riles him up a spell.
An' then a dreadful silence comes; it's minutes till it's broke.
Paw holds his breath
Skeered half to death,
When uncle makes a joke.

When ordinary people tell us riddles,
there is fun,
But when folks happen to be rich
It's hard to tell which thing is which That's proper to be done.
An' paw, he says, if Jabez overlooks us we'll be broke,
We must laugh right
And be polite
When uncle tells a joke.

An' so, in order not to take a chance, however small,
Paw has collected the whole lot
An' told 'em over till we've got
To know 'em one an' all.
An' now we laugh exactly when a certain word is spoke.
Maw no'dn't budge,
Paw no'dn't budge,
When uncle tells a joke.
—Washington Star.

Low Prices in Philadelphia.

An interesting and amusing instance of business acumen on the part of a German butcher in Philadelphia is furnished by a gentleman in that city.

"One day," says this gentleman, "I inquired of the butcher the price of sausage."

"'Sausage iss sixteen cents a pound,' replied he, after a moment's hesitation: 'but to-day I haven't no sausage already.'

"Whereupon I asked why. If he had not the goods he should quote a price thereon."

"'Der question iss easy to answer,' replied he, without a suspicion of a smile. 'If I had some of dose sausage den der brice would be dwendy cents, yes. But I haf no sausage, no; so I makes der brice low. It gifes me a reduckshun und it costs me noddings.'"

Not Actuated by Generosity.

A precocious youngster of 5 years, living on the Park Slope, has a little sister, with whom he is compelled to divide his gifts, very much to his dislike. The little girl generally comes out at the small end of the horn, and therefore, when, one day recently, he was noticed eating the smaller of two apples that had been given to him, it excited the comment of his mother.

"How did you hapepn to give Elsie the big apple and keep the little one for yourself? Mamma is glad to see her little boy growing generous."

"There was a worm in the big one," nonchalantly replied Johnny.—Brooklyn Eagle.

QUEER TRAITS OF ANIMALS.

All Have Strong Fear of Some Brother Quadruped.

Smoking a clay pipe, the circus actor sat in the winter training quarters. Under his supervision a thin boy was learning to ride erect on a quiet horse with a broad, flat back.

"In some towns they won't let us show," said the man, "unless we have no camels with us. Camels are a serious drawback to shows. Horses are so much afraid of them that lots of towns won't let a camel enter their gates.

"A horse won't go near a piece of ground a camel has stood on. The very smell of a camel in the air will make a horse tremble and sweat. And this fear isn't only found occasionally in a horse here and there. It is found in every horse all over the world. Queer, isn't it? I often wonder why it is. Cattle hate dogs in the same way and cats hate dogs so, too. Here, though we can account for the hatred. Dogs, in primitive times, fed on calves, no doubt, and even today, here and there, they kill and feed on kittens.

"Horses love dogs. I'm sure I don't know why. Dogs fear no animals but pumas and leopards. You can take a dog up to a lion's or a tiger's cage and he will show no fear, but take him up to the cage of a puma or a leopard and he will tremble and moan and slink away out of sight.

"All very puzzling, isn't it?"

Japanese Love of Country.

There are many instances in Japan of soldiers who have loved their country more passionately even than their families. Americans may think it horrible and incredible, but Japanese women understand the intense feeling of loyalty which predominates above everything in soldiers' hearts. In the interior of Japan a young farmer on the outbreak of war was suddenly called to the colors. Two days' preparation was given him to settle his affairs and to start for Tokyo. His wife had a very young infant. The young mother was so overcome with grief at this unexpected news that she fainted away and within an hour died, leaving her husband alone with the newborn babe. What could he do with it? Who could care for such a mite? Feeling that his own life was forfeited to his country the poor man in a frenzy of passionate grief killed his own child. Of course the law had to step in and he had to be tried for murder. A merciful jury acquitted him on the ground of emotional insanity.

The Colden Legacy.

My mother has no gold to share,
Nor land, nor pearl, nor merchandise—
(My heather has her silken hair,
My sister has her azure eyes!)
To me she left no comeliness
That to the form or face belong,
But oh, one gift I do possess,
The blessed heritage of song!

Long, long ago in cradle days
Her sweet voice would my heart beguile,
When I could nothing do but gaze
Into the heaven of her smile!
I learned the songs in later years
And with her sang them o'er, and o'er—
Oh, memory, thy lute and tears
Must meet and mingle evermore!

'Twas "Hush, my babe"—as fades the light
I hear her softly, sweetly croon—
Then "Afton Water," "Stilly Night,"
"Sanctissima," and "Silver Moon";
She sang them with such tender art,
The art that only mothers know,
And tied the tunes around my heart,
Else it had broken long ago!
—Clarence Urmy in Lippincott's.

Money, but No Friends.

J. Arthur Josephs, one of the wits of the financial center, was approached the other day by a well-known character about "the street," who plaintively put to him this question:

"Josephs, would you lend five dollars to a friend in distress?"

"I would in a minute," responded Josephs, "but I haven't got——"

"Don't tell me that you haven't got it," interrupted the other. "I saw you change a ten dollar bill just now in Eberlin's."

"You did not permit me to finish my sentence," said Josephs deily. "What I started to say was that I haven't got a friend in the world."—New York Times.

His Awful Threat.

Representative Richardson of Tennessee tells of the financial straits of a man in that state who, saddled with a large and unproductive farm, was compelled to add to his slender resources by taking up the practice of law in Memphis.

During a tour of inspection the farmer-lawyer was one day making of his white elephant, he was maddened to the point of frenzy by chancing to run across several of his field hands calmly resting under a tree singing away for dear life.

"Here, you black rascals!" he shouted, shaking his fist at the culprits, "get back to work this instant! The first thing you darkeys know I'll quit the law and let you all starve!"

Taught Oyama to Shoot.

Twenty-five years ago Horace Fletcher taught Marquis Oyama how to shoot. Fletcher had published a pamphlet on how to shoot with a rifle and copies of it reached Japan. The author was in that country shortly afterward and was sent for by Marquis Oyama, then minister of war. Fletcher gave him lessons. He says that when Oyama first hit a moving object—a teacup thrown into the air—he "capered about and screamed in his delight like an excited schoolboy."

Island Disintegrates.

German experts are becoming alarmed at the rapidity with which the cherished island of Heligoland is disintegrating. The sea does some harm, but not nearly so much as rain, heat, frost and melting snow. An attempt is to be made to check the damage by means of pipes for catching the water.

THE LAKE SHORE DRIVE.

Night Watch on the North Shore of Chicago

A Memory of Boyhood.

Hard by our inland ocean,
Far from Chicago's roar,
You watch with keen emotion
The waves curl on the shore;
You see the white sails flying,
Soft as sweet summer sighing,
You hear the sea gulls crying
To drown the wild uproar.

No silvery stars to lighten
The gloom that cloaks the night,
No gracious moon to brighten
Or clothe with radiant light.
Wan, weary winds are waging
A whimpering war, and raging,
As if in strife assuaging
Their zest for strenuous fight.

Here every tree is shaken
With fitful gusts of rain.
Weird, wailing winds will waken,
To sigh and sob in pain
The water roars and hisses—
Foaming spray from foul abysses,
And stings like sterile kisses,
That scar the soul and stain.

In this tempestuous weather
No bird takes heart to sing,
But huddling close together,
They brood on jocund spring.
When the sun sheds azure showers
To revive fond frozen flowers,
To bloom in beauty's bowers,
Where rippling rhyme will ring.

The sea spray, fiercely splashing,
Drenches all the brooding air,
Big white caps—Titans crashing
Their kingly rapture share.
The black horizon's weirdly gleaming,
No refulgent moon is beaming,
The drowsy dawn sits dreaming—
Chaste vestal in her lair.

Here foam fringed waves are Like creeping things to die
While rude and tough and
The storm rules in the sky
The waves must first deliver Their full tribute as the
Which with delight will
And with despair will die

Big brooding clouds are drift
To choke blonde legend
As her ivory arms uplifting
Prays for life's gracious
Shy baby stars are peeping
Like rosy toddlers creeping,
Rubbing dewy eyes from sle
In balmy air of June.

The lightning rips asunder
The inky cloak of night,
While growls the jovial thunder
Exulting in his might.
And sulks in caves disdainful
As from the strife it frantic
As sick of stress and Afar in fierce delight.

I share the bodily rapture
That surges through the
That fierce delight I capture
Which makes the wrestling
Outside the rich man's palace
I quaff night's brimming
I sip the wind's wild malice,
I hear his dying wail!

Inland the town is quiet,
As swathed in soothing
No fierce tumult or riot
As we our vigils keep.
Bound by the spells of
We bow our heads and
The hours sweet dreams
Ere dawn broods o'er the

JAMES E. KIN
Registry Division, Chicago

Flattery Won Them A

An autograph collector, smiling, said:

"I have inherited from my maternal uncle his magnificent collection of autographs. These autographs did not cost the old gentleman a cent; yet they are worth hundreds and hundreds of dollars.

"When the autograph fever seized my uncle, he set to work in a shrewd way. Being parsimonious, he did not want to buy his autographs. Being clever, he perceived that simple signatures, such as you get if you write and ask an autograph of a person of distinction, would have no real value.

"So, do you know what he did? To every distinguished person he applied to he said he was a sea captain, and he asked permission to name a new ship he was building after the great man.

It was subtle flattery, that, eh? All my uncle's great folk were, without exception delighted to think of stately ship named after them, sa and there over the deep sea Carlyle said:

"'I am pleased that you s my work enough to name after me, and I hope she w anchor in a happier haven ever reach.'

"The poet Tennyson wrot a four-page letter. He every storm thereafter he of the Alfred Tennyson, a prayer for her safety.

"Thackeray was so pleas sent my uncle a comic d hang in his cabin.

"Robert Browning thanke cle for the compliment of na new ship after him, and h 'R. B.' would be stauncher name sake.

"Uncle's collection numbe a thousand autographs, and ter is about this imaginary

Candles by the Carlo

"Talk about how the wild and unconquerable west does business," says W. M. Thompson of Kelly, Maus & Co., "I was selling Corliss engines, machinery and other things in the Black Hills some time ago and came into the beautiful Lead and Deadwood region.

"While there I met a traveling salesman from Omaha or some other point and he said to me:

"'Do you understand the west?'

"I replied that I thought I did.

"'Well, I don't,' he said. 'I've just lost my breath. I went up to Lead and I had some candles to sell. I called on Grier of the Homestake mine and told him I had candles—plenty of 'em.

"'"Got samples?" he asked shortly. I said I had not, but that I could get them quick.

"'"Bring 'em along," he snorted.

"'I wired the house for patted myself on the ba I would get an order fo possibly 12,000—the bigg ever expected to get in th country.

"'My samples same and tip top. I took them up to he gave 'em a close inspect "'"Pretty good lot," he fina ed. "Send me four car loads

"'I looked at him to see joking, but he wasn't. He nev an eye. I was so staggered all the way back to Deadwo to get my breath. I sent the and the house filled it, filled t est single order it ever ha changed my mind then and to how the west buys. It g with all feet.'"—Chicago Pos

Geysers of Great Bea

One of the wonders of the earth is the gigantic geyser at Rotorua, New Zealand, known as "Waimangu." It made its appearance about two years ago and is situated near the one-time famous pink and white terraces of Rotomahana, whose beauties were swept completely out of existence in the terrific eruption of 1886. The crater out of which the geyser issues is fully half an acre in extent and of enormous depth. When in eruption the whole of the gigantic funnel is filled with a huge column of black, boiling mud and stones that shoots in the air to a hight of nearly 1,000 feet, while the cloud of steam which accompanies it rises in calm weather several thousand feet.

To see it in eruption is said to be the sight of a lifetime. T force manifested by the the vast body of water the terrific roar or steam a rocks add to the weird the phenomenon. Waimang located in the center of th ous hot lakes and therma region, Rotorua district, the sightseer being conveyed th few hours by train from A

Pools and springs of eve of heat are to be found in t borhood. Some are boiling others are spluttering pits of sulphur, sending up clouds and sulphurous fumes, whi again are of the clearest deepest, pure blue, beautif comparison.

Shows Ingenuity of J

When the time came to forward the winter outfits for the armies in Manchuria, and the commissariat produced hundreds of thousands of fur earprotectors, Japanese and foreigners alike wondered where these things could have come from. No one had ever heard of their being made.

It seems that two years ago the plague was raging along the China coast. The Japanese quarantine bureau decided that strenuous efforts must be made to keep the dread disease out of the country. They determined to start a crusade. In all the seaports and larger cities bounties were offered for each rat brought in. The small boys found this a great source of revenue, and the competition at once became very keen. For each rodent the huntsman was given a small sum, and a lottery ticket. The money he might squander, but the ticket he saved, and at the end of the month there was a drawi prizes varying from $5 to $ catching became a popul ment and the boards of h over the country were kept amining the daily bag. Eac was duly registered, and the which it was caught noted then examined, and if any germs were discovered the from which the rat came w diately raided, all ani hunted down, and wou place infected.

In this manner the plague out of Japan. The small boy themselves and made money one ever stopped to think become of the skins of these of rats that had been wor boards of health. They had thrown away. The military ties had used them to make tectors.

Persons Have Catarrh of Catarrh of Bladder and [illegible] Newhof and Wife espondent Richards Were [illegible] Cured by Peruna.

From Catarrh of Kidneys, With Nervous Collapse Cured by Peruna.

Health Over Four Years. Only Remedy of Real Benefit.

Say Plainly to You

That you want LION COFFEE being a square man, will not try to thing else. You may not care for

What About the United Judgm of housekeepers who have used L for over a quarter of a cen

Is there any stronger proof of m

Confiden and ever inc LION COFFE lected at the direct to ou where it is sk carefully pac ages unlike is exposed t secrets, etc. L you as pure it left the fa 1 lb. package

Lion-head on every pac Save these Lion-heads for valua

SOLD BY GROCERS EVE

WOOLSON

Mormon temple ever erect Europe has just been completed permanently cured. No fits or nervous first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great trial bottle and treatise free DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

pictures—clever and finished tations of groups taken from and Sevres china—are very at one of the London music

TICURA GROWS HAIR

Scared of Dandruff and Hair Re by One Box of Cuticura and the Cake of Cuticura Soap.

Mr. [illegible], of Independence, Va., writing date of Sept. 15, 1904, says: "I have ing hair and dandruff for twelve could get nothing to help me. I bought one box of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap, and used I my scalp of the dandruff and the hair falling. Now my hair is as soft as ever. I highly recommend Cuticura." Mr. [illegible], Independence, Va.

[illegible] has 210 churches to every [illegible] Utah has 211

Macaroni Wheat.

[illegible] return of this Wheat [illegible] at drou [illegible] and positively more [illegible] Black Ho [illegible] enormous [illegible] are of yielding 80 bushels [illegible] acre stories on [illegible] Mich., Wis., O., Pa., Mo., Neb. and 40 to 60 bushels on arid lands! [illegible] no insects, no failure. Catalog about it.

SEND 10c AND THIS NOTICE John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, and they will send you free a sample Wheat and other farm seeds, together with their great catalog, worth $10 any wide-awake farmer. [A. C. L.]

Persons Have Catarrh of Kidneys, Catarrh of Bladder and Don't Know It.

...t Newhof and War... ...at Richards Were ...ed by Pe-ru-na.

...ered ago I had ...equently troubled ...ments, the bladder, and my phy... ...was catarrh ...ected cold which ...it to overcome on ...ccasions for years. I ...ently daring to be... ...to be helped, but I ...ver that I soon began ...irritation gradually ...ceived ordinary difficulties ... I have enjoyed ex... ...ood for the past seven ... I enjoy my meals, sleep ... am as well as I was ... years. I give all praise ... E. Newhof.

...rm Catarrh of Kidneys, ...With Nervous Collapse, Cured by Pe-ru-na.

... E Street, N. W., ... Correspondent, ... ago I was ... correspondent of ... in charge of a ... the Spanish ... of the trop... ...ous strain showed ... the States. I was ... the verge of melan... ...kidney trouble made ... said. This undesira... ...d, despite the best of ...

...newspaper man, who ...ed in the war, in... ...ectual trial to Peruna, ...ore tone the lassitude ...resumed a healthy con... ...ete cure was effected. ...ow recommend Peruna ...s with kidney trouble, ...to work as hard as at ...ed the examiner for ... company pronounced

Health Over Four Years. Only Remedy of Real Benefit.

...g. 215 Lippincott St., ...ent merchant of ...r of the Masonic ...n poor health generally. When I caught a bad ...ected in the bladder ...a serious trouble. I ...used kidney reme... ...the desired results. ... remedy which was really of any benefit to me. I have not had a trace of kidney trouble nor a cold in my system."

PRES. C. B. NEWHOF, Suffered From Catarrh of Bladder.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect. It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature.

An Experimental Farm.

An experimental farm, where all kinds of western farm products may be seen as they actually grow, will form a new and interesting feature of the Lewis and Clark exposition.

Mulhall's Liquor Statistics.

According to Mulhall's dictionary of statistics the amount of money annually expended on alcoholic liquors in the United States is $225,000,000, $15,000,000 going for wine, $210,000,000 for beer, $5,000,000 for cider, and $95,000,000 for spirits. One hundred and eleven million dollars are estimated to be paid in taxes.

Many Confiscated Guns.

A single policeman in New York City, W. A. Miller, has in two years' time turned over to the city 328 pistols taken from the men who were illegally carrying them. The movement of the magistrates and of the police to have the offense of carrying concealed weapons more sternly dealt with by the law deserves success.

Wild Cattle in England.

A herd of aboriginal wild white cattle which has been confined for nearly 700 years in Chartley park, Staffordshire, England, on the hereditary state of Earl Ferrers, is to be sold. The park, consisting of 900 acres, is to be divided up. The herd has numbered as many as forty-three, but numbers now only nine. It was shut up in the year 1248.

Poisonous Fish.

In the rivers of some of the West Indian islands there abound fish which it would be deadly poison for Europeans to eat, but which the natives find a nourishing and enjoyable diet. In parts of New Zealand there grows a sort of orange which no one but a native can eat without becoming very ill, while two would probably poison the average European.

Use of Oil in the West.

Millions of gallons of Colorado oil are to be utilized by the Denver and Rio Grande railroad for laying the dust along its lines. The first experiments will be made along the road from Denver to Salt Lake City. As about 4,000 gallons of oil are required to the mile, the petroleum industry will receive quite an impetus in the Centennial State.

The Millionaires of France.

All the holders of great fortunes in France may easily be mentioned by name. Only about 100 persons are worth between $2,000,000 and $10,000,000, and 14,000 have accumulated or inherited property valued at from $193,000 to $386,000. That is France has very few rich citizens. This distribution of wealth in France is indicated by the facts that in 1902 there was left by persons dying property of the value of $221,000,000; but of the 363,612 inheritances distributed in that year more than 300,000 consisted of sums ranging from 20 cents to $1,930. About two-thirds of the property to be distributed was in sums of $200 to $400. The large inheritances from about $50,000 to $100,000 represented less than 0.4 per cent. of the total amount; and the property to be divided amounting to more than $100,000 represented less than 0.01 per cent. of the total value.

THE TRICKS

Coffee Plays on Some.

It hardly pays to laugh before you are certain of facts, for it is sometimes humiliating to think of afterwards.

"When I was a young girl I was a lover of coffee, but was sick so much the doctor told me to quit and I did, but after my marriage my husband begged me to drink it again as he did not think it was the coffee caused the troubles.

"So I commenced it again and continued about 6 months until my stomach commenced acting bad and choking as if I had swallowed something the size of an egg. One doctor said it was neuralgia and indigestion.

"One day I took a drive with my husband three miles in the country and I drank a cup of coffee for dinner. I thought sure I would die before I got back to town to a doctor. I was drawn double in the buggy and when my husband hitched the horse to get me out into the doctor's office, misery came up in my throat and seemed to shut my breath off entirely, then left all in a flash and went to my heart. The doctor pronounced it nervous heart trouble and when I got home I was so weak I could not sit up.

"My husband brought my supper to my bedside with a nice cup of hot coffee, but I said: 'Take that back, dear. I will never drink another cup of coffee if you gave me everything you are worth, for it is just killing me.' He and the others laughed at me and said:

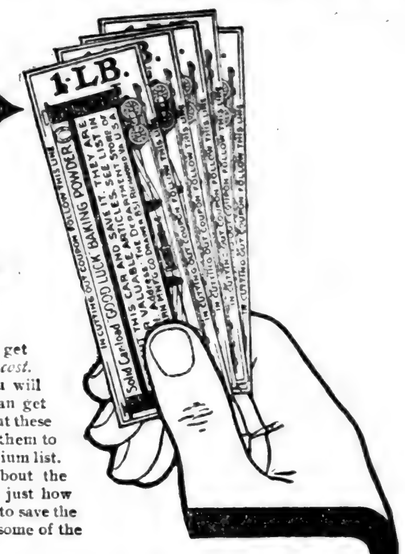
"'The idea of coffee killing anybody.'

"'Well,' I said, 'it is nothing else but coffee that is doing it.'

"In the grocery one day my husband was persuaded to buy a box of Postum which he brought home and I made it for dinner and we both thought how good it was but said nothing to the hired men and they thought they had drank coffee until we laughed and told them. Well, we kept on with Postum and it was not long before the color came back to my cheeks and I got stout and felt as good as I ever did in my life. I have no more stomach trouble and I know I owe it all to Postum in place of coffee.

"My husband has gained good health on Postum, as well as baby and I, and we all think nothing is too good to say about it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Every Coupon Counts for a present with GOOD LUCK Baking Powder



Buy Good Luck Baking Powder. In so doing you get the most of the purest baking powder at the smallest cost. Furthermore, if you will save the coupons that you will find plainly printed on the label of each can, you can get the beautiful premiums we are now offering. Cut out these coupons. They are valuable. It takes but a few of them to obtain some of the numerous useful gifts on the premium list.

A little book inside of every can explains all about the premiums. It shows a picture of each gift and tells just how many coupons are required to get them. Don't fail to save the coupons. Take a delight in your baking and secure some of the charming premiums.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

was established in 1892. The sales have so increased to date, that to-day we are shipping Good Luck Baking Powder in carload lots to every section of the country. The cause of this enormous popularity is plain. In Good Luck, housekeepers get not only a positively pure baking powder of great leavening force, but at a price a little less than they have been accustomed to pay for some other kind that was not as satisfactory in results.

When buying Good Luck think of its purity and consider the good results obtained from its use. Remember every Good Luck coupon counts for a present. If your grocer doesn't keep Good Luck, send us his name and we will see that you are supplied.

THE SOUTHERN MANUFACTURING CO., Richmond, Va.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors silk, wool and cotton equally well and is guaranteed to give perfect results. Ask dealer or we will send post paid at 10c a package. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Unionville, Mo.

Say Plainly to Your Grocer

That you want LION COFFEE always, and he, being a square man, will not try to sell you anything else. You may not care for our opinion, but

What About the United Judgment of Millions of housekeepers who have used LION COFFEE for over a quarter of a century?

Is there any stronger proof of merit, than the Confidence of the People and ever increasing popularity? LION COFFEE is carefully selected at the plantation, shipped direct to our various factories, where it is skillfully roasted and carefully packed in sealed packages—unlike loose coffee, which is exposed to germs, dust, insects, etc. LION COFFEE reaches you as pure and clean as when it left the factory. Sold only in 1 lb. packages.

Lion-head on every package.
Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

There were last year 532 paper mills in operation in European Russia, employing 46,100 hands and furnishing paper to the value of about $24,000,000.

To Cure a Cold in One Day
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

France leads the countries of Europe in theatres, having 394 of them.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle

Irrigation is said to be lowering the temperature of Egypt.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—Mrs. THOMAS ROBINS, Maple St., Norwich, N.Y., Feb. 17, 1900

The imperial post in Germany uses 12,551 railway trains daily.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, and all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Royal Traveling Expenses.

When the German emperor travels on home railroads a detailed bill is made out for every engine and car used and for the distance traversed. It is estimated that he pays the Prussian railways alone about $25,000 a year.

Race Question Everywhere.

Seattle underwriters have received instructions not to insure saw or shingle mills in which Japanese are employed, owing to the growth of hostility to the brown men on the part of white laborers.

Things Made Out of Paper.

The Krupp Company at Essen are turning out field pieces made of paper. They have half the lightness of forged steel, but will endure an equal strain. They are mounted on light carriages to be drawn by infantry. It is not generally remembered that the first use of paper for the manufacture of all kinds of domestic articles, boats and tables, originated in Troy, N. Y. In Russia houses are built of blocks of papier mache and have proved as durable as stone. The pulp is compressed under great weight that drives out all moisture and renders the mass as hard as flint. In the far West pasteboard partitions are very common. They are highly objectionable when a man with a vigorous snore occupies the adjoining bedroom.

What Glasgow Owns.

The city of Glasgow, Scotland, owns a public library of 160,000 volumes, and is erecting a number of district libraries; conducts seven model lodging houses—one for women—which shelter 2,430 persons every night and pay 5 per cent. profit; owns 27 blocks of buildings, which shelter 9,000 people; public banks, including Kosher banks for Jews, and also wash houses, in which hot water is furnished at a trifling price for family laundry work; gas and electric light and power works, in which 3,000 men are employed; the street railway system which employs 3,500 men and carries 170,000,000 people annually. Furthermore, it owns nine public markets, including one for old clothes; a telephone system that pays 15 per cent. on the invested public capital; a labor bureau and a home for inebriates.

The World's Postal Employes.

Germany has 242,000 postal employes, the United States 239,000 and Great Britain 184,000. None of the other States in the postal union possesses 100,000 postal employes. France has 81,000; Austria, 59,000; Russia, 57,962, and Japan, 57,965.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY make oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886. A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A New Banking System.

A new banking system which enables persons to make deposits of twenty-five cents and upward, interest being allowed when the amount lodged reaches $5, was adopted by the National Bank of Ireland recently. The bank has several branches in London.

Last year the production of cotton piece goods in Japan exceeded in value the amount of $80,000,000.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than cost. WRITE TODAY.

GA-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

VERY FEW, IF ANY, CIGARS SOLD AT 5 CENTS, COST AS MUCH TO MANUFACTURE, OR COST THE DEALER AS MUCH AS

"CREMO"

IF THE DEALER TRIES TO SELL YOU SOME OTHER

ASK YOURSELF WHY?

ALL SICK WOMEN

SHOULD READ MRS. FOX'S LETTER

In All Parts of the United States Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Effected Similar Cures.

Many wonderful cures of female ills are continually coming to light which have been brought about by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and through the advice of Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., which is given to sick women absolutely free of charge.

Mrs. Pinkham has for many years made a study of the ills of her sex; she has consulted with and advised thousands of suffering women, who to-day owe not only their health but even life to her helpful advice.

Mrs. Fannie D. Fox, of 7 Chestnut Street, Bradford, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered for a long time with womb trouble, and finally was told by my physician that I had a tumor on the womb. I did not want to submit to an operation, so wrote you for advice. I received your letter and did as you told me, and to-day I am completely cured. My doctor says the tumor has disappeared, and I am once more a well woman. I believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine in the world for women."

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She asks nothing in return for her advice. It is absolutely free, and to thousands of women has proved to be more precious than gold.

10,000 Plants for 16c.

More gardens and farms are planted to Salzer's Seeds than any other in America. There is reason for this. We own over 5,000 acres for the production of our warranted seeds. In order to induce you to try them, we make you the following unprecedented offer:

For 16 Cents Postpaid

1000 Early, Medium and Late Cabbages,
2000 Fine Juicy Turnips,
2000 Standing Celery,
2000 Rich Nutty Lettuce,
1000 Splendid Onions,
1000 Rare Luscious Radishes,
1000 Gloriously Brilliant Flowers.

Above seven packages contain sufficient seed to grow 10,000 plants, furnishing bushels of brilliant flowers and lots and lots of choice vegetables, together with our great catalog telling all about Flowers, Roots, Small Fruits, etc., all for 16c in stamps and this notice. Big 160-page catalog alone, 5c.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., La Crosse, Wis.

ELECTRIC VEST POCKET LIGHTS

By Mail $1.00.

United Electric Co
1804 Fourth Avenue
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Bryant & Stratton Business, Shorthand and Telegraphy College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

PECANS WE SELL DIRECT TO PLANTER AT WHOLESALE. . .
AND ALL KINDS of NUT TREES.
NEW PLUM,
MAYNARD, THE MONEYMAKER.
The BEST that ever happened.
SEND FOR DESCRIPTION.
OAK LAWN NURSERY, Huntsville, Ala.

A NEW CARD TRICK. The tips of fingers instantly disappear; cards immediately produced again from any place performer desires. Full instructions sent by mail for $1. Address, J. H. Vanderhaven, Tavares, Fla.

BONANZA—Operating Gum Machines. Particulars 2-cent stamp. NIELSEN COMPANY, 129 South Sixth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Am. 10, 1905.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

If afflicted with weak eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

...ever erect... ...been completed

...ured. No fits or nervous... ...of Dr. Kline's Great ... and treatise free ... 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

...cover and finished ...groups taken from ... china—are very ... the London music

...GROWS HAIR

...of Dandruff and Hair Re... ...Box of Cuticura and ... of Cuticura Soap.

...dependence, Va., writing ... 15, 1904, says: "I have ... and dandruff for twelve ... coming to help me. ... of Cuticura Oint... ... Cuticura Soap, and ... the dandruff and ... Now my hair is ... I highly prize ... soap. (Signed) ... Va."

...clueless to every ...and has 114 and ...

...ront Wheat.

... Wheat is the kind ... and the ele... ...ks Black Rust.

... 80 bushels of finest ... per acre on good ... O., Pa., Mo., Neb. ... Canada on arid lands! ... no failure. Catalog

10c AND THIS NOTICE

... A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, ... will send you free a sample ... and other farm seeds, together great catalog, worth ... to any wide-awake farmer. [A. C. L.]

London possesses a curiosity in the Southwarkeel market, which is said to have been held regularly for over three hundred years. It is little known except in the neighborhood where it is held.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.
Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

Eagles sometimes rise to the height of 6000 feet.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

It requires 2300 silkworms to produce one pound of silk.

During the first nine months of last year Spain imported nearly 40,000,000 francs' worth of machinery, chiefly from Germany and Great Britain.

FROM MISERY TO HEALTH.

A Prominent Club Woman of Kansas City Writes to Thank Doan's Kidney Pills For a Quick Cure.

Miss Nellie Davis, of 1216 Michigan avenue, Kansas City, Mo., society leader and club woman, writes: "I can not say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, for they effected a complete cure in a very short time when I was suffering from kidney troubles brought on by a cold. I had severe pains in the back and sick headaches, and felt miserable all over. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made me a well woman, without an ache or pain, and I feel compelled to recommend this reliable remedy."

NELLIE DAVIS.

(Signed) NELLIE DAVIS.

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

WANTED

EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT I AM

HEADQUARTERS

FOR

High Grade Flour, Feed of all Kinds.

A LARGE LINE OF

Fancy Groceries, Men's Suits, Boy's Suits,

Pants and Overalls

Dry Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Tools, Harness, Etc. We Guarantee Prices as Low as the Lowest . . . .

Kind and Courteous Treatment to All

Come and See Me and be Convinced

W. N. HORNSBY

THE BIG STORE THORSBY, ALA.

What Art Really Is

By Count Leo Tolstoy.

ART begins when one person, with the object of joining another or others to himself in one and the same feeling, expresses that feeling by certain external indications. The feelings with which the artist infects others may be most various—very strong or very weak, very important or very insignificant, very bad or very good; feelings for love of native land, self-devotion and submission to fate or to God expressed in a drama, raptures of lovers described in a novel, feelings of voluptuousness expressed in a picture, courage expressed in a triumphal march, merriment evoked by a dance, humors evoked by a funny story, the feeling of quietness transmitted by an evening landscape or by a lullaby, or the feeling of admiration evoked by a beautiful arabesque—it is all art.

If only the spectators or auditors are infected by the feelings which the author has felt, it is art.

To evoke in oneself a feeling one has once experienced, and having evoked it in oneself, then, by means of movements, lines, colors, sounds, or forms expressed in words, so to transmit that feeling—this is the activity of art.

Art is a human activity, consisting in this, that one may consciously, by means of certain external signs, hand on to others feelings he has lived through, and that other people are infected by these feelings, and also experience them.

Art is not, as the metaphysicians say, the manifestation of some mysterious idea of beauty or God; it is not as the aesthetical physiologists say, a game in which man lets off his excess of stored-up energy; it is not the expression of man's emotions by external signs; it is not the production of pleasing objects; and above all, it is not pleasure; but it is a means of union among men, joining them together in the same feelings, and indispensable for the life and progress towards well-being of individuals and of humanity.—From "What is Art?"

Emperor Francis Joseph.

Probably No Better Beloved, Nor More Unfortunate, Sovereign in History.

By Andrew D. White.

THE Emperor Francis Joseph is probably as thoroughly beloved by his subjects as any sovereign in history has ever been. His great misfortunes—fearful defeats in the wars with France and Germany, the suicide of his only son, the assassination of his wife, and family troubles in more recent times, have thrown about him an atmosphere of romantic sympathy; while liking for his kindly qualities is mingled with respect for his plain common sense.

During his stay in Berlin I met him a second time. At my first presentation at Dresden, two years before, there was little opportunity for extended conversation; but he now spoke at length, and in such a manner that showed him to be observant of the world's affairs even in remote regions. He discussed the recent increase of our army, the progress of our war in the Philippines, and the extension of American enterprise in various parts of the world, in a way which was not at all perfunctory, but evidently the result of large information and careful observation. His empire, which is a seething caldron of hates, racial, religious, political and local, is held together by love and respect for him; but when he dies this personal tie which unites all these different races, parties and localities will disappear, and in place of it will come the man who by force of untoward circumstances is to be his successor, and this is anything but a pleasing prospect to an Austro-Hungarian, or indeed to any thoughtful observer of human affairs.—The Century.

The man who is agreed by everybody to be a thoroughly good fellow would always be ready to lend money, if he had any, but usually he has to borrow, concludes the Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

A scientific expedition, after four years of unspeakable hardship in the vicinity of the north pole, has returned to the temperate zone with a fine collection of polar bear fleas, states the Atlanta Constitution.

A Brooklyn Judge has ruled that lies told in courtship do not constitute a ground for divorce, says the Butte, (Mont.) Inter-Ocean. Then why should they constitute ground for breach of promise?

Dressmakers, as a class, have serious grievances against bridge, says a magazine writer, for the reason that it interferes with the settlement of bills due them. Debts of honor, even among woman have first claim to payment.

We talk a great deal about the world's advancement, but can you find in history a year that equals the record of 1904, for loss of life in battle and because of accidents that might have been avoided by ordinary precaution?

Whatever may be the result of the extraordinary race mixture now going on in America, there is at least a sentimental satisfaction in knowing that in the southern states the colonial stock maintains its old fruitfulness, and that is able to lend to the north of its abundance, avers the New York Mail.

An authority upon cooking asserts that England is a soupless country, meaning that English cooks cannot make soup and that soup does not appear on the menu of an English everyday dinner. Which is a fact, the New York Sun concludes, though soup is about the first form that English charity takes.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

THE COTTON OUTLOOK

The Investigations of Commissioner Stevens of Georgia, on the Situation.

PREDICTS BIG REDUCTION.

From Investigations, Says Acreage Will Be One-fourth Less and Fertilizers One-third.

Atlanta, Ga.—Hon. O. B. Stevens, commissioner of agriculture of the state of Georgia, has written a letter to Hon. G. W. Koiner, of Richmond, Va., who is president of the Association of Commissioners of Agriculture of the South, in which he paints a picture of prosperity on part of the Southern farmer and the South generally that will no doubt be read with great interest throughout the country.

The information which Mr. Stevens writes Mr. Koiner is gathered from several hundred letters he sent out to the different Southern states in February. His statement is based on the information contained in the replies to his letters.

Mr. Stevens says the farmers are better off than they ever were before; that they have, in many instances, cash enough to run their farms; that many of them have cotton and are able to hold it; that the South generally is in good shape.

Furthermore, Mr. Stevens says the reduction in cotton acreage throughout the South will be 25 per cent. and that the reduction in the use of commercial fertilizers will be 33 1-3 per cent.

Mr. Stevens' Letter.

The following is what Mr. Stevens wrote Mr. Koiner:

Since I last saw you many changes have taken place, and the condition of our planters and merchants in the Southern states has induced me to seek for information from all sources to find the condition of general trade of our country. I find to my surprise that the planters in the Southern states are in a much better condition than I had thought for. They have more grain, more forage, more meat; in fact, more home supplies than for many years. They are in a much better condition to make a crop for the year 1905 than the general public is aware of. A great number of our people have cash enough on hand to run their farms. Our merchants are in a good condition, with a few exceptions. I am sorry to say that a few of them bought cotton last fall in order to settle their accounts with their customers at from 9 to 10c. per pound, and a number of them have this cotton still on hand. A few of them went will and speculated in futures. These, of course, lost. But, as a general rule, our business people in the Southern states are in good shape. The trade has improved very much, not only in the Southern states, but in all the states and even in the foreign countries mills are running on full time, and they have been able to sell all their product at a fair profit, most of them at least six months ahead and a few of them as far as twelve months ahead. So when we come to sum it all up, the general condition of trade is in good shape. Every article of merchandise is bringing its value except cotton, which is below the cost of production. These commodities have all got to adjust themselves. Cotton must go higher or the other commodities of merchandise will be reduced in price. In other words, they must get nearer together.

Big Reduction in Acreage.

I have been in correspondence with all the commissioners of the Southern states, and on the 17th of February I wrote each one of them to know what was the financial condition of the farmers was compared to last year; how long they would be able to hold their cotton when so inclined; what per cent. of decrease in acreage would likely be made and how much they would likely reduce their fertilizers. I have heard from the states of Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Louisiana. The reply came from all these states that the condition of the planters was never better; that at least 85 per cent. of the cotton now on hand can be held indefinitely; that since the first day of last January about 15 per cent. of the cotton then on hand had been sold, but that the planters and merchants are not inclined to sell at present prices and that they are now making arrangements to hold their cotton indefinitely; that the decrease in acreage for the cotton crop of 1905 will not be less than 20 per cent. and a few states report that it will be as high as 33 1-3 per cent.; that the fertilizers will be materially decreased. The average decrease reported up to the present writing from all the states being a fraction over 25 per cent. So if the planters hold out and stand by the resolutions which they have made, it looks now that the crop of cotton and fertilizers will be materially reduced and that more ground will be put in corn and forage of all descriptions and pasturage for their stock. So at present the outlook is at least hopeful.

As to Georgia.

Speaking of Georgia, my own state, I have mixed and mingled with the people a great deal, and while we have had a great deal to discourage us—low prices of cotton and bad weather—we have been unable up to now to do but very little farm work. In fact, there is scarcely any preparation for the coming crop. We have only been able to repair our fences, clean out our ditches, but unable to do any plowing. Therefore we have now (March 1st) got to commence to prepare our lands for the coming crop.

Our planters are in good condition and perfectly able to hold their cotton indefinitely, and in my judgment will reduce their acreage not less than 20 per cent., and the fertilizers will be reduced accordingly. In fact, the department of agriculture of this state sold less than 25 per cent. of fertilizer tax tags during the months of January and February, 1905, as compared to the same months of 1904.

It is to be hoped that our people will stand by the plans which they have adopted for the coming crop. Should there be another large crop of cotton made in the South, we will feel the effects of it for the next ten years. If we should raise only an eight or nine million bale crop this year, then we will see cotton go back to a living price for the producer, and our southland will be the most prosperous section in the country.

Very truly yours,
O. B. STEVENS,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

Express Car Rifled by Three Robbers.

Memphis, Tenn.—Eastbound passenger train No. 203 on the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, known as "The Arkansas Traveler," was stopped by three bandits eight miles south of Mammoth Springs, Ark., Thursday, and the express car was robbed. The safe was blown open and all of its contents were secured.

The train was signaled shortly after leaving Mammoth Springs by three men heavily armed. They entered the car of the Southern Express Company and covered Messenger Harry White with revolvers. After rifling the safe the robbers made a dash for the woods and escaped.

The train, which was due in Memphis at noon, arrived an hour late, and a report of the hold-up was immediately made to the railroad and express officials. The officers of the Southern Express Company in this city state they do not know the amount of money secured by the robbers.

Messenger White went to the company's offices and has not made a statement.

The amount of money usually carried on this train is not large.

Policeman Hurt.

Gadsden, Ala.—D. L. Garner, night policeman, happened to a serious accident last night while in the discharge of his duty. A call was sent in from a residence on Forest avenue that burglars were breaking in and Officers Garner and Singleton mounted their horses and left in a gallop for the scene. As the officers were going up the hill on Forest avenue Garner's horse stumbled and he was thrown violently to the ground, rendering him unconscious for some time. An examination by his brother officer showed that he was badly hurt and he was taken into the home of a doctor nearby, where it was ascertained that his right shoulder was out of place and his leg above the knee was split open, requiring several stitches to close it up. Mr. Garner had a narrow escape from breaking his neck, and will be laid up for some time.

Interviewed by Solicitor.

Birmingham, Ala.—Solicitor Dave Almand, of Morgan county; Fred Bloodworth, brother of Miss Belle Bloodworth, who was murdered in New Decatur a few weeks ago, with Detective Charles H. Heflin, called at the county jail here and interviewed John Collier and Harvey Smith, the two negroes arrested in New Decatur charged with the murder of Miss Bloodworth and brought here for safe keeping.

The negroes denied the crime. Collier is said to have told the New Decatur authorities that Smith confessed to him of committing the murder. No announcement is made yet as to when the negroes will be taken back to New Decatur for trial. There is considerable ill feeling against the negroes in Morgan county and fears were expressed that they would be lynched, hence their being brought to Birmingham.

Two Residences Burned.

Sylacauga, Ala.—At an early hour Sunday morning the residences occupied by Dr. M. E. Conoway and Mr. M. H. Jackson were totally destroyed by fire. Both buildings were recently erected and were owned by Dr. M. E. Conoway, whose loss is very near $3,000 on his dwellings alone, as there was only $1,400 insurance in force on the two dwellings. Most of the household effects were saved.

Pay Day at Virginia Mines.

Birmingham, Ala.—Saturday was pay day at the Virginia mines, where over a hundred men lost their lives by an awful explosion a week ago last Monday. There were in line to receive pay for the past month seventy-five widows in weeds, twenty-four children and twenty men. The population of Virginia City before the explosion was over 300.

Thorsb

Business Fre

A. M. John

Groceries and Delic

J. J. STAN

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

MRS. MARY R. RA

General Merchan

G. W. Freem

SHOES, ETC

Thorsby Wi

—Co.—

Lofthus & Bromberg,

A. HORN

Drugs, Stationery and Articles.

LICENSED PHAR

A. Malmgre

Watchmaker & Je

E. H. Adam

General Merch

W. N. HORNS

General Merchan

J. R. PARNE

General Merchand

J. L. FOSS

Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wi

Millinery and Noti

The Thorsby

W. C. Michelson,

A Langville &

BLACKSMITHS

and

HORSESHOERS

Dealers in

WAGONS and BUGG

C. L. Forsma

Brick Yard.

J. BICE

Charcoal Ovens

The author of "The Simple says America is a better pla England for one to learn language, remarks the De lican. But he should come country in summer when the reporter is coining the brand-ne lish words that fatten each ne of dictionaries.

T

VOL. II.

PEONAGE EXISTED.

The Declaration of the U. S. Supreme Court In the Sam Clayatt Case.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF CASE.

Reverses Case on Error in Indictment Gives Opinion That Defendant Is Guilty—Swayne Heard It.

Washington, D. C.—The decision of the lower court in the case of Sam Clayatt, accused of peonage, was reversed by the supreme court of the United States on a technicality. Clayatt, who resided in Georgia, was charged with taking two negroes into custody while they were employed in Florida. The prosecution was originated in the latter state. Sections 1990 and 5526 of the revised statutes were involved. The court sustained their constitutionality.

We entertain no doubt of the validity of this legislation or of its application to the case of any person holding another in a state of peonage and whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holdings. The statute operates directly on every citizen in the republic wherever his residence may be."

Reviews the Case.

Calling attention to the charge in the indictment the justice said: "It is essential to show that Gordon and Ridley had been in a condition of peonage to which by the act of the defendant they were returned. We are not at liberty to transform this indictment into one charging the defendant with holding them in a state of peonage or that he arrested them with a view of holding them in such a state. The testimony discloses that the defendant and another party went to Florida; that caused the arrest of Gordon and Ridley on warrants issued by the magistrate of Georgia for larceny, but there can be little doubt that these criminal proceedings were only an excuse for securing the custody of Gordon and Ridley and taking them back to Georgia to work out a debt. While it is true, there is not a scintilla of testimony to show Gordon and Ridley were ever therefore in a condition of peonage. We are constrained therefore to order a reversal of the judgment and remand the case for a new trial." He said that the trial court would on this account have taken the case from the jury.

Justice Harlan dissented, saying that in his opinion there was evidence in the case to make a case within the statute. "The accused made no objection of the submission of the case to the jury," he said, "and it is too far to hold in a case like this ... ing barbarities of the worst kind against these negroes, that the trial court erred in sending the case to the jury."

The case was ... Swayne.

New Telephone Home.

Anniston, Ala.—Work ... on the building to be ... Southern Bell Telephone Company, on Twelfth street, not far from ... building will be modern in ... manner.

Jeff to Have Wire Connection.

Jeff, Ala.—D. E. & J. O. Kelley, ... enterprising merchants of Jeff, ... completing a long-distance telephone line from Huntsville to this place. The new line will serve from thirty to ... patrons.

Huntsville, Ala.—The city council ... declared war against the ... Supply Company. It was ... that the ... installation of ... placed in ... hence ... of the property ...

Off Hand of His Little Sister.

Jasper, Ala.—The little ... of Jo Linsay, who resides near ... lost the loss of her hand several ... ago in a peculiar manner. The ... was watching her 12-year-old ... cut wood, and placed her hand ... the shopping block directly under ... It was completely severed at ... and she came near dying ... and exhaustion before help ... arrive.

Buying Ore Lands.

Sweden, Ala.—It is reported here ... Tennessee parties have secured ... tracts of brown ore land ... block 3, and are preparing to ... mining machinery.

Thorsb
Business Direc
A. M. Johns
Groceries and Delica
J. J. STANL
GENERAL
MERCHANDIS
MRS. MARY R. RASB
General Merchand
G. W. Freem
SHOES, ETC.
Thorsby Wir
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, P
A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Articles.
LICENSED PHAR MA
A. Malmgre
Watchmaker & Jew
E. H. Adams
General Merchan
W. N. HORNSE
General Merchandi
J. R. PARNEL
General Merchandis
J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.
Mrs. M. E. Wis
Millinery and Notio
The Thorsby
W. C. Michelson, P
A Langville &
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in
WAGONS and BUGG
C. L. Forsma
Brick Yard.
J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

The author of "The Simple ... says America is a better place ... England for one to learn ... language, remarks the Dean ... Beam. But he should come to ... country in summer when the ... reporter is coining the brand-new ... lish words that fatten each new ... of dictionaries.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., MARCH 16, 1905. NO. 51

PEONAGE EXISTED,

the Declaration of the U. S. Supreme Court In the Sam Clayatt Case.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF CASE.

...verses Case on Error in Indictment, Gives Opinion That Defendant Is Guilty—Swayne Heard It.

Washington, D. C.—The decision of ... court in the case of Samuel ... accused of peonage, was Mon... by the supreme court of ... States on a technicality. ... who resided in Georgia ... with taking two negroes ... while they were employed ... The proceedings therefore ... in the latter state. ... 1990 and 5526 of the revis... were involved. The court ... their constitutionality, say...

"We entertain no doubt of the validity of this legislation or of its application to the case of any person holding another in a state of peonage and ... there be municipal ordinance ... law sanctioning such holdings, ... duty directly on every citizen ... prosecute wherever his residence ...

Reviews the Case.

"... attention to the charge in ... ment the justice said: 'It ... denial to show that Gordon and ... been in a condition of peon... ...ation by the act of the defend... ... returned. We are not ... to transform this indict... into one charging the defendant ... a state of peonage or ... directed them with a view of ... in such a state. The tes... ... that the defendant ... other party went to Florida ... the arrest of Gordon and ... warrants issued by the mag... ... of Georgia for larceny, but ... can be little doubt that these ... proceedings were only an ex... for securing the custody of Gor... and Ridley and taking them back ... Georgia to work out a debt. While ... is true, there is not a scintilla of ... to show Gordon and Ridley ... ever therefore in a condition of ... We are constrained there... to order a reversal of the judg... and remand the case for a new ... He said that the trial court ... on this account have taken the ... from the jury.

Harlan dissented, saying that ... upon there was evidence in... to make a case within the ... The accused made no objec... ...submission of the case to ... and it is going ... a case like this, dis... ... of the worst kind ... ...ases, that the trial ... the case to the ... originally by

New Telephone Home.

... Work has been ... building to be used by ... Telephone Company ... not far from Noble. ... be modern in every ...

To Have Wire Connection.

D. E. & J. O. Kelley, the ... merchants of Jeff, are ... long distance telephone ... Trussville to this place ... will serve from thirty to ...

... The city council has ... against the Anniston ... Company, it being ... ordinance relative to ... of meters has been ... instances. The ... that meters shall ... without the permis... ... owners.

...d of His Little Sister.

... The little daughter of ... who resides near here, ... loss of her hand several ... a peculiar manner. The ... was watching her 12-year-old ... wood, and placed her hand ... chopping block directly under ... It was completely severed at ... and she came near dying ... and exhaustion before help ... arrived.

Buying Ore Lands.

Ashden, Ala.—It is reported here ... Tennessee parties have secured ...sive tracts of brown ore land ... 3, and are preparing to in... ...ining machinery.

Monnett Hard at Work.

Topeka, Kan.—The taking of depositions in the case brought on the complaint of the attorney general against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe was resumed here. W. J. Healy, general freight auditor of the company was on the stand. There was nothing in his testimony to show that there is any combine against the Santa Fe and the other Kansas roads or between the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Standard Oil Company. The freight rate on hard and soft coal from Frontenac, Pittsburg and Midway, Kan., to Kansas City was discussed.

Mr. Monnett made an attempt to establish by the testimony of Mr. Healy that there is a combination against the Santa Fe and other carrying roads in Southeastern Kansas. The answers from the auditor did not confirm this. An attempt was also made to prove a combination between the Santa Fe and the Kansas City Belt railroad, but nothing had been elicited on this when the hearing adjourned.

New Railroad, Light and Water.

Lineville, Ala.—A trust deed for $75,000 was filed March 10 in the probate office at Ashland to the Knicker-Locker Trust Company, of New York, securing funds for the completion of the Birmingham and Lineville railroad. The work will begin within two weeks and will be rushed to completion. This means much for Clay county and Lineville. Lineville has a very large farming territory and is becoming the market for this territory. Clay county is rich in mineral wealth, and railroads are needed to move this wealth. The exhibit of pyrites from Pyriton at the St. Louis exposition attracted national notice. Thousands of tons of this ore is being mined.

Franchises have been granted by the mayor and council to John S. Jemison and associates for the construction of waterworks for the town of Lineville; also for light, power and heat plant, and for telegraph and telephone system.

Fatally Injured.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—H. O. Ewing, clerk of the United States court at this city, and a prominent society man, was perhaps fatally injured late Monday afternoon by being dragged along the pavement with his foot caught to a saddle stirrup.

Mr. Ewing was out riding with his 12-year-old daughter when the latter's pony ran away, finally threw its rider to the ground, slightly injuring her, and frightening the animal ridden by her father. Mr. Ewing attempted to dismount from his uncontrolled steed in order to return to the assistance of his daughter. The horse turned a corner just as the rider was rising in the stirrups to dismount. The fall and subsequent dragging along the pavement caused concussion of the brain. The skull was trepanned. There is very little hope for the recovery of the injured man.

Anniston Wants Bonded Warehouse.

Anniston, Ala.—Several of the leading citizens are making a move to get a bonded cotton warehouse for Anniston. This week the Southern Cotton Growers' Association will hold a meeting in New Orleans. One object is to erect bonded warehouses for cotton. These are to be located at various points in the South, and when a farmer puts cotton into one of them the receipt he takes is good. The plan on foot is to send two or more men to the New Orleans meeting, armed with data, which they will use in an effort to induce the association to put a warehouse in this city.

Should this plan fail then the plan is for local capital to build a bonded warehouse, with a capacity for storing 10,000 to 20,000 bales of cotton.

To Buy Cuban Lands.

Norfolk, Va.—Congressman Maynard, of the Second Virginia district, and several congressional associates have gone to Havana, Cuba. It is announced here they will close an option on about 73,000 acres of timber land on the Isle of Pines.

Crank Threatens Wanamaker.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A harmless crank was arrested Monday in front of the store of John Wanamaker while loudly proclaiming to passers-by his intention of killing former Postmaster General Wanamaker. The man was arrested, but no revolver was found upon him. He was sent to the insane ward of the Philadelphia hospital.

Cotton Waste Mill for Huntsville.

Huntsville, Ala.—Col. T. W. Pratt, operator of the West Huntsville cotton mills, announces that prominent Philadelphia capitalists are in the city negotiating for the establishment of a mill to consume cotton mill waste. The mill will cost about $75,000.

JAPS HAVE MUKDEN

Marched Into the City at 10 O'Clock Friday Morning—Russians Retreating.

DRIVEN FROM BOTH CITIES.

Kuropatkin's Awful Defeat Sheds Gloom Over Russia—Rival Commanders Break the News.

St. Petersburg.—Saturday the following telegram was received:

"Last night all our armies commenced to retreat."

The greatest defeat in the history of the far eastern war was made known in St. Petersburg Friday night, but only in the foregoing eight words from General Kuropatkin to Emperor Nicholas. This brief message was flung about the streets in newspaper extras, and it was passed from mouth to mouth. Two thoughts formed instantly in the minds of every one, and two words were on every lip: "Surrender!" "Peace!" The former dreaded, the latter hoped for.

General Kuropatkin is no maker of phrases, his words never are quoted like the famous "all is lost save honor," but his laconic message hides more than probably any two other sentences in the literature of war. St. Petersburg knows nothing of the extent of the disaster, not even the lines of Kuropatkin's retreat—whether the route to Tie Pass is still open, whether he is endeavoring to cut his way through to safety, or whether, as many pessimists believe, he has taken to the mountains. If he has fled into the mountains he will inevitably be hemmed in and starved into surrender.

The dispatch from Kuropatkin has been studied, and from the words "all our armies" optimists draw the conclusion that the bulk of the Russian force got away clear, the commander-in-chief sacrificing, however, the devoted rear guard, which flung itself as prey to the Japanese, who were closing in on their trail, and sacrificing on either hand the greater part of his heavy artillery, especially the siege guns and enormous quantities of supplies.

Details Are Unknown.

St. Petersburg—Of the present situation of the army of the proportion of Russians left on Japanese hands, or of the prospect of the escape of the remainder, St. Petersburg at this moment knows less than the smallest hamlet in America. Since the Associated Press' Mukden dispatch was filed at 5 o'clock Friday morning, no dispatch save the brief announcement of the retreat of the Russian army has been received, General Kuropatkin's preceding dispatch giving the last details as to the position of the army having been written at 9 o'clock Thursday evening. The members of the general staff when asked for information, said:

"We know nothing. We hope he will bring the army off safely, but we don't know how he will do it. We only know he has commenced the retreat. That is all."

Every one now is discussing peace, which many of the staunchest advocates of war, bureaucracy and officers now declare to be inevitable. It is openly bruited that Rojestvensky's fleet has been recalled and is now on the way homeward.

Fushun Has Fallen.

Washington—Fushun has been captured by the Japanese forces, according to the following cablegram received by the Japanese legation from Tokio under today's date.

"Our detachments occupied Fushun on the night of March 9th and now are attacking the enemy, who is posted at the angle of the heights north of Fushun."

Opinion of the Defeat.

St. Petersburg—The dispatches from Tokio and Yinkow announcing that Mukden had fallen and that the Japanese captured thousands of prisoners and enormous quantities of stores and guns only confirm the worst fears entertained here, the dispatches of the Associated Press received here last night having shown that the trap was sprung.

Another officer who was asked his opinion of the report that the major portions of the armies of General Bellingersly and Kaulbars was cut off, said he thought that considering the situation anything was possible. It was his idea that Kuropatkin may have deliberately sacrificed 100,000 men by hurling two or three corps at the Japanese in order to bring off the bulk of his shattered army.

The official reports which have arrived are being held at Tsarsko-Seloe, where a council of war is in progress. They will be given out later. It is very questionable if a large portion of the Russian army has been made prisoners, and also whether Kuropatkin will attempt to make a stand at Tie Pass, although the place offers natural advantages for defense and besides has been fortified.

The Generals Break the News.

Bulletin, St. Petersburg—General Kuropatkin has sent the following dispatch to Emperor Nicholas under today's date:

"Last night began the retreat of all our armies. During the night there was no fighting, but a heavy cannonade continued."

Bulletin, Tokio, 8 p. m.—Field Marshal Oyama telegraphs as follows under today's date:

"We occupied Mukden at 10 o'clock this morning.

"Our surrounding movement in which we have been engaged for some days past, has now completely succeeded.

"The fiercest fighting continues at several places in the vicinity of Mukden.

"We captured a great number of prisoners, enormous quantities of arms, ammunition, provisions and war supplies. There is at present no time to investigate the number of these."

Driven from Both Cities.

New Chwang.—According to reliable information received here the Russians have been driven out of Mukden and Fushun and, with the railroad cut, are retreating in a demoralized condition to the hill country toward the northeast.

Detached bodies of Russians are roughly entrenching with a view to checking the pursuit, but no great rear guard action is being fought.

It will be impossible for the Russians to keek up any sort of resistance for many days, as there are no means of provisioning in the rough country through which they are retreating.

It is believed the Russians may attempt to reach Kerin, 25 miles northeast of Mukden, through the valleys, but a special Japanese corps from the direction of the Yalu river (probably General Kamamura's forces) threatens to cut them off.

General Kuroki is advancing northwest and is forcing the Russians against General Nogi's army.

The casualties on both sides have been enormous. The Russians' sixteenth army corps was practically annihilated at Tatchekiao. Eight thousand Russians fell at Liukuanpao.

World's Visible Supply.

New Orleans.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, made up from special cable and telegraphic advices, compares the figures of this week with last week, last year and the year before. It shows an increase for the week just closed of 2341 against a decrease of 136,517 last year and a decrease of 39,694 year before last.

The total visible is 4,172,494 against 4,170,150 last week, 3,371,090 last year and 3,777,000 year before last. Of this the total of American cotton is 3,383,-990 last year and 2,313,008 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,107,000, against 1,026,000 last week, 1,088,000 last year and 1,164,000 year before last.

The total world's supply of cotton as above shows an increase compared with last week of 2,341, an increase compared with last year of 701,404, and an increase compared with year before last of 395,486.

Of the world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and continental Europe 2,094,000 against 1,922,000 last year and 1,398,000 year before last; in Egypt 195,000 against 241,000 last year and 156,000 year before last; in India, 637,000 against 391,000 last year and 694,000 year before last; and in the United States 1,246,000 against 917,000 last year and 929,000 year before last.

*—Corrected by deduction of 18,689 bales Stuyvesant docks fire, taken from week ending March 1st.

New Orleans, March 10.—Secretary Hester gives the taking of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 305,000, this year against 281,000 last year, 284,000 year before last.

Total since September 1st this year 7,306,000 against 7,039,000 last year and 7,247,000 the year before.

Of this northern spinners and Canada took 1,568,000 bales this year, against 1,803,000 last year, and 1,715,000 the year before; southern spinners 1,384,000 against 1,327,000 last year and 1,278,000 the year before; and foreign spinners 4,354,000 against 3,909,000 last year, and 4,254,000 the year before.

PEASANTS SEIZE PENZA

Czar's Advisers Regard Uprising as Most Ominous of All.

THE GOVERNMENT IS ALARMED

Autocracy Faces Rebellion—The Moscow Gazette Calls For a Massacre of Rioters—Policeman is Shot—Uprisings in Poland Continue—Troubles Increase Everywhere in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—At last the autocracy is face to face with actual revolution. The province of Penza, lying in the very heart of European Russia, was taken by armed peasants, who not only gained complete control of the country regions, but soon became supreme in Penza, the capital city, with a thriving population of about 70,000. In the Caucasus the Government no longer tried to conceal the gravity of the situation, and it was decided to suppress the rising by arms.

General Alihanoff led a force out of Batoum against the recalcitrant Georgians in Trans-Caucasia. The body consisted of seven battalions of infantry, six companies of Cossacks and a battery of light artillery. Alihanoff is hated in the Caucasus, as he has been unchanging in brutal attitude toward the strikers and disaffected peasants. The leading merchants and foreigners in the Caucasian regions have been threatend with death in the event of any action in opposition to the revolutionary committee. This threat has been applied to the United States and British consuls in Batoum.

It was said by a prominent Government official that the Czar and his Ministers are keenly distressed over the situation in Penza. The violence of the peasants there was taken as a more ominous sign than the rising general over Poland. The fear of the Emperor arises from the precedent of the French Revolution, when the rising of the peasants turned out to be the real starting point of the strife which had its climax in the death of Louis XVI. There are numerous signs of history promising to repeat itself, as, in the case of the French peasants, the country population of Penza has taken to burning the homes of the landed classes. The police of the city of Penza have been unable to suppress the peasants, and it is said that an overwhelming force will be drafted from the Moscow garrison to bring the peasants speedily to submission. Penza is 350 miles from Moscow, and troops are said to have been already dispatched from the old capital.

In a minor degree the activity of the Penza peasants was enacted in almost every corner of the empire. The intense seriousness of the crisis was not known generally here, as the Government maintained a rigid censorship on all dispatches. The alarm of the Emperor and his advisers, however, was reflected in an editorial in the Moscow Gazette, the traditional mouthpiece of the autocracy, and the most rabid of all the reactionary organs. The Gazette unqualifiedly asserted that the "present revolt" in the interior should be put down immediately in the way which General Michael Muravieff crushed the Polish and Lithuanian rebellion in 1863. This was the first published admission of rebellion, and coming from an inspired organ, it was taken as a practical announcement from the Government.

Warsaw, Poland.—Renewed outbreaks on all the railroads became imminent as a result of the different companies having decided that it would be impossible to pay the increased wages conceded to the strikers a couple of weeks ago. The management of the Vienna railway called a meeting of the stockholders to discuss the financial problem raised by the new conditions. A careful revision of the lists of employes showed that the increase in wages promised to the strikers summed up to $490,000 instead of the $375,000 as originally estimated. The workmen who returned from strike say that they would walk out at once should the company revoke its concession. The railroad officials said they could not pay the existing wages and run their lines. The Governor-General tried to break the deadlock, but so far without success.

A policeman was shot by striking shop assistants, and at the same time an infantryman, enraged by the taunts of strikers, seriously wounded a man and a little girl. A bullet from the soldier's rifle pierced the bodies of the couple, and it is feared recovery is impossible.

SHIP'S OFFICER A SUICIDE.

A. B. Edwards Jumps Overboard From Friesland in Midocean.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A. B. Edwards, Second Officer of the steamship Friesland, which arrived here from Liverpool, jumped overboard in mid-ocean and was drowned.

The suicide occurred at night, and is said to have been due to religious mania. Edwards' home was in Liverpool. He was thirty-six years old.

BALTIC FLEET STARTS HOME.

Admiral Rojestvensky Now Has Nothing Left to Do.

Paris, France.—The whole Russian fleet has left Madagascar waters, a dispatch to the Temps from Tananarivo reports, on its return to Jibutil, French Somaliland.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St, Opposite Court House
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

W. F. MIDDLETON, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
CLANTON.

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Improvement in Trade.

Trade reports are still somewhat conflicting, but on the whole improvement has followed more settled weather, and the outlook is considered favorable, even in sections where current business is irregular.

"TEARS, IDLE TEARS."

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy Autumn-fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail,
That brings our friends up from the underworld,
Sad as the last which reddens over one
That sinks with all we love below the verge;
So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awakened birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remembered kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret;
O Death in Life, the days that are no more.

—Tennyson, "The Princess."

AUNT MARIA'S MONEY.

* * * * * * *

By B. F. Paul.

When my youngest uncle came home and told my grandfather that he was engaged to Miss Smithers, the dear old man was paralyzed with dismay, and all his relations and friends who knew Miss Smithers were paralyzed, too, and expressed their opinion that my uncle had been thwarted all through the machinations of old Smithers.

This was a year or so before I was born. By that time the lady had quarreled with her husband's relations, and by the time I was eighteen she had quarreled with the other half, only excepting myself, for whom, for some unaccountable reason, she had conceived a violent and somewhat embarrassing affection. As by this time my parents were dead and had left their children very ill provided for, we thought it better from parental motives to encourage this affection, my aunt being one of our few prosperous relations, and not only wealthy one, as, in addition to her own fortune, she had caused my late uncle to make a will leaving her absolute mistress of all he possessed; so when he died she was worth a considerable fortune. Her two sons were entirely dependent on her supplies, and as she had already quarreled violently with the elder, there was every chance that she might leave me a comfortable income. I therefore responded with hypocritical warmth to her fond overtures, and always accepted her frequent and pressing invitations, though I found much weariness and not a little irritation from her exacting society.

These visits were, however, rendered endurable by the society of my cousin Edgar, the younger and favorite son, of whom I was really very fond, and with whom I sometimes even fancied myself in love when wearied with the excessive ardor of Cyril Cavendish, an impecunious bank clerk, who had fixed his youthful affections upon me, and whose assurances as to my personal charms were often a great comfort to me when wounded in spirit by the plain speaking of my brothers.

One day Edgar came to me with a greatly perturbed expression, and said he wanted me to help him out of a difficulty. I said I would do my best, and, after some beating about the bush, he informed me that he was deeply in love with Augusta Denaby, a rather pretty girl who lived in the next parish.

"Augusta Denaby?" I exclaimed. "Why, you know Aunt Maria detests her and would cut you off with a dollar if you ventured to marry her!"

"That's just the difficulty," responded Edgar. "Just because Mrs. Denaby offended mother a dozen years ago, she hasn't a good word to say for any of the family. She has hardly spoken to any of them, and, I believe, has never even seen Augusta. I am sure, if she once got to know her, she couldn't help liking her, and now that Mrs. Denaby is dead, there's no reason the enmity should be kept up. But, you see, Kitty, mother has made up her mind that you and I are to marry each other, and she is expecting me to propose to you while you are here."

"But I don't want to marry you," I returned, with some warmth, Cyril suddenly becoming precious in my sight.

"I know you don't," replied Edgar, "and I don't want to marry you, so we are of one mind on that point. But you see, Kitty, I shall get no peace till I ask you, so what I want you to do is to refuse me and then I can tell mother that you wouldn't have me, and I shall be reduced to despair and go off and marry Augusta, and mother will throw all the blame upon you. Then we shall gradually work round, so that mother will get to know and like Augusta, and all will end happily."

I was filled with indignation at this suggestion. Mean, selfish fellow! Why should I be sacrificed, just to further his own ends, and be deprived of the comfortable provision for the future upon which I was depending at my aunt's death? I resolved upon revenge.

"Very well," said I, coldly. "I will do what I can for you. But you are sure your mother wants us to marry?"

"Yes; she asked me only this morning if I had proposed yet," he replied.

"Very well, then, do so," said I.

"Well, then, Kitty, will you be my wife?" said Edgar.

"With pleasure!" I responded, with a sweet smile.

"But, Kitty, you must refuse me," said Edgar, much taken aback.

"I shall do nothing of the sort," said I, with gentle firmness. "Far be it from me to go against the wishes of my dear aunt, to whom I owe so much. I shall go and tell her at once how happy you have made me."

I did, and my aunt embraced me warmly, almost with tears, and I embraced her with equal fervor, and told her that I could never do enough to show my gratitude.

My aunt insisted that we should be married at once, only allowing time for the purchase of an elaborate trousseau with which she intended to provide me.

The unfortunate Edgar was nearly distracted. To break off his engagement with me would involve his mother's displeasure, more than his refusal to propose in the first place would have done. He raved and stormed in his rage, declared he would commit suicide rather than marry her, would point me at the altar, would like it in the best recognized way after we were married. But to all these flights I opposed a determined coldness of demeanor and lavished a great show of affection upon Augusta in the presence of my aunt, to whom he was unwillingly obliged to respond.

Our wedding day drew near, and Edgar, finding me unmoved by threats, now had recourse to entreaties, and even secretly brought Augusta to add her prayers to his, but to their pitiful means I only responded that nothing would induce me to disappoint my dear aunt, even if I had to sacrifice my life's happiness to the cause.

It may readily be supposed that I had not spoke the slightest intention of allowing Edgar to marry me. I interpreted his advice not into rejecting me, a course which would, I knew, deeply offend my aunt and would probably oust Edgar altogether from her favor, in which I then hoped to rise still higher by the representation that Edgar's cruelty had broken my heart. However, as the day approached and Edgar showed no signs of open rebellion, I began to be a little alarmed. What if, after all, I had to reject Edgar? That would be fatal! My aunt would never speak to me again.

The morning before the appointed wedding day Edgar came to me, pale and fierce.

"Are you determined to keep up this farce to the end?" he inquired.

"Farce?" said I, raising my brows. "I intend to obey my beloved aunt, if that is what you mean."

"Then take the consequences," he retorted, as he departed angrily and banged the door.

That evening a note was discovered in Edgar's room informing his mother that when she read it all would be over, that he could not obey her wishes in marrying me, and, rather than run counter to them, he had resolved to destroy himself.

The distracted mother was beside herself with grief. She rushed here and there, giving contradictory orders; she ran up and down stairs as if searching for some sign of his presence; she dispatched search parties in the hope that he might yet be discovered alive; but nothing could be found, except his coat and hat on the bank of a river.

The conclusion come to was that the unfortunate young man had drowned himself, though no trace of the body could be discovered.

"You are my only hope and comfort," cried my aunt, weeping on my neck. "You must never leave me, darling!"

With some misgivings, I promised I would not.

The next morning, at an early hour, Mr. Denaby appeared in a state of distraction. Augusta, it seemed, unable to bear the idea of resigning Edward to any other bride, had also drowned herself. Her cloak and hat had been discovered on the bank of the river, which was being dragged for the body, but so far without success.

The bereaved parents wept together, and so touching was their grief that I cried, too, although I had not the slightest apprehension that Augusta and Edgar had really drowned themselves.

However, as months passed on and nothing was heard of either of them, I began to feel rather anxious and to wonder what had befallen them.

Meanwhile a common sorrow had drawn the two unhappy households together, and, about a year after these startling events, my aunt astounded me one morning by the information that she and Mr. Denaby had resolved to unite their broken hearts and seek consolation in wedlock.

Here was a nice prospect for me! My aunt had already become very favorably disposed toward her future stepchildren, and would be certain to provide handsomely for them in her will, and, instead of being her sole heiress, I was suddenly confronted with seven rivals—the number of Augusta's brothers and sisters—and might think myself fortunate if I got off with an eighth part of what I had considered my due.

The marriage took place, and the Denabys migrated from their small house to my aunt's handsome mansion, in which I now felt myself an interloper. I returned to my former home, where my eldest sister was struggling to make both ends meet, and where I was not received with much enthusiasm.

In these circumstances, I accepted an offer of marriage from a wealthy gentleman who fell a victim to those charms which no one but Cyril had yet been able to perceive.

On the very day that I wrote to my aunt informing her of my engagement, I received a letter from her, written in great excitement, and incoherently announcing that "Edgar was not in Heaven, as she had hoped," but in Canada, where he and his wife, Augusta, were happily settled and doing extremely well. Having heard of the marriage of their respective parents, they had taken courage to write and inform them that they, too, were married, and not dead, as was supposed; they hoped they should be forgiven and still hold a place in the affections of their friends.

* * * * * * *

Thus all ended well. Edgar has already attained great eminence in his adopted country; Cyril and I are both happily married—to somebody else—and my aunt is so kept in order by her second husband, who has proved to be a person of much decision of character, that she has already begged her eldest son's pardon for having disarded him, and has made an equitable will, dividing her fortune in the most proper and satisfactory manner.

I am glad to say that I am not forgotten.—New York Weekly.

Timid Swains.

"Can you post me on stamp flirtation—the significance of stamps placed in various positions on envelopes?" queried a sentimental youth at one of the postoffice windows. "Yes," said the stamp clerk grimly, "a stamp placed anywhere but in the upper right hand corner of the addressed side of the envelope means trouble—a lot of trouble—for postoffice people whose duty it is to cancel the stamps. And a stamp placed anywhere on the wrong side of the envelope, as is often done by foolish individuals who imagine they are flirting, means delay—the letter being held up under the impression that it is mistamped until some one discovers the stamp on the reverse side. That's the extent of my knowledge on the subject of stamp flirtation." As the crushed youth hurried away the clerk winked at a listener and added: "I never could understand why these mushy individuals don't write their tender sentiments in the letters instead of making trouble for mail handlers by sticking stamps in all sorts of ridiculous positions."—Philadelphia Record.

The "American Accent."

An American correspondent protests against the phrases "American accent" and "nasal twang," which were used in many reports of the Torrey-Alexander mission at Liverpool. For "the impression is a general one that all Americans talk through their noses. The idea is quite as erroneous as if one should assert that all English people talk Cockney." The protest is justifiable. There is no such thing as the "American accent," except in a few words, such as "advertisement," wherein America is superior as to pronunciation and practice.

Nor does the American-born man "talk through his nose." The real difference that we all notice is a difference in the general pitch of voice. The American voice is pitched in a slightly higher key than the English; and here you may find the reason why the American assimilates French so easily. Put roughly, the case is this: the Frenchman talks from his palate, the American from the top of his throat, the Englishman from his chest and the German from his diaphragm.—London Chronicle.

Strange Sport For Divers.

When the great diving bell which is used on the admiralty harbor works at Dover sank into the sea yesterday it surprised a shoal of sprats. The men seated round its sides saw in the glare of the electric light a strange sight. Suddenly the water beneath them became alive with thousands of the tiny fish, which darted hither and thither in their efforts to escape from unexpected captivity. Some succeeded in diving under the edges of the bell, but as the machine descended nearer and nearer to the bottom the few inches of water in it became thick with the fish.

When the bell rested on the ocean bed the men set to work and captured nearly a thousand of the fish. It is not unusual, they say, to catch a fish or two as they go down, but never before has it been their experience to encounter a shoal. The men in the bell work at a depth of forty-three fathoms below the low-water mark. The fish were probably attracted by the electric light which is used in the bell.—London Express.

Gold From River Moss.

Miners along the Trinity River, in northern California, save no inconsiderable amount of gold from the river moss. One country storekeeper at a small place on the river bought, during the season just closed, $1000 worth from them. He says that on the rocks and bedrock along the sides of a channel, especially on riffles and in places where the current is swift, moss forms in the summer months. When the water rises in winter it overflows these places and the moss acts as a gold-saver. When the water begins to fall in summer the miners gather the moss and either put it in the sun to dry, burning it later and panning out the ashes, or they wash it in a tub of water until the gold is all washed out.

NAVY'S FLOATING SHIPYARD

COMPLETE MOVABLE REPAIR SHOP NEARLY READY TO LAUNCH.

Derrick to Lift Big Guns—Any Injury Above Water Line Can be Repaired On Spot—Great Relief to Naval Docks.

What Naval Constructor William J. Baxter calls "a miniature floating navy yard" will take its first plunge into the waters of the East River soon. For months work has been pushed on this strange craft at the navy yard, but not until yesterday did the nature of the vessel get beyond the knowledge of the Naval Constructors and navy yard officers.

Visitors to the navy yard for weeks have wondered at the steel box on the ways near where the battleship Connecticut is being finished, but the officers refused to give up the secret. The design and construction is credited to Constructor Baxter, who has the Connecticut in charge, although he insists, when questioned, that it was only an idea worked out under his supervision.

When the craft is completed the United States Navy will be in possession of a floating repair shop of which the world has never seen, and one which, according to the officials at the navy yard, will make it possible to repair second-class cruisers, gunboats, and torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers in the bay off Tompkinsville the rivers, or in any place where there is water deep enough to anchor.

In recent years a naval officer at the navy yard pointed out yesterday, the American Navy has been growing so fast that it is almost impossible to have proper repair work in the navy yards. How to meet the problem has been under discussion throughout the navy for several years. The new repair craft, it is believed, will end the trouble for all time.

As long as the novelty was only in experimental stages close secrecy was observed. Now that the floating shop is about done the officers, confident that it will prove a success, agreed the other day to give the secret away.

The vessels of the North Atlantic Fleet will have begun to arrive in northern waters from winter manoeuvres when the craft is launched, and, according to one of the constructors, the "floating navy yard" will begin work the minute it takes the water, repairing the smaller cruisers and torpedo boats. This same constructor said last night that he was certain that the floating navy yard would pay for its construction and equipment within four months. In a year or two, he added, floating yards would be scattered all along the Atlantic, Gulf, and Pacific Coasts, and at the principal insular ports, especially the Philippines.

"The floating navy yard" is about 120 feet long, forty feet wide, and will draw about six feet of water. It is built entirely of steel, and every inch of space has been utilized. At one end will be a big steam derrick, capable of lifting twenty tons, while at the other end will be the boilers that will furnish steam to operate dynamos, air compressors, and the derrick. Amidships will be the navy yard proper.

Practically every machine used in repair work will be installed somewhere in this space, including a miscellaneous assortment of electrical and pneumatic lathes, drills, slotters, shears, punches, &c.

The apparatus will be capable of taking off the smaller guns on battleships and armored cruisers and of making minor repairs to the superstructure and interior of great ships. There is nothing pertaining to the smaller craft except a hole below the water line that the little navy yard can't attend to. The roof will be filled with a number of big skylights, which can be removed at will, and through which ordnance and parts of ships can be lowered to the shops.

The floating yard will not be self-propelling, but will have to be towed. This is one of its great advantages, since to construct a self-propelling craft would cost at least five times as much as one that is to be towed, and it would require about three times as long to build it. Again, the propelling machinery would take up a great deal of room.

The craft is practically non-sinkable and can be towed anywhere and for any distance by any steam-going vessel. Should this one prove a success, larger ones will be built.

When Constructor Baxter was asked what name was to be given to the floating yard, he replied:

"I don't know, but how would 'Handy Billie' strike you?"

"Handy Billie? What's that?" he was asked.

"Oh, that's navy talk for a man who knows how to fix anything," he answered.—New York Times.

MISTER AND EQUIVALENTS.

Americans Use Monsieur, Signor, Senor and Herr.

Our English use of the title "Mister" in application to men of foreign nationality is occasionally marked by inconsistencies. We have no hard and fast rule, but in common usage the practice, as applied to four of the leading nationalities, is to employ the equivalent title in their respective languages, and in the case of all other languages to use the corresponding French title. For instance, we call the president of France M. Loubet; we call the Italian composer Sr. Mascagni; we call the Spanish dramatist Sr. Schegaray; we call the German dramatist Herr Sudermann. In the three Latin tongues we use the respective abbervations for "Monsieur," "Signor," and "Senyor." (In the absence of the Spanish letter "enye" from an English font of type it has to be expressed by its phonetic equivalents "ny.") But in the German "Herr" is not abbreviated, so we spell it out. To be consistent we should designate a Russian as "Gospod." Gospod de Witte, for instance, we ought to say, and we should seek out the equivalents in Hungarian, Dutch, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Portuguese (Senhor), Turkish and the rest and apply them, with corresponding accuracy. But knowledge fails us in most of these tongues, so we compromise on French. It would seem a little ridiculous, and possibly it might be offensive to give the proper handle to a German name—"Knight," for instance—though when a German name gets into French by way of Alsace—as those of hundreds of eminent Frenchmen have (Clarel Schwob, who is employed to "do" the "Mercure Etranger" for the German part of speaking it like "Herr" and most of us do. In Germany, however, it would be safe to call almost anybody by "doctor." Doctors are thicker in Germany than colonels are in Kentucky. Nearly every educated German is a doctor of something or other, should we happen to address anybody as "Herr Doctor," and not one it would merely give pleasure as a harmless compliment, just as any non-military Kentuckian is pleased to be taken for a colonel.

To use "Gospod" in addressing or designating a Russian might inadvertently add to the very full vermilion mouthful that the average Russian names make for us. There are so many Germans and Germanic-sounding names in authority in Russia that the German title might not seem out of place. Herr von Witte would appear perfectly natural, but Mr. de Witte is almost invariably used. Probably one reason why we have added French in such cases is that French having so long been the world's polite language we have coined its usages just as unfortunately we have in so many geographical names, like the Hague, Prague and in "Saxe," as in Saxe-Weimar. French seems strikingly incongruous when applied by us to Norwegian or Swedish names—"M. Bjoernson," "M. Ibsen," for instance. Curiously we do not think of giving a Japanese a French handle to his name—rather significantly we make him one of ourselves: Mr. Asakawa, Mr. Kakuzo, we say. English speaking people are alone in attempting to use the titles of other languages rather than their own in designating foreigners. It would be simpler and more consistent to use our own, just as as in other languages they do. Fortunately there is a growing tendency in that direction among us: it is recognized as quite proper to say Mr. Sardou, Mr. Hauptmann, Mr. Galdos, just as we would say Mr. Meredith.—Boston Herald.

Patchwork.

At this season, when "shut-ins" are apt to find time hanging on their hands, suggestions for a new kind of patchwork that possesses the advantage of covering both sides, wadding and quilting, all at the same time, may well be passed on for the benefit of those who do this kind of work. The directions, as sent in by a "Sunshine" friend, are:

"Cut pieces of silk about four and one-half inches square, turn and baste down each of the four sides, leaving squares of four inches. Then fold them over diagonally, making three-cornered pieces; insert a piece of wadding the same size and shape, and baste the edges together. Four of these triangles overhanded make a square block. The effect is good when one triangle in each is of black, one of white or some uniform color, and the remaining two of any color. In joining the blocks together the blocks should be in corresponding position to make a regular pattern.

"The bias lines of two of the silk pieces that go by each other can first be run together by hand or machine on the wrong side, and then each folded over, padded and basted. This avoids having to overhand the bias sides with danger of stretching."—

Plan Milk Pipe Lines

A. G. Miller, of Carlisle, Pa., counsel for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Condensing Company, which has lately bought three big dairies near there and built a big experimental plant at Shippensburg, stated in argument before the Quarter Sessions Court at Carlisle yesterday that if his clients were not disturbed by petty suits their plan was to establish pipe lines running to certain large cities, through which the daily supply of milk from the rural districts would be forced to metropolitan consumers in a manner similar to the present method of pumping oil over long lines.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Capital punishment has been abolished in the State of Nuevo Leon, Mexico, for ordinary criminals, but is reserved for highway robbers, traitors, revolutionists, and such other offenders.

A diet of tomatoes will ward off a bilious attack.

WHISKERS TIME.

A man who looks like Dowie takes you briskly by the hand;
He greets you with effusion and a smile serene and bland.
He asks you how you find yourself and how you're "sklimmin' up,"
Inquires of all the family from Mary to the pup.
You look at him in wonder for a minute, maybe more,
Declaring that you never saw his countenance before.
Then with a well known name he gives your comprehending ear
You'd know him when smooth shaven the whiskerless time of year.

Another chap whose portieres are [illegible]
Comes grinning like a Cheshire cat, hands you a cigar.
What all your woes, how doing we [illegible]
You ogle him dumb, wound ring with [illegible]
And [illegible]
He [illegible]
His [illegible]
W[illegible]
O w[illegible]
M[illegible]
F[illegible]
W[illegible]
F[illegible]
R[illegible]
B[illegible]
H[illegible]

JUST FOR FUN

"We think Jabez will make a politician," [illegible]. "Walks into office out of everything so easily." [illegible]

Father—Can do you think will make my daughter happy? Son—Happy! Say, you should have seen her when I proposed!—Boston Life.

"Who's your friend over there?" "He's no friend of mine." "But I heard you ask him for a loan." "And he didn't let me have it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mrs. Hatterson—I didn't see you at the lecture on the "Simple Life." Mrs. Catterson—Why, no; I had no idea it was going to be such a affair.—Brooklyn Life.

Bibson—Did Foggs trip it on the light fantastic toe? Gibson—Yes, and caused a great outcry. Bibson—Outcry, was that? Gibson—It was his partner's toe.—Town and Country.

Margaret—Mrs. Tinker called while you were away, mem. Mrs. Mistress—Well, thank goodness that I'm out! Margaret—That's what she said, mem.—Boston Transcript.

Lady (with smelly basket of fish)—Dessay you'd rather 'ave a gentleman settin' a-side of you? Gilded Youth (who has been edging away)—Yes, I would. Lady—Same 'ere!—Punch.

"Well," moralized Mr. Nevers, "we are here today and gone tomorrow." "Yes," said Miss Hotsh, glancing at the clock; "I've noticed that about you."—Cleveland Leader.

"Do you think that statesmanship is on the decline in this country? I don't know," answered Senator Sorghum. "I never declined anything worth mentioning." — Washington Star.

"I wonder what it is about balloons that attracts these aeronauts?" said Dumley. "The earth, usually," replied Wiseman. "The attraction of gravitation, you know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mother—O, you bad boy! Your hands again! I'm afraid you're a hopeless case. Tommy (eagerly—Oh, does "hopeless" mean you're going to give up talkin' about it?—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Knowit—I can't just see what a fugue is. Do you know? Miss Harebrain—Certainly. It's one of those horrible family quarrels that southerners carry on through generations.—Judge.

Mrs. Brown—Yes, they're in Egypt now, and will spend the winter on the Nile. Mrs. Malaprop—How nice! They'll get a chance to see all the Pyrenees and the Phoenix, won't they?—Philadelphia Press.

Mirandy—Paw, that chap from the city has been sittin' on the fence all the morning saying nauthin' except that he was gettin' some local color. Pop—Well, I guess he's got it. The fence has just been painted.—Life.

"Yaas, I confess," said Cholly, "I pwefer dear old England to this country. I should like to be a subject of the King." "Vain longing," retorted Miss Pepprey. "Of course, you could never be anything but an object."—Philadelphia Press.

"That politician speaks very flatteringly of you." "Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "it must be for one of two reasons. He wants a favor from me, or else he wants to lull my suspicions and catch me off my guard about something."—Washington Star.

"Mamma," said the little girl who was having her first experience of sleeping in a sleeping car, "Hush, dear," whispered mamma, "you will awaken the others." "But, mamma, I only want to ask one question." "Well, dear, what is it?" "Who has the four upper berths?"—Life.

Mrs. Bejenks (to a casual caller)—Why, how do you do! It's such a pity you didn't come a little earlier—we just finished luncheon. Tommy Bejenks (reproachfully)—Ch, ma, didn't we goin' to have any more? I hadn't had half enough when the door bell rang an' you all jumped!—Cleveland Leader.

"Go on," he said, [illegible]
[illegible] would be proud [illegible] urged me to [illegible] vowed to [illegible] for years. I was [illegible] an [illegible] eighteen can't [illegible] time it came back unclaimed. I wrote again and again, but with the same result. No one can know the [illegible] I endured. For a time I was [illegible] and grieved at his failure to

WHISKERS TIME.

A man who looks like Dowie takes you briskly by the hand, ... with effusion and a smile ... you find yourself and how ... from life to the ... wonder for a minute, ... saw his counte... name he greets ... with shaven—"the ... like a ... that ... when he ... that ... you know ... the ... the ... the

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and WeeklyAtlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

SPECIAL OFFER! !

For the next two weeks we will give The Union, weekly Atlanta Constitution, Farm and Home, and Southern Ruralist of Atlanta—four papers a whole year for only $1.50.

also

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

OFF TO GEORGIA.

Probate Clerk H. I. Honeycutt left for Newnan, Ga., Tuesday evening, carrying certain documents from the Probate Office relating to the case of C. W. Vining, formerly of Dixie, who was sent to the insane asylum from this county in 1893. Vining escaped from the asylum later and now turns up in Georgia charged with murder. As Mr. Honeycutt assisted in taking Vining to the asylum twelve years ago, he is well posted on his case, and will no doubt satisfy the Georgia authorities as to the man's mental condition, but it is to be hoped that the Georgia asylum will hold him secure this time, for Alabama has enough men with homicidal tendencies running loose now.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

As an instance of the progressive work of the Weather Bureau, we understand that it has arranged with the postmaster at Clanton to distribute the daily forecasts of the weather to the patrons of the rural free delivery routes of that office. The forecasts are telegraphed to the postmaster, who is furnished with a stamping outfit and blanks with which to duplicate the information. This is a good move, and will be much appreciated by the progressive farmers of Chilton county, who live near the rural routes and who should now be receiving the weather forecasts daily. The information is given free to the farmers.

Civilization has been threatened every year since its birth, and yet it moves along "with many a backward swinging curve," and will be firmly established long after the evils that threaten it are forgotten.

Although premature burial is extremely rare, except perhaps on the battlefield, the possibility of such an occurrence cannot be denied, observes the British Medical Journal. It is well known that, owing to this possibility, remote as it is, many otherwise strong-minded persons have lived under the shadow of a great fear, and have in their wills directed payments to be made to physicians who should be willing to run the risk of homicide to prevent live burial. It may safely be said, however, that the horrors of the accident are imaginary rather than real. In a person in a state of trance were to be buried while life still persisted in a latent state, it is scarcely conceivable that the victim could awake; the unconsciousness of catalepsy simply would deepen until it became fixed in the dreamless sleep of death.

MARS HILL.

Our settlement is right busy now preparing for planting, but almost everyone seems more interested in corn, oats, peas, potatoes, etc., than they do about cotton. They've figured it out that it is cheaper to hold cotton than to raise it.

We are all sad on account of the death of Mr. John Gothard. He was taken sick March 5 and died on the 10th. He has gone to that country from which no traveller returneth. He was an aged brother of our church, and his seat up in the corner of old Mars Hill will be vacant, and the nail where his hat hung will look bare, and our Sunday school will lose one of its most faithful attendants. When the hour arrived for Sunday school you would find old Bro. Gothard sitting there waiting for the superintendent, and when he went to the recitation bench he generally knew every word of the lesson. He set a good example for us younger people to follow. An aged wife, several children and many relatives and numerous friends mourn his loss. Mrs. Gothard has been very sick and is yet, but accepts her bereavement with Christian resignation, submitting to the Lord's will. The funeral sermon will not be preached until she is able to attend, though she expects to follow him so shortly that they may both be delivered at the same time, but we all hope for her recovery and that she may be spared to us. Every death is a warning to us all, which we should take heed of.

MARS HILLIAN.

HIGHLAND.

The school at this place (which has been under the management of Miss Etta Roper) came to a close on March 9. Miss Etta has taught here twelve months in all, and the closing exercises showed that the pupils had learned to love their teacher, who in her closing remarks said: "I have learned to love these children so that it seems like parting with brothers and sisters, and I will leave my love with them, it matters not where I go." And the tender embraces of the little ones and the fearful good-byes of the larger pupils showed that the love they had for Miss Etta was lasting. The patrons and pupils of district No. 28 will ever remember and appreciate the good Miss Etta has done in morals and education during her seemingly short stay with us. The family of the writer, with whom she boarded while teaching, where she was ever smiling, kind and cheerful, feel as lonely as if one of the family were gone; but we cherish the hope that Miss Etta will be with us again in the next school, but if we never have her again we say, one and all, that no community need be afraid to trust its children to her care.

With good wishes to THE UNION and its readers.

Respectfully,
W. F. CULPEPPER.

LOMAX.

The health here is good at present, and the farmers are in a rush to get in their crops on time. These are pretty days for preparation.

W. Q. Childress was a visitor here Thursday.

Our town is on a boom. We've a saw mill, two stores and a mail-grab. Hurrah for Lomax! You can get bargains here in lumber and merchandise of all kinds.

Don't forget to subscribe for THE UNION, as it's the paper of this county.

"ANOTHER OF THE BOYS."

RANDOLPH.

So much interesting correspondence last week makes us feel enthusiastic. Give us more of it.

Major Howison spent several days last week at Centreville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Honeycutt, of Active, visited relatives here Sunday.

Jasper Gentry, of Shoults, was in town Saturday.

Mr. John Gothard, who lived about seven miles northeast of here in Chilton, died Thursday night. He was an honest man, quiet, unassuming, kind and true, an official member of the Baptist church for many years and a Confederate veteran. His illness was only a few days, and he was laid to rest at Mars Hill cemetery on Saturday.

A Mr. Puckett, of Mountain Creek, has moved into the Smith house near the hotel.

Rev. A. J. Lumpkin visited friends here Friday.

R. M. Hubbard was a welcome visitor Monday.

Died on Saturday, near Macedonia, Lula, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zeke Nix. She was only about 15 years old. We deeply sympathize with the sorrowing relatives.

If you want to get the news from Randolph, Energy, Beth-Salem, Thorsby, Lomax Beat 9, Mars Hill and other points, read THE UNION.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

MOUNTAIN CREEK, ALA.

March 13, 1905.

Editor UNION.

I wish to identify myself with the republican party of Chilton county; also national. I am a straight republican, and I wish my party to know it generally. I've heard that it was rumored that I was a "plated republican," but I want to say right here that all such statements are false. While I am not after any office, I want my party to know that I am with them truly and not "plated."

Yours respectfully,
W. J. PARRISH.

BEAT ONE.

The health in this community is improving, though we have some sickness yet. Mrs. Joseph Littleton is very sick, and Z. T. Dutton's daughter is no better. A son of Daniel Peters died last week after a short illness. John M. Robinson has made arrangements to leave the Robinson Saw Mill Company and intends moving to Hugh Mullins' and make a crop. We are sure Mr. Mullins will be pleased with John. Fred Mullins and Sam Cox have improved the D. H. Mullins place very much with new rails and fixing things up in general. The boys that beat Fred and Sam working will have to hustle. The Clear Creek Lumber Company is going right along with their Railroad. A. J. Davis is working for the company and intends staying with it this year. J. M.

BEAT NINE ITEMS.

"Gee" and "haw" seems to be the topic of the day now.

Mr. J. P. Barrett and son, Charles, made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

Several of our young people attended the show at Thorsby Saturday.

Messrs. J. W. and Andrew Franzen were in our vicinity Tuesday. We are glad to see Mr. J. W. back among us.

Mr. R. W. Scott made a business trip to Independence Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Popwell, of Independence, are visiting Mr. R. W. Scott this week.

Messrs. Jack and Louis Allen made a business trip to Clanton Saturday.

We are glad to see Mr. Jesse G. Hayes, who has been down with the la grippe for several days, able to be out again.

We are having quite an interesting Sunday school at Cedar Grove which meets every Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. Come and bring somebody with you.

Mr. Editor, as I have been requested by some of my neighbors to say something through the columns of your paper on public roads, I will present a few ideas if you have space to spare.

Aside from the educational system and school facilities, the most important theme which should interest our progressive people is the improvement of our public roads. Alabama heretofore has made little progress as a state along this line. She seems to have been dilatory to leave her legendary motto: "Here we rest," and push her way to the front.

The more highly developed a county and its citizens become the better will be their public roads; hence public roads are an index to the development of a community or county in a mental as well as a financial way.

Raise the standard of civilization, and the public roads will keep pace.

No well polished or refined Alabamian will be content to follow the "calf paths" or deer trails as was the savage warrior whom he succeeded.

So let the people of our county awake to their duty and get about making our roads better, and doing this will give us a better rating in the eyes of our neighbor counties—give us better roads upon which to travel, and we will be more than paid for the labor expended in the consciousness that we were doing our duty in keeping pace with the highest standard of civilization.

Yours with apologies,
NIM ROD.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County, Chancery Court, 7th District, Northeastern Division.

Pearl Payne, Complainant, vs. Rome Payne, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of A. C. Smith, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant, Rome Payne, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Rome Payne, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the UNION, a newspaper published in Chilton county, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Rome Payne, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 15th day of April, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter, a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken taken against him in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.

3-15 4t

NOTICE!

The next county meeting of the Southern Cotton Association will be held at Clanton, March 16, at 11 a. m. Each school district organization is entitled to 3 delegates; all districts should meet on March 4th and elect these delegates and attend to such other business as may come before them.

W. H. CONWAY,
County President.
tf

Crops on Hand.

Washington, D. C.—The monthly report of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture will show the amount of wheat remaining in farmers' hands on March 1st to have been about 11,000,000 bushels, or 20.1 per cent of last year's crop, as compared with 20.8 per cent of the crop of 1902 on nand on March 1, 1904, and 24.5 per cent of the crop of 1902 on hand at the coresponding date in 1903.

The corn in farmers' hands is estimated at about 954,000,000 bushels, or 28.7 per cent of last year's crop against 37.4 per cent of the crop of 1903 on hand on March 1, 1904, and 41.6 per cent of the crop of 1902 on hand at the corresponding date in 1903.

Of oats there are reported to be about 347,000,000 bushels or 38.8 per cent of last year's crop still in farmers' hands, as compared with 34.9 per cent of the crop of 1903 on hand March 1, 1904, and 34.9 per cent of the crop of 1902 on hand at the corresponding date in 1903.

Blind Woman Drops Dead.

Birmingham, Ala.—Mrs. Emma Quarles, aged 48, blind, of Vandiver, Ala., on a visit to Rance Brooks, near East Lake, was found dead in her room Friday morning. She was attacked during the night with heart failure. Her body was found lying in the middle of the room. She had evidently gotten out of bed and fallen to the floor with the death stroke.

To Profit and Loss.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The directors of the German National bank adopted a resolution charging the $55,000 deficit in the government reserve fund to profit and loss. The shortage was made up from the undivided profits. They also resolved that the hunt for the missing money would be continued and a vigorous effort will be made to detect the thief.

Vagrants Are Arrested.

Huntsville, Ala.—The fact has come to light that the recent grand jury returned a number of indictments against vagrants and several arrests have been made of those who have no visible means of support. This is the first time this has occurred and there is a scramble among the loafing class to obtain some employment.

Chinese Railway Suspends Service.

Tien Tsin.—Owing to the unforeseen difficulties the Chinese railway administration announces a suspension of train service on Monday until further notice between Koupantze, Yinkow and Sinmintin. The suspension, according to information, is owing to Japanese military authorities insisting upon the railway carrying military stores.

L. and N. Buys Road.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The Atlanta, Knoxville and Atlantic Railroad, running from Knoxville to Marietta, Ga., formally passed into the hands of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which has virtually owned it for months, when a deed was recorded in the local trustees' office Saturday. It will be a part of the Cincinnati-Knoxville line to Atlanta, Ga.

Sunken Steamer is Found.

Charleston, S. C.—The captain of the fishing smack Victoria, arriving here, reports having seen the topmasts of a steamer in fourteen fathoms of water about thirty miles south of Charleston Light, off Bull's bay. The water was clear and the smack sailed near enough to see the funnel and the derricks below the surface. Nothing is known here of a missing steamship.

Selected to Teach Summer School.

Opelika, Ala.—Prof. G. W. Brock, superintendent of the Opelika public school, has been selected as one of the teachers for the summer school for teachers at Tuscaloosa this summer. This school is conducted at the University of Alabama each summer for the benefit of teachers. Professor Brock will teach English, grammar, arithmetic and algebra.

Fast of Five Days.

Florence, Ala.—Weak from a fast of five days, William McGee, of Waterloo in this county, was sent to Tuscaloosa to the asylum for the insane. Since his incarceration in the county jail where he was held while preparations were made for his departure, McGee had absolutely refused to take any nourishment and was in a very weak and exhausted condition.

Salesman Found Dead.

Birmingham, Ala.—S. B. Wiley, traveling salesman for the Toledo, Ohio Threading Machine Company, was found dead in his room in the Hillman hotel. The body was in a kneeling position in a corner of the room, indicating that the man had gotten up from the bed and died before being able to summon assistance.

Connellsville, Pa.—Fire completely destroyed the big plant of the Connellsville Car and Machine company, causing a loss of $150,000 with insurance of $65,000. Martin Mullin, the night watchman, is supposed to have been burned to death.

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. Nancy Kelly, the oldest white woman in Maryland, is dead at the age of 107 years. Her oldest living son is 73 and her youngest daughter is 63.

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democra

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.5

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weely, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the ne of the national campaign, and all the news of all the ea you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming ye

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases a Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bran

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabam

DISPATCH PRINTING CO

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Price

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

IF in our generation the powers cannot be induced to dis if war cannot be made virtually impossible by swee agreements to arbitrate, the danger of conflict may be gre minimized by these agreements to settle all minor disp amicably. With the machinery for such settlement at h it will be employed; there will be a world-opinion which mands it; and the tendency will naturally be over to broader and broader the scope of the compacts, rising the minor to the major. This is progress. And there vast work to be done in mitigating the evils of war, if war there must With the true genius of a world-statesman, Mr. Hay took a long step for when he made his memorable move toward delimiting the area of the Ru Japanese conflict and toward preservation of the integrity of China.

It is in dealing with the collateral issues of war, rather than with dream of universal peace and disarmament, that The Hague conference, w It reassembles, promises to be of the highest service to mankind. There is important question of the rights and immunity of property in transit in ne ships. Mr. Roosevelt renewed to the congress last winter a suggestion w had already been made by President McKinley.—that the executive be au ized to correspond with the governments of the leading maritime powers a view to incorporating into the permanent law of civilized nations the pr ple of exemption of all private property at sea, not contraband of war, capture or destruction by belligerents. Congress authorized such negotia and the state department now awaits a favorable moment,—which cann regarded as at hand till the struggle between Russia and Japan will be bro to close—for presenting the matter to the attention of the powers. Du the summer, seizures at sea by Russian cruisers brought this prolific cau vexatious and hazardous international disputes more acutely before the w and it is obvious that if the next Hague conference achieves nothing else settlement in the international law of what is regarded as contraband of it will have justified its reassemblage. The first Hague conference earne recommended such an agrement.

Other questions raised at that conference, or in the experience of mank and now pressing for adjustment, may be briefly summarized: A conve concerning the laws and customs of war on land; adaptation to naval wa of the principles of the Geneva convention; the prohibition of throwing jectiles from balloons, of the diffusion of asphyxiating gases, and of the of bullets which expand easily in the human body; the use of submarine land mines, such as have worked such dreadful havoc in the present con the inviolability of all private property on land; the regulation o ments of ports and towns by naval forces; the rights and duties of neut the neutralization of certain territories and waters; the protection of states and native races; the condition of the Armenians and other subjec the Turkish Empire, and the situation in the valley of the Congo.—From United States and the World's Peace Movement."—American Monthly Re of Reviews.

CITY OFFICIALS.

—Judson Strock.
—W. M. Wilson, E. G. Rob, I. Mullins, J. M. Potts.
—J. Watts Moore.
—Ed Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.
g Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in Nor.
—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
itor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

g Term—Second Monday in Term—Second Monday in Sep-
r. ncellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
ister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

ond Monday February, first Mon- April, first Monday June, second y July, second Monday August, Monday November.

County Officers.

ge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
asurer—W. T. Callen.
riff—J. M. Morgan.
citor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

t District—W. H. Conway.
ond District—Alex Glasscock.
rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
rth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

tors and clerks are cordially ask- send the editor any news regard- heir churches which they would published. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor- ns.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

n-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd y. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings- F. D. No. 1.

nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

stnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, unday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

erty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman unday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

cedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman unday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

w Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, unday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

lar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, unday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

on Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd y. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

lins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas unday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

on Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas unday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

sant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas unday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

s Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st y. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

hel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; y before the second Sunday; J. ernathy, clerk, Verbena.

ky Mount M. E. Church—Rev arroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song e every 2nd and 4th Sunday af- ns. Prayer meeting every Wed- y night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

nton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Saturday, Clanton.

nde Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No First Saturday, Clanton.

tury Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. First Saturday, Billingsley.

man Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 34—Saturday on or before full Marbury.

lson Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Saturday on or before full moon, on.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Tuesday on or before full moon, on.

I. O. O. F.

odge—First and third Sat-

nton Lodge, No. 304—Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

k Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

Geronerm third Mond cordially in of R.; J. H

Eureka L and fourth

TEACHERS

To Be Held

10 a. m— P. G. Mane 10:30 a. m Rumn, resp 11 a. m— ert, Jones. 11:30 a the Bible l schools? E nie O. Shiv

1:30 p. m buildings. A 2:30 p. m public sch B. R. Ri

Please ta urday in court day in beat 6

tf Just

Mrs. M has opene Thorsby a millinery l county. T very respo Joseph & for five ye tress of st her a call her taste, achieve the

tf

It will trees. A selling pea or more at bunches of Many good this offer. country pr

P.

tf

TO PR

The folle ing of the court in in newspaper 1. Subs press notic sidered as subscriptio 2. If sub tinuance o lishers ma until arrea 3. If sub to take t postoffice they are settled the papers dis 4. If su places with and the pa mer addre sponsible. 5. The tusing to fice or re called for intentional 6. If su they are l end of tha to continu publisher the subscr express no arrearage 7. The a newspap one for fra refuses to the man w to run ab and then mark it " card sent leaves hi fine, the s tf

Rus Men at have gone

THE one of th try, is miles w tf.

ombination Offe
nish the Twice-a-Week
ssue of the Globe-Democra
WITH e Union
FOR rs One Year Only $1.5
-Democrat is issued Semi-Wee every Tuesday and Friday. It and has no equal or rival a dern Newspaper.
ws of the World's Fair, all the ne
and all the news of all the ear
-Democrat during the coming ye
S THE TIME.
and get your best home paper a r of the World's Fair City, Lo
Clanton, Ala.

acobs & Bros.,
re and Rugs.
OLE AGENTS—
Elastic Book Cases an
g Cabinets.
king.
RMINGHAM, ALA

ERCHANDISE AN TILIZERS
R SALE.
al & Mule Bran
Best on Earth"
JONES,
- - Alabam

PRINTING CO.
kers and Lithographers.
ce Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, AL

Restaurant,
Reasonable Price
rth 20th Street,
HAM, ALABAMA.

tion the powers cannot be induced to disa be made virtually impossible by sweep arbitrate, the danger of conflict may be gre these agreements to settle all minor disp h the machinery for such settlement at ha oved; there will be a world-opinion which the tendency will naturally be ever to m eader the scope of the compacts, rising f ie major. This is progress. And there ting the evils of war, if war there must tatesman, Mr. Hay took a long step for ove toward delimiting the area of the Ru eservation of the integrity of China.
llateral issues of war, rather than with armament, that The Hague conference, w the highest service to mankind. There is and immunity of property in transit in neu the congress last winter a suggestion wh lent McKinley,—that the executive be aut ncipals of the leading maritime powers w manent law of civilized nations the pr perty at sea, not contraband of war, f n's. Congress authorized such negotiati waits a favorable moment,—which cannot ch between Russia and Japan will be brou the attention of the powers. Du Russian cruisers brought this prolific caus al a status more acutely before the wo conference achieves nothing else t w of what is regarded as contraband of w ange. The first Hague conference earne

t conference, or in the experience of mank may be briefly summarized: A conven
s of war on land; adaptation to naval war convention; the prohibition of throwing ffusion of asphyxiating gases, and of the n the human body; the use of submarine d such dreadful havoc in the present con roperty on land; the regulation o val forces; the rights and duties of neutr rritories and waters; the protection of dition of the Armenians and other subject nation in the valley of the Congo.—From eace Movement."—American Monthly Re

CITY OFFICIALS.

—Judson Strock.
ell—W. M. Wilson, E. C. Rob
W. I. Mullins, J. M. Potts. rk—J. Watts Moore.
shal—Ed. Smitherman.

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

ing Term—Third Monday in May.
l Term—Fourth Monday in No
er.
ge—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee. licitor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville. rk—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

ing Term—Second Monday in l Term—Second Monday in Sep
er.
ancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
gister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.

st Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

cond Monday February, first Mon
April, first Monday June, second day July, second Monday August,
Monday November.

County Officers.

dge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
easurer—W. T. Callen.
eriff—J. M. Morgan.
lerk—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

st District—W. H. Conway.
cond District—Alex Glasscock.
ird District—R. P. Kendrick.
urth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

of. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

n. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

tors and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard their churches which they would published. Also if there are any s in these notices please send cor ons.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

th-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
ay. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings
. F. D. No. 1.

nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

estnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason,
Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

berty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman
Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

cedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman
Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

w Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

lar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

don Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
ay. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

illus Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas
Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

ek Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas
Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

asant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

rs Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st
ay. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

hel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
ay before the second Sunday; J.
bernathy, clerk, Verbena.

cky Mount M. E. Church—Rev.
Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song ce every 2nd and 4th Sunday af ons. Prayer meeting every Wed y night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

nton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—
Saturday, Clanton.

nde Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
First Saturday, Clanton.

uri Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
First Saturday, Billingsley.

eman Lodge, A. F. and A. M.,
Saturday on or before full Marmony.

ison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Saturday on or before full moon,
on.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Tuesday on or before full moon,
on.

I. O. O. F.

odge—First and third Sat

nton Lodge, No. 304— Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

k Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Geronermo Tribe, No. 90—First and third Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. of R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM,

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wfll.of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Eiland

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO.
J. W. MOORE.
H. L. DAVIS.
W. O. PERRY.
tf Committee.

NOTICE.

Please take notice that the first Saturday in each month is my regular court day at Beth-Salem school house in beat 6

E. B. POPWELL,
tf Justice of the Peace Beat 6.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results.
tf

LOOK OUT!

It will soon be too late to plant trees. As a special inducement, I am selling peach trees in bunches of 20 or more at 5 cents each; plum trees in bunches of 10 at 7 1-2 cents each. Many good varieties are included in this offer. For a quantity I will take country produce of most any kind.

P. C. SMITH, Thorsby, Ala.
tf

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.
tf

Russian Naval Men Strike.

Men at the Russian naval dockyard have gone on strike.

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.
tf. T. M. Driver.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to Mch 15, '05, 6,406
Price on same date, 7 1-2c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648,
Price same date, 15 3-8c.

LOCAL AN DPERSONAL.

W. R. Taylor was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

J. M. Maddox was in Clanton Thursday.

T. W. Atchley is back from Kellerman, making another of those who say Chilton is the best spot on the earth.

Rev. J. H. Thomas was in Clanton Thursday.

W. J. Headley and J. H. Thompson were in town Friday.

Hon. W. W. Wadsworth was a visitor here Saturday.

Judge Reynolds and Clerk Collins spent Saturday in Thorsby.

G. W. Shaw and I. M. Brantley were in town Tuesday.

W. J. Williams was a pleasant visitor Tuesday, bringing the subscription of Mrs. A. E. Williams for THE UNION. Come often, brother.

W. J. Parrish, of Mountain Creek, sent in his "sub" for THE UNION last week. Mr. Parish runs a general merchandise business and meat market at the "Creek," and we hear is doing a thriving business. Read his letter in this week's paper.

H. W. Devaughan was in Clanton Tuesday.

Chancery court was in session the fore part of this week, Hon. W. W. Whiteside presiding.

Alex Boutwell was in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Henry Honeycutt visited Jemison Wednesday.

Judge Reynolds is experiencing a good deal of trouble with his eyes, and Dr. Thigpen, of Montgomery, who is treating him, insists on him wearing glasses. The judge don't want to be bothered with spectacles, but "needs must when the — drives —."

Dr. J. P. Hayes is having a nice office building erected on his Sixth street front. The builder, Charles Eastlund, of Thorsby, will turn out a first-class job.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. B. Anderson and Mrs. Nora Hurst. W. T. Davis and Miss Janey Belvin. Napoleon Thomas and Miss Ethel Lee Deramus.

COLORED.

Will Owens and Della Slaughter.

NEW BLACKSMITH SHOP.

A. C. Marcus has opened a blacksmith shop near Madison Bean's, where he is prepared to do the best of work in that line.
tf

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Count Tolstoi has opened book stores in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

Emperor William possesses over 150 full military and naval uniforms.

Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, Md., is a fervent advocate of pedestrianism.

The King of Siam is the only independent Buddhist sovereign in the world.

King Alfonso of Spain is hesitating among three royal maidens in his choice of a bride.

Secretary William H. Taft will be the orator at the Yale Law School commencement next June.

The Sultan of Turkey and the Queen of the Netherlands are the only total abstainers among European sovereigns.

John La Farge, the painter, has a high opinion of the wit of beggars, the street mendicant being one of his favorite studies.

It is said on good authority that J. P. Morgan's greatest charity is keeping young boys off the streets by getting them work.

Mrs. Carnegie, wife of the millionaire, though the daughter of an old New England family, is as devoted to Scotland as her husband.

Another camera enthusiast is the German Empress. She has taken innumerable photographs of things that have interested her, and her collection of pictures is unique.

Many a man has made a fortune by working in the time he might have spent in worrying about his prospects or regretting his mistakes.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

"L" AND SUBWAY STRIKE

Traffic Lines in New York City Partially Tied Up.

POLICE RESERVES CALLED OUT

After Three Days the Roads Again Operate Under Regular Schedule—Strike Breakers Imported From Other Cities—The Demands of the Employes—Local Union Expelled.

New York City.—The collapse of the strike on the subway and elevated lines was marked by a general attempt on the part of the former employes to recover their lost positions, and by the announcement that the local union had been expelled from the Brotherhood of Engineers.

Upon his arrival in Cleveland, Ohio, after a conference with labor leaders here, Grand Chief Warren S. Stone, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, sent a telegram to William L. Jencks, the head of the local union of motormen who went on strike, revoking the charter of the union. The telegram read as follows:

"To take effect at once, the charter of Local No. 105, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is hereby revoked. You will please forward the charter and all books belonging to the subdivision to this office by express.

"WARREN S. STONE."

The strike was begun three days prior to this by the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which the motormen of both the "L" and subway lines were members.

The grievances of the striking men briefly were a demand for higher wages by conductors, station agents, ticket choppers and porters.

Working hours to be cut from twelve to ten hours per day, with a fifteen-minute "swing" between "runs."

The other demands were as follows:

That the present physical examination now in force against motormen and other employes should be eliminated, and a practical road test substituted instead, to take effect January 1, 1905.

A day's work for motormen and other trainmen to be nine hours or less, motormen's mileage not to exceed 100 a day.

Relay for motormen, when headway is less than six minutes, should be allowed at southern terminals, loop or no loop.

The men said this was not now done.

All road work, on trains with or without passengers, should be done by qualified motormen.

For all employes, excepting tower switchmen, nine hours to constitute a day's work, with time and a half for overtime.

Tower switchmen, eight hours or less to constitute a day's work, with one day off duty a month with pay; time and a half for overtime.

At 4 o'clock in the morning the strike was in full force. Trains had been taken to their destinations by the crews, and there deserted. The men obeyed implicitly the command of their leaders and quit work on the dot.

Many trains were deserted a few minutes before the hour in order to avoid beginning a new trip which it would be necessary to complete to escape arrest, the law providing that it is a misdemeanor to desert a train before the destination is reached.

Other trains manned by strikers were compelled to run several minutes past the hour to complete the trip. But as closely to the hour as possible all trains in the Interborough system were deserted, as leaders Pepper and Jencks had ordered.

The Interborough company had been making ready for ten days to meet the emergency if it should arise. At No. 34 Dey street a vacant store was rented as an office, and an advertisement inviting able-bodied men with railroad experience to apply for places brought such a flood of responses that by 7 o'clock that night fully 600 men had been examined as to their capabilities, placed on record and sent up town to report at various points where agents of the company were waiting to receive them. James Farley, the "strike breaker," was in charge of the Dey street headquarters.

While he was sending his men to the yards by different routes, the steamboat Northam, of the J. D. Daly Towing line, steamed over from the Jersey shore to the pier at 152d street, where she made fast and was surrounded at once by a squad of policemen and Central Office detectives. She carried 800 or 900 men to be added to the Dey street force. They kept out of sight in the cabins and below decks, and were not permitted to communicate with any one on shore.

At 11 o'clock the police reserves from all the stations, where they had been held to the number of more than 3000 in all precincts, were ordered to stations of the "L" and the subway.

Within twenty-four hours the subway was running its trains with fair regularity, and seventy-two hours after the strike had been declared the regular schedule was being adhered to. On the elevated lines nearly the same result was accomplished by the company aided by the police.

The order of Grand Chief Stone, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, ordering the striking motormen to return to work practically ended the episode.

Lynched For Larceny.

Charged with larceny, Ronce Gwynn, colored, was lynched at Tullahoma, Fla.

The total amount of American cars for 1903 was very close to 14,000, valued at $15,000,000. For 1904, the total production was about 18,500 cars, valued at $22,000,000. Thus it will be seen that while the increase in stocks has been about thirty per cent., the increase in value was nearly fifty per cent., indicating that more of the larger and higher priced cars were turned out in 1904, concludes Leslie's Monthly.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes,
FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

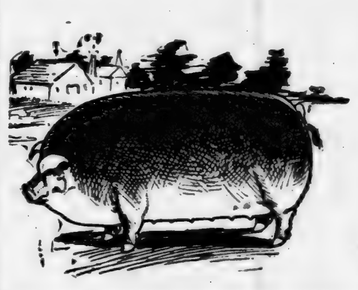
..My Specialty..
SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made.
Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.
Barred Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh eggs for 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.


PURE BRED
Duroc Jersey Hogs.
Write us for prices before you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

The Three Sons.

A poor man called his three sons round,
And then to them he said,
"I can't support you all, I've found,
So you must earn your bread.

"Out in the world I bid you go,
Your fortunes for to seek;
I'm sorry, but it must be so;
You'll leave within a week.

"In five years all return to me,
And tell me what you've done.
I hope I shall have cause to be Proud of each mother's son."

Now John was strong, and James was smart,
And Tom was fair to see,
Each started out with beating heart,
A-wondering what to be.

The five years passed, and strong John came Back home to see his pa;
He said, "I've not disgraced our name—
I run a trolley car!"

Smart James the next one to return;
A drummer on the road
Was he; he told what he could earn;
His samples, too he showed.

And then Tom drove up to the door,
(Remember, he was "fair")—
He said, "My wife is eighty-four—
But she's a millionaire!"
—The Observer, in Town Topics.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE BEAR.

A FRENCHMAN'S FANTASY OF BARNUM AND INDIA.

Translated From the French.

Summoned in haste for an unexpected meeting, the Town Councillors of Sydney City assembled in the Senate Hall. Sydney City is one of the quietest and most peaceful communities in India. Nothing unexpected ever happens there and the days pass in serene monotony. This may serve to explain the tumultuous emotions of the worthy councillors on this occasion.

Arriving at the hall, they hastened to ask what was the matter. Had any terrible catastrophe occurred? Had the police discovered some new and horrible crime? The eager questions flew from one side of the room to the other, but to no purpose. No one knew anything about the matter.

Finally, to their great relief, a bell rang, the door opened and the president of the council, the venerable Rajah Por, appeared. But alas! the uneasiness felt by his colleagues was only too clearly stamped upon his own face. He looked haggard and worn.

Taking his seat, Rajah Por began, in a cavernous voice:

"The ancients, our masters in the noble art of learning——"

The president was a well instructed man, but he had selected a poor time to air his erudition. From all sides of the hall came low murmurs.

"Tell us the reason for our assembling. What has happened?"

The President bowed graciously.

"Very well, then, gentlemen. This is the reason of your presence here now. You know that his Excellency the Governor is about to honor Sydney City with a visit for the first time. I do not hesitate to say that we have done all in our power to prepare a magnificent and worthy reception for him. Who could have foreseen what has actually occurred?

"This morning I received a telegram from his Excellency. It contained these simple words: 'Arrive to-morrow morning early for a bear hunt.'"

The Councillors gave one low, simultaneous groan. There is one indispensable condition for a bear hunt. There must be a bear. And hunting for bears in the pleasant forest around Sydney City would be like fishing for crocodiles in the Atlantic Ocean!

"We are ready for discussion," said the president, as a horror-stricken silence fell upon the room. "I entreat you all to show the greatest calm. Do not all talk at once."

He might better have said, "Do not all be silent at once," for no one said a word. The president insisted.

"Some one must say something. Kaschemir-Kousch, you are a clever man, what is your opinion as to the best thing to be done?"

Kaschemir-Kousch ventured the opinion that the wisest thing to do was to tell his Excellency that, as there were no bears in Sydney City, it would be unnecessary for him to postpone his visit.

This proposition was immediately voted down. If the Governor wanted a bear, a bear must be procured. It would be highly impertinent to suggest to his Excellency that he was but poorly informed of the fauna of one of his own cities.

"Rahmasson, what have you to say?" asked the president.

Rahmasson suggested weakly that a mechanical bear might be made which would answer the purpose. There was no time for this, however, and the suggestion was passed by.

"Surah-Maboul, have you any advice to offer?" continued the president, in a voice that sounded almost imploring.

Surah-Maboul was silent for a moment, and then a brilliant inspiration seized him. "Why should not a bear skin be borrowed somewhere and one of the Councillor dress up in it and enact an appropriate pantomime?"

This idea was received with much applause until one of the members remarked plaintively:

"But, his Excellency would shoot at us and that would not be pleasant."

Once more silence filled the hall. To organize a bear hunt without any bear, this was the problem that confronted them. No wonder they were utterly discouraged.

Presently one of the youngest Councillors rose to his feet.

"My dear colleages," he said, "I have an idea!"

Every eye was immediately turned upon him and every pair of eyebrows raised in inquiry.

"Do not ask me to explain my idea. It is a secret! Only be prompt at the meeting tomorrow. The bear will be there."

The Senate, as one man, drew a long breath of relief. The question was settled. There would be a bear.

The next morning at daybreak every one was at the place of meeting. The entire Council was to be present at the hunt. The President, Rajah Por, received the Governor with a long speech, in which he lauded his Excellency as the greatest among men, and the Council gaped in admiration of the brave spectacle he presented.

So complete a hunting outfit as that worn by the Governor had never before been seen in Sydney City. Could it be possible for one man to use so many knives, pistols and guns, or was it a walking arsenal that was before them? The Councillors gasped and almost forgot their anxiety about the bear.

The Governor appeared to be delighted. Methodically he went over the ground and took his precautions, meanwhile copiously explaining the rules and regulations of the noble sport of bearing hunting. Suddenly in the midst of his discourse a loud roaring was heard.

The Councillors looked at each other in relief and the Governor grew slightly pale.

"The bear!" he murmured.

There was a cracking of broken twigs, a heavy tread and from an opening in the trees appeared a bear, a real bear with a long and shaggy coat and ferocious claws.

The youngest Councillor looked about him in triumph.

"Didn't I tell you so?" commanded the Governor. "Leave me alone to face the enemy!"

The enemy paused. For an enemy he seemed strangely peaceful. He sat still on his haunches and looked about him. Just then a low whistle sounded from the direction of the youngest Councillor.

"Dear me, it is never wise to do that," cried the Governor, "just see what will happen——"

As he spoke the bear raised his head and then continued to move forward, but in what a strange manner. Erect upon his hind legs, he almost seemed to be dancing.

"Exactly as I thought," cried his Excellency, in a trembling voice, "he is most dangerous now!"

"Ha-hum!" murmured Rajah Por, to the youngest Councillor, a trained bear!"

"Hush!" replied the Councillor in a whisper, "Barnum's circus is in Sydney City just now! Was it not a glorious idea? But don't let the Governor hear us!"

The Governor could not have heard. He had reached the critical moment when he required all his courage and presence of mind. He raised his gun to his shoulder. The bear continued to approach.

Bang! went his Excellency's gun. The bear paused, undecided. Bang, bang! The bear fell motionless.

"Good!" murmured the youngest Councillor enthusiastically. He is a wonderfully trained bear. At one shot, he comes forward; at two, he falls; at three——" He stopped abruptly, the Governor was rushing toward his victim, his face aglow with unexpected success.

"Hurrah!" he cried.

Suddenly his Excellency's voice froze in his throat. The bear, considering that he had remained prostrate as long as the rules required, rose to his hind feet and proceeded with the third figure.

Delicately grasping his Excellency around the waist, he began to waltz briskly. In spite of himself the Governor was obliged to keep time. His face was convulsed. Queer cries from his parted lips. As if to tranquilize him, the bear gently licked his cheeks.

It was too much. In not one of his books on sports had the Governor ever read that it was the custom of bears to waltz with their hunters and to lick their cheeks. Had it been a case of fighting an infuriated animal, his Excellency would not have been embarrassed. As it was, he fainted——

On page 237 of the official report prepared by his Excellency the Governor at the conclusion of his last journey may be read the following:

"The immense forest which surrounds Sydney City is inhabited by the most ferocious wild beasts. I have myself experienced their terrors during a bear hunt in which I barely escaped alive.

"The animal, of a size rarely equaled in its immensity, fell to the ground, pierced by two balls from my rifle. As I approached to give him the last stroke of the knife, he drew himself up in one supreme effort.

"I owe my present existence only to the fortunate presence of mind which prompted me to throw myself upon the ground and simulate death. As is well known, bears do not touch dead bodies.

"Captured by my companions, the enormous animal was offered in my name to the Barnum menagerie, where it may now be admired by all for its great size as well as its unusual intelligence. Recovered from the wounds I dealt, which apparently have left no trace, it has learned with surprising rapidity the tricks and exercises common to circus shows. To-day he lies down, performs his toilet, dances, simulates death, and waltzes as if he had never done anything else in his life."

RADIUM IN THE SUN.

Prof. Snyder Finds It in Aurora Borealis and in Star Spectra.

Professor Monroe B. Snyder, of the Philadelphia Observatory, read a preliminary paper before the members of the American Philosophical Society on his recent announcement of the discovery of radium in the photosphere of the sun, which discovery is more important than appears on the surface, because, if Professor Snyder is borne out by subsequent investigations, it means the entire destruction of many laws of science which have been regarded as fixed. Kischoff's law of radiation and absorption, for instance, is ruthlessly set aside by the new discoveries, as well as the nebular theory of the formation of celestial bodies and many other accepted beliefs of physicists.

In this the professor finds the cause of heat and luminosity of the celestial bodies. The variable stars, the professor thinks, are not caused by one body revolving about another, but he attributes their regular fluctuations of light to the fact that they are bodies which have periodical outbursts of radio-activity. This he calls critical radio-activity, and makes the statement that the sun is a variable star, with a period of eleven years, and that sun spots are one of the demonstrations or results of those outbursts of radium emanations.

The presence of certain rings of light which have been observed in the nebula of Orion and other nebulæ by prominent observers, have never been satisfactorily explained. These rings are clearly to be seen in the photographs of that particular portion of the heavens, but their cause has been a matter of conjecture.

Professor Snyder now says that he has sufficient evidence to warrant him in making the assertion that they are the visual evidences of the passing from medium to another of the radium emanations, or what the professor calls critical radio-activity. This radio-activity plays a most important part in the energy of the universe. In it the transformations of energy and matter are bound up together. Behind the positive action is a negative process by which the discharge of the element, with its light and any material which may be carried with them, are again coalesced into stars and probably future worlds.

Professor Snyder quotes the works of Soddy and others, who intimated the possibility of the existence of some vast and unsuspected power or agency at work around us.

THEY MAKE SNOW IMAGES.

Much Skill Shown by Residents of Andreasberg, Germany.

In the little town of Andreasberg, in the Harz Mountains, of Germany, making snow images has been reduced to a science, under the stimulus of an annual snow festival, in which the residents of the town compete for prizes.

Those New York boys who, rolling three balls of snow of different sizes into shape, pile one atop of another and gouging holes in the uppermost, have styled them eyes and mouth and the whole "a snow man," should pay a visit to Andreasberg. The snow men there are to the snow men of American youth as the works of the master sculptor are to the efforts of the neophyte. There a snow man is a man indeed. Nor is the skill of the townspeople confined to the snow man. Feminine figures, groups, animals, mechanical devices and many others as difficult of execution are worked out in snow.

The festival, organized in 1895, has come to be an affair of considerable interest in that part of Germany, and during the time it is in progress the little village is thronged with guests. One year four thousand persons enjoyed the sport.

The task of the judges is by no means an easy one. In back yards, front yards and in the streets before the houses the models have been set up. That worker in the snow is wisest who waits until the last moment and then works swiftly and skilfully, for the sun is no more merciful to snow in that country than in this. Many a good sculptor's work has been reduced to a shapeless mass before the judges got around just because the sun would not hide its face.

A favorite custom among the snow sculptors is to reproduce a scene from some well known fairy tale. Thus at one of the festivals of the Pied Piper of Hamelin was pictured a group of snow children dancing merrily to the imaginery music from his snow pipe. Little Red Riding Hood, in a hood as white as snow, confronted a huge white wolf. The Babes in the Wood faced a wicked old witch, who later got her just deserts beneath the rays of the sun. Love and the Lion was another snow piece, in which love looked rather cold, but either the weather or the sight of her literally caused the lion's mouth to "water."

An electric car was a feature of one festival. It was a fine piece of work originally, but a day or two in the sun made it look as if it had figured in a wreck.

A steam engine in which many of the intricate parts of the real machine were reproduced in snow was the feature of another festival.—New York Tribune.

The most successful fiction writer in England is Silas K. Hocking, of whom little or nothing is known in the United States. He was once a Methodist minister.

Fact and Fancy for Little People

The Sing-Away Bird.

O say, have you heard of the sing-away bird,
That sings where the Runaway river
Runs down with its rills from the bald-headed hills
That stand in the sunshine and shiver?
"O, sing; sing-away; sing-away,
How the pines and the birches are stirred
By the trill of the sing-away bird!

And the bald-headed hills, with their rocks and their rills,
To the tune of his rapture are ringing,
And their faces grow young, all their gray mists among,
While the forests break forth into singing.
"O, sing; sing-away; sing-away!"
And the river runs singing along,
And the flying winds catch up the song.

It was nothing but—hush! A wild white-throated thrush
That emptied his musical quiver
With a charm and a spell over valley and dell
On the banks of the Runaway river.
"O, sing; sing-away; sing-away!"
Yet the song of the wild singer had
The sound of a soul that was glad.

And beneath the glad sun many a glad-hearted one Set the world to the tune of his gladness;
The river shall sing it, the breezes shall wing it,
Till life shall forget its long sadness.
"O, sing; sing-away; sing-away!"
Sing, spirit, who knowest joy's giver,
Sing on, by Time's Runaway river!
—Lucy Larcom.

The Magic Bottle.

Here is a trick that will prove a puzzle to those who are not pretty well up in physics.

Take an ordinary dinner plate and fill it with water, then a small empty bottle, and assure the spectators that you are wizard enough to pour water through the solid bottom of the latter.

Pass the bottle around, that all may see it perfectly empty and dry, then, having thrust a stick into it and held it to the fire until it is very hot—too hot to hold in the bare hands—stand it, mouth downward, in the plate of water. At the same time pour a tablespoonful of water on the upturned bottom, as if you were beginning to fill it in that way.

Each time you do this the bottle will be seen to retain more water, and as a corresponding amount will have disappeared from the plateful from which you are dipping it, it will easily appear as though the water had passed through the bottom of the bottle.

The Giraffe "Lives High."

"You can always tell giraffe country at a glance," said Capt. Manel, the big game hunter. "A place of low bushes or no bushes or trees at all is sure not to have any giraffes in it. Always look for low trees with abundant leafage before you look for the giraffes.

"No matter how fertile the ground may be, or how full it may be of fine juicy grass and other vegetation that would furnish abundant food for the giraffes, you won't be likely to find them unless there are trees. The reason for this is that it is very nearly as hard for a giraffe to browse on the ground as it would be for a man to stoop over without getting on hands and knees, and pick something up from the ground with his mouth.

"There is no more awkward and painful sight than to see one of these beautiful beasts feeding from the ground. It straddles till they look as if they were being stretched like India rubber.

"Then it slowly and clumsily lowers its body, jerking its forelegs spasmodically to keep its balance. That is why a giraffe is not eager to browse on low-growing vegetation."

Trick with Cards.

Here is a card trick that any bright boy can perform, and a little practice will make him so skillful that no one can detect it. Hold out the pack, face downward, and ask some one to draw out four cards. Then ask him to look at them and to think of one of the four. Of course he must not tell you what card he thought of.

When he hands the four cards back to you, you must put two of them at the bottom of the pack and two on the top, but you must do this so dextrously and neatly that it will not be noticed. Here is where your practice will be needed.

Now in handing the pack, withdraw four cards of any sort, no matter what they may be, and place them under the two cards that you have put at the bottom of the pack. Then, taking six cards from the bottom, spread them out on the table and ask the person if the card he thought of is among them.

If he says no, you are sure that it is one of the two that you put on top. You then pass those two cards to the bottom, and, withdrawing one of them, you lay it on the table, asking him if that is the card.

If he says no again, take up the card, put it on top of the pack and then, extending the pack toward him, tell him to draw his card from the bottom—and his card is sure to be there.

If, when you lay down the six cards, he says that his card is among them, you take up the four that you have put on the bottom of the pack and put them on top, putting the other two at the bottom. Lay one of these on the table, and if he says it is not his, ask him to draw his from the bottom of the pack, as in the other case.

What a Penny Can Do.

Most of the talk is about "millions" these days, and I notice that young people, like older ones, are beginning to look down on the pennies and to imagine that saving pennies is too slow altogether for this age, says a business man.

Let me tell you a true story about a recent big engineering contract that shows the value of pennies.

A great firm, well known through the country, figured on an engineering contract a few years ago. They had everything calculated to the last cent, except the cost of some dredging. On this they couldn't quite figure within half of one cent per cubic foot without getting more facts.

"We'd better investigate," said the elder partner, "and find out just how much we'll have to dredge."

"Nonsense," said the younger and more active partner. "It is only half a cent and it's not worth bothering about."

So they signed the contract.

After they had worked six months it developed that the firm would have to dredge away 10,000,000 cubic feet of material. It also turned out that it would cost them exactly "only half a cent" per cubic foot more to do it than they were getting for it. Ten million cubic feet, at that half a cent each, which the younger partner had said was "not worth bothering about," amounted to just $50,000.

The firm has been working three years now to fulfill a contract at a heavy loss, simply because a man didn't consider that half a cent was worth bothering about.

Uses for Sand.

By the sea nothing seems so common or so worthless as the sand by the shore. But in other situations sand is of great use. The farmer or gardener by mixing it with stiff clay makes the latter better suited for crops or plants. The marble cutter uses it for polishing. Floors are scoured with it, and sandpaper has a variety of uses. It has even been said that grocers have mixed it with their sugar. Mixed with ashes and other things and exposed to great heat, it forms glass, not only the commoner or coarser kind, of which common bottles are made, but also the finest crystal and Venetian of which ornaments and vessels fitted for monarchs and millionaires are shaped. And the sandstone of which palaces are built was once, before enormous pressure wielded it into rock, nothing but a mass of loose sand.

Death of the Sun.

Among the Ojibway Indians, who once occupied the lands about the great lakes, in Canada, the sun, moon and stars were all objects of worship; for the red man was, in his own way, a decidedly religious person. At dawn the old chief and warriors chanted the praises of the sun, and at nightfall they thanked him for the light and heat with which he had supplied them during the day. An eclipse of the sun filled them with dismay; that event was looked on as his death, and they were then very anxious about his safety. They used to fasten bits of live coal to the points of their arrows and shoot them up into the air in order that the expiring sun might be relighted. As for the moon, it was equally precious; they reckoned their months by it. Their children were forbidden to point at it with their finger lest it should be bitten off.

"Pious" Parrots.

Parrots are such close observers and keen mimics that it would be surprising if birds in the households of clergymen and ministers did not repeat special phrases at proper times. Indeed, it would be as well not to hold family worship with a speaking parrot in the room. There was no harm in the bird that sang in good time and tune "There is a happy land." But other feats of imitativeness might easily offend. Parrots uttering responses, or bits of the creed, or scraps of prayer—as several have been known to do—especially at unseasonable moments, are apt to vex rather than amuse, though, of course, the birds do not mean to be irreverent. A bishop's parrot used to ejaculate "Let us pray," sometimes in devout tones, at other times mockingly, and the bishop could hardly have liked it.

WIT AND HUMOR

BETTY'S CHI

When Betty draws a frown Bursts into storm her brow,
As though a rose avow
Its rosehood and down
With coldest disdain
brown
With fingers
and She opes lips Men do all
In the
And dares the moon
And laughter thinks—and
She fills cup Then sighs heaves
And sighs and the
Of wrinkled wreck
She consummates boom,
And lassy bank
to doom;
And lambs should draws a check.

COINCIDEN

Patience—Clara has every winter for the last Charity—Yes, and gaged to six different delphia Bulletin.

POLISHED

"He's a polished
"What! look at his
"Yes, aren't they land Plain Dealer.

THE INSIDE

Duffy—Do you mean
all you gave Miss Flushly day was a miniature Smooth—Why, yes; I you were going to give locket and chain.—Detroit

TURNED DOW

Ned—Did old Mr.
his daughter?
Dick—Well—er—no,
refusal of her for a life delphia Public Ledger.

NO BLONDINE

"But you said you'd as I lived."
"No, I did not. I said till you dyed."—Houston

UNPLEASANT TH

"There's a man of great deal."
"A friend, eh?"
"No; a man to whom
Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GOOD DEFINIT

Little Willie—Say, pa,
celt?
Pa—Conceit, my son, esteem belonging to our Chicago News.

IMPROVI

She—I think I've nomical.
Her Husband—Do you
She—Certainly. I'm run in debt half as month.—Brooklyn Life.

COMPARIS

Mrs. Trult—My
of jack of all trades;
most anything.
Mrs. Garbey—And my jack of clubs; he belongs ferent societies and anybody.—Detroit Free

MOTHER'S INS

Mother (firmly, to who is about to have a Now, May, if you cry
you to a dentist's again.
Bits.

AMATEUR ORCHESTR

The Rector—Oh, plan
Plan-o!
Mr. Brown (double bl blowed! I've come here self!—London Punch.

THE YOUNG

Tess—Young Dr. Sw
now, isn't he?
Jess (blushing)—Yes,
Tess—What are his Jess—From 8 to 10
when pa's out he stays delphia Press.

AT A BOSTON

Carrie—Maude is such girl. She told me one marry the worst man in Martha—I know; that they thought she was go the man who afterward husband, dear.—Boston

A boy in Berlin only old has been convicted of of lese majeste and has tenced to three months'
ment.

MISS FLORENCE KANAH

This Girl
Fr Cat of Lun
Pe-r

Pe-ru-na Contains

for Colds and Catarrh

cts Are Stubborn

niform excellent quality for over a q
ury has steadily increased the sales of L
The leader of all package co

Lion Coffee

used in millions of homes. Such r success speaks for itself. It is a proof that LION COFFEE has the idence of the people.
he uniform quality of LION
FFEE survives all opposition.
COFFEE keeps its old friends and makes new ones every day.

COFFEE has even more ts Strength, Flavor and Qualcommend it. On arrival from ntation, it is carefully roasted our factories and securely d in 1 lb. sealed packages, t opened again until needed
e in the home. This precludes ssibility of adulteration or contact with insects or unclean hands. The absolu
COFFEE is therefore guaranteed to the c

Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every Save these Lion-heads for valuable p

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYW
WOOLSON SPICE CO

L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 SHOES
ouglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the ue of their excellent style, easy fitting and unsurpassed wearing qualities. They are just as good as those $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price.
uglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, look better,
, wear longer, and have a greater intrinsic value
Before you buy, compare them with other makes, and r value by examining the inside and prove for yourself ch shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute.
$3.50 shoes are equal in every respect to other ish custom shoes costing from $5.00 to $7.00.
ities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.
TTER THAN OTHER MAKES AT ANY PRICE. year. I have worn W. L. Douglas shoes for d better than any shoe that I have ever worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 and $3.00 shoes because they fit old their shape, and wear longer than other makes.
S $4.00 SHOES CANNOT BE EQUALLED AT ANY PRICE.
OR EYELETS WILL NOT WORK LOOSE.
as has the largest shoe mail order business in the world, ishing to the most particular people at prices ualities. Write for Illustrated Catalog.
UGLAS, BROCKTON, MASSACHUSETTS

PEPSIA Texas

SICK HEADACHE,
MARK.
STIPATION
LY AND PERMANENTLY CURED WITH rchard Water,
ce. With Successful
Is the Best Testimonial.
BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
chard Water Co.,
ouisville, Ky.

A. G.
ONE WAY RATE
plus $2.00
Texas, Indian
Terr
ROUND TRIP R ON SALE—M
19th.
For Maps, Sche
mation, call on or
A. B. Freem
Ground Floor
BIRMINGHAM.

WIT AND HUMOR

BETTY'S CHEC

When Betty drew a c frown
Bur-ts into crumpled brightness
As though a rose might grow
Its rosebud and its ca-tes

POLISHED.

CONFIDENCE.

THE INSIDE TRA

TURNED DOWN

UNPLEASANT THOU

GOOD DEFINITIO

TWO WING.

AT A BOSTON "T

A boy in Berlin only thir has been convicted of of less magnitude and has sentenced to three months'
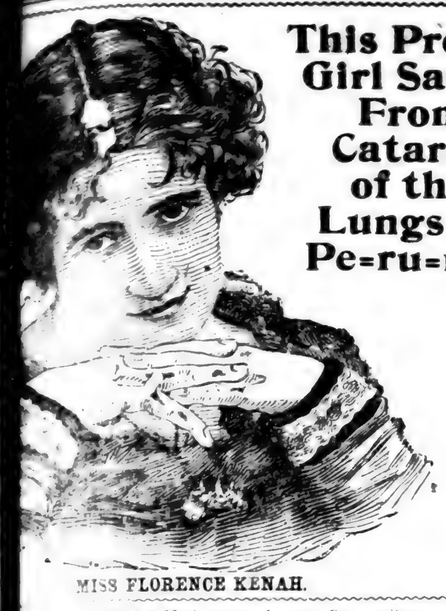
ment.



MISS FLORENCE KENAH.

This Pretty Girl Saved From Catarrh of the Lungs by Pe-ru-na.

Kenah, 434 Maria street, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"Months ago I caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and there so persistently that I became alarmed. I took medical benefit, until my digestive organs became upset and my head began to ache severely and frequently.

"I advised to try Peruna, and although I had little faith I felt so discouraged to try anything. It brought me blessed relief at once. I felt that I had the right medicine at last. Within three weeks I was entirely restored and have enjoyed perfect health since.

"I have the greatest faith in Peruna." — Florence E. Kenah.

The cold wind and rain, slush and mud of winter are especially fascinating. Few [illegible] catching cold [illegible] It fortifies the [illegible] catarrh.

for Colds and Catarrh.

[illegible] resting letter gives one [illegible] with Peruna; [illegible] a popular society [illegible], writes: [illegible] a long drive in the [illegible] chill caught [illegible] cold settled on my lungs, and [illegible] to shake off. I [illegible] of Peruna for colds [illegible] I got a bottle to try. [illegible] did, for it brought [illegible] about two bottles [illegible] money well spent. [illegible] confident in me, and I [illegible] to my friends, but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception that it has brought a speedy cure wherever it has been used."—Rose Gerbing.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used on and off for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

All correspondence held strictly confidential.

cts Are Stubborn Things

[illegible] uniform excellent quality for over a quarter of a [illegible] tury has steadily increased the sales of LION COFFEE,

The leader of all package coffees.

Lion Coffee

[illegible] used in millions of homes. Such [illegible] ss speaks for itself. It is a [illegible] proof that LION COFFEE has the fidence of the people.

[illegible] uniform quality of LION [illegible] survives all opposition.

COFFEE keeps its old friends and makes new ones every day.

N COFFEE has even more its Strength, Flavor and Qual- commend it. On arrival from antation, it is carefully roast- our factories and securely d in 1 lb. sealed packages, ot opened again until needed e in the home. This precludes ssibility of adulteration or contact with germs, dirt, insects or unclean hands. The absolute purity of COFFEE is therefore guaranteed to the consumer.

Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every package. Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

L. DOUGLAS $3.50 & $3.00 SHOES FOR MEN.

[illegible] $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the [illegible] their excellent style, easy fitting and supe- [illegible] Lines. They are just as good as those that [illegible] $5.00. The only difference is the price. [illegible] $3.50 shoes cost more to make, hold their [illegible] wear longer, and are of greater value than any [illegible] on the market regardless of price. W. L. Douglas guar- [illegible] antees the value by stamping his name and price on the [illegible] Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. [illegible] are sold through his own retail stores in [illegible] and by shoe dealers everywhere. Send for [illegible] W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

OTHER MAKES AT ANY PRICE.

W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit [illegible] ur shape, and wear longer than other makes.

AS $4.00 SHOES CANNOT BE EQUALLED AT ANY PRICE.

IF YOU LIVE WHERE W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES ARE NOT SOLD [illegible] largest shoe mail order business in the world. [illegible] 25c. extra prepaid to any part of the U. S. If you desire [illegible] Catalog of Spring Styles, [illegible]

DOUGLAS, BROCKTON, MASSACHUSETTS

SPEPSIA

SICK HEADACHE,

STIPATION

[illegible] AND PERMANENTLY CURED WITH

Orchard Water,

[illegible] Proof, With Successful [illegible] the Best Testimonial.

[illegible] BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

[illegible]rchard Water Co.,

[illegible] Louisville, Ky.

Texas Excursions

Via

A. G. S. R. R.

ONE WAY RATE—Half regular fare plus $2.00

To

Texas, Indian and Oklahoma Territories.

...MARCH 21...

ROUND TRIP RATES—One fare plus $2.00, good to return within 21 days.

ON SALE—March 21st, April 4th and 18th.

For Maps, Schedules, or other information, call on or write,

A. B. Freeman, T. P. A.,

Ground Floor Woodward Building

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Sixty Hours in a Day.

The Brahmins' clock divides the day into sixty hours of twenty-four minutes each, called ghurees. Occasionally a twenty-four minute sand-glass is used, but more commonly a copper bowl with a very small hole in the bottom of it, this bowl being placed on the surface of the water and gradually filled. If the hole in the bottom is correctly sized, the bowl sinks in twenty-four minutes; this registers the duration of the ghuree. An attendant thereupon empties the basin and strikes the hour of the day or night on the gong.

The "Mountain-High" Waves.

The size of the Atlantic waves has been carefully measured for the Washington Hydrographic Bureau. In height the waves usually average about 30 feet, but in rough weather they attain from 40 to 48 feet. During storms they are often from 500 to 600 feet long and last ten or eleven seconds, while the longest yet known measured half a mile and did not spend itself for twenty-three seconds.

Inventor of Spectacles.

There is a record that Roger Bacon the friar who devoted more of his time to science than to religion, was the first man to make spectacles, in the year 1280. Yet some one points out that on a tomb in Florence, dated 1290, there is an inscription which awards the honor to another in these words, "Here lies Salvino degli Armati, inventor of spectacles. May God pardon his sins."

Probably the most costly tree in the world is the plane tree which grows in Wood street in the city of London. It occupies a space which would bring in a rental of $1,250 a year and this capitalized at thirty years purchase, gives a value of $37,500

Why He Crossed.

Washington was asked why he crossed the Delaware on the ice.

"I couldn't commit an anachronism," he explained. "It would have spoiled the painting utterly.

Perceiving the wise foresight of their leader, the soldiers cheered him on.—Judge.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surface Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, price, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Loon Overcome by Cold.

E. E. Skinner, caretaker at the town farm, found a large loon in the road yesterday near his house.

He caught the bird, carried it home and fed it. It seemed to be suffering from hunger and the severe cold.—Berlin Correspondence Hartford Courant.

Flogs the Teachers.

In the monasteries of Thibet, which are also the schools, failures in examination, as well as breaches in discipline and manners, is punished by flogging, and the tutors are flogged, too, as being responsible for their pupils' deficiencies.

An Oriental Scientist.

It was a Japanese man of science, Kitatso, who first demonstrated that most of the germs of consumption and other diseases found in dust are harmless, a single hour of sunshine sufficing to kill them. Were it not for this agency of the sun the globe would soon be depopulated.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

The exportation of cattle from Mexico to Cuba is increasing.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c. a bottle.

There are 12,655 graduates of the Yale University living.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Graham County jail at Clifton, A. T., is the strongest jail in the world.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO

AVERY & McMILLAN,

51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

—ALL KINDS OF—

MACHINERY

Reliable Frick Engines. Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION

25 CTS.

Smallest Dictionary.

The University of California has received what it thinks is the smallest dictionary in the world. The book is a French-English dictionary, one and one-eighth inches long, by three-fourths of an inch wide. It was printed first in large type and then reduced to its present size by photographic methods. Each page contains about 110 words, the book containing 630 pages.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer, $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

Japan imports wool from many of the European countries.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

Petroleum wells have been discovered in Chihuahua, Mexico.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The annual consumption of salt in England is forty pounds a head.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, and all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

The Japanese strictly enforce a law which prohibits the use of tobacco by boys under twenty years of age.

YELLOW CRUST ON BABY

Would Crack Open and Scab Causing Terrible Itching—Cured by Cuticura.

"Our baby had a yellow crust on his head which I could not keep away. When I thought I had succeeded in getting his head clear, it would start again by the crown of his head, crack and scale, and cause terrible itching. I then got Cuticura Soap and Ointment, washing the scalp with the soap and then applying the Ointment. A few treatments made a complete cure. I have advised many mothers to use Cuticura, when I have been asked about the same ailment of their babies. Mrs. John Boyce, Pine Brush, N. Y."

Land of Bad Snowdrifts.

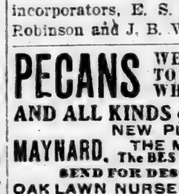
The worst snowdrifts experienced by any railroad are said to be those in Sweden. Although the cold is not so intense as in some of our western states, the snowfall is heavy and continuous. The snow plows of various kinds which are used on these roads are said to be the most powerful in the world. There are times, however when even this machinery fails to clear the way, when hundreds of men must be employed to dig out the stalled trains

In Norway the average length of life is greater than in any other country on the globe.

HAD TO GIVE UP.

Suffered Agonies From Kidney Disorders Until Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

George W. Renoff, of 1953 North Eleventh street, Philadelphia, Pa., a man of good repute, writes: "Five years ago I was suffering so with my back and kidneys that I often had to lay off. The kidney secretions were unnatural, my legs and stomach were swollen, and I had no appetite. When doctors failed to help me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and improved until my back was strong and my appetite returned. During the four years since I stopped using them I have enjoyed excellent health. The cure was permanent."



GEORGE W. RENOFF.

(Signed) GEORGE W. RENOFF.

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

A Family Job.

One of the most remarkable instances of hereditary office among solicitors is that of the acting under sheriff for the city of London. Tutnell Burchell sits in his sheriff's court in Red Lion square, on the bench that his father, grandfather and great-grandfather successively occupied.

Surinam, in Dutch Guiana, has the smallest range of temperature of any place in the world. In summer the average is 73, and in winter, 77 1-2 degrees.

The inhabitants of St. Petersburg number 1,500,000, and Moscow has over 1,000,000 inhabitants.

There are 3,000,000 mules in the United States.

New Lumber Company.

Mobile, Ala.—Robinson Lumber Company, of Mobile; capital stock, $10,000; incorporators, E. S. Robinson, W. A. Robinson and J. B. White.

PECANS WE SELL DIRECT TO PLANTER AT WHOLESALE. . . AND ALL KINDS of NUT TREES. NEW PLUM, MAYNARD, THE MONEYMAKER, The BEST that ever happened. SEND FOR DESCRIPTION. OAK LAWN NURSERY, Huntsville Ala.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief. Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains, urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, producing scalding or burning, or deposits like brick dust in it, unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.

I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

WINCHESTER

RIFLE & PISTOL CARTRIDGES.

"It's the shots that hit that count." Winchester Rifle and Pistol Cartridges in all calibers hit, that is, they shoot accurately and strike a good, hard, penetrating blow. This is the kind of cartridges you will get, if you insist on having the time-tried Winchester make.

ALL DEALERS SELL WINCHESTER MAKE OF CARTRIDGES.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

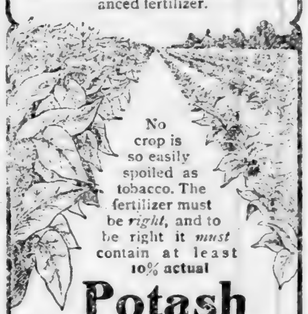
Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 502

A Tobacco Grower's Profit

is dependent upon a properly balanced fertilizer.

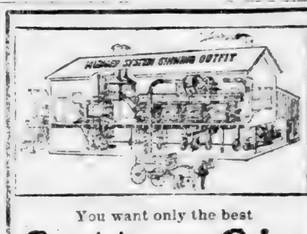


No crop is so easily spoiled as tobacco. The fertilizer must be right, and to be right it must contain at least 10% actual

Potash

Test it: Supply one patch with fertilizer with plenty of Potash, another with little or no potash, and note the results. Every tobacco grower should have our little book, "Tobacco Culture"—it will be sent free—write to:

GERMAN KALI WORKS, 93 Nassau St., N. Y., or Atlanta, Ga.—22½ South Broad St.



You want only the best

Cotton Gin Machinery

Ask any experienced Ginner about

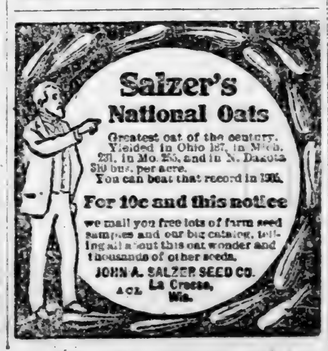
Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

We would like to show you what thousands of life long customers say. Write for catalog and testimonial booklet.

Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga. Birmingham, Ala. Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

Salzer's National Oats



Greatest oat of the century. Yielded in Ohio 167, in Minn. 221, in Mo. 250, and in N. Dakota 310 bus. per acre. You can beat that record in 1905.

For 10c and this notice

we mail you free lots of farm seed samples and our big catalog, telling all about this oat wonder and thousands of other seeds.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. ACL La Crosse, Wis.

Am. 11, 1905.

ELECTRIC VEST POCKET LIGHTS

By Mail $1.00.

United Electric Co.

1804 Fourth Avenue

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

WANTED

EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT I AM

HEADQUARTERS

FOR

High Grade Flour, Feed of all Kinds.

A LARGE LINE OF

Fancy Groceries, Men's Suits, Boy's Suits,

Pants and Overalls

Dry Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Tools, Harness, Etc. We Guarantee Prices as Low as the Lowest . . . .

Kind and Courteous Treatment to All

Come and See Me and be Convinced

W. N. HORNSBY

THE BIG STORE THORSBY, ALA.

..This.. Constitutes the Secret of Japanese Success

By Hosmer Whitfield

THE whole secret of the Japanese success may be said to lie in the fact that problem of the present war was studied in detail, instruments acquired fitted for the end in view, and lastly, in the war-readiness of the fleet. As soon as the government of Japan had decided to throw down the gage, the fleet, held on the slenderest leash, was ready to spring forward and deal that first crushing blow which altered the whole aspect of the campaign afloat. The events of the past three months have emphasized the fact that a fleet is not maintained in order to show the flag on foreign coasts, to provide local defence to distant coast towns, or to cruise ship by ship in a silly isolation, but must be concentrated to meet the strategic needs of any probable war.

By the masterly strokes which Admiral Togo dealt at Russian naval power, and by the subsequent blocking of the Port Arthur channel, he freed the Yellow Sea and the Gulf of Pechili to the transports carrying the Japanese armies. He did more, even, than this. By "sealing up" Port Arthur he robbed Russia of a base which the much-talked-of re-enforcements from the Baltic Russia to gain with the assistance of the squadron within, disabled though it were, and he gave a singularly vivid illustration of the truth that the mere possession of ships with crews inadequate in numbers and unskilled in warlike duties is not equivalent to naval strength. Behind the fleet, even if well manned, and under a leader of courage, great strategical and tactical ability, and personal magnetism, must be a well-thought-out organization, and dockyards well equipped and with ample supplies of labor for repairs. Japan has supplied the world with object-lessons in warfare and in the influence of the command of the sea, but, above all else, she has illustrated the effect of intelligent, careful organization, and the meaning of being ready for war. She has humbled a power against which even Napoleon could not prevail.

Her manner of treating the war correspondents was a revelation to other nations. With a gentle firmness she promptly denied us the same free privileges that were granted during the Spanish-American and the Boer war. Old-time journalists who meet one another only when some great battle is in progress say that they never before saw such polite severity or such rigid censorship. It was a complete surprise. The Japanese claim that they cannot afford to let the rest of the world gain even a remote idea of their plans, that it is a war in which they are fighting against heavy odds, and that they must fight it as their generals see fit. Several newspapers have facetiously remarked that the war will be fought over again in the magazines. I simply want to say that my observations have enhanced the belief that there are a myriad interesting and important matters connected with this war which the world knows little or nothing about and will know little or nothing about until after peace has been declared.—Success.

Hardly a day passes without some account of more or less criminality as the direct visible result of reading "dime novels," the Boston Transcript avows. There is great necessity for a more general recognition of a psychological law, that what impressionable natures think about, or mentally dwell with, they grow like, or become. Suggestion is as sure in its trend as any principle in physics. Plastic and chaotic youthful minds, with little or no moral poise, often live in an abnormal and tragic world of their own.

Some interesting experiments have been made to ascertain which wood lasts the longest. It was found, according to the Indianapolis News, that birch and aspen decayed in three years, willow and chestnut in four years, maple and red beech in five years and elm and ash in seven years. Oak, Scottish fir and Weymouth pine decayed to the depth of half an inch in seven years; larch and juniper were uninjured at the end of the seven years. In situations so free from moisture that they may be practically called dry, the durability of timber is unlimited. The roof of Westminster Hall, London, is more than 450 years old.

The number of telephones in use in 1902 was 2,315,297, or about one to thirty-four of the total population, states the New York Tribune. From that average, however, there were some wide departures. California, for instance, reported one for every fourteen, and Alabama one for every 134. The average number of messages per telephone for the year was 2190. In States that were well supplied with instruments the number of messages was smaller than this. New York reported 1464 and New Jersey 1147, while in Alabama the average number of messages per telephone was 3279 and in Tennessee 3557. In other words, the number of telephones gave a direct indication of the progressive spirit of a locality, whereas the amount of business which one instrument was required to do seems to have been in inverse ratio thereto.

Hawkinsville, Ga.—Sheriff Rogers has just received a message from Cochran to hurry there for John J. Blount, who shot William H. Harrell Friday. Reports received here say that Blount cursed Harrell and attacked him in the latter's store, shooting him down. Blount was arrested and brought here to jail. Harrell is 39 years old and one of Cochran's leading merchants and business men and is an alderman. Great excitement is caused here and in Cochran over the affair. Blount is well known.

Cardiff.—A terrible explosion has occurred in the Cambrian colliery at Clydianechavle in the Rhondda valley. It is feared that twenty or thirty miners have been killed. The pit is afire Many of those rescued from the mine are severely burned.

Gadsden, Ala.—The 9-year-old son of Forney Cox, who lives six miles north of Attalla, shot and killed himself by accident while handling a gun. Forney Cox is a well-known citizen of the county and the death of his boy will be

DIPLOMATIC CORPS SHIFT

President Makes Changes in Ambassadors and Ministers.

CORTELYOU IN THE CABINET

The Senate Acts Immediately on Nominations of Two ex-Members — Wynne Gets Consulship—Other Appointments in Consular Service—Men Who Are Shifted About.

Washington, D. C.—The President sent to the Senate a long list of diplomatic and consular nominations in addition to those of the Cabinet. The latter were immediately confirmed. Nominations for two ex-Senators also were sent in, namely, Cockrell to be Inter-State Commerce Commissioner, and Quarles to be Judge of the Eastern District of Wisconsin. These two nominations were also confirmed.

With the exception of Mr. Wynne, all the members of the last Cabinet were reappointed. Mr. Cortelyou takes Wynne's place in the Postoffice Department, and the latter gets the Consul-Generalship at London, England, vice H. Clay Evans, late Commissioner of Pensions, who has been at London about two years. Secretary Shaw is renominated with the understanding that he will retire in February, 1906, when he will have served a full four years.

The nominations sent in for Ambassadors were decided upon and the announcement of the proposed changes made some time ago. Of the eleven Ministers nominated only six are new men. The other five are now in the diplomatic service, and are to be transferred from their present places to those for which they have been nominated. Four of the five Ambassadors named are in the diplomatic service, and Mr. Reid, who goes to London, was Minister to France under President Harrison. Those nominated to be Ambassadors are:

Whitelaw Reid, New York, to Great Britain.

Robert S. McCormick, Illinois, to France.

George V. L. Meyer, Massachusetts, to Russia.

Edwin H. Conger, Iowa, to Mexico.

Henry White, Rhode Island, to Italy.

Ambassador Bellamy Storer will be retained at the Austrian court, although there has been a stiff fight among Ohio politicians over the matter. Mr. McCormick and Mr. Meyer are now serving respectively at St. Petersburg and Rome. Mr. Conger is Minister to China, and Mr. White First Secretary of the Embassy at London. Those nominated to be Ministers are:

William Woodville Rockhill, District of Columbia, to China.

David J. Hill, New York, to the Netherlands.

Henry Lane Wilson, Washington, to Belgium.

William Miller Collier, New York, to Spain.

Brutus J. Clay, Kentucky, to Switzerland.

Thomas J. O'Brien, Michigan, to Denmark.

Charles M. Graves, Minnesota, to Sweden and Norway.

Edward C. O'Brien, New York, to Paraguay and Uruguay.

John B. Jackson, New Jersey, to Greece and Montenegro, and diplomatic agent in Bulgaria.

John W. Riddle, Minnesota, to Roumania and Servia.

Samuel R. Gummere, New Jersey, to Morocco.

These nominations in the Consular service were made:

CONSULS GENERAL.

Robert J. Wynne, Pennsylvania, at London.

Frank H. Mason, Ohio, at Paris.

Alexander H. Thackara, Pennsylvania, at Berlin.

Hoffman Philip, New York, at Tangier, Morocco.

Thomas Sammons, Washington, at Nin-Chwang, China.

Stanley Stoner, Missouri, at Calcutta, India.

Henry P. Miller, Oregon, at Yokohama, Japan.

J. Lina Rodgers, Ohio, at Shanghai, China.

George W. Roosevelt, Pennsylvania, at Brussels, Belgium.

CONSULS.

Frederick M. Ryder, Connecticut, at San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua.

Arthur J. Clare, Massachusetts, at Barbadoes, West Indies.

Robert Brent Mosher, District of Columbia, at Collingwood, Ontario, Canada.

Hunter Sharp, North Carolina, at Kobe, Japan.

Robert S. Chilton, Jr., District of Columbia, at Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Frederic MacMaster, New York, at Zanzibar, Zanzibar.

Clarence Rice Slocum, New York, at Weimar, Germany.

George B. Anderson, District of Columbia, at Antigua, W. I.

T. St. John Gaffney, New York, at Dresden, Saxony.

Alphonse Gaulia, Rhode Island, at Havre, France.

The President accepted the resignation of Stanford Newel, American Minister at The Hague, at the request of Mr. Newel, based on the ill health of his wife. Mr. Newel has consented to remain at his post for three months longer or until he is relieved by his successor, Dr. David Jayne Hill, at present Minister to Switzerland. Mr. Newel was appointed from Minnesota in May, 1897.

Killed in Collision.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—There was a head-end collision in the Mobile and Ohio railroad yards and as a result John Cunningham, the negro fireman on the switch engine, lost his life. It seems that the northbound local freight coming in from Montgomery, met the switch engine, which was without a headlight, and before the engineer could stop his train the two engines had collided.

DYING BY THE HUNDRED

Horrible Scenes Encountered Along Russian Line of Retreat.

Roads From Mukden Crowded With Two Wheeled Carts Carrying Wounded Soldiers.

Headquarters of General Rennenkampff, near Oubenepusa, via Mukden.—The road northward was crowded as far as the eye could reach by a continuous file of two-wheeled Chinese carts full of Russian wounded, the best testimony of the valor with which the Army of the East, fighting continuously for a fortnight, has defended every inch of the ground over which it has been compelled by superior numbers to retire.

Each cart bore from three to five wounded men, whose exhaustion was almost too utter for them to feel pain. Scarcely a groan or cry was heard—not even the means of the dying. Only the dismal creak of the rude wheels and the thud of the ponies' hoofs were audible.

Most of the wounded had their heads covered with Chinese blankets or dirty coats, stiff with coagulated blood, hiding wan and dirty faces distorted with pain, sunken eyes and expanded nostrils. Here and there was seen a cart with two wounded men between whom was a corpse, which with every jolt pounded against the helpless living comrades of the man on whose face death had sealed the distortion of unbearable agony.

The valley in front of the Russian position has become a valley of death. Corpses strew the debatable ground, from which neither side could remove its dead.

Again and again the Japanese charged down the slope and up the hill. Again and again the Russians counter-attacked, trying to gain possession of "The Hill with the Tower." No quarter was asked for or given by either side. The enmity ceased only in death—the wounded with breasts torn open by shrapnel or bayonet essaying another shot with their last breath.

Here sat a Japanese upon a stone, a moment's pause for rest having stretched him out into eternity.

There lay two foes with bayonets sheathed in each other's breasts.

Everywhere corpses — corpses — corpses.

For two days the Russians had been concentrating a heavy artillery fire on "The Hill with the Tower," stopping the Japanese sap work. At 2 o'clock in the morning the Russian skirmishers heard a noise at "The Hill with the Tower." Creeping forward they discovered that the Japanese were heaping up corpses as defenses. The Russian field batteries immediately opened fire and forced a cessation of the work.

At dawn the Japanese attacked the Russian positions near Oubenepusa. The attackers were scarcely recognizable as valiant Japanese, so mechanically did they move forward and withal with undying persistence attack and get thrown back. They repeated this at 10 in the morning after a preparatory artillery bombardment and reached the Russian trenches, where a bayonet fight ensued.

At the crucial moment General Alieff, commanding the vanguard, arrived on the scene with two companies and turned the scale against the Japanese. Among the wounded was Lieutenant-Colonel Hrostitsky, of the General Staff, who nevertheless remained at the front.

MURDERERS GET $11.

Mystery of the Death of the Hunchback Clara McConnell Solved.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Two men have confessed to Superintendent of Police Taylor that they were responsible for the death of Clara McConnell, the hunchback, whose body was found in a manure pile on the outskirts of the Tenderloin here on February 13 last.

One of them is Harry Norris, who has already served two terms in prison for larceny and who was recently arrested after having stolen thirty or more overcoats from various places in this city. Norris is a degenerate, although a member of a well-to-do and respectable family of Wilmington, Del.

The name of Norris' accomplice the police are withholding. The motive for the murder was robbery. Norris and the other man lured Miss McConnell, who had a millinery store, to a stable on Clarion street below Cherry, struck her down with their fists, stole about $11 which she had tied in her handkerchief and then threw her in the refuse pit attached to the stable. She was not dead when thrown in, but was suffocated.

ZONE GOVERNMENT TO GO ON.

Secretary Taft Decides He Has Authority to Continue It.

Washington, D. C.—Owing to the failure of Congress to provide new legislation for the government of the canal zone, Secretary Taft was confronted with the question as to whether he could continue to administer the affairs of the zone. This question he decided in the affirmative.

JUDGE REAGAN IS DEAD.

Known as Father of Interstate Commerce Legislation.

Houston, Texas.—Judge John H. Reagan, sole surviving member of the Confederate Cabinet, died in Palestine, Texas, of pneumonia. Judge Reagan, who was eighty-six years of age, had been in failing health for a year or more.

Birmingham, Ala.—The Birmingham Water Works Company has advised Mayor Drennen that it will furnish the water supply for the Rescue Home of the Salvation Army free of charge An effort will be made to have the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Company supply the home with electricity, for illumination free of charge inasmuch as the institution has not yet gotten itself on a strong financial basis.

Thorsby Business Directo

A. M. Johnso
Groceries and Delicate

J. J. STANL
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBE
General Merchandis

G. W. Freema
SHOES, ETC.

Thorsby Wine
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, P

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and T
Articles.
LICENSED PHARMAC

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jewe

E. H. Adams
General Merchandi

W. N. HORNSB
General Merchandise

J. R. PARNEL
General Merchandise

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wis
Millinery and Notio

The Thorsby
W. C. Michelson, P

A Langville &
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in
WAGONS and BUGG

C. L. Forsma
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

Mr. George Wyndham has r his post as Chief Secretary for I

In the Italian Chamber of D the Minister of Justice, Sign chetti, announced that owi health of Premier Giolitti the Cabinet had resigned. The Ch then adjourned.

Advices from Tomsk, Russia, brutality of Cossacks and po suppressing a demonstration dents, nine of whom were kill many seriously wounded.

T

VOL. II.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Current Events Gathered as They Happen.

Three Were Shot.

Wylam, Ala.—Five men the county jail with t ock, over and one t story of what t on a free-for-all f rted at Slope No Saturday night an out 2 o'clock Sunda ree people are kill d in the melee, one o woman, and the other The parties are white keted on the warden' county jail against the sted for participating in are assault with intent Some have one charg m and others two It seems that Saturday was pay da Wylam and several miners and have proceeded to drink wh great quantities during the rt of the evening. The fir uble is alleged to have been over gaming. None of the prison at the county jail appears to know t who started the trouble and just here the first blow came from. They that chairs, bottles and missiles mmenced to fly through the air, and n some one commenced to shoot Tillman Burns and John Russell are own to have received gunshot unds, and it is said that the wife Penttico was also shot. Rosey Branscomb, Will Reedy, Wi mbs and Arthur H. Penttico are un r arrest on charge of assault wi ent to murder.

Virginia's Mine Disaster.

Montgomery, Ala.—The report of e board of state mine inspectors to ting Governor Cunningham regard g the explosion at Virginia mine Feb. 20th, wherein 111 miners lost eir lives, has been made public. The report is very voluminous born of its technicalities. The report ys that the accident was caused by "dust" explosion, caused by a "windy hot"—that is, that the tamping made preparation for a dynamite charge s defectively arranged, causing the nition of the gases in the shaft. The report says that the latticing the mine which had been in opera on for only about two years was very poorly constructed; that at intervals tween Dec. 18, 1902, and Dec. 12 04, dangerous accumulations of dust d been reported, and that repeated arnings had been given to the opera rs.

The reports of the inspectors dif ot fix the blame for the accident upon y one.

Son Plays Corpse; Father Drops Dead.

Cullman, Ala.—J. M. Woodall, a ell-known citizen of Cullman county, ing at Good Hope, dropped dead t Friday night while witnessing the osing exercises of the Good Hope hool. The pupils of the school were resenting a dialogue in which one the pupils acted the part of a rpse. When the corpse was brought the stage, Mr. Woodall, who was the audience, dropped dead in his at.

A sad feature of the death is the ct that Mr. Woodall's son was acting the corpse. Mr. Woodall himself d been asked to take this part, but clined. He was a sufferer from art trouble, and it is thought that e shock caused by the sight of his n as a corpse caused his death.

Mr. Woodall was about 50 years of e, and a prosperous farmer of that ction, and well known over the unty. He leaves a wife and several ildren.

Lightning Strikes House.

Scottsboro, Ala.—During an electric orm Thursday evening lightning ruck a telephone wire running into e residence of Mr. J. H. Williamson, Garth, near this place, setting the ouse on fire and shocking Mrs. Wil mson badly. Prompt means saved e house from burning.

Will Oust the Negroes.

Huntsville, Ala.—The white voters the fourth ward have concentrated two candidates for aldermen and is now a foregone conclusion that is ward will be wrested from the ntrol of the negroes who have domi it since a short time after the war. The white voters now out er the negroes two to one, and th only two candidates in the field e white men will win.

Gov. Jelks Arrives in Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks rived in the city Friday looking lendidly.

NDRED
ed Along ent ted With rying

Thorsby
Business Directo

A. M. Johnso
Groceries and Delicate

J. J. STANL
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBE
General Merchandise

G. W. Freema
SHOES, ETC.

Thorsby Wine
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, Pr

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and T
Articles.
LICENSED PHARMACI

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jewe

E. H. Adams
General Merchandi

W. N. HORNSB
General Merchandise

J. R. PARNELL
General Merchandise.

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wish
Millinery and Notion

The Thorsby
W. C. Michelson, P

A Langville & S
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in
WAGONS and BUGG

C. L. Forsma
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

Mr. George Wyndham has re his post as Chief Secretary for I
In the Italian Chamber of De the Minister of Justice, Signor chetti, announced that owing to health of Premier Giolitti the Cabinet had resigned. The Ch then adjourned.

Advices from Tomsk, Russia, brutality of Cossacks and pol suppressing a demonstration o dents, nine of whom were kill many seriously wounded.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. II. CLANTON, ALA., MARCH 23, 1905. NO. 52

ALABAMA NEWS.

Current Events Gathered as They Happen.

Three Were Shot.

W... Ala.—Five men confined the ... jail with bruised noses, ... and bandaged limbs tells ... story of what appears to have ... a free-for-all fight, which was ... at Slope No. 3, near Wylam, ... night and continued until ... 2 o'clock Sunday morning ... people are said to have been ... in the melee, one of these being ... woman, and the others men. All ... parties are white. The charges ... on the warden's blotter at ... jail against the prisoners ... for participating in the me... assault with intent to mur... Some have one charge against ... and others two.

It seems that Saturday was pay day ... Wylam and several miners are said ... have proceeded to drink whiskey ... great quantities during the early ... of the evening. The first real ... is alleged to have been start... over gaming. None of the prison... at the county jail appears to know ... who started the trouble, and just ... the first blow came from. They ... that chairs, bottles and missels ... to fly through the air, and ... some one commenced to shoot.

... Burns and John Russell are ... to have received gunshot ..., and it is said that the wife ... Penttico was also shot.

... Branscomb, Will Reedy, Will ... and Arthur H. Penttico are un... arrest on charge of assault with ... to murder.

Virginia's Mine Disaster.

Montgomery, Ala.—The report of ... board of state mine inspectors to ... Governor Cunningham regard... the explosion at Virginia mines ... Feb. 20th, wherein 111 miners lost ... lives, has been made public. ... report is very voluminous. ... of its technicalities, the report ... the accident was caused by ... explosion, caused by a "windy ..." that is, that the tamping made ... preparation for a dynamite charge ... defectively arranged, causing the ... of the gases in the shaft.

The report says that the latticing ... the mine which had been in opera... for only about two years was very ... constructed; that at intervals ... Dec. 18, 1902, and Dec. 12, ... dangerous accumulations of dust ... reported, and that repeated ... had been given to the opera...

The reports of the inspectors did ... fix the blame for the accident upon ... one.

...on Plays Corpse; Father Drops Dead.

... Ala.—J. M. Woodall, a ... known citizen of Cullman county, ... Good Hope, dropped dead ... Friday night while witnessing the ... exercises of the Good Hope ... The pupils of the school were ... a dialogue in which one ... pupils acted the part of a ... When the corpse was brought ... stage, Mr. Woodall, who was ... audience, dropped dead in his ...

A sad feature of the death is the ... that Mr. Woodall's son was acting ... corpse. Mr. Woodall himself ... asked to take this part, but ... He was a sufferer from ... trouble, and it is thought that ... shock caused by the sight of his ... as a corpse caused his death.

Mr. Woodall was about 50 years of ... and a prosperous farmer of that ... and well known over the ... He leaves a wife and several ...

Lightning Strikes House.

Scottsboro, Ala.—During an electric ... Thursday evening lightning ... a telephone wire running into ... residence of Mr. J. H. Williamson, ... Garth, near this place, setting the ... on fire and shocking Mrs. Wil... badly. Prompt means saved ... from burning.

Will Oust the Negroes.

Huntsville, Ala.—The white voters ... fourth ward have concentrated ... candidates for aldermen and ... now a foregone conclusion that ... ward will be wrested from the ... of the negroes who have domi... it since a short time after the ... The white voters now out... the negroes two to one, and ... only two candidates in the field ... men will win.

Gov. Jelks Arrives in Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks ... in the city Friday looking ...

Site is Selected.

Huntsville, Ala.—A plot of ground containing forty acres on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, a mile and a quarter from the public square, had been selected as a site for the fair grounds and race track by the Tennessee Valley Agricultural Fair and Racing Association. Racing experts say that the soil of this land will produce a very fast track. The association will now be incorporated and no time will be wasted in getting things in readiness for a fair to be held in the second week of October.

Carried to County Jail.

Birmingham, Ala.—John McConnell a white man, was locked up in the county jail Sunday on the charge of murder. He is accused of killing Steve Naylor, another white man, in a saloon at Ensley Saturday night.

McConnell, who is 30 years of age was brought to Birmingham by P. A. Cochrane, the warrant for his arrest being made returnable before the mayor of Ensley. Until he is given a preliminary hearing, no bond can be fixed, if he is allowed bail.

The Adamsville Shooting.

Adamsville, Ala.—The shooting at Adamsville Saturday night was not as serious as first reported. Will Nicholson, a white miner, was shot, but his injuries are said to be not of a grave nature. The shooting is said to have been accidental, and no arrests have been made. Deputies G. C. Eubank and Morgan Kerr were sent out from the sheriff's office, the former returning to Birmingham yesterday morning. Deputy Kerr reported to the sheriff's office that all was quiet at the mining camp.

Alabama Man Caught.

Visalia, Cal.—A. J. Smith, of DeKalb county, Ala., was arrested near this city Saturday for killing James Roebuck, on December 27, 1904, in Alabama. Smith admits that he shot Roebuck, but claims the deed was done in self-defense. He also admits that he has eluded the officers, but claims he is willing and anxious to go back to Alabama for trial.

The shooting was caused by a dispute over the ownership of a pile of manure.

Laying Heavier Rails.

Scottsboro, Ala.—The Southern railway has a large force of hands at work replacing the rails of the Memphis division with much heavier ones than those now in use. The work is progressing rapidly and the working force is now at Paint Rock station going west. When the change is made the heavier engines will be put on this division and the schedule will be shortened between Chattanooga and Memphis.

Two Prisoners Escape.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—B. T. Kirtland and Lon Ratcliff, confined in the county jail, made their escape by digging through the wall under a window. Sheriff Kyle did not discover the delivery until the prisoners had been gone some time, and then it was made known by a dog that had been shut up in the corridor having come through the opening. B. T. Kirtland was in for murder in the second degree and Lon Ratcliff for a minor offense.

Mobile Flooded.

Mobile, Ala.—Mobile was visited Sunday by one of the hardest rainfalls of the year. The rain began before noon and fell continuously in torrents, flooding the streets far beyond the capacity of the storm sewers. Street car traffic is interrupted. The telegraph companies report no wire connection between Mobile and New Orleans. At 1 a. m. the rain is still falling in torrents.

Belled Buzzard Seen.

Huntsville, Ala.—People in the eastern part of Madison county report having seen a belled buzzard which they believe to be the one whose wanderings have been reported from time to time in the papers for many years past.

Killed Over a Game of Pool.

Ensley, Ala.—As a culmination of a quarrel begun over a pool game in the early part of the evening James McConnell, a steel worker, shot and instantly killed Steve Naylor, another steel worker, at 11:30 Saturday night in Wren's saloon on Nineteenth street. The weapon used by McConnell was a double barreled shot gun and the load entered Naylor's breast near the left nipple, making an ugly and gaping wound. Naylor's 38 Smith & Wesson revolver, with all the chambers exploded, was found lying near his body. The tragedy was evidently preceded by a duel between the men.

REVENGE IN WARSAW.

The Strikers Are Carrying Out Threats Against All Who Refuse Support.

THE WORKING CLASS EXCITED.

Men Determined to Offer Opposition to Mobilization—Revolutionary Doctrines Preached.

Warsaw—Now that most of the strikes are ended, the workmen are beginning to carry out the threat of revenge on such of their fellows as refused to quit work with them. On Saturday a foreman who had refused to walk out was shot and severely wounded. The authorities fear that these incidents are only the beginning of a series of such outrages.

The working class is greatly excited in anticipation of orders for mobilization. The men are determined to offer violent opposition. Scarcely a day passes withut the appearance of seditious pamphlets. One secret publication entitled "The Barricades," which was recently circulated, preached revolutionary doctrines, urging workmen to prepare for the struggle and build barricades in the streets. The mobilization is expected to begin in Lodz tomorrow. Workmen in several mills there already are striking, as a manifestation of hostility to such measures. The school strike at Warsaw is reaching an acute stage.

The authorities issued a final order that boys not returning to school before Wednesday will be expelled regardless of their number. The Polish educational committee, which recently went to St. Petersburg, is angered at the government's non-conciliatory attitude, and met here today and resolved to support the boys in striking. More trouble is feared.

Warsaw and Lodz manufacturers have been invited to send delegates to a meeting of industrial representatives from all parts of Russia to Moscow on Thursday to discuss the commercial situation, preparatory to making a report to the ministry of commerce.

Troubles in Southern Russia.

St. Petersburg—The peasant disorders are growing rapidly in the black soil belt and other districts of southern Russia. Provincial journals bring alarming reports showing that an actual reign of terror already exists in some districts. Not only are estates plundered and buildings burned, but landlords are murdered. In some places bands of armed moujiks have taken to the forests and actual battles have occurred between them and estate guardians.

Millions of copies of two documents called "The Golden Scroll" and "Division of Lands" have been circulated. Both tell the peasants that the emperor has decreed a division of land.

The provincial newspapers are urgently demanding that the government take energetic measures to check the move before it is too late. Commissions, the bureaucracy is warned, will not do. If the disorders are allowed to go much further, it will be possible to stop them only by great bloodshed.

Music Block Damaged.

Providence, R. I.—Fire and water here damaged Music Hall block, in the center of the city, to an amount estimated at $100,000.

Theater Collapses in Chili.

Santiago de Chili.—As a result of the collapse of the Lyric theater Saturday many persons were killed or injured.

Congressmen in Porto Rico.

San Juan, P. R.—The United States army transport Sumner, from New York, March 11th, has arrived here with the fourteen congressmen, mostly members of the rivers and harbors committee, attended by their wives and children in most cases. The voyage was uneventful.

New Big Pipe Plant.

Birmingham, Ala.—It was given out here that a big 300-ton cast iron pipe plant would be constructed in Sheffield during this summer. The plant will be modern in every particular, and will provide for an outlay of a large sum of money. Employment will be given to 250 hands in this plant.

Ten Injured in Wreck.

Hutchinson, Kans.—West-bound Santa Fe passenger train No. 4 was derailed here by a broken rail. Henry Winstein, of Pittsburg, Pa., had a knee fractured and nine other persons were more or less injured.

Peach Crop Is Ruined.

Decatur, Ala.—There will be no peach crop in this section this year. Reports from all over North Alabama show that the peach buds were all killed during the last cold spell, some three weeks ago. It was thought for a time the peaches were safe, but the warm sunshine during the past few days has dried up the buds, showing the fact that they had been frozen a few weeks ago. As a usual thing North Alabama has an immense peach crop. It is not known yet whether the other kinds of fruit are safe or not.

Wreck on the Ensley Southern.

Wylam, Ala.—A tri-weekly freight and passenger train on the Ensley Southern railway, between Short Creek, in the western part of Jefferson county, and Ensley, was wrecked Friday morning four miles from Ensley. The engine was ditched, with two freight cars, killing Engineer Joe Barnes, fatally injuring the negro fireman, painfully bruising a white woman, Mrs. Casine Perry, who was a passenger, and shaking up several passengers who were in the passenger coach on the rear of the train.

Weather Station at Anniston.

Anniston, Ala.—On July 1 Anniston will be one of five cities in Alabama to have the location of a weather bureau. At present stations are located at Mobile, Montgomery, Birmingham and Huntsville, but a station will be located in Anniston. The station will prove very beneficial to Annistonians and citizens of Calhoun county in many ways, chiefly that of receiving the weather each morning in accurate form, the weather bureau being credited with being correct 85 per cent of the time on its predictions.

Killed by Train.

Evergreen, Ala.—A young white man probably 18 or 20 years old was killed by a passenger train at Wilcox station and his body brought here Thursday for burial. Letters on his person showed that his name was Mowry K. Wilder and that his home was 35½ West Mulberry street, Springfield, O. One of the letters was from Mrs. W. H. Wilder, his mother, and the other from his sister. Railroad officials endeavored to communicate with his people, but up to last night has not succeeded, and his body was buried in the cemetery here last night.

Jefferson Hotel Company.

Birmingham, Ala.—The name of the Jefferson Construction Company has been changed to the Jefferson Hotel Company. This is the company that was recently incorporated to erect a twelve-story hotel on the northwest corner of Fourth avenue and Twentieth street. A declaration has been filed in the probate court changing the name.

William Brock is Bankrupt.

Huntsville, Ala.—William Brock general merchandise dealer of this city, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $1,284 more than half that sum being secured by a lien and mortgage. His assets are $36. The unsecured liabilities are accounts due jobbers in all parts of the country.

Another Strike at Fall River.

Fall River, Mass.—Two hundred weavers in Stafford Cotton Mills Nos. 1 and 3 struck as a protest against the ten-loom system and other reported innovations which has been introduced by the corporation. About 150 weavers in No. 3 mill struck on Monday.

Alabama R. F. D.'s.

Washington, D. C.—Rural free delivery routes ordered established April 15: Balleyton, Cullman county, routes 5 and 6, population served 777, houses 177; Brantley, Crenshaw county, route 2, population 420, houses 105.

Kills Boy With Baseball Bat.

Americus, Ga.—Charged with murder, Grady Tevver, a young lad scarcely in his 'teens, was placed in jail late Friday. Returning from school, two boys, young Tevver and Augustus Oliver, disagreed about a trivial matter, whereupon the Tevver lad struck young Oliver a blow upon the head with a baseball bat, death resulting.

Investigate Stoessel's Conduct.

St. Petersburg—A commission has been appointed under the presidency of General Roop, a member of the council of the empire, to investigate the surrender of Port Arthur and act as a court to determine the responsibility of General Stoessel.

Woman Commits Suicide.

Little Rock, Ark.—Mrs. L. S. Owens, of Terrell, Tex., who was visiting her sister here, committed suicide by shooting herself twice with a pistol, once in the head and once in the breast. No definite cause has been assigned for the act.

ANOTHER EXPLOSION.

The Grover & Co. Shoe Factory the Scene of a Terrible Boiler Explosion.

MANY WORKERS ARE MISSING.

Fifty-four Bodies Recovered—Fifty to a Hundred Missing—Possibly Entirely Consumed.

Brockton, Mass.—This city is in mourning for at least three score of her citizens, whose lives were blotted out early Monday by the explosion of a boiler in a large shoe manufacturing establishment in the Campello district, conducted by the R. B. Grover Company.

The explosion was immediately followed by a flash of flame which consumed the factory, a long four-story structure, as if it were a house of cards, and incinerated an unknown number of men and women, who were unable to extricate themselves from a mass of tangled wreckage formed by the terrific upheaval in the boiler room.

It may never be known just how many persons perished in the wreckage. No one knows exactly how many persons were in the factory. The number has been estimated at 400, but Treasurer Charles O. Emerson said he doubted whether there were so many at work. Two hundred and fifty survivors have been accounted for, and the remains of fifty-four bodies had been recovered from the ruins the search being continued.

Fragments of human frames which possibly might belong to bodies other than those enumerated have also been found. Few of the remains have been identified. The head in nearly every case is missing, and except in rare instances it was impossible even to distinguish the sex.

The finding of the remains supposed to be those of the engineer made the fifty-fourth body thus far taken from the ruined factory. The figures at hand show that about 260 persons who were at work in the factory when the explosion occurred had been accounted for and that between fifty and 100 persons are missing.

Public Funerals.

Mayor Keith has issued a notice requesting every clergyman in the city to meet with him at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the city hall to make arrangements for public funeral services for the victims of the explosion, suggesting Thursday afternoon as a desirable time for them to be held. He added also that it seemed best to bury those bodies whose identification would be impossible in the city cemetery at Melrose. Mayor Keith said the raking over of the ruins would be resumed with a larger force of men at work. He expressed the opinion that perhaps a considerable number of bodies would be found in that portion of the plant not yet explored.

Rural Carriers Appointed.

Washington, D. C.—Rural carriers appointed for Alabama routes: Baileyton, route 3, Thomas B. Hodge carrier, Thomas L. Young substitute; route 4, Jesse H. Smith carrier, Lonzo E. Bagby substitute; Brantly, route 2, James T. Capps carrier, Ewell Mount substitute, Toney, route 2, Thomas D. Spencer carrier, Walter F. Spence substitute; route 1, Orfey Bailes carrier, Shelby B. Bailes substitute. Rural free delivery routes 1, 2 and 3 ordered established at Slocomb, Geneva county, serving 1,348 people and 347 houses.

Fortune Teller Is Killed.

St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. Mary B. Page, a fortune teller, aged 70 years, was found dead in her home on Market street, having been strangled to death. The absence of her jewelry indicated that robbery had been the motive for the crime.

Cattle Train Wrecked.

Little Rock, Ark.—A fast freight train on the Choctaw branch of the Rock Island system ran into an open swith at Potter, I. T., wrecking the entire train, which included two cars of cattle. The engine and cattle cars were turned over.

The engineer was hurled under the engine and was dead when taken out. Fireman Hildebrandt had both his legs crushed off below the knees. An unknown tramp riding on a cattle car was killed, together with a large number of cattle. One of the cattle owners riding on top of a car, had his leg broken and a brakeman was injured about the head.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

Home Grown Fruit Trees

I have for sale a fine assortment of fruit trees, particularly adapted to this climate. Peaches, Plums and Apples, of the best varieties for this section, and all guaranteed true to name. Prices Reasonable. J. L. Winslow, Pine Hill Nursery, Thorsby, Ala.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

Prominent People.

Count Tolstoi has opened book stores in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

Emperor William possesses over 150 full military and naval uniforms.

King Alfonso of Spain is hesitating among three royal maidens in his choice of a bride.

Secretary William H. Taft will be the orator at the Yale Law School commencement next June.

The Sultan of Turkey and the Queen of the Netherlands are the only total abstainers among European sovereigns.

Reality

Is this the love she dreamed of, that should rise
Like some great, unknown flame in midnight skies,
Alive, illumining, by whose vast light
Her soul might read the book of Life aright?

Is this the love she dreamed of, this poor thing
That wakes no fear, no joy, no wondering
Pales her star, she needs must sit tonight
And turn a dreary page by candlelight.

Is this the love she dreamed of—for whose sake
Her heart with too much bliss or pain should break?
Nay, the gods jest when this their gift appears,
Too chill for laughter and too weak for tears.

—Mildred Pickering.

"BANZAI"

BY H. S. CANFIELD, JR.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

For days the tired forces had fought over the same ground, advancing and retreating, tasting victory and then defeat. The big guns all along the front kept up a continuous roar as the Japs poured in a remorseless rain of shells. The Russians stubbornly contesting every inch of ground, every trench and hill, were being slowly driven back, leaving their dead in scores. The rows of silent bodies in the captured trenches told a story of dogged resistance.

One position alone withstood the reckless attacks of the Japanese. Time after time Kuroki had hurled his regiments up the slope, to have them retreat broken and shattered. It was the key to the enemy's position, and if taken, would turn an orderly retreat into a rout. Full well this was realized, and that morning came the order from headquarters to take the position at any cost.

The weary, powder-begrimed remnant gave place to fresh regiments of little brown men in khaki. Preparations for the assault had begun; from both sides the firing became desultory and then ceased altogether. It was the lull before the storm, and the only sound that broke the stillness was the occasional murmur from the trenches and the tramp of a column as it moved into line.

Among the reserves, arriving from the south the night before, was the battalion from Dayo Zaka; fresh young fellows with a scattering of toughened veterans, whose little eyes danced as they got a foretaste of the battle that was to come, with the whir of bullets and the clash of steel.

Lynx-eyed, the solemn-faced officers squatted behind the line, and talked in monosyllables to the men; now and then they grunted out a few gruff words of encouragement, as some young fellow, counting his chances of survival, grew nervous under the strain.

Among these was little Amano Jinsuke. With his round baby face, and great brown eyes, guilelessness shining from them, he became at once the butt for all teasing, and the general favorite of the men. With his quiet manners he had soon put a stop to the chaffing, except now and then the grizzled sergeant who led his platoon, could not resist the temptation to tell him some harrowing tale of bloody skirmishes or fierce assaults, just to see his eyes grow larger with wonder and fear.

As he lay at full length, waiting the general order for the advance, his thoughts turned to his home in far-off sunny Japan. His eyes filled with tears as he saw his aged father and his tiny sister anxiously awaiting tidings from the front; as for Onoto, the gentle little sweetheart who had so bravely bade him go—he brushed his hand fiercely across his eyes, and stared hard at the lines and lines of barbed wire stretching across the brown face of the hill.

The sergeant saw his gesture, and understanding, gripped his arm in a friendly pressure.

The advance sounded and the long line arose and crept forward, the big guns took up the fight, and the bullets from the hillcrest zipped through the air. Again the order was given to lie down, and while the center halted and welded itself with the damp earth, the two wings swept forward, and in a moment the hill was a screaming mass of murder-mad men.

The firing now became heavier, and little spurts of dirt told that the enemy were finding the range. Pale, with dry lips and distended eyes, Amano lay, fascinated by the horror of it. He shuddered as a man on the right dropped his gun and settled back in the mud.

As man after man dropped out of the fight, the strain of inaction told on the men. Their's was not to be carried away by the mad exhilaration of the charge, but to suffer the long impassive wait, with the bullets' song sapping their nerve, and making them dig their nails in the wet grass and savagely grit their teeth.

They found him in the first trench.

A man next to Amano turned to him to make a remark; with an oath he sprang into the air, and fell back, while the warm blood from the wound spurted over the arm and shoulder of the boy by his side. For a moment he lay rigid, and then, blanched to the lips, fainted dead away.

It ran along the line, that the quiet modest little fellow in the Dango company had fainted at the first sight of blood; some laughed nervously, others cursed. As the sergeant poured a drop of brandy between the blue lips, there was a fear tugging at his heart, that after all the boy was a coward. In spite of his timid ways the old man had vouched for his manhood.

Realizing the shame of it as he revived, Amano's face tightened and his eyes grew hot. As he patted him on the shoulder, his comrade caught sight of a face filled with unalterable determination.

Deployed in line of skirmishers, the attacking columns had twice swept up the hill to fall back, crumpled and broken. Like ants they swarmed over the fences and gullies, only to be hurled back, decimated by the withering fire.

Orderlies dashed up and down the line, the bugles sounded, the officers squatting behind the line, scabbards on knees, threw away their cigarettes and closed up. At last came the command "Forward!" and with a shout of relief the reserve sprang into action.

On they swept gathering in the broken flanks as they went, up the ascent they dashed, cutting the fences and leaping the pits as they ran.

For a moment the defenders held their fire, and then from every rifle-pit and trench poured a holocaust of lead and shrapnel. The line wavered, and then in mad frenzy dashed on. Again and again they were swept by the rain of death, pausing but a moment from the shock, they stumbled blindly forward.

Untouched by the first withering fire, all his gentleness gone, Amano ran on, no feeling in his heart, save a mad desire to slay and tear out the throats of those who opposed him. A bullet tore through his cap, and he went down, only to be up again, his face covered with blood. Brushing it from his eyes, he kept recklessly on.

The thin line reeling from the systematic volleying, was slowly giving away. The merciless slaughter was beyond human endurance, and at points the men were turning headlong down the hill. One man was following another, and the glorious charge was becoming a rout.

First one, and then another, and another took it up; rippling along the line it grew in volume, until drowning the roar of battle, a hoarse cheer burst from the dusty throats of the men.

There, yards in advance, almost beneath the terrible guns of the enemy, was Amano.

He stood beckoning them on with the twisted bayonet he had wrenched from his discarded rifle. Wounded and faint, he had stumbled on and on, until the terrible realization burst upon him that the men were falling back. Turning, he held out his arms, and with tears running down his blackened cheeks, sobbed out an appeal to them.

They saw him standing there heedless of the flying bullets, and with cheer after cheer, swept forward in a charge that was irresistible. Still waving the bayonnette, he led them over the crest.

They found him in the first trench, a huddled bunch of timidity. He was shot through the lung and was going fast. The old sergeant, sobbing like a child, knelt and took him in his arms.

He opened his eyes and they were tender, quiet, the eyes his tiny sister would know, far off in the Sunrise Isle.

As he saw the men standing around he understood. For a moment the glow of battle was reflected in his face, and the look that they had seen as he stood alone on the hill-top, shone in his eyes. He tried hard to raise himself, but the effort was too much for him.

"Banzai," murmured the little chap as he sank back in the sergeant's arms.

Sprang into the air and fell back.

GRACE OF ORIENTAL PEOPLE.

Traveler Notes Fact With Some Feeling of Jealousy.

Passing us occasionally, going to Jerusalem with butter and eggs and little jars of leben that showed their thick creamy throats as they were held up to us, were small companies of women in single file. As one blue procession went by, the leader called to us: "Why should you ride and we walk? Why is your lot better than ours?" Given the opportunity for leisurely argument we could not by any philosophy have made satisfactory answer. We could only admit the fact as they saw it, and recognize the universal world plaint of discontent.

They carry themselves, these women, like figures on an antique frieze. As they stride along, holding in sure balance on their heads their jars and baskets of homely produce, they tread the stony paths with the grace and largeness of action that we of the Occident have grown to regard as belonging only to the age of Praxiteles.

The men are also admirable in the simplicity of their gestures, the big lines of their attitudes, the swing of their draperies. I saw a youth fling his mantle over his shoulders and fold it about him exactly in the manner of the classic Greek, sculptural in his finely unconscious pose. God save the day when these sons of Canaan clothe their limbs in our ungainly garments! — Metropolitan Magazine.

Superfluous Information.

"It's quite a heavy shower we're having," he said, cheerily, to the man who had entered with his clothes soaked and his umbrella dripping.

"Yes, sir," replied the stranger, testily, "it is a heavy shower; but you have failed to remark also the interesting facts that the shower is falling downward from above, that it's a wet shower, and that it is raining on both sides of the street. Also you have neglected to observe that this is the year 1905, that the earth is round, and that there are four seasons each year. But I'm obliged to you for your information about the weather."

And the stranger walked away, with a glitter of vindictive triumph in his eye.—London Tit-Bits.

To Poverty.

Come, link thine arm in mine; good Poverty,
Penniless yeoman in the tattered gear!
Let us jog adown the brazen world and steer
For ports where toil is aristocracy!
Utopia laughs not at our sackcloth. See!
Here's fair Sir Lackland and right many a peer,
With doublets threadbare as our own, full near,
Would vow us love and hospitality!

Our gold's laid up in sunsets, safe from thieves,
And all our current silver's in the stars.
We've naught to lose save honest hearts, who steals Shall get more treasure than he knows or feels.
Here's sweetest roots from out our scrip, good sirs,
And waters clear and couches in the leaves.

—Harrison S. Morris.

Cut on a Limb.

"Italy, I see, is going to present the United States with a statue of Caesar."

"What's that?"

"Why, I asked a dozen men this morning who Caesar was and not a one but answered me evasively."

"Answered you evasively?"

"Yes; didn't seem to know, you know."

"Well, well, well; such ignorance! I can hardly believe it possible!"

"By the way, who was Caesar?"

"Why he was—er—no that was Nero. He was—er—he—oh! go to thunder."—Houston Post.

Depends on Sultan's Favor.

It is reported that French capitalists intend constructing a railroad from Tangier to Fez, Morocco. It is, however, doubted whether they will ever get a concession from the sultan.

Kipling's Lungs Are Weak.

Rudyard Kipling's lungs are too weak to stand an English winter. He has not been strong since an attack of pneumonia caused apprehension years ago.

HER TURN HAD COME.

Woman Got Even for Unkind Remark of Long Ago.

"When you know that a woman is sensitive about any personal peculiarity," said Mrs. Snippy, "just duck whenever mention of it comes your way. Smart sayings that wound other persons' feelings are very amusing sometimes. But you never know when they are coming back at you. Once, at an evening party, I was indiscreet enough to win a laugh by a joke about Mamie Makeup's long nose. It was a sight, you know. Mamie cried, and never answered when I told her I was sorry. But she did not come to my wedding, and I lost sight of her for ten years. Then I heard that she was married to the manager of a prominent theater. She gives 'Sunday evenings' during the winter, where you may meet all the top-liners on theater programmes. In summer she invites the girls of our normal school class to her Seabright cottage for a week-end. When they write to her for matinee tickets she sends them. The other day I met her in Broadway. I had been told she was stouter, and that her face had filled out. But I was scarcely prepared for such a change.

"'Why, how do you do, Mame,' I said, extending my hand, 'why haven't you been to see me? We must visit. How stout you have become.'

"She did not see my hand. She saw me reach for my card case, but she made no move toward hers. She gave me a stare that was icy enough to call for the red ball, and remarked, as she passed on:

"'Thank you. I have been growing up to my nose.'"

OYSTER EXCELS AS A FOOD.

Easily Digestible and Highly Beneficial to the Nerves.

Recent experiments show the great digestibility of the oyster. When the oyster was crushed and placed in cold water about half of the solid matter was disolved. When the oyster was placed uncrushed in the same medium one-fourth of its solid matter was dissolved. It is believed that if the oyster be chewed more than half of it is dissolved in the mouth.

Cold water appears to be the best thing to drink with oysters. But chablis is good, dissolving 38 per cent of the solid matter of the oyster.

What are the solids of the oyster? They are the proteids corresponding to the lean of meat or the white of an egg, fat, starchy matters and glycogen. This last means the substance which the liver manufactures for future use. It is very like sugar, and when wanted for use is changed into sugar. It is the substance which makes the oyster sweet in the mouth.

But there are other valuable constituents of the oyster—what are called the glycero-phosphoric compounds. Medical men prescribe these for improving the nervous system, so that a diet of oysters is unquestionably good for the nerves. They also contain common salt, a little copper and several phosphates. And taking the whole contents of the oyster shell, one finds almost everything necessary for the food of the body.

In Common Things.

Seek not afar for beauty. Lo! it glows
In dew-wet grasses all about thy feet;
In birds, in sunshine, childish faces sweet.
In stars, and mountain summits topped with snows.

Go not abroad for happiness. For, see!
It is a flower that blossoms by thy door.
Bring love and justice home; and then no more Thou'lt wonder in what dwelling joy may be.

Dream not of noble service elsewhere wrought;
The simple duty that awaits thy hand
Is God's voice uttering a divine command;
Life's common deeds build all that saints have thought.

In wonder-workings, or some bush aflame,
Men look for God, and fancy Him concealed
But in earth's common things He stands revealed.
While grass and flowers and stars spell out His name.

The paradise men seek, the city bright
That gleams beyond the stars for longing eyes,
Is only human deeds, well done, glow into heavenly light.

—Minot J. Savage.

Won Each Time.

About thirty years ago a remarkable bet was made between Capt. M—, a racing celebrity, and another officer who was noted for his activity.

Capt. M— bet $50 that his fellow officer would not hop up a certain flight of stairs "two at a time."

The offer was taken, but, as there were forty-one steps in the flight, he found, after taking twenty hops, that he was left only one step to negotiate and had lost. He accused Capt. M— of sharp practice, but the latter replied:

"Well, I'll wager you another $50 I do it."

The officer, thinking to get back his money, again accepted.

Capt. M— then hopped up forty steps in twenty hops, and, hopping back one, finished by going up the last two steps, and won.

A Cure for Eloquence.

Former Attorney General Griggs of New Jersey was in attendance at a public meeting where the chief orator of the evening was a long-winded individual who was quite deaf. He wore out the patience of everybody in the hall, and it seemed as if he would really never conclude his remarks. In the midst of it one committeeman turned to the other and said:

"He really thinks that he is a splendid orator."

"It's a pity he's deaf," promptly rejoined the other; "if he could hear himself talk it would very quickly cure him of that hallucination."—Baltimore Herald.

New Electric Engin

A black iron monster, with reversible front and a corridor extending from end to end and communicating with the cars it draws—such is the general appearance of the famous electric locomotive.

In nontechnical language, says a writer in the Review of Reviews, it consists of a ninety-five-ton engine on four driving axles, the motive power being produced directly without intermediate gearing, from a powerful electric motor, developing a capacity of 2,000 horse-power, which can be increased to 3,000. The method is by the third rail, a section of six miles in the open country west of Schenectady having been equipped especially for this trial by the General Electric company, which also furnished the power for the tests. The third rail was protected by a wooden hood, so that no one could reach it unless he tried.

At crossings or other places where the third rail was interrupted the motive power was supplied by connection with an overhead wire, a trolley from the locomotive meeting at these points by means of a pneumatic device controlled by the engineer. The frame of the locomotive is of steel, which acts also as part of the magnetic circuit for the motors. In the test at Schenectady the center of the cab was taken up by recording instruments showing voltage, consumption of current curves are taken and various qualities of the locomotive in use hauling trains, how much space will be occupied by the apparatus.

According to law, there are two men on the locomotive, the engineer and a helper, who takes the place of the old fireman. In designing the locomotive the features of the fireman were kept in mind, and valves and controllers, bells and whistles are within easy reach. It was the aim of the designer to cure in this machine the chief physical features of the best steam locomotive, combining enormous power and simplicity made possible by the electric drive.

The chief source of power losses [illegible] and it is claimed for the locomotive that it will pull and haul more than the steam locomotive, reduce the expense of the rails and roadbed. By the Sprague General Electric multiple unit system of control the locomotives can be coupled and operated from the cab as a single unit.

Fog Tied Up Metropo

London experienced the worst fog of years on Dec. 22. Some of the scenes were described as follows: "In certain parts of London the authorities were quickly alert to the danger and endeavored to bring some light into the darkness by erecting 'flares' to guide the traffic. These flaming torches in their iron brackets were both useful and picturesque. It was strange to stand and watch the little region of welcome light where one of these beacons shone into the darkness. For fifty yards around they illuminated the fog with a dull red glare, casting a flickering light upon the vehicles and people who thronged toward the torches like moths round a candle flame, while farther off the blackness set this strange picture in a black frame of absolute denseness, as if a great iron wall had been built up in the street. The ordinary street lamps were but of little avail.

"Most picturesque and perilous were the scenes on the river. Standing on the Tower bridge [illegible] down into the pool was [illegible] into a cavern of darkness one could see only tiny [illegible] lights gleaming like fireflies [illegible] bottom. One's ears were [illegible] the screeching of sirens [illegible] larger vessels, the roars [illegible] little tugs, the shrill whistles [illegible] foghorns of other craft [illegible] terminating with a continuous murmur of many voices [illegible] at times into a sharp shout [illegible] as a skipper hailed through [illegible] ness.

"As the day were on [illegible] errand boys and all who [illegible] ness of Christmas kept [illegible] streets provided themselves [illegible] terns and links. It was [illegible] reminiscence of old-time [illegible] watch these modern links [illegible] ing their way from street [illegible] and house to house with [illegible] torches of rags and stick [illegible] paraffin."

A Great Church Ceremo

There is a quaint ceremony of an annual blessing of the waters which may be witnessed in any country where the Greek Church exists. The ceremony occurs during the first two months of the year and is always attended with great demonstrations and rejoicings, particularly in Roumania, Russia and Bulgaria.

Great preparations are made the day before the ceremony. A route is set apart leading from the church to the spot on the quay which has been selected for the ceremony, a carpet of straw being laid down. It is usually a bitter cold day, but the people are eager and happy. They arrive on foot or in sledges, dressed in the picturesque national attire. All the houses are gayly decorated with worsted favors and tassels.

On the quay a layman is actively engaged in stirring a barrel of water to keep it from freezing. At ten o'clock, heralded by the many brass instruments, leave the church, preceded of cavalry. With them numbers of religious banners. The priests chant march to the quay, where through the special form the waters of the country, how severe the weather the long service is omitted, ter is distributed among who treasure the few drops to their share as an anti the evil eye and other fo The straw is eagerly grab the ceremony to perform fice for horses and cattle years ago it was the cu hole in the ice of a st this hole a cross was cu manian men dived for fortunate man could carr days and collect money Herald.

Sung by the Philosop

In the down-hill of life, when I find I'm declining,
May my fate no less fortunate be
Than a snug elbow chair will afford for reclining,
And a cot that o'erlooks the wide sea;
With an ambling pad-pony to pace o'er the lawn,
While a good book lightly beguiles
Unregretted away idle sorrow,
And blithe as the lark that each day hails the dawn
Look forward with hope for To-morrow.

With a porch at my door, both for shelter and shade, too,
As the sunshine or rain may prevail;
And a small spot of ground for the use of the spade, too,
With a barn for the use of the flail;
A cow for my dairy, a dog for my game,
And a purse when a friend wants to borrow;
I'll envy no nabob his riches or fame,
Or what honors may wait him To-morrow.

From the bleak northern blast may my cot be completely
Secured by a neighboring hill,
And at night may repose more sweetly
By the sound of a murmuring rill,
And while peace and plenty bless round,
With a heart free from sorrow
With my friends may I [illegible] day may afford,
And let them spread the [illegible] row.

And when I at last must [illegible] grave lie low,
Which I've worn for the [illegible] and ten,
On the brink of the grave I [illegible] keep low ring
Nor my friends wish to [illegible]
But my fame in the glass [illegible] survey,
And with smiles count [illegible] and furrow.
As this old worn-out suit [illegible] threadbare Tooley,
May become Everlasting [illegible]

The Deathbed of Cho

As the great Chopin lay dying his soul was ushered out by the song of the beautiful Countess Delphine Potocka, who had been his dearest confidante and friend. The romance of their friendship, one of the sweetest in history, is related by Gustav Kobbe in the Delineator. The last tragic scene in the life of the composer has often been described, and has been painted by Barrios, but it is so touching that one may well read another version of it. Mr. Kobbe writes:

"Then came what is perhaps the most touching scene that has been handed down to us from the lives of the great composers. When Delphine entered what was soon to be the death chamber, Chopin's sister Louise and a few of his most intimate friends were gathered there. She took her place by Louise. When the dying man opened his eyes and saw her standing at the foot of his bed—tall, slight, draped in white, resembling [illegible] ful angel, and mingling [illegible] with those of Louise—his [illegible] and those nearest him, bent [illegible] to catch his words, heard [illegible] that she would sing.

"Mastering her emotion, [illegible] effort of the will, she sang [illegible] of bell-like purity the canti [illegible] Virgin attributed to Stra [illegible] it so devoutly, so ethereally [illegible] dying man, 'artist and lo [illegible] beautiful to the very last, [illegible] in ecstasy: 'How exquisite [illegible] again!'

"Once more she sang—[illegible] psalm by Marcello. It was [illegible] ed hour of twilight. The [illegible] draped the scene in its [illegible] shadows. Those at the b [illegible] sunk noiselessly on their k [illegible] the mournful accompaniment [illegible] floated the voice of Delph [illegible] melody from heaven."

FARM AND GA

TOOLS AND WAGONS SHELTERED?

[illegible] her shelter my tools or farm [illegible] A tool not worth sheltering is [illegible] th keeping. My wagon has not [illegible] ut four nights in thirty years [illegible] ave run it. I ran it out a night [illegible] so the dew could swell the [illegible] The hay rack is drawn up by [illegible] over the barn floor, except [illegible] thresh, and then it is put in a [illegible] rn. My horse-rake has been in [illegible] er thirty summers and was [illegible] nd when I bought it. I have [illegible] t two mowing machines in my [illegible] and I seldom cut less than 50 [illegible] each year. My potato crates [illegible] pt sheltered and, if filled and [illegible] the cellar, they have strips up [illegible] em to keep them off the ground [illegible] e were the words of a very [illegible] farmer, and a successful one, [illegible] by his place one will note an appearance of thrift and neatness. The [illegible] gs are in good repair and well [illegible] d. There is a large wood pile, [illegible] roomy wood shed. One notices [illegible] the absence of worn-out wagons, [illegible], harrows, cultivators, etc. [illegible] ed about. His tools are kept in [illegible] and he does not buy more than [illegible] shelter.

[illegible] nt through a farmer's orchard [illegible] of his barn last fall and it had [illegible] remains of a dozen old wagons [illegible] ing around, with tall weeds [illegible] up through and among them. [illegible] one to seed. I wondered how he [illegible] gather his apples. It would be [illegible] ous and unsatisfactory task to [illegible] these weeds. Many of these [illegible] s might have been repaired for [illegible] much less than the cost of new [illegible] Most of all, he was in debt for [illegible] agons bought to replace these [illegible] es. A self-binder that cost $[illegible] hich he has been paying interest [illegible] n years, stands out in a snow [illegible] this winter.

[illegible] ft to providing shelter for [illegible] s and tools is to have a place [illegible] they may be comfortable [illegible] in winter or on rainy days. A [illegible] had a tenant house on his [illegible] or which he had not much use. [illegible] roof was getting leaky, and [illegible] than re-roof it, he offered it [illegible] e. Now that it is gone he misses [illegible] a workshop. A house makes an [illegible] place to repair things. It can [illegible] ated in the coldest weather, if [illegible] good light, and various rooms [illegible] things may be put away. I [illegible] another farmer say that if he [illegible] had a warm shop where he [illegible] start a fire on cold days in winter [illegible] might do a whole lot of repairing [illegible] when he could do nothing else. [illegible] ork-bench and tools were in the [illegible] barn, and of course he dare [illegible] et up a stove.

[illegible] y not get in the logs this winter [illegible] mber, and next summer put up [illegible] g shop? When winter comes, let [illegible] e be installed. The farmer will [illegible] many a day profitably in it, [illegible] when the busy season comes, his [illegible] will be in repair. One must remember also that old adage about a [illegible] n in time." The "stitch" may [illegible] ken perhaps in the farm workshop, while a large break may require [illegible] chanic to mend it.—Clark M. [illegible] in Indiana Farmer.

CLASSIFICATION OF CATTLE.

[illegible] le may be classified in one of [illegible] ways—either as natives, commercial and pure breds, or as special beef, special dairy and general or [illegible] purpose. A half century ago the [illegible] minating type of cattle in the [illegible] y was the native or scrub, but [illegible] g the past few years the introduction of pure bred sires has so [illegible] ed and improved the quality of [illegible] ttle that the larger part of them [illegible] e properly classified as graded [illegible] that is, containing one or more [illegible] s of the pure bred sire on the [illegible] l native cows. Pure bred cattle [illegible] re those entitled to registration [illegible] ason of their long lineage in [illegible] no admixture of foreign blood [illegible] rs. This classification is, of [illegible] , defective in that it does not [illegible] ush the qualities, or better, [illegible] duction of the several kinds of [illegible] attle.

[illegible] he United States we have a tri- [illegible] rest in breeding cattle in that [illegible] se them for the production of [illegible] and butter, hence the dairy [illegible] type; for beef; or for the purpose of combining both beef and milk [illegible] as possible in one and the same [illegible] This classification is very [illegible] actory in many respects, though [illegible] a question, sometimes to know [illegible] to place certain of the milking [illegible] gs of Shorthorns, Red Poll and [illegible] animals of the dual-purpose

FARMERS NEED ORGANIZATION.

[illegible] he present day of manifold organizations, this seems an unnecessary question. If it is necessary for [illegible] merchant, the doctor, the lawyer [illegible] mechanic and the coal miner to [illegible] ize for mutual protection, surely [illegible] oves the farmer to consider the [illegible] carefully, for he is really at [illegible] ey of all these combined in- [illegible] though they all depend in [illegible] on his prosperity. It is necessary for the farmer to organize in order that his interests may be properly [illegible] ted. There are nursery frauds [illegible] eed frauds and swindlers and [illegible] of first one kind and another stalking [illegible] openly [illegible] from the [illegible] of indifferent [illegible] they prey [illegible] mer and [illegible] so it is [illegible] farmer [illegible] tutes and [illegible] about these [illegible] complish [illegible] tact with [illegible] various [illegible] tical ex- [illegible] production [illegible] feeding [illegible] tle, in the [illegible] type soils [illegible] vation of [illegible] cial interests [illegible] mers should [illegible] they may [illegible] protection.

AIM

[illegible] A pretty [illegible] Islands was [illegible] terday by a [illegible] ship Mariposa [illegible] romantic [illegible] J. W. Wilson [illegible] toba. Canada [illegible] years before [illegible] cording to [illegible] and his brother [illegible] American [illegible] "dolce far niente" [illegible] southern [illegible] for those [illegible] lovely but [illegible] rora, fills [illegible] whither [illegible] their [illegible] under the [illegible] dream [illegible] the pleasant [illegible] kings of [illegible] their home [illegible] but the [illegible] their small [illegible] daily want [illegible] a small [illegible] cardinal [illegible] tion grow [illegible] nawly wed [illegible] early days [illegible] bungalow [illegible] out of nat- [illegible] cares of [illegible] ding crowd [illegible] Francisco [illegible]

Pilgrims [illegible] from all [illegible] Mecca last [illegible] known to [illegible] 10,000, who [illegible] are unaccompanied [illegible]

The Lord [illegible] not consider [illegible] Me" a suitable [illegible] parting remark [illegible] Tommy Atkins [illegible] glad to learn [illegible]

FARM AND GARDEN

TOOLS AND WAGONS SHELTERED.

[illegible] my tools or burn [illegible] worth sheltering is [illegible]. My wagon has not [illegible] nights in thirty years [illegible] I ran it out a night [illegible] could swell the [illegible] is drawn up by [illegible] barn floor, except [illegible] and then it is put in a [illegible] mow rake has been in [illegible] summers and was sec[illegible] I bought it. I have [illegible] mowing machines in my [illegible] seldom cut less then 50 [illegible] each year. My potato crates [illegible] and, if filled and [illegible] they have strips un[illegible] them off the ground. [illegible] the words of a very [illegible] and a successful one. [illegible] one will note an ap[illegible] and neatness. The [illegible] in good repair and well [illegible] a large wood pile, [illegible] wood shed. One notices [illegible] of worn-out wagons, [illegible] cultivators, etc., [illegible] His tools are kept in [illegible] does not buy more than [illegible]

[illegible] a farmer's orchard [illegible] last fall and it had [illegible] of a dozen old wagons [illegible] with tall weeds [illegible] and among them, [illegible] I wondered how he [illegible] apples. It would be [illegible] satisfactory task to [illegible] Many of these [illegible] been repaired for [illegible] the cost of new [illegible] of all he was in debt for [illegible] bought to replace these [illegible] A self-binder that cost $125, [illegible] been paying interest [illegible] out in a snow [illegible]

[illegible] providing shelter for [illegible] to have a place [illegible] comfortably re[illegible] water or on rainy days. A [illegible] had a tenant house on his [illegible] with he had not much use, [illegible] was getting leaky, and [illegible] roof it, he offered it [illegible] that it is gone he misses [illegible] nop. A house makes an [illegible] to repair things. It can [illegible] the coldest weather, it [illegible] good light, and various rooms [illegible] things may be put away. I [illegible] a farmer say that if he had a warm shop where he [illegible] start a fire on cold days in win[illegible] might do a whole lot of repair[illegible] when he could do nothing else. [illegible] work bench and tools were in the [illegible] barn, and of course he dare [illegible] on a stove.

[illegible] not get in the logs this winter [illegible] summer and next summer put up [illegible] sheds. When winter comes, let [illegible] be installed. The farmer will [illegible] money in it, [illegible] when the busy season comes, his [illegible] will be in repair. One must re[illegible] also that old adage about a [illegible] in time." The "stitch" may [illegible] soon perhaps in the farm work[illegible] while a large break may require [illegible] to mend it.—Clark M. [illegible] in Indiana Farmer.

CLASSIFICATION OF CATTLE.

[illegible] are now classified in one of [illegible] other as natives, common [illegible] graded and pure breds, or as spe[illegible] beef, special dairy and general or [illegible]. A half century ago the [illegible] type of cattle in the [illegible] was the native or scrub, but [illegible] the past few years the intro[illegible] of pure bred sires has so [illegible] improved the quality of [illegible] the larger part of them [illegible] classified as graded [illegible] containing one or more [illegible] pure bred sire on the [illegible] cows. Pure bred cat[illegible] admitted to registration [illegible] their long lineage in [illegible] of foreign blood [illegible] classification is, of [illegible] in that it does not [illegible] qualities, or better, [illegible] of the several kinds of [illegible]

[illegible] States we have a tri[illegible] breeding cattle in that [illegible] for the production of [illegible], hence the district [illegible] type for beef; or for the pur[illegible] producing both beef and milk [illegible] desirable in one and the same [illegible] classification is very [illegible] in many respects, though [illegible] question, sometimes to know [illegible] to be certain of the milking [illegible] of Shorthorns, Red Poll and [illegible] of the dual-purpose [illegible]

FARMERS NEED ORGANIZATION.

[illegible] day of manifold or[illegible] this seems an unneces[illegible] If it is necessary for [illegible] the doctor, the lawyer, [illegible] and the coal miner to [illegible] for mutual protection, surely [illegible] the farmer to consider the [illegible] fly, for he is really at [illegible] I these combined in[illegible] they all depend in [illegible] on his prosperity. It is neces[illegible] farmer to organize in or[illegible] his interests may be properly [illegible]ed. There are nursery frauds [illegible] seed frauds and swindlers and [illegible] of first one kind and another stalking up and down the country openly extorting outrageous prices from the farmer for goods or articles of indifferent quality. Some one says they prey on the credulity of the farmer and on his ignorance. If this be so, it is an additional reason why the farmer should organize through institutes and so properly inform himself about these things. This can be accomplished by bringing them in contact with men who are specialists in various lines or who have had practical experience in the growth and production of certain crops, in the feeding and management of beef cattle, in the fertilization of the various type soils of the State, or in the cultivation of new crops which are of special interest to the farmer. The farmers should organize in order that they may have laws passed for their protection.—Southern Agriculturist.

ABOUT POTTED PLANTS.

Plants grown in pots require good soil, rich in all the elements of vegetable nutrition, and though good garden loam answers in most cases, the best results will be attained by the judicious use of fertilizers. These are sometimes applied in solid form and sometimes in liquid. For use in the latter form, soot will be found very beneficial, putting the soot in a thin sack and steeping in water and then using the water over the roots.

WHAT A HORSE CAN EAT.

There is a certain amount which may vary under different circumstances which a horse can eat and which will sustain him and keep him in a good, healthy condition. Anything more than this is just as injurious as anything less. This amount can only be ascertained by experiment, as no two horses require exactly the same quantity of food.

AIM FOR THE BEST.

Letting well enough alone is no doubt a good and conservative rule, but it is scarcely applicable to the farm. A constant aim for something better should be the rule there. It is a bad plan to worry; there is no profit in worrying, but we are never afraid of discontent—the discontent that leads to better things. The farmer that settles down contented and satisfied is as high up the ladder as he will get.

A GREAT MISTAKE.

There is no greater mistake made in the poultry yard than continuous inbreeding as the fowls become delicate, hard to raise, not as good layers and in every way less profitable. New blood should be introduced every year with chickens, turkeys, or any of the feathered tribe to keep up the constitutions, vigor and health of the fowls. In a majority of cases if fowls are delicate it is because they have been carelessly inbred and not because they are pure bred.

A HORSE HINT.

Reject a horse with toes turned in or out. The twist generally occurs at the fetlock. Toes turned out are more objectionable than toes turned in. When toes are turned out the fetlocks are generally turned in, and animals so formed are very apt to cut or bruise. Both, however, are weak formations.

Birdies in Their Nest.

A pretty story of the South Sea Islands was brought to this city yesterday by a passenger on the steamship Mariposa, who describes the romantic honeymoon enjoyed by Dr. J. W. Williams, a dentist of Manitoba, Canada, who has for several years been practising in Tahiti. According to the story, Mr. Williams and his bride, a Mrs. Brackman, a fair American widow, fell so far under the "dolce far niente" influence of the southern Pacific isles that they chose for the scene of their honeymoon the lovely but lonely coral stoll of Tetuarora, fifty miles north of Tahiti, whither they went immediately after their wedding in Papeete, and there, under the bamboo and palms of the dreamy island, which was formerly the pleasure resort of the savage kings of bygone days, are spending their honeymoon with no neighbors but the handful of natives who sail their small sloop and attend to their daily wants. The atoll is said to be a small fairyland, where leafy palms, gardinia and other tropical vegetation grow in profusion. Here the newly wedded couple will spend the early days of their married life in a bungalow built by native workmen out of native materials, far from the cares of civilization and the "madding crowd's ignoble strife."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Pilgrims to the number of 92,500, from all parts of Islam, reached Mecca last year. Five thousand are known to have died on the way, and 10,000, who started but did not arrive, are unaccounted for.

The London Musical World does not consider "The Girl I Left Behind Me" a suitable marching tune for departing regiments to play. It says Tommy Atkins is usually heartily glad to leave his girl behind him.

TALKS WITH OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE SANDMAN.

The Sandman comes across the land,
At evening, when the sun is low;
Upon his back, a bag of sand—
His step is soft and slow.
I never hear his gentle tread,
But, when I bend my sleepy head,
"The sandman's coming!" mother says,
And mother tells the truth, always!

He glides across the sunset hill,
To seek each little child like me,
Our all-day-tired eyes to fill
With sands of sleep from slumber's sea.
I try my best awake to stay,
But I am tired out with play;
"I'll never see him!" mother says,
And mother tells the truth—always!

—Marie Van Vorst, in Harper's Magazine.

"FIFTY CUBIT."

It was luncheon hour at Hilton Academy, and excitement was high among the pretty girls who were preparing for a presentation of the Cantata of Esther.

"Who's that coming?" asked one, suddenly.

"Oh, that is the girl from Shelby."

"That backwoods place! No wonder she looks as if she came out of the ark."

The girl from Shelby was drawing near timidly, and paused as she saw the forbidding faces. Tall and stoop-shouldered, with hands that told of hard work, it was hard for Ruth. Alden when she wanted to be like other girls; hard to wear that old dress with outgrown sleeves and skirt eked out.

She wished she knew how these girls did their hair so prettily, but there wouldn't be time, even if she knew. She must use every minute before school, for her invalid mother must be made comfortable, and dinner left cooked for the children, and at night there was even more to be done.

She knew what the girls were talking about so earnestly, but stepped back, perceiving herself unwelcome.

A moment later Harry Foster approached the group. He had the part of Haman in the cantata, and was sentenced to be hung on the gallows fifty cubits high.

"Here comes Haman! Long live Haman!" hummed one of the girls.

"And there goes Fifty Cubit," laughed Helen Avery as Ruth Alden, tall and awkward, retreated, slowly, wondering how it would seem to be "one of the girls," if only for a day.

"Hush!" whispered Harry. "She's not to blame for being so tall—I say, let her have some part with the rest of you."

"She can't; she hasn't a decent dress of any kind."

"Well, I know one thing," retorted Harry, angrily, "you girls would better look out. Professor Harrison says she will be the head of the class next year."

"Don't stop to quarrel," said Angie Fenner. "What shall we wear?" And all began talking at once.

"Kings and queens wear royal purple, trimmed with ermine."

"We'll get purple cambric, and for ermine cut white cotton batting into strips, and ink it for ermine tails."

"And what for crowns?"

"Gild pasteboard with gold paint. Will Newton's shirt stud can be the Kohinoor."

"Good! We girls will wear white muslin."

"I'll wear my new silk," said Angie Fenner, who was to be prophetess.

"How you would look, prophesying in an applegreen silk! You must have a costume."

"You needn't talk about it! I'm going to wear the silk!"

Ruth Alden wasn't asked to take any part, but one of the girls had said Fifty Cubit might be useful in the dressing-room and told her to come.

On cantata night the hall was packed to the doors. The girls' dressing-room was a foam of white muslin and Fifty Cubit was here, there and everywhere helping to make the others beautiful.

When the curtain rose, the King, standing on Mrs. Fenner's best rug, looked royally impressive in his duet with Haman. The chorus sang their "Song of Joy," and then the "prophetess" appeared in her silk, fluffy with lace and a garniture of roses. As she bowed, her dress fluttered against a flaring candle—a scream and she ran.

"Shut the door after me!" pealed a voice; and Fifty Cubit burst through the dressing-room, threw Angie to the floor, and catching up the rug, rolled her over and over. Another instant, and Angie's father dashed over the footlights to his darling.

Angie was saved, but Ruth's hands and arms were badly burned, and only her woolen dress saved her from a worse fate.

"Oh, Ruth! What can we ever do for you?" faltered Angie's mother.

That night Ruth slept in Angie's room, and next morning Mrs. Fenner said, "Ruth, dear, we have sent a good woman to your mother, and you must stay here and rest. Angie needs just such a sister as you."

"Here's something for you," said Mr. Fenner, laying down a curious looking paper. "I'm not a man of many words. It's no use trying to tell you how I feel."

"What is it?" asked Ruth.

"It's the deed of Pine Hill cottage. I give it to you."

When Ruth began to understand, she could hardly believe herself alive. That pretty house, right in town, to be hers!

All day long she lay on the couch, with a song in her heart, until Angie came from school, but not alone; there was a roomful of girls crowding around her.

"You dear, splendid girl!" they cried in a breath. "Do forgive us we've been so cold and hateful, but we've planned out the nicest times, and you shall be the queen of us all."

Ruth looked from one to another of the tearful, eager faces and smiled. "I don't want to be queen," she said. "I want to be one of the girls."—The

THE MOON AND THE WEATHER.

The moon, is the most powerful agent in producing the tides on the earth; it also produces some slight variations in the earth's magnetism. So far as science has been able to investigate, there is absolutely no change in the weather which can be attributed to the moon, although half or more of mankind seem to believe that the moon does have some control over the weather. All such beliefs, including the time for planting gardens and for going fishing, are mere superstitions—the survivals o an age of ignorance.—St. Nicholas.

The Latest South African Discovery Eclipses All Other Stones in Size.

The news of the finding of a diamond near Pretoria which weighs more than 3,000 karats (about one and one-half pounds avoirdupois) excites interest all over the world, as it is by far the largest diamond that history has known. What weight will remain when the stone is cut can not be known. In the rough, the stone is valued at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000.

The Kohinoor, the prize jewel of the English crown, was in its original form only a fourth of the size of this new wonder, weighing only 794 karats. It is an Indian diamond, of Golconda, and the legend is that it was worth 5,000 years ago. A French traveler, who saw it in the early seventeenth century, describes it as of the shape of a half egg, and weighing 280 karats, it having been thus reduced by an unskilled cutter. Later it was still further reduced to 186 karats, and later to 106. Its under side being flat and corresponding with the cleavage, it is conjectured that it and the Russian Orloff diamond are portions of the original stone that the French traveler saw.

This Orloff diamond weighs 194 karats, cut in the rose form with flat surface below. It was sold to Count Orloff for the Empress Catherine for a title, an annuity and 450,000 rubles. There are legends of many sorts attached to these large stones. The finest stone of them all perhaps is the Regent or Pitt diamond, so called from Governor Pitt, of Madras, who bought it for £20,000. It was sold to the regent for Louis XV for £130,000, and is said to be worth twice that It originally weighed 410 karats, but was reduced to 136. The Florentine diamond, another of the famous large stones, belongs to Austria. It weighs 133 karats. Among the legends that cluster around it is that it was lost by Charles the Bold at the battle of Granson, and found by a peasant who sold it for a few pence as a piece of rock crystal.

A recent consular report showed $31,000,000 worth of precious stones was imported into this country in the fiscal year of 1903, and of this sum diamonds constituted $26,500,000 worth, being the largest amount ever imported into this country in one year. The commercial condition of a country has much to do with diamond buying. In the year mentioned Americans bought rather more precious stones than London did. In the last few years the value of the diamond has steadily been rising. It is said that waves of prosperity can be measured almost exactly by the imports of precious stones.

It is true economy to begin the dinner with soup of some kind.

WOMAN'S WORLD

THE NECK BEAUTIFUL.

The throat of the modern girl gives her more trouble perhaps than anything else in her quest for beauty, and even though the high stiff linen collar is a thing of the past, its effects on many necks are still visible in unsightly wrinkles and ugly curves around the collarbone. The masseur and a judicious and patient application of cucumber cream have done much to hide even this, and many apparently hopelessly ruined throats are gradually recovering from one of the most unfortunate fashions ever attempted by woman.

Unsightly stains are much inevidence, however, especially in winter, and it sometimes takes more than plain soap and water to eradicate them. These stains have various causes—furs, turned up coat collars and colored ribbons all being responsible; starch, too, is apt to leave a brown mark. Pure alcohol or a good quality cologne rubbed in thoroughly will remove the stain, or a few drops of ammonia in hot water applied with a good soap will have the same result. It should be borne in mind, however, that the alcohol or cologne should never be of a cheap grade, and the ammonia water should never touch the face.

These neck marks are directly responsible for the invariable habit of some women of always wearing high-neck gowns, and, indeed, it is well that such is the case, for unless a woman has a prettily shaped neck and shoulders and a milky white skin she had better avoid a decollete bodice. Few are able to realize this fact, for it seems as though every woman has a secret conviction that her neck is irreproachable. This is unfortunately rarely the case nowadays, and even then a pretty neck requires constant care in itself and a healthy condition of the whole body to keep it in good condition.

Of course, various authorities give various directions, and, as was said in the beginning of this article, every woman requires individual treatment if simple rules for bathing and diet fail to reach the root of the trouble. But by being temperate in eating from early childhood, giving strict attention to the general health, keeping regular hours, taking frequent baths, and avoiding cheap lotions, or those which are without a physician's certificate, any woman's face should be fair to see.—Brooklyn Eagle.

FREEDOM FOR THE YOUNG GIRL.

Speaking of the young girl and training her for life's responsibilities, Ruskin wrote:

"The first of our duties to her—no thoughtful persons now doubt this—is to secure for her such physical training and exercise as may confirm her health and perfect her beauty, the highest refinement of that beauty being unattainable without splendor of activity and of delicate strength. To perfect her beauty, I say, and increase its power; it cannot be too powerful nor shed its sacred light too far; only remember that all physical freedom is vain to produce beauty without a corresponding freedom of heart."

Freedom of heart is freedom to live with enjoyment, without foolish worries, fretful anxieties and a too great valuation and regard for trifling things.

It is impossible to be too happy, too beautiful, or too buoyant of spirit. We want all we can get of happiness. Neither fair looks nor joyousness is responsible for any sorrows, for true beauty and true happiness are just, sympathetic and unselfish.

The body, the soul and the mind must all receive cultivation. We can make them radiant and blooming or we can neglect them utterly and so fall into a state of rust.—New York Globe.

RAIN AND BEAUTY.

There's something fascinating about a rainy day. To those who take the time to let a few thoughs trickle through their brain cells now and then a stormy hour, with sky gray and brooding, and raindrops pattering, inspires tender reveries and a sweet, charming, exquisite sort of loneliness that is really delightful.

After all, one should not be a fair weather girl. All days can't be sunny, and, besides, one always knows that the sun is still doing business up there in the blue, and there's not the slightest chance of it getting lost. Sooner or later the old warm rays will shine out again. The fair weather girl is so like those cowardly mortals who are brave in successful moments and weak and cringing when things go wrong! All things are interesting and all days are fine to those who have cultivated a simple little philosophy of human contentment.

Be a rainy daisy and defy the elements. Bad weather is Mrs. Nature's chief beauty doctor and the best kind of brain grower.—Washington Star.

BABY'S UP-TO-DATE OUTFIT.

Among other imported articles of dress which come from the Parisian capital, there is none prettier than those for baby's exclusive use. A dainty bag which combines sanitary features with the idea of individual use, many mothers hold so highly desirable among baby's belongings. Baby's handkerchief receptacles are made of embroidered anglais lined with white linen and they are extremely pretty and are a necessary article to the outfit.

Drawstrings of delicately colored ribbon are used, and when these are removed the bag launders beautifully.

Sachets are also very much used to perfume the dainty garments, or used in the baby basket, and these come in the form of a Dutch shoe, made of a delicate pink satin, embroidered in sweet peas, while a frill of pink chiffon and tiny pink satin bows form the finishing touch of exquisite daintiness.

The carriage pillow is another handsome article of the wardrobe, and the most popular ones are made of white linen with a deep hemstitched hem, leaving one edge plain where the pillow is adjusted. Embroidered eyelids carry the ribbon, which are tied in pretty bows in each corner.

FOR PRETTY TEETH.

"A pearl in the mouth is worth two on the neck," is an up-to-date adage which women would do well to ponder over. A woman of many charms will often fail of impression if her teeth are not delicately clean and whole. There are many factors which go to determine the soundness of one's teeth, but none more potent than that of use. Good vigorous action is necessary in order that a supply of blood may be called to the teeth to nourish them, says "Woman's Life." Give a muscle no exercise and the veriest novice knows it will get soft. Give the teeth no work and they become chalky and an easy prey to decay. Too much cooking of food and the use of soft, prepared dishes have had much to do with getting people out of the habit of chewing. Those who live on course foods requiring thorough mastication have the perfect teeth of animals, white and hard and even. The blood supply is perfect on account of the stimulation given by thorough exercise of the jaws.

MASSAGE THE EARS.

Women who will spend hours massaging their faces nearly always neglect to include their ears in this renovating process, the consequence being that their ears lose their color and freshness. The importance of massaging the ear is urged by a leading beauty specialist. As women advance in age and lose inevitably their girlishness, the ear has a tendency to grow old with the rest of the face. It loses its pretty pink freshness and begins to stand out from the head as if it had taken to growing again. This is due probably to the sagging of the muscles in front of the ear and to the shriveling of the ligaments and the soft padding of fat. Delicate massage with the tips of the fingers is said to resuscitate the nerves, quicken the circulation and nourish the cartilage of the ear, in time restoring the delicate pink flush that is so much admired.

COMFORT IN LIFE.

Life is not an easy proposition by any manner of means, but we can make it easier oftimes by that philosophy that makes us lovable and sympathy rather than the indulgence of tempers that give everyone around us the "blues."—Woman's Life.

FASHION HINTS.

Party frocks were never so fascinating for young girls as this season. Even for the small tots dainty dresses with embroidered flounces, lace-trimmed skirts and ribbon bedecked, are just what is necessary.

The materials for the coming season are beautiful but varied. There are many charming trimmings available, and so many ways of manipulating trimmings of the materials in effective devices.

Plain Japanese silks, white pongees and silk crepes with embroideries, will constitute many of the fabrics used for summer gowns.

Smocking, like all other forms of hand work, is done by machine nowadays, and is a very fashionable method of confining the fullness of skirt and sleeve tops or of the waist where it is needed. It is as possible for wash materials as is shirring.

Simple house frocks for young girls are made in shirt waist style of flowered challie, albatross or viye la, and the skirt and waist joined in old-fashioned style, with the placquet at one side of the front.

Smooth surface suitings with small indefinite check effects, mohairs and lightweight cheviots, bedford cord and covert cloth are the materials announced for spring tailored suits for young girls.

The trend toward simplicity of lines noticeable in the latest tailor mades for women is to be found in the spring suits.

The number of cigarettes manufactured and sold in Canada increased from 34,000,000 in 1890 to 83,000,000 in 1895. In 1900 123,000,000 were manufactured.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

SPECIAL OFFER! !

For the next two weeks we will give The Union, weekly Atlanta Constitution, Farm and Home, and Southern Ruralist of Atlanta—four papers a whole year for only $1.50.

also

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

WHY NOT?

Why not have an oil mill and fertilizer mixing plant along with our cotton warehouse? There is a grand opportunity for making money as well as benefiting our county farmers. It will keep the part of the seed that is useful on the farm at home. We've been told that the fertilizer sold in Clanton alone in 1904 showed a profit to the mixer of over ten thousand dollars. There must be plenty of spare cash in the county, for we have two banks which is a sure indication. Let us get industries such as the above under way and telephone circuits and other modern conveniences will naturally follow. We hope this will start the ball rolling and expect to have some figures before long to lay before our readers on this line. Why not?

CHILTON COUNTY S. C. A.

Clanton, Ala., March 16, 1905.

The Chilton County Branch of the S. C. A. was called to order by President W. H. Conway, who introduced Hon. J. H. Harris, of Chambers county.

Mr. Harris came to Clanton by the request of President W. H. Seymour, who had been invited by County President Conway and others to lecture to the Chilton County Branch of the association.

Mr. Harris made a very instructive speech and answered several questions to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Judge Reynolds moved that the chair appoint a committee on order of business for the day; carried. Chairman Conway appointed W. S. Cox, T. J. Jackson, J. W. Sorrell, T. L. Robinson, F. A. Gulledge, L. H. Reynolds and A. C. Smith as committee. Motion prevailed that the meeting adjourn till 1 p. m.

At a little after 1 p. m. Chairman W. H. Conway called the meeting to order, after which Mr. Harris explained some points of constitution and by-laws of the Association. Next the Districts were called and the names of delegates enrolled, after which the secretary called the roll of delegates. Thirty-six districts being represented, viz.:

No. 8, W. R. White, 24 members; No. 10, J. D. Sims, J. Popwell, I. M. Deason, 20 members; No. 11, E. B. Popwell, A. T. Hathcock, J. S. Popwell, 8 members; No. 13, W. D. Courtney, J. A. Williams, T. J. Griffin, 36 members; No. 14, J. J. Grant, B. F. Gardner, S. S. Scott, 20 members; No. 15, F. A. Gulledge, H. W. Caffee, J. A. Mitchell, 18 members; No. 17 R. J. Downs, J. J. Dennis, John Strock, 21 members; No. 26, R. E. Roper, W. W. Mims, W. B. Cooper, 27 members; No. 27, W. C. Roper, W. A. Culp, 30 members; No. 28, J. J. Gallman, M. F. Lett, W. J. Watson, 42 members; No. 29, N. J. Calloway, John Mims No. 1, 2 members; No. 31, R. T. Grant, J. S. Jones, J. M. Grant, 23 members; No. 32, J. L. Baker, J. W. Cox, J. P. Parish, 16 members; No. 33, A. J. Powell, W. H. Robinson, 38 members; No. 34, H. B. Glenn, J. C. Alred, T. L. Robinson, 11 members; No. 36, T. J. Hubbard, 10 members; No. 37, B. L. Calfee, W. A. Wood, W. M. Oden, 34 members; No. 38, W. D. Dunlap, G. W. Mims, T. C. Jones, 13 members; No. 39, J. M. Littlejohn, J. M. Maddox, N. G. Ward, 59 members; M. Maddox, N. G. Ward, 58 members; members; No. 41, A. F. Childress, A. H. Collins, J. L. Vines, 17 members; No. 42, W. J. Headley, J. R. Thompson, W. E. Thompson, 25 members; No. 43, William Lambert, W. J. Lambert, 18 members; No. 44, W. S. Cox, J. W. Cox, N. Minor, 15 members; No. 45, J. H. Thomas, W. E. Thomas, T. M. Driver, 28 members; No. 46, T. J. Collins, A. Littleton, J. W. Bean, 55 members; No. 47, W. P. Checkler, M. Robinson, Isom Varden, 16 members; No. 48, H. C. Young, G. W. Marcus John Ellison, 15 members; No. 51, J. W. Sorrell, M. H. Martin, W. T. Campbell, 31 members; No. 54, J. M. Foshee, C. L. Langston, O. P. Scott 20 members; No. 55, W. H. Killingsworth, 10 members; No. 57, A. J. Glasscock, J. W. Beasley, B. E. Collum, 16 members; No. 65, W. T. Callen, A. C. Smith, W. C. Edler, 36 members; No. 67, G. W. Shaw, G. C. Shaw 24 members. S. J. Dawson was present from No. 16, and Anderson Baker, Sr., No. 10, but had no members to report. No. 56 with 9 members had no delegates present.

The chair, being informed that the committee on the order of the day was ready to report, called on F. A. Gulledge to read report of committee the report being as follows:

To the Cotton Association of Chilton County, Greeting:

We, your committee, beg leave to report the following as a basis for your action today.

1st. That a man of capacity and in thorough accord with the movement now on foot be employed to address each election precinct at once, making speeches at night only, after giving full notice of such address to be made; his per diem to be fixed here today by this meeting.

2nd. That an executive committee be appointed by chairman of this meeting, one from each election precinct, and we would suggest that one of the duties of said executive committee should be to arrange for a county fair to be held in Clanton during the fall of the present year.

3rd. We further suggest that each and every one who is attending this meeting today shall constitute himself as a committee of one to urge his neighbors and friends to hold cotton now on hand and to reduce his cotton acreage as per action of the meeting held in New Orleans January 24-26, 1905.

4th. We further recommend that the lecturer referred to shall organize each election precinct and report weekly to the county chairman.

F. A. GULLEDGE,
W. S. COX,
T. J. JACKSON,
J. W. SORRELL,
T. L. ROBINSON,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
A. C. SMITH,
Committee.

After the reading of the report of the committee, J. J. Grant moved that the report be adopted, which was carried after discussion by Uncle Joe Harris, Judson Strock, F. A. Gulledge, W. C. Edler and others.

Question asked by W. A. Wood as to the disposition of fees.

Responded to by "Uncle Joe" Harris.

The executive committee was appointed as follows:

J. W. Sorrell, Beat 1, Jemison, R F. D. No. 2.

W. H. Killingsworth, Beat 2, Jemison.

W. A. Wood, Beat 3, Maplesville.

Tipton Mullins, Beat 4, Clanton.

J. A. Mitchell, Beat 5, Verbena.

Madison Popwell, Beat 6, Clanton R. F. D. No. 3.

Young Nix, Beat 7, Maplesville.

R. P. Kendrick, Beat 8, Pletcher.

W. A. Mims, Beat 9, Clanton, R. F. D. No. 4.

J. M. Grant, Beat 10, Cooper.

W. S. Cox, Beat 11, Clanton.

Motion prevailed that County Lecturer be allowed $3 per day for time to give one lecture in each election precinct.

J. A. Mitchell was elected as county lecturer and organizer by acclamation.

Moved by J. S. Jones that F. A. Gulledge make a report of state meeting held Feb. 21st at Montgomery. Carried.

Mr. Gulledge made a very full report of actions of the Montgomery meeting.

Motion prevailed that the next county meeting be held at Clanton on the 1st Saturday of May next.

W. H. CONWAY,
Chairman.

J. N. DENNIS, Secretary.

NOTES.

The meeting was earnest and the members attended strictly to the business. "Uncle Joe" Harris' talk was much appreciated by our people, for after the meeting was over we heard numbers express themselves as highly pleased. Bro. Harris is making a round of visits to the following places by order of the state association: Livingston, Eutaw, Greensboro, Marion, Grove Hill, St. Stephens and Bay Minette, and if he takes as well in these places as he did with us, he will do a world of good to the farmers and the cotton association. There are 806 paid up members in Chilton Co.; and the reports on acreage and fertilizer so far show that where 15,111 acres were planted in cotton in 1904, this year will be 11,309, a reduction of 25 per cent; and where 1,410 tons of fertilizer was used in 1904, will only take in 1905, 1,002 tons, a reduction of about 30 per cent. There is no disguising the fact that the farmers of Chilton county think for themselves in all matters and are therefore qualified to take hold of any movement that promises a betterment of their condition.

LIBERTY HILL.

The health of our section is pretty good, except Mrs. R. C. Riggins and Mrs. John Littlejohn are sick, but we hope they will speedily recover. Little Esther Vickers is doing fairly well at present. Now, brother farmers, spring is here and corn planting is in order, so figure out what will do you and then plant three or four acres to the horse extra, but be sure and not plant any more cotton than you agreed to do. As for myself I signed for 12 acres, but since that have decided to plant only 8 acres in cotton and am going to divide the 4 acres between corn, peas, sorghum and potatoes. I wish, if there are any of the writers to our good paper (THE UNION) who have cut their acreage in cotton more than they agreed to would tell us what they think would pay best to plant in the place of the cotton, for your readers' benefit. Rev. S. Smitherman filled his regular appointment here, and preached to the church on Saturday and to the worldlings on Sunday, using as his text "Verily, I say unto you, except you be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Some one give the verse and chapter for this text. Visiting this week: B. H. Vickers and wife and Miss Esther to Kinion Hays; Fons Maddox and Sam Alford to J. M. Maddox. F. A. Bates and wife, Mac Bakers. Frank Williams has got into his pretty house. He is a hustler. Bud Foshee is on a trip to Briarfield.

"ONE AT HOME."

RANDOLPH.

Nature is beginning to don her livery of green. Everything is looking lovely in THE UNION. Let it increase. Heavy rain Sunday night has checked farm work. Mrs. John Hilton has been sick several days, but is better now. S. E. Waldrup was in our town Monday. The Bass Foundry and Machine Co., of Rock Run, Ala., opened up a coaling a few miles west of town Monday. Mrs. Julia Meroney, of Thorsby, has taken charge of the Randolph Hotel. Misses Waldrup and Fleming had received a nice lot of Japanese seed cane for planting. E. Bearden was in town Friday. Rev. Connell failed to fill his appointment here Sunday. Phil Martin was in town Saturday and bought him a new buggy. John Thacker, of Hubbard, has moved to our town. Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Nix were in town last week. Mr. Clarke, of Centerville, was in town Monday to survey some land. Jim Lightsey and John Hatcher were visitors here Monday. Will some one please tell us what the good people of Rocky Mount are doing? Give us the news; it may not interest you, but it will us. Yours for the people.

ONE OF THE BOYS."

MARS HILL.

Our farmers are utilizing every opportunity to get in shape. Sam Edwards is very sick. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the faithful superintendence of Bro. G. W. Gothard. Now, brother farmers let us have better roads, for in our community and others it is dangerous to travel at night. I am also in favor of a special school tax, and so do away with this growling about supplements. There has been an improvement in teaching in our schools. Now, let us make an improvement in paying for it. D. W. Scott has got a new set of blacksmith tools and wants to do all the settlement work. J. N. Scott went to Pleasant Hill for service last Saturday and Sunday. If you want the best county news subscribe for the UNION.

MARS HILLIAN.

The specialty farmer is generally a prosperous farmer. Make a specialty of something and then make a study of it and learn how to produce the best of its kind in your neighborhood. You will soon have the buyers coming to you, and what is more, they will be paying you whatever price you may ask.

The prices obtained in New York this week at the sales of several hundred horses, averaging about $700 a head, do not suggest the speedy coming of the "horseless age," of which we hear so much talk in the these days of automobiles.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MARCH 26.

Review of the Twelve Preceding Lessons For the First Quarter—Read John vi. 35-51—Golden Text, John xx., 31—Summary.

Lesson I. Topic: The wonderful divine Saviour. Place: Ephesus. John's gospel was written between 80 and 90 A. D. John was the only apostle living at that time. He refers to Christ as the Word of God; all things were made by Him; He was the life and the light of men; reference is made to John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ; He was "not that light, but was sent to bear witness of that light;" Jesus was the true light.

II. Topic: The believer's true attitude toward his Lord. Place: Bethabara. A crisis had arisen in John's ministry; the Sanhedrin sent a deputation from Jerusalem to ask John who he was; John said he was not the Christ, nor Elias, nor the prophet about whom Moses had written, but he was merely a voice crying from the wilderness, "Make straight the way of the Lord." John baptized with water; Christ would baptize with the Holy Spirit; John testified concerning Jesus and called Him the Lamb of God; John did not know Christ until the time of his baptism when the Holy Ghost in the form of a dove came upon him, and the Father said, "This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

III. Topic: Jesus wins His first disciples. Place: Bethabara. John pointed Jesus out to two disciples who followed Jesus; Jesus turned and said, "What seek ye?" They asked Christ where He dwelt; Jesus said, "Come and see;" Andrew found his brother Simon and brought him to Jesus; it is supposed also that John found his brother James; Jesus found Philip; Philip found Nathanael; when Philip told Nathanael that they had found the Messiah, Nathanael raised an objection; Nathanael was soon convinced that Jesus was the Messiah.

IV. Topic: Christ's first miracle. Place: Cana of Galilee. A wedding feast was being held; Christ's mother had been invited, and Christ and His disciples were invited; they needed wine at the feast; Christ's mother called His attention to the fact; He instructed the servants to fill six water pots with water; they were then told to draw out and bear to the governor of the feast; the governor praised the wine; in this miracle Christ showed forth His glory; the disciples believed that He was the Messiah.

V. Topic: Gateways into the kingdom of God. Place: Jerusalem. Nicodemus came to Jesus by night; the subject of miracles was introduced; Jesus said, "Ye must be born again;" Nicodemus failed to understand; Christ brought an illustration of the wind; also referred to the serpent Moses made in the wilderness; said that the Son of Man must be lifted up that whosoever believeth in Him should have eternal life.

VI. Topic: Vital laws of spiritual work. Place: At Jacob's well in Samaria. Jesus goes through Samaria; stops at Jacob's well; meets a woman; asks a drink; she expresses surprise; Jesus speaks of the gift of God—living water; she desires it; Jesus asks her to call her husband; she says she has none; has had five; calls Jesus a prophet; asks about place of worship; true worship must be in spirit and in truth.

VII. Topic: Christ's power to restore to life. Place: Cana in Galilee. The Galileans received Christ gladly. A nobleman of Capernaum heard that Jesus had come into Galilee and hastens to Him to entreat Him to come and heal his son; Jesus told him to return and that his son was healed; the man believed Christ's words; the son began to recover at the very hour Jesus had said, "Thy son liveth."

VIII. Topic: The Lordship of Jesus Christ. Place: Jesus went to Jerusalem to attend the feast of the Passover; Jesus saw an infirm man at the pool of Bethesda, who had been sick thirty-eight years; asked him if he desired to be made whole; the man replied that he had no one to put him into the pool; Jesus told him to rise, take up his bed and walk; the man did as he was commanded.

IX. Topic: Jesus supplying human need. Place: Near Bethsaida on the northeast shore of the Sea of Galilee. Jesus and His disciples went into a desert place to be alone; great multitudes followed them; Jesus taught them and healed their sick; in the afternoon the disciples suggested that the multitude should be sent away to buy food; Jesus decided to feed them there; a lad was found with five loaves and two fishes; five thousand men were fed besides women and children.

X. Topic: Jesus proves Himself the God-Saviour. Place: Jerusalem. It was the last day of the feast of the Tabernacles; there was a great ceremony in connection with bringing water from the pool of Siloam; near the close of the ceremony Jesus cried, "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink;" He spake of the gift of the Holy Spirit.

XI. Topic: Christ's teaching respecting sin. Place: Jerusalem. Jesus delivered four discourses during His stay in Jerusalem at the time of the feast of the Tabernacles; this discourse was delivered in the court of the women, and may be divided into two parts: 1. Christ is the Son of God. 2. He has supreme authority even above Abraham. Those who accept Jesus Christ will know the truth, and the truth will make them free. The world-Saviour's doctrine respecting sin. 1. Sin leads to hypocrisy, deceives men, is slavery, is contrary to God. 2. It is cured by the word of Christ, by the truth of Christ, by the blood of Christ.

XII. Topic: Jesus Christ the light of men. Place: Jerusalem. Jesus saw a blind man; the disciples asked Christ who had sinned, this man or his parents; Jesus replied that neither this man nor his parents had sinned; makes clay of spittle; anoints the blind man's eyes; commands the man to go to the pool of Siloam and wash; he obeys; comes back seeing; his neighbors are stirred; he gives an account of his healing; is taken to the Pharisees; Jesus accused of desecrating the Sabbath. The world-Saviour is the life and light of men. The lesson shows that light (1) is needed, (2) is offered, (3) is received by some, (4) is rejected by some, (5) should be clearly reflected by those who have it.

A Paris letter to the London Telegraph says: Dyspepsia is now systematically cured by laughter. It is stated that a doctor, in return for a large fee, admits patients into his private institution, where the mirth treatment is administered. The method sounds simple enough. A few dyspeptics sit around a room and begin to smile at each other. The smile must never be allowed to fade away. On the contrary, it must be developed by will power into a grin and the grin must become a guffaw. Then you have to go on laughing until your sides ache, by when you will already feel much better. A course of a week or two of the treatment at the rate of a couple of hours giggling a day cures the worst case of dyspepsia. Would it not, however, be cheaper and more effectual to go to the Palais Royal?

A Great Combination Offe

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democ

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Wely, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the r of the national campaign, and all the news of all the e you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases a Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, AL

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AN FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alaba

DISPATCH PRINTING C

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, A

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pric

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

When War Ceases

How Are We to Handle the Enormously Increasing Population That Will Result.

By George Harvey, Editor of Harper's Weekly.

IT is a very interesting subject—the increasing p population upon the earth's capacity for suppor which is discussed in the International Quarterly fessor N. S. Shaler, who, it may be remembered, the chair of geology in Harvard University. The number of the earth's inhabitants is computed at 1 000, and it is likely to increase hereafter, owing t ination of pestilence and chronic war, at a rate con greater than the average rate at which it has during the last three centuries. It is certain, on the other hand, that tity of tillable soil upon the earth, as well as the stock of other thi sary for man—such as iron; coal, petroleum, copper and other metals erals—is far from boundless. When will the demand threaten to ex supply?

Professor Shaler calculates that, as regards the earth's agricu sources, the soil, which, without any considerable engineering work, c be put under the plough, would support in tolerable comfort about 4 000 human beings. He further estimates that by drainage, carried ou systematic and scientific plan which has been applied to Holland, w add to the tillable area of the United States rather more than 100,00 miles.

What we are to do eventually for coal, petroleum and iron is a less easily answered. We are reminded that in the United Stats t average annual output of iron is estimated at 400 pounds for every ma an and child, whereas four centuries ago the needs of men in the mo ly civilized country were satisfied with about four pounds a year pe If the consumption of iron goes on increasing, where are we to fin As for coal, the exhausting of the mines in England and in the anth tricts of Pennsylvania is within measurable distance, and vast as is of the bituminous combustible in the United States and China, h would it meet the wants of 4,000,000,000 human beings? For the main of the recent output of petroleum, the discovery of new deposits is re as indispensable. If we may judge from experince, it is improba any of the oil-yielding districts already drawn upon in North Amer Russia will be productive at the close of the 20th century.

AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

Term—Third Monday in May. Term—Fourth Monday in No

—G. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
—T. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

Term—Second Monday in

Term—Second Monday in Sep

ellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
er—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

Monday February, first Mon- il, first Monday June, second July, second Monday August, nday November.

County Officers.

of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
urer—W. T. Callen.
—J. M. Morgan.
or—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

District—W. H. Conway.
d District—Alex Glasscock.
District—R. P. Kendrick.
h District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera

COUNTY CHURCHES.

ors and clerks are cordially asked the editor any news regarding ir churches which they would ublished. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor- s.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd E. B. Popwell, clerk, Fillings- F. D. No. 1.

ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st 2nd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk

nut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, nday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

rty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman nday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

edonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman nday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, nday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

lar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, nday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

on Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd y. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

lins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas nday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

on Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas nday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

asant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, nday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

's Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st y. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

hel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; y before the second Sunday; J. ernathy, clerk, Verbena.

ky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. arroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song e every 2nd and 4th Sunday af- ons. Prayer meeting every Wed- y night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

nton R. A. Chapter, No. 116— Saturday, Clanton.

nside Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Clanton.

tury Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. First Saturday, Billingsley.

eman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 334—Saturday on or before full , Marbury.

nison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Saturday on or before full moon, on.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. Tuesday on or before full moon, on.

I. O. O. F.

nison Lodge—First and third Sat- s.

nton Lodge, No. 304—Second and h Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

ck Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

ermo Tribe, No. 90—First and Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs ally invited. E. B. Langston, C. ; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

reka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON

Total receip
Price on sa
Total receip
Price same

PERSON

R. G. Ha
W. F. Madde
D. Ason
Calera. Tha
N. G. Ward
Square D ton Thursday
O. P. Scott
Tuesday.

Fonda Ha
Popwell we
C. W. Ha
Thursday
P. J. Co
Tuesday
W. M. Wi
Friday
G. M. Jen
come call
J. M. Pa

R. E. Bar
Wilson S
John Mc

Hosea, Nashville, medicine Mr. and Leon wer C. D. P Tuesday.

Rev. A large con He stat that Pro college, church The peo would be

One A Mower Bull, two mbination Offe

ish the Twice-a-Week
ssue of the Globe-Democra
WITH e Union
FOR rs One Year Only $1.

-Democrat is issued Semi-We every Tuesday and Friday. It and has no equal or rival a dern Newspaper. s of the World's Fair, all the ne
and all the news of all the ear
-Democrat during the coming ye
S THE TIME.
and get your best home paper r of the World's Fair City. L
Clanton, Ala.

acobs & Bros.
re and Rugs.
OLE AGENTS—
Elastic Book Cases a g Cabinets.
king.
RMINGHAM, ALA

ERCHANDISE AN TILIZERS
R SALE.
al & Mule Bran
Best on Earth"
JONES,
Alaban

PRINTING CO
kers and Lithographers.
ce Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, A

Restaurant
t Reasonable Pric
orth 20th Street,
HAM, ALABAMA.

War Ceases

o Handle the Enormously ulation That Will Result.

, Editor of Harper's Weekly.

s that, as regards the earth's agricultu any considerable engineering work, co support in tolerable comfort about 4,0 estimates that by drainage, carried out which has been applied to Holland, we United States rather more than 100,000 ily for coal, petroleum and iron is a q reminded that in the United Stats to s estimated at 400 pounds for every man turies ago the needs of men in the mo fied with about four pounds a year per s on increasing, where are we to find he mines in England and in the anth n measurable distance, and vast as is e in the United States and China, be 00,000,000 human beings? For the maint um, the discovery of new deposits is rec judge from experince, it is improbab s already drawn upon in North Amer the close of the 20th century.

AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.
Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
tor—T. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—S. W. Collins.

Chancery Court.
Term—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep

reside—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
ster—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.
Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.
nd Monday February, first Mon rch, first Monday June, second y June, second Monday August,
nday November.

County Officers.
e of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
surer—W. T. Callen.
riff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.
District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
d District—R. P. Kendrick.
th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.
R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

tors and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard our churches which they would Also if there are any in the churches please send cor us

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
E. F. Popwell, clerk, Billings
F. No. 1.

ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

stnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason,
Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

erty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman
Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

eodonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman
Sunday H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

w Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

lar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

on Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
ay. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

s Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas
Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

n Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas
Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

sant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

s Hill. Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st
ay. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

ch—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
day before the second Sunday; J. bernathy, clerk, Verbena.

ky Mount M. E. Church—Rev.
Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song ice every 2nd and 4th Sunday af oons. Prayer meeting every Wed ay night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

anton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—
d Saturday, Clanton.

ardie Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—First Saturday, Clanton.

nturn Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—First Saturday, Billingsley.

eeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 3d Saturday on or before full n, Marbury.

mlon Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—Saturday on or before full moon,
ison.

anton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—Tuesday on or before full moon,
ton.

I. O. O. F.

mison Lodge—First and third Sat
ays.

anton Lodge, No. 304— Second and
th Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

ack Jack Camp, No. 190—First and d Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Sonermo Tribe, No. 90—First and d Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs dially invited. E. B. Langston, C.
R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to March 22, '05, 6,440
Price on same date, 7 5-8c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 12 7-8c.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

R. G. Hall, T. M. Driver, S. S. Scott, W. F. Maddox, B. F. Gardner, S. J. Dawson and B. L. Martin were in our sanctum Thursday.

N. G. Ward and J. W. Beasley were pleasant visitors Thursday.

'Squire B. E. Collum was in Clanton Thursday.

O. P. Scott was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

Fonda Hathcock and 'Squire E. B. Popwell were in town Thursday.

C. W. Hubbard was in Clanton Thursday.

T. J. Collins was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

W. M. Wilson went to Montgomery Friday to attend to the A. Headley bankruptcy case.

J. M. Poole was a pleasant visitor Friday.

G. W. Jones, of Lomax, was a welcome caller Friday.

J. M. Parker was in Clanton Saturday.

R. F. Bates was in town Saturday.

Wilson Sorrell was in Clanton Saturday. He is full of enthusiasm for the cotton association.

J. E. Cobb and J. H. Martin were pleasant visitors Saturday.

W. J. Dennis was a caller on Saturday and ordered THE UNION sent to his brother at Mt. Creek.

R. A. Hancock was in town Saturday and says his wife is sick with malarial fever, which he thinks she contracted in Cleburne county.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foshee on Tuesday, March 14th, a fine boy. Mother and child both doing well.

Judge Reynolds went to Montgomery Friday to have his eyes looked after.

P. D. Wilson is shipping some fine timbers, the product of his Liberty mill.

Newt Gentry was a pleasant visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bean were in Clanton Monday.

C. C. Swint was in town Tuesday.

John Mims No. 1 was in Clanton Tuesday.

John Milford, of Pletcher, was in town Tuesday.

W. H. Conway and J. N. Dennis were in Clanton Tuesday working in the interest of the S. C. A.

Joe Headley was in town Tuesday. He has finished the bridge on Yellow Leaf at Jobe Mims' mill that the county ordered put up, Joe furnishing the patent and superintending the work as his contribution, and the county for the material and labor. He says among the first to cross was a two-mule team with 1,600 pounds of guano, two men and a boy and two dogs, and the bridge never squeaked. The County Commissioners will meet at the bridge and inspect it on Saturday, April 1st, and they would like to have as many citizens as possible present to look it over with them.

T. J. Atchley and J. M. Maddox were in Clanton Tuesday.

W. R. Taylor and Rev. B. H. Vickers were in town Tuesday and got their black and white maps of Alabama.

Hosea Downs is home again from Nashville, where he has been studying medicine.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Popwell and son Leon were in town Tuesday.

C. D. Foshee was a welcome caller Tuesday.

Rev. A. C. Swindall preached to a large congregation Sunday morning. He states that it is very probable that President Montague, of Howard college, will be with the Clanton church the third Sunday in April. The people of Clanton and vicinity should not miss this opportunity to hear Bro. Montague, as he is a preacher and scholar of national reputation.

Mr. J. A. Mitchell has declined the position of organizer for the county, so President Conway has appointed the executive committee, each one to work his own beat. That ought to do the job.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

B. G. Burnett and Miss Ethel Wesson.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Fever. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at Robinson's saw mill, beat 1, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No. 1.

For Sale.

One Acme Harrow, one McCormick Mower and Rake, one blooded Jersey Bull, two mules, etc. Apply to

DR. R. A. DAVIS,
Waterpeak, Ala.

IN MEMORIUM.

Died, at her home, near Falakto, Mrs. Emma Sharbutt, wife of Walter Sharbutt, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Davis. She had only been married about five months. She leaves a husband and many relatives and friends to mourn her death, which seems worse, as but few knew of her being sick until too late to see her. She was a lovable young woman, of gentle disposition and was loved by every one who knew her. We do not feel competent to utter any words that would comfort the bereaved ones, but can only ask them to look for comfort from One who will never forsake them in trouble; she can not come back to you, but you can try to live so as to be able to meet her in heaven.

D. B.

JEMISON INSTITUTE.

Honor roll for month ending March 10th: Linwood Mooney, Beulah Honeycutt, Elbert Jackson, Earl Jackson, Essie Honeycutt, Curry Jackson, Birdie Scott, Percy Johnson, Gertie Jackson, Beatrice Crysel, Fred Mooney, Evie Scott, Gene Thomas, Olys Nix, Pearl Scott, Jewel Thomas, Bessie Nix, Ida Patton, Jeff Hand, Willie May Jackson, Mattie Patton McMay McNeill, Gladys Sims, Lewis Durham, Silsbee McNeill, Beulah Pinson, Don Lowe, Earle Ray, Ora Dunham, Jewel Honeycutt, Mamie Johnson. There were eight ties for the highest average. Those making the best improvement on last month's average were: Ida Patton, Pearl Scott, Mattie Patton, Elbert Jackson, Jessie Honeycutt and Jewel Thomas.

ROBERT E. SESSIONS,
Principal.

Notice No. 25932.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on May 12, 1905, viz.: Viney Pellam, widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 33, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
3-23-05 6t Register.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

Pearl Payne, Complainant, vs. Rome Payne, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of A. C. Smith, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant, Rome Payne, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Rome Payne, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the UNION, a newspaper published in Chilton county, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Rome Payne, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 15th day of April, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter, a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken taken against him in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
3-15 4t

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satitfactory results.

tf

LOOK OUT!

It will soon be too late to plant trees. As a special inducement, I am selling peach trees in bunches of 20 or more at 5 cents each; plum trees in bunches of 10 at 7 1-2 cents each. Many good varieties are included in this offer. For a quantity I will take country produce of most any kind.

P. C. SMITH, Thorsby, Ala.
tf

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.

tf. T. M. Driver.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM,

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wffl.of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Eiland,

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO,
J. W. MOORE,
H. L. DAVIS,
W. O. PERRY,
Committee.

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.

tf

NEW BLACKSMITH SHOP.

A. C. Marcus has opened a blacksmith shop near Madison Bean's, where he is prepared to do the best of work in that line.

tf

While the Americans who do save their dimes and dollars save more than their British fellows the custom of saving is far more general in the United Kingdom than in the United States, says the New York Sun. Over there at least one in four of the population has a savings bank account, large or small. With us the proportion is less than one in ten.

"Kissing is dangerous under certain conditions," says a medical journal. It certainly is if her dad happens to be looking.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS. PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.
—Is at The Head of The Procession.—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes,
FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

..My Specialty..
SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed
Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.
INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.
Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

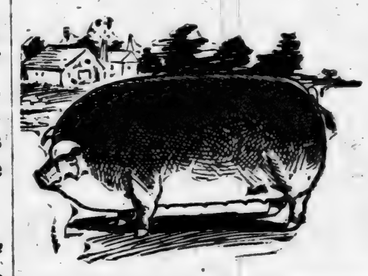
Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.
Barred Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh eggs for 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED
Duroc Jersey Hogs.
Write us for prices before you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

THE QUEEN'S PARDON

By Clive Holland.

ON the Heights of Portland the December mist, still undispersed by sunrise, hung thick, obliterating all traces of the prison buildings from the roads, where several ships of the channel squadron lay at anchor, and also from the straggling row of houses at the base of the northwest slope.

In the prison itself there was no light as yet save in the corridors, up and down which the ever-alert wardens paced, monotonously to and fro. In most of the cells the prisoners slept, tired out with the previous day's hewing of stone and uncongenial tasks; but in one the occupant, a man of thirty-five, good-looking in spite of prison garb, close-cropped hair, and the ravages of toil and despair, lay on his bed awake.

A little more than ten years ago he had stood in the dock of a west of England city listening to a judge with a hard voice, though with kindly eyes, pronouncing sentence of fifteen years' penal servitude. All that an eloquent counsel could do had been done for him, but to no avail. The evidence seemed conclusively damnatory, and the foreman of the jury, after an absence of half an hour, answered "guilty" to the usual question with a ring of conviction in his voice. The judge's words to Thomas Harborde fell on deaf ears. He stood stupidly gazing at a young girl sitting at the back of the court in company of a sweet faced old lady, as though he saw nothing.

At last a warder touched him on the shoulder, and the same instant a piteous cry of, "O, Tom! Tom! They're going to take you away from me," rang out in the court, over which the dusk of late afternoon was creeping, gradually blotting out the features of those who sat at all in shadow. The prisoner turned round as though about to say something to the judge on the bench, and then, led by the warder, he vanished down the dock stairs to the cells, to be known no longer as Thomas Harborde, but by various numbers: At Portland convict prison as "No. 27."

The sense of innocence brought him no meed of satisfaction; it merely filled him with desperate wrath and blackest despair. In the early period of his solitary confinement he found himself confronted day in and out with the crushing sense of legions of hours, minutes and seconds before he could hope to be a free man—if ever he were to be one again. By good conduct—against the very thought of which he at first rebelled, refusing to accept any boon at the hands of fate—he might reduce these years to two-thirds maybe. What then, millions of seconds, each one to him, a prisoner, an appreciable part of life; hundreds of thousands of leaden-footed minutes, each one filled with a poignant despair, must pass ere the time of release drew near. At work, under the scorching sun or in the keen air of winter, in the quarries it was all the same. These hours and minutes became embodied in the persons of the warders and fellow-prisoners, in the presence of his chains.

From a possibly dangerous man he became almost an inanimate machine; a mere cogwheel in the round of daily toil and prison discipline. At first he attacked the stone as though he were revenging his wrongs upon human flesh and blood; at last he tooled it with the unthinking regularity of an automaton. It takes a year or two to trample the human element out of a man of Harborde's type; but the effect of stone walls, silence and brutalized companions, if slow, is none the less sure. Only in his case he became an automaton instead of an animal.

Through the long December night, while the mist enshrouded Portland and restricted the range of lights at the Bill to half a mile or less, and while the sirens resounded from the lighthouse gallery almost continuously, answered faintly by others from vessels far out at sea, or booming harshly from others near at hand, Harborde lay awake reckoning the weeks, days, hours and minutes which comprised the remaining two years of his term. He had just dropped off into a half-sleeping condition when his cell door opened, and instead of the hard face of the warder come to tell him to tidy up, he saw the governor and chaplain, with the warder in the background.

What could it mean? He sprang up, rubbing his eyes, and almost before he knew what was happening the governor had told him in a few words that he had received the Queen's pardon, and then proceeded to read the same. What did it all mean? No other thought germinated in his dulled brain. Free! Free to go where he willed! Free to walk out of the jail gates! Never to return within the stone walls which had shut him in from the outside world, as surely as though no other world than that contained within them existed.

The prison bell clanged, startling him into a state of wakefulness. The governor had finished reading the official-looking paper, and with the conclusion of the formal part of his duty he added a few words of congratulation. Harborde seemed to have no comprehension of their meaning. He remained standing in the centre of the narrow cell speechless. At last the chaplain made him understand the import of the document which had just been read over to him.

"Free! Free! It is impossible," he exclaimed, and then he threw himself on the bed in an agony of joy. The clanging of the bell afresh, the slamming of doors, the echoing of footsteps down the resounding corridors, recalled him to a sense of his position. A warder entered with a suit of clothes. With trembling fingers he removed his prison garb; worn, soiled with weather and labor and intolerable. The trousers felt chilly after the thick, tight-fitting knickerbockers, and rough, thick worsted stockings. The coat seemed to fit him nowhere. With one look round his cell, on the walls of which he had done innumerable calculations to keep himself from insanity bred by the terrible silence and sense of loneliness, "No. 27" now no longer a mere figure, a machine, but a human being, stepped into the corridor.

There was a breakfast for him such as he had not tasted for nine long years, but he had no appetite. The one idea now possessing his mind was home, escape whilst the governor was willing for him to depart. He swallowed a few mouthfuls, drank a few gulps of cocoa, and then with the allowance money in his pocket hurried to the gateway.

He was free. Free to go wherever he liked. Free to start for home as fast as steam could carry him. Free to stretch out his arms to the placid gray-blue waters of Western Bay now denuded of their mantle of fog and sparkling in the sunshine. Free to breathe the pure air uncontaminated by companions criminal and vicious. But the waters, the hillside, the lovely stretch of verdant country extended before his eyes, had no charm for him save that they spelt freedom. Behind him lay the prison house, the flagstaff from which no ensign of dread fluttered to tell of his escape. Before him lay freedom.

He rushed down the road, waving his arms with the reawakened instincts of a boy escaping from school, oblivions alike to the sympathetic gaze of women he passed, and the half-contemptuous remarks of the men. He dashed into the bleak, shabby little railway station, only to learn that there was no train for an hour. Already his limbs, unused to such riotous movements and still feeling the lag of the chain, had begun to fail him, making the half-jocular suggestion of the solitary reporter, that he should "take a little exercise and walk to Weymouth," out of the question.

"I'll have to wait," was all he could think of to say.

"Doin' time ain't altogether exhilarating' or strengthenin' work," the porter remarked.

Harborde nodded his head, yet longed to tell him he was an innocent man. The porter, however, had vanished, to return in a few moments with a paper.

"Here, mate," he exclaimed, with rough kindness. "You won't know all yesterday's news, I'll go bail."

At last his eye caught a small paragraph stowed away at the bottom of the third column on page six of the paper. He read and reread it over and over again. "Her Majesty, the Queen, has been graciously pleased to pardon Thomas Harborde, who was convicted of forgery at the Winchester assizes some ten years ago, and who is now completing his sentence of fifteen years' penal servitude at Portland. Harborde will be released this morning. The step has been taken in consequence of the dying confession of a man at Bristol." Nothing more! Now he knew why he had been released. And so death had taken Edward Tilwell out of the hands of justice. It was hardly fair of death.

The porter came up whistling to tell him the train would start in ten minutes. He got up, thrust the paper into the man's hands, and pointed to the paragraph.

"That's me."

"You Thomas Harborde?" exclaimed the man. "Then all I've got to say is it's a hanged shame the Queen didn't send a coach-and-six for you. Let's have your hand, man, to wish you good luck. Got a missis? No? So much the better; poor soul, if you had, it would cut her up terrible."

"No," said Harborde, as though speaking to himself, "I was to have been married; but that's years ago now, and I'm an old man."

"Old!" interjected the porter, "you're no more than five-and-thirty. I'll go bail. You do look older, to be sure. But wait till you've been out a bit, you'll soon rub off them lines and look a bit more uppish."

The engine at the end of the short train of carriages relegated to the Portland line after becoming too thoroughly out of date for even the Somerset and Dorset local service between Weymouth and Dorchester, gave a thin, wintry squeak, and Harborde, in a fever of apprehension lest it should start without him, tumbled into the first carriage that came handy, ticketless.

The porter came to the door. "You've got no ticket. Here, give me a shilling, and I'll get it for you. Book to Weymouth?"

"Yes," said Harborde, fumbling in his pocket for the money.

"Now you're all right," the porter exclaimed, returning a couple of minutes later; "here's the ticket and the change. No, thanks; you'll want all you've got. Good-bye, mate, and good luck."

With a bump and a groan the train moved out of the station and ambled along the line running at the back of Chesil Beach at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour. Harborde was one of half a dozen passengers, but there was no one else in his compartment. He sat thinking of all that had happened. He had heard nothing of those at home for many months; they might all be dead. How would he have the courage to go to the door with this possibility? What would he do if Jane told him his mother was dead? He covered his face in his hands at the thought, and sobbed as only a strong man can sob in the corner of a carriage. With a great jerk the train pulled up at the station, and Harborde got out. His fellow-travelers regarded him with curiosity because his friend, the porter, had told every one of them who he was when he examined their tickets, inveighing bitterly the while against the caustic humor of pardoning an innocent man.

Harborde noticed nothing of this. He inquired of a porter the next train on to the junction for Applebury, and then discovered that he was both hungry and faint for want of food. He went out into the slippery, muddy street at the back of the house on the Parade, and at length found a quiet little eating house, where he was served with a meal by a girl who had a pitying eye, after consultation with her superior in command. At 3 o'clock he was again on his way in the train, in the company this time of other fellow creatures, who one and all regarded him with a feeling akin to that with which they would have submitted to the company of a dangerous animal. Harborde noticed it after a time, and putting his hand to his head suddenly made the discovery that his hair was noticeably short. After this he realized that he was a marked man, and no longer wondered why the lady opposite drew her warm plaid dress away from his feet, and the other lady with two children sidled as far from him as possible, and asked the guard to find her seats in another carriage at the next station.

He was innocent, but how could he explain it to them? If they could but know how he had suffered surely they would weep. He hadn't the paper with him; even if he had perhaps they would not believe that he and the Thomas Harborde mentioned in the paragraph were one and the same. Two men got in where the lady with the children got out. They each of them threw him a glance, shrugged their shoulders and then became immersed in their papers.

It was quite dark when Applebury was reached and Harborde, luggageless, speedily passed out of the station without being recognized. There seemed little alteration in the place. Several of the shops—now gay with Christmas goods and finery—in the main street now had large plate-glass windows in place of more countrified fronts, but were otherwise much as fifteen years ago. For a moment he stood confused, staring up and down the street, regarded by the passers-by with curiosity. Then he remembered that he would have to go along the street, past the grocer's whose window projected a yard into the footpath, turn down the by-street, and then again turning take the road leading to his home.

In ten minutes he reached the garden gate. He had run part of the way, and now he could not make up his mind to go up the drive to the door. What if they were all dead? He grew sick at the very idea. There was a light in his mother's room, which was at the front of the house. What if she was ill—perhaps dying? At last his legs carried him up the drive which swept around the little front lawn in a semi-circle. He heard the bell tinkle shrilly at the back of the house. The sound seemed like home. All at once he remembered how, years ago, he banged it with a long-handled broom till it jangled against its fellow on either side.

The door opened. A flood of light streamed out on to the gravel. It was a strange face, and the face sent an icy shock to his heart. Far outside himself he heard a voice he did not recognize as his own asking if Dr. Harborde were in. A year seemed to pass before the servant said: "No," adding, "did you wish to see him particular?"

"Yes."

"He'll be in in half an hour."

"Is—is Mrs. Harborde in? Is she alive?" said the man at the door, throwing the words at her when once his tongue consented to frame them.

"Why, Lor' bless me, yes! Come, none of that."

But it was no use. The man she had just no ' i had suspiciously short hair and a strange, wild-looking face, had pushed past her, thrown open the sitting-room door, stumbled into it and thrown his arms around a sweet-faced old lady who rose in alarm at his sudden entrance.

"My son! my son?" rang out through the house. "Mother! mother!"

The girl stood rooted to the spot, then she ran to Jane, and the two of them came out into the passage. In the sitting-room with its pink-shaded lamp a woman was seated kissing every line on her son's face—every line that the long years had written. And he stroked the hair that still lay thick, though white, in a coil at the back of her head.

Suddenly the man started up.

"Jess?" he asked, huskily.

Some one who had lain, half-stunned with joy, in a wicker chair well out of the range of the lamp-light, came into his vision.

"Jess!" he cried, folding her in his arms whilst the room swam round, "my Jess!"

"Tom!" came the answer.

"But I am old," said he; "so old."

"And I also, with the sadness and loneliness of waiting. But now—now I am young again."

The voice of the elder woman broke the silence after a moment: "For this my son was dead and is alive again."

And they began to be merry.—Black and White.

LUTHER BURBANK, THE PLANT WIZARD.

The Man With Ten Potatoes--What He Has Accomplished Since--Some of His Wonderful Fruit, Flower, and Vegetable Creations--The Thornless Cactus.

WHEN Luther Burbank came to California, nearly thirty years ago, he had with him ten Burbank potatoes, the partial result of his youthful study, research and experiment. As a boy, working in his uncle's plow factory, he was of an investigating turn of mind, and his instinctive desire to better the things at hand resulted in the invention of wood-working machinery that was so valuable that he was offered special inducements to remain at the factory. But he had been working among plants, following out the bent inherited through his mother, whose family included famous horticulturists. So he quit his factory work, and turned his attention to the development of plant life. The potato was the first subject of his research, and this he perfected until the Burbank potato was produced. Then, his health failing, he sold all his potatoes but ten, and with them as his plant stock in trade came to California, settling permanently near Santa Rosa.

This was in 1875. Since then, the Burbank potato, which gave him his first fame, has added millions to the wealth of the world. But it was only the beginning of his work. During the generation that Burbank has worked in California, he has originated, developed and placed at the service of the world new and improved plants, fruits, vegetables and grains so numerous that it would be difficult to catalogue them. He has not only bettered what he found at hand, but has originated totally new species, creating, apparently from nothing, but in realty out of hitherto worthless material, plants that had never grown before. He has transformed the Shasta daisy, once almost a weed, into a huge, fragrant flower. He has made the amaryllis, the lily, the clematis, and other flowers, take on new shape and added beauty. He has taken flowers that were beautiful but of disagreeable odor, and made them wonderfully fragrant. And within the last few months he has perfected a flower that, cut from the stem, still retains its lustre, its velvety texture, and its fragrance. One of these flowers, cut months ago, has been hanging in Mr. Burbank's house ever since, and shows no sign of withering. It is expected that this discovery will work a revolution in millinery.

But to make the beautiful things of earth more beautiful has constituted but a small portion of Mr. Burbank's work and research. He has improved almost every variety of fruit, and has placed new ones upon the markets. Wonderful results have been achieved with prunes and plums. By the most persistent endeavor he has brought forth a seedless plum, rich, juicy, palatable; has made skinny, fleshless, sour prunes into huge, fat, sugary ones. He has crossed the plum and the apricot, the result being the "plumcot," a fruit most valuable to commerce, and has given another plum the flavor of the Bartlett pear. The quince, through his work, has been made smooth of skin and palatable in its raw state. Not only has he developed a white blackberry, but has to his credit the first recorded instance of the production of a fixed species by man. This is the primus, offspring of the native California dewberry and the Siberian raspberry. He has worked with the rhubarb until he has secured a plant that will grow here nearly the whole year.

Mr. Burbank's experiments with the walnut have been very interesting. He sought to produce a nut with no tannin, and with a comparatively thin shell. The first trees bore nuts with shells so thin that the birds pecked through them and ate the meat. He began again, and now has achieved his original design—a white-meated walnut and thin shelled, of exquisite flavor.

The last and probably the greatest of Mr. Burbank's achievements is the production of the thornless cactus. Nature gave this desert plant defense against animals, thus permitting it to grow luxuriantly with little danger of molestation. But in rocky, inaccessible places, where animals could not penetrate, the cactus became, in time, through lacking need of defense, comparatively thornless. Mr. Burbank secured some of these plants, and for years has experimented, until he now has a cactus free from prickly surface—smooth, velvety, and as full of juice as the desert variety. It is about half as nutritous as alfalfa, and grows where that grass would not survive for a week. It is estimated that there are one million square miles of desert land in the United States, nearly all of it worthless. Even with irrigation brought to its highest development, not more than one-fifth of this land could be made fertile. But the cactus will grow on every inch of it, and its stem contains both food and water for cattle. It is probable that in time Mr. Burbank's transformation of this plant will result in millions of acres of now waste land being made, if not habitable, at least of immense benefit to mankind.

Mr. Burbank's home is at Santa Rosa, but his chief experiment farm is at Sebastapool, several miles away. No conservatories, no laboratories, no scientific apparatus, are to be seen. The earth is his workshop, and there, backed by infinite patience, knowledge gained by years of experimenting, and, better than knowledge, a nature-lover's intuition, he has achieved results that have made him famous all over the civilized world. The public hears only of his successes, not of the failures that must be endured before success comes. Often hundreds of thousands of plants and trees are grown and destroyed before perfection is reached.—San Francisco Argonaut.

ENGLISH FOR TOURISTS.

Only When an American Travels Does He Realize His Language's Possibilities.

If an American wishes to know what his native tongue is capable of, he should leave his own country and go east or west. Provided he travels far enough in either direction, he will get many new ideas from the literature put forth by persons who cater to English-speaking people. Here, for instance, is a fascinating picture of a Contenental hotel, as its proprietor paints it in English:

"The old hotel, former proprietor, was a great rumbling edifice, quite unsuitedable to the reception of guests, but it is nothing to the modern new one. Attached to this hotel is a repair work-chop for automobiles. From the dining-room terrace the beautiful view can be seen as far as the eye can reach. A large stock of original and charming memories of the town, of proper invention and production. No connection with any inferior shop having the same style. From our own wine-yards we are unique proprietors of these bests vintages."

This reminds a contributor to Tit-Bits of an advertisement he saw a year or two ago in a newspaper of Bern, Switzerland. It ran:

"The —— Hotel is a favorite resort of those who are fond of solitude. Those who are in search of loneliness are, in fact, constantly flocking to this hotel from the fore quarters of the globe."

But this delicious sample of English must yield the palm to the following notices, the first of which was posted in the bedrooms of a large hotel in the Juras, while the other was addressed by the proprietor of an Alpine hotel to his clients:

"Strange gentlemen will to please not dress for dinner, as this costume flutters the hearts of the maid-folk, and no work is accomplished."

"Misters the venerable voyagers are earnestly requested not to take the clothes of the bed to see the sun rise, for the colour changes."

"Though so extensive," begins the advertisement of another Continental hotel, "the establishment entails no stairs ascent, the electrical lift enabling visitors to gain quickly the higher-most apartments or fall down again." So runs the tale of absurdities; but these examples would probably seem less ludicrous if matched, as they easily could be, with a collection of French and German themes perpetrated by our own schoolboys.—Youth's Companion.

Uncle Sam on a Smoke Trail.

Every one who has ever read a sea story written since steam vessels were introduced cannot help having had impressed upon him memories of "the trail of thick black smoke" that revealed the presence of an enemy's cruiser, a blockade runner or a possible rescuer.

The Navy Department has at last begun to take notice of this familiar "trail of black smoke," for, beginning in the spring, all new vessels that are building will have to under go tests to show how much smoke they do emit from their funnels. The amount of smoke a war vessel gives out while under way has come to be recognized as an important factor, for the volume of smoke is largely responsible for the distance at which she can be "picked up" at sea. By measuring the up-pouring smoke additional facts may be gathered as to the efficiency of the furnaces and boilers.

The department's present idea is to take a series of snapshots at stated intervals of a ship while she is steaming on her trial trip, and from these the quantity of smoke may be easily determined. In speaking of this new departure the other day a naval officer questioned the reliability of such a test. Said he:

"All of these trial trips are made with picked coal, to say nothing of picked crews of firemen, who naturally could produce a more even combustion with the selected material at hand than a crew of enlisted firemen could with the stuff the average ship burns at sea."—New York Press.

The Man Who Rules Japan.

The Emperor of Japan is the sun of all authority. Everything in Dai Nippon shines by his light. In the Japanese conception of history he is the living representative of the Gods who made Everlasting Great Japan. Whether it were court nobles of immemorial lineage, heads of military clans, mediaeval governors who governed in the Mikado's name, or the all-powerful Shogun at Kamakura or Yedo, they did but shine by borrowed light. Even the constitution of 1889, which made government representative and progressive, was a gift in the name of its divine ancestors from the Emperor. The whole theory of administration is that the Son of Heaven is the source of all authority, and that prosperity to the nation comes from his divine ancestors through him. The most serious questions which Japanese patriots have to answer, and the most weighty problems they have to solve, centre in this—how to reconcile this ancient theory with the claims of civilization and of Christianity.—William Elliot Griffis, D. D., in Harper's Weekly.

Often persons who pretend to be the most precise in language err the most dreadfully when they forget themselves.

A Bloody Battle.

The most sanguinary of modern battles was probably that of Moskowa, 1812, when, of the 130,000 French 000 were lost, and of the 140,000 sians 60,000.

An Oak of King John's Time.

In the village of Meavy, Dartmoor, England, is an old oak which is flourishing in the reign of King and is still standing, though supported by stout props.

An Old Pay List.

Somebody has unearthed a pay list of the Queen's theater, London, for the week in December, 1867. Henry Irving is down for a sum equivalent to about $12.75. Miss Terry drew $20, Wyndham, now playing in this country, $15, and J. L. Toole $54.

No American Locomotives Used.

No locomotives are built in Turkish states. All of the engines on the railways of Turkey, Roumania, Bulgaria, Servia and Greece are imported from Germany, Austria, France, Belgium and England. There are no American built locomotives in the Turkish peninsula.

WISE SERVANTS.

What the Gardeners of Darwin and Huxley Thought of Their Masters.

There is no personage more important and deferentially aware of his importance than the English gardener next to him in privileges, and perhaps of him in sturdy frankness, unless it be the Scotch gardener.

It was Darwin's gardener who, when a friend of the family inquired after the health of the famous man, who had been somewhat ailing, told confidentially that he did not think his master would be better "if he could find something to do."

The patient and minute research in which he saw Darwin engaged struck him as merely a foolish and fussy way of trifling, not worthy to be called an occupation. If, instead of dissecting about the digestive capacity of worthless insectivorous plants, the great man had grown cabbages or raised roses, the gardener's opinion of him would doubtless have been higher.

The gardener of Professor Huxley, with equal unconsciousness of offense, also cast a slur upon his late employer.

Mrs. Huxley, fearful that her husband would be overworked, had inquired if he did not need some assistance.

"No," came the reply; "the pay is not very large, and Mr. Huxley is not as good as another man."

Better than either of these stories is that of the butler in a fine old English family, whose long service had caused him to feel a personal and proprietary interest in the sons and daughters of the house. He could not refrain himself of a sense of responsibility for their manners and conduct, and when at a large dinner-party he noticed one of them, a young girl who had but recently entered society, devoting a amount of attention to her agreeable neighbor on the right obviously to the success of that accorded to the less fascinating gentleman on her other side, his perturbation increased till it could no longer be borne in silence.

Under pretense of passing her salt he managed cleverly to whisper in her ear:

"A little more conversation to the left, miss."—Youth's Companion.

Italy imports every year nearly 12,000,000 tons of coal, almost exclusively from the United Kingdom.

A pig is usually kept in every stable in Persia; it is thought its presence is beneficial to the health of the horses.

THE SIMPLE LIFE

Ways That Are Pleasant and Paths That Are Peace.

It is the simple life that gives length of days, serenity of mind and body, tranquility of soul.

Simple hopes and ambitions, bounded by the desire to do good to one's neighbors, simple pleasures, habits, food and drink.

Men die long before their time because they try to crowd too much into their experiences—they climb too high and fall too hard. A wise woman writes of the good that a simple food has done her:

"I have been using Grape-Nuts for about six months. I began using it sparingly, until I acquired such a liking for it that for the last three months I have depended upon it almost entirely for my diet, eating nothing whatever but Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper, and I believe I can eat it for dinner with fruit and be satisfied without other food, and feel much better and have more strength to do my housework.

"When I began the use of Grape-Nuts I was thin and weak, my nerves were so soft that I was not able to do any work. I weighed only 108 pounds. Nothing that I ate did me any good, I was going down hill rapidly, was nervous and miserable, with no ambition for anything. My condition improved rapidly after I began to eat Grape-Nuts food. It made me feel like a new woman; my muscles got solid, my figure rounded out, my weight increased to 126 pounds in a few weeks, my nerves grew steady and my mind better and clearer. My friends say they haven't seen me look so well in years.

"I consider Grape-Nuts the best food on the market, and shall never cease to eat it to meats and white bread." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

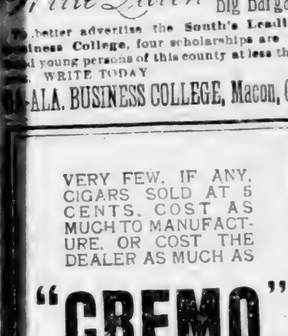
There's a reason.

Look in each pkg. for the little book "The Road to Wellville."

MERIT IS PROVED

OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Cincinnati Woman Tells How E. Pinkham's Vegetable Completely Cured Her.



Mrs. Sara Wilson

The following is one of thousands which we receive at Pinkham office and go to prove Vegetable Compound must be a great medicine to do what it does.

Write Quick FOR A big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than WRITE TODAY

ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

VERY FEW, IF ANY, CIGARS SOLD AT 5 CENTS, COST AS MUCH TO MANUFACTURE, OR COST THE DEALER AS MUCH AS

"CREMO"

IF THE DEALER TRIES TO SELL YOU SOME OTHER

ASK YOURSELF WHY?

CORN FIELDS ARE GOLD FIELDS

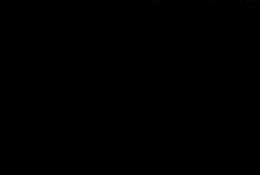
to the farmer who understands how to feed his crops. Fertilizers for Corn must contain at least 7 per cent. actual

Potash

Send for our books—they tell why Potash is as necessary to plant life as sun and rain; sent free, if you ask. Write today.

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—03 Nassau Street, or Atlanta, Ga.—22½ South Broad St.

ELECTRIC VEST POCKET LIGHTS



By Mail $1.00.
United Electric Co.
1804 Fourth Avenue
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

100 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

Louanta Statton

$50 for $10

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

Thompson's Eye Water

A Bloody Battle.

The most sanguinary of modern ... probably that of Moskowa, ... of the 120,000 French ... lost, and of the 140,000 ...

An Oak of King John's Time

... Duke of Meavy, Dartmoor, ... an old oak which ... in the reign of King John, ... standing, though supported ... props.

An Old Pay List.

... has unearthed a pay ... of the Queen's theater, London, ... December, 1567. Henry ... known for a sum equivalent ... $1.75. Miss Terry drew ... Wednesday now playing in this ... $... and J. L. Toole $54.

No American Locomotives Used

No locomotives are built in the ... States. All of the engines used ... railways of Turkey, Roumania, ... Servia and Greece are imported ... Germany, Austria, France, ... and England. There are ... American built locomotives in the ... Peninsula.

WISE SERVANTS.

What the Gardeners of Darwin and ... Thought of Their Masters.

There ... no personage more dear ... and deferentially aware of his ... importance than the English butler. ... to his privileges, and ... of his curious frankness, must ... the Scotch gardener.

It was Darwin's gardener who, ... a friend of the family inquired ... the health of the famous naturalist, ... had been somewhat ailing, replied ... considered that he did not double ... the master would be better "if only ... could find something to do!" The ... and valuable research in which ... Darwin engaged struck him as ... a foolish and fussy form ... baffling, but worthy to be considered ... sympathetic. If, instead of ... about the digestive capacity ... worms, or the various plants, ... had been cabbages or ... the gardener's opinion ... would doubtless have been ... Professor Huxley, equal ... keenness of ... upon his employer.

Mr. Huxley, fearful that he ... he would, had inquired if he ... considered a success.

No," came the reply; "the plan ... very good, and Mr. Huxley is ... but it was good as another man."

Better than either of these true ... is that of the butler in a fine old ... Irish family, whose long service ... caused him to feel a personal and ... proprietary interest in the sons and ... ters of the house. He could not ... himself of a sense of responsibility ... their manners and conduct, ... when, at a large dinner party he ... one of them, a young girl who had ... recently entered society, devoted ... amount of attention to her agreeable ... neighbor on the right obviously in ... excess of that accorded to the less ... entertaining gentleman on her other ... His perturbation increased till it ... no longer to be borne in silence.

Under pretense of passing her a ... he managed cleverly to whisper in ... ear:

"A little more conversation to ... left, miss."—Youth's Companion.

Italy imports every year nearly ... million tons of coal, almost exclusively ... from the United Kingdom.

A pig is usually kept in every ... in Persia, it is thought its flesh ... beneficial to the health of ... persons.

THE SIMPLE LIFE

Ways That Are Pleasant and Paths That Are Peace.

It is the simple life that gives ... of days, serenity of mind and bodily ... and purity of soul.

Simple tastes and ambitions, bounded ... by the desire to do good to one's ... loves, simple pleasures, habits, food ... drink.

Men live long before their time ... because they try to crowd too much ... their experiences; they climb too ... and eat too hard. A wise ... knows the good that a simple ... has done for ...

"I have been using Grape-Nuts ... six months. I began ... was very ill and had ... such a ... for the last three ... I have decided upon it almost ... entirely for my diet, eating nothing ... whatever but Grape-Nuts for ... breakfast supper and I believe I ... eat a few crackers with fruit and ... stead without other food, and ... which I ever had have more strength ... do my housework.

"When I began the use of ... Nuts I was thin and weak, my ... were so soft that I was not able ... any work. I weighed only 108 ... Nothing that I ate did me any ... I was going down hill rapidly, was ... vous and miserable, with no ambition ... for anything. My condition improved ... rapidly after I began to eat ... Nuts food. It made me feel like a ... woman; my muscles got solid, ... figure rounded out, my weight ... creased to 126 pounds in a few ... my nerves grew steady and my ... better and clearer. My friends ... they haven't seen me look so ... years.

"I consider Grape-Nuts the best ... on the market, and shall never go ... to meats and white bread ..." Name given by Postum Co., ... Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Look in each pkg. for the little ... "The Road to Wellville."

MERIT IS PROVED

...AD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

...ominent ... Cincinnati Woman Tells ... Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable ... Completely Cured Her.

Mrs Sara Wilson

... Letter is only one of ... which are on file in ... and go to prove ... that Lydia E. Pinkham's ... Compound must be a ... merit, otherwise it ... such marvelous results ... and ailing women.

... months ago I was a great sufferer ... trouble, which caused me ... extreme nervousness and frequent ... from which the doctor ... I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's ... Compound, and within a ... better, and after taking five ... entirely cured. I therefore ... your Compound as a ... It makes the monthly ... without pain; and what ... had such a remedy after so ... to help you. I am pleased ... all suffering women."—Mrs. ... 31 East 3d Street, Cincinnati, O.

If you have suppressed or painful ... weakness of the stomach, ... bloating, leucorrhœa, ... nervous prostration, dizziness, ... backache or the blues, these ... indications of female weakness, ... derangement of the uterus ... trouble. In such cases there ... one tried and true remedy—Lydia ... Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

... advertise the South's Leading ... College, four scholarships are offered ... young persons of this county at less than ... WRITE TODAY

...-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

VERY FEW, IF ANY, CIGARS SOLD AT 5 CENTS, COST AS MUCH TO MANUFACTURER, OR COST THE DEALER AS MUCH AS

"CREMO"

IF THE DEALER TRIES TO SELL YOU SOME OTHER

ASK YOURSELF WHY?

CORN FIELDS ARE GOLD FIELDS

to the farmer who understands how to feed his crops. Fertilizers for Corn should contain at least 7 per cent. actual

Potash

Send for our books—they tell why Potash is as necessary to corn as sun and rain; they're free, if you ask. Write

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York: 93 Nassau Street, or ... Ga.: 24½ South Broad St.

ELECTRIC VEST POCKET LIGHTS

By Mail $1.00.
United Electric Co.
1504 Fourth Avenue
BIRMINGHAM ALABAMA.

500 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

... investment is spending ... which we offer ... purchasers at low price of $125 ... and secure best growth for ... New electric railway building ... extended, many factories ... in same neighborhood. ... per cent. in one hundred ... GULF LAND COMPANY, ... New Orleans, La.

Emma Stanton

... ky open the whole ... Catalog free

$350 for $12 ... offer stock ... per names ... Los Angeles Cal.

...SCURE FOR ... WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS. ... Tastes Good. Use ... by druggists. 25 CTS

...SUMPTION

If afflicted with weak eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

England has one member of Parliament for every 10,200 electors.

A Guaranteed Cure For Piles.

Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

A full-grown elephant can carry three tons on its back.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The coronation robe presented to the Empress of Russia was of fur.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—Wm. O. Endsley, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

Safety reins for runaway horses are an Austrian's invention.

It is stated that not one bride was over 22 years old in the 346,590 marriages in Japan last year.

DISFIGURED BY ECZEMA

Wonderful Change in a Night—In a Month Face Was Clear as Ever—Another Cure by Cuticura.

"I had eczema on the face for five months, during which time I was in the care of physicians. My face was so disfigured I could not go out, and it was going from bad to worse. A friend recommended Cuticura. The first night after I washed my face with Cuticura Soap, and used Cuticura Ointment and Resolvent it changed wonderfully. From that day I was able to go out, and in a month the treatment had removed all scales and scabs, and my face was as clear as ever. (Signed) T. J. Seth, 317 Stagg Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Siam exported $15,000,000 of rice in 1903.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, and all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

German Railways.

A recent report by the Minister of Public Works shows that the German Government railways employed 569,268 persons last year; the number of locomotives in use was 21,248. The locomotives represented a value of over $240,000,000.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

South America is Awake.

There are 27,800 miles of railway now in full operation in South America, and Argentina has 11,000 of these miles. This is only one sign of what has consistently been done by successive governments in those much-troubled republics.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on box. 25c.

The fiber of the pineapple leaf can be made into a fabric as soft as silk.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Taxes are paid by telephone in Hickory County, Mo.

Colors Which Birds Dislike.

Red will worry a turkey cock as much as a bull, but a sparrow will not let it disturb his mind. But if one flirts a blue rag in front of a caged sparrow's eyes he will go frantic with disgust. Sparrows and linnets, too, will refuse food offered them on a piece of blue paper, and dislike the appearance of any one wearing a blue dress. Medium light blue effects them most, and blue serge they scarcely mind at all. Thrushes and blackbirds object to yellow, but will use red or blue dried grasses left about their haunts to build the outer layer of their nests. Yellow grasses they will not use.

Tar-Footed Turkeys.

The turkey market, as it walks into town, is one of the sights of a Grecian city. If the turkeys are brought from a great distance their feet are dipped in tar before starting to make them tough enough for the journey.

A QUICK RECOVERY.

A Prominent Officer of the Rebeccas Writes to Thank Doan's Kidney Pills For It.

Mrs. C. E. Bumgardner, a local officer of the Rebeccas, of Topeka, Kans., Room 10, 812 Kansas avenue, writes: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills during the past year for kidney trouble and kindred ailments. I was suffering from pains in the back and headaches, but found after the use of one box of the remedy that the troubles gradually disappeared, so that before I had finished a second package I was well. I, therefore, heartily endorse your remedy."

(Signed) MRS. C. E. BUMGARDNER.

A TRIAL FREE—Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

HONEST RELUCTANCE.

My dear, when I met you a summer ago,
I found you so dainty, so pretty and sweet,
That long I debated on whether or no
To lay down my hand and my heart at your feet;
But I had got used to a bachelor life,
And you were as lively as lively could be,
So I didn't—I thought you might prove as a wife,
A trifle too jumpy for me.

And now that I've watched you and seen what you are,
I know that your heart is as true as your eyes,
Your spirit as lofty and true as a star,
And gladly, oh, gladly I'd try for the prize;
But my youth has left me alone in a groove,
And yours is so fresh and deliciously new,
That I dare not—I fear that, for life, I should prove A trifle too stodgy for you.
—London Punch.

Jingles and Jests

"Bigglesworth is a multi-millionaire at last." "How do you know?" "Why, his wife came to church last Sunday wearing an old frock and her last fall's bonnet."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Bridget, you must be more careful with your dusting. I declare I could write my name upon the piano." "'Deed, ma'am, it's yersilf has the gran' eddycayshun."—Town and Country.

Miss Grouch—"Yes, he—er—did say something about you." Miss Pechis—"What was it?" Miss Grouch—"O—er—really, I'd rather not tell you." Miss Pechis—"I know you would, but come, don't be so jealous."—Philadelphia Press.

"Does your janitor attempt to show his authority?" "No," answered Mr. Flatts. "He didn't have to show his authority. I started in by giving him to understand that I fully recognized it without any argument."—Washington Star.

He wants no verse:
Underneath the bough;
A good-sized bank book
Is the fashion now.
—Washington Star.

"Do you think that statesmanship is at as high a level as it was in days gone by?" "Much higher," answered Senator Sorghum. "It's true that they knew a little something about government. But look at what some of us know about finance."—Washington Star.

"Next time you're in the armory," said the captain of G company, proudly, "take a look at our room. We've had it repainted and refurnished throughout." "I saw it," replied the major, "and really, sir, your room is better than your company."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Actor—"Look here, old man, I wish you'd lend me five dollars in advance, and take it out of my first week's salary." The Manager—"But, my dear fellow, just supposing, for the sake of argument, that I couldn't pay you your first week's salary—where would I be?"—Life.

Full many a foreign name there is One can't speak—one must sneeze it!
But as for Limbur-Stirum—why,
I think you'd better cheese it!
—Town Topics.

The young wife buried her head in the sofa pillow and sobbed as if her heart would break. "W—when we were married," she sobbed, "you said that no matter what happened, you would love me still." "Yes," retorted the brutal husband, "but you never are still. That is the reason I don't love you."—Chicago Daily News.

First Suburbanite—"The reincarnation theory is a queer idea." Second Suburbanite—"Very. If it is true, I think that you and I, in some previous state of existence, must have been unscrupulous real estate speculators who tried to beguile people into owning their own homes."—Brooklyn Life.

Coleridge the Soldier.

Subsistence could not, however, be made on the reading and writing of pamphlets, nor the means of livelihood obtained by the most eloquent and entrancing of conversations, and Coleridge, finding himself both forlorn and destitute in London, enlisted as a soldier in the Fifteenth (Elliot's) Life Dragoons.

"On his arrival at the quarters of the regiment," says his friend and biographer, Mr. Gillman, "the General of the district inspected the recruits, and looking hard at Coleridge with a military air inquired, 'What's your name, sir?' 'Comberbach' (the name he had assumed). 'What do you come here for, sir?' as if doubting whether he had any business there. 'Sir,' said Coleridge, 'for what most persons come—to be made a soldier.' 'Do you think,' said the General, 'you can run a Frenchman through the body?' 'I do not know,' replied Coleridge, 'as I have never tried; but I'll let the Frenchman run me through the body before I'll run away.' 'That will do,' said the General, and Coleridge was turned into the ranks."—English House Beautiful.

Not to Be Outdone.

Housekeeper—"Have you any Mocha coffee, Mr. Sands?"

Small Dealer—"Yes, mum."

"Genuine Mocha?"

"Just imported, mum."

"Import it yourself?"

"Oh, yes, mum. I send my order direct to the—the Sultan, mum."

"Humph! How much have you on hand?"

"'Bout sixty pounds, mum."

"You have, eh? Sixty pounds! I read in the paper this very morning that not over fifty pounds of genuine Mocha reached this country annually."

"Yes, mum, that's true. I had ten pounds over from last year."—Tit-Bits.

PE-RU-NA CONQUERS CATARRH THE WORLD OVER.

The Population of the Earth is 1,400,000,000.

One Million Die Annually of Catarrh.

ALL over the world Peruna is known and used for catarrhal diseases. The Peruna Girl has traveled 'round the globe.

Her face is familiar everywhere that civilization reaches.

Universally Praised.

From Africa to Greenland, from Manchuria to Patagonia, the face of the Peruna girl is familiar and the praises of Peruna as a catarrh remedy are heard.

Successful in North and South.

Peruna crossed the Equator several years ago, to find in the Southern Hemisphere the same triumphant success that has marked its career in the Northern Hemisphere.

A Standard.

Peruna is a standard catarrh-remedy the world over.

It cures catarrh by eradicating it from the system.

Permanent Cure.

It obviates the necessity of all local treatment and its relief is of permanent character.

Without a Peer.

No other remedy has so completely dominated the whole earth as Peruna.

In Every Tongue.

In all languages its glowing testimonials are written.

In all climes the demands for Peruna increase.

An Extensive Laboratory.

To supply this remedy to the whole world taxes to the utmost one of the best laboratories in the United States.

A Word From Australia.

Walter H. Woodward, Bomadier Royal Australian Artillery, Hobart, Tasmania, writes:

"I suffered for several years with a distressing condition of the head and throat, caused by continual colds.

"My head and nostrils were stopped up most of the time and there was a discharge, and my sense of smell was affected badly.

"After two weeks' use of Peruna I found this condition quite changed, and so I continued to use this remarkable medicine for over a month.

"I am very glad to say that at the end of that time I was cured and felt in fine health generally, and am pleased to give Peruna my honest endorsement."

From Hawaii.

Prince Jonah Kalanianaole, delegate in Congress from Hawaii, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I can cheerfully recommend your Peruna as a very effective remedy for coughs, colds and catarrhal troubles."

A Cuban Minister.

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

From All Quarters of the Globe.

We have on file thousands of testimonials like those given above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast number of grateful letters Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving from all quarters of the globe in behalf of his famous catarrh remedy, Peruna.

Let Common Sense Decide

Do you honestly believe, that coffee sold loose (in bulk), exposed to dust, germs and insects, passing through many hands (some of them not over-clean), "blended," you don't know how or by whom, is fit for your use? Of course you don't. But is another story. The green berries, selected by keen judges at the plantation, are skillfully roasted at our factories, where precautions you would not dream of are taken to secure perfect cleanliness, flavor, strength and uniformity.

LION COFFEE

From the time the coffee leaves the factory no hand touches it till it is opened in your kitchen,

This has made LION COFFEE the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES.

Millions of American Homes welcome LION COFFEE daily. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity. "Quality survives all opposition."

(Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every package.)
(Save your Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Fair hair is greatly disliked in Servia, and no old person is seen with gray hair. All whose hair is other than black dye it.

A NEW CARD TRICK. Five cards held at the tips of fingers instantly disappear; cards immediately produced again from any place performer desires. Full instructions sent by mail for $1. Address, J. H. Vanderhaven, Tavares, Fla.

Am. 12, 1905.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful "Cascarets" for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to "Cascarets" for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."
James McGuire, 108 Mercer St., Jersey City, N. J.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.

Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 502

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

10,000 Plants for 16c.

More gardens and farms are planted to Salzer's Seeds than any other in America. There's a reason for this.

We own a store 5,000 acres for the production of our warranted seeds. In order to induce you to try them, we make you the following unprecedented offer:

For 16 Cents Postpaid

1000 Early, Medium and Late Cabbages,
2000 Fine Juicy Turnips,
2000 Blanching Celery,
2000 Rich Nutty Lettuce,
1000 Splendid Onions,
1000 Rare Luscious Radishes,
1000 Gloriously Brilliant Flowers.

Above seven packages contain sufficient seed to grow 10,000 plants, furnishing bushels of brilliant flowers and lots and lots of choice vegetables, together with our great catalog, telling all about Flowers, Roses, Small Fruits, etc., all for 16c in stamps and this notice. Big 116-page catalog alone, 5c.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., La Crosse, Wis.

Count It Up

You'll be surprised how cheaply, how quickly, how easily you can earn valuable premiums by saving the freight car coupons on Good Luck Baking Powder can labels. Get a can to-day and look over the little Premium Booklet you find inside. It tells all about the most liberal premium system in the world—describes and pictures every one of the 56 high-class, valuable articles we offer. Good Luck coupons are worth dollars and cents to you—save them! See the cut below.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

has revolutionized baking. It is the baking powder of positive purity, of absolute certainty. Healthful, wholesome baking of snowy white, of feathery lightness, of delicious flavor invariably follows its use. On account of its superior leavening power it is ideal for quick baking. It costs you but 10 cents a pound—and it goes farther in quantity than any other. The excellence of Good Luck is shown in the fact that 16,145,114 pounds have been sold during the present year. Insist upon getting Good Luck. If your grocer hasn't it, send us his name and we'll see that you are supplied at once.

This is the coupon on every can.

THE SOUTHERN MFG. CO., Richmond, Va.

WANTED

EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT I AM

HEADQUARTERS

FOR

High Grade Flour, Feed of all Kinds.

A LARGE LINE OF

Fancy Groceries, Men's Suits, Boy's Suits, Pants and Overalls

Dry Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Tools, Harness, Etc. We Guarantee Prices as Low as the Lowest . . . .

Kind and Courteous Treatment to All

Come and See Me and be Convinced

W. N. HORNSBY

THE BIG STORE — THORSBY, ALA.

How to Catch Health.

By Dr. Lazarus Preston.

WHEN our bodies are in a disordered conditon, changes of temperature cause us to have what we call colds. This means that the body is so clogged with waste material, that is, material it cannot use, that its action is enfeebled; action is warmth, and when the action is feeble we cannot endure cold; the stillest stream of water freezes the quickest. If we enfeeble the action of our bodies by choking all its avenues with more food than it can use, or the kind of food it cannot use, or if we enfeeble the body by putting into it inflaming substances like spices, meat and liquid stimulants, or if we make it weak by over-action, exhausting it as we do in excessive work or play, we shall take cold easily, and suffer more or less severely as the abuse is small or great. Disease cannot enter our bodies except there is something of kin there it has an affinity for. A perfectly healthy body will never catch any disease, for it is a non-conductor of disease; it is a conductor of health only. All over this earth it is the same; the law of magnetism prevails in every created thing; magnetic attraction determines the quality of everything that comes to another.

It is in this way that all diseases are caught; this is the only contagion that exists. A person does not catch smallpox because someone else has it, but because his condition favors it; his condition has an affinity to his surroundings or someone brings conditions that harmonize with his own. It would be a poor plan to take a dangerous posion into the system to neutralize or counteract another posion, and the intelligent minds of today are dicarding such methods as barbarous. Nature always works for us, and if we work against ourselves and nature, the difficulty nature has to save us is painful to us, and the more disorder we create the greater the difficulty. So long as nature is working for us, trying to repair our injury to ourselves, there is pain, but when nature is vanquished, and can do no more, there is no more pain, but death, the dissolution of the body; for action, which is vibration, is what keeps the body in form, and when it ceases the body has nothing to hold it in form and it falls to pieces.

Let us live so that we shall catch health instead of disease; let us make ourselves good conductors of life; if we are now diseased, let us make ourselves good conductors as quickly as possible. If we are so weak and enslaved that we cannot make the effort alone, we can get help from the strong magnetic currents of some other who understands the law of magnetic attraction, and such a one will not only strengthen the magnetic currents of the feeble one, but teach them how to help themselves and be their own conductor.

The Blessing of Work.

By the Rev. T. B. Gregory.

LABOR makes all that we eat and drink taste good to us. Labor gives the sound, refreshing sleep that no opiate can supply. Labor insures the good digestion and rich red blood that no prescription of the apothecary is able to give.

More than this, labor confers the priceless boon of self-respect. The worker is a man—the rest are mere manikins—puppets in an idle play.

Those who do their part of the world's work, thereby advancing the world's progress, have the proud consciousness of being useful.

With no alien feeling do they walk through the world. Upon the varied industries whose united effort is pushing out the frontier of civilization they can look with the consciousness that they are a part of it all, a living, vital part.

To the grandeur, material and moral, which rises more and more imposingly about them, they feel that they are contributors, since it is by their muscle and brain, by their labor of hand and head, that it has all come about.

And is it not a most exhilarating thought! Can the petted, pampered darling, toiling in his luxurious idleness, have the glory of such thought bought for him with all his money?

Let no man bemoan the fact, then, that it is his lot to labor. It would be a piece of supererogation to say that labor is "honorable." Not since the French Revolution has the world thought otherwise.

But labor is more than honorable—it is glorious and blessed. It gives a tinge to the cheek and a glow to the heart. It makes a man manly and self-respecting. It confers the proud consciousness of co-partnership with the advancing world.

Find something to do, then, and do it. Look about you for some useful task to which you may seriously and lovingly dedicate your energies; and be glad and proud of the opportunity of finding one.

Be a man, not a manikin. Be a worker, not a drone. Thus shall you find the only real pleasure—that of knowing that you are doing something toward making the race of mankind wiser, happier and better.—New York American.

Nearly if not quite as demoralizing as the habit of carrying firearms concealed about the person is the influence of the cheap melodramas with which managers of suburban theatres are debasing the taste of their public, declares the Philadelphia Record. Scarce one of these productions wherein the downtrodden hero or the pursued heroine does not draw a pistol on the slightest pretext and display his or her skill in the use of the weapon. The spectacle of virtue triumphant with a 32-calibre "bulldog" revolver oft repeated is well calculated to inculcate the notion in weak minds that wrongs, real or imaginary, may properly be righted by gunpowder and a bullet.

Since some genius discovered about five years ago that the familiar principle by which a full pail of water is swung overhead could be applied to a wheeled vehicle running on an inclined roadway with a kink in it, one sensation has followed another, states the New York Evening Post. First there were little cars running on rails. Then a man practised standing up in the car until he felt confident enough to make the trip on a bicycle. The next year so many men could do it on bicycles that every third-rate circus had one of them. Then, in rapid succession, we believe, came the man who performed the trick on roller skates, and the one who used but a single wheel. A year ago a daring rider took out the top section of the loop entirely, and made a third of the circle with no visible means of support. There never was a better illustration of the psychological principle that a thing which a man would think absolutely impossible, if he had to try it by himself, becomes relatively easy when he knows that some one else has been doing it without mishap.

County Matters To Be Aired.

Knoxville, Tenn.—At the next meeting of the county court it is whispered around that there will be a sensation sprung in court in regard to the conduct of the keeping of the work house and other county matters will be aired.

Conductor Indicted.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The grand jury of Jefferson county has returned an indictment against W. C. Caldwell, conductor Southern railway, for criminal neglect in the death of C. W. Heiskell, who was killed Sept. 24, 1904, in the Newmarket wreck.

KUROPATKIN DISGRACED

Commanding Russian General Peremptorily Called Home.

GEN. LINEVITCH TAKES COMMAND

No Mention of Former Leader's Resignation Made in the Dispatches—Record of the New General—Tie Pass Captured—Trouble Still Spreading in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Russia. — With the Japanese hanging on the heels and flanks of the remnants of the broken, defeated Russian army, General Kuropatkin, the old idol of the private soldier, has been dismissed and disgraced and General Linevitch, commander of the First Army, has been appointed to succeed him in command of all the Russian land and sea forces operating against Japan. The word "disgrace" is written in large letters in the laconic imperial order gazetted, which contains not a single word of praise and also disposes of the rumor that Kuropatkin had asked to be relieved.

The Russian military annals contain no more bitter imperial rebuke. While it was known that the war council had already decided to supplant Kuropatkin after the Mukden disaster, the decision to confer the task of saving the remainder of the army on Linevitch in the very midst of its flight came as a surprise. It transpires that Emperor Nicholas upon the advice of General Dragomiroff and War Minister Sakharoff determined that the step was necessary when it became apparent that Kuropatkin, while concentrating for a stand at Tie Pass, seemed unaware that the Japanese had worked around westward again and practically allowed himself to be surprised. Old reports brought by General Gripenberg regarding Kuropatkin's failing mentality also had influence.

A dispatch from Chang-tu-fu reports that General Kuropatkin has left there for St. Petersburg.

Under the circumstances, therefore, it was considered imperative, in view of the exceedingly perilous position of the army, to turn over its command to Linevitch, who alone had been able to bring off his army in order after the battle of Mukden. His record during the Chinese war had also demonstrated his capacity as a commander.

The task confided to Linevitch of withdrawing what is left of the great army of 350,000 men to Harbin seemed a desperate one.

General Linevitch is in his sixty-sixth year. He saw his first fighting when he was twenty-one years old, took part in the war with Turkey in 1877, and was in command of the Russian troops in the relief of the legation at Pekin in 1900. For his services in China he was congratulated by the Czar.

With the Japanese Left Armies.—The pursuing armies fully occupied Tie Pass at midnight, after a severe fight, the Russians retiring north in confusion after setting fire to the railroad station and supplies.

The successful conclusion of the armies' mission makes the movement the greatest of modern history. The armies covered almost ninety miles in a fortnight, fighting practically every inch of the way.

Home Troubles Spread.

Warsaw.—Reports of the spread of the peasant agitation are coming from nearly every part of the country. In the Government of Pukov bands, ranging from 100 to 500, are marching from village to village and inciting laborers to join in the movement.

A dispatch received here from Lodz says that owing to rumors of an approaching mobilization the workers in the woolen mills there have struck.

The Seventy-fifth Brigade of Artillery has been withdrawn from Lodz, and will be dispatched to Manchuria. It will be replaced by artillery reserves from Nijni Novgorod.

The Government has requisitioned all the horses in this district. The workmen in the big factories here threaten to strike, and some of the men in the smaller factories have already walked out.

ROOSEVELT IN NEW YORK CITY.

Attends Wedding of Niece and Speaks at Two Dinners.

New York City.—President Roosevelt arrived here from Washington, D. C., at 12.53 p. m., going straight to the home of his sister, Mrs. Henry Parish, where he gave his niece, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, away in marriage to his cousin, Frank Delano Roosevelt.

In the evening he spoke at the dinners of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at Delmonico's and the Sons of the American Revolution at the Hotel Astor, returning to Washington at midnight.

KUROPATKIN'S PLEA ACCEPTED.

Grand Duke Nicholas to Take Command in Manchuria.

Paris, France.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of the Petit Parisien says that General Kuropatkin's resignation has been accepted and that Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch has consented to take chief command in Manchuria.

Killed His Brother.

On unfriendly terms for some time, Charles Hinks shot and killed his brother, Frederick, at Chicago, Ill., and then killed himself.

Asphyxiated by Gas.

Robert Barclay Leeds was asphyxiated at table with his colored cook at Atlantic City, N. J.

Vault of Bank Robbed.

The vault in the bank at Petersburg, Va., was emptied of about $7000 by burglars.

Two Negroes Hanged.

Two negroes were hanged at Richmond, Va.—Edwin Austin for criminal assault, and Peter Danch for murder.

BOULDERS SMASH WALLS

Apartment House in New York City Partly Demolished.

Carelessly Controlled Dynamiting Causes Havoc—No People Killed or Injured.

New York City.—Big boulders, hurled by the force of dynamite, crashed against the rear walls of three flat houses in Lexington avenue, near 101st street, and smashed them in from the foundation to the second floors. The living rooms of the occupants were exposed to view, and there were many narrow escapes from death.

The entire neighborhood was thrown into panic. In the bombarded houses women and children ran to the front windows, screaming for help. Into one of the rear rooms a rock weighing about 400 pounds was hurled with terrific force, fell on a dining room table, smashed it into kindling wood, crashed through the second floor to the first and wrecked the furniture there.

A stove was demolished and started a blaze, which was put out quickly. Jagged rocks weighing from fifty to 100 pounds crashed into other rooms. For all this wrecking, it is said, a contractor, blasing out rock in a lot at the rear of the houses, was responsible.

Frederick Lamura had been blasting for four weeks, and protests had been made against the way he was doing the work, for fragments of stone had broken windows. Still, it is said, he took no precautions to prevent such an accident as that which happened. It is supposed he expected to make short work of what remained of the giant boulder, and put a heavy charge of dynamite into a drilled hole.

The heavy charge was exploded and the earth seemed to rise up all around. Two blocks away two members of Senator Frawley's Miami Club were thrown from their seats in the clubhouse. The force of the concussion close to the rock was terrific. Big sections of the rock torn away by the blast shot straight at the rear walls of Nos. 1593, 1595 and 1597 Lexington avenue. Like eggshells the walls gave way before the fearful force of the missiles. Not a brick stood in position from the foundation to the window ledges of the second floors of the three houses. The sound of crashing glass echoed through the district for several minutes after the roar of the explosion had ceased.

The biggest rock landed in Edward J. Cahill's home, in No. 1593. His wife and children were out. Cahill had just left the rear bedroom when the 400-pound stone tore its way through the wall and wrecked everything in the place. On the same floor lived Julius Neiburg and his family. Luckily all were out. Every bit of furniture in the rear rooms was crushed. The big stone kept on into the apartment of William Crane, then smashed through the floor.

Mrs. Daniel Reardon, on the second floor of No. 1595, had just called her husband and children from the front room to dinner. A stone weighing 100 pounds flew into the dining room and smashed a sideboard and dining table to fragments.

After the hubbub ended it was seen the walls gave signs of collapsing. An emergency force was sent by the Building Department to shore them up. Lamura tried to escape, but was caught by an angry crowd. He would have been beaten only for the police. He was locked up, charged with criminal negligence.

The scene after the blast looked as if that section of Harlem had been under bombardment by a hostile army. Windows were broken for at least a block in every direction.

AN EXPERIMENTAL GARDEN.

Government to Transplant Date Palms From Egypt to Yuma.

Washington, D. C.—The Department of Agriculture will establish an experimental garden on the old military reservation in the town of Yuma, Colorado.

Numerous varieties of date palms from Egypt, Algeria and Arabia, also with varieties of seeds and grasses that appear to be particularly adapted to this region will be planted. A corps of agricultural experts have visited the valleys of the Tigris and the Nile and they believe that they can transplant many valuable plants from those regions to the regions of lower Colorado. The pistachio nut is one of the new products they think will be adapted to this trans-cultivation.

MENINGITIS CLOSES SCHOOL.

Twenty-five Out of Twenty-six Philadelphia Cases Fatal.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A ten-year-old Italian child, a pupil at the George W. Nevenger Public School, Sixth and Carpenter streets, in the Italian quarter, was found to have cerebro-spinal meningitis, and the school was closed by order of the Board of Health.

This is the twenty-sixth case of the disease in this city since the first of the year, twenty-five having proved fatal.

RELIEF FOR ANDALUSIA.

Spanish Government Appropriates $400,000—Drought Caused Distress.

Madrid, Spain.—The Government will devote $400,000 to the relief of the distress in Andalusia, caused by the prolonged drought. Disturbances are reported in the provinces of Cordova, Malaga, Seville and Cadiz, which form a portion of Andalusia.

MISSOURI FIGHTS STANDARD.

Proceedings Begun to Oust Oil Trust From the State.

Jefferson City. — Attorney-General Hadley filed an application before Judge Marshall of the State Supreme Court for an order to the Standard Oil Company, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Republic Oil Company to appear and give testimony regarding allegations that they are in a combination to control prices and the supply of oil in Missouri.

Thorsby Business D...

A. M. John... Groceries and Delic...

J. J. STAN... GENERAL MERCHANDIS...

MRS. MARY R. RAS... General Merchan...

G. W. Free... SHOES, ETC...

Thorsby Wi... —Co.— Lofthus & Bromberg...

A. HORN... Drugs, Stationery an... Articles. LICENSED PHARM...

A. Malmgr... Watchmaker & J...

E. H. Adam... General Mercha...

W. N. HORN... General Merchan...

J. R. PARNE... General Merchan...

J. L. FOS... Meat Marke...

Mrs. M. E. W... Millinery and No...

The Thorsby... W. C. Michelson...

A Langville &... BLACKSMIT... and HORSESHOE... Dealers in WAGONS and BU...

C. L. Forsm... Brick Yard...

J. BICE... Charcoal Ov...

Serpent worship still sur... dia, and a snake shrine... as much an attraction i... the Malabar Coast as a ... case of a country home in ... States. Serpents are, ho... unobtrusive, and unless ... noiselessly and barefooted ... as Hindoos do, snakebite is ... able contingency.

TH...

VOL III.

ALABAMA STATE E...

Items of Interest Gathered as T... Over the Entire State

Bleaching Test is Successful.

Gadsden, Ala.—The initial test of the new bleachery of the Adams knitting mill proved very successful. About 300 pounds of gauze web for vests was the contents of the first trial bleach, and samples examined by experts show that the work is first class in every respect. J. M. ... ett, of the Nye & Redick Manufacturing Company, who was present, says that the test made in this case is remarkable from the fact that he has never known of so successful a test from the start. In the future the cloth used in the Adams knitting mill will be bleached at the plant.

Glucose Factory.

Montgomery, Ala.—An effort will be made to locate in Montgomery a factory for the manufacture of glucose, starch and kindred products from the yucca plant, and the Commercial and Industrial association is seeking information about it. Those who desire to come here want to engage in an enterprise that will employ at least 100 men and it will be necessary to have four thousand acres planted in the weed to meet the demands of the factory.

Securing Rights of Way.

Huntsville, Ala.—Rights of way for the proposed Nashville and Huntsville Interburban railroad are being secured by agents in the northern part of Madison county, and in Lincoln county, Tennessee. The land owners as a rule are glad enough to grant rights of way through their property, but in Lincoln county some of them want a signed agreement that the road will never pass into the hands of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway.

New Corporations.

Evergreen, Ala.—The Evergreen Realty Company, of Evergreen, Conecuh county, capitalized at $20,000, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The object of the corporation is to buy, own, sell and lease real estate and to engage in the business of planting, cultivating, growing timber and dealing in fruits, vegetables, etc., and to engage in the business of truck farming, fruit culture, stock raising, horticulture and general farming business in all its forms, to manufacture crates, crate material and boxes and act as agents for others in the sale of the products.

Steamboat Companies Merge.

Gadsden, Ala.—There is no truth in the published report sent out from Rome that the Coosa River Transportation Company, of Gadsden, which owns the steamer Alabama, has sold out to the Georgia and Alabama Steamboat Company, of Rome. The rumor that the two lines have been consolidated into one for mutual benefit and protection, and that the headquarters of the two companies will be in Rome, and that the boats will start on their regular trips from Gadsden instead of Rome, giving Gadsden the boats and making four round trips from Gadsden each week. Captain Moore, of the Gadsden Company, will be in charge of the merger and have his headquarters in this city.

Confederate Monument.

Birmingham, Ala.—The Confederate Veterans and Sailors' monument in Capitol park will be unveiled on April 26, just eleven years after the corner stone of the monument was laid.

Shooting at Adamsville.

Adamsville, Ala.—Isaac Weaver was shot and mortally wounded just as he was leaving a Frisco train at Adamsville Thursday morning. He does not know who shot him or for what cause. He was returning to his home from Birmingham, where he spent the day, when he was shot.

Charges Against Postoffice Officials.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Col. Russell B. Harrison is in receipt of a letter from ... John Hoyt, of Pittsburg, in which Mr. Hoyt says he called the attention of the postoffice department ... ter to the Storey Cotton Company of Philadelphia, who recently ... that no investigation of the ... was made by the department. Mr. Harrison at the request of Mr. Hoyt will forward the correspondence to President Roosevelt. It is said by intimation that some employes of the postoffice department may have been protecting the company from the investigation ... ted for by Mr Hoyt.

WALLS
w York City Thorsb
Business D
A. M. John
Groceries and Delic
J. J. STAN
GENERAL
MERCHANDIS
MRS. MARY R. RAS
General Merchand
G. W. Freem
SHOES, ETC.
Thorsby Wi
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg,
A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Articles.
LICENSED PHARM
A. Malmgre
Watchmaker & Je
E. H. Adam
General Merch
W. N. HORNS
General Merchand
J. R. PARNE
General Merchand
J. L. FOS
Meat Market
Mrs. M. E. W
Millinery and Not
The Thorsby
W. C. Michelson.
A Langville &
BLACKSMITH
and HORSESHOE
Dealers in WAGONS and BUG
C. L. Forsn
Brick Yard.
J. BICE
Charcoal Ove

Serpent worship still surv dia, and a snake shrin
as much an attraction the Malabar Coast as a case of a country home in States. Serpents are, how unobtrusive, and unless noiselessly and barefooted as Hindoos do, snakebite is able contingency.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL, SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL III. CLANTON, ALA., MARCH 30, 1905. NO. 1

Robt's Judge

ALABAMA STATE EVENTS.

Items of Interest Gathered as They Transpire Over the Entire State.

Bleaching Test Is Successful.

adsden, Ala.—The initial test of new bleachery of the Adams knit- mill proved very successful. ut 300 pounds of gauze web for ervests was the contents of the trial bleach, and samples exam- by experts show that the work rst class in every respect. J. M. ett, of the Nye & Redick Manu- uring Company, who was present, s that the test made in this case markable from the fact that he never known of so successful a ch from the start. In the future he cloth used in the Adams knit- mill will be bleached at the plant

Glucose Factory.

ontgomery, Ala.—An effort will made to locate in Montgomery a ory for the manufacture of glu- , starch and kindred products the yucca plant, and the Com- cial and Industrial association is ing information about it. The who desire to come here want to in an enterprise that will employ t 100 men and it will be necessary ave four thousand acres planted he weed to meet the demands of factory.

Securing Rights of Way.

nt ville, Ala.—Rights of way for proposed Nashville and Hunts- Interurban railroad are being ured by agents in the northern of Madison county, and in Lin- county, Tennessee. The land ers as a rule are glad enough to rights of way through their prop- , but in Lincoln county some of want a signed agreement that road will never pass into the hands he Nashville, Chattanooga and St. s railway.

New Corporations.

vergreen, Ala.—The Evergreen t Company, of Evergreen, Conecuh ty, capitalized at $20,000, has filed rs of incorporation with the secre- of state. The object of the cor- tion is to buy, own, sell and lease estate and to engage in the busi- of planting, cultivating, growing g and dealing in fruits, vegeta- etc., and to engage in the busi- of truck farming, fruit culture, raising, horticulture and general ery business in all its forms, to ufacture crates, crate material boxes and act as agents for others e sale of the products.

Steamboat Companies Merge.

isden, Ala.—There is no truth in published, report sent out from that the Coosa River Transpor- n Company, of Gadsden, which the steamer Alabama, has sold to the Georgia and Alabama ines Company, of Rome. The t is that the two lines have been ed into one for mutual benefit protection, and that the headquar- of the two companies will be in den, and that the boats will start on their regular trips from Gads- instead of Rome, giving Gadsden boats and making four round trips of Gadsden each week. Captain re, of the Gadsden Company, will in charge of the merger and have his headquarters in this city.

Confederate Monument.

rmingham, Ala.—The Confederate ers and Sailors' monument in ol park will be unveiled on April first eleven years after the cor- ne of the monument was laid.

Shooting at Adamsville.

Ala.—Isaac Weaver was mortally wounded just as he a Frisco train at Adams- morning. He does not him or for what cause. ngning to his home from where he spent the day, shot.

Charges Against Postoffice Officials.

Ind.—Col. Russell B. in receipt of a letter from Hoyt, of Pittsburg, In Hoyt says he called the at- of the postoffice department to the Storey Cotton Com- Philadelphia, who recently that no investigation of the was made by the depart- Mr. Harrison at the request of Hoyt will forward the correspond- to President Roosevelt. It is ed by intimation that some em- or employes of the postoffice de- ent may have been protecting company, from the investigation for by Mr Hoyt.

Location Decided Upon.

Anniston, Ala.—The plant of the Southern Electric and Manufacturing Company will be located in South Anniston, near the site of the old Oxford depot, on the Birmingham division of the Southern railway. A plat of eight acres of land has been secured, and work will be started on the buildings within three weeks. Manager W. L. Goodhart is in the city and is making final arrangements for beginning the work. He expects to let the contract for the buildings complete so that the work will start within three weeks.

This company is incorporated under the laws of Deleaware, with a capital of $50,000 and the privilege of increasing it to $100,000. The buildings to be erected are a machine shop and a three-story office building.

Assaulted His Brother-in-Law.

Gadsden, Ala.—Boss Wright made a murderous assault upon his brother-in-law, H. Walter Burns, at his home four miles below Gadsden Wednesday afternoon. Burns came to town and swore out a warrant for Wright.

Wright is said to have been drinking and went to the field where Burns was plowing and drawing his gun fired but Burns knocked the gun up and they clinched, Burns whipping Wright, who then left, but that night again made an assault upon Burns at his home, and was again whipped.

Burns came to town after the warrant, and during his absence Wright knocked down the door of Burn's residence, drove his mother and sister out in the night, threatened to kill them and demolished the furniture. Wright was arrested and brought to Gadsden and jailed. He is a member of a splendid family.

Shooting at Maplesville.

Selma, Ala.—Tom Callen was brought to the city Friday from Maplesville, where he was shot Thursday by Large Long, a negro. The bullet wound is on the right side, a little above the abdomen, and he has slight chance for recovery. Callen says that Long has been trying to take his wife away from him and that he went to see him about it, and that Long shot him before he had a change to open his mouth to him.

New Building.

Montgomery, Ala.—It is understood that at the last meeeting of the state capitol commisssion a definite agreement was reached to build a separate building to the right of the main structure for the supreme court, to cost in the neighborhood of $65,000, and that the balance of the appropriation was to be expended in fixing up the old building as best it would. With the $65,000 for the land and the same amount for the supreme court structure there will be only $20,000 left for the repair work.

Peonage Charge Filed Against Pace.

Montgomery, Ala.—John W. Pace, of Tallapoosa county, has been again charged with holding negroes in peonage and was directed to appear before the United States district commissioner in Montgomery on March 30.

Pace two years ago was convicted of the charge and sentenced to five years' confinement. His appeal in this case is still pending.

District Attorney Reese filed with Judge Jones a petition for a writ of habeas corpus directing Pace to bring two negro boys into the United States court and show why they were restrained of their liberty. Judge Jones granted the writ.

Negro Hanged.

Montgomery, Ala.—George Calhoun, negro, who killed his wife Christmas night of 1903, was hanged shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, the drop being sprung by Sheriff Waller. He was dead in nine minutes. His body was taken care of by his old mother, who will bury it.

Burglary at Republic.

Birmingham, Ala.—J. D. Smith, of Republic, in the western part of the county, reported to the police that burglars entered his residence one day this week and took goods to the amount of about $50. Among the goods taken was a ladies' gold watch valued at $25, chain attached valued at $2, Elk's charm set with elk's teeth, bearing the initials J. B. S. and the number 79, and $15 in money.

Greensboro, Ala.—The citizens of Greensoboro have put $500 in the bank as a standing reward for the conviction of any man guilty of selling liquor in Hale county.

War on Water Company.

Anniston, Ala.—It is proable that the validity of the ordinance forbidding the issuance of a permit to the Anniston Water Supply Company to install meters without the consent of the landlord will be tested. It was announced as the company's intention.

There were several cases against the water company at Friday morning's session of the police court. Excavating the streets without a permit was the charge. It was shown that the company had a permit to excavate on Leighton avenue, issued during the year 1904. The excavations were made during last year on Leighton avenue. This permit was issued before the ordinance claimed to have been violated went into effect. It was further shown that the company had compiled with the law by depositing $50 to guarantee the replacing of the street in good condition.

The cases were dismissed, the city attorney stating that a conviction could not be had under the circumstances.

Reports on Books in Three Counties.

Montgomery, Ala.—Assistant Examiner G. F. Sedberry has reported on the books of the officers of Sumter county, including the following: Judge of Probate P. B. Harmon, Tax Assessor E. M. Shaw, Sheriff C. M. McCain, former Clerk Circuit Court W. C. Jones, ex-Tax Collector P. B. Jarman, ex-Probate Judge W. R. DeLoach, Superintendent of Education R. B. Calloway. All accounts are correctly kept.

Green County——Judge of Probate A. D. Smith, E. C. Meredith, sheriff; G. F. Hardy, tax assessor; F. D. Parham, tax collector; W. A. Gordon, ex-clerk; W. P. Archibald, superintendent of education. All are correct.

Pickens County—Judge of Probate L. C. Hudgins, Tax Collector W. B. Somerville, Sheriff R. B. Burgin, Tax Assessor F. B. Carpenter, ex-Sheriff B. B. Salmon, ex-Clerk J. W. Cox, Superintendent of Education W. H. Story.

Big Suit Filed.

Birmingham, Ala.—In the Chancery Court the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company filed suit against Pauline McClure, Robert Rutledge, Irene Hudson and Thomas Barksdale The complainants prays that the respondents be enjoined from prosecuting a suit which is now pending in the circuit court of Jefferson county against the complainant for the recovery of the southwset quarter of the southwest quarter, Section 11, and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of Section 14, all in township 19, range 4, west. The suit, which was instituted by the respondents in the case in the Chancery Court, was filed in the Chancery Court September 13, 1904, and besides asking for the ejectment of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company from the property, $300,000 is asked for the detention of the plaintiffs from possession of the land.

Complainant alleges that unless a temporary injunction is granted that the respondents will prosecute their suit in the Circuit Court to the detriment of the complaining company. A temporary injunction is prayed for, to prohibit the prosecution of the case in the Circuit Court, and further that upon final hearing that the temporary injunction be made permanent and that title to the property in question be vested in the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company.

Was Runaway Marriage.

Gadsden, Ala.—There was a runaway marriage at the county court house at high noon Wednesday, when R. M. Mangun and Miss Mattie Dennis, of Big Wills Valley, escaped the vigilance of their parents and were married by Clerk Forney Hughes, who is making quite a reputation for marrying

A Station for Alabama.

Washington, D. C.—A fully equipped meteorological station to be erected by the government at a cost of $10,000 will be allowed the city of Birmingham if the people through the mayor desire a greatly improved weather station.

Auditor's Report.

Montgomery, Ala.—The report of the state auditor shows that the total receipts for the year ending September 30 last were $3,201,339.71, and disbursements $3,015,689.25, leaving a balance of $1,181,660.19.

Turpentine Industry.

Eufaula, Ala.—The turpentine industry is fast spreading over the county and every forest that is available is being utilized for this purpose. A large farm that will embrace nearly a hundred crops is just being opened at Blue Spring and promises to add much to the commercial welfare of that section.

COTTON REPORT.

Census Report Shows an Increase of Three Million Bales Over Last Crop.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE CROP.

Little Left to Be Reported. Alabama Ranks Seventh in List of Cotton Producing States.

Washington, D. C.—The census bureau Tuesday issued a bulletin showing the total crop of cotton ginned for the season of 1904 to be 13,597,782 bales. These figures include linters and count round bales as half bales and the total as equivalent to 13,584,457 bales of 500 pounds. The square bales, 13,103,447; the round bales, 296,161; the sea island bales, 103,317; the linters, 241,942. Total running bales, including linters, 13,597,782. Included in these totals are 192,255 running bales estimated by ginners as remaining to be ginned.

The total crop of running bales for 1903 was 10,399,558. The distribution of the crop of 1904, according to the character of bales and of cotton, was as follows:

Square bales (upland crop) reported from ginneries, 13,103,417.

Round bales (upland crop) reported from ginneries, 293,151.

Bales of sea island cotton reported from ginneries, 104,317.

Bales of linters reported from cotton seed oil mills, 241,942.

The figures for the different states on running bales were:

Alabama, 1,458,966; Arkansas, 883,967; Florida, 86,642; Georgia, 1,960,151; Indian Territory, 476,984; Kansas, 14; Kentucky, 1,922; Louisiana, 1,105,466; Mississippi, 1,738,638; Missouri, 48,447; North Carolina, 743,304; Oklahoma, 341,497; South Carolina, 1,189,134; Tennessee, 316,790; Texas, 3,134,677; Virginia, 17,216.

Market Goes Up.

New Orleans, La.—Though the census bureau report even exceeded the limit fixed by the bears as the estimate of the cotton crop, the local market withstood the effect of the issuance of the report and went up instead of down. At one time both May and July were six points up, and at noon all the months were at an advance of two points. The market was not active, and thirty minutes after it was read the ring was deserted.

New Court House.

Prattville, Ala.—The contract for building the new court house and jail will be let by the county board of revenue on the 17th day of April.

It is estimated that the jail can be built for $12,000 or $15,000 and the court house for $40,000 or $45,000. Both structures are to be as near absolute fire-proof as modern, up-to-date skill can plan and execute.

Peach Crop a Failure.

Athens, Ala.—The peach crop is a complete failure in this section. Not a bloom has been seen in this county so far as heard from this spring, something that was never known here before. The fruit generally will be cut short, and no one expects to see a home grown peach this year. Winter oats are also killed everywhere, but spring sowing is doing fine.

Michigan Man Chased by Mob.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—In the town of Sagara, Abahrab Kapeyski, aged 33 shot and killed Rebecca Finkelstein, aged 30, wife of S. Finkelstein, and then, pursued by an angry mob, hastened to this city and gave himself up to the officers. The killing was the result of a quarrel over money matters.

To Have Street Carnival.

Athens, Ala.—The town is to enjoy the visit of a street carnival, beginning on the 10th of April. The show is coming in the interest of local enterprises, one of which is a library fund and the other the monument fund. Five days will be the time the show is to remain, and a fair share of the proceeds go to these two laudable undertakings.

Anniston Man the Lowest Bidder.

Mobile, Ala.—Bids were opened by United States Engineer Craighill for the construction of three locks by the government on the Warrior and Tombigbee rivers. It will be one of the biggest contracts ever let, and will require two or three years to complete. There were five bids, and P. H. O'Brien, of Anniston, was the lowest bidder.

Virginia Mines at Work.

Bessemer, Ala.—Work has been resumed at Virginia mine, and coal is being gotten out there in daily increasing quantities, with excellent prospect of a normal output within a very few weeks.

The work of cleaning up the debris produced by the disastrous explosion which occurred there a little over a month ago is now about complete, and the repair work has progressed so rapidly that almost the entire mine is now in good shape, in really better shape in some particulars than before the accident.

As yet the coke ovens have not been started, but it is understood that this will be done in the very near future, as the force of coal diggers is rapidly being increased, and there is every prospect of the output reaching normal within a month.

May Open Up New Slope.

Tests are now being made of the outcrop on the opposite side of the coke ovens from the present mine, and it is understood that a slope will be sunk there in the near future. This outcrop is said to be what is known as the "Blue Creek" seam, which is about seven feet in thickness and of good quality. It is beneath the seam now being worked, and the two can be worked at the same time without difficulty.

Altogether the prospect at Virginia is now particularly bright.

Boring for Oil.

Athens, Ala.—New cables for the North Alabama Oil Company, who are sinking a well three miles from town, has arrived, and the work, which was dropped in the winter, will at once be renewed under the direction of the general manager of the company, L. B. Hively, on whose plantation the well is being put down.

The new cable is 2,000 feet in length, and it is proposed to give the section, which evinces every feature of oil, a fair trial before abandoning the enterprise. The company is largely composed of Pennsylvania gentlemen, who have inspected the ground and find that borings indicate oil. Tests are made every few feet and samples of the sand taken at varying depths. They claim all point to a sure find of oil. They are down now several hundred feet, and have encountered but few mishaps.

Big Fire in Heart of Opelika.

cupied by Dr. Roach and two boarders, shortly before before midnight Sunday night in the heart of the city, in which two residences and practically all their contents were burned. One, the property of G. N. Hudmon, valued at $3,000 and insured for $2,100, was occupied by Dr. Roach ond two boarders, one of whom, H. G. Wynne, was badly burned in his endeavor to remove his trunk and effects from the burning building.

Dr. Roach places his loss at $1,500 with $600 insurance. The other building, belonging to C. B. D. Taylor, was occupied by E. W. Jones, whose furniture and household effects he valued at $1,200 and had an insurance of $600. The building was partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is entirely unknown.

Faunsdale Has a Disastrous Fire.

Uniontown, Ala.—Fire early Monday morning destroyed four business houses and a number of old stables in Faunsdale.

Those burned were Johnson Bros. & Co., Bailey Bros., the old building formerly occupied by the Watkins Mercantile and Banking Company, the old building of Mr. George McKee.

Nothing at present is known as to the origin of the fire or the amount of insurance carried on the burned buildings.

The approximate loss is given at $55,000, with insurance amounting to about one-half of that amount. The losses were divided as follows: G. H. McKee, store, goods and fixtures, $5,000; Max Gilbert, stock, goods and fixtures, $10,000; Rogers Bros., $15,000; W. E. Jackson, saloon, $5,000; Bailey Bros., $20,000.

Battle Flags Returned.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Alabama battle flags, which have been in the hands of the United States war department since they were captured during the war of 1860-65, have been returned to the state. At least so many of them as can be identified have been, the consignment arriving Monday. The arrival of the flags was not anticipated, consequently there was no reception. They came in by express and were taken up to the capitol by a driver of one of the wagons, and sat out in the hall for a long time before any one discovered what they were.

Party at Havana.

Havana, Cuba.—The United States transport Sumner, with the congressional party on board, arrived here from Santiago, Cuba.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m.
1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.
tf. T. M. Driver.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
We have purchased the JUDSON STROCK stock and ask for your trade.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.
A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

THE WORLD'S RICHEST MAN.

INCOME AND POSSESSIONS OF THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

Even Mr. Rockefeller's Many Millions Look Small By Comparison—The Emperor's Expenditures Are Almost Incredible.

It was reported from St. Petersburg the other day, on semi-official authority, that the czar had given $100,000,000 from his private treasury to Russia's war fund. If correct, says the Chicago Journal, this is the largest single gift ever made by an individual donor to any cause.

The czar is the richest man on earth. Even Mr. Rockefeller's many millions would look small by comparison.

His expenditures are almost incredible. It is estimated that the magnificent state ball which was given just as the war with Japan broke out cost over $1,000,000.

The czar's gifts to the orthodox church in the course of the year average over $2,500,000.

On the other hand, the church turns over large revenues to him, estimated to exceed the amount which it receives.

With the exception of the shah of Persia, the czar owns a greater fortune in diamonds and precious stones than any man in the world.

The czar is the luckiest man on earth in the matter of "windfalls." His loyal subjects are constantly leaving him large sums of money by will, which are not always accepted.

Delicate diplomacy is required to induce the czar to accept a legacy. As a rule, a wealthy Russian, who desires to leave money to him communicates with some official of the imperial household before he makes his will, and obtains the gracious consent of his majesty to his design.

Even when this has been done, and the man dies, careful investigation is made before the money is accepted, with the object of finding out whether anybody who had a moral claim on the testator will suffer by his disposition of his wealth. If so, the czar orders that the money be delivered to the proper channels.

These legacies, when accepted, are never used by the czar for his private gratification. He regards them as a trust fund, and they have been so regarded by most of his ancestors. This fund is drawn upon for charitable and religious purposes.

Five millions of rubles ($2,500,000) were given from it to relieve the starving peasants during the last terrible famine in Bessarabia.

The czar made liberal donations from it to the last Indian famine relief fund and the aid of the negro peasants of Martinique who suffered by the eruption of Mont Pelee.

"It is impossible to arrive at any exact estimate of the wealth of his imperial majesty," said a high diplomatist, from whom most of the facts set forth in this article were obtained; "but I should think that, on the most conservative estimate, he must be worth, from all sources, far more than $50,000,000 a year.

"This is actual revenue, and does not take into account the huge treasures in specie, bullion, and diamonds which are stored in the vaults of the Peterhof palace, in the citadel at Kronstadt, and elsewhere.

"Although he is undoubtedly the richest man in the world his imperial majesty is a man of the simplest tastes, and his purely personal expenses would probably be easily covered by $50 a day.

"Except when it is necessary to assume the outward show of his exalted rank, he dresses in a suit that you could buy for $25. He dines very simply, except at state dinners; and many stock brokers smoke far more expensive cigars than he does.

"Her imperial majesty the empress is equally simple in her tastes. She has finer diamonds, and more of them, than any other woman; but she does not wear diamonds half a dozen times a year.

"She goes driving in St. Petersburg in a much less showy and less expensive equipage than nine out of ten of those which you may see any day in Hyde Park, and so does the dowager empress."

YARNS OF GHOST SHIPS.

The Superstitious Tar is Filled With Love of Phantom Craft on the Ocean.

Some years ago Blackwood's Magazine contained the story of an officer of a man-of-war who, when at sea, was visited by his sister's ghost. It was afterward ascertained that she died at home just at the time when she appeared to him. After her death the lady paid another visit to her brother in her disembodied form, and shortly after the officer fell overboard and was drowned.

The British Navy cannot boast of a spectre warship, but in Gaspe Bay, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a phantom ship appears at times, supposed to be a troopship, one of a fleet sent out by Queene Anne. She appears to be lit up, and on her bowsprit stands a scarlet-coated officer pointing to the shore with soldiers. Suddenly the lights go out, a mournful scream is heard, and with a lurch the great ship sinks.

There are at least two stories of ghosts appearing on warships that have attained the dignity of being regarded as naval history. Both are declared to be absolutely true. One tells of a ghost that took up its abode in a French prize, the Medee, captured in 1744 by the Dreadnaught, which stuck to the ship until she was wrecked near St. Ives, on the coast of Cornwall. It made its first appearance among the prisoners in the hold when the Medee was on its way to England, in charge of an English prize crew. The Frenchmen were greatly excited, and declared it was the ghost of their boatswain, who had been hanged for murdering his wife, who had followed him to sea. Before Spithead was reached the spectral boatswain showed himself to the English prize crew.

Soon after her arrival at Spithead the Medee was sold to a privateer captain, no other than the famous "Fortunatus" Walker, but even he could not dispel the ill-luck brought by this ghost. While he was cruising in the Channel on the lookout for French prizes, the steadiest and soberest man among his crew came to him and said he had seen a ghost on board, which told him that the ship was doomed. The captain made light of the story, but others saw the wraith of the wicked boatswain, and the whole ship in the end became panic-stricken. A great storm arose, and the ship began to leak. In the midst of the trouble the ghost appeared, and the men, panic-stricken, attempted to seize and escape in the boats. But Fortunatus Walker frustrated their design.

At last the ship reached St. Ives, but she was doomed for a heavy sea drove her bodily on a reef and she broke up. All were saved except three men who had sworn to seeing and speaking to the ghost of the murderous French boatswain.

All ghosts, however, do not bring misfortune to mariners. It was owing to supernatural guidance that Admiral Sir Henry Digby, the grandfather of the present Lord Digby, was enabled to find and capture a prize worth many thousands of pounds, which gained for him the sobriquet of the "Silver Captain." The father of the present Lord Digby used to vouch for the absolute truth of the story.—Globe.

COUNTRY BOY AND CITY BOY.

A Plea for the City Lad and His More Numerous Advantages.

Not the least pressing question raised by the amazing modern concentration of population in the cities is where our good and great men are to come from when there is no longer an overproduction of virtue and and ambition in the country. If the canals have need of all their canal boys, whence the future President? Without the splitting of rails how shall the Union be preserved?

Dr. J. H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York—himself a country boy, and a disciple of virtue and ambition—is doing his best to soothe our fears: "The moral atmosphere, even in such a city as this, is much superior to the moral atmosphere of the average village, East and West. And think of what the boy in this city has in the 640 acres he may call his home. He has the whole history of humanity and the best men in the country within earshot. As far as the comparative health is concerned, I will say that most of the prairie boys I used to know in my youth are now under the sod."

These words may have been colored by the fact that they were addressed to city boys. But there is the tonic of wholesome truth in them. While we are reckoning the farm boys who have become philanthropists, let us not forget that the greed which created Standard Oil was nourished in a barnyard, and that Jay Gould's arrival on Broadway with ten cents and a harmless, necessary mousetrap in his pocket was the symbol of much subsequent setting and baiting of the sublime but very unnecessary mousetrap of frenzied finance.—Saturday Evening Post.

Altruism.

Alfred H. Love, of Philadelphia, president of the Universal Peace Union, was talking on the topic, peculiarly congenial to him, of kindness. Said he:

"I once knew a remarkably kind boy. He was a great angler. There was a trout stream in his neighborhood that ran through a rich man's estate. Permits to fish the stream could now and then be obtained, and the boy was lucky enough to have a permit.

"One day he was fishing with another boy, when a gamekeeper suddenly darted forth from a thicket. The lad with the permit uttered a cry of fright, dropped his rod, and ran off at top speed. The gamekeeper pursued.

"For about a half mile the gamekeeper was led a swift and difficult chase. Then, worn out, the boy halted. The man seized him by the arm, and said, between pants:

"'Have you a permit to fish on this estate?"

"'Yes, to be sure,' said the boy, quietly.

"'You have? Then show it to me.'

"The boy drew the permit from his pocket. The man examined it and frowned in perplexity and anger.

"'Why did you run when you had this permit?' he asked.

"'To let the other boy get away,' was the reply. 'He didn't have none!'"—Harper's Weekly.

Fifty-two volcanic islands rose from the sea during the last century, and nineteen of them disappeared a short time afterward.

The late Adeline Sergeant published six novels in 1901, seven in 1902 and six in 1903. She wrote about 1,000,000 words in 1902.

THE PULPIT.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. ST. CLAIR HESTER.

Subject: "Church and Family."

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Rev. St. Clair Hester, rector of the Church of the Messiah, preached the fourth sermon in the special series under the auspices of the Men's Guild Sunday. His subject was "The Church and the Family." The text was from Ephesians v:25: "Christ loved the church and gave Himself for it." Mr. Hester said:

It is evident to any one reading the accounts of the life and words of Jesus Christ while on this earth that it was His desire and purpose to found a society to represent Him, to preserve His memory, to make known and carry out His will. His mission was not intended to be meteoric in character—flash across the horizon of man's vision—astonish and puzzle by means of miracles and wonders, and then disappear, leaving the darkness as it was before He came. His coming and being in this world was intended to make and actually did make a difference, a great difference, in the views and hopes and motives and lives of those who came under His influence. And He planned that the moment He inaugurated the work He started, should not come to end when He withdrew from the world, and was no longer present in the flesh to direct and superintend its extension. Furthermore, it was in His mind that His society was not only to continue, but also to grow, to enlarge, until it should be world-wide, until all men should have opportunity to enter its ranks. Therefore it is that we find Him solemnly addressing His disciples and declaring that upon their confessed faith in Him as the Son of God, having power to plan and execute as God, He would build His church and that the gates of hell, the combined powers of evil, should not prevail against it. They have combined against it and attacked it again and again, they are still in bitter opposition to it, but there is no sign of yielding.

St. Paul says: "Christ loved the church." What is the proof, the evidence, that this assertion is true? He founded and established it—a man does not build a house unless he thinks that it will be worth something. He selected and trained and appointed officers to be His successors and as His parting instructions bade them go into all the world and preach His gospel to every creature. He instituted and ordained sacraments as pledges of His love, as continual reminders, as means by which the souls of the faithful might be fed and refreshed. Finally, as St. Paul says, He gave Himself for it; as St. Luke says, He purchased it with His own blood. This is an absolute, conclusive demonstration. Greater love hath no man than this that he lay down his life for his friends, and this is what He did for His church.

Oh, yes, He loved it; of this there are many and infallible proofs. But how about ourselves—our love, yours and mine? It suffers by comparison? Can your feeling for the church of God be described by any such words as love? Is it not the truth that there is indifference, cold, callous indifference, on the part of many and positive disbelief and opposition on the part of many others in their attitude toward the church? Any one of us could name a dozen illustrations of it. We must admit it. Thousands never enter a sacred edifice. Other thousands only occasionally as curiosity or whim moves them. There are some here to-night who, so far as any church connection is concerned, may be described as irregulars and neutrals, onlookers and outsiders.

Let me ask you in all seriousness, can you imagine that this venerable society, established at such a great cost, even the life blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, has no claim on your allegiance? The church is the institution, the organization of Jesus Christ—is it putting it too strong to say that to reject it is to reject Him? People who think or act in this way do not reflect or they do not realize the benefit and blessing Christianity is to a country, or the church to the family. No nation or society of people have ever existed on the face of the earth without some form of religion. Statesmen, sovereigns, empire builders, economists have admitted and recognized its power, its value, have promoted it by every means at their command even when, in some instances, they did not believe in it because they saw the necessity of it as a civilizing, refining and improving conservating element in human society. Now, religion could not live and do its needed work among men without an organization to keep it alive and carry on the activities. You will understand and grant the importance of honesty and honor in our business and industrial life. Dishonesty, if the general rule, would mean the wreck of our whole financial system, the failure of banks, the breach of trusts, the refusal of credit, defalcation and distress. You understand and will grant the desirableness of high character, of personal and social purity, the great benefit of goodness on the heart of citizens of any country or community. We know what it means to have desperadoes, cutthroats, adulterers and thieves the controlling element in a town or city. You understand and grant that it is vital to a people of a state to be able to get justice in the courts, to be protected in their property rights, and vital to the existence of a state that there should be patriotism, industry and fidelity on the part of those who constitute its citizenship. All these things, all these fundamental virtues we need and must have in order to live together in peace and prosperity, the church of God is designed and persistently endeavors to produce. The church is the factory if I may put it that way, whose output is virtue, honesty, purity, kindness, fidelity, principle, impressed and built into the characters of her members, producing these things as well and as abundantly as our commercial factories and mills produce steel billets, cotton cloth or tin plate. In order that these moral necessities may exist and continue to be present and to affect our social, industrial, political and family life there must be an organization to create and train and bring them out. There can be no success without organization. Every success is organized before it is won. The success of the Japanese at the Yalu River and Port Arthur was perfected in equipment, training, supplies before it was accomplished on the field of battle. Our civilization, culture, morality, high sense of honor, public spirit, refinement of taste represent and are the flowering and fruitage of seeds sown broadcast in the churches is Christ's organization. Now no organization can live or do its work without members. If you are in favor of and want to see multiplied these vital virtues and principles for which the church stands are you not duty bound to enter her fold, enlist in her ranks and lend your aid in carrying out her mission?

The church's value to civilization can be shown by a reference to history. Her triumphant march down the ages is the wonder of all history. Feeble as an infant in the land of her birth, she grew and thrived in spite of opposition and bitter persecution, driven into hiding in the catacombs and caves under the earth she emerged at length with doubled strength to take her place with kings on their thrones until to-day she is the mightiest single power on the face of the earth, mightiest because a moral and spiritual power. Though mighty as an army she is harmless as a dove seeking only to help, to improve, to save. For 1900 years she has been indentified with and given impetus if not birth to the greatest movements and most notable reforms for the welfare of the human race.

And next let me ask for what is the family under obligation to the church? She throws the arms of her protection about the divine institution of marriage, making it, and to the extent of her ability, keeping it pure, honorable, indissoluable. She frees and uplifts woman from the bondage and degredation which are accepted as the law of her being in heathen and Oriental lands, and teaches that as wife and mother she is deserving of the best advantages, of especial consideration, of highest reverence and purest affection. She preaches the divineness of childhood, that the wisest and greatest must become as a little child in order to enter into the kingdom of heaven; that the care, the education, the moral training of the rising generation is that first duty of the parent, the chief concern of the state, the vital self-preservation of society. She gives herself earnestly and unreservedly to this cause, declaring that "honor thy father and thy mother" is a divine commandment, that "children obey your parents" is sanctioned by the precept and example of the Perfect Man of the ages. She communicates a spirit and sends forth a cheer that blesses the home and pervades the domestic sphere and harmonizes the hearts of those who form the household.

These things, taken altogether, would seem to be enough to dispose all men to be favorable to this ancient and honorable and useful institution. Jesus Christ established it; had the highest possible idea of its worth; gave His life in proof of it; as an organization it is the greatest producer of goodness and all virtue on the earth; it enters into and sweetens and sanctifies every human relationship; its history prophesies that what it has done in the past it can continue to do in the future, and yet there is bitterness and resentment felt toward it. Why? Because many do not appreciate the reasons just named for thinking highly of it, for joining in with it. Does anyone here to-night share in this dislike? What is there in the church of God you object to? If there be nothing, you are without reason or excuse for being on the outside. If there be some objection, the way to reach and right it is to come in; you cannot touch it on the outside. Do not stand off and accuse and criticise. Come in and do the work for God and man toward which the spirit prompts you. As an official of Jesus Christ's society I extend you an invitation, promise you a cordial welcome from fellow Christians, offer you help to carry out anything good you desire to accomplish and a place for meeting rent free. If you are willing to do anything to improve yourself, to serve God, to help others, you could not have a fairer offer, a more cordial invitation, a better opportunity.

The church and the family—you have no family? then you need the church all the more; come in and be a member of the family of Jesus Christ, the largest, happiest family on earth. You have a family? The church is designed to be in an inseparable part of it, to do a necessary work in it and for it.

A family, but no home? This is the condition of thousands and ten thousands in our streets. Then let the church be your home. There is no home complete without it. It can supply much of the cheer, comfort, affection that belongs to the happiest homes on earth; it can fit us for a home eternal in the heavens.

Our lives are set in the midst of many great dangers, trials, temptations; many remedies, palliations, panaceas are proposed for the evils that confront us, but I believe that the only sure relief for our troubles must originate in the church of God, impelled by what the spirit of God sayeth to the churches. It is not even the gospel, but the church by means of the gospel that is to reform the world.

In view of what Jesus Christ did for His church the inquiry becoming to men is not what can I escape or shirk or find fault with, but, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?"

In view of His demonstration of love, what is the proof in kind He has a right to expect of us? Is it not contained in this saying, "If ye love Me keep My commandments," and this is the fulfilling of them. Come in first yourself and then do what you can to bring others for their good, for your happiness, for the glory of God, in sign of affection for Jesus Christ.

Short Meter Sermons.

Opposition cures apathy.

Faith creates the future.

Fatalism takes all force out of life.

Rusty pipes do not enrich the water of life.

A man may be loud and yet not say much.

Happiness is never gained until it is given.

Manufacturing sorrow is one of the worst of sins.

Not Enough.

Then you think the Judge will be satisfied if you say: "Lord, I had so many names in my visiting book, and so many invitations I could not refuse, that it was impossible for me to attend to those things."—George Macdonald.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 2.

Subject: Jesus, the Good Shepherd, John x., 7-18—Golden Text, John x., 11—Memory Verses, 17, 18—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. The shepherd and the sheep (vs. 1-6). In these verses Jesus lays the foundation for the discourse which was to follow. With the external drapery of this parable the hearers of Jesus were perfectly familiar. Theirs was a sheep-growing country; flocks were their main dependence.

II. Christ the door (vs. 7-9). 7. "Then said Jesus." Jesus was talking directly to the men who had excommunicated the former blind man, and the application of His words was to them as spiritual thieves and robbers. They had reviled a poor man instead of protecting him. "Verily, verily." This emphasized the importance of what He was about to say. Jesus now proceeds to explain the illustration He had made use of in verses 1-6. "I am the door." The sheep-folds of the East are mere enclosures surrounded by a wall of loose stones with thorn-bushes upon the top, but usually an effectual barrier against the wolves. There is only one door. "The sheep." True Christians.

8. "Before Me." Those who came pretending to be pastors or guides to the people. The scribes and Pharisees claimed to be instructors of the people; claimed the right to regulate the affairs of religion; whose only aim was to promote themselves and oppress the people. "Thieves and robbers." These false teachers, who rejected Christ and who were devouring the sheep. "Did not hear." Many did hear and follow these false prophets, but "the sheep"—those with true spiritual insight—detected their hypocrisy. 9. "Enter in." Through faith in Christ we enter into the fold—the visible church. "Shall be saved." Safe from the robbers that seek to destroy; safe from false teachers; safe from the sins that would ruin; safe from the troubles, dangers and temptations of life. "Go in and out." We must "go in" to trust, to rest, to think, to pray, before we can "go out" to do effective work for the Lord. "Find pasture." Satisfaction for every need of the soul.

III. The thief and the hireling (vs. 10-13).

10. "Thief." Any opposer of the Gospel. "To steal," etc. False teachers steal the hearts and affections from Christ. Their heresies kill and destroy all spiritual life. "Life—abundantly" (R. V.) Christ is able to give His people abundant life. Many are seeking "more" life; what such need is "life"—the Christ life, the abundant life. 11. See on verses 14, 15. 12. "An hireling." The hireling is the one who labors simply for his wages, with no love or concern for the work. "The wolf." The wolf is the enemy of souls in any of his manifold disguises, such as persecution, heresy, worldly living, or a low standard of morals. 13. "Careth not." To him the welfare of the sheep is nothing; he is chiefly solicitous for his own safety, his own gain and worldly honor.

IV. Christ the good Shepherd (vs. 14-18). 14. "I am the good Shepherd." Jesus, as the good Shepherd, was foretold by God in the prophets. His character was that of a divinely appointed shepherd. His purposes, His teachings, His works, His miracles, His methods of work, all were those which must belong to a good shepherd of God's people. "Know My sheep." In the East in a flock of hundreds each sheep would have and would know its own name. So Christ knows us and loves us as individuals. "Am known of mine." There is a mutual affection between the shepherd and the sheep. There is a mutual affection between the Father and the Son; one is parallel with the other. As the Father knows the Son, so does the Shepherd know the sheep; as the Son knows the Father, so do the sheep know the Shepherd.

15. "Lay down My life." The Oriental shepherd must face storms, hardships and dangers for his sheep; he must find them when lost and must often fight with wild beasts and robbers in protecting them. Our Shepherd gives up His life for us (John 3:16; Titus 2:14; John 4:10). 16. "Other sheep have I." The Gentiles who were soon to be brought into His church. The good Shepherd sweeps the world with His thought. Here is the universal relation of Jesus to sinners of all nations and tongues. "Shall become one flock" (R. V.) One flock not in creed or name, but in what is far more essential—one in Christ. One in heart, one in purpose, one in the service of God and man.

17. "Because I lay down." Not because I have laid it down, as though the love of the Father were caused by the earthly love and sacrifice of Christ, but because I lay it down. That is, because Christ's Spirit is one of self-sacrificing love, manifested by, but not alone embodied in, the incarnation, He is loved by the Father (see Phil. 2:9; Heb. 1:9). "Take it again." His rising from the dead was as necessary as His dying, for by His resurrection He secured the fruits of His death (compare Rom. 4:25). Christ died in order to rise to a more complete life, and to raise men with Him. This purpose evoked the love of the Father (compare 12:32; Phil 2:9; Heb. 1:9). 18. "No man." His death was entirely voluntary. Men killed Him, but He had full power to escape from them had He wished. No one imposed upon Him the duty of leaving Heaven, of coming to the world, suffering and dying. He chose to do it, that He might save men. "Have I received." While He did it voluntarily, it was in accordance with His Father's expressed will. This is the divine law of salvation.

HAITI EXPELS ALL SYRIANS.

Obnoxious to Natives—Reputed to Be Merciless Creditors.

Washington, D. C.—The State Department was informed by Minister Powell in Port au Prince a proclamation has been issued that all Syrians must leave the republic by April 1.

The Syrians are extremely obnoxious to the natives, as they have managed to obtain control of most of the retail business of the country, and are reputed to be merciless creditors.

COMMISSIONER GARFIELD'S R

It Is Found to Be Favorable to the Packers.

The report of Commissioner of Corporations Garfield on the beef industry, after about eight months' investigation in Chicago and, it shows that there has been an amount of exaggeration in the statements that have appeared for time past in regard to the business. This investigation was set foot by a resolution of the House of Representatives adopted March 1 and the ascertained facts after a rigid examination of the methods general conduct of the business contained in a report covering pages. Its figures and tables conclusively show that the popular belief enormous profits made by the packers, such as Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and Nelson Morris & Co., in the exclusive control of the business which many think they exercise really without foundation.

The report made to President Roosevelt by Commissioner Garfield is only the first official statement of the actual conditions of the beef business that has been made, and as all the conclusions arrived at are based, as stated by him, upon data officially obtained there seems to be no reason why the report should not be regarded as reliable and in all respects trustworthy.

This report shows why the prices both cattle and beef advanced to the highest level ever known after the short corn crop of 1901, and states that because of the decrease in number of cattle and also in decreased weights "the high prices of beef which caused so much complaint among consumers at this time were attributable in part to these abnormal cattle prices."

All the figures of the live weight and live cost of all dressed beef cattle are obtained from actual killing records and all information of every kind obtained by the Commissioner was voluntarily and freely offered by the packers, all books of record and papers connected with the business having been placed at his disposal.

To make certain that the results of the investigation should be absolutely accurate, the Commissioner states that a double method of ascertaining the facts was adopted, and, without going into detail here, it is found that the conclusion arrived at shows an average profit of 99 cents per head. The Commissioner says "the close parallelism of the results of the two methods of ascertaining the profits confirms completely the correctness of the general conclusions." It is clearly established that "Western packers do not control more than half of the beef supply of the United States," the conclusion of the Commissioner being that the business done by them amounts to "not 45 per cent." of the total slaughter of the country.

The whole report is extremely interesting and well worthy of careful perusal. As an official report it must be regarded as worthy of confidence and it certainly leads the reader to the conclusion arrived at by the Commissioner when he states that "the centralization of none of these concerns is excessive as compared with its actual investment," and that from this careful and rigid examination of original entries in books and papers to which he had access there was also "indirect evidence that the profits of the packers in their beef business are less than frequently supposed," as shown by a comparison between the total profits and the total amount of sales.

Migratory Whales.

Professor Goldlob has been in the Christian Academy of Sciences results of his investigations in the migrations of whales. These figures hang about the coast of Norway and Finland until the spring is advanced, and then go away on their travels. Some go to the Azores, but they cover these enormous distances in an incredibly short time. Some of them bring back harpoons which bear the names of ships and other evidences of where these migrants have been for their summer holidays.

Biblical Slang.

Many phrases which are looked upon as "slang," have very respectable origins. For instance, "escape by the skin of my teeth" is a sentence used in the 20th verse of the chapter of Job.

Effects of Prosperity.

In the six years of the country's greatest prosperity, from 1897 to 1903, average prices of breadstuffs advanced 65 per cent.; meats, 23.1 per cent.; dairy and garden products, 50 per cent., and clothing 24.1. All these are products of the farmer and stock raiser, who profited more than any other class of the community by these advances. The miner benefited 42.1 per cent. by that advance in the average price of metals. The only decrease in the average prices of commodities in this period was in railway freight rates, which decreased from .798 per ton-mile in 1897 to .763 in 1903, a loss of 4 per cent. The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that the average increase in the pay of railroad employes in that period was about 8.5 per cent.

Water Over Children's Heads.

Mobile, Ala.—The weather bureau gives the rainfall of Monday and Tuesday morning at 9.22 inches, the greatest fall since June 26, 1901. 12.76 inches fell in eight and a half hours. Water around Jefferson public school at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning was over the heads of many of the children attending there. The school could not be held. Many bridges were carried away.

In the Public

PRESIDENT OF ARMOUR & CO., AND FIGURE IN THE AMERICAN BE

UMBRELLA FOR POCKET.

e earliest form of umbrella had faculty of folding, but for a long there has been an effort on the of inventors to reduce the bulk he rain shield when folded. This been done in a measure in recent gus by making a handle which was chable, and for the purpose of king the umbrella in a trunk or case this device answered.

COLLAPSING UMBRELLA.

n umbrella capable of folding in a space that it can be carried in hand satchel, or even the pocket, been more recently made. This been arrived at by making the lle, ribs and braces all telescoping. en the umbrella is closed after having been raised the extreme outside ion of the ribs close up under nselves, and the braces break or so that the cover of the umbrella pies a much less length than the nary umbrella, but the bulk is ewhat increased. When the parts distended they are held firmly together by the spring bearing of the clapping pieces.

ukden, an Important Man City, is Situated Close Russia's Trans-Si

A bit of the Old Wall, Mukden, Manchuria, w the Japanese and C Russians ha

The Manners of a Lady.

esident Roosevelt has great ad tion for Mrs. La Follette, wife o onsin's Governor. The beginnin is regard dates from an occasion Mrs. La Follette and he were quests at a reception some time They were standing in one cor ngaged in conversation and eat ce cream. He was doing the of the talking and she was an tive and unwavering listener. denly I discovered," said the dent, 'that for the last five min-

When the from other only that it opening at in the ribs are covers ence of wh collapsing signal for phia Reco

The follo Harbor, M "Say, ye that had hill. Two y Ewain, I h you'd never could write "Wal, he house an' I spun yar folks an' sociable lik an' joke w "Wall, o in' kind o was all ri in a stiff n "Brooks, e osteopath a 'the' mebbe one on 'em nigh enter me kind guessed he an' enquir "Wal, I woman ab big fool. S a bird.' room an' my boy Harvard it wan't i neither. doctor?". I tes I ha own the g gown. line, but the quive slightest ested exp had simpl rupt me matter wh —Kansas

England candy is

HOOL

MMENTS

COMMISSIONER GARFIELD'S R

It Is Found to Be Favorable to the Packers.

The report of Commissioner of Corporations Garfield on the beef industry, after about eight months' investigation in Chicago and elsewhere, shows that there has been an enormous amount of exaggeration in the statements that have appeared from time to time past in regard to the beef business. This investigation was put through by a resolution of the House of Representatives adopted March 7, and the ascertained facts after a rigid examination of the methods and general conduct of the business contained in a report covering many pages. Its figures and tables conclusively show that the popular belief in enormous profits made by the beef packers, such as Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and Nelson Morris & Co., and in the exclusive control of the business which many think they exercise, is really without foundation.

The report made to President Roosevelt by Commissioner Garfield is mainly the first official statement of the actual conditions of the beef business that has been made, and as all the conclusions arrived at are based, as stated by him, upon data officially obtained, there seems to be no reason why the report should not be regarded as reliable and in all respects trustworthy.

This report shows why the prices of both cattle and beef advanced to the highest level ever known after the short corn crop of 1901, and states that because of the decrease in number of cattle and also in decreased weights "the high prices of beef which caused so much complaint among consumers at this time were attributable wholly to these abnormal cattle prices."

All the figures of the live weight and live cost of all dressed beef cattle were obtained from actual killing records, and all information of every kind obtained by the Commissioner was voluntarily and freely offered by the packers, all books of record and papers connected with the business having been placed at his disposal.

To make certain that the results of the investigation should be absolutely accurate, the Commissioner states that a double method of ascertaining profits was adopted, and, without going into detail here, it is found that the conclusion arrived at shows an average profit of 99 cents per head. The Commissioner says "the close parallelism of the results of the two methods of ascertaining the profits confirms completely the correctness of the general conclusions." It is clearly established that "Western packers do not control more than half of the beef supply of the United States," the conclusion of the Commissioner being that the business done by them amounts to "about 45 per cent." of the total slaughter of the country.

The whole report is extremely interesting and well worthy of careful perusal. As an official report it may be regarded as worthy of confidence, and it certainly leads the reader to the conclusion arrived at by the Commissioner when he states that "the capitalization of none of these concerns is excessive as compared with its actual investment," and that from thorough and rigid examination of original entries in books and papers to which he had access there was also "indirect evidence that the profits of the packers in their beef business are less than frequently supposed," as shown by a comparison between the total profits and the total amount of sales.

Migratory Whales.

Professor Goldlob has been lecturing at the Christian Academy of Science on the results of his investigations into the migrations of whales. These creatures hang about the coast of Norway and Finland until the spring is well advanced, and then go away on their travels. Some go to the Azores, where they cover these enormous distances in an incredibly short time. Some of them bring back harpoons which bear the names of ships and other evidences of where these migrants have been for their summer holidays.

Biblical Slang.

Many phrases which are looked upon as "slang," have very respectable origins. For instance, "escape by the skin of my teeth" is a sentence used in the 20th verse, 19th chapter of Job.

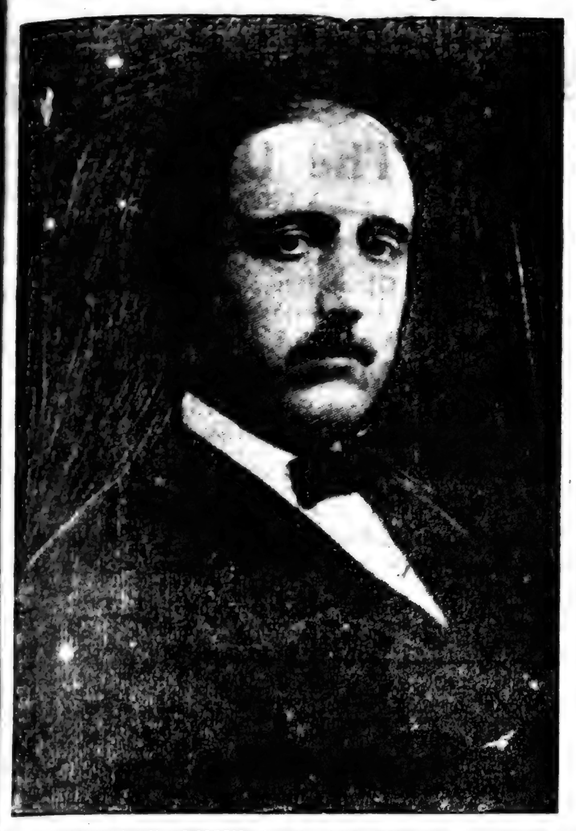
Effects of Prosperity.

In the six years of the country's greatest prosperity, from 1897 to 1903, average prices of breadstuffs advanced 65 per cent.; meats, 23.1 per cent.; dairy and garden products, 50.1 per cent., and clothing 24.1. All these products of the farmer and stockman, who profited more than any other class of the community by these advances. The miner benefited 42.1 per cent by that advance in the average prices of metals. The only decrease in the whole range of prices of commodities in that period was in railway freight rates, which decreased from .798 per ton-mile in 1897 to .763 in 1903, a loss of 4.4 per cent. The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows the average increase in the pay of railway employes in that period was a little above 8.5 per cent.

Water Over Children's Heads

Mobile, Ala.—The weather bureau gives the rainfall of Monday and Tuesday morning at 9.22 inches, the greatest fall since June 26, 1900, when 12.76 inches fell in eight and a half hours. Water around Jefferson public school at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning was over the heads of many of the children attending there, and school could not be held. Bridges were carried away.

In the Public Eye.



W PRESIDENT OF ARMOUR & CO., AND THE MOST POWERFUL FIGURE IN THE AMERICAN BEEF TRUST.

UMBRELLA FOR POCKET.

The earliest form of umbrella had a facility of folding, but for a long time there has been an effort on the part of inventors to reduce the bulk of the rain-shield when folded. This has been done in a measure in recent designs by making a handle which was detachable, and for the purpose of packing the umbrella in a trunk or valise this device answered.

COLLAPSING UMBRELLA.

An umbrella capable of folding in such a space that it can be carried in a hand satchel, or even the pocket, has been more recently made. This is said been arrived at by making the handle, ribs and braces all telescoping. When the umbrella is closed after having been raised the extreme outside section of the ribs close up under themselves, and the braces break or fold so that the cover of the umbrella occupies a much less length than the ordinary umbrella, but the bulk is not increased. When the parts are extended they are held firmly together by the spring bearing of the telescoping pieces.

When the umbrella is raised it differs from others of the ordinary type in only that it is necessary to provide an opening at the points where the elbow in the ribs is formed. These openings are covered with loose flaps, the presence of which are not obtrusive. The collapsing umbrella is especially designed for traveling people.—Philadelphia Record.

An Osteopath Defined.

The following story comes from York Harbor, Maine:

"Say, yer know thet litterary chap thet hed the Furness cottage up on the hill, two years ago last summer—Mark Twain, I b'lieve they called 'im. Gee! ye'd never think ter look at 'im thet he could write brooks!

"Wal, he uster come over ter my house an' set fer hours to a time while I spun yarns an' told 'im abaout York folks an' things. Seemed ter be reel sociable like—liked ter smoke an' talk, an' joke with an old fool like me.

"Wall, one day he comes ter me lookin' kind o' worried like, an' his hair was all ruffled up like he'd been auot in a stiff nor'easter, an' he sez: 'Cap't Brooks, can you tell me if there is an osteopath at the Harbor?' 'Wal,' sez I, 'the' mebbe, but I ain't never ketched one on 'em an' I've been fishin' here nigh onter forty years.' He looked at me kind o' queer, an' then sed he guessed he'd go up ter the drug store an' enquire.

"Wal, I went home an' told the old woman abaout it, an' she sez: 'You big fool, Jed Brooks, 'tain't no fish, 'tis a bird.' So then I went inter the best room an' took daown the cyclopedium my boy Steve hed when he was ter Harvard College, an' I'll be durned if it wan't no fish at all, nor no bird neither, but a new-fangled kind of a doctor!"—Harper's Weekly.

Mukden, an Important Manchurian City, is Situated Close to the Line of Russia's Trans-Siberian Railway Ancient Wall, Mukden, Manchuria, where furious fighting between the Japanese and the Russians has taken place.

—From Harper's Weekly.

The Manners of a Lady.

Theodore Roosevelt has great admiration for Mrs. La Follette, wife of Wisconsin's Governor. The beginning of this regard dates from an occasion when Mrs. La Follette and he were guests at a reception some time ago. They were standing in one corner engaged in conversation and eating ice cream. He was doing the greater part of the talking and she was an attentive and unwavering listener. Suddenly I discovered," said the president, "that for the last five minutes I had been pouring ice cream down the front of her handsome evening gown. She had known it all the time, but had not indicated it by even the quiver of an eyelash or by the slightest change in the smiling, interested expression upon her face; she had simply been too polite to interrupt me by word or look or move no matter what happened to the gown."—Kansas City Journal.

England's bill for sugar to make into candy is $2,000,000 every week.

Timely Fashion Hints

New York City.—House jackets made in surplice style, with contrasting themisettes, are among the latest shown, and are eminently graceful and attractive. This one is adapted both to general use and to the negligee worn in one's own apartment, and to a wide range of materials, but as illustrated combines pale blue cashmere, trimmed with ribbon banding, with ecru lace. The shawl collar is a feature, and together with the flowing sleeves gives exceedingly graceful lines, while the belt confines the fulness at the waist when the jacket is designed for wear beyond the limit of one's own apartment. The chemisette can, properly, be of any contrasting material and can be omitted when a simpler garment is desired.

The jacket is made with fronts and back and is finished with the big collar at both neck and front edges. The chemisette is separate, and is arranged under the fronts, attached to the right one and hooked over under the left. The sleeves are in one piece each, gathered at their upper edges.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is five and one-half yards twenty-seven, four and three-fourth yards thirty-two, or four and one-fourth yards forty-four inches wide, with five-eighth yards of all-over lace for chemisette and sixteen yards of banding to make as illustrated.

Taffeta Coats.

Louis Quinze coats have become a settled fashion. One of the latest designs was built of a soft and delicate shade of canary colored taffeta, on which there was a pompadour garland pattern of silver and pale yellow. This was used on the cuffs, collar, and the best fronts, of which there were two sets, the second being of heavy yellow brocade. A chemisette of creamy lace showed at the throat where the vest opened. The skirt worn with this handsome coat was pale yellow silk veiled with guipure.—Washington Times.

Double Breasted Eton.

Eton coats are among the smartest of all models for the incoming season, and are shown in many variations. This one can be worn rolled open to form revers or closed in double breasted style, and includes the new sleeves that are full at the top and straight at the wrists. In the case of the model the material is pearl gray chiffon broadcloth, the revers and cuffs being of silk and the trimming fancy braid, but all suitings are appropriate.

The Eton is made with fronts and back and is fitted by means of shoulder, under-arm seams and single darts. The sleeves are made with two pieces each, and are finished with roll-over cuffs.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is three and one-half yards twenty-one, three yards twenty-seven, or one and seven-eighth yards forty-four inches wide, with three-fourth yards of silk for revers and cuffs, and five yards of braid to make as illustrated.

Amethyst Paillettes.

Lovely shades of violet, a pinky mauve-like sunset tint reflected in sea foam, deep amethyst and lilac are noted in the so-called "amethyst paillettes" which spangle drapery of duchesse lace and of real Mechlin scarf lace. This beautiful foamy drapery is used for the decolletage of a bodice and for the last touch of elegance of a Paris hat intended for those social functions of prime importance where millinery is worn. Amethyst paillettes look lovely on a lavender satin gown, if they are used sparingly and in the right places. Rosettes of gold tissue, simply made, are liked as coiffure adornments. Young girls and matrons both show a preference for these dainty pieces of millinery.

A Turban Hat.

A turban sold for $5 had a crown of gold lace and a brim of black tulle covered with two full box-pleated ruches of emerald green velvet. A cluster of exquisite white roses trimmed one side of the turbans.

A Late Design by May Manton.

TALKS WITH OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

MUD PIES.

Of all the enjoyments under the skies
There's nothing so jolly as making mud pies.
Prepare a nice shingle or short, narrow plank,
Lay it carefully down on a bright, sunny bank.
Take the freshest of earth and the cleanest of sand
And mix them up thoroughly well with your hand;
Add a cupful of water, then stir with a stick—
A little more water if it seems too thick.
Now take up a lump of this beautiful dough,
About just enough for a mud pie you know;
Roll it softly around and give it a pat,
Don't have it too hump and yet not to flat.
Lay it down on the board to bake in the sun—
Then make all the others just like this one.
Then sprinkle white sand over each little cake,
And leave them about fifteen minutes to bake;
And, when they are done, you'll certainly say,
"That's the best fun I've had for many a day."

A WISE SILVER GRAY.

The little silver-gray fox had no looking glass into which to peep in his home on the prairie hillside. And, when he saw himself in the stream when he was drinking, the glimpse was often quickly gone, as one of his mischievous brothers splashed his foot in the water, or tried to push him into a deeper pool. So he had no idea what a beautiful, precious coat he wore.

His wise mother had probably not told him about its worth, for she seemed to have given her romping children all the same words of advice. Perhaps she thought, "It would make him vain to tell him that he is the only silver-gray fox for miles and miles around on the prairies, and vanity might lead him into danger more quickly than anything else."

At least the happy silver gray darted out of one hole or the other which led down to his home with the same air and quickness of his brothers. He played with them with no hint, "I'm worth more than hundreds of young foxes like you!"

But, when the young hunter saw him he knew at a glance what a rare fellow he was, "Come here, Ben," he called to his chum, was was cooking breakfast in the shack. "Here's a genuine silver-gray fox. Father got over $200 for one like him that he trapped out here."

"Oh, no!" he laughed, as Ben quickly clutched at his rifle on the wall. "We'll let him grow all he can. He will be a fine, glossy fellow by the time we are through hoding down this claim. We'll feed him with meat. We'll get him so tame that when I get ready to lay my hands on him there will not be many hairs missing on his fine coat."

And then Jimmy Lane went on still further with his plan for capturing the silver-gray, as the nimble fellow darted away through the prairie grass. His plan seemed to work well in the bright summer days which followed, for all the foxes came to like the pieces of meat which were left where they could easily get them. Their shyness wore off so much that some days they did not run away fast at all when they saw the two young men moving about the prairie. And, when Mother Fox shook her head at them in a warning way, they nodded back as if they understood it all.

"We leave here in a few days," said Jimmy Lane one evening. "And tonight I'll bring out from town that bright dog of Neally's, and in the morning I'll have young silver-gray in yonder box."

The next day all the young foxes were up early for a play in the grass. And when Jimmy Lane saw them run over the little hill toward the coulee, he thrust his big hat into one hole which led down to Mother Fox's home, and then raced to the other hole just as silver-gray came over the hill in sight again.

"If he comes here, I'll have him," laughed Jimmy, as he saw the dog start in hot pursuit of the young fox. "And if he tries to get in where my hat is, it's the same story!"

But to his great wonder the silver-gray seemed to understand the matter as well as he did. He would dash up toward one of the holes, as if he thought his only way of escape lay in reaching that. Then he would suddenly turn and scramble toward the coulee again, while the dog came panting on behind. Then the silver-gray would run toward the other hole, and again escape from the waiting hunter and dog. And at last, when the dog was getting rather tired of this sort of fun, the silver-gray darted up the coulee as if he had had no hard run at all.

"What are you laughing at?" Jimmy Lane cried angrily, as he heard the merriment of his chum at the door of the shack.

"At the good-bye bow of the silver-gray," was answered. "We shall not see him here again. While we have been feeding this whole family of foxes, they have been digging a new hole upon these higher hills." And when Jimmy Lane went there to explore, he found the place, and muttered, "Silver-grays are not so easily caught after all!"—Charles N. Sinnett in The Christian Register.

INTELLIGENT WRENS.

Much has been written of the mind that centres in the brain of a bee or an ant, says Dr. Charles C. Abbott in Lippincott's. The wren, too, has but a trifling brain when we consider its bulk, out from it flows many a suggestive train of thought. The career of the birds nesting in the roof of my porch was much the same year after year, and I will particularize only that of the season just drawn to a close. The first brood came from the nest a few days too soon, and great was the commotion that followed. The young birds were too weak upon the wing to avoid danger. I boldly declare I believe I was appealed to. The parent birds perched on the sill of my study window and sang as they had not done before. The marked differences from their ordinary singing attracted my attention. When I went out of the door their excitement visibly increased. I thought they would actually alight upon me. I saw the trouble and proceeded to remedy it. I caught four of the young birds, all that I could find, and immediately the old birds were more at ease. Placing a ladder against the porch, I carried the nestlings back. Every movement of mine was closely watched. I was followed every step I took, and when I replaced the young birds the parents were within a foot of my hand. Then, such singing! It seemed unmistakable that I was accepted as a veritable friend in need, and so a friend indeed. After this incident the wrens were even more tame.

A few weeks passed, and I was again called upon to render these wrens assistance. The entrance to the nest had become too large for their needs, and a pair of English sparrows had discovered the fact. The rotten wood had so far crumbled away that the latter birds could pass in and out. This they attempted, and a battle royal was begun. The singing of the wrens was noticeably loud, incessant and suggestive of some unusual happening. I was attracted by it and saw the cause of all the trouble at once. Again I seemed to be appealed to. The wrens distinctly flew to me, singing while on the wing, and then darting viciously after the intrudng sparrows. I took a strip of thin wood, bored an inch auger hole in it, and prepared to place it before the old opening to the nest. Setting the ladder again in position, I was now closely followed by the wrens. They clearly comprehended what I was about to do. They did not leave me for an instant. I tracked the bit of wood in front of the nest and added a perching stick. The wrens stood upon the porch roof near by and fairly danced with glee, and before I was again upon the ground and the ladder removed they were passing into and out of the nest without a moment's hesitation, I never heard such exultant singing. It was piercingly shrill.—Philadelphia Record.

A BIT ABOUT BASKET MAKING.

Of the making of baskets there is no end, for the girl of the period has put into Indian weaves all the enthusiasm she formerly brought to bear on her painting and bicycling. Big tray shapes, useful alike for the family mending and the pastebcards of visitors, offer broad surfaces for experimental stitches and designs. One of the kind recently finished is made of stout lapping series of curves along the sides in a foliage green color. But the strong rattan can be manipulated only by fingers to the manner trained. Finer materials are preferred by beginners at the art. The acme of the enthusiastic basket maker's so doing many a girl is obtaining unique and original effects.—

St. Louis is said to have several new millionaires. Probably hotel waiters who served through the Exposition, the Fairmont (W. Va.) Times, opines.

Poland loses no occasion to prove that it has neither forgiven nor forgotten, says the Washington Star.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

SPECIAL OFFER! !

For the next two weeks we will give The Union, weekly Atlanta Constitution, Farm and Home, and Southern Ruralist of Atlanta—four papers a whole year for only $1.50.

also

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

OUR THIRD YEAR.

THE UNION begins its third year with this issue. We have done well so far, but we want to do better in the future, and will not feel content until we have all our people gathered into THE UNION fold. Those who are not in the ranks of our subscribers should break the chains of an evil habit and come and sun themselves in the light of truth and reason. "Come out from among the unbelievers." Your first duty is to the paper that champions the cause of THE PEOPLE, the paper that stands constantly on guard to help them to get a "square deal." Where would that cause be now but for the aid of THE UNION last year? A rotten political job was scotched if not killed, when this paper was started. Many of you no doubt will recollect what several descendants of Ananias said about THE UNION when it started, "that it would not last three weeks." Well, the result shows that they don't fail short in the practice of that which made their ancestor notorious. Now, brethren, let us gird ourselves for the coming struggle. Don't expect to sit still. The only real quiet place is the grave. And to keep your hands in join the cotton association, and help knock out the cotton speculator, thus keeping yourselves in training to knock out the vote speculators.

THAT OIL MILL.

The editorial in last week's UNION has borne fruit already. Read Mr. W. T. Hand's letter in this paper. He is a practical business man and knows whereof he speaks. Get the oil mill under way and a cotton mill will naturally follow. We also need larger warehouse facilities.

WHY NOT?

Why not Clanton have a Commercial Club, an organized body of the business men of the city, and be prepared to handle the various matters that are necessary to the upbuilding of the city? Clanton must get a move on her if she wants to keep in the procession.

THORSBY.

We spent Friday in Thorsby and were much impressed with the "push" that is apparent there at present. The Commercial Club, which numbers over 20 members, is at the helm now, and bending its best energies to the work of securing new settlers, just working for the general welfare, not to exploit any special schemes. The town has all the evidences of prosperity, its professional men, Doctors Stabler and Junkerman, being in constant touch with every advance made in their professions; the stores have an assortment of goods seldom if ever found outside of large cities; the orchards and vineyards are showing good promise for a bounteous yield of fruit. Over 20 people arrived in Thorsby last week on excursion day from the north, many of whom will locate there at once. G. C. Michelson, mine host of the Thorsby Inn, is crowded with guests. He intends putting up an annex of some 30 rooms to his hotel this summer. Mr. Michelson has a large circle of friends in Chicago and the northwest, who, hearing from him of the delightful climate of central Alabama, are eager to cast in their lot with Thorsby. One of the visitors last week was John Anderson, Publisher of "The Scandinavian," of Chicago, the largest publication in that language in the United States. He expressed himself as much pleased with Thorsby, giving it the preference over anything he had hitherto visited. Our new correspondent at Thorsby is very capable, and will no doubt do the town justice in the future.

LETTER FROM W. T. HAND.

Editor Union:

In connection with several suggestions looking to the establishment of a cotton seed oil mill and fertilizer mixer combined, at some suitable location in Chilton county, and in view of several inquiries on this subject, I wish to say: That it is my opinion that such an industry would be found very convenient to the large number of farmers adjacent to it; not only so, but profitable to the stockholders and surrounding community. There is much to be gained by reason of the close proximity to the raw material, which is at our mill doors. The cost of such plant as would be required would probably approximate $15,000, which amount should be subscribed entirely by home capital. The gin owners should be liberal holders of stock, and erect at each of their ginneries suitable storage rooms for the retention of cotton seed for the mill company. Properly handled, the amount of cash necessary to complete a plant of this kind should not exceed one-quarter the total capital, and if operated by a conservative and efficient manager, should in my opinion meet the deferred installments against the stock for each holder after the second year, taking as a basis a plant of 15 tons daily capacity, and estimating the profit on each ton to be about $7, which figures are the result of my investigation a short time ago. If anything is done along this line, I would be glad to become a stockholder, and lend my aid to the best interest of the enterprise.

W. T. HAND.

LOMAX.

The health of our community is pretty fair barring rumors of smallpox. Our farmers are hard at work again after the rain. We endorse all your Beat Nine correspondent said about good roads. Yes, the more civilized the people, the better roads they have—and another thing follows civilization, and that is stock law and good stock. Stock law just means for every one to look after their own stock, and that gives protection to our crops; under the present situation we haven't much protection. Why can't we have stock law? The people of this community are going to plant less cotton and more corn, etc., something that will do us more good than so much low priced cotton. Let us all raise our own home supplies, and then what cotton we can make after that is done. It don't pay to raise low priced cotton and then buy high priced supplies. Success to THE UNION and its many readers.

OBSERVER.

RANDOLPH.

Weather nice. Everybody busy. Miss Willie May Smith has an attack of the mumps. Lots of fertilizer was hauled last week. Howell Martin, who has been in the U. S. volunteer service, has returned home. Thomas McCumber, of Selma, is visiting his family here. Major Howison had a horse killed by the train Thursday night. The Southern R. R. is putting in a new side track just north of town. Commissioner Glasscock and wife and Miss Lizzie Hubbard were in town Tuesday. Mr. Glasscock is one of Chilton's well known officials, a man of the people, and a strong advocate of the people's cause. John Merchant was a welcome visitor Saturday. S. G. Glasscock, one of the true populists of Chilton, was here last week. V. L. Hubbard, of Ashby, was in town Sunday. Vernon is a Chilton boy, now telegraph operator at Ashby. B. F. Rasberry and John Gibbons were in town last week. Tom Cost, of Pleasant Grove, was a welcome caller Saturday. F. J. Fitts and Tax Collector Hubbard were in town Sunday to meet Mrs. W. D. Nix and Miss Lizzie Hubbard, who have been visiting V. L. Hubbard at Ashby. Messrs. Lavender of Centerville, Jeffreys of Selma, E. Bearden and Clark Brantley were visitors last week. Misses Daisy and Jessie Cottingham, of Antioch, were in town Monday. J. C. C. Woolley, of Lawley, was here Monday. Success to THE UNION. Let the great common people rally to its support. We duly appreciate the correspondence in THE UNION, but let us hear from Jamison.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

THORSBY.

The two sections of the fast mail stopped here last Wednesday, bringing a number of visitors and settlers. Among those that registered at the Thorsby Inn were Mrs. H. Michelson, Mrs. W. Michelson, Mrs. J. Olson and Mrs. Anderson. Those that came to settle were Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Stuchenburg and son, and Mr and Mrs. Riberg and family. Welcome to Thorsby. Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson were here a few days last week on their way to Chicago, many of the Thorsby people were glad to welcome Mr. Anderson, as he is the proprietor of the Scandinavian, a newspaper of Chicago, which has the largest circulation of any Norwegian paper in the United States. The ladies of our town were delighted to have the opportunity of meeting the charming wife of the editor. During last week the following left Thorsby: Messrs. Wright, Bolan, Dudley, Mrs. Johnson and the Watson family. Miss Alma Lefstad entertained the young people at her home on Saturday night, a most enjoyable time was reported by all present. The many friends of Mr. O'Grady, who is connected with the Denison Lumber and Mfg. Co., will be sorry to learn that he is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism. We are glad to announce that the Lafollette family that left Thorsby last fall have returned. The Commercial Club is rapidly increasing in membership and is creating a widespread interest among its members in Chicago as well as those in Thorsby. Messrs. S. W. Collins and G. Killgore, of Clanton, spent Sunday with us. The accident that occurred to Mr. Lien on the baseball grounds last Saturday is not as serious as at first feared. His eye sight will not be injured. Rev. P. N. Clarke, superintendent of the Congregational Board of Missions of this State, addressed a large audience at the Normal School Building Sunday morning. Mr. Hutchinson delivered an eloquent sermon at the school house Sunday night. There is a movement on foot to unite all the English-speaking churches of Thorsby into one body. Our hearty good wishes are with the workers for their success. "In unity is strength."

"JUST WE TWO."

Jemison, Ala., March 27, '05.

Editor Union:

A few words concerning our cotton association. I think we are doing good in this part of the county. Here is the report from Vanderslice District: Cotton acreage in 1904, 109; sacks of guano, 94; acreage in 1905, 44; sacks of guano, 42, which I think is a pretty good reduction. Now, about the county fair, having been appointed on the Executive Committee of the S. C. A. in this county, and arranging for a County Fair being one of the duties put on that committee, I'd like to hear from the people on this question through the county papers, as both have expressed a willingness to do all they can to aid the committee in its work. We know it is getting late to prepare to compete for premiums on our main crops. However, if we can get up enough funds to justify us in offering premiums, I think it will be a good thing, so I leave the subject open for discussion by abler minds than mine. Hoping to hear from the people generally, I am respectfully,

J. W. SORRELL.

BEAT NINE ITEMS.

We are having pretty weather again. Messrs. J. W. Hays and Frank Eiland made a business trip to Blocton Thursday. We've been working the public roads in this district. J. M. Poole made a trip to Clanton Thursday. Several of the Thorsby brethren attended church at Cedar Grove Sunday. Our school at the Cross Roads closes this week. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Barrett visited relatives in Birmingham and Woodlawn last week. Green Collins, of Calera, visited his son, Richard, Wednesday. J. G. Hayes made a business trip to Clanton Friday. There will be an OLD CLASS CHOIR SINGING at Cedar Grove the second Sunday in April at 2 p. m. Everybody invited.

"NIM ROD."

His Valuable Hand.

Knoxville, Tenn.—J. M. Douglass was awarded a judgment of $10,000 damages against the 'Frisco system by a jury in the circuit court for the loss of a hand. This is the largest judgment rendered in the court this year, and is about on a par with any ever given for personal injuries to the plaintiff in an action.

The telephone had in service four times as many miles of wire as the telegraph and carried fifty-six times as many messages. If the difference be so great at present, what will it be ten years hence?

Collier Abarenda Floated.

Washington, D. C.—A report to the navy department announces that the collier Abarenda, which went ashore on the coast of Florida, has been floated.

Shot Over Card Game.

Mansfield, La.—Handley Williams, son of Mayor Williams, was shot and killed by Douglas Thigpen. The young men had a disagreement over a card game. They belonged to prominent families.

Seven Women Injured.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Two women will probably die and five others are severely injured as the result of a runaway accident at Bellaire. The most seriously injured are Mrs. Shane Bell, wife of the lieutenant of police, of Benwood, and Mrs. John Morris, of Benwood.

The two worst injured were in a carriage, driven by Jacob Duke, returning from a funeral. The horses became frightened at a train, and dashed into a carriage containing the other injured, driven by Robert Brown. The wheels caught and Duke's carriage was thrown over a thirty-foot embankment, the driver escaping injury.

Mexican Minister Dead.

Washington, D. C.—Senor Don Manuel de Aspiroz, Mexico's first ambassador to the United States, died Friday afternoon at the Mexican embassy at 5:10 o'clock, surrounded by members of his family. Although a sick man since last fall, the ambassador's death was due to relapse caused by exposure on inauguration day. Against the advice of his physician, Mr. Aspiroz left his sick room on March 4th last and attended the inaugural ceremonies at the capitol where he came near fainting.

Strikes Are Ended.

Warsaw.—The strike in the coal and iron districts of Sosnovice and Dembrok have ended at last, the workmen have resumed their labors. The peasant agitation continues, but only as a sporadic movement, controlled by socialistic agitators who have been unable thus far to impress the peasants with their view of the necessity of a strike.

M. Maximovitch, the new governor general, has withdrawn the patrols from the schools, being of the opinion that it is undignified to employ soldiers to watch school boys.

Buys Part of Capitol Square.

Montgomery, Ala.—The state has purchased the south half of Capitol square, the price paid being $65,000. The property owners received $63,616, and the other amount was for court costs and attorney's fees. The deeds have been filed. The capitol commission will soon meet, and it is expected improvements will be begun in a short time. The commission had $150,000 at its disposal, but spent $65,666 of it for the property. It is expected that a new building will be erected on the property just bought. It will be for the judicial officers.

Wetumpka's Building Boom.

Wetumpka, Ala.—Mr. W. E. Thomas is having a pretty home built, Humphries & Thomas are having an ice cream parlor fitted up, the market is being improved by a new veranda, the First National bank is having plans drawn and will soon remodel its building. The vacant lot on the street leading west from the court house has been purchased by the city and will be added to the street, thereby widening it and improving its appearance as well as affording greater fire protection.

Commits Suicide in Pool Room.

Memphis, Tenn.—N. Weinburg, a merchant of Osceola, Ark., committed suicide in a local billiard room by drinking carbolic acid. He was dead before the act of his swallowing the poison had been discovered. Weinberg left Osceola last Sunday presumably for St. Louis. A wife and six children survive him. A letter was found on the suicide stating that he was weary of battling with the world.

No Russian Vessels Sunk.

Washington, D. C.—Mr. Griscom, the American minister at Tokio, has reported to the State Department upon the loss of merchant vessels in the Russo-Japanese war. He says that no merchant steamer flying the Russian flag nor any merchant steamer of non-Russian nationality carrying contraband of war has been sunk by the Japanese, whereas, the Russians sent to the bottom nine Japanese steamers and four small sailing ships.

The minister states that no vessel was captured by the Russians, who resorted to sinking the enemy's craft. The Japanese sunk 17 of their own ships for the purpose of blocking Port Arthur, and captured 23 Russian merchant vessels.

Train Wrecked on Frisco.

Memphis, Tenn.—West-bound passenger train No. 204 on the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad collided with a car on the siding at Hickory Flat, near New Albany, Miss., and was wrecked. Several persons were badly bruised, but none seriously. The train was running at a high rate of speed when it dashed into the obstruction. The engine, tender and two coaches were derailed. Traffic will be delayed several hours.

Children Burned in House.

Superior, Wis.—Two small children of E. Syring, a farmer living near Brule, set fire to the house in the absence of their parents and burned to death. They had hid under a bed from fear of a whipping for starting the fire.

Jules Verne Dead.

Amiens, France.—Jules Verne, the author, died Friday.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival

Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand

"Are the Best on Earth"

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabama

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Gelder's Restaurant,

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Woman and Publicity.

The Feminine Display in the Box Circle at the Opera Cited as a Warning.

By Medicus.

THE phase of the woman question discussed by your women advocates and opponents of woman suffrage is interesting and important, but far more important and suggestive is the consequence of publicity in the feminine appearance and character as exhibited in fashionable society; and that effect forces itself the attention of the observer, in New York, at least, far more than any produced by the entrance of women into political activity.

The women of New York who are now most prominent before the public, hardly excepting women of the theatrical stage, are the women of fashionable society. Their pictured faces are as well known to the public of New York and the whole Union as are those of the most popular actresses or singers. As soon as a young girl "comes out" in that society her picture is likely to be published far and wide, and as she grows in years her face becomes familiar in every part of the Union. She becomes a public character or personage, her name as well known as the name of a man conspicuous in political life. She lives and moves in a light of publicity far brighter than that which surrounds any of the women who are seeking political rights.

Now, what is the effect? It may be seen and studied to the best advantage in the box circle at the opera and at the annual horse show, for there the women of fashion are displayed most conspicuously. How do they look?

In the first place, if they have passed the early flush of womanhood, they look overfed and overstimulated. Their faces have taken on hard lines which no cosmetic artifices can conceal. They are likely also to have a fagged appearance. They seem overworked in the social routine. A girl who enters society fresh and glooming and with feminine charm is transformed after a few years of matronhood into a rather gross and hard featured specimen of femininity, with little more genuine vivacity and spontaneity of expression than a "freak" in a dime museum puts on—nothing of "soul," as a priest said with me the other evening remarked.

People whose knowledge of the appearance of these women is derived from "retouched" pictures would be astonished if they saw the actual display in the box circle; for probably nowhere is there to be seen in a public place such a attractive collection of women, so far as concerns the prime essentials of feminine beauty and charm. They are the victims of publicity rather than ornaments. They look as if they had lost in the game of pleasure instead having won its conventional prizes. Their faces and their demeanor bear marks which dissipation writes on the feminine features most surely. They seem artificial creatures bred in a hothouse of overstimulation. They look if they were on parade, as, indeed, they are, with the ease and the indifference to public observation which the habit of such display produces, but their jaded faces express weary dissatisfaction with it all.

Now, is this the penalty which woman must pay for publicity? Does publicity leave to the world any more of the remains of feminine charm than we now see in the box circle at the opera?—New York Sun.

AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No-

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

Term—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep-

ellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
ar—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

Monday February, first Mon-il, first Monday June, second July, second Monday August,
nday November.

County Officers.

of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
urer—W. T. Callen.
—J. M. Morgan.
or—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

District—W. H. Conway.
District—Alex Glasscock.
District—R. P. Kendrick.
District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

rs and clerks are cordially ask-nd the editor any news regardr churches which they would blished. Also if there are any these notices please send cor-

ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings-
P. D. No. 1.

on—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

nut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, day. H. A. Harris, clerk.

y Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman day. W. M. Wood, clerk.

onia—Rev. G. W. Freeman, day. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
day. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, day. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.
Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas day. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas day. R. S. Chandler, clerk.
nt Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, day. T. J. Headley, clerk.
Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st
G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
before the second Sunday; J.
nathy, clerk, Verbena.

Mount M. E. Church—Rev
roll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song
every 2nd and 4th Sunday af-
. Prayer meeting every Wed-
night.

ATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

n R. A. Chapter, No. 116—aturday, Clanton.

e Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. rth Saturday, Cooper.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
st Saturday, Clanton.

y Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
st Saturday, Billingsley.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M.,
—Saturday on or before full
arbury.

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
urday on or before full moon,

n Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
sday on or before full moon,

I. O. O. F.

n Lodge—First and third Sat-

n Lodge, No. 304—Second and aturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Jack Camp, No. 190—First and
ndays.

I. O. R. M.

mo Tribe, No. 90—First and days sleep. Visiting chiefs invited. E. B. Langston, C.
H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Lodge, of Thorsby—Second
h Saturdays.

CLANTON

Total receipts
530.
Price on sam
Total receipt Price same

LOCAL

C. E. Jones
day.
A. H. Collins
Thursday.
Robert Pow to town an da street near M
By the way, l business now go continuall is a good fe
G. G. Gray a town Thursday
J. M. Gras
J. M. W
Thursday. N card.
Hermie W
Thursday
W. T. Ho
Thursday
J. W. G. Ki
day.
James A. M
Thursday
Rev. W. M
Saturday and and get one o maps of Alaba surrounds it.
left.
R. G. Hall w
J. L. Eastcl itor Saturday.
Charles Rey
Sunday here
Judge.
Deputy She Clanton Thurs
the jail Lige
Tom Callen ville Tuesday him very seri
W. T. Well pleasant visite
at work on th
Joe Burnett
farmers of B caller Tuesday
E. A. Knigh
Berry is suffe and says it brother or a
There is a at Collins ch clove of a hat
Thorsby milli the way, this millinery busi
Deputy U. S well on the g
It seems we is going back
We are sorry need more li Sunday school intendent and cotton man.
J. P. Van D ed Tax Com county.

MARRI

W. G. Mim
A. L. Sammo
den. J. D.
Cleckler.

David Dani
Will Rush an Stonemeyer a
Tyus and Na

The Execu ton County S meet at Clan 8th, at 10 a. ganizing and business as body.
tf J. W.

The Chilto
ance will m Alliance on April 28-29, 1
ing been cha tf S

UP-TO-DA

Photograph past month state getting
phy. He wi
GALLERY o
15TH of each

The black
Davis Jack commencing John Jones' two weeks
the season.
place.

NE

Mrs. M. E. has opened Thorsby and millinery bu county. Th very respons
Joseph & Lo for five year tress of styl her a call a her taste, e achieve the
tf

ombination Offi rnish the Twice-a-Week
issue of the Globe-Democra
WITH he Union
FOR ers One Year Only $1.
be-Democrat is issued Semi-We e, every Tuesday and Friday.
es and has no equal or rival
odern Newspaper.
ews of the World's Fair, all the ne
n, and all the news of all the ea be-Democrat during the coming y
IS THE TIME.
y and get your best home paper per of the World's Fair City,
Clanton, Ala.

Jacobs & Bros.
ure and Rugs.
OLE AGENTS—
Elastic Book Cases a ng Cabinets.
sking.
RMINGHAM, ALA

ERCHANDISE AN RTILIZERS OR SALE.
al & Mule Bran
Best on Earth'
JONES,
- - Alabam

PRINTING CO.
kers and Lithographers.
ce Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, AL

Restaurant,
t Reasonable Price
rth 20th Street,
HAM, ALABAMA.

d Publicity.

In the Box Circle at the Oper as a Warning
Medicus.

an question discussed by your women a of woman suffrage is interesting and im important and suggestive is the consequ feminine appearance and character as able society; and that effect forces itself observer, in New York, at least, far more e entrance of women into political activ are now most prominent before the pub lic rical stage, are the women of fashion as well known to the public of New Y of the most popular actresses or singers.
in this society her picture is likely to o grow in years her face becomes fam becomes a public character or personage ence of a man conspicuous in political fashion, are brighter than that which our political rights.
a be gratified to the best advant at the annual horse show, for there ver consciously. How do they look?
passed the early flush of womanhood,
These faces have taken on hard lines w
They are likely also to have a fagged in the social routine. A girl who en such feminine charm is transformed aft either gross and hard featured specimen ness vivacity and spontaneity of expres puts on—nothing of "soul," as a priest sit ed.
e appearance of these women is derived e astonished if they saw the actual displa re is there to be seen in a public place a far as concerns the prime essentials of re the victims of publicity rather than had lost in the game of pleasure instead es. Their faces and their demeanor bear n the feminine features most surely, a a hothouse of overstimulation. They they are, with the ease and the indiffer bit of such display produces, but their joy n with it all.
ch woman must pay for publicity?
more of the remains of feminine charm in the box circle at the opera?—New Y

CHILTON AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.
g Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No
.
—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
itor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.
g Term—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep
.
cellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
ister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.
Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.
nd Monday February, first Mon
pril, first Monday June, second y July, second Monday August, onday November.

County Officers.
e of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
surer—W. T. Callen.
iff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.
District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
d District—R. P. Kendrick.
th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.
R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

ors and clerks are cordially ask end the editor any news regard eir churches which they would ublished. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor
s.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings
F. D. No. 1.

ton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st
d Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

nut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason,
nday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

ty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman
nday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

donia—Rev. G. W. Freeman
nday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
nday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

r Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
nday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

n Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

ns Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas
nday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

n Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas
nday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

ant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
nday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st
G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

el Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
before the second Sunday; J.
rnathy, clerk, Verbena.

y Mount M. E. Church—Rev.
rroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song
every 2nd and 4th Sunday af
s. Prayer meeting every Wed night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

on R. A. Chapter, No. 116—
Saturday, Clanton.

de Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
ourth Saturday, Cooper.

on Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
rst Saturday, Clanton.

ry Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
rst Saturday, Billingsley.

man Lodge, A. F. and A. M.,
—Saturday on or before full Marbury.

on Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
turday on or before full moon,
n.

oh Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
esday on or before full moon,
.

I. O. O. F.

on Lodge—First and third Sat on Lodge, No. 304— Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Jack Camp, No. 190—First and ondays.

I. O. R. M.

ermo Tribe, No. 90—First and days sleep. Visiting chiefs
y invited. E. B. Langston, C.
. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

a Lodge, of Thorsby—Second rth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to March 29, 1905, 6,530.
Price on same date, 7 3-8c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 14 1-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

C. E. Jones was in Clanton Thursday.

A. H. Collins was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

Robert Powell's family have moved to town an dare living on on Sixth street near Mr. Powell's livery barn. By the way, Robert is doing a good business now, his teams are on the go continually. Success to him, he is a good fellow.

G. G. Gray and son Walter, were in town Thursday.

J. M. Grant was in town Thursday.

J. M. Willis was a welcome caller Thursday. Notice the change in his card.

Hermie Whitworth was in Clanton Thursday.

W. T. House was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

J. W. G. Kicker was in town Thursday.

James A. Mims was a pleasant caller Thursday.

Rev. W. M. Woods was in Clanton Saturday and renewed his subscription and got one of those great Advertiser maps of Alabama and the world that surrounds it, but we still have a few left.

R. G. Hall was in town Saturday.

J. L. Easterling was a welcome visitor Saturday.

Charles Reynolds, of Jemison, spent Sunday here visiting his brother, the Judge.

Deputy Sheriff Lee Hayes was in Clanton Thursday, having brought to the jail Lige Long, a negro who shot Tom Callen (also colored) at Maplesville Tuesday of last week, wounding him very seriously.

W. T. Wells, of Mt. Creek, was a pleasant visitor Saturday. He is busy at work on the L. and N.

Joe Burnett, one of the substantial farmers of Beat 9, was a welcome caller Tuesday.

E. A. Knight was in town Tuesday. Berry is suffering with "la grippe," and says it "sticks closer than a brother or a lover."

There is a wedding close at hand at Collins chapel, judging from the "love of a hat" that Mrs. Wishart, the Thorsby milliner, has gotten up. By the way, this lady is doing a great millinery business in Thorsby.

Deputy U. S. Marshal is kept pretty well on the go these days.

It seems we are to lose Captain Hill. is going back to the railroad service. We are sorry to have him go. We need more like him. The Methodist Sunday school will lose a good superintendent and the ware house a good cotton man.

J. P. Van Derveer has been appointed Tax Commissioner for Chilton county.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

W. G. Mims and Miss F. L. Scott.
A. L. Sammons and Miss E. L. Varden. J. D. Bean and Miss Florence Cleckler.

COLORED.

David Daniels and Mattie Hooks. Will Rush and Elziner Harkins. Jake Stoudemyer and Jennie Lane. John Tyus and Nannie Harwell.

NOTICE!

The Executive Committee of Chilton County S. C. A. is hereby called to meet at Clanton on Saturday, April 8th, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of organizing, and attending to such other business as may come before the body.

tf J. W. SORRELL, Chairman.

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE,
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No. 1.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham, has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman, Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results.

tf

No. 1580.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS OF FIRST MEETING.

In the District Court of the United States, for the Middle District of Alabama. In Bankruptcy.

In the matter of Judson Strock, Bankrupt, Post Office Clanton, County Chilton, Alabama.

The aforesaid party having been adjudged a Bankrupt under the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to Establish a Uniform System of Bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1st, 1898, a meeting of the creditors of the said Bankrupt is called at the office of the undersigned Referee, in the United States Court House, Montgomery, Alabama, on the 10th day of April next, at 10 o'clock a. m., to make proof of debts and for the election of a Trustee, and such other matters as are necessary and required by the Act of Congress aforesaid.

ASA E. STRATTON,
Referee.

Montgomery, Ala., March 27, 1905.
3-30-05-1t

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

Pearl Payne, Complainant, vs. Rome Payne, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of A. C. Smith, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant, Rome Payne, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Rome Payne, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the UNION, a newspaper published in Chilton county, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Rome Payne, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 15th day of April, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter, a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken taken against him in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
3-15 4t

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Fever. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 33, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
3-23-05 6t Register.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM,

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wffi.of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Elland.

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO,
J. W. MOORE,
H. L. DAVIS,
W. O. PERRY,
tf Committee.

Philosophy, in the final analysis, seems to consist of convincing oneself that it is easier, on the whole, not to want things than it is to get them, says Puck.

Arrested for Striking a Boy.

Decatur, Ala.—Jim Gilbert, the negro who struck the 12-year-old son of Mr. Milam in the head with a hatchet last summer, was arrested in Birmingham a few days ago and was brought here by Officer Lem Jones. Saturday he was given a preliminary hearing and was found guilty. In default of a $2,000 bond he was sent to jail.

The boy recovered, but for a while it was thought that he would die. A posse chased Gilbert at the time, and if they had caught him he would probably have been lynched. Gilbert made good his escape and nothing was heard of him until a few days ago, when he was arrested in Birmingham.

Injured at Steel Plant.

Ensley, Ala.—While working around a ladle of hot metal at the steel plant Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock Efther Drake, a well known young man, sustained several bad burns which may prove to be serious injuries. In some manner the hot metal was spilled out, badly burning Mr. Drake on the head and side.

Is Writing Her Biography.

Cleveland, O.—In an interview Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick announced that her autobiography was in preparation and soon would be given to the public. Mrs. Chadwick said she had received a handsome offer from a well-known publisher and that the work would be printed in the original style without alteration.

Lyons Is Hanged.

New Orleans, La.—Lewis Lyons, the murderer of District Attorney J. Ward Guarley, was hanged here. The crime was committed July 20, 1903. The murder was the result of Lyons' belief that the lawyer did not properly handle a damage suit case instituted by him, with the result that he (Lyons) was arrested on a charge of theft.

Weavers at Fall River Strike.

Fall River, Mass.—Two hundred weavers of the Granite Cotton Mills struck Thursday. The corporation operates three large mills and employs about 1,200 hands. The grievance is understood to be the number and method of running looms.

Children Burn to Death.

Superior, Wis.—Two small children of E. Syriang, a farmer living near Brule, set fire to the house in the absence of their parents and burned to death. They had bid under a bed for fear of a whipping for starting the fire.

Company Will Pay Fine.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The Standard Oil Company has accepted judgment and a fine of $100 on one batch of fifty-one indictments recently returned.

Will Raise British Steamer.

Mobile, Ala.—The British schooner Georgiana left here for Roncador Reefs with an expedition for raising the cargo of the British steamer Buckingham, which foundered there with a cargo of railroad supplies in December last. The expedition is in charge of Captain Foster.

Leg Broken By a Jump.

Mobile, Ala.—Louis M. Tisdale, a well-known employe of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, is confined to his home with a broken leg. He fell in jumping from a buggy in Davis avenue.

Birmingham Man Is Arrested.

Montgomery, Ala.—George B. Alexander, of Birmingham, was arrested here charged by the government with opening a letter addressed to Rev. George B. Alexander, of New Orleans, and extracting money therefrom. Alexander secured the letter at the postoffice general delivery window in New Orleans last Monday.

Indian Passes Counterfeit Money.

Montgomery, Ala.—The police have arrested Mark Longsite, alias Longhight, a full blooded Indian on a charge of passing counterfeit money. The accused says he lives in the Indian Territory. The money is in half dollars, and is said to have been passed on a negro merchant.

Workmen Killed By Dynamite.

Wheeling, W. Va.—A quantity of dynamite was accidentally exploded near the camp of Cahill & Parnell, sub-contractors on the Wabash railroad extension at Okonoko, W. Va.

Details can not be ascertained, but it was ascertained that three workmen were killed and two injured.

County Treasurer Acquitted.

Pomeroy, Ohio.—The jury in the noted county treasury robbery case returned a verdict of not guilty against Treasurer T. J. Chase. The trial grows out of the robbery of the county treasury of nearly $15,000 last September in which Chase claimed he was held up by masked men, robbed and locked up in the vault.

26 Killed in a Big Landslide.

Semlin, Hungary—A great landslide occurred here Sunday. A squadron of soldiers who went to the rescue of a buried woman suffered severely, eight of their number being killed, and nineteen injured.

Riot in Riga.

Riga—In a riot here Saturday night one policeman was shot dead and two others wounded.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes,
FURNITURE,
COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.
W. I. MULLINS,
Clanton. Alabama

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.
Every Department Full and Complete.
J. W. SMITH.
Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association
of Alabama.
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
By the People and for the People.
Chilton County Branch
Organized February 3rd, 1900.
W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

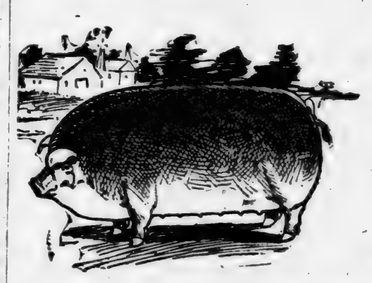
Pure Water Prevents Fevers.
DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER
We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address
I. E. SARBER CO.
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.
Barred Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh eggs for 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED
Duroc Jersey Hogs.
Write us for prices before you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alabama.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.
Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

HE ALWAYS TOLD THE TRUTH.

By Anne E. Woodruff.

He was not very quick to learn,
Nor "promising," 'twas said;
He was not of a brilliant turn,
Nor one to "go ahead;"
Defects—if they must be confessed—
In plenty had the youth
But this one virtue he possessed—
He always told the truth.

In every way he seemed below
The average of boys,
In intellect, and "push," and "go,"
And all that youth enjoys;
But no one ever doubted him,
Because they knew, forsooth—
Yes, even those who flouted him—
He always told the truth.

"Uncouth" and "awkward," how it hurt
When on his ears it fell!
Who could the fact not controvert,
Was sensitive as well.
But one there was who sympathized,
Who knew right well the youth—
His mother this great comfort prized—
He always told the truth.

A slow but steady plodder, he,
Along the path of life;
In business ever seemed to be
Behind-hand in the strife;
But then he won his fellows' trust,
They honored him in sooth—
The man unlearned, but noble, just,
Who always told the truth.

—Ram's Horn.

For the Sake of David.

By Grace Terry.

SON DAVID, it strikes me that you are out a great deal of late. I don't approve of boys of your age being out evenings; it leads to bad company, and bad company leads to all kinds of badness. I hope you don't spend your time at the tavern?"

"Son David," a broad-shouldered six-footer, smiled a little, and colored a great deal at these words, which were delivered with a precision and a solemnity of look and tone that made them doubly impressive.

"There's no occasion for any alarm, father; I keep very good company. And as for the tavern, I haven't set foot in it for six months or more."

About the usual hour, David laid aside his book, and putting on a clean collar and a linen coat, fresh from the hands of Aunt Betsey, sauntered down toward the village. This had been his custom for several weeks past, and the old deacon shook his head with a perplexed and somewhat troubled air.

"I suppose the lad finds it rather dull here," he mused; "the house is lonely."

And, as he recalled the light of a certain bright eye and a sunny smile, what he had thought of doing "for the sake of David" seemed a not unpleasant thing to do for his own.

"I think I'll go and consult Parson Dunlow," thought the deacon, who, like the generality of mankind, having fully made up his mind on the subject, determined to seek advice, not for the purpose of gaining any additional light, but to strengthen and confirm his own opinions.

The worthy deacon bestowed quite as much time upon his toilet before leaving the house as did "Son David." And if a glimpse of the sprinkling of gray in the hair that he brushed so carefully away from his temples made him somewhat doubtful as to the result of his mission, it was but for a moment. Ought not any woman to be proud of the honor of becoming Mrs. Deacon Quimby, wife of one of the most wealthy and influential citizens of the place, even though his hair might be a little frosty and his form not so erect as when he departed on the selfsame errand thirty years before.

In the weekly prayer meetings, of which he took the lead, the deacon often called himself "the chief of sinners," "an unprofitable servant," and the like, confessing and bewailing the depravity of his heart. But, like a great many other self-styled "miserable sinners," he had a tolerably good opinion of himself after all, making the above confession with an air that seemed to say: "If I, Deacon Quimby, a pillar of the church, and a shining example to you all, can say this, what must be the condition of the majority of those around me?"

He found Parson Dunlow in his study, hard at work upon his next Sunday's discourse. But he was used to interruptions, and had a sincere liking for the worthy deacon, who was his right-hand man in every good work; so, laying down his pen, he shook him warmly by the hand and bade him be seated.

But somehow the deacon found it difficult to get out what he came to say—the words seemed to stick in his throat. But at last he managed to stammer:

"I—I have called, parson, to—to see you about my son, David, whose conduct has occasioned me a great deal of uneasiness of late."

"You surprise me, Brother Quimby; I consider him to be an unusually steady and exemplary young man."

"He has been, parson, very steady indeed at home every evening, busy with his book or paper. But now he's out most every night, and sometimes don't return until quite late."

A faint smile flickered around Parson Dunlow's mouth, but it was unobserved by the deacon, who resumed:

"The fact is, the boy wants a mother."

"He wants a wife, you mean," was the parson's inward comment, but he said nothing, for he hadn't filled his sacred office a quarter of a century without learning that some things are better thought than spoken.

"It is a very important step," resumed Deacon Quimby, after waiting vainly for the parson to speak, "and—and as I think of taking to myself another companion for—for the sake of David, I thought I would come and—and consult you about it."

Here the deacon wiped the perspiration from his forehead, betraying so much hesitancy and embarrassment as to quite astonish the good parson, who, to reassure him, said briskly:

"To be sure, Brother Quimby. And a very good idea it is, too, for yourself, and, no doubt, for your son, David. And I shall be very glad to assist you in the matter. There are many very worthy ladies in the church and vicinity, so that you cannot fail to be suited. There's the Widow Bean; her sons are now men grown and quite off her hands. A most excellent and worthy woman is the Widow Bean."

But the deacon did not seem to receive his suggestion with much favor; he shifted one leg uneasily over the other.

"As you say, parson, the Widow Bean is a most excellent and worthy woman; but—but the leadings of Providence don't seem to be in that direction."

"Well, then there is Miss Mary Ann Pease, a member of the church for many years, and an ornament to her sex and profession. Now that her brother is married again, she is quite at liberty, and will make you a very desirable helpmate."

"True, very true, parson; I have the highest respect for Sister Pease. But—but the leadings of Providence don't seem to be in that direction, either."

The good parson looked puzzled, but, honestly desirous of assisting his visitor, he made another effort.

"Brother Jones has a number of daughters, and either of the two eldest would be——"

"Yes, yes, parson," interrupted the deacon, rather impatiently, "I know that very well. But I think that—that, for the sake of David, I had better marry some one younger and more lively, and who would consequently be more of a—sort of companion for him."

A sudden light broke in upon Parson Dunlow's mind.

"Perhaps you have some one already in view, Brother Quimby?"

"Well, yes, parson, I have sought Divine light, and the leadings of Providence seem to be in the direction of your family; in short, toward your daughter, Miss Emma, whose staid and discreet behavior, I am happy to say, would do honor to more mature years."

It was not the first time, in Parson Dunlow's pastoral experience, that he had known people to mistake the leadings of their own hearts for "the leadings of Providence," but if he had any suspicion that this might be the case with the worthy deacon, he prudently kept it to himself. So, without evincing anything of the dismay and consternation at his heart, he said:

"I cannot fail to realize, Brother Quimby, the high compliment of such a desire. But you remember the words of Rebekah's parents under like circumstances: 'We will call the damsel and inquire at her mouth.' I don't know that we can do better than follow their example.

"Willie," he added, going to the window, "run and tell Emma that father wants to see her in his study."

"She's dot company," said the little fellow; "and is doing to dive me a new ball if I'll stay out in the yard."

"No matter," said his father, smiling; "you shall not lose the new ball. So run along."

Miss Emma, though very pleasantly engaged, dutifully obeyed her father's summons. She blushed as her eyes fell upon the deacon, to whom she dropped a pretty, deferential courtesy.

"My daughter," said the parson, gravely, "Deacon Quimby informs me that, for the sake of David, he has concluded to take to himself another wife, and that his choice has fallen upon you. I have ever left such matters to you, but you cannot fail to realize the value of such an offer, and I trust you will give it the consideration it demands."

Emma opened her brown eyes widely at this announcement, and then the long lashes fell over them, and lay quivering upon the rosy cheeks. But, unexpected as was the position in which she found herself placed, her woman's wit did not desert her.

"I should be very happy to become Deacon Quimby's wife, papa," she said, demurely, "if I had not already promised, for the sake of David, to do my best to be a daughter to him."

Deacon Quimby was so accustomed to consider his son as a mere boy that it was some minutes before his mind took in the sense of these words.

"Do you mean to say, Miss Emma," he said, at last, regarding the blushing girl with a bewildered air, "that you are going to marry my son?"

"With your permission, sir," responded Emma, with a smile and glance that would have softened a far harder heart than the deacon's, "I have already obtained that of my father."

Deacon Quimby turned his eyes upon Mr. Dunlow, who had been a quiet but interested listener to this.

"Why, David is nothing but a boy, parson!"

"He is a year older than you were when you married, deacon," was the smiling response.

True; so he was.

"I dare say it does not seem possible," continued the parson. "I can hardly bring myself to realize that it is eighteen years ago since my little girl, here, was laid in my arms; but so it is."

As the good deacon looked at the blooming maiden, and remembered how often he had held her, a smiling babe, in his arms, the conviction was suddenly forced upon him that that he had been making an old fool of himself.

The rather embarrassing silence that followed was pleasantly broken by David's cheery voice and pleasant smile.

"You seem to have quite a family party," he said, pushing open the door.

"So this is where you spend your evenings, young man?" said his father, shaking his finger at him, with an air of mock displeasure. "Ah, I see very plainly that I shall never be able to keep you at home, unless I can persuade Miss Emma to come and live with me. What say you, my dear?"

"That I will come very willingly," returned the smiling and blushing girl, "for the sake of David."—New York Weekly.

A Traveling College.

The farmers in Illinois, as well as those in other States, last year were taught scientific farming by rail. The train consisted of two cars, arranged to allow speakers to make their talks aboard, was a sort of itinerant agricultural college, sowing knowledge at every stop. The project was under the supervision of the University of Illinois, and was fostered by the Burlington on the grounds that the more grain the farmers raise the more there will be to ship over its lines.

The first stop was at Aurora, where Dean W. A. Henry, of the University of Wisconsin, talked a half hour on the way to tell good seed, and the kind of soil it ought to be planted in. Ten minutes was used in inspecting samples of earth and seed aboard the cars. Eleven more stops were made before the train reached Polo for the night. The next day Dean Eugene Davenport, of the University of Illinois, was the speaker, and on the day following Dr. F. H. Hall, State Superintendent of the Farmers' Institute, did the talking. Every town of importance on the Burlington lines in Illinois was visited.

The next trip of the "Seed and Soil Special" will be through Missouri, and then it will visit Iowa, Western Nebraska and Wyoming.—Chicago Tribune.

Twenty-four Messages on One Wire.

The invention of new methods for sending a number of messages simultaneously over the same wire continues, and one of the most recent of these is due to Professor Mercadier of the French High School for Post and Telegraph.

In this method an alternating current is employed whose frequency depends upon a tuning-folk having a certain definite number of vibrations. The current of such an interrupted circuit can be broken by an ordinary key, and signals transmitted over the line wire by an induction transmitter. On the line at the distant station are a number of so-called monotelephones which respond to current of one frequency, and are turned to the forks in the circuits at the sending station.

Thus each particular circuit has its own telephone, which is connected by tubes with the ears of the receiving operator, and responds to the signals made at the sending station. In all, twelve transmission circuits are provided, so that twenty-four messages can be sent over the line simultaneously. A double line, or metallic circuit, is required, but otherwise the apparatus is comparatively simple, and involves merely the adjustment of the tuning-forks and suitable condensers and inductance coils.—Week's Progress.

Children's Love.

Happiness in marriage is a good deal like happiness in work; it goes far deeper than mere gratification. While gratification fades, happiness remains, and becomes, as it were, a part of one's nature. When my wife and I had passed the youthful period of our love, we knew that we had experienced an intensity of happiness that we could never know again; but the great compensation was to know that we had no wish to experience it again, because we had found something stable and better, a happiness associated with our most serious interests, with our responsibilities toward society and toward our children. Moreover, with nearly all intense gratification there is the accompaniment of pain; but the love of children is, in its very nature, an unalloyed delight. With the coming of our children my wife and I knew that we had been given the greatest incentive to good living that human being can have. If children cannot make parents live to lead fine lives, nothing can.—From "The Autobiography of a Married Man." Everybody's Magazine.

The New George.

Johnny was worried about Washington's greatness. He turned to his mother and said: "Washington's all right, but Grant's more like me."

"How is that?"

"Well" (throwing out a diminutive chest), "he could tell a lie when he had to."

"But, Johnny, you never tell lies, do you?"

"Why, mamma, you know I do. You always find me out."

A moment of silence. "Mamma."

"Well, Johnny?"

"When you were a little girl didn't you ever tell a lie?"

Mamma was stumped. Then she answered: "I always tried to tell the truth."

"Well, why don't they celebrate you?"

TESTING COWS.

A correspondent of the Michigan Farmer inquired if it was practical to weigh and take a sample of each cow's milk night and morning and test same one per month in a herd of ten cows and was replied to as follows:

It is practical to weigh the milk at each milking and this ought to be done. I think milkers will take enough more pains in milking, where they weigh and record the weight of milk each time, to pay well for the time spent in the practice. If a sample of milk is taken from each milking and then a composite test made each week, you certainly know just what each cow is doing. For a breeding herd, where one wishes to dispose of the surplus stock at the highest price, this is entirely practical and necessary. But for the purpose of weeding out the unprofitable cows it is not necessary to go to quite this trouble. If you weigh the milk at each milking, so much the better, but you can weigh one day in a week and estimate the weight for the rest of the time from this and get a close approximation of the yield of milk. Suppose you weigh Thursday of each week and a cow gives in the morning 15.3 pounds and at night 18.7 pounds, or 34 pounds for the day. Now multiply this by 7 and 238 pounds becomes the estimated amount of milk for the week. You will find this accurate enough for weeding out the "star boarders." Look at the record from our experiment station where every making is weighed and take a certain day of the week right along for a year, making the estimate as described above, and you will find that you come very close to the actual number of pounds of milk for the year. I figured this out from the records of the dairy cows at the World's Fair at Chicago and the difference was only a few pounds.

Again, it is quite sufficient for our purpose to weigh every 10th day if preferred, instead of every 7th day, and the figuring is much more easily done. Take the same illustration as before. The cows gives 34 pounds in a day and for 10 days you have 340 pounds, or, simply move the decimal pont one place to the right. The greatest trouble with this, however, is that the milkers forget and do not weight every tenth day. But a bulletin could be posted up in the stable that would show just the date the milk should be weighed and in a little while the habit would become fixed.

As to testing the milk, it is not necessary, for the purpose you name, to take a sample from each milking or for that matter every week. Cows vary but little from day, or from week, in their percentage of butter fat. When a cow is fresh she does not, as a rule, give quite as rich milk as she does farther along in the period of lactation, and when she is nearly dry she gives the richest milk of any portion of the period. Hence, if you test for butter fat when the cow is comparatively fressh, again near the middle of the period of lactation and once more near the close of the period, and then take the average of these tests, you will have a fairly accurate test of the percentage of butter fat the cow yields. There is no question whatever about your being able to pick out the good cows from the poor by means of such a test.

But, as stated above, if you want to make official test or private tests that you can swear by, you must weigh and sample each milking. The average man will not do this, nor is it necessary for all practical purposes. He should, however, know what each cow is doing that he may keep his herd up to the highest degree of efficiency and it can be done with little trouble, as I have indicated.

THE STEER'S RATIONS.

The bunch of steers entering their second winter are no doubt getting along very well now on what pasture is available and eight or nine pounds daily of corn on the stalks, says Farm Field and Fireside. Their ration is fairly well balanced by the pasture, particularly if it is clover in whole or part; and the bulky corn fodder is preparing the animals in the handling of large quantities of feed.

Very soon feeding in the lot will begin in the north. Some thing must take the place of the pasture, something that will help balance a generous corn ration. This will be clover, alfalfa or pea hay, at the rate of about eight pounds per day for a thousand-pound animal. Another change, however, must be made. The fattening period requires concentrates; the corn on stalk ration instead of being increased so that more corn may be fed, is cut down gradually to one-half and snapped or ear corn fed. The word gradually is important; the change to heavy feeding of concentrates when made suddenly only deranges the steer's digestive system. Haste here, as elsewhere, makes waste.

Easier on the steer's mouth than ear or snapped corn are crushed corn and corn and cob meal. Crushing is sufficient and cheaper than shelling plus grinding. Corn and cob meal has an additional advantage over corn meal in being much more easily digested, less likely to founder—on the whole, much more wholesome.

Animals now a year and a half old may be put on full feed by the middle of winter. By June or July they will be ready for market. At a fair price, then, profits may be expected; for the early feeding has been in large part inexpensive roughage, which well balanced and bulky, prepared the animals for the proper handling of the heavy fattening ration. This ration, too, has been made up in important part of moderately priced materials which have successfully balanced the ration.

TROTTING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotter:

1. The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse and a registered standard trotting mare.

2. A stallion sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard trotting horses, and he himself has a trotting record of 2:30 and is the sire of three trotters with records of 2:30 from different mares.

3. A mare whose sire is a registered standard trotting horse, and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered trotting horses, provided she herself has a trotting record of 2:30 or is the dam of one trotter with a record of 2:30.

4. A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided she is the dam of two trotters with a record of 2:30.

5. A mare sired by a registered standard trotting horse, provided his first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard trotting horse.

PACING STANDARD.

When an animal meets these requirements and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard bred pacer:

1. The progeny of a registered standard pacing horse and a registered standard pacing mare.

2. A stallion sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided his dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, and he himself has a pacing record of 2:25, and is the sire of three pacers with records of 2:25, from different mares.

3. A mare whose sire is a registered standard pacing horse and whose dam and grandam were sired by registered standard pacing horses, provided she herself has a pacing record of 2.25 or is the dam of one pacer with a record of 2:25.

4. A mare bred by a registered standard pacing horse, provided she is the dam of two pacers with records of 2:25.

5. A mare sired by a registered standard pacing horse, provided her first, second and third dams are each sired by a registered standard pacing horse.

6. The progeny of a registered standard trotting horse out of a registered standard pacing mare, or of a registered standard pacing horse out of a registered standard trotting mare.

TROTTING AND PACING STANDARD HORSES.

In response to enquiries as to what the rules of the Register Association are we quote below the amended and existing rules as to standard trotting and pacing horses. All animale upon which rank depends must first be registered at the expense of the applicant. If a performer makes the sire or dam standard, it must first be registered.

Let is be observed that the standard itself makes registration a condition and requisite to standard rank.

CLEAN THE HORSE.

To keep a horse in a good healthy condition constant care needs to be exercised in keeping the skin clear and free from scurf and dust. If the pores of the skin are closed, a large quantity of waste matter is retained, which in effect is as unhealthful as if the bowels were closed and the wastes of the system in this way were retained and absorbed.

ABOUT THE CREAM.

The warmer the milk when set, the more complete will be the separation of the cream from the milk at any given lower temperature; and the more rapidly the temperature falls, the more rapid will be the separation of the cream from the milk. Cream rises best when the temperature is falling; very slowly when the temperature is stationary; and little or not at all when the temperature is rising.

FEED THE CATTLE GRAIN.

It may do to market grass cattle from the ranges, but grass cattle should never go to the market from the farm—the farmer cannot afford it. No matter how good the pastures, grain enough should be fed to give solidity and weight

Cane sugar cultivation is making steady progress in Egypt.

TO PROMOTE FROG CU

Secretary Shaw Has His Joke Their Legs "Dressed Pou

The recent increase of th duty on frogs' legs has alre lated a languid but pleasing Although Secretary Shaw authority to revise the change the classification of so as to effect the rate of du by taking frogs' legs out of gory of "unmanufactured ar classing them as "dressed po extracts more money from import the delicacy from the marshes. In the same way wooden legs has been rais them as "household suppl of "manufactures of wood.

An early result of the tection to frog culture is tion, by the Pennsylvania mission, of millions of po spawn of the deep-voi bullfrog. These are charge to farmers in th have marsh lands. Pa the high prices of ordin demand for frogs' legs large and growing. O small cost and little business it should be pro

Probably no produc offers more pleasure than does the rearing o only is he a curious man of science, but he a sonal qualities which at est and often the friends telligent farmer. Loa affirmed that

Of all the funny things woodland, marsh or
That creep the ground o
the funniest is the fr

This estimate rests n fact that he neither runs but "goes it with a jerk." he is not merely funny, b characteristics is a strong duty. Although "Daniel We champion jumping frog, w titiously filled with birds humped and heaved and honest desire to win the wage

From the earliest pollywo frog is ever the source of information and pleasure. disappearance of the fishlike of the tail, and the equally and mysterious acquisition attached at the anterior and of agile, edible legs, as any taste for the wonders a way frog culture beats the hare fad all hollow. Ph Ledger.

WISE WORDS.

There are some defeats triumphant than victories.

Nothing is so firmly believed we least know.

A wise man never loses any he has himself.—Montaigne.

Fair and softly goes far.

Sing away sorrow, cast away

Are we to mark this day with or a black stone?

Tell me thy company and I thee what thou art.—Cervantes

Look sharp and keep the cel of your eyes.

Quarrels would not last lo fault were only on one side

Help thyself and God will

A merry heart doeth good cine.

Train up a child in the way go; and when he is old he w part from it.

The tree is known by h

Remarkable Tars These

In a recent address before Sailors' Rest, in Devonport, miral Lord Charles Beresf on the subject of "shore le said:

"With regard to leave a which I command, I let the ashore on every available o The result is that the men l me up, and I have no break That is very creditable to the most satisfactory to me. The that I wish to give them all possible in consideration vice, and they amply rew coming off to their ships and other men do their work. has been doing a great deal lower deck, and will do mor goes on."

Poverty of British Bishop

If proof were needed of the of the Bishop of London's that the members of the Bench, notwithstanding their aries, often find it difficult both ends meet, is furnish will of the late Bishop of W which has just been prove Dr. Perowne, who died vanced age of eighty-one, w of Worcester for ten years, that time he drew £50,000 stipend, and yet the most seems to have been able to live up to Micawber's id ing his expenditure just wi come, for the gross value of is returned at no more t which very probably repres more than his life insuran Chronicle.

Pension of Austrian Poor

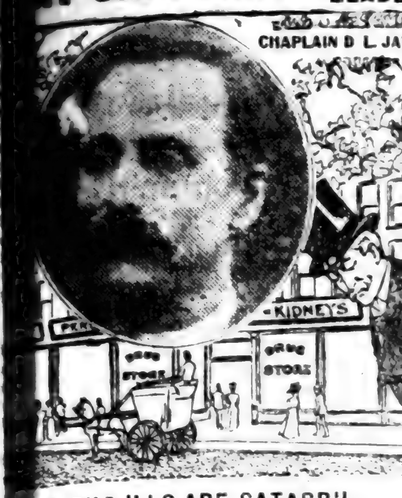
Under the Austrian poor la man sixty years old is entitled sion equal to one-third the which he earned each day du working days.

Going to Extremes.

The craze for old furni reached such a height that has turned his wife out of make room for a Louis XVI. —London Truth.

A statistician says that Fra about 4000 duels a year and Ita

LY CHAPLAIN SEVE BLADD



LF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRH.

nds of People Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It is Catrrah.

David L. Jaycox, Chaplain nda, I. O. G. T., and Chief G. A. R., 865 Broadway, Oak- Cal., writes:

am an old war veteran. I tracted severe bladder and ey trouble. I spent hun- s of dollars and consulted st of doctors, but neither me any good.

eruna has proven the best medi- I ever used. My pains are gone I believe myself to be cured. I well and would not be without a e in time of need for ten times ost."

They have discovered a consumed drug, called consumed all sickness of medicine.

It was not until Peruna came into use, however, that these old soldiers found a remedy that wo

More cases and bladder runs than a bined.

Address Dr. The Hartman Ohio, and he the benefit of All correspondence trial eds of war veterans have kidney dder trouble.

re drinking water, sleeping ground, and all manner of osure to wet and cold weather, ed catarrh of the kidneys, ladder.

The Secret of Goo

Even the best housekeepers cannot m offee without good material. Dirty, adult ended coffee such as unscrupulous dealer unters won't do. But take the pure, clean

LION COFFEE, the leader of all e coffee that for over a quarter of a cen elcomed in millions of homes—and you w r a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use "a tablespo ra for the pot." First mix it with a little cold water, enough d white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follo

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling w REE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold wate nutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold w ing it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little co nutes it's ready to serve.

3 (Don't boil it too long.
(Don't let it stand more than ten minu ONT'S (Don't use water that has been boil

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COF

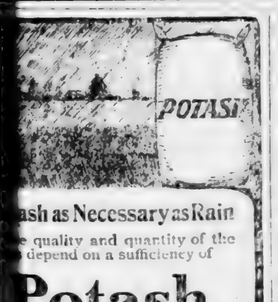
1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixi FFEE before boiling.

2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add e for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genu epare it according to this recipe and ON COFFEE in future. (Sold only i (Lion-head on every package. (Save these Lion-heads for valuable p

SOLD BY GROCERS EVER

WOOLSON SPI



ash as Necessary as Rain

e quality and quantity of the depend on a sufficiency of e soil. Fertilizers which are n Potash will never produce factory results.

Potash

y farmer should be familiar with the proportions of ingredients that go to the best fertilizers for every kind of We have published a series of books, ing the latest researches on this all- ant subject, which we will send free ask. Write now while you think of

GERMAN KALI WORKS
York—22 Nassau Street, or tlanta, Ga.—2½ South Broad Street.

y & Company

SUCCESSORS TO VERY & McMILLAN,
outh Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—

ACHINERY

Frick Engines, Boilers, all zes, Wheat Separators.

PROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH

Engines and Boilers supplied Shingle Mills, Corn Mills. Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs overnors. Full line Engines & dend for free

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 5 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Treatment given free. Nothing could be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green & Sons, Specialists, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

TO PROMOTE FROG CU

Secretary Shaw Has His Joke Their Legs "Dressed Poul

The recent increase of the duty on frogs' legs has alread... lated a languid but pleading ... Although Secretary Shaw ... authority to revise the ... change the classification of ... so as to effect the rate of duty ... by taking frogs' legs out of ... gory of "unmanufactured arti... classing them as "dressed pou... extracts more money from t... import the delicacy from the ... marshes. In the same way th... wooden legs has been raised ... them as "household supplies" ... of manufactures of wood."

An early result of the ad... tion to frog culture is the ... lish by the Pennsylvania Fi... ...sion of millions of pollyw... ...s of the deep-voiced ... ...ing. The ... offered ... to farmers in the St... ...ds. Pretty ... ordinary m... ...ng in the ... ...Owing ... ...trouble ... ...profitable ... ...ce ... ...ed ... ...ing ... ...ed ... ...ed ... ...ed

WANTED

EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT I AM

HEADQUARTERS

FOR

High Grade Flour, Feed of all Kinds.

A LARGE LINE OF

Fancy Groceries, Men's Suits, Boy's Suits, Pants and Overalls

Dry Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Tools, Harness, Etc. We Guarantee Prices as Low as the Lowest . . . .

Kind and Courteous Treatment to All

Come and See Me and be Convinced

W. N. HORNSBY

THE BIG STORE THORSBY, ALA.

When War Ceases

How Are We to Handle the Enormously Increasing Population That Will Result.

By George Harvey, Editor of Harper's Weekly.

IT is a very interesting subject—the increasing pressure of population upon the earth's capacity for supporting it—which is discussed in the International Quarterly by Professor N. S. Shaler, who, it may be remembered, occupies the chair of geology in Harvard University. The present number of the earth's inhabitants is computed at 1,600,000,000, and it is likely to increase hereafter, owing to the elimination of pestilence and chronic war, at a rate considerably greater than the average rate at which it has increased during the last three centuries. It is certain, on the other hand, that the quantity of tillable soil upon the earth, as well as the stock of other things necessary for man—such as iron, coal, petroleum, copper and other metals or minerals—is far from boundless. When will the demand threaten to exceed the supply?

Professor Shaler calculates that, as regards the earth's agricultural resources, the soil, which, without any considerable engineering work, could now be put under the plough, would support in tolerable comfort about 4,000,000,000 human beings. He further estimates that by drainage, carried out on the systematic and scientific plan which has been applied to Holland, we could add to the tillable area of the United States rather more than 100,000 square miles.

What we are to do eventually for coal, petroleum and iron is a question less easily answered. We are reminded that in the United Stats today the average annual output of iron is estimated at 400 pounds for every man, woman and child, whereas four centuries ago the needs of men in the most highly civilized country were satisfied with about four pounds a year per capita. If the consumption of iron goes on increasing, where are we to find the ore? As for coal, the exhausting of the mines in England and in the anthracite districts of Pennsylvania is within measurable distance, and vast as is the stock of the bituminous combustible in the United States and China, how long would it meet the wants of 4,000,000,000 human beings? For the maintenance of the recent output of petroleum, the discovery of new deposits is recognized as indispensable. If we may judge from experince, it is improbable that any of the oil-yielding districts already drawn upon in North America and Russia will be productive at the close of the 20th century.

How New Yorkers Talk.

By Richard Holbrook.

NO unaffected New Yorker ever has a broad a in words like grass, half, master, nor have several dialects in North England. New Yorkers say "dooty" for duty, "toon" for tune, "noo" for new, "Loocy" for Lucy; so do some Englishmen, as everybody knows who has read Dickens and Thackeray. In England, however, this pronunciation is not that of most gentlemen. And any New Yorker will hear duty, suit, new, etc., rightly—or shall we say differently?—pronounced if he go south of Mason's and Dixon's line. New Yorkers turn two separate vowels into one. Thus real becomes "reel" and duel is almost if not quite "dool." The visiting American girl who says "reel pretty" is one of the stock character of English fiction. • • •

• • • Unlike the Scotchman, and unlike the people of the region just mentioned, the New Yorker never trills or burrs his r's. In New York the letter r has scarcely a perceptible roll, so "here becomes almost heah unless immediately followed by a vowel, as in "here-is," also "formerly" and "formally" have precisely the same sound; yet, queerly enough, our genuine New Yorker will say "I sawr a man." This phenomenon, however, seems to occur only after aw and a. Like some New Englanders, and like some southern Englishmen, New Yorkers of the old stock say w'at, w'ich, w'en, w'ile, w'arf and w'ale for what, which, when, while, wharf and whale; but the schools are apparently driving this pronunciation out. Well bred New Yorkers pronounce pretty distinctly their participles in ing, but the common people turn such words as going, doing, seeing and falling into "go-un," "de-un," "se-un" and "fall'n."—Metropolitan.

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.

tf

The mayor of an Iowa city who at the beginning of the year 1904 announced that every spinster or widow, every bachelor or widower who should receive an offer of marriage within the twelve months and not be wed would be subject to fine of from five to twenty dollars for each offense, has been hoist with his own petard. Being a bachelor he received during the year just ten proposals and to escape the necessity of imposing a fine upon himself he has taken a bride, yet there are those who would say that a man is getting off cheap for a mere matter of two hundred dollars, etc.

Don't write "Burn letter." Burn before sending, admonishes the Boston Transcript.

SCORES BURNED TO DEATH

Fire Follows Boiler Explosion in Shoe Factory at Brockton, Mass.

TWO BUILDINGS DEMOLISHED

Hundreds at Work Near Boiler Room at Time—Four Story Building in Ashes Within an Hour—Engineer Killed at His Post—Whole City Fire Department Called Out.

Brockton, Mass.—A boiler exploded in the R. B. Grover shoe factory here, and was followed by an outbreak of fire in the factory, in which many persons lost their lives and many more were injured. Over two score bodies were recovered, many so terribly burned as to be unrecognizable. A number of dead were women or girls.

Over fifty are known to be dead, less than a score of these having been identified, while over two score were reported among the missing.

David Rockwell, the engineer who was in charge of the boiler which exploded, died from his injuries. He had been detained by the police pending an investigation of the accident.

The explosion took place within an hour after the 600 or more employes at the factory had begun work. It wrecked a section of the building and started a fire which destroyed the ruins and spread to other buildings near by with great swiftness. It was reported that upwards of 200 persons were at work in the departments near the boiler room, and the first indications were hardly one could have escaped.

The factory, a large four-story wooden structure, was in ashes within an hour. The flames extended to several dwelling houses near by, and to the Dahlburg Block, across the street from the factory. These also were consumed and other property was damaged. The money loss is estimated at $200,000.

Two houses were wrecked as the result of the explosion. The boiler was thrown in a northerly direction, and passed through the upper part of the house occupied by David Rockwell, the engineer, practically wrecking the dwelling; and, continuing its flight, fell upon another dwelling, 100 feet further away, demolishing the structure. This house was owned by Mrs. Effie Hood.

The Grover factory was located at the corner of Main and Calmar streets, in the southern outskirts of this city. The building extended 100 feet along Main street and 200 feet to the rear. In the rear of the main building was an L section, and it was in this part of the plant that the explosion and collapse occurred. The boiler was on the ground floor.

The first knowledge of the disaster to outsiders was the roar from the direction of the factory. People living near by looked out, to see a dense pillar of smoke rising from the top of the building. A moment afterward flames started out from the mass of wreckage and quickly crept up and around the rest of the wooden structure, spreading with great rapidity. Most of the persons in this part of the factory escaped, although many were injured in the panic which followed the explosion.

When the employes who were at work in the main section of the plant escaped from the building, they circled quickly around to where the explosion occurred, and there succeeded in rescuing many persons from underneath wreckage who, without assistance, would have been unable to get clear of the heavy timbers, and who would undoubtedly have perished when the flames swept across that part of the plant.

A series of alarms summoned all the fire apparatus in the city to the scene, and aid was also sent from nearby places, mostly shoe manufacturing towns. The firemen experienced great difficulty in fighting the flames, as the Grover factory was of wood, and nearly all the floors were saturated with oil. The flames extended to the Dahlburg Block, a four-story wooden building on the opposite corner of the street, and to a number of wooden dwellings, half a dozen or more of which were destroyed. The Dahlburg Block was also burned.

The Brockton Hospital was notified at once of the disaster, and hurried preparations were made to receive the injured. All the ambulances, police wagons, and many street carriages were sent to the district. All the available physicians and surgeons in the city were sent up in hacks and by trolley.

Mayor Keith, accompanied by Medical Examiner A. E. Paine, stood by the ruins while the fragments of the bodies were being removed. The bones were placed in boxes as fast as they were taken out, and driven to a temporary morgue. The work proceeded slowly, as the ruins were so hot that no one could venture into them.

At the request of Mayor Keith clergymen of all denominations assembled in the Aldermanic chamber at the City Hall for the purpose of arranging for a public service for the victims.

Sultan Honors Raisull.

As an apparent sequel to the Perdicaris case Raisuli has received from the Sultan a letter appointing him governor of a number of important tribes between Tangier and Fez.

Governor Masoredoff Shot.

Governor Masoredoff of Viborg was shot by a Finnish boy fifteen years old.

Fire at Anheuser-Busch Plant.

St. Louis, Mo.—The freight depot of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association located in the center of its immense freight yards in the southern part of the city was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night, together with 17 refrigerator cars, the property of the St. Louis Refrigerating Car Company, of which Adolphus Busch is the president. The total loss is estimated at $125,000.

HUNDREDS MASSACRED

Men, Women and Children Slaughtered at Baku.

Cossacks Aided the Tartars—Victims Shot, Stabbed and Burned to Death—Armenians Unarmed.

Vienna, Austria.—Full reports of the Baku atrocities are published here. The massacres of Kishineff and Gomel were child's play in comparison. Over 1000 Christians, men, women and children, were slaughtered within three days by Mohammedans, amid scenes defying description.

The victims were shot, stabbed or burned to death, their eyes gouged out and otherwise mutilated. All this happened in the presence of the police force, a regiment of infantry and several squadrons of Cossacks and the Governor, Prince Nakashidse, who were unmoved onlookers for three days. The officers and troops amused themselves while the slaughtering was going on.

The whole was arranged by the Government to prevent the political manifestations threatened by the Christian Armenian population. The Mohammedans, who are called in those parts Tartars, were supplied by the Government with revolvers and ammunition and given a free hand.

At the house of Balabek Lalayeff upward of forty persons were burned to death, those trying to escape the flames being instantly killed, soldiers and officers coolly looking on. Lalayeff, with his old wife and nephew, escaped to the cellar, but were found and cruelly tortured, their eyes being pierced.

The military interfered only when resistance was offered by the Christians, and then the Cossacks helped the Mohammedans to beat the Christians. The wells are still full of corpses.

Reuter quotes the Petersburgkiya Viedomosti for the following account of the massacre at Baku: From 6 o'clock in the morning of February 20 and from noon on February 22 a massacre without precedent and quite unexpected took place in the streets and public squares at Baku. The Tartar inhabitants, armed to the teeth, attacked the Armenians, who were unarmed and defenseless, and pitilessly massacred them, without distinction of rank, position, age or sex. The panic was general. All the shops and places of business were at once closed, but the owners of them were shot down.

A sort of torpor, which it is impossible to describe, seemed at first to have taken possession of everybody. There appeared to be nobody to take the defense of the unfortunate people. The soldiers did not attempt to disarm the fanatical murderers, who hunted men like wild beasts, killing them by hundreds. It was in vain that the defenseless inhabitants implored the Governor by telephone to send help. The reply was always the same, "No Cossacks; no guard." It was equivalent to the verdict: "Die, since thou art taken." The bodies of men, women and children and horses were lying in the streets and squares by dozens, by hundreds. There was no one to take them away!

The authorities remained inactive. Blood flowed in streams, and everywhere the criminal apathy of the authorities was the subject of universal indignation. The massacre lasted almost three days.

Toward noon on February 19 a Tartar entered an Armenian church and began to fire on an Armenian soldier. The police officer who was present arrested him, but afterward set him at liberty without disarming him, and shouted to the crowd: "Kill him, or he will kill you all." In saving himself the criminal fired on the crowd, one of whom ran after him and killed him. This seems to have be n the signal. In all no fewer than 10,000 cartridges were expended.

The Armenians were not armed, and any of the young people from Balakhany and the Black Town tengaged in the exploitation of naphtha, and in factories) who had r lvers were disarmed by the guard: posted on the road from Balakhany and the Black Town or were not permitted to enter the town. In a word, the unfortunate Armenians were left to their fate. Peace was only restored on the third day toward noon.

For the most part Armenians were killed, but the stray bullets struck Russians, Georgians and Jews indiscriminately.

A telegram from Erivan (Transcaucasia) says an affray took place between Mohammedans and Armenians there. Some persons were killed.

BANDITS GET $10,000.

Hold Up a Messenger Carrying Money to Standard Oil Refinery.

Berkeley, Cal.—J. E. Daly, an Oakland liveryman, who was acting as a messenger for the Central Bank of Oakland, was held up and robbed of $10,000. He was on his way to the Standard Oil refinery in Point Richmond. There were two highwaymen. Both carried revolvers.

The robbery took place on the roadway between Stege and Point Richmond. The highwayman sprang from a clump of brush at the side of the road and covered Daly and former Deputy Sheriff Roach, who was riding with him. At the point of revolvers Daly and Roach were compelled to get out of the buggy and give up the sack of gold. The robbers tied them to a fence and gagged them. Daly and Roach managed to free themselves and go half a mile to Stege station.

Fire Destroys Lumber Mill.

Orange, Tex.—Fire destroyed the mill of the Orange Lumber Company, and 60,000 feet of lumber, the loss being $75,000, with an insurance of $47,000. The mill will be rebuilt.

Lexington, Ky.—Clem Beachy sold to Brook Curry, Silika, trotter, b. by Moke, dam Silcion, for $2,500. His dam holds the 2-year-old trotting record of 2:13 1-2.

Thorsb

Business D

Commercial C

OF THORSBY

DEFINITE and REL

information furnished t

who desire to locate in th

A. M. Johns

Groceries and Delica

J. J. STAN

GENERAL

MERCHANDIS

MRS. MARY R. RAS

General Merchand

G. W. Freem

SHOES, ETC.

Soda Fount, Cold Drinks

and Cigars.

Thorsby Wi

—Co.—

Lofthus & Bromberg, P

A. HORN

Drugs, Stationery and Articles.

LICENSED PHARMA

A. Malmgre

Watchmaker & Je

E. H. Adams

General Merchan

Fine Lind of Shoes.

W. N. HORNS

General Merchandi

J. R. PARNEL

General Merchandi

J. L. FOS

Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. W

Millinery and Noti

The Thorsby

G. C. Michelson, P

Good Beds and Me

A Langville &

BLACKSMITH

and HORSESHOER

Dealers in

WAGONS and BUG

C. L. Forsm

Brick Yard,

J. BICE

Charcoal Ove

TH

VOL III.

ALABAMA NEWS.

Current Events Gathered as They Happen.

Arrested for Postoffice Robbery.

Huntsville, Ala.—B[illegible] in charge of Deputy Sher[illegible] fur, were placed on the [illegible] men who cracked [illegible] of [illegible] Selly Station postoff[illegible] sent direct to the home of [illegible] is named Martin.

Both men have been [illegible] charged with postoffice robb[illegible] will be brought here [illegible] trial before a United S[illegible] joiner.

One of the brothers fooled the dogs and after they we[illegible] to his home they turned on him. The [illegible] was followed into a group of men in the vicinity of his home. The authorities are confident they have the right men.

The trail of the robbers was about thirty-six hours old, and in following it the dogs disclosed the place where the stolen letters had been [illegible] rifled.

Arrested for Forgery.

Montgomery, Ala.—C. G. Cone, white, 19 years of age, is under arrest charged with forgery. He is said to have forged several [illegible] the name of his father, who is a local preacher of Bullock county.

The father could not pay the checks, two of which are in the hands of the police. Cone has been running as a news boy between this city and Birmingham.

Dead Baby Found.

Birmingham, Ala.—The dead body of a little white baby, probably two or three days of age, was found by a negro in a drift on Red Mountain, a short distance from the city. The body was found near the old pavilion. The remains of the child were wrapped in decent clothing. In fact, the indications point to a parentage of people above ordinary standing.

The body has been taken to an undertaking establishment, and Coroner Paris will make an investigation to ascertain if there has been foul play. There were no marks of violence on the body of the child.

New Coal Tipple.

Wylam, Ala.—Wylam citizens have patented a coal tipple which it is believed will prove of great value in the coal industry in this state, as well as elsewhere. The patent is owned by Messrs. Connor and Thomas and Dr. Caldwell, and it is claimed that it will not only handle the product of the mines with more ease, but will also save labor in this work. Arrangements are being made to have a new tipple on the patented plan erected in this section in order to demonstrate its worth.

Ensley Makes Big Casting.

Ensley, Ala.—The largest steel casting ever made in the South has been cast at the steel foundry in Ensley, it being a pinion for the mammoth steel plant blooming mill engine, and weighs 32,500 pounds. Hitherto these big castings have been made in the North, but the local plant has been so improved that it can take care of anything in that line required. The foundry is busy on double shift and will break all records of production during the current month. By making these castings in this district a large saving results, both in the work and in the freight.

No Compromise on Taxes.

Montgomery, Ala.—The attempt of the Republic Iron and Steel Company to have the compromise board of the state take up the question of compromising the record fees on a mortgage deed of $10,000,000 has failed. The board would not go into a discussion of it.

Huntsville Good Egg Market.

Huntsville, Ala.—The eggs and poultry business has grown to large proportions during the past year or two in this section. The local market has been bountifully supplied with eggs and two full cars have been shipped to other points from here within the week.

Postoffice Robbed at Kelly.

Huntsville, Ala.—The safe in the postoffice and store of J. W. Power, at Kelly Station, a village eighteen miles northwest of Huntsville, was blown open Thursday night. The robbers secured $80 in stamps and $150 in cash belonging to Power, and left no trace behind them. The safe is a wreck.

The cracksmen did a fine job, and the night watchman of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, stationed a hundred yards away, did not hear the explosion. The robbery was not discovered until this morning. Chattanooga has been asked to send bloodhounds.

RED

Thorsb

Business Di

Commercial C
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and REL
information furnished to who desire to locate in the

A. M. Johns
Groceries and Delicat

J. J. STANL
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE

MRS. MARY R. RASB
General Merchandi

G. W. Freem
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks,
and Cigars.

Thorsby Win
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, P

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Articles.
LICENSED PHARMAC

A. Malmgre
Watchmaker & Jew

E. H. Adams
General Merchan
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSB
General Merchandi

J. R. PARNEL
General Merchandi

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wi
Millinery and Notio

The Thorsby
G. C. Michelson, P
Good Beds and Mea

A Langville &
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in
WAGONS and BUGG

C. L. Forsm
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. III. CLANTON, ALA., APRIL 6, 1905. NO. 2

ALABAMA NEWS.

Current Events Gathered as They Happen.

Arrested for Postoffice Robbery.

Huntsville, Ala.—Bloodhounds in charge of Deputy Sheriff Boggs, of Decatur, were placed on the track of the men who cracked the safe at the Kelly station postoffice, and the dogs went to the home of two farmers named Martin.

Both men have been arrested charged with postoffice robbery, and will be brought here tomorrow for trial before a United States commissioner.

One of the brothers followed the dogs and after they went to his home they turned on him. The other man was followed into a group of men in the vicinity of his home. The authorities are confident they have the right men.

The trail of the robbers was about thirty-six hours old, and in following it the dogs disclosed the place where the stolen letters had been rifled.

Arrested for Forgery.

Montgomery, Ala.—C. G. Cone, white, 19 years of age, is under arrest charged with forgery. He is said to have forged several times the name of his father, who is a blind preacher of Bullock county.

The father could not pay the checks, two of which are in the hands of the police. One has been running as a news boy between this city and Birmingham.

Dead Baby Found.

Birmingham, Ala.—The dead body of a little white baby, probably two or three days of age, was found by a negro in a drift on Red Mountain, a short distance from the city. The body was found near the old pavilion. The remains of the child were wrapped in decent clothing, in fact, the indications point to a parentage of people above ordinary standing.

The body has been taken to an undertaking establishment, and Coroner Paris will make an investigation to ascertain if there has been foul play. There were no marks of violence on the body of the child.

New Coal Tipple.

Wylam, Ala.—Wylam citizens have patented a coal tipple which it is believed will prove of great value in the coal industry in this state, as well as elsewhere. The patent is owned by Messrs. Connor and Thomas and Dr. Caldwell, and it is claimed that it will not only handle the product of the mines with more ease, but will also save labor in this work. Arrangements are being made to have a new tipple on the patented plan erected in this section in order to demonstrate its worth.

Ensley Makes Big Casting.

Ensley, Ala.—The largest steel casting ever made in the South has been cast at the steel foundry in Ensley if being a pinion for the mammoth steel plant blooming mill engine, and weighs 32,500 pounds. Hitherto these big castings have been made in the North, but the local plant has been so improved that it can take care of anything in that line required. The foundry is busy on double shift and will break all records of production during the current month. By making these castings in this district a great saving results, both in the work and in the freight.

No Compromise on Taxes.

Montgomery, Ala.—The attempt of the Republic Iron and Steel Company to have the compromise board of the state take up the question of compromising the record fees on a mortgage deed of $10,000,000 has failed. The board would not go into a discussion of it.

Huntsville Good Egg Market.

Huntsville, Ala.—The eggs and poultry business has grown to large proportions during the past year or two in this section. The local market has been bountifully supplied with eggs and two full cars have been shipped to other points from here within the week.

Postoffice Robbed at Kelly.

Huntsville, Ala.—The safe in the postoffice and store of J. W. Power, at Kelly Station, a village eighteen miles northwest of Huntsville, was blown open Thursday night. The robbers secured $80 in stamps and $150 in cash belonging to Power, and left no trace behind them. The safe is a wreck.

The cracksmen did a fine job, and the night watchman of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, stationed a hundred yards away, did not hear the explosion. The robbery was not discovered until this morning. Chattanooga has been asked to send bloodhounds.

A Number of Illicit Stills Are Raided.

Troy, Ala.—Deputy Collector W. F. Russell and Deputy Marshal J. F. Greene, with posse, returned from a successful raid in Houston county. On the 27th they raided an illicit distillery said to belong to Charlie Powell, composed of two complete outfits. A small quantity of beer and of rum was also destroyed. This was near Ardilla, Houston county. On the 28th they raided a distillery said to belong to Harvey Hughes, near Big Creek, in Houston county, and destroyed a complete distillery outfit, together with a quantity of beer and rum. On the same day they raided an illicit distillery said to belong to J. T. Morgan near Cotton wood, in Houston county. A quantity of beer was destroyed at this distillery. Charles Powell was arrested and brought to Troy before United States Commissioner C. S. Tutwiler, pleaded guilty and was bound over to await the action of the next federal grand jury. Warrants have been issued for Harvey Hughes and J. T. Morgan.

Will Take Care of Mobile.

Mobile, Ala.—Col. E. L. Russell, vice-president of the Mobile and Ohio road, says that Mobile is to be well taken care of by the Mobile and Ohio.

"The plans for the distribution of traffic," said Colonel Russell, "have been about completed, and we expect that when they are carried into execution both of our gulf ports will be satisfied. The plan which is decided upon for the export trade which the Mobile and Ohio brings to the gulf ports is that every pound of business which we bring to Mobile which has been handled in the past will be continued to be handled in the future, and more will be added to it. The Munson line will make weekly sailings to our outer ports of Cuba, both from New Orleans and Mobile."

Building Many Sidetracks.

Bessemer, Ala.—The Seaboard Air Line is building a number of long side tracks in this vicinity, which were made necessary by the fight inaugurated upon them some time ago by the Southern, and as a result the Seaboard will soon have as good facilities in this city as any other road here.

A long siding which the Seaboard is building near Woodward is now very nearly completed, and this will enable them to take care of their traffic out of the large Woodward industries. The track building forces will then at once come to this city and lay tracks into the plant of the United States Cast Iron Pipe Compan and into the Bessemer rolling mill, and will enter the Robertstown furnace district over the tracks of the Frisco. The Frisco will also build additional sidings on their property, extending from their freigat station on Sixth or Seventh avenue, this being principally for the accommodation of the Seaboard business.

Grand Incahonee Watts Dead.

Montgomery, Ala.—Hon. Thomas H. Watts, son of the late Governor Watts, died at his home in this city Thursday afternoon after a long illness with rheumatism. The immediate cause of death was rheumatism of the heart. Mr. Watts was great incahonee, the second highest office in the order of the Red Men in the United States. The deceased was assistant secretary of the constitutional convention of 1875 and a member of the recent convention. He was born in Montgomery on August 3, 1853, and was a lawyer all his life.

As Mayor of Montgomery he welcomed the distinguished guests who came to the dedication of the Confederate monument and also welcomed President Cleveland in 1885. His father was governor in 1863-65.

Opelika, Ala.—At Salem this county, two buildings and a stock of dry goods were destroyed by fire. The dry goods was valued at $8,000 and the buildings $2,000. Insurance on building $400; and on stock, $4,000, all the property of H. G. Adams, who recently opened a large dry goods store in this city.

Rural Routes Established.

Washington, D. C.—Alabama rural routes ordered established May 1: Buffalo, Chambers county, route No. 2, population 638, houses, 152; Georgiana, Butler county, route No. 1, population, 798, houses 190; Opp, Covington county, routes Nos. 1 and 2, population 856, houses, 204.

First Strawberries—Truck Farming.

Evergreen, Ala.—The first strawberries of the season have been plucked, and shipping will commence this week. There is a considerable acreage in strawberries this year. There is a greater diversity of truck crops planted this season than ever before in this section. In addition to those mentioned, considerable acreage is given to tomatoes, beans, peas, canteloupes, watermelons, Irish potatoes, cabbage, sweet corn, lettuce, etc. The truckers expect to realize good profits from all these crops.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Alabama Live Stock Association adjourned to meet next year in Selma.

PRESIDENT'S JOURNEY

Monday he Left for the Reunion and to Take a Rest "Under God's Blue Heaven."

HE IS ON THE FINEST TRAIN.

Roosevelt Said, "I Have Left Taft Sitting on the Lid Keeping Down the San Domingo Matter."

Washington, D. C.—With cheers and good wishes resounding at the Pennsylvania station, the president at 9:05 a. m. Monday on a special train started on a trip through the South. Among those at the station were many friends of the president, including Postmaster General Cortelyou and Secretary Metcalf, of the department of commerce and labor.

The special train, which is one of the finest the Pennsylvania railroad has ever sent out of Washington, consists of three cars, the president's private car, Rocket, the Pullman sleeper, Forest Island, the combination baggage and buffet car, Viceroy. Attached to the train to be run as far as Baltimore as a buffer was a day coach. The train is handsomely fitted and contains every known appliance to insure the comfort and safety of the passengers. The train was scheduled to leave at 9 o'clock, but it was a minute after that hour when the president arrived at the station. He had been delayed at the white house for a few minutes in signing some important papers. Even after he boarded his car some papers were handed to him for his signature.

Five Minutes Late.

It was just five minutes after the scheduled time of departure when the train drew out of the station. In the party, besides the president, were Secretary William Loeb, Jr., Gen. S. B. L. Young, D. Alexander Lambert, G. B. Fortesque, one of the president's aides; Mr. C. Latta and John L. McGrew, stenographers to the president, H. A. Strohmeyer, photographer and and representatives of the newspapers and press associations.

The trip is being made primarily to enable the president to attend the reunion of his old regiment, the rough riders, which is to be held at San Antonio, Tex., Friday, and to hunt big game in Oklahoma and Colorado. Incidentally the president will deliver notable addresses at several places en route. His first important stop will be at Louisville, Ky., Tuesday morning, where he will be the guest of the city for three hours. He will go from Louisville directly to St. Louis, and thence via the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad to San Antonio, stopping at several places on the way, among them Sherman and Dallas, Texas.

A Week's Hunt.

After leaving San Antonio the president will go to Oklahoma for a week's hunt, and then proceed to Colorado to hunt big game in the mountains. Unless it should be necessary on account of unforseen circumstances, to curtail the trip the president will be absent from Washington about two months. Definite plans for the trip after he shall leave Oklahoma have not been made, the purpose of the president being to adjust his plans to the conditions as they may exist at the time. While he expects to be in the wilds of Colorado for a considerable time he will keep in constant touch by means of couriers to the nearest telegraph station with Washington and thus will be enabled to attend to such important matters as may demand his personal attention. Dr. Lambert, who accompanies the president, was his physician in New York, and has hunted throughout the country which the president will visit.

President Jolly.

"I don't exactly say that I need a rest, but I am going to take one in the open, under God's blue heaven," said President Roosevelt, standing on the platform by his special train at the Pennsylvania station and conversing with Congressman Olmstead, in the presence of a great crowd that gathered at the station to meet him. It was suggested to the president that things would go along in a smooth manner, even if he were absent.

"Oh, things will be all right," he said. "I have left Taft sitting on the lid keeping down the San Domingo matter."

Later he said:

"I am going to have an outing. I am going to get away where I won't even think of a fourth-class postmaster."

When the train came in the crowd gave the president a cheer. He stood on the rear platform waving his hand and beaming with good nature. When the train stopped the president stepped from the platform with the remark to a secret service officer: "Pass right along now and if this crowd is not too big I'll shake hands with all of you."

At this there was a rush to shake hands with him. When some little girls were handed up to him he said:

Pleased Children.

"God bless the children," and then turning to Congressman Olmstead, he said: "You know, I believe in these children."

To one man with a button in his coat the president said: "How are you, comrade?"

It was 1:07 as the train moved off. One man proposed three cheers for "Teddy," which were given with a will, and the president laughed heartily at the familiarity. His last remark as the train got up speed was a hearty "So long boys; good-by."

Mine Explosion in Illinois.

Benton, Ill.—Fifty miners were entombed Monday in Thomas Leiter's mine at Zeigler by a terrific explosion of gas, and it is probable that thirty or more of the buried men are dead.

Thus far four bodies have been recovered. The explosion, it is supposed, was due to the fact that the Leiter mines are not worked on Sunday, thus allowing gas to accumulate in the lower workings.

After thirty-five or forty-five miners had descended into the mine Monday to resume work, a loud explosion blew the ground about the mouth of the mine high in the air. One of the steel cages was blown to the surface from the botton of a 500-foot shaft. The shock of the explosion was felt at Benton, twelve miles northeast of Zeigler. A teamster driving along a road half a mile from the mine was covered with falling cinders and debris covered the floor of his wagon an inch deep.

The number of dead is estimated at 34; injured, 8.

Attorney and G. C. Killed by Clerk.

Dallas, Tex.—Frank J. Bell, a prominent attorney of this city, and grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Texas, was shot Monday by R. R. Parker, chief deputy district clerk. Bell died in the afternoon at a local hospital.

The shooting occurred at the district clerk's office in the court house and was the result of a previous quarrel over fees. Parker was seated at his desk when Bell entered and spoke to him. Two shots were fired, both bullets reaching their mark, one passing through the left side of Bell's neck and the other entering his left breast in the region of the heart. Bell sank into a chair and was later removed in an ambulance. Parker awaited the arrival of the sheriff and was taken into custody.

The only witness to the shooting was District Clerk Rawlins, who was in the office at the time.

Was Fatally Injured.

Anniston, Ala.—John Collins, aged 19 years, and a watchman in the Southern railway yards at this place, was knocked from a train by striking a tank at noon Monday and fatally injured, dying in the afternoon at 6 o'clock. Collins had gotten on the train to ride to the yards, when he struck a part of the water tank. He was thrown to the ground and run over by the wheels of the box car. His left arm was cut off and his body badly mangled.

Collins was picked up by the train crew and given medical aid, but after lingering in great agony for six hours he died.

Fell 93 Feet.

Jacksonville, Ala.—While painting the tank at the Ide cotton mills Monday the rope of the swing on which he was suspended, slipped, and Robert Muncher fell to the ground, a distance of 93 feet. While falling Muncher struck several times against the props and the side of the tank.

This broke the force of the fall. His right leg was fractured, his left shoulder blade fractured and he received internal injuries. It is thought he will die.

Tribal Warfare.

Liverpool, Ala.—According to a report brought by the British and African line royal mail steamer Sokoto from West Africa, tribal warfare is now waging in Liberia. Natives of the Picannanyanines tribe on March 13 attacked Cestos, killing sixty men and eighty women. The Cestos natives are organizing a big counter expedition. When the Sokoto sailed, a fierce encounter with much slaughter was expected.

Wreck on the P. C., C. and St. L.

Louisville, Ky.—A freight train on the Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis division of the Pennsylvania ran into a west Broadway car at Fourteenth and Broadway, killing one person and seriously injuring two others.

Sister Mary Anthony, who was killed, lived some years ago in Birmingham, Ala. Her name before taking the veil was Frances Nailer, and she was the daughter of James Nailen, a merchant.

DOMINICAN SETTLEMENT

United States Government to Take Charge of Her Revenues.

NO CHANCE FOR OPPOSITION

President Takes Action After the Hold Up by the Senate—Long Consultation With Cabinet, Senators Lodge and Spooner—In Long Letter Mr. Roosevelt Gives Plans.

Washington, D. C.—The solution of the Santo Domingo difficulty was arrived at by the President, Secretary Taft and Attorney-General Moody. An arrangement has been made whereby, despite the Senate's failure to ratify the treaty the United States will go right ahead taking charge of the little republic's revenues and settling its claims.

Before the Cabinet meeting the President conferred on this matter with Mr. Taft, Mr. Moody and Senators Lodge and Spooner. Then it was taken up at the Cabinet meeting and discussed there. After the Cabinet meeting adjourned Mr. Taft and Mr. Moody remained, and instructions for carrying out the scheme were drawn up.

In the afternoon Mr. Taft took these instructions to Acting Secretary of State Adee in the form of a letter from the President. It reads:

"White House, Washington.

"To the Acting Secretary of State:

"I have carefully considered the following cablegram from Minister Dawson:

"'Under pressure foreign creditors and domestic peril, Dominican Government offers to nominate a citizen of the United States receiver of southern ports pending ratification protocol; four northern ports to be administered under the award. Forty-five per cent, of total shall go to Dominican Government, fifty-five to be deposited in New York for distribution after ratification. Creditors to agree to take no further steps in the meantime, and receiver to have full authority to suspend importers' preferential contracts.

"'Italian, Spanish-German and American creditors, except the Santo Domingo Improvement Company, accept unconditionally; Belgian and French representatives will recommend acceptance. Some modus vivendi absolutely necessary. I am ready, if desired, to start for Washington, D. C., to explain details and modifications to plan obtainable. Whole matter can be held open during my absence.

"'DAWSON.'

"I direct that the Minister express acquiescence in the proposal of the Government of Santo Domingo for the collection and conservation of its revenues pending the action of the United States Senate upon the treaty, to the end that in the meantime no change shall take place in the situation which would render useless its consummation or bring complications into its enforcement.

"The Secretary of War of the United States will present for nomination by the President of the Dominican Republic men to act in the positions referred to, in both the northern and southern ports. The utmost care will, of course, be taken to choose men of capacity and absolute integrity, who, if possible, shall have some knowledge of Spanish.

"All the moneys collected from both the northern and southern ports, not turned over to the Dominican Government, will be deposited in some New York bank to be designated by the Secretary of War, and will there be kept until the Senate has acted. If the action is adverse the money will then be turned over to the Dominican Government. If it is favorable it will be distributed among the creditors in proportion to their just claims under the treaty.

"Meanwhile Mr. Hollender will thoroughly investigate these claims, including the claim of the American Improvement Company, and will report in detail all the information he is able to gather as to the amount actually received by Santo Domingo, the amount of indebtedness nominally incurred, the circumstances so far as they are known under which the various debts were incurred, and so forth.

"This action is rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of the case. The treaty now before the Senate was concluded with Santo Domingo at Santo Domingo's earnest request repeatedly pressed upon us, and was submitted to the Senate because in my judgment it was our duty to our less fortunate neighbor to respond to her call for aid, inasmuch as we were the only power that could give this aid, and inasmuch as her need for it was very great.

"The treaty is now before the Senate, and has been favorably reported by the Committee on Foreign Relations. It is pending, and final action will undoubtedly be taken when Congress convenes next fall. Meanwhile Santo Domingo has requested that the action above outlined be taken; that is, she desires in this way to maintain the status quo, so that if the treaty is ratified it can be executed.

"With this purpose in view, I direct that the proposed arrangement be approved. It will terminate as soon as the Senate has acted one way or the other.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The Atlanta Journal says that a green doctor makes a fat graveyard.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

L. V. STABLER, M. D
Physician & Surgeon
Office Over Horn's Drug Store
Thorsby, Alabama

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

Two Japanese prisoners were picked up by the Russians in a recent skirmish. One was unhurt, the other mortally wounded. They were brothers, and the one had preferred capture to leaving the other to die alone on the battlefield.

PURE GOODS
The following
SPECIAL BRANDS
always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.

Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon, Calera, Ala.

THE PULPIT.

AN ELOQUENT SUNDAY SERMON BY BISHOP D. A. GOODSELL.

Subject: The Face of Christ.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A very large audience filled the Tabernacle Sunday to listen to Bishop D. A. Goodsell. His subject was "The Face of Christ." The text was from II. Corinthians iv:6: "The glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." Bishop Goodsell said in the course of his sermon:

As you read the Bible both in the Old and New Testaments you are impressed with the great number of times which the word "face" is used. When you travel in Eastern lands you find that this word is used far more often and in many different relations among the Eastern people than we ourselves are accustomed to use it.

This word face is used in reference to a man's whole character I am told, everywhere in the East, and we have a great many traces of it in the Bible; and now when we come to think of it isn't it true that we are accustomed to recognize each other more by the face than by any other one thing. Is it not wonderful that upon the few elements in the face, the forehead, the eyes, nose, mouth and chin there should be such an infinite variety of expression stamped by the great Creator?

There is a general conviction among us that the face will work out the inner character, so that whatever may be the beginning of life when we have lived with ourselves a long time we will be pretty apt to show upon our faces what kind of a person we have lived with. It is impossible for any person to give way to avarice without showing it on their face. If he had an open face once it will change; and so the man who gives way to the forces of passion, whether he gives way to lust or whether he gives way to drink, or whether he gives way to appetite for food, it will show out on his face. We write upon our faces what we live with and no man can wear a mask so completely that those who are wise in these things are not able to read behind the mask.

Now, what one is there among us that has not desired again and again to have lived when the face of Jesus Christ could have been seen. I think there is no devout soul that in his trouble has not said, Oh, that I could look into my Master's face. Oh, that I could," live as the little children did, "have rested my head against His breast and have heard Him say to me as He said to them, 'Suffer them to come.'"

You can scarcely go into a Christian home to-day where Christian education has presided where there is not at least one or more representations of the face of Jesus Christ. I have observed according to our experiences, according to our wants, we fasten upon the representations of Jesus Christ's face that are most satisfying to us, most fitting. So that if we are under deep penitence of sin, we are apt to have the face of the suffering Christ upon the Cross, and if the sorrows of the world have burdened our hearts, we will carry there the face of the thorn-crowned Christ in our homes. If we have dwelt upon Christ in His strength, in His power, in His resistance to evil, in the calm majesty of one who knows he is innocent, we would most likely have the picture of Christ before Pilate. From the days of the Catacombs up to the present time, men have been trying to put Christ's face before humanity, and why? Because all souls in their greater moments, in their spiritual moments, and therefore in their religious moments, would like to have Him brought near by. They would like to have Him made more real.

The best thing is to so carry Jesus Christ in our heart that we shall see Him and behold the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

The actual picture must remain the same. We may study it, we may understand its history. It is not at all probable that any one is going to see in a moment what it took the artist years to produce, though this may happen. But as we grow spiritually it is possible for us by spiritual sight to behold our Lord, to behold Him more clearly as the years go on.

When we study this one word, the word face, we find that it stands related to three great facts and to none other that I know of, and these three facts are, first, revelation, then inspiration and finally reward. This is exactly what the Apostle means by this text, that he who studies the face of Jesus Christ, he who enlarges his vision by spiritual imagination, will have the revelation of the divine truth come to him. For do we not know that Jesus came to reveal God to us, to reveal God to a world in which the dim eye of sin could but imperfectly see Him. But the trouble is that our eyes see as we are educated to see. I have often noticed while passing along the street that a man is usually interested in the trade he represents. If he was a hatter, he looked at my hat; if he was a tailor he looked at my clothes; if he was a shoemaker he looked at my shoes; if he was a bootblack he looked to see whether they were muddy or not, and so our vision is trained by what we are doing, by what we are thinking. If our eyes are trained only to the things of time, then all the beauty that we see is in the things of time, but by using these as stepping stones to something higher and nobler, then we see by the power of God's revelation that there is a God here in this world, and that He is ruling the world in the interest of Jesus Christ.

I believe that you would have thought yourself victims of fate if you had not been taught by Jesus Christ the doctrine of divine fatherhood. You would have thought perhaps that this world was made by chance if you had not seen Him standing in the stern of the ship and saying to the troubled waves, "Peace, be still." But because He has come, because He has passed through all the phases of our life from infancy to maturity, because He has been tempted, because He submitted to wrong in order that He might do a great and holy work, because He has given the most perfect example of what humanity ought to be under all phases and circumstances, because He is here and was God manifested in the flesh, we, His brethren in the creation, and we, His brethren in the redemption of the cross, know that we are dear to God, for God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to die for us.

I have to travel a good deal in my work, as you know. Very often I wake early in the morning, and lift the curtain of my sleeping car that I may see where we are, and what the prospects are. Sometimes it is clouded, sometimes it is clear. There are pools in the ditches beside the tracks, or perhaps we are running alongside the lake and I look at the lake and out there I can see things mirrored. It has been a great pleasure to me sometimes to pick out the stars. Why there is Orion and there is Sirius, there is the big dipper and there is Jupiter and there is Venus, the morning star, and there is Mars. I didn't have to look up, I looked down and saw it reflected. And then I would see the round orb of the morn and I could see what phase of the moon was on by looking down as I could by looking above. Then I have seen the wind set the glassy surface into waves, and it would be only belts of broken light. That is the way it is in human society. We are looking down upon the world which reflects human weaknesses, human sin, human passions. There isn't a glassy place to reflect the glory of Christ in. There are all kinds of passions at work and the best that we can see is the ruffled surface of humanity, but I see bars of light that are on the surface, then, when I look up I see the glorious Christ.

Now, finally, the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ is revealed, not only as a revelation, not only for inspiration, but for reward. How full the New Testament is of this idea that the sight of Jesus Christ shall be the reward of the saint and the Old Testament, too: "My eyes shall see the King in His beauty," "We shall be satisfied when we wake in His likeness," "We shall see Him and know Him as He is." How many more passages does your memory bring up out of your religious education that teach this doctrine?

We who are here this morning, if we believe in God we shall not only see those who have gone before, who have been in our homes, but the great ambition of a devoted soul will be gratified—we shall see God.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. According to the measure of our inward purity do we seem to see God here. When we shall, by the washing of regeneration and the renewal of our hearts and the sanctification of our spirit, until we can say the Lord hath made me whiter than snow. We walk with Him, our hand is in His hand and our head is on His bosom. He carries us when we are weak, as a shepherd carries the lamb. He heals our disease. He comforts us in our sorrows. He is in our homes when we are there, in our shops when we are there, in the streets when we are walking, on the sea when we are sailing.

We shall see Christ, not in His humiliation, but in His exaltation; not as a babe in the manger, but as a king of the universe; not as humbled before Pilate, but as ruling all things and judging all things.

I believe in heaven because I believe in God. I do not know where it is, I think that I am convinced that it is a condition rather than a place. This is shown by the parable of Dives and Lazarus, one in paradise and one in hell, yet they could talk across the gulf. That must have been moral rather than physical. But I do not know that if God is everywhere, my soul shall soar through space and find Him everywhere. It may be that heaven is everywhere, as God is everywhere to the devout soul.

Getting at Life's Values.

Things that come easily are not of much value. Vacation time does not often record noteworthy accomplishment. It is when the pressure of life is at its highest, perhaps close to the breaking point, that results usually count for most. That time that we are looking forward to, when this present grinding pressure will be off and we shall have an opportunity to do something, is not likely to record nearly as good work as we are doing under friction and stress. Those particles of carbon might have been nothing more than coal or graphite if consuming heat and enormous pressure had not crystallized them into a diamond. If such a weight is just now upon us, let us rejoice at the opportunity we have for getting at the precious things of life.—S. S. Times.

The Bible.

Alone it has civilized whole nations. It is the one book that can fully lead forth the richest and deepest and sweetest things in man's nature. Read all other books—philosophy, poetry, history, fiction—but if you would refine the judgment, fertilize the reason, wing the imagination, attain unto the finest womanhood or the sturdiest manhood, read this book, reverently and prayerfully, until its truths have dissolved like iron into the blood. If you have no time, make time and read. The book Daniel Webster placed under his pillow when dying is the book all should carry in the hand while living.—Newell D. Hillis.

A Mockery.

To be dishonest during the week, to defraud one's creditors, to rent property for saloons or brothels, to water stock and sell the water to the public, to live in sin and then to go to church on Sunday to worship, or to pretend to worship at home, is mockery. If there is one thing the Bible declares, it is that God abhors such worship. He must be worshiped in truth.—Sunday-School Times.

The Cheeriest Music.

We can set our deeds to the music of a grateful heart, and seek to round our lives into a hymn—the melody of which will be recognized by all who come in contact with us, and the power of which shall not be evanescent, like the voice of the singer, but perennial, like the music of the spheres.—Wm. M. Taylor.

The Key and the Lock.

Let, then, our prayers be "the key that opens the day, and the lock that shuts the night," and also from morning to night our staff and stay in all our labors, enabling us to go cheerfully up to the mount of God.—Canon Farrar.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 9.

Subject: The Raising of Lazarus, John xi., 32-45—Golden Text, John xi., 25—Memory Verses, 33-36—Commentar on the Day's Lesson.

I. The meeting of Jesus and Mary (v. 32). 32. "When Mary was come." Martha first heard that Jesus was coming, and, without notifying Mary, she went to meet Jesus just outside the village. She greeted Him with those words of sorrowful despair—"Lord, if Thou hadst been here my brother had not died." But even then there was a dawn of hope in her heart, from her experience of the power of Jesus. Jesus replied with the assurance that He was "the resurrection and the life," and prepared her for the great work He was about to do. "If Thou hadst been here." These words express the very essence of soul torture at such times. In our affliction we continually echo the if of these sisters, saying to ourselves, if we had not done this, or if we had not done that, or if it had not been for our blunder, or that of our friends, or that of our physician, our beloved would not have died. But read verse 4 of this chapter.

II. Christ's compassion (vs. 33-37). 33. "Groaned in the spirit." This is a strange term and is better rendered by the margin of the Revised Version—"was moved with indignation in the spirit." Jesus was indignant at the hypocritical and sentimental lamentations of His enemies, the Jews, mingling with the heartfelt sorrow of His loving friend Mary. These self-righteous Jews, now weeping and groaning in professional sorrow with Mary were men who would soon be plotting to kill, not only Jesus, but the restored Lazarus (compare chap. 12:10). "Was troubled." "Troubled Himself."—Marg., R. V. Probably the meaning is that He allowed His deep emotion to become evident to bystanders. 34. "Where—laid him." A question addressed to and answered by the sisters.

35. "Jesus wept." Here the blessed Jesus shows Himself to be truly man; and a man, too, who, notwithstanding His amazing dignity and excellence, did not feel it beneath Him to sympathize with the distressed and to weep with those who wept. After this example of our Lord shall we say that it is weakness, folly and sin to weep for the loss of relatives? 36. "How He loved him." A spontaneous testimony from those Jews of the tenderness of the Son of God.

37. "Could not this man." The miracle of the blind man was referred to because it was of recent occurrence, and in the immediate neighborhood, while the two previous miracles of raising the dead (Luke 7:11-17; 8:41-56) were performed in distant Galilee, about one year and a half before. Several leading commentators think that these Jews were unbelieving and now refer to the healing of the blind man in a deriding manner, suggesting that if He could have done that, then He could have kept Lazarus alive, and real love would have prompted Him to do it if He had power.

III. Words of comfort (vs. 38-40). 38. "Again groaning." Because of the unbelief of the Jews. We never find Him in as much grief over His own sufferings as over the sins of men. "Cometh to the grave." Lazarus was, as became his station, not laid in a cemetery, but in his own private tomb in a cave.

39. "Take ye away the stone." That which could be done by human hand she orders to be done. He would have the bystanders see that Lazarus was actually dead. "He sinketh." Seeming to forget what Jesus had said to her when she met Him, Martha now thinks only of the condition of her brother's body and objects. The idea of an immediate resurrection does not seem to have occurred to her.

40. "If thou wouldst believe." So we see that if these sisters had not possessed hearts of faith, a willingness to believe and obey Christ, this miracle could not have taken place. If faith holds Him as the resurrection and the life, then why doubt when He is near? "Glory of God." Such a revelation of God's power as shall disclose His glory.

IV. Lazarus raised to life (vs. 41-45). 41. "Took away the stone." Martha's faith must have rallied and she gave way to Jesus' request. They had accomplished all in their power when the stone was removed. Jesus now began His part. "Lifted up His eyes." An outward expression of the elevation of His mind and to show them who stood by from whence He derived His power. He lifted up His eyes as looking beyond the grave and overlooking the difficulties that arose thence.

42. "Thou hast sent Me." Not to destroy men's lives, but to save them. Moses, to show that God sent him, made the earth open and swallow men up (Num. 16:29, 30), for the law was a dispensation of terror; but Christ proves His mission by raising to life one that was dead. 43. "Loud voice." He did not whisper nor mutter as did the magicians. It was the type of that voice like the sound of many waters (Rev. 1:15), at which all who are in their graves shall come forth (John 5:28; 1 Thess. 4:16). He that wept as a man now spoke as a God. "Lazarus." He calls him by name as we call those by their names whom we would wake out of sleep. This intimates that the same individual person that died shall rise again at the last day. 44. "Bound hand and foot." Probably each limb was separately bound, as was the Egyptian custom. "Loose him." He was a healthy, strong man and no longer needed the bandages and winding sheet. 45. "Many believed." The miracle was convincing.

An Intolerant Religion.

And so down to this present day Christianity is the most intolerant religion on the face of the earth. The other religions will accept toleration, compromise; but Christianity will accept no compromise—no God and Father of us all; one Saviour, one faith, one hope of our calling.—Sermon in Weekly Witness.

Life is a Service.

The great fact is that life is a service; the only question is, "Whom will we serve?"—Faber.

CURIOUS WEEDS AND PLANTS

SOME HAVE A REMARKABLE EFFECT ON THE HUMAN SYSTEM.

The Dry Leaves of Mexican Marihuana Mixed With Tobacco Make the Smoker Wilder Than a Wild Beast—Other Dangerous Plants.

Among the many curious weeds and plants found in the republic of Mexico are some that have remarkable effects on the human system. One of the most peculiar is marihuana, and so dangerous is it that the government had appointed special inspectors to see that the Indian women do not sell this or other dangerous plants in the market.

Marihuana is a weed used by people of the lower class and sometimes by soldiers; but those who make larger use of its are prisoners sentenced to long terms. The use of the weed and its sale, especially in the baracks and prisons, is very severely punished, yet it has many adepts and Indian women cultivate it because they sell it at rather high prices.

The dry leaves of marihuana, alone or mixed with tobacco, make the smoker wilder than a wild beast. It is said that immediately after the first three or four draughts of smoke, smokers begin to feel a slight headache; then they see everything moving round, and finally they lose all control of their mental faculties. They see herds of tigers, lions, devils and unheard-of monsters coming to attack them. They are not afraid at all, but feel themselves brave and strong enough to fight and annihilate so many enemies. Everything, the smokers say, takes the shape of a monster, and men look like devils. They begin to fight, and, of course, everything smashed is a monster "killed." But there are imaginary beings whom the wild man cannot kill, and these are what begin to inspire fear, until the man is panic-stricken and starts to run. Not long ago a man who had smoked a marihuana cigarette attacked and killed a policeman and badly wounded three others; six policemen were needed to disarm him and march him to the police station, where he had to be put into a straight-jacket. Such occurrences are frequent.

People who smoke marihuana finally lose their minds and never recover them, and they die, most of them suddenly.

There are other plants equally, if not more, dangerous, among which is the "tolvache," a kind of loco weed. The seeds of this plant, boiled up and drunk as tea will make a person desperately insane for all his life.

Among some classes of Mexico it is stated that Carlota, the empress of Mexico, lost her mind because she was given tolvache as a refreshment. Empress Carlota was the wife of Emperor Maximilian, who was shot in Queretaro. She lost her mind immediately after her trip from Mexico to Rome, and since then she has been desperately insane. The statement that she lost her mind because she was given tolvache is a most unfounded one; tolvache makes a person lose his or her mind immediately after drinking it, and the empress became insane many days after departure from Mexico.

There is, in the State of Michoacan, another plant the effects of which upon the human organism are very curious. The plant grows wild in some parts of Michoacan, and natives have observed that whenever they traverse a field where were many of such plants they lost all notion of places, and got lost, being unable to reach the place to which they were bound. An investigation was made by savants, and it was found that the smell of the plant in question made momentarily insane persons and animals. The insanity caused by the smell of the plant, however, is only momentary and persons do not lose the control of their faculties at all. They simply lose memory of everything, of even what has happened a few minutes before. For this reason when a person reaches a place where there are many of these plants he forgets where he is going, where the place is and even where he is and what he is doing there. It takes from three to four hours for a person affected by the smell of the plant to recover his consciousness, or rather the full control of his mental faculties. This plant was sent to the St. Louis exposition and commanded considerable attention from savants.

Another very curious plant is the one called 'de las Carreras," in some places where it grows. When a person drinks a brew of the leaves of seeds of the plant, he feels an impulse to run, and will run until he drops dead or exhausted to such an extent that he will die in a few minutes. It is of no use either to tie the legs of a person who has drunk the beverage or to lock him in a room; he will move or struggle all he can until he is as exhausted as if he had run miles and miles.

AN INDIAN'S APPETITE.

Ate Dinner Prepared for Four and Washed it Down Wtih Dishwater.

Captain J. L. Humfreville, in "Twenty Years Among Our Savage Indians," says that wild Indians did not jump to conclusions, but arrived at them by a keen process of reasoning after their own fashion. Their mental resources were naturally limited, but in those practices which their mode of life compelled them to adopt, and on which their existence depended, they were proficient.

All Indians had amusements and pastimes of their own, although the more ignorant the Indian the fewer were his pleasures. Running was a favorite amusement. A match between two Indians, with the judges appointed and everything in readiness, was sure to be interesting. Sometimes the race was for a short distance, probably an eighth of a mile.

A buffalo chase or hunt was not regarded as an amusement. It was more like work forced upon them by the necessity of securing their food and clothing, for upon their success their existence depended. They did not seem to recognize it as a pastime, but often went reluctantly about it as one doing hard work. Neither was the killing of small game sport. It was hard work with them, for they were frequently compelled to dismount and crawl a long distance to get within shooting range.

An amusing illustration of the Indian's abnormal appetite came under my personal experience in the Rocky Mountains. A body of troops were crossing to the Pacific slope, and encamped within a few miles of us. I had been apprised in advance of their coming, and had secured for the officers a pleasant surprise in the way of an abundant supply of fresh meat of the antelope and mountain sheep, and other eatables usually acceptable to soldiers after a weary march. I rode down to the camp shortly before dinner and invited the commanding officer and his staff to dine with us. He replied by inviting me to dine with him and his mess, remarking that he had an abundance of bacon and hominy. I laughingly answered, as I urged my invitation, that I had an Indian in my camp, a Sioux brave, who alone could eat all he had.

"If your Indian can do that," he replied, "I will accept your invitation with pleasure."

I accordingly despatched one of my escort to our camp with instructions to return with Short Ribs, which was the name of the voracious individual referred to. The mess was duly set, and the Indian invited to eat. He needed no pressing, but at once proceeded to clear the table. As the victuals continued to disappear the astonishment of the officers was amusing to behold. Short Ribs soon devoured all the food that had been prepared. I asked if they had anything more left; the officer laughingly answered, "Nothing except a basin of dishwater." This was ordered to be brought in. Short Ribs placed the dish-pan to his lips and drank about a third of its contents, setting down the vessel with a grunt of satisfaction, which indicated that he considered it the proper beverage with which to wash down his enormous meal. The amount of food consumed by him had been prepared for four hungry army officers.

MEASURING WITH THE EYE.

Odd Way a Clerk Has of Telling a Customer's Size in Gloves.

"While I was in a clothing store the other day I noticed a man wad his fist up and throw it down on the counter, and about the same time the fellow behind the counted rushed up to him, carefully rolled his fingers up into the palm of his hand, clinched his fist, and threw it down beside the other man's fist on the counter.

"That was a way the clerk had of measuring the customer's hand for a fit in gloves. "But how can you measure a big fist with a small one?" I asked him after the man had secured his gloves and departed. "I know my number," he said, 'and I can generally tell, almost to the dot, the difference between the size of gloves I wear and the size that will fit some other man. My eye is so trained that I rarely miss it.'

"He was right, and proved it by calling the number of glove which fits my hand by a hurried glance at the hand, folded up, and put beside his on the counter.

"'You see,' he added, 'it is largely a matter of practice, and really means nothing extraordinary about it. Some men, particularly military men, become experts in measuring distance with the eye. Other men are expert in telling the weight of certain articles. The expert shoe dealer could look at a foot and tell the number of shoe that will fit the foot. So clothiers can guess a man's waist and leg measurement by a mere glance, if they really know their business. The eye, in the long run, is more accurate, than the tape we use, in measuring, because the eye will take a more general view of the hand, the foot or the body, while the tape simply gives us the inches one way and another.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Women Golfers in England.

Six American ladies are likely to enter for our next ladies' golf championship at Cromer, which is arranged to come between the amateur competition at Prestwick and the open championship at St. Andrew's. It would be interesting if Mrs. W. J. Travis, encouraged by her husband's triumph over Great Britain, were to try her luck against the ladies. The consistent accuracy of such American players as Mr. Travis must have its effect on their ladies, especially in approaching and putting; and from the news brought home by visitors to the States like Miss Adair and Miss Dod, who has just returned, we shall no doubt have a hard game if their best players visit Cromer.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

A bee that works only at night lives in the jungles of India.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

In 1890 the last instance of capital punishment by death took place in Persia.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Dec. 6, 1895.

Copper money in France is to be replaced by aluminum.

Dahlias 20 kinds, $1. H. Burt, Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Aztec Indians of Mexico are famous for their strength.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The life-saving dogs are valued by the police department of Paris.

Who Owns the Railroads?

H. T. Newcomb, of the Columbia Bar, has compiled a showing that 5,174,518 depositors savings banks of six Eastern States directly interested in the ownership of $442,354,086 of stock securities, that insurance companies doing business in Massachusetts own $845,889,038 of steam railroad stocks and bonds, and 74 corporations depend on $47,468,827 of similar securities for a portion of income. Other fiduciary institutions own enough railroad securities to swell such holdings up to more than two and a half dollars, about one-fifth of the entire capital invested in railroad property. These investments represent the savings of the masses, for there are twenty million holders of life insurance policies in the country, and more of fire insurance policies, while even greater number of depositors in banking and trust institutions. These investments are largely in railroad securities.

A Worthy Official.

W. W. Rockhill, appointed United States minister to China, is a prominent Orientalist and traveler. He began his diplomatic career as secretary to the American legation in Japan, and it was then that he became imbued with a desire to make a scientific study of the Chinese questions. He obtained his first essence from Tokio and set out disguised as a high priest, with a native attendants, to reach Lhassa, the forbidden city. He penetrated further into the forbidden country than any white man had done up to that time, and was finally put to flight because one of the provincial officials, learning of his mission, set a price upon his head. As a special commissioner to Peking after the Boxer uprising, he has able to render in an important way to the solution of the delicate problems which grew out of that affair.

Beats the Yankees.

It is stated by a London newspaper that a company has been formed to dig up earth from Palestine in which ages and to import them into the United States, labeled with an affidavit to the effect that the contents are guaranteed to be from the Holy Land.

Will Indict Meat Packers.

Chicago, Ill.—Well authenticated reports that the federal grand jury which is investigating the business methods of the meat packers will return indictments when it convenes Wednesday are prevalent. The report was that the adjournment taken Saturday was really decided upon in order to allow Assistant Attorney General Pagin time to draw up the bills at his leisure, and give due consideration to the mass of testimony gathered since the jury went into session.

CHILDREN AFFECTED

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mother's milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes. The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point.

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not start a meal without it. But I found after a time it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizzy spells before my eyes and palpitation of the heart, to which was added, two years ago, a chronic sour stomach. My baby was born seven months old, and almost from the beginning it suffered from sour stomach. She got no relief taking it from me.

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience than mine, who told me to quit coffee, that coffee does not make good milk; I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So I quit coffee, and tried in its place at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum. Coffee with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the quantity of my milk. My husband threw away coffee and used Postum, quite as well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach. Postum has cured them.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best health food we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best cup of coffee ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Get the little book "The Road to Wellville" in each pkg.

NEW IDEA TOILET

York City.—Draped waists [illegible] points at the front and back

TRAPPED BASQUE WAIST

Most and most stylish waist offered. This one is made and can be made with the postback, as illustrated, or with a may be liked. The model is of nut brown voile, with the of chiffon velvet, chemisette cuffs of cloth covered taffeta ruche lace insertion applied to diamonds, and is exceedingly ne, but all materials that are ough to drape well are appro- and the chemisette and cuffs any contrasting material. The the front are exceptionally and the high shaped collar the neck most satisfactorily. he sleeves are full at the shoul- ving the broad line, two are of e size.

LATE DESIGN BY MA

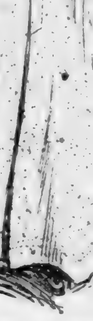
waist is made with the fitted which closes at centre front. lf consists of fronts, backs, ks and under-arm gores, the being laid over onto the side. The chemisette is arranged e lining and closes invisibly. waist is closed at the left of t. When liked the sleeves can ff at elbow length, as shown in ll view.

antity of material required for ium size is four yards twenty- one or two yards

Chic Light Blouse.

ver popular separate blouse more and more elaborate each with the return of the flow- figured silks many are made ese fabrics. For wear with frocks is a white taffeta with e rings. The round yoke and re heavy all-over lace, out- th two narrow bands of Per- broidery in delicate shades, one forming a deep point in finished with a jabot of fine bands of the material also out-

The quaint the medium



The pret recently w in all-over surface an These gow young girls

NEW IDEAS in TOILETTES

York City.—Draped waists cut m yokes at the front are among

DRAPED BASQUE WAIST.

most satisfactory de-offered. This one is especially one, three and one-half yards twenty-seven, or one and seven-eighth yards forty-four inches wide, with one and one-fourth yards of silk for chemisette and cuffs and nine yards of lace insertion and one-half yard of bias velvet to trim as illustrated.

Gathered Shirt Waists.

Shirt waists made full at the shoulders are among the latest novelties shown and are peculiarly well adapted to the many light weight and soft cotton materials, although they are attractive in silk and in wool. This one allows a choice of yoke or no yoke, and includes sleeves of the very latest cut that are full at both shoulders and wrists. In the case of the model the material is white Persian lawn, the collar and cuffs being of linen, but the model is adapted to all waistings that can be made full with good effect.

The waist consists of the fitted lining, which can be used or omitted as material renders desirable, fronts, backs and yoke, the yoke also being optional. The sleeves are in shirt waist style, with wide cuffs, and there is a turnover collar at the neck that is attached to the neckband by means of buttonholes and studs.

A LATE DESIGN BY MAY MANTON.

made with the pos-illustrated, or with a back. The model is voile, with the velvet, chemisette covered taffeta applied to is that are well are approsette and cuffs can material. The exceptionally deshaped collar
most satisfactorily, are full at the shoulders and yet are of made with the fitted closes at centre front.

of fronts, backs, arm gores, the onto the side-sette is arranged
closes invisibly, closed at the left of When liked the sleeves can length, as shown in

The quantity of material required for the medium size is four yards twenty-one or twenty-seven inches wide, or two yards forty-four inches wide.

Chic Light Blouse.

separate blouse more elaborate each return of the flow-many are made For wear with white taffeta with
The round yoke and all-over lace, out-narrow bands of Per-in delicate shades, deep point in finished with a jabot of the of the material also outlines the yoke and forms a point on the shoulders. The sleeves are new, all the fullness at top, with smaller puff at elbows and a double flounce of lace as a finish.

An Evening Gown.

The prettiest evening gowns seen recently were of chiffon, which comes in all-over designs, or else with a plain surface and a deep flowered border. These gowns are much affected by young girls and debutantes.

TALKS

OYSTERS AND SPAGHETTI.

A souffle of oysters and spaghetti ought to be appetizing: Cut into tiny pieces three or four ounces of spaghetti and place a layer of it in the bottom of a baking-dish. Give it a sprinkling of pepper and salt and add a few bits of butter; then put in a layer of raw oysters and season. Alternate the layers until the dish is full, sprinkle the top thickly with cracker crumbs and grated cheese and bake a nice brown.

SALMON SOUP.

Salmon soup is still another dish in which that faithful help in many an emergency—a can of salmon—may be used. After removing all the oil, skin and bones from the contents of a small can of salmon, turn it into a saucepan with a tablespoonful of butter and let it become very hot. Then turn in one quart of milk with a little flour to thicken it, stir smooth, add two tablespoonfuls of salt and a saltspoonful of pepper, and when it begins to boil remove from the fire, strain, add a little chopped parsly and serve.

BRAISED CHICKEN.

Wash and peel a large turnip and a large onion, cut them into thin slices, with a little celery, a few sprigs of parsley and a bay leaf. Lay a few slices of fat bacon at the bottom of the pan; place the chicken, trussed for boiling, on it; cover the breast with slices of bacon. Put the vegetables round it with a few bones and one and a half pints of good stock and a little salt and pepper. Cover the pot closely, set it over a slow fire, put red coal on the top and cook slowly. When it is ready keep the meat hot while you strain the gravy and take off the fat; boil up quickly till it thickens.

CANAPES OF ASPARAGUS.

Canned asparagus is appreciated by many. It may be served in various ways. For an entree canapes of asparagus are appetizing. Cut two-inch thick slices of stale bread into rounds with a biscuit cutter. With a smaller cutter mark a circle in the center of each round and scoop the crumbs from it to the depth of an inch. Do this carefully, so that there will be a firm bottom and sides; lay these in a shallow dish and pour over them a cup of milk in which one egg has been thoroughly beaten. This amount of milk will be enough for six canapes; let them stand a moment or two. Then drop into hot fat and brown quickly or set in the oven just long enough to crisp; have ready a pint of asparagus tips; put into a saucepan two ounces of butter and as soon as melted add a tablespoonful of flour; add a half cup of boiling water, let it come to a boil, then put in the asparagus tips, a teaspoonful of fine chopped parsley and the juice of a lemon; fill the canapes with this, arrange on a platter and garnish with parsley, or cress and slices of lemon.

HELPFUL HINTS.

A small teaspoonful of pulverized borax or a teaspoonful of ammonia in a washbowl of tepid water makes a good cleansing bath for the sick.

It is said that thin silk stockings, if worn under the ordinary cotton stockings, will prevent chilblains as well as keep the feet warm.

Lemons are very useful in health and sickness. Hot lemonade is one of the best remedies for an incipient cold. It is also excellent in cases of biliousness. For malaria, the "Roman cure" is prepared by cutting the rind and pulp of a lemon into a pint of water, then boiling until there is only a half pint. One teaspoonful should be taken before each meal. This has cured obstinate cases when turning yellow.

Without care knives not in use soon spoil. Keep them in a box in which sifted quicklime has been placed. The blades should be covered with this, but it must not touch the handles, which should be occasionally exposed to the air to keep them from turning yellow.

When it is necessary to clean windows in damp weather, use a little methylated spirit, and you will polish the windows in half the time, as the spirit evaporates, and dries the superfluous moisture as it goes.

One of the newest and most popular ways to cover a front door panel is with a plain brussels net—white if the woodwork is white; ecru if the woodwork is dark. An insertion of lace is usually sewed on this. Over the panel a thin silk curtain is arranged to draw at night.

All-over lace to be had for draping purposes in all the desirable tints, is much used at present for window hangings where something different is desired. A window seat painted white and cushioned in a rich, old blue corduroy, looks extremely well with this all-over lace of a lighter shade of blue used for the window above.

Violet enameled furniture, with loose cushions of flowered chintz or silk, is on view in exclusive decorators' shops.

Mission styles in furniture, in the characteristic severe designs, are now seen developed in mahogany, but the result is incongruous, to say the least.

Greater New York consumes 1,380,000 quarts of milk a day.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

As Congress has been examining the notion of a whipping post for such husbands in the District of Columbia, as beat their wives; it is pertinent to remark that the day of the whipping post was also the day of the ducking stool for such women as nagged their husbands.

Prof. Bailey, of Cornell University, says that dairying is a kind of manufacturing enterprise. The barn is the factory. Cows are the machines. Hay and silage and concentrated foods are raw materials. The factory should run all the year. The barns must be adapted to the health and comfort of the animals, not merely a place in which to keep them or store them for half a year.

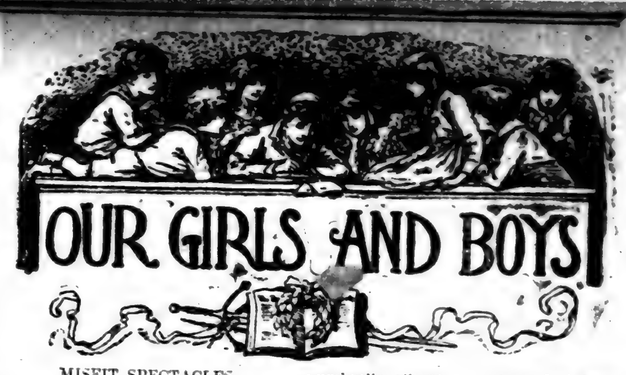
A prominent surgeon of St. Louis takes occasion to confute the popular theory that fruit seeds are the cause of appendicitis. He states that during his nineteen years of experience operating on several hundred cases of the disease, he has found no proof in any case that the cause of the trouble was owing to seeds of fruits. No doubt, the use of certain kinds of fruits has been somewhat reduced by the popular fancy regarding the danger of swallowing the seeds, although leading medical authorities have frequently pronounced the fear groundless, at least so far as concerns the disease of appendicitis.

Maxwell, the irrigation expert, declares that the Government has lost $70,000,000 in the past two years through misuse of the national timber lands. He asserts that the land is going into the possession of sharpers, who obtain it for far less than the timber alone is worth. His remedy is to set apart as forest reserves every acre of public forest land more valuable for timber than for mining or agriculture, and to repeal the timber and stone act, as recommended by the President. At present forest lands are passing into private control at a rapid rate, and like other good things, seem not to be fully appreciated until they are gone.

A writer in Leslie's Weekly thinks that the world is growing better and gives the following reason for so thinking: "A sure indication that the world is growing better is afforded in the change of public sentiment, not only in this country, but in other lands, with reference to the lottery business. Less than half a century ago the lottery device was frequently resorted to in the United States for the purpose of raising money for educational and charitable purposes, and families of the most respectable sort thought nothing of patronizing lotteries for the chances offered in the way of prize dinner sets and other articles for household use. But an enlightened public sentiment, backed up by the law, has done away with all these gambling enterprises, except as they are suffered to exist, under some transparent guise, in church fairs and government land distributions.

There is no place perhaps where at first sight dirt is less avoidable than on the farm, says the Youth's Companion, for the very essence of farm work consists in dealing with the earth, and nearly every farming operation brings the farmer necessarily more or less in contact with the soil. Yet the farmer knows better than most people that what he terms "earth," "soil" and "dirt" do not necessarily mean the same thing, and that there is such a thing as clean earth or clean soil, and on the other hand, soil and earth which are dirty. Of late years bacteriology has shed new light upon these well-known differences, and today science is disposed to restrict the word "dirt" more nearly than formerly to its dictionary meaning, which is "excrement." If this meaning be attached to dirt, then dirty earth is simply earth that has been fouled. On the other hand, clean earth may be really, as it often appears to be, pure and unpolluted; and even garden soil, although frequently manured, may be comparatively clean, for old or rotted manure, as every farmer knows, is very different from that which is fresh.

A woman's club the other day debated the question whether married women should pay their bills. Strange to say, most of the good ladies present were disposed to think that they should not. Even where a woman has no property or earnings of her own to dispose of, it should be a matter of pride with her to pay the debts she incurs in her own person, continues the New York Evening World. To run up accounts at random, leaving it to some one else to settle them when due, is one of the surest ways to cultivate extravagant habits. Thrift is an ornament in every housewife, and the housewife, in spite of all our modern improvements, is the best type of womanhood the world knows. As a matter of fact, the average woman is a shrewder buyer than the average man within her sphere of experience. She knows when she gets her money's worth, and she insists upon having it. Even where she has not learned the value of money by earning it outside the home, she often can teach her helpmate how it is best spent. At any rate, nothing is more certain than that without responsibility she will never learn. The man who relieves his wife of this routine responsibility has no just reason for complaining if her bills are so heavy as to embarrass him.—Evening World.



MISFIT SPECTACLES.

We wondered why the spectacles that help grandpa to read
Would make things, when I put them on, look very queer indeed.
Good reason why his spectacles for me will never do,
For, don't you see, my eyes are brown, while grandpapa's are blue!

—St. Nicholas.

THE MYSTERIOUS PLAYER.

"Molly," mamma called, softly, "don't, dear! Baby's just beginning to get sleepy."

The sharp little patter of trills and scales on the piano kept on, undiminished.

"Molly, stop playing at once!" mamma's voice had the ring of command in it, but the patter of notes still continued. She did not dare to move, for baby's eyes were narrowing drowsily to little blue slits, and they must not fly open again. When at last the noise stopped, they were shut, and baby had landed on Noddle's Island after a long trip on a "choppy" sea.

Molly tiptoed into the room.

"Molly," mamma said, gravely, "didn't you hear me tell you to stop drumming on the piano?"

"Why, I never, mamma!" whispered Molly, surprised. "I haven't been in the music-room a tall!"

"Then it must have been Faith, but it didn't sound like her. She really plays little tunes."

"Faithie's out in the hammock, mamma."

"Why!" mamma said. "And the boys are gone. Who could— Hark!"

The patter of notes again, running up and down the keyboard. Molly's eyes grew big with astonishment.

It was a queer little tuneless jig, with rests and "andantes" and "fortissimos" playing tag through it, and A flats and B sharps stepping on each other's heels.

Then it stopped short. Mamma held out her hand to Molly, and they stole to the music-room door together. No one there. Peter Burr lay curled on the sofa in a doze, not looking at all as if he had just seen a ghost. So the queer little mystery stayed undiscovered until, a day or two after, Molly suddenly stepped right into the middle of it. She was hurrying through the hall when she heard the piano "going" again in the funny way.

"Oh, my!" she thought. "There 'tis playing on itself again—why-ee!"

For she had stopped at the door, and there was Peter Purr playing a tune all to himself! Peter Purr! Who ever would have thought? Molly stood and watched him do it. He leaped from the piano-stool to the keyboard, and whisked lightly back and forth, in great delight at his own music. His soft, padded toes struck the notes gently and made funny trills and quavers. Over and over again the tune played under his feet, and then it came to a sudden end. Peter Purr leaped down to the floor, and before Molly could unscrew the little round "O!" of astonishment her lips made, he was fast asleep on the sofa.—Annie Hamilton Donnell, in Youth's Companion.

A CIGAR-BOX BOAT.

The first thing to be done is to secure a good, strong cigar box and to rip away its lid. Cut two pieces of pasteboard, each the width of the box by one-third of its length, and tack these across the front and back of the opening. This makes a fore and after deck. With a hatchet chop from an umbrella rib two masts a foot long, pushing one through the fore and one through the after deck, and pounding both firmly into the bottom of the cigar box. Take what remains of the umbrella rib, say three inches; lay half of it along the middle of the fore deck, allowing the other half to project; secure it to the pasteboard with sealing wax, and the bowsprit is in position.

Now the cigar box commences to resemble a ship and it is time to begin the propeller. For this purpose, cut from the cover two strips of wood an inch broad, and tack these to the sides of the box just at the bottom, so that five inches stick out at each side of the back of the box. The position of the strips to the box is the position of shafts to a wagon, except that they are behind instead of in front. They must be tacked very strongly. When this is done, run a stout rubber band from the end of one shaft to the end of the other. Cut out of what is left of the cigar-box top a paddle four inches long and an inch and a half wide, and the motive power of the boat is ready. You have only to push the paddle between the two sides of the rubber band, midway between the shafts, and turn it round from left to right until the rubber is twisted tight. When you let go of the paddle it will turn rapidly until the elastic is untwisted, and if the boat is in the water the turning will send it ahead. The stronger this apparatus and the tighter the rubber is twisted the farther the boat will go.

A CIGAR BOX BOAT AND PADDLE.

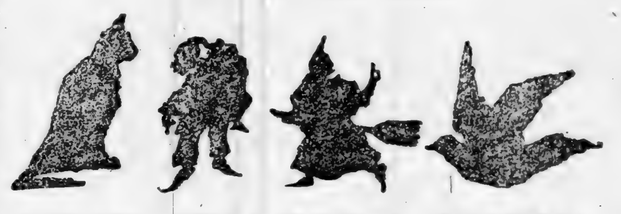
What remains to be done is only to make the box water tight and to increase its likeness to a ship. The first task can be accomplished by calking the cracks inside the box and the holes made by the masts with putty or gum. If neither is handy, light a candle and let the tallow drip into the proper places. Run a string from the mainmast to the foremast, and from the foremast to the bowsprit for rigging, and glue a tiny flag to the top of each. Cut portholes along the side of the boat, or paint them there with ink. A spool can be made to look like a donkey engine, a tiny box will serve as a cabin, and the vessel is ready to be floated. If the work is done neatly the craft will be as trim and as serviceable as an iron toy that would cost from $3 to $10 in any of the shops.—New York Evening Mail.



THE SHADOW SHOW

By Charlotte Shields.

"Come, children," says mama, "you surely must know
'Tis time you were ready to come to the show."
Then we scamper up stairs as fast as can be,
For we know just what mama means, you see.
Our bed is the grand stand, the tickets our gowns,
And the actors all come from faraway towns.
The lamp is turned up until it is bright,
And mama takes paper and crumples it tight,
First twisting it this way, then bending it that,
Pulling it out or pressing it flat,
Till the shadows it makes upon the white wall
Are funniest figures, both short and tall.
Here comes an old soldier, so brave and so true;
And then—the old woman that lived in a shoe!
A Chinaman next with a pack on his back,
And shoes with points as sharp as a tack,
And there is a witch very plainly you see,
She surely is after the Chinaman's tea.
And—well, I declare!—there's Tabby, the cat,
Looking as if she were seeing a rat.
"And the bird," mama says, "with its wings outspread,
Is flying home to its tree to bed;
'Tis time for birdies to be in their nest,
And 'tis time for children to lie down and rest."

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

The UNION and Yellow Jacket, $1.00

The UNION and Home and Farm $1.00

The UNION and Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, $1.25

The UNION and Weekly Atlanta Constitution. $1.50

The UNION and Semi-Weekly Globe Democrat $1.50

The UNION and Saturday News $1.25

SPECIAL OFFER! !

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50 tf

OIL AND POPULISM IN KANSAS.

Kansas Republicans Adopt Populist Ideas Against the Trusts.

Populists throughout the country regard with demure interest the modest strides which Kansas is taking in State Socialism.

That Republican State is to own and operate oil refineries to the end that Rockefeller's Trust may not swallow the earth.

* * * * *

Besides the Kansas State refinery, the Republican legislature favors other things which are almost new under the sun.

No trust, corporation or private partnership shall be allowed to sell cheaper in one place than in another in Kansas—freight being deducted.

All over that State the price must be the same.

Maximum freight rates have been established, oil pipe lines have been made common carriers, and the pumping of Kansas gas out of Kansas forbidden.

Is it possible that we Populists are to find ourselves reduced to a state of mere "eminent respectability" by such thoroughgoing revolutionists as the Republicans of Kansas?—Tom Watson, in his Magazine for April.

AN AX NEEDED FOR THE TRUSTS.

The man who believes that the autocratic class in Russia will give up its advantages without a fight is a superficial student of history, just as the man who believes that the dominating trusts and corporations in these United States can be made, by moral suasion, to turn loose, is an idle dreamer who knows nothing of the greed of class rule. No matter under what name it exploits the people, or under what form it exerts its power, or under what particular system of legislation it usurps control and veils its rascalities, to make it turn loose you must beat it in battle or make it afraid.—Tom Watson, in his Magazine for April.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

The suggestion of Mr. Jasper N. Dennis as expressed in the following letter is very good, and can easily be accomplished by our people, and it would be an ideal way to celebrate our national birthday.

"Clanton, Ala., April 3, '05.

"Editor Union:

"I wish to suggest through your paper that the S. C. A. hold a county meeting on the 4th of July, 1905, and have in connection a double dinner, i. e., a basket picnic in connection with an up-to-date barbecue. Everybody to be invited to come, with their families. To have the best lecturers possible to address the people on the agricultural needs of the day, and other subjects that are strictly non-political. Why can't we give Clanton the largest gathering of its life, and yet make it profitable? How pleasant it would be to assemble the people of old Chilton in one solid body, all working for the advancement of education in agriculture? Hoping to hear from others on this subject at an early date, I am, respectfully yours,

"J. N. DENNIS."

DELINQUENT TAXES.

The delinquent tax list that appears in this issue is the ONLY authorized list for this county, and is the cause of our being a day behind, this week. Collector Hubbard, in his anxiety to save tax payers as much as possible, always waits till the last minute before he will advertise them, trying to avoid the extra costs that accrue to the delinquents.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The court was in session Monday and Tuesday, and transacted the county business; present Com.'s W. H. Conway, Alex Glasscock, Moses Robinson and R. P. Kendrick, Chairman Judge L. H. Reynolds. The court scrutinizes accounts very closely, and every account must be itemized and sworn to. Lawyer Lyman, representing the M. and O. R. R., was on hand, asking for the return of the money the road paid as bridge tax, but the court refused to allow it. This case is a hold-over from Judge Adams' incumbency.

COUNTY COURT.

County Judge L. H. Reynolds held his regular court on Monday, only two cases, both colored, and charged with vagrancy, plead not guilty, but the court found them guilty by the evidence, and sentenced Will Goodgame to 30 days' hard labor and $100 fine; Reb Easley got off easier, he received $50 fine only. The vagrancy law is a hummer if it is enforced, and would soon clean up Clanton's loungers. "There are others."

THORSEY.

The young people "surprised" Charlie Howard at the home of his parents on Wednesday of last week; from expressions heard, all seemed to enjoy the affair; Mr. Howard left for Chicago Friday morning. H. Chr Grefsing, of Birmingham, was here on business last week. Rev. Hutchinson, whose sermons have been highly appreciated by our people, left for the north Friday. Miss Maud Bosworth left for her home in Portland, Ind., on Saturday, stopping for a few days at Birmingham en route. We all bade her goodbye with regret. Nim Turner has gone to Birmingham for a few days and will then proceed to his home in Ridgeville, Ind. There was a large crowd at the concert Friday night and all pronounced it good. Mrs. A. Horn entertained on Friday afternoon in honor of her guest, Mrs. Schaefer, of Burkette, Ind. A large number of our Thorsby ladies were present. Mrs. Dr. Nix has returned from her visit to Southern Alabama. Mrs. J. O. Ray spent Tuesday with her relatives here. Len McFarland arrived from Pensacola Tuesday to pay a short visit to his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Tornblom. Len is one of the crew of the U. S. S. Tacoma. Mrs Emma Kerr and Mr. John Talley were married by Rev. C. K Hilland at the parsonage on Saturday night. We all wish them happiness and prosperity. Several picnics were held near our town last Sunday.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Education met at Clanton on 1st inst., pursuant to call of County Superintendent of Education J. W. Moore. The following business was transacted and being considered of interest to the public, is by order of "Board" submitted for publication: To authorize and empower Supt. J. W. Moore to make monthly payments on contracts of all teachers, upon the presentation of monthly reports properly filled out, and signed by two or more of the District Trustees from each district from which funds are to be paid. Prof. R. A. Rasco was nominated and duly elected president of the Board; (Note.) Superintendent J. W. Moore has been serving as president; the change was made not from any dissatisfaction with Supt. Moore, but because it is not customary for the superintendent to serve as president. A reapportionment of the funds at Ocampo was made. (For explanation communicate with any member of Board.) Eleven children were transferred from District 59 to adjoining district in Shelby Co. Motion to allow contract for a term of four months in summer schools wherever this is best and with approval of State Supt.; carried. Prof. Rasco was elected delegate to the "State Educational Association" to be held in Montgomery, June 7-9.

Moved that all applicants for contracts to teach shall present a written recommendation from the District Trustees of district in which school is to be taught; carried. Board adjourned sine die.

R. A. RASCOE, Chairman.
G. L. SPEER, Secretary.

RANDOLPH.

Many in town Saturday; otherwise things are quiet. Rev. Connell preached to a good congregation at the Baptist church Thursday night. Major Howison carried his last lot of cattle to Selma Monday, making over a hundred head he has fattened for beef the past winter. Y. O. Freeman, of Hubbard, was in town Monday. Prayer service held at Rev. A. J. Lumpkin's Saturday night. Miss Evie Waldrup, of Macedonia, was in town Saturday. Luther Palmer and Dr. Sam Woolley went turkey hunting last week, but failed to hear the turkey. D. H. Hodgins and daughter, Miss Evie, of Pleasant Grove, were in town last week. Mr. and Mrs. Boge Rasberry, of Antioch, were in town Friday. He is an old Chiltonian. T. J. Ward and Z. J. Jones and family spent Sunday in Chilton. We were pleased to read the letter in The Union of last week from beautiful Thorsby. Misses Annie and Maggie MacMillan were in town Monday. Randolph was well represented at Sparks' circus in Maplesville Saturday by Luther Palmer, Dr. Albert Woolley and wife, Marvin Davis, Howard Duke, Morgan Smitherman, Arthur Crawford, Harvey Nix, John T. Weeks and others. Charlie Bearden, of Macedonia, was in town last week. A new bell has been placed in the school house. Rev. D. Z. Merchant and wife were visitors Saturday. W. H. Mahan's family have moved out to their farm west of Mars Hill in Chilton. Henry Veazey was in town last week and carried out a Planet, Jr., plow and a bushel of velvet beans; success to you, Johnnie. E. G. Cofer, a leading merchant of Bessie, was in town Monday. Success to THE UNION, the People's paper.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

BEAT FOUR.

Planting corn is all the go in Beat 4, and you can hear "gee" and "haw" sounding over the hills, and the proud farmer whistles for joy at the thought of 10-cent cotton. Willie Foshee, who's been in Elmore county the past few weeks, spent Sunday with home folks. Miner Littlejohn and his charming bride visited her parents last week. Miss Dovie Smith visited her sister at Lomax last week. Messrs. Arnold Downs and George Driver, of Cooper, are quite frequent visitors at A. Eiland's. J. F. Hayes is all smiles and seems to be in favor of good roads, for he tries to knock the top off those red hills in Beat 9 every Sunday. Mr. Jones, the Photographer from Randolph, was in this community last week. I think all the young men had their "beauty snatched." It sure looked that way to ye writer. Subscribe for THE UNION and get the news.

"LONESOME JOE."

LOMAX.

Editor Union:

Please allow me space to reply to "Observer" of Lomax. It seems he thinks that if we had stock law in Chilton we'd be more civilized. Mr. Observer, don't you know that stock law would cause ill feelings between neighbors who are now friends? What does stock law mean? It means many little children suffering for milk that get a little now, but that supply would be cut off by stock law. I think I've worked in as many stock law counties as "Observer," and I like Chilton best because there is no such law here. I thought but little about stock law until 1897, when I went from Bibb county to York, Ala., and it put me to thinking when I saw those pretty ranges for cattle and none allowed to run out and eat the grass. Why does grass grow? God put it here for some purpose, and cattle, hogs, sheep and goats can eat it, but we can't. We can have good stock, stock law or no stock law—that is left with us. No credit comes to a man for doing what he is forced to do, but give him credit for what he does of his own free will. When the oldest settlers of this county want stock law, I'll give up and hold my peace, but I'll never give back when it is a new comer, for then I've as much right to express my opinion as he has, and he as much as me. Who does the stock law benefit? The man that owns the most land. It does not benefit the renter at all, but if he pays poll tax, why not let him count one in asking for stock law as well as one in voting on it? I guess somebody's stock has been bothering "Observer." Maybe his fence is sorry. I don't know where it is. I've some stock running out, but they won't bother any man's land that has it fenced and keeps his gates shut. If I owned land that wasn't cleared I wouldn't care how many cattle run over it. If I want to live under stock law I'll move to Coosa, Elmore, Dallas, Marengo, or Sumpter, where it may be more civilzed than Chilton. I'll never vote for stock law until the old white-headed settlers want it. They have been here longer than we have, and ought to know what is best for the welfare of the county. As to good roads, we've got reasonably good roads in Chilton. I've worked on the roads in Bibb, Shelby and Jefferson, and on the average we've got as good public roads as any, except Jefferson. Kicking about public roads is mostly done by those that don't work on them. Success to THE UNION.

G. W. JONES.

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

"The Magazine That Has An Idea Back Of It."

Have you heard that Hon. Thos. E Watson, of Georgia, has begun the publication of a magazine?

You know who Mr. Watson is? He's the man who wrote "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," and "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson." He was the People's Party candidate for President last year.

First number of Tom Watson's Magazine was published Feb. 25. It is $1.00 per year. You will miss the most interesting 128-page magazine in America if you fail to subscribe. Now we will send you the magazine and THE UNION, your best county paper, for $1.50 per year for both. Don't delay with your subscriptions, but send them in at once. tf

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

Pearl Payne, Complainant, vs. Rome Payne, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of A. C. Smith, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant, Rome Payne, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Rome Payne, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the UNION, a newspaper published in Chilton county, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Rome Payne, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 15th day of April, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter, a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken taken against him in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.

3-15 4t

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Fever. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 32, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Ratland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
Register.

3-23-05 6t

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM,

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wfii of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Eiland.

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO,
J. W. MOORE,
H. L. DAVIS,
W. O. PERRY,
Committee.

tf

NOTICE!

The Executive Committee of Chilton County S. C. A. is hereby called to meet at Clanton on Saturday, April 8th, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of organizing, and attending to such other business as may come before the body.

tf J. W. SORRELL, Chairman.

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE.
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.

tf. T. M. Driver.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St, THE BIG STORE, Cor. Ave & 7th St,

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes

FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. Alabama

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and Contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Pure Water Prevents Fevers

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

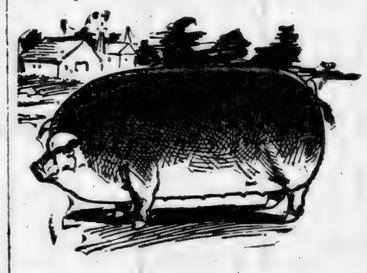
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eggs 50c. Packing for ship 10c extra.



PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices before you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly

LOCAL AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.
Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in November.

L. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.
Term—Second Monday in March.
Term—Second Monday in September.

Judge—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

County Court.
First Monday in each month.

County Commissioners' Court.
First Monday February, first Monday, first Monday June, second Monday July, second Monday August, first Monday November.

County Officers.
Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Clerk—W. T. Callen.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Treasurer—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.
1st District—W. H. Conway.
2nd District—Alex Glasscock.
3rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
4th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.
R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding churches which they would like published. Also if there are any changes in these notices please send correspondence.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Mount Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley, R. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

Mount Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 2nd Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman 3rd Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman 4th Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Mount Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 5th Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Pleasant Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 1st Sunday. J. J. McDowell clerk.

Antioch Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Collins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton clerk.

Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas 2nd Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

Mount Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 3rd Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Verbena Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

Clanton—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; meets before the second Sunday; J. Weathby, clerk, Verbena.

Liberty Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song service every 2nd and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—1st Saturday, Clanton.

Verbena Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 404—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 304—First Saturday, Clanton.

Calera Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 307—First Saturday, Billingsley.

Chilman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 504—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Thorsby Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 504—Saturday on or before full moon, Thorsby.

Maplesville Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 504—Wednesday on or before full moon, Maplesville.

I. O. O. F.

Clanton Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Verbena Lodge, No. 304— Second and fourth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Camp Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Chilton Tribe, No. 90—First and third Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. of R. J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Verbena Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON ...

Total receipts ...
Price on same ...
Total receipts ...
Price same ...

LOCAL ...

J. M. Deason ... day.

The daily ... Clanton R. F. ... tinued.

James M. ... is at work ... lishing touches ... residence, which ... house in our ...

Carey Hull ... Miss Naomi ... Carey ...

J. E. ... Sunday ...

T. J. ... Nat ... county, ... Winston.

John H. ... last. He ... church building ... nearly ... Number ... Spencer ...

At the ... Events at The ... McConnaughey ... Need of Better ... How to Get ... If you want ... you are ... possible ... the average ...

Prosperity ... Circuit Court ... Tuesday ... the ... rest the ... on in the ... hope the ...

Mrs. ... very ill at ... Verbena ... ful of a ...

Application ... for carrier ... last week ... C. L. ... Shaw and ... Jemison ...

W. M. ... Monday ... H. P. ... Wednesday ... Esther, ... the doctor ... C. W. ... for Wednesday ... The ... concert ... Judge ... night. ... wide open ... pie were ... for the ... very helpful ... member ... spirit that ...

MA ...

John ... Johnson ... from ... Mimes ... Watseh ...

Sam ... John ...

BIG STORE, Cor. Ave 7th St.

Head of The Procession.

Clothing, Hats, Shoes

RNITURE,

BURIAL NECESSITIES.

MULLINS,

Alabama

Specialty..

her.

e Reliable.

made to Wear.

OT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

ceries, Flour and Fee

Tobacco and Snuff.

ment Full and Complete.

W. SMITH.

ding Clanton, Alaba

al Insurance Associatio

of Alabama.

PECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

ople and for the People.

County Branch

d February 3rd, 1900.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
Sec'y.-Treas.

Dwellings, Outbuildings and Co ck against Loss by Fire, Wind

Cheapest, Safest and Most

surance Known to Man.

6-100 of 1 percent.

hed upon application to

ACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala

Prevents Fevers

S FURNISH PURE WATE

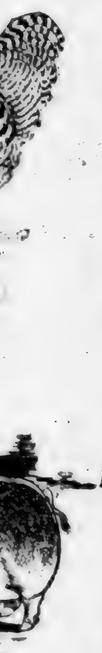
water or no charge mad

Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

ama.

WOODLAW FARM.



Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh egg 50c. Packing for ship 10c extra.

PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices b you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,

Maplesville, Ala

Practical Watchm and Optician

Eyes Correct Fitted

Mail orders promptly

AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.
Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No-

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.
Te—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep
ellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
er—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.
Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.
Monday February, first Mon-
first Monday June, second
July second Monday August,
day November.

County Officers.
of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
urer—W. T. Callen.
—J. M. Morgan
or—J. O. Middleton. ssessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.
District—W. H. Conway.
District—Alex Glasscock.
District—R. P. Kendrick.
District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.
J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.
R. Dail Cabiness.

State Senator.
W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

rs and clerks are cordially ask-nd the editor any news regardr churches which they would
If there are any
n these notices please send cor-

ISSIONARY BAPTISTS.
Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd
E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings-
D. Ng[illegible]

n—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st Sundays. W. J. Mullins, clerk.

nut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason,
nday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

ty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman
nday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

delein—Rev. G. W. Freeman,
nday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
nday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

r Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
nday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

n Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd
J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

ns Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas
nday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

n Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas
nday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

sant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
nday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st
G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

el—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
before the second Sunday; J.
rnathy, clerk, Verbena.

Mount M. E. Church—Rev
pastor 2nd Sunday. Song
every 2nd and 4th Sunday af-
Prayer meeting every Wed-
night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

on R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Saturday, Clanton.

de Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
ourth Saturday, Cooper.

ton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
irst Saturday, Clanton.

Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
irst Saturday, Billingsley.

man Lodge, A. F. and A. M., d—Saturday on or before full Marbury.

Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Saturday on or before full moon,
on.

ton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Tuesday on or before full moon,
on.

I. O. O. F.

Lodge—First and third Sat-ton Lodge No. 304— Second and Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

k Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

ermo Tribe, No. 90—First and Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs lly invited. E. B. Langston, C.
J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

eka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second ourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to April 5, '05, 6,592.
Price on same date, 7 3-4c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 13 3-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

I. M. Deason was in Clanton Thursday.

The daily weather reports on the Clanton R. F. D. routes are discontinued.

James M. Moore, THE PAINTER, is at work in Verbena putting the finishing touches to H. B. Oliver's new residence, which is called the finest house in our county.

Carey Hubbard, wife and daughter, Miss Naomi, were in Clanton Friday. Carey says W. B. Hubbard is quite sick with pneumonia.

J. E. Littlejohn was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

T. J. Dupree has moved from Clanton to Natural Bridge in Winston county, where he will operate a grist mill. We are sorry to lose him, but he is in good republican company in Winston.

John H. Glass was in Clanton Friday. He says that the Methodist church building at Mount Pleasant is nearly completed, and they expect to organize the Sunday school the second Sunday in April. May success attend their efforts.

Anderson Baker, Sr., was in Clanton Monday.

J. M. Grant, who represents Beat 10 on the Executive Committee of the Cotton Association, was in Clanton Monday. He reports having organized the Corinth District last week. Nine members to start with, and many more in proespect. Mr. Grant also took the oath of office as Deputy Tax Collector before Judge Reynolds.

Joseph Glasscock, of Jemison, was a pleasant visitor Monday.

T. J. and Monroe Hubbard were in Clanton this week closing up the tax year.

D.S. Robinson had a bad loss last week, 8 bales of cotton burned and a buggy. The cause of the fire is not known, but the building was quite a distance from the dwelling.

J. H. Popwell was in Clanton Monday.

Judge Reynolds has a new horse (Kentucky bred) and it is a beauty and a fine mover.

Mrs. M. E. Varner died Tuesday morning in childbirth. The infant is living. The deceased resided in Bethel community, Beat 10.

C. N. Kicker was in Clanton Tuesday. He says his mother (Mrs. J. W. Kicker) has recovered from her recent illness.

At the Teachers' Institute that meets at Thorsby April 14-15, Mrs. McConaughey will speak on "The Need of Better School Buildings and How to Get Them."

If you want a good position, or if you want a home, read the notice of Marbury Lumber Company in this issue.

Rev. A. C. Swindall filled his regular appointment in Clanton Sunday. It is announced that Rev. Dr. Montague, President of Howard College and a divine of national reputation, will preach at Clanton Baptist church on the morning of the third Sunday in this month. Every one that can should take advantage of the opportunity to hear this noted preacher. If possible he will preach at Verbena in the evening.

Probate Clerk H. I. Honeycutt and Circuit Clerk Sam W. Collins left Tuesday evening for Florida, where they will enjoy a week's fishing and rest themselves after their arduous toil in their respective offices. We hope the fish will bite well.

Mrs. S. E. Johnson, who has been very ill at her parents' residence, near Verbena, is reported better, and hopeful of a speedy recovery.

Applicants for positionas rural letter carrier were examined at Clanton last week. F. J. Fitts, J. H. Thomas, C. L. Langston, Jim Cobb, Henry Shaw and —. —. Gentry tried from Jemison; and James Hayes from Maplesville. Their percentages will be sent here from Washington later.

W. M. Moore was a pleasant visitor Monday.

H. B. Roper was in Clanton Monday.

John Mims No. 1 was in town Monday and says S. D. No. 29 organized the cotton asssociation last week.

M. F. Lett was in Clanton Monday.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Goodgame left here for Montgomery Monday morning. They keep Frank on the go pretty much all the time.

T. S. Martin was in town Wednesday.

J. N. Williams was in Clanton Wednesday.

Rev. B. H. Vickers was in town Wednesday with his daughter, Miss Esther, who is still under the care of the doctor.

M. C. Williams was a pleasant visitor Wednesday.

The "Ladies Aid" of the Methodist church gave an entertainment at Judge Reynolds' residence Tuesday night. The judge threw his house wide open and some seventy-odd people were there, and the "collection" for the "Aid" was quite large. It is very helpful to a church to have as a member one with the high public spirit that Judge Reynolds displays.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John Talley and Miss Emma Kerr; Johnson Shaw and Miss Zenie Atchison; S. R. Billingsley and Miss Norah Mims; R. A. Davis and Miss Hattie Watson.

Colored.

Sam Williams and Milly Shepard; John Wilson and Lizzie Whitman.

NOTICE!

If you have timber lands for sale, want to buy a good home for $25.00 cash and the balance on long payments to suit purchaser, or if you want a good paying position, write

The Marbury Lumber Co.,
Marbury, Ala.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

The tax collector of Chilton county has filed in my office a list of delinquent taxpayers and of real estate upon which taxes are due. The persons named below or owners unknown are reported as delinquent, and the following real estate is reported as assessed to them, to-wit.

BEAT NO. 1.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co., or Owner Unknown: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 and the E. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 36, T. 24, R. 15. Tax and costs, $5.44.

BEAT NO. 2.

Jennie S. Edler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4, Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.54.

Mrs. L. C. Latham: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 3, T 23, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.49.

W. B. Strong: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 21, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 3.

W. E. Edwards: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 23, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.06.

Mary Jackson: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 4, T. 22, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.19.

BEAT NO. 4.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 34, T 21, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.18.

Estate of Mrs. Lettie Maddox: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 32, T 22, R 15. Tax and costs, $3.13.

Samuel M. Pickler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4, Sec. 35, T 24, R 14; and the E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 31, T 21, R 17; and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 20, R 12; and the W. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 8, T 22, R 16. Tax and costs, $41.05.

The Southern Mineral Land Co., or Owner Unknown: All of Sec. 15, T 24, R 12; and the N. E. 1-4 of Sec 21, T 24, R 12; and the N. 1-2 of Sec 22, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $24.07.

The Magnetic Ore Co., or owner unknown: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 16; and the N. 1-2 and the E 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 23, R 15; and the S. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 23, R 15; and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23, R 15. Tax and costs, $33.75.

BEAT NO. 5.

S. H. Glen: The S. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E 1-4 of Sec. 1, T 20, R 16; and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 20, R 16; and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 20, R 16. Tax and costs, $10.84.

BEAT NO. 6.

J. M. Askins: The S 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 14. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 7.

James Broadnax: The S. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 21, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.56.

Frank Fuller: One house and lot in Ridersville, Alabama, known as the Frank Fuller residence. Tax and costs, $4.58.

BEAT NO. 8.

John V. Coe: The E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 22, T 20, R 13, and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 23, T. 20, R 13. Tax and costs, $6.93.

Mrs. C. Paul: The N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 16, T. 20, R 11. Tax and costs, $7.02.

W. J. Stoudermire: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 18, T 21, R 11; and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 21, R 11. Tax and costs, $4.44.

H. B. & G. B. Shearer: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 20, R 12. Tax and costs, $6.79.

BEAT NO. 9.

J. Amtoft: The N. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 8, T. 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.86.

Mrs. Claura I. E. Collins: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.96.

Paul C. Goetch: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.03.

John Peterson: The N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 5, T 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.74.

R. C. Reinertson: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.90.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of said county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 8th day of May, 1905, and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed against you, and for fees and costs. After decree is granted in each of the above cases, additional costs in the way of tax commissioners' fees will be added and collected. This 5th day of April, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
tf Judge of Probate.

TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS.

The following is a synopsis of a ruling of the United States supreme court in important cases regarding newspaper subscription:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to their former address, subscribers are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of that time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment and all arrearages are sent to the publisher.

7. The latest postal laws are such a newspaper publisher can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under the law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.—Ex.

tf

NOTICE!

The Black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No. 1.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham, has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman, Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results.

tf

Women are said to make excellent postmasters. Kind of know how to look after the males, as it were, comments the New York Mail.

NEWSY GLEANINGS.

The postage rates are becoming one of the burning questions in Italy.

Corrected figures show that the Tobacco Trust made $52,000,000 last year.

There is reported to be a marked increase in wages in Japan since the beginning of the war.

The Japanese Parliament has passed a bill denying the right of mining in Japan to foreigners.

Sweden and Norway are the only countries where practically every grown man can read and write.

In St. Louis, Mo., a servant broke $12 worth of dishes to obtain satisfaction for $3 worth of wages, and the Judge fined her $25.

A London dealer in such wares last year received from India the skins of 6000 birds of paradise to adorn the hats of the feather-wearing British women.

The president of the Automobile Syndicate estimates that about 100,000 persons (including 20,000 chauffeurs) are employed in the French automobile industry.

Experiments are being made in Charlottenberg, near Berlin, with a device for lighting and extinguishing all the street lamps simultaneously from the gas works.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts has unveiled in the Central Synagogue, London, a memorial to the Jewish soldiers who fell in the British army in the South African campaign.

On the occasion of the hundredth anniversary of the death of Schiller (May 9, 1905), the Swiss Government intends to give every pupil in the public schools a copy of that poet's play, "William Tell."

According to a decision rendered the other day by the Supreme Court of the United States, the various boards of health of the State of Massachusetts have the right to enforce compulsory vaccination to prevent the spread of smallpox.

Quality of Thinking.

Real character is not outward conduct, but quality of thinking. The teaching of the Great Exemplar on this point was positive, but the world has ignored its scientific exactness.—Henry Wood.

Two Thoughts.

Consecration is obedience plus love.

Genuine goodness is the most unconscious of itself: "Lord, when saw we Thee an hungered?"—From Sermon by Frank Crane in Union Church, Worcester, Mass.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth."
J. C. JONES,
Clanton. - - - Alabama.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Gelder's Restaurant,
Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

Truth Put to the Test.

Jerry had been taught that it was a sin to lie, so of course he never meant to lie. Whenever he did stretch the truth, which occasionally happened in spite of his good intentions, he did so merely through the exuberance of his lively imagination. One day, just as Jerry perpetrated one of his whoppers, the recently mended heel of his shoe came off. His mother noticed both the accident and the lapse from truthfulness.

"There," she said, severely, "see what happened to you as a result of your wickedness. Hereafter, whenever you tell a falsehood something terrible will happen to you."

"Will my boot heel always come off?" asked Jerry.

"Quite likely. If it isn't that, it will be something equally bad."

For several days after that Jerry talked but little, and what few statements he did make were carefully weighed beforehand. One day upon his return from school he became less cauticus and entertained the family with the account of an incident that had enlivened his trip home. The story seemed quite plausible, and nobody would have even thought of doubting his veracity had not Jerry, after looking at the heel of his shoe, exclaimed triumphantly:

"There! It didn't come off that time! Better look at yours, mama."—New York Press.

Opera in the Golden Age.

The singers of the golden age sang with a totally different purpose from that of the singers of today, and to that purpose their style was adapted. They were singers pure and simple. They had to contend with no obstacles of textual significance. No strange and ear-testing intervals confronted them. The orchestra never obtruded a vigorous independence of utterance upon their ears. And, above all, they were not called upon to unite with the graces of song the interpretative functions of the actor.—W. J. Henderson, in the Atlantic Monthly.

According to the St. James's Gazette is it now "smart" to be superstitious. Hence English society would regret to see an English princess married to an Alfonzo XIII.

Dies on Day of Trial.

Lockhart, Tex.—S. M. Nixon, a prominent politician and lawyer, died Monday of apoplexy induced by nervous collapse. His trial on the charge of murdering R. W. Malone and Capt. J. L. Veasy at Luling in a street fight, a year ago, was set for trial Monday. On the dockets were two suits for $50,000 each filed by the widows of the dead men, growing out of the killing.

Alabama Postmasters.

Washington, D. C.—Postmasters appointed: Gumpound, Winston county, Lee R. Revis; Magnolia Springs, Baldwin county, Wilson A. McCreary; Seloca, Jefferson county, Luther P. Rogers; Sewickly, Lawrence county, James M. Byars; Steen, Wilcox county, Annie P. Tomey. Rural free delivery route No. 2 ordered established May 1 at Ethelsville, Pickens county, serving 436 people and 104 houses.

The Morning Light.

De way wuz rough and de night wuz long,
En de black storm howl eroun',
But mawnin' come wid a sweet, sweet song,
En de light shine down—shine down!

En 'twuz fare-you-well—
De lonesome night,
De worl' done roll
Ter de mawnin' light!

De thorn spring up in de fiel' er wheat
En kiver de harves' groun',
But we gone right on, er de gyardens
En kiver de harves' groun'.
En de light shine down——shine down!

Den 'twuz fare-you-well—
De lonesome night,
De worl' done roll
Ter de mawnin' light!

—Atlanta Constitution.

ONLY A PRIVATE SOLDIER

By MONTE KEENE

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The old woman laid down the paper carefully upon the table and pushed back the cheap spectacles upon her forehead. She looked dazed and shot a glance of pitiful appeal at Mrs. Henderson, who had run in from the room across the hall, to show her the sad news. First Mrs. Henderson had read it to her and she had reached for the paper in a dazed sort of way, as though unable to comprehend the due purport of the other's words. She had put on her cracked old glasses and painfully spelled out the brief line pointed out to her. It was a laborious undertaking for there had been but little time for learning even to read and write in Jane Bradley's hard and pinched life. Finally, however, she had conquered the line. It was only a little line in agate type in a list of dead cabled from Santiago.

JOHN BRADLEY, 37th Infantry; yellow fever.

That was all—only that one little line—but the spelling out of it swept every gleam of hope from the joyless life of the reader. She made no sound and Mrs. Henderson, who had been expecting half with hope and half with fear an outbreak of sorrow, felt both disappointed and relieved.

No outbreak! No there was no outbreak. But that moment if dull Mrs. Henderson had but known it she saw the breaking of a human heart. The old woman, bent and shriveled and worn and faded out was as still as a summer day. Only the fading of the last suggestion of light in her dull gray eyes told of the terrible weight of ice and lead that settled upon the poor old crushed heart. Presently the thin, wrinkled face dropped into the tired, worn fingers and the tears trickled down onto the faded calico gown. Mrs. Henderson gulped spasmodically feeling in some inadequate manner the pathetic tragedy of the moment and quietly slipped back to her own troubles in Number 59.

Her going or staying were of small moment to the old woman in her great sorrow. The overburdened old mind held for a lifetime to sodden things had been released for a brief moment by the awful catastrophe which had overtaken her and this newly clarified mind was filled with a great panorama.

She could not realize at first the dreadful import of the brief line. Johnnie dead—her Johnnie, her only boy, and the image of her husband, dead these many years. It could not be true. Johnnie, ah, how graphically the picture arose before her of the happiest days of her life—really her only happy days, when little Johnnie was playing at her knee and filling her starved heart with his childish prattle, even while she still toiled—but with new energy and new hope and new courage. And she remembered how the childish prattle had nerved her for the fearful struggle which had followed and never since had ceased.

Only that one little line.

The awful nightmare of her husband's death and the narrow margin by which she saved his body from a grave in the potter's field rose before her and her heart warmed as she remembered the comfort and courage it had been to her in those dark hours of unyielding grind and sickening worry and merciless self-sacrifice, to hold the little man-child to her bosom and feel his warm arms about her neck.

To be sure he had not always treated her right—at least so said all her little world, and perforce she had been compelled to admit to herself sometimes that it did seem so. He had been wild and fallen into bad company and instead of being the help she had so fondly counted on his escapades had cost her all her little savings. To be sure neighbors had told her that he was a graceless ne'er-do-well scamp, and that she was a fool to slave for him. To be sure sometimes she herself had thought a little bitterly of him, when ill, weary and heartsick, he had failed to give her a helping hand or even to come to her with a word of cheer.

The tears and the sobs ceased.

But she had reasoned in her great mother heart that the boy had been bereft of a father's care and that the great necessity that always had confronted her had made it impossible to give him the attention she should and would have done. So if he was a little wild was it not her fault and the fault of fortune rather than his.

Anyway she loved him with all the passionate violence of a starved nature and never once did she lose her abiding faith that he would come back to her and be her staff and comfort.

It was a sorry trial, indeed, when he joined the army after the call for troops at the sinking of the Maine, that never once had he come to her. Never once had she seen him in the uniform of his country. Never did poet or painter have vision half so fair as her dreams of Johnnie in his regimentals. For many nights sleep did not visit her ragged cot. The swelling of her heart with the pride of the thought that Johnnie, her Johnnie, was a soldier and a hero forbade sleep and threatened her very life. But the days passed and although the post where Johnnie had enlisted and where he was stationed was near at hand he never came to see her and never had she seen him in his uniform. She had seen many regiments march through the streets on the way to Cuba and as she gazed upon the soldiers so straight and tall and noble she had imagined how brave Johnnie must look and she had wished, ah so ardently, that she might see him in the garb of his country's defenders. But he had marched away without so much as coming to see her or even to write her and with the same sigh of resignation into which all her air-castles had vanished she had taken up her hum-drum life of toil again.

But still the germ of hope had survived in her old heart. He was young and wild. After the war he would steady down and would come back to her and be her comfort and joy. She had clung to that idea with an intensity which stopped little short of mania. That hope was all that enabled her frail body to hang over the wash-tub by day and her trembling fingers to ply the needle by night, all that had enabled her dim eyes to see the work before her, all that kept the fires of life burning within her on the scant food and little sleep she allowed herself.

But now it was all over. That brief epigrammatic notice of his death struck her to the heart as keenly as ever did the loss of the most model boy to loving mother. Johnnie was dead. There was nothing more to work for, to sacrifice for, to hope for, to live for. Through her blinding tears she did not see the form of a man clothed in the Khaki uniform in Cuba, but a pretty blue-eyed boy in dresses. And in her ears rang the prattle of a childish voice. Johnnie was dead; dead and buried in a foreign soil, where she could not have even the poor comfort of mourning over his grave.

The paper dropped from her lap. She leaned forward heavily and her head dropped onto her arm, which rested on the table. The tears and the sobs ceased.

Presently good neighborly Mrs. Henderson came in with a cup of tea and a bit of toast and a cheery word to comfort the stricken mother. Mrs. Bradley did not stir and when the neighbor placed her hand with rough gentleness on her head it was cold and stiff. The tray dropped to the floor and Mrs. Henderson started back with a frightened look and hastily crossed herself.

Mrs. Bradley's earthly trials and struggles were over.

EACH OF THEM LONG LIVED.

Two Friends Have Reason for Fighting the Destroying Angel.

Twenty-seven years ago a friend of the Chicago manager of one of the great life insurance companies of the country took out a policy with the manager. It was an endowment policy, maturing in fifteen years, and as the policy was handed over to the applicant the manager took occasion to remark to his friend that he had made a good investment.

"O yes," replied the friend, quizzically; "the policy is all right. You won't be here to pay it, but I have no fear that I won't get the money."

"I will be here," returned the manager; "I'll hand the stuff out to you in person."

And he did; and when the friend had received his money he took out another policy.

"Of course you won't be here when I come for this one, but I guess it'll be all right," remarked the friend for the second time.

"I'll be here again, Johnny on the spot," reiterated the manager, grimly. "I'll see that you get it—you or your heirs."

Twelve of those years are gone by and every few days the two men meet. The friend is a railroad man and is with the same road that he worked for when he took out the first policy, twenty-seven years ago. The manager is with the same company which issued that same first policy.

"And John is just stubborn enough to be there at the window when I go in for that money in 1907,' says the railroad man.

Napoleon's War Horses.

Napoleon used many horses in his various campaigns, and if we are to believe in the accuracy of Meissonier and other painters who have depicted stirring incidents in the life of the Emperor the steeds were always white.

When in the field Napoleon spent most of his time in the saddle. He was a more impressive figure there than on foot.

History does not record that he had any favorite war charger, and fails even to tell us anything about the horse that bore him on the fateful field of Waterloo. Sloane's history of the emperor says of the closing incidents of that day:

"Throughout the famous charge of his devoted men Napoleon rode hither and thither, from Rossomme to Belle Alliance." And then, at the very last: "Napoleon had become an object of pity—his eyes set, his frame collapsed, his great head rolling in a drowsy stupor, Monthyon and Bertrand set him as best they could upon a horse and, one on each side, supported him as they rode."

But the horse that played this big part in history goes nameless.

Why, Indeed?

Frederick S. Tallmadge, president of the New York Chapter of the Sons of the Revolution, at a recent dinner of the society, talked about children's questions.

"Children's questions," he said, "are always curious, always interesting. I have no sympathy with those who consider them a bore. Indeed, I have more than once seen the ingenious and simple question of a child electrify a whole roomful of languid people, as a cannon shot would do.

"Such a question I once heard asked in a crowded parlor by a little boy of 7 years—a charming little fellow in a blue velvet suit.

"'Mamma,' he piped, in his high, clear voice, that was audible to the remotest corner, 'mamma, tell me, why does papa always scold nurse when you're there, and play hide-and-seek with her when you're away?"

Spread of Electric Power.

The fololwing list of the world's water-power electricity plants shows the aggregate power so obtained in the respective countries: United States of America, 527,467 horsepower; Canada, 228,225 horsepower; Mexico, 18,470 horsepower; Venezuela, 1,200 horsepower; Brazil, 800 horsepower; Japan, 3,450 horsepower; Switzerland, 133,302 horsepower; France, 161,342 horsepower; Germany, 81,077 horsepower; Austria, 16,000 horsepower; Sweden, 71,000 horsepower; Russia, 10,000 horsepower; Italy, 210,000 horsepower; India, 7,050 horsepower; South Africa, 2,100 horsepower; Great Britain, 11,906 horsepower.—London Engineer.

London Likes "Bedelia."

Reporting Sousa's first concerts of his new season in London, the Mail says: "The audience liked a new composition of Mr. Sousa's entitled 'At the King's Court,' but they went into shouts of delight over a rendition of 'Bedelia.'"

ONLY WAY TO GET IT.

Woman Had to Take Lawyer Along With Her Damages.

Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, widow of the famous general, lives in Charlotte, N. C., and the other day a Charlotte lawyer said of her:

"Mrs. Jackson has great talent in persiflage and raillery, and she likes much to air her skill in this direction at the expense of doctors and lawyers. She said to me one day:

"'A friend of mine—a Virginia woman—sued a railroad company last year for $50,000 damages, and last week the case was decided in her favor. She got the money in toto. She got every cent of it. It is all lying to her credit in the bank at this moment.'

"Mrs. Jackson paused and smiled.

"'You think it is incredible,' she said, 'that the woman should have gotten all those thousands. You think that her lawyer, in sending her a check for the money would have deducted $30,000 or $35,000 for his share. Well, the woman got all the money. The lawyer didn't get a cent. She got it all. She got it in the only way.'

"'What way was that?' said I.

"'She married the lawyer,' said Mrs. Jackson."

Up and Down With the Bishop.

Bishop Dudley of Kentucky was much addicted to sport, especially liking to hunt and fish. Once, when on a shooting trip, the bishop chanced to fall in with an old mountaineer, who, according to Representative Ollie James, took a great fancy to his new acquaintance, whom he did not in the least suspect was a bishop. When Bishop Dudley was preparing for his return home he invited the old man to visit Louisville, so that he might hear him preach.

"Preach?" gasped the old mountaineer. "What, you preach! Kin you preach as well as you kin shoot?"

"Much better," responded the bishop, smilingly. "Be sure and come some Sunday. I'll see that you get a good seat in front."

The old man availed himself of the invitation thus extended. At the conclusion of the service he quickly sought out his friend, the bishop, and grasped him by the hand.

"Mr. Bishop," he cried enthusiastically, "I don't know much about your creeds and dogmatics, but I riz and sot with you every time!"

Watching Bees at Work.

Glass hives for the observation of bees at work have been in use for many years, and recently ants' nests have been on view at the Crystal Palace, London; now, a firm in London has actually put on sale a contrivance called "The Lubbock Formicarium," which is really a portable ant's nest, which can be moved anywhere without trouble or inconvenience, and which, it is claimed, will last for upward of six years with ordinary care. The species selected is the small yellow ant, Formica flava, and the nest is inclosed in a frame ten inches square, resembling a picture frame, except that it must, of course, be laid flat and the cover must be kept over it except when the ants are under observation. The nest contains ants in their various stages, and some of the other insects which are associated with or without a queen, and accompanied by full directions as to management. This novelty has attracted much attention and visitors show much interest in the exhibition.

Lost Faith in America.

Joe Grim, the Italian fighter with the iron jaw, was recently drawn for jury duty over in Philadelphia. He had made arrangements to fight Hugo Kelly of Chicago, and there was money in the bout. Joe went to court and said to the judge:

"Excusa me! Means lotto da mon, judge!"

"Are you naturalized?" asked the court.

"Sure! Good American me!" replied the pugilist.

"Nothing doing, then!" remarked the judge. "If you go West to fight you'll go to jail for life when you come back!"

"Mean shame!" cried Joe. "I needa da mon. Wife, she needa da mon. Me, greatest prize fighter in Little Italy loosa da mon. I go to my manag, Mike da Costell. He is a politish. He say sure I'll fix it right. Now he do nothing. Say he go to jail, too. I go myself to all the politish. They givea me da smile. If I go fighta da Kell I go to pris. If I don't fighta da Kell I loosa da mon. America fine country!" And Joe left the court room in tears.

True Greatness.

How sad that all great things are sad—
That greatness knows not to be glad.
The boundless, spouseless, fearful sea
Pursues the moon incessantly;
And Cæsar childless lives and dies,
The thunder-torn Sequoia tree
In solemn isolation cries
Sad chorus with the homeless wind
Above the clouds, above his kind,
Above his bastioned peak, above
All sign or sound or sense of love.
How mateless, desolate, and drear
His lorn, long seven thousand year!
My comrades, lovers, dare to be More truly great than Cæsar; he
Who hewed three hundred towns apart,
Yet never truly touched one heart.
The tearful, lorn, complaining sea
The very moon looks down upon.
Then changes—as a saber drawn;
The great Sequoia lords as lone
As God upon that fabled throne.
No, no! True greatness, glory, fame,
Is his who claims nor place nor name,
But loves and lives content, complete,
With baby owers at his feet.
—Joaquin Miller, in Success.

Development of Butter Industry.

In 1898 the butter hauled over the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad, was 400,000 pounds. Last year it was nearly 14,000,000, the gain coming wholly from developments of creameries along that railroad.

Women are more truthful than men, but occasionally you meet a woman who says she doesn't want to get married.

Chant of the Vultures

We are circling glad of the battle: we rejoice in the smell of the smoke.
Fight on in the hell of the trenches; we publish your fame with a croak!
Ye will lie in dim heaps when the sunset blows cold on the reddening sand;
Yet fight, for the dead will have wages—a death-clutch of dust in the hand.
Ye have given us banquet, O Kings, and still do we clamor for more;
Vast, vast is our hunger, as vast as the sea-hunger gnawing the shore.

'Tis well ye are swift with your signals—the blaze of the banners, the blare
Of the bugles, the boom of battalions, the cannon-breath hot on the air.
It is for our hunger ye hurry, it is for our feast ye are met;
Be sure we will never forget you, O servants that never forget!
For we are the Spirits of Battle, the peerage of greed we defend,
Our lineage rose from the Night, and we go without fellow or friend.

We were, ere our servant Sesostris spread over the Asian lands
The smoke of the blood of the peoples, the ashes he blew from his brands.
We circled in revel for ages above the Assyrian stream,
While Babylon builded her beauty and faded to dust and to dream.

We scattered our laughter o[n] and Troy was a word an[d]
The glory of Carthage was [a] grandeur of Rome was [a]

And we blasoned the name of [T] he harried his herd of [h]
And the host of his hordes [w] dragon with radiant [h]
And we slid down the wind u[p] when the steps of the [c] passed.

When the Bastile bloomed into [a] the heavens went by on [a]
We hung over Austerlitz che[ss] armies was a valiant cr[y]
We, scented through Kings at th[e] and croaked our applaus[e] skies.

O Kings, ye have catered t[o] have chosen to feed us [a]
The joy of the world and h[is] hope of the world and [i] O Kings, ye are diligent l[o] laurel your names with [a]
For ye are the stuff of our [d] ye are the strength of [a]
Then spur on the Fast in the [c]
Give up the day at it's [b]
We tell all the words of th[e] publish the theme with.
—Edwin Markham in Collier's W[k]

Trouble in German Afri

For many months past Germany has been struggling with a native uprising in German Southwest Africa. The kaiser's soldiers, instead of making their difficulties less, seem to be stirring up more trouble all the time until now there is a little uneasiness in portions of South Africa outside the German possessions. White men are asking themselves, "If the other black nations should take up the cause of the Hereros and the Hottentots, then what?" The rebels as a race are warlike. They immensely outnumber the whites. If they were equally well armed and well organized there might be, it is feared, some sort of a replica of the Indian mutiny. One who is familiar with the situation says: "It would be simply suicidal for either the English or the Dutch colonist to become associated with the German officials in their indiscreet proclamation of war to the death against the Hereros and other revolted tribes."

It has been found difficult to name the exact cause of the uprising. One report is that the Herero nation became deeply in debt to wily German traders, to whom they were compelled to turn over great herds of cattle and large tracts of land. Finally were so impoverished that recourse was to take up arms drive the white men out. It is said to have come when man officers shot one of the in cold blood. While the were planning their revenge tentots of the southern end colony took up arms and began ing the settlers. While the of the province was putting rebellion the Hereros took a of the opportunity and began fierce campaign.

Germany has poured mon men into the district until the ure expended now reaches into the millions. The territ volved is as large as the st Texas, New York and Con and it is as arid in some dis the Nevada desert. The hea man troops find themselves embarrassed in their effort t their fleet opponents. The population is about 200,000, not more than 4,000 are wh As usual in such wars tales barbarity are reported. Mas tures and other fiendish acts the list.—Chicago News.

Unearthed an Aztec Sto

If the mate of the ancient Aztec sacrificial stone unearthed last week by workmen excavating for the foundations of the new national theater is not found, it will be one of the few times that this has happened, for antiquarians say that these monoliths usually are found in pairs. In anticipation of finding a second stone, the one exhumed has not been removed to the museum, and archeologists are eagerly awaiting the completion of the excavations to ascertain whether or not the mate will be discovered. It is said that the stones are never far apart, but some forty feet have been dug from the spot where the first was found without upturning the other.

In appearance the ancient stone is not unlike the one in the National museum. It is circular with a diameter of nearly four feet and stands fully two feet and a half high. Around it are sculptured figures of serpents intermixed with crude misrepresentations of fantastic birds and reptiles, the whole being so closely interwoven and done by such unskilled hands or clumsy tools that the figures are unrecognizable except on close examination. The top is hollowed out to a depth of seven or eight inches, ally tapering down from the r the corrugations and cracked bear evidences of extreme h ing been applied at some time the top, and extending down o is a crack, apparently caused but time has filled in the in with dirt and particles of cru stone. In places the surface ped, but the pieces lost are no enough to mar the external ance of the monolith. There hieroglyphics on the stone if t nificance of the serpents and r be excepted.

By those who have examin relic of a past age, it is not but what the workmen have up a genuine Aztec sacrificial Of its age, nothing can be learn cept that it probably belonged same dynasty which used such to torture prisoners captured tle and sacrificed to appease th worshiped by the peoples of th The stone will be left where it the excavations have demon whether or not its mate is neighborhood and then will be to the National museum.—W Herald.

Rhodes Scholars Do W

Writing from Oxford, a correspondent says that the "Rhodians," as the Rhodes scholars have already been dubbed, are winning golden opinions. "They are nothing," says he, "if not thorough. The work they have to do they set about doing no less thoroughly than they set about their play; and even this they are inclined to make into a task. Your typical Rhodian has come to Oxford deeply sensible of the munificence of his benefactor. He has come to learn whatever Oxford may have to offer, and learn it he will. Their work is their work, and their play their play. The one must not, and, so far as I can see, does not, interfere with the other. Into all athletic pursuits the Rhodes scholars are entering with the keenest zest, and recent events bid fair to show that English athletes must look to their laurels.

"Already have Rhodians been chosen to represent their alma mater at cross-country running and Rugby f and the coveted blue and half-b worn by two of the newcomers plan of distributing the s among the various colleges h vented anything much in the cliques. A certain amount of c ness there is bound to be; nor a bad thing, and the su Thanksgiving dinner held in testified to the spirit of unity exclusiveness in which the R have taken up their abode in

"I do not know whether t stant stream of Rhodians will years' time bring about a per change in Oxford undergradua and thought. But anyhow thi is certain. Oxford wants ne in its social, sporting, acade educational life, and the influx undergraduates, which has co ed under such happy auspices. much to bring about a rehab in these matters, which is necessary than desirable."

Six Sayings to Rememb

Out of a large number of quotations selected by its readers the Woman's Home Companion prints the following as the six most helpful mottoes. They are worth remembering:

"There is something better than making a living; making a life."

"Our success in life depends upon our will to do."

"It is never too late to be what you might have been."

"Great principles are in small actions. If we fail in our present circumstances to live nobly, we need not imagine we should have done better on a grander scale. Develop great character in simple duties and in inconspicuous trials."

"To be of good cheer in case appointment; exercise greater toward the erring and make a lowance for the opinions of whose views differ from mi smile more and frown less."

"To be honest; to be kind; a little and to spend a little make upon the whole a family for his presence; to renounce that shall be necessary, and embittered; to keep a few and these without capitulation all, on the same grim condi keep friends with himself—he task for all that a man has tude and delicacy."

W TWO BEAUTIFUL W
PELVIC C
male Weakness Is U ru-na Cures Cata

MRS. MABLE BRADFORD

. Mable Bradford, E Church street, Bar n, Vt., Secretary Whittier Orator Soci rites:
runa is certainly a wonderful medicine the ills of women. I have heard it n of in the highest praise by many, ertainly my experience is well worthy ood word.
began to have severe pains across my about a year ago, brought on by a and each subsequent month brought in and distress.
ur remedy was prescribed, and the way ted upon my system was almost too to be true. I certainly have regained alth and strength, and I no longer periodical pains and extreme lassi-—Mable Bradford.

nds of Women Cured Every by Correspondence—This is t Dr. Hartman Proposes to
For You Without Charge.

n who suffer should read the evi presented here. We have thousands from grateful friends who tell the ry.
he ills that are peculiarly woman's of a catarrhal character. Female e was not understood for many rtman deserves the credit of hav mmed its real cause. It has Truths that Strike

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares u that he knows very little about th lls you. How can he know, where it or how it was blended
—or when roasted coffee loose by th
you expect purity a

LION COFFE
ALL PACKAGE necessity unifo strength and fl
QUARTER OF A CENT
has been the st millions of hom

LION COFFEE
at our factories, your home, has no
teriated, or of comin dirt, germs, or unc

In each package of LION COFFEE ound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon g on head on every package.)
(Save the Lion-heads for valuable pre
SOLD BY GROCERS EVER
WOOLSON SPI

was first used in surgical op in 1846.

Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum
n is Nature's great remedy. Cures olds, Croup and Consumption, and and lung troubles. At druggists, nd $1.00 per bottle.

The Ruling Passion," Etc.
arl of Southesk, who died re was very proud of a pictur erd of Highland cattle he
When he was dying he was esire, carried in a coach to a and the cattle were paraded that he might see them once

e Russian Priest, Gapon.
Gapon, the Russian priest uch a prominent figure just said to be guided in great by this epigrammatic advice n long ago by his father: "Be but do not forget to be a ve the oppressed and remem
the only religion worth living for is justice."

ARD TRICK. Five cards held at the tips of fingers instantly disappear;
stantly produced again from any place desired. Full instructions sent by mail for J. H. Vandershaven, Tavares, Fla.

SOUL'S CURE FOR URES WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS.
Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Thompson's Eye Water

Pe-ru-na

Kidney Pills and felt no b
the trouble c
I had suffere other remed
all."
For sale
cents. Foste

W TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN ESCAPED PELVIC CATARRH BY AID OF PE-RU-NA.

male Weakness Is Usually Pelvic Catarrh. Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. Lizzie Redding, 3134 B Clifton Place, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"I found after trying many different medicines to restore me to health, that Peruna was the only thing which could be depended upon. I began taking it when I was in a decline, induced by female weakness and overwrought nerves.

"I began to feel stronger during the first week I took Peruna and my health improved daily until now I an in perfect health and enjoy life as I never did before."---Lizzie Redding.

s. Mable Bradford, 13 Church street, Bar-a, Vt., Secretary Whittier Oratorio Soci-writes:

eruna is certainly a wonderful medicine the ills of women. I have heard it en of in the highest praise by many, certainly my experience is well worthy good word.

began to have severe pains across my about a year ago, brought on by a and each subsequent month brought ain and distress.

ur remedy was prescribed, and the way ted upon my system was almost too to be true. I certainly have regained ealth and strength, and I no longer periodical pains and extreme lassi-—Mable Bradford.

ands of Women Cured Every by Correspondence---This is t Dr. Hartman Proposes to For You Without Charge.

n who suffer should read the evi-ppearing here. We have thousands from grateful friends who tell the the [illegible] are peculiarly woman's e of a confidential character. Female s was not understood for many Hartman deserves the credit of hav-ablished on a plan of such character. He has made catarrh and catarrhal diseases, including pelvic catarrh, a life long study.

Peruna cures catarrh, whether of the pelvic organs or any other organ of the human body.

Pe-ru-na, a Natural Beautifier.

Peruna produces clean, mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry and a perfect complexion.

The women have not been slow to discover that a course of Peruna will do more toward restoring youthful beauty than all the devices known to science.

Many a girl has regained her faded beauty, many a matron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by using Peruna.

In Peruna these women find a prompt and permanent cure.

Thousands of testimonials to this effect are received by Dr. Hartman every year. The good that Peruna has accomplished in this class of cases can scarcely be overestimated.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. How can he know, where it originally came from, how it was blended—or with what—or when roasted? If you buy your coffee loose by the pound, how can you expect purity and uniform quality?

LION COFFEE, the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES, is of necessity uniform in quality, strength and flavor. For OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, LION COFFEE has been the standard coffee in millions of homes.

LION COFFEE is carefully packed at our factories, and until opened in your home, has no chance of being adulterated, or of coming in contact with dust, dirt, germs, or unclean hands.

In each package of LION COFFEE you get one full pound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon getting the genuine. (Save the Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Canadian Statistics.

The land area of Canada is 2,316,684,071 acres, and the water area 80,483,222 acres, making a total of 2,397,293 acres, which is exclusive of Hudson bay, Ungava bay, the Bay of Fundy, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and all other tidal waters, excepting that portion of the river St. Lawrence between Point de Monts in Saguenay county, and the foot of Lake St. Peter in Quebec county.

Of this total acreage the land occupied amounts to only about one-fourteenth, or 63,422,338 acres, of which 63,334,815 acres is in farms and 87,523 acres in lots. Of the total occupied the large amount of 57,522,441 acres is owned and only 5,899,891 acres is leased. More than one-half of the land occupied is, however, unimproved, the totals being, land improved 30,166,033 acres, land unimproved 33,256,305 acres; of the latter 16,791,835 acres is in forest. The land in field crops amounts to 19,763,740 acres; in pasture, 11,275,556 acres; in orchards, 354,545 acres; in vegetables and small fruits, 116,517 acres; in vineyards, 5,600 acres; in nurseries, 1,561 acres, and in forest plantations, 3,821 acres.

Sex in Bones.

The sex of bones has been much discussed by anatomists and anthropologists. Dr. Brinton some time ago stated his belief that, with the exception of the pelvis, sex could not be determined from an examination of the bones. That is to say, if a given arm or leg bone or rib or skull or all of the bones of a skeleton except the pelvis are found, the sex of the individual cannot be decided with any certainty. Dr. Thomas Dwight, of the Harvard Medical school, who has recently been investigating the subject, agrees with Dr. Brinton's conclusions in the main, but adds that when the fresh bones with the front cartilages in place are obtainable, sex can be determined with some certainty. In the male the heads of the femur (thigh bone) and the humerus (upper arm) are regularly larger than in the female, and this is probably true of the other joints. By careful examination of these articulations the sex can be ascertained in a large number of cases. With old skeletons this test is of course not available.

Oil and Acetyline Lamps.

Oil and acetyline lamps have been depended on chiefly for motor vehicles on account of the great weight of the accumulators hitherto necessary for feeding electric lamps. Dr. Auer, the inventor of the incandescent gas mantle, seems to have overcome the difficulty in a new electric lamp, which has been brought to a commercial stage through a long process of evolution. Tests are claimed to show a marvelous power as compared with other lamps. Two pocket accumulators, the smallest made serve to feed an 8-volt Auer lamp, and this is said to give a magnificent light for a motor car. The weight of the small cells is trifling. The new lamp is much like the ordinary incandescent lamp in appearance, its superior qualities being attributable to the use of certain materials—such as the rare oxides ceria and thoria—employed in the incandescent gas mantle.

Has Abolished the Jury.

That ancient bulwark of Anglo-Saxon justice, the grand jury, is to be abolished in Minnesota. A constitutional amendment for that purpose received 121,000 majority at the recent election. Minnesota is the first place in the Anglo-Saxon world to do away with the time-honored institution.

The Frith of Froth bridge is 8,296 feet long.

Infant Mortality.

Infant mortality is reported to be greater in Prussia than in any other country except Russia. The deaths the first year are 6 to 7 per cent in Sweden, 15 in France and 23.6 in Prussia.

RESTORED HIS HAIR

Scalp Humor Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment After All Else Failed.

"I was troubled with a severe scalp humor and loss of hair that gave me a great deal of annoyance. After unsuccessful efforts with many remedies and so-called hair tonics, a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The humor was cured in a short time, my hair was restored as healthy as ever, and I can gladly say I have since been entirely free from any further annoyance. I shall always use Cuticura Soap, and I keep the Ointment on hand to use as a dressing for the hair and scalp. (Signed) Fred'k Busche, 213 East 57th St., N. Y. City."

Of the 136,561 freight cars ordered for American railroads last year 35,000 were or steel construction.

They Compromised.

"Will you be my wife, Guenivere?"

"No, Charles. I think far too much of you for that. I still want your friendship. Let me be your stenographer. That is the only way in which I can submit to man's dictation."—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY make oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886. A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

(SEAL.)

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Would Shock Her.

"Papa, what would you say if Mr. Fenthertop should ask your permission to marry me?"

"Put your fingers in your ears, my daughter, and I will rehearse a few of the remarks I shall probably make if he ever does."—Chicago Tribune.

Radium Rays.

Both Rontgen and radium rays have given Dr. Koernicke a marked action on plants. Seedlings were retarded and eventually ceased growing, but in some cases revived, after an interval. Germination of bean and turnip seeds was accelerated at first, beans ceasing to develop after a time.

Bismarck Monuments.

At the present moment there are 194 monuments in Germany that have been completed to Prince Bismarck, while forty-four others are in process of construction or are planned.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY

She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It

When a physician tells a woman suffering with ovarian or womb trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for ovarian or womb operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of ovarian and womb trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margret Merkley of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness shooting pains through the pelvic organs, bearing down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said I had ovarian trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well."

Ovarian and womb troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing down pains, leucorrhœa, don't neglect yourself: try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than cost. WRITE TODAY.

GA-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PILES

"I have suffered with piles for thirty-six years. One year ago last April I began taking Cascarets for constipation. In the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and at the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. Cascarets have done wonders for me. I am entirely cured and feel like a new man." George Kryder, Napoleon, O.

Best For The Bowels

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.

Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y.

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

500 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

United States Government is spending $16,000,000 on New Naval Station, adjoining which we offer 100 Lots, to first 100 purchasers at low price of $250 each. Send $5 to-day and secure best unsold lot. Balance $5 monthly. New electric railway building through property. $50,000 viaduct, many factories and improvements building in same neighborhood. Their completion will advance price five hundred per cent. MEXICAN GULF LAND COMPANY, 909 Hib. Bank Bldg., New Orleans, La.

Bryant & Stratton

Business, Shorthand and Telegraphy College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

GOOD POTATOES BRING FANCY PRICES

To grow a large crop of good potatoes, the soil must contain plenty of Potash.

Tomatoes, melons, cabbage, turnips, lettuce—in fact, all vegetables remove large quantities of Potash from the soil. Supply liberally by the use of fertilizers containing not less than 10 per cent. actual Potash. Better and more profitable yields are sure to follow.

Potash

Our pamphlets are not advertising circulars booming special fertilizers, but contain valuable information to farmers. Sent free for the asking. Write now.

GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—93 Nassau Street, or Atlanta, Ga.—22½ South Broad St.

Am. 14, 1905.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS. FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES. Standard Goods Only. Free Catalogue to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

YOUR FEET

Will give you best service in proper Shoes. Ask your dealer to fit your feet with shoes which will give you Comfort, Style and Longest Wear. The Right Shoe for all sorts of wear will be found in

"ALWAYS JUST CORRECT"

CLOVER BRAND SHOES

If your particular dealer really means to give you YOUR MONEY'S WORTH he will sell you CLOVER BRAND. Buy a pair of "AMIGO" SHOES today

Wertheimer-Swarts Shoe Co.

LARGEST FINE SHOE EXCLUSIVISTS

ST. LOUIS, U. S. A.

Get Premiums with Your Baking Powder

Buy Good Luck Baking Powder and get the beautiful premiums we are offering absolutely free. Good Luck is unquestionably the purest baking powder possible to manufacture. Bread made with it is light, white, wholesome and nutritious. It keeps longer and better than other baking powders and raises the batter quickest and very thoroughly. Good Luck is only 10c a pound. By giving the best at the lowest cost Good Luck is now being shipped in car load and train load lots to all parts of the country. It is the idea of getting these beautiful presents free, in addition to the high quality and low price, that makes this a remarkable premium offer is packed in 6 oz. and 1 lb. cans. The coupons necessary to get the many useful gifts, are printed on the label of each can. Cut out these coupons. Save them. A few of them will get you a handsome free premium. For details read the little book to be found in every can. Don't forget to ask for Good Luck next time. Save worry, save money, and last but not least save the coupons and get the beautiful gifts. If your grocer doesn't sell it, send us his name and we will see that you are supplied.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

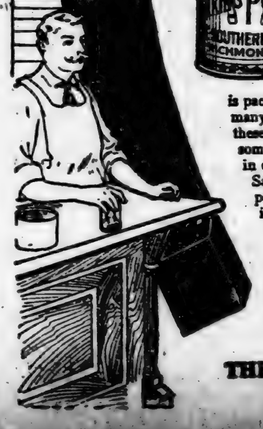
This is the coupon found on every can.

THE SOUTHERN MANUFACTURING CO.
RICHMOND, VA.



Thompson's Eye Water

CONSUMPTION FIGURE FOR 25 CTS. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Quick Sure. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

Was [illegible] used in surgical op-[illegible]

[illegible] Remedy of Sweet Gum [illegible] Cures [illegible] and Consumption, and [illegible] bottles. At druggists, [illegible] per bottle.

The Ruling Passion," Etc.

Earl of Southesk, who died re-was very proud of a pictur-ed of Highland cattle he When he was dying he was, esire carried in a coach to a and the cattle were paraded that he might see them once

e Russian Priest, Gapon.

Gapon, the Russian priest such a prominent figure just said to be guided in great by this epigrammatic advice m long ago by his father: "Be but do not forget to be a ve the oppressed and remem-the only religion worth living s for is justice."

ARD TRICK. Five cards held at the top of [illegible] instantly disappear; entirely [illegible] again from any place desire. Full instructions sent by mail or J. H. Vanderhaven, Tavares, Fla.

Long-Lived Lawsuit.

A lawsuit between the families of the Count de Torres-Cabrera and the Marquis Siana, which has occupied successive courts for 388 years, it has been officially announced, will be decided finally by the Madrid Court of Cassation in January, 1907.

Speeches by Gramophone.

To the native population of India Lord Curzon is sending a message in the form of a gramophone record, with a translation of his words into the provincial dialects.

THE STRAIN OF WORK.

Best of Backs Give Out Under the Burden of Daily Toil.

Lieutenant George G. Warren, of No. 3 Chemical, Washington, D. C., says: "It's an honest fact that Doan's Kidney Pills did me a great lot of good, and if it were not true I would not recommend them. It was the strain of lifting that brought on kidney trouble and weakened my back, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have lifted 600 pounds and felt no bad effects. I have not felt the trouble come back since, although I had suffered for five or six years, and other remedies had not helped me at all."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WANTED

EVERY ONE TO KNOW THAT I AM

HEADQUARTERS

FOR

High Grade Flour, Feed of all Kinds.

A LARGE LINE OF

Fancy Groceries, Men's Suits, Boy's Suits, Pants and Overalls

Dry Goods, Notions, Hardware, Farming Tools, Harness, Etc. We Guarantee Prices as Low as the Lowest . . . .

Kind and Courteous Treatment to All

Come and See Me and be Convinced

W. N. HORNSBY

THE BIG STORE THORSBY, ALA.

Our Girls

By Harriet Lane Wallace.

MUCH has been said in regard to the education and training of our boys, but very little has been said on the subject of —Our Girls.

When a boy reaches the years of manhood, he is given the choice of some trade or profession. Not so with our girls; they are immediately launched into society when they reach the age of womanhood, and she who fails to secure an "eligible match" drifts into a confirmed spinster, becomes utterly dependent on some relative, or that most indulgent of relatives, "a rich papa."

And why not give our girls a trade or profession? Why not teach them that grand lesson of life—"Work and Independence?"

Life is a wheel of fortune. The dainty daughters of fashion may one day exchange places with the tired daughters of toil. Wealth, fame and fortune may fade like a summer dream.

Mothers, do not be proud of your daughters' snowy hands; better far are the hardened hands of toil—better are the tired feet of the working girl than those that rest on silken cushions.

ments; instead of sending them to a fashionable dressmaker. There is plenty ments; instead of sending them to a fashionable dressmakr. There is plenty of work that can only be done by a woman's hand. Fie upon you, mothers! Are we going to let our sex drift into utter dependence? Are we always to look to the "lords of creation" for our support?

No—emphatically, no! Teach the girls to work, to rely upon themselves, and we will find that in place of the languid, idle daughters of wealth, fond mothers, true wives, noble, whole-souled women will spring from Our Girls.

You, dear, kind papas, remember that fortune is capricious; that among the "bulls and bears" of Wall Street you may become a pauper. Then teach your daughters to become workers, that they may each say before the world, "I am independent, and have become so by my own exertions."—New York Weekly.

Intelligent Mercy

How the Head Works With the Heart in Modern Charity.

By Henry van Dyke.

WITH the increase of money devoted to charity comes always of using it for the real benefit of mankind. Reckless almsgiving is recognized as an amiable but idiotic form of self-indulgence. The penny dropped into the beggar's hat gives place to an inquiry into the beggar's condition. This costs more, but it is worth more. Waste in money given is no more virtuous than waste in money earned. Schools of philanthropy are established to study and teach the economy of generosity. Asylums are investigated and supervised. Relief funds are entrusted to responsible committees, who keep books and render accounts. Men and women are trying to take the head into partnership with the heart in beneficence. A rich father and mother lose their child by scarlet fever; they give a million dollars to endow an institution for the study and prevention of infectious diseases.

An excursion steamboat is burned in New York harbor and a thousand people, most of them poor, lose their lives; within two weeks $125,000 is given for relief; it is not thrown away with open hands, but administered by a committee with as much care as they would bestow on their own affairs; every dollar is accounted for and a balance of $17,000 it left, to meet future calls, or to be devoted to some kindred purpose. These are illustrations of intelligent mercy.—Everybody's Magazine.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Tong Shin Ye has been appointed Chinese Ambassador to England.

Senator Monefee, of the Oklahoma Legislature, spent most of his boyhood days among Indians.

Charles H. Treat has just been confirmed as Assistant United States Treasurer at New York.

United States Senator-elect George S. Nixon, of Nevada, was a telegraph operator twenty-six years ago.

"President Roosevelt," writes Walter Wellman, "is the most versatile man we have had in the White House in recent years."

Rear-Admiral Silas Wright Terry, who has been placed on the retired list on account of age, served on various vessels during the Civil War.

It is said in Washington, D. C., that some time in the coming summer this country will be visited by Somdech Shah Chulalongkorn, King of Siam.

Former President Steyn, of South Africa, who is now in Paris, is still paralyzed in the hands, and can not keep his eyes open long without pain.

In 1830 John Jacob Astor was the only man in New York who was worth $1,000,000. Now the entire Astor estate is rapidly approaching the billion-dollar mark.

The engagement is announced of Count von Alexander Haizfeidt-Trachenberg, attache to the German Legation at Tokio, to a Japanese girl, a daughter of Viscount Aoki.

The grave at Pirbright of the late Sir Henry M. Stanley is soon to be marked by a monolith twelve feet long, four feet wide, two feet six inches in thickness and weighing six tons.

Senor De Cologan, the newly appointed Spanish Minister to Washington, D. C., is the scion of an old Irish family, whose heads removed into Spain after the battle of the Boyne and became naturalized Spanish subjects.

English travelers are coming over in increasing numbers every year, and if the distances were as short or expenses as little as travelling on the continent we should get more of them remarks the Baltimore Herald. What has contributed as much as anything else toward compeling compliments from the English, who are slow to admit good things in other people, is the knowledge that the American men and women can take care of themselves anywhere and under almost any conditions. They like our independence, which, as sensible Americans themselves admit, is often made to appear unattractive, and they like our honesty and courage. Said an observant Englishman: "It is easy to look down upon the American, but the serious trouble is to get him to look up to you."

EMPEROR AT TANGIERS

Has a Busy Day and Makes a Flying Visit to Gibraltar Also.

FEARED AN ANARCHIST PLOT.

Every Precaution Was Taken In Morocco—Emperor Remained Two Hours.

Gibraltar—The steamer Hamburg, with Emperor William on board, arrived at her moorings here at 6 p. m. As she entered the harbor the British Mediterranean fleet hoisted the ensign, the blue jackets manned the ship and the war vessel fired a royal salute. This was followed by a salute from the batteries. The fleet and the land stations were dressed with bunting in honor of the imperial visitor. The governor, Field Marshal Sir George Stuart White and his staff, immediately went on board the Hamburg and welcomed his majesty.

Owing to the lateness of his arrival here Emperor William decided to omit the drive through the town which had been arranged for. At 8 o'clock attired in a British field marshal's uniform, the Emperor landed and was received by Major Agnew and the German consul. He inspected the guards of honor, the Yorkshire infantry, and the Munster fusileers, which were drawn up at the convent, the official residence of the commander-in-chief where Governor White gave a dinner party to present guests in honor of the Emperor with a garden party, and reception afterwards. Meanwhile the German consul gave a dinner to a lareg party from the Hamburg.

Collides With British Warship.

Gibraltar—The German cruiser Prinz Friedrich Karl, escorting the Hamburg American liner Hamburg with Emperor William on board, collided with the British battleship Prince George in going alongside the new Mole here. The damage was slight.

Flying Visit to Tangier.

Tangier—Emperor William, of Germany, paid a flying visit to Tangier, remaining barely two hours on shore. The elaborate programme for his reception and his entertainment was much changed, the Emperor confining himself to a visit to the German legation, where he received deputations of Germans in Morocco. The changed plans caused much comment and disappointment. The Emperor had been expected to land about 8 o'clock, but this was detained about three hours.

Meanwhile Count Tatternbach-Ashold, former German minister to Morocco, returned to Hamburg before the Emperor landed. It was officially explained that the reason for this procedure was the roughness of the sea, but after the departure of the Hamburg it was stated on good authority that Emperor William, having heard that there was a possibility of an anti-French demonstration on the occasion of his visit, desired to avoid such an incident.

Every Precaution Was Taken.

Another report which, however, has not received official confirmation, but is generally accepted, states that the German legation was informed that an anarchist plot had been discovered, and advised that the Emperor be dissuaded from landing. Count Tattenbach-Ashold visited the German legation and interviewed the Moorish authorities, and afterwards notified his majesty that every precaution had been taken, but advised that the programme be confined to a visit to the legation.

Notwithstanding the shortness of his majesty's stay in Tangier, the occasion will certainly be marked as one of the most brilliant and picturesque in the history of this pretty seaport. The Moors exhibited unwonted enthusiasm, and no untoward incident occurred. His majesty appeared to thoroughly enjoy his visit.

William Had an Object.

London, England.—According to some special dispatches from Tangier, Emperor William, in the course of his speech at the German legation, said:

"There is no prepondering influence in Morocco. Germany must enjoy the same rights of other powers. We guarantee that the sovereignty of Morocco shall be maintained."

This rather defiant version is probably a too free translation of the Emperor's words, but it serves as a peg upon which London newspapers hang further querilous editorial observations and criticisms as to the meaning of the visit.

The Times' Tangier correspondent says:

"It is impossible to deny that the Emperor's visit, which the world wished to consider as that of an imperial tourist, has been an immense political demonstration. Nobody who saw Tangier, today garlanded with flowers and be-flagged until the very houses were scarcely distinguishable, could doubt that such expenditure and trouble meant more than merely a courteous welcome."

Remains Laid to Rest.

Lexington, Va.—The remains of Miss Mildred Lee, youngest daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, were Friday placed in a crypt of the Lee mausoleum at Washington and Lee university. The other members of the family buried there are her father, mother and one sister, Miss Agnes Lee. Funeral services were held in R. E. Hill Episcopal church at 11 o'clock, conducted by the rector, Dr. Robert J. McBride. Eight students of Washington and Lee university acted as pallbearers. The remains were escorted from the church to the mausoleum on the university campus by the corps of Virginia Military institute cadets and a large concourse of sympathizing relatives and friends. The floral tributes for Confederate organizations of various sections of the south were numerous and elaborate.

Three Killed in a Fray.

Collinsville, Ill.—In a three-cornered shooting affray here Mrs. John Berta and Barney Vosall were killed and John Berta, husband of the women, was slightly wounded. Berta was released from custody on the coroner's jury verdict of justifiable homicide. Berta owns a saloon, and Mrs. Berta was in the place when Vosall entered and began a quarrel with her. Vosall drew a revolver and began shooting at her. She also seized a revolver and returned the fire. Just as Mrs. Berta fell dead with a bullet through her brain Berta rushed in, attracted by the shooting, and was slightly wounded by a bullet from Vosall. Berta shot Vosall dead.

To Test Validity of Bonds.

Topeka, Kan.—The validity of the Standard Oil refinery bonds, will be tested. This was decided at a conference in which Governor Hoch, Treasurer Kelly, Warden Jewett, Attorney General Colman and Assistant State Auditor Nation participated. This was the day set by Treasurer Kelly and Warden Jewett to open the bids for the $210,000 worth of bonds. There were eight bids from bankers and bond brokers in various parts of the country, including New York, Boston, Topeka and Wichita. Seven of the bidders wanted the entire issue.

Killed by Old Shotgun.

Memphis, Tenn.—Mrs. Nellie Burris, wife of Robert Burriss, a well-known farmer, has been instantly killed by the accidental explosion of a shotgun while crossing a field in the suburbs of Eureka Springs, Ark.

A small child that was accompanying her mother dragged the shotgun back to the house and reported that her parent had fallen asleep. Search was made, which resulted in the finding of Mrs. Burris' body.

Fire in New Orleans.

New Orleans, La.—A fierce fire in the building at 124 Chartres street, occupied by Kahn, Brunner & Co., hats and millinery, threatened the big Godchaux building on Canal street Thursday. Repeated alarms brought out the full department, however, and checked the spread of the blaze. The Kahn, Brunner & Co. building was badly damaged and the stock destroyed.

Five Thousand Steers Sold.

Kansas City, Mo.—Five thousand head of half-bred Herford and Mexican steers, two and three years old, were sold by John Pinnell, agent of the T. O. (Riverside) ranch, state of Chihuahua, Mexico, to the Empire State Cattle Company. William H. Sheehan and J. D. Carr, of South Dakota, at $14 per head, one of the largest sales of the year. The cattle will be shipped to Evarts, S. D.

Thousands Held as Prisoners.

Berlin.—Dr. Steuben, director of the colonial office, replying to a question in the Reichstag today, said that 4,903 men, women and children were so far prisoners in concentration camps in German southwest Africa. The government, he added, had no intention as reported of disarming the Ovambos, who had attacked and destroyed Portuguese column.

Propose to Build New Road.

Tapma, Fla.—R. C. Caples and William F. McCombs, Jr., of New York, arrived here tonight to secure terminal facilities for the railroad which they and their associates, New York capitalists, propose building from Tampa to Tallahassee. They will apply for a charter for the proposed road next week.

Burglars Enter Store.

Anniston, Ala.—The store of E. B. Davis at Rock Springs was entered by burglars and the safe blown open, but little of value was secured beyond some merchandise.

Nineteen Hanged With Same Rope.

Fort Worth, Tex.—B. H. Young, colored, was hanged at Waxahatchie Friday for the murder of Alburtis Moore. One hundred and fifty persons were present in the stockade when the hanging occurred, and 250 outside. Young is the nineteenth man hanged with the rope which was especially made for Former Sheriff Stewart, of Johnson county, for the execution of John B. Shaw in 1898.

May Cause Another Rate War.

Liverpool, Eng.—There are rumors of fresh friction between the Cunard and the other steamship lines tending to lead to another rate war.

Three Killed.

Huntington, W. Va.—On Sandstone creek, in Mingo county, a boiler in a small saw mill owned by Walter Farrell blew up, killing three men and injuring two others.

Thors

Business Dir

Commercial

OF THORSB

DEFINITE and R

information furnished

who desire to locate in

A. M. John

Groceries and Deli

J. J. STA

GENERAL

MERCHANDI

MRS. MARY R. RA

General Mercha

G. W. Fre

SHOES, ET

Soda Fount, Cold D

and Cigars.

Thorsby W

—Co.—

Lofthus & Brombe

A. HOR

Drugs, Stationery a

Articles.

LICENSED PHAR

A. Malmg

Watchmaker &

E. H. Ada

General Merch

Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORN

General Mercha

J. R. PARN

General Mercha

J. L. FO

Meat Mark

Mrs. M. E.

Millinery and N

The Thorsb

G. C. Michelso

Good Beds and

A Langville

BLACKSM

and

HORSESHO

Dealers in

WAGONS and B

C. L. For

Brick Ya

J. BIC

Charcoal C

TH

VOL. III.

GENERAL STATE

Current News Garnered as It the Plant of Report

ung Lady Kills Lover and Self.

tsville, Ala.—H. A. Ballard, a employe of the Merrimac Manuing Company, was shot and fawounded by Miss Oma Harding. en turned the weapon upon her- and fired a bullet through her She died instantly.

tragedy occurred on the front of the boarding house of Mrs. Wheeler, where Ballard had gs. Miss Harding went to ouse and sent word for Ballard e down. He came to the front and she opened fire on him with alibre pistol, the first shot passfo his left breast at the nipple. rned and ran through the hall, er shot being fired at him, and the kitchen. The woman then herself and fell dead on the llard has not been allowed to a statement yet, and nobody has found who knows anything about use of the tragedy. The princi- have been going together for time, and it is presumed that it the outcome of a lovers' quarrel. Harding was an operative in the of the Merrimack Company and one of the belles of the village. was about 21 years old, and came a year ago from some town in ssee.

s Harding came to Huntsville morning, and it is supposed that ought the pistol. She boarded a n town and went straight to the g man's boarding house in Merrillard died from the wound in- d by Miss Harding after being to the hospital. He was uncon- most of the time.

e chief of police received a mes- from Bristol, signed by Mrs. J. I. inquiring about the tragedy and g Ballard is a nephew of Gov- Cox, of Tennessee.

Improvements at Decatur.

catur, Ala.—Improvements to the t of $15,000 or more will be made ce on the Louisville and Nash- railroad shops in New Decatur, contract having been given to lie Jones, of New Decatur. The ipal building will be a pattern a two-story structure of brick by 60 feet. There will also be other improvements on these e New Decatur shops are now and been for some time the greatest s of the Louisville and Nashville m, and these additional extenwill make of them one of the est railroad shops in the United es. Work on these additions will nence at once and will be pushed mpletion.

Making Transcripts in Case.

niston, Ala.—In the office of the al clerk transcripts are being pre- in the cases of T. G. Bush et al., ees of the Southern Car and dry Company. These cases were the federal court in November, were dismissed on motion, Judge min holding that he was without diction. The cases are to be ar- on appeal before the United es supreme court. In the case st J. M. Elliott, Jr., the amount ved is $150,000. In the case st the Elliott Car Company the nt claimed is $100,000.

Dies From Burns.

bile, Ala.—Mrs. M. H. Tucker, ing five miles west of the city at ge Hill, died from the effects of received from her clothing ing fire while she was burning Building More Sidetrack.

sley, Ala.—The Southern Railway built one mile and a half of addil sidetrack at Ensley among the industries, in order to have bet- cilities for handling the immense ge at that point. The traffic furd by Ensley is enormous and ing larger every month.

Wetumpka Progress.

etumpka, Ala.—The city of Weka will soon commence the conion of the electric light plant and works. The contract for the plant has been awarded, and the piping for the water mains purd. When completed Wetumpka have a first-class lighting plant efficient water works with a natpressure of eighty-five or ninety ds to the square inch.

Boy Hanged for Assault.

arlotte, N. C.—Walter Partridge gro boy 20 years of age, was d at Fayetteville, N. C., for a nal assault upon Mrs. Lillie I. , a white woman.

Thou

Tuscaloo

one of over comm

pened her

A. J. Lind victim.

Mr. Lin

Tuscaloosa

early seen his horse near the found the latter

he had car

the river a tion is the tacked, on

Mr. Linde

found as was thrown when disc rides in it stains we

One theo

just been

Mr. Lindgre

tion of bein him in a s

ery is supp

negro has belief is,

the motive despised th

tolerable

Fre

Selma, A

on the Sou

long appro

Tombigbee

lis. It is t of the box break in seven freig reported th

the report traffic of for several from Meri around by that the bri

west-bound afternoon.

Huntsvill

McClelland

rested her charge of

he had arr

painter of cer came rant for in Houston

Will Vin

visiting off

man. Re secured in Clelland w leave with lives of V

plied for

McClelland

catch a tra stable Wat resting hi kidnapping

he was a would will but as a c allowed to gard in th

Birmingh

ployed at twelve mi

caped deat ore got loos back into way, but n car passed pieces at t

Page was his ribs w wise painf tally.

Troy, A name of the yeome

very seri that he w in trying had his f was neces

Sn

Jacksonv o'clock Th

mometer from 55 de

Jacksonvill

the fall of panied by

Immediat

temperatur

the weathe

Mining

Tuscaloo

Mining Co

a notice o capital sto rators are

Hooper an

Thorsb
Business Dire
Commercial
OF THORSBY DEFINITE and RE
information furnished
who desire to locate in
A. M. John
Groceries and Delic
J. J. STAN
GENERAL
MERCHANDI
MRS. MARY R. RA
General Merchan
G. W. Free
SHOES, ETC
Soda Fount, Cold Drink
and Cigars.
Thorsby Wi
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromber
A. HOR
Drugs, Stationery a
Articles.
LICENSED PHARM
A. Malmgr
Watchmaker &
E. H. Ada
General Merch
Fine Line of Shoes.
W. N. HORN
General Merchan
J. R. PARN
General Merchan
J. L. FOS
Meat Mark
Mrs. M. E. W
Millinery and N
The Thorsb
G. C. Michelso
Good Beds and
A Langville
BLACKSMI
and HORSESHO
Dealers in WAGONS and B C. L. For Brick Ya
J. BIC
Charcoal O

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. III. CLANTON, ALA., APRIL 13, 1905 NO. 3

GENERAL STATE NEWS.

Current News Garnered as It Falls From the Plant of Report.

oung Lady Kills Lover and Self.

ntsville, Ala.—H. A. Ballard, a employe of the Merrimac Manuring Company, was shot and fawounded by Miss Oma Harding, hen turned the weapon upon herand fired a bullet through her She died instantly.

e tragedy occurred on the front of the boarding house of Mrs. Wheeler, where Ballard had ngs. Miss Harding went to ouse and sent word for Ballard me down. He came to the front and she opened fire on him with calibre pistol, the first shot passinto his left breast at the nipple. urned and ran through the hall, her shot being fired at him, and n the kitchen. The woman then herself and fell dead on the llard has not been allowed to e a statement yet, and nobody has found who knows anything about cause of the tragedy. The princi- have been going together for time and it is presumed that it the outcome of a lovers' quarrel. Harding was an operative in the of the Merrimack Company and one of the belles of the village. was about 21 years old, and came a year ago from some town in iss Ballard came to Huntsville morning, and it is supposed that ught the pistol. She boarded a in town and went straight to the g man's boarding house in Merrillard died from the wound in- ed by Miss Harding after being n to the hospital. He was uncon- us most of the time.

he chief of police received a mes- from Bristol, signed by Mrs. J. I. inquiring about the tragedy and ng Ballard is a nephew of Gov- Cox, of Tennessee.

Improvements at Decatur.

ecatur, Ala.—Improvements to the nt of $15,000 or more will be made nce on the Louisville and Nash- railroad shops in New Decatur, contract having been given to the Jones of New Decatur. The ing building will be a pattern a two-story structure of brick by 50 feet. There will also be e other improvements on these s.

he New Decatur shops are now and e been for some time the greatest s of the Louisville and Nashville m and these additional extenwill make of them one of the est railroad shops in the United s. Work on these additions will menced at once and will be pushed completion.

Making Transcripts in Case.

nston, Ala.—In the office of the ral clerk transcripts are being pre- in the cases of T. G. Bush et al., ers of the Southern Car and ry Company. These cases were e the federal court in November, were dismissed on motion, Judge ston holding that he was without diction. The cases are to be ar- d on appeal before the United s supreme court. In the case s. J. M. Elliott, Jr., the amount ved is $150,000. In the case Elliott Car Company the unt claimed is $100,000.

Dies From Burns.

ville, Ala.—Mrs. M. H. Tucker, ing five miles west of the city at ase Hill, died from the effects of s received from her clothing ing fire while she was burning Building More Sidetrack.

sley, Ala.—The Southern Railway s nearly one and a half of addi- track at Ensley among the ments, in order to have bet- facilities for handling the immense ess at that point. The traffic furnished Ensley is enormous and ases every month.

Wetumpka Progress.

umpka, Ala.—The city of We- will soon commence the con- tion of the electric light plant and r works. The contract for the has been awarded, and the ing for the water mains pur- d. When completed Wetumpka have a first-class lighting plant efficient water works with a nat- pressure of eighty-five or ninety s to the square inch.

Boy Hanged for Assault.

harlotte, N. C.—Walter Partridge egro boy 20 years of age, was ged at Fayetteville, N. C., for an ault upon Mrs. Lillie I. A white woman.

Thought to Be Murdered.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—What seems to be one of the most atrocious murders ever committed in this vicinity happened here Thursday night, in which A. J. Lindgren was the unfortunate victim.

Mr. Lindgren failed to return home Thursday night, and as a result of an early search for him in the morning his horse and buggy were found down near the river bridge. Here was also found his hat, coat and pocketbook, the latter being empty. It seems that he had carried a friend of his across the river about dark, and the supposition is that on his return he was attacked on the bridge and murdered. Mr. Lindgren's body has not been found as yet, and it is thought that it was thrown into the river. His coat, when discovered, had several bullet holes in it, and one or two slight blood stains were visible.

One theory is that a negro, who had just been convicted of a theft from Mr. Lindgren and who has the reputation of being a bad character, waylaid him in a spirit of revenge. This theory is supported in the report that this negro has disappeared. The general belief is, however, that robbery was the motive of the attack, as it is understood that Mr. Lindgren had a considerable sum of money about him.

Freight Wreck Occurs.

Selma, Ala.—Freight train No. 67 on the Southern was wrecked on the long approach of the bridge over the Tombigbee river just east of Demopolis. It is thought that an axle on one of the box cars broke and caused the break in the bridge, through which seven freight cars went. It was also reported that a negro was killed, but the report cannot be confirmed. The traffic of the road was interrupted for several hours and the mail train from Meridian had to be carried around by Akron, but it is thought that the bridge will be repaired so that west-bound trains can go over it this afternoon.

Officer is Arrested.

Huntsville, Ala.—Deputy Sheriff McClelland, of Houston, Tex., was arrested here late Thursday night on a charge of attempted kidnapping, after he had arrested Will Vining, a young painter of this city. The Texas officer came here yesterday with a warrant for Ed Vining, who is wanted in Houston for burglary.

Will Vining was taken up and the visiting officer claimed that he is the man. Requisition papers had been secured in advance and Deputy McClelland was making arrangements to leave with his prisoner when the relatives of Vining got together and applied for a writ of habeas corpus. McClelland made another attempt to catch a train out of Huntsville. Constable Ward balked his game by arresting him on a warrant charging kidnapping. McClelland stated that he was acting on legal advice and would willingly go to jail if necessary, but as a courtesy to his office he was allowed to spend the night under guard in the office of Sheriff Rodgers.

Hurt in Mines.

Birmingham, Ala.—Walter Page, employed at the Raymond ore mines, twelve miles south of the city, escaped death by a miracle. A car of ore got loose on the incline and dashed back into the mine. Page was in the way, but managed to step aside as the car passed. The car was smashed to pieces at the end of the journey and Page was covered with ore. One of his ribs was broken and he was otherwise painfully injured, though not fatally.

Serious Accident.

Troy, Ala.—A young man by the name of Jim Brooks, who works at the veneering factory here, met with a very serious accident. The machinery that he was managing got clogged, and in trying to unclog it with his foot he had his foot so badly mangled that it was necessary to amputate it.

Snow at Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Ala.—About 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon the thermometer at this place suddenly fell from 55 degrees to 46 degrees and the Jacksonville populace was surprised by the fall of large flakes of snow, accompanied by a heavy rain.

Immediately after the snow fell the temperature rose, the sun shone, and the weather is now normal.

Mining Company Incorporated.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—The Tuscaloosa Mining Company, of Oakman, has filed a notice of its incorporation, with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are J. DeB. Hooper, G. B. Hooper and Belle H. Collier.

Robbed and Thrown in the River.

Lanett, Ala.—Will Gaines, the son of a prominent farmer living near here, was held up and robbed by an unknown negro.

The young man was out on his father's farm, and his first knowledge of the negro's presence was when he was halted an covered with a pistol The negro was masked.

After relieving young Gaines of his knife and watch the negro blindfolded him and led him to the bank of the Chattahoochee river.

Before the young man was aware of his whereabouts he was pushed off the bank into the river. He was almost drowned before he could remove the bandage from his eyes and get out of the water.

Searching parties have been out all day, and two negroes are now under arrest. Both of them were relieved of guns by the posse, and they will be held pending further developments.

Mayor and Aldermen Appointed.

Courtland, Ala.—The governor has appointed a mayor and four aldermen for the town of Courtland, which does not have to be done with any other town in the state. The act by which this duty is placed upon the executive was passed by the legislature of 1900. The officers named were C. M. Sherrod, mayor; R. H. Tweedy, A. F. Rebman, E. V. Chardavoyne and R. N. Harris, Jr., aldermen.

Opera House for Decatur.

Decatur, Ala.—Work will soon start on the new $20,000 opera house in New Decatur, almost all the money subscribed having been paid in. The building will be of brick and stone of modern design, and the stage will be on the ground floor. At the present time the Decaturs have no opera house at all, and a play house is badly needed for the amusement loving public.

Call on Admiral Schley.

Mobile, Ala.—The members of the Raphael Semms camp, United Confederate Veterans, clad in their uniform of gray and carrying an old battle flag recently returned to them by the action of congress, called on Admiral and Mrs. Schley and paid their respects. In behalf of the camp Hon. O. J. Semms, son of Admiral Semms, presented the admiral with a magnificent thirty-second degree Masonic jewel.

Hunting for Indian Relics.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—A party of members of the Philadelphia Academy of Science are now engaged in a general exploration of the numerous Indian mounds down at Moundville, Ala. This party, which travels about in a private steamboat, "The Gopher," is making an extensive tour of the country, but have perhaps been more successful in their finds of Indian relics here at Moundville than most anywhere else, as this was once quite a celebrated Indian settlement. Mr. James A. Anderson, one of the officers of the Alabama geological survey, has been down once or twice to aid the party in determining on the best mounds to extensively explore, Mr. Anderson being quite familiar with this field of relics.

Survivors of Shiloh.

Birmingham, Ala.—Survivors of the battle of Shiloh, which was fought on April 6 and 7, 1862, met Thursday in the city hall and recited experiences of the great conflict. Both Federal and Confederate veterans gathered, and a number of interesting speeches were made. Capt. Thomas W. Huffman presided at the meeting. An organization will be perfected in Alabama of survivors of the battle.

Negro Captured Near Opelika.

Opelika, Ala.—Ned Thurman, a negro, supposed to be the one who blindfolded, bound and robbed Willie Gaines, a white citizen, and afterwards threw him into the river near West Point, was captured near Opelika and taken to Blanton.

Judge Appointed.

Enterprise, Ala.—H. H. Blackman, a lawyer of Enterprise, was yesterday named by Governor Jelks as judge of the Coffee county court to succeed Hon. J. F. Sanders, who sent his resignation to the executive department several days ago.

Still in Critical Condition.

Anniston, Ala.—Barclay Muncher, who was badly hurt by falling from a high tank at Jacksonville, is still in a critical condition, but there has been a slight improvement. At times he has been conscious. The chances of recovery are against him. Mr. Muncher lives in Chattanooga and is a painter by trade. He was painting when he fell a distance of ninety-six feet.

Fatally Crushed by Cars.

Birmingham, Ala.—Charles Grayson, colored, while coupling cars on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in the yards here was crushed so badly that death followed an hour later.

HOUSES BLOWN UP

A Little Girl Killed by the Woeful Dynamiter While Asleep. Others Injured.

NO CLUE TO THE PERPETRATORS.

One Dies from Injuries, Others in a Serious Condition.—Explosion Heard for Miles Around.

Blossburg, Ala.—Dynamiters badly damaged two houses occupied by non-union miners working for the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company at this place at midnight Monday night, and as a result one little white girl, aged ten or twelve years, was killed and two others were severely wounded, while several other people were more or less shocked.

The houses blown up were occupied by a family named Alexander, white, and William Cato, colored.

The dynamite in both instances was placed on the front porches of the residences.

Children Were Asleep.

The children of Alexander, three in number, were sleeping in the front portion of the house and consequently received the worst injury. The eldest girl was horribly mangled about the limbs and died from the injuries received.

The explosion at the Cato house did not do much damage. The noise produced by the explosions was very loud and was heard for miles around. The entire neighborhood was startled and Superintendent S. J. Rutledge, who is in charge of the Tennessee Company's mines at this point, at once began an investigation.

There is no positive evidence as yet as to who did the dastardly deed, but the county authorities are assisting Superintendent Rutledge in investigating the affair.

Talk of Lynching.

Blossburg, Ala.—Union miners at this place Tuesday morning offered their services in hunting down the perpetrators of the horrible deed of dynamiting the residences of John Alexander, white, and William Cato, colored. There is much talk as to lynching in case the guilty parties are caught, but there is absolutely no clue.

Four bloodhounds were brought over this morning from Pratt City and other points and an effort will be made to get some sort of a trace of the guilty parties.

The little girl who met death was between 11 and 12 years of age. She lived half an hour after receiving the injuries. One of her sisters was hurt in the forehead, but this afternoon it was not believed that her would will prove serious.

The other little child who was thought at first to be seriously hurt, was not injured much beyond a bad shaking up. Alexander was not hurt.

Packed in Pipe.

At the Cato house the dynamite was packed in a piece of pipe, which caused a much larger explosion than would have occurred had the dynamite been placed loose. The damage done was not so very great, either. No one in Cato's house was hurt.

Alexander moved here with his family about two months ago. Very little can be stated as to who he is.

There is no work at the mines in this district today, and much excitement prevails. The non-union men are frightened.

The union miners deplore the affair and openly state that they will assist in ferreting out the dastardly perpetrator.

Want Deputy Sheriffs for Further Protection.

Brookside, Ala.—There is more or less excitement here over the report from Blossburg that two houses were dynamited by unknown parties shortly after midnight last night.

The houses dynamited were occupied by non-union miners named Alexander, white, and William Cato, colored. One of the daughters of Alexander was killed and another injured severely. None of the members of Cato's family was hurt.

The affair has caused consternation in the Blossburg group of mines. The dynamiting took place in the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company's quarters, but the excitement has spread to the Sloss-Sheffield Company's quarters and deputy sheriffs will be asked for from the city for further protection.

Killed by Lightning.

Vicksburg, Miss.—During a heavy thunder storm Monday William M. Alverson, twenty-two years of age, son of a well to do farmer, was instantly killed by lightning. The horse on which Alverson was riding at the time was also killed.

Drank Pearline.

Ensley, Ala.—Dr. Cunningham Monday held a post mortem examination on the body of Michael Walsh, who was found dead in his room on Avenue E, and decided the deceased came to his death by drinking a quantity of pearline. From papers found among the effects of the deceased it was learned that he had been a member of the Irish constabulary for fifteen years, but was discharged on April 3, 1904, for permanent disability from nervous debility and prostration. For the past year he has wandered over the world, coming to Ensley some few months ago. Nothing can be learned of any of his kindred.

Japs Ordered to Depart.

Marysville, Cal.—All the Japanese miners at Browns Valley, a small mining town twenty miles east of Marysville, have been summarily ordered to leave camp. A few of them went there recently to work on the dumps at the mines, but the white people objected to their presence and a committee waited on them with the firm request that they depart immediately which they did.

To Cancel Papers.

Houston, Tex.—Federal District Attorney McElmore has been instructed by Agent Van Dusen of the immigration bureau to take such steps as may be necessary to cancel the naturalization papers hitherto issued to Japanese of Houston and Galveston. The instructions go into specific detail and name a number of those who have declared intentions to become Americans.

Van Dusen specifically declares that the Japanese may not be naturalized. Attorney McElmore has referred the matter to the attorney general for a ruling before taking any steps.

Overseer Murdered.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Stewart Champion was assassinated Monday night about 8 o'clock while seated at his home on the Jed Strong plantation about four miles from town. Two negroes named John Carpenter and Bob Robinson, who have worked on the plantation, has been arrested, suspected of committing the dastardly deed.

The assassin shot Champion through a window while he was seated in a room holding a young baby in his arms. The load of squirrel shot shattered his right leg at the knee, from which he bled to death before medical aid reached him.

Champion's wife was putting some wood on the fire when the shot was fired and the blood spurted six feet, falling on her dress.

Girl Was Assaulted.

Bristol, Tenn.—A special says: Lochie Bunton, a white girl 14 years old, was criminally assaulted by three white men, well known in that section, last Friday in the woods, three miles from Butler, Tenn.

The men are said to have been drinking. Their victim is unconscious and the men are hiding in the mountains and defying arrest. The men are said to have overtaken the girl on the road while driving through the mountains and compelled her to get into the hack and ride with them. After taking the girl in they are said to have left the road and committed the crime. A posse headed by a well known and desperate mountain character, Nat Cardon, have been on the trail of the men since Sunday morning.

Two Prominent Citizens Dead.

Montgomery, Ala.—Two prominent Montgomery citizens died Monday afternoon. James P. Bullock, president of the Bullock Shoe Company, passed away after an illness of eight days.

Augustus Uhlfelder, state manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, dropped dead of heart disease in the company's building in New York. Mr. Uhlfelder was a prominent figure in business circles here for many years.

Found Beside Track.

Jasper, Ala.—The dead body of W. T. Dennis was found on the Frisco railroad track two miles west of Horse Creek Tuesday morning by a crew of the road. The unfortunate man's neck was broken when he was picked up by the crew and it is supposed that he fell from a fast moving train.

Four Children Burned.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—The home of George T. Maul, on West Baltimore street, was entirely destroyed by fire and four of his children were burned to death. The parents with a fifth child had barely time to escape from the burning building. The charred bodies of the four children have been recovered.

Alabama Postmasters.

Washington, D. C.—Postmasters appointed: Little River, Baldwin county, Montgomery Cole; Oxmcor, Jefferson county, Josephus B. Moss; Scotia, Montgomery county, Mary F. Raoul.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams' Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 4th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

L. V. STABLER, M. D
Physician & Surgeon
Office Over Horn's Drug Store
Thorsby, Alabama

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 9 to 1, 2 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.
A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon, Calera, Ala.

Mother—My daughter, you should not call your younger brother "the kid." A kid, you know, is a young goat.

Daughter—Yes, mother, that's just it—Willie is always butting in.—Cornell Widow.

GROWN OLD TOGETHER.

They say they are going to shoot you, Old Billy, but don't you fret.
For the fellow who dares to meddle with you must reckon with me, you bet;
You're a poor old horse, Old Billy, and you aren't worth much, it is true,
But you've been a faithful friend to me, and I'll see you safely through.

Shoot Old Billy? I guess not! Though you may be old and gray,
By the self-same stretch of mercy they'll be shooting me some day.
I haven't much love for the fellows who follow the shooting team,
If they had more pity for horses and dogs, they'd have more love for man.

That's right, Old Bill, I like it, your muzzle against my face,
We've had rattling times together, and once we won the race.
Do you remember it, Billy, the fop that we downed that day,
And the way he swore, that an old farm horse should show his heels the way?

Well, Billy, we're both great sinners, for we've both grown old, you know;
And we've only a little farther a-down the road to go;
So we'll fare along together till the Master calls us home
To the Happy Home Land stables, and our feet forget to roam.

They tell us that horses have no souls, and they all declare it true;
That shows how little they know, Old Boy, and it proves that they don't know you.
Well, well, 'tis a mighty question, and quite beyond me ken
But the more I know of horses like you, the less I brag about men.

You've been a good horse, Old Fellow, steady and brave and true;
You have given us faithful service done all that a horse could do.
You have earned your keep, you shall have it, so live as long as you can
For justice is justice, and right is right, whether it's a horse or man.

—Tit-Bits.

The Girl Who Laughed.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A girl was gathering roses in the yard as Morris Gurnee went by to his work. He was a carpenter and joiner, working in Mr. Mills' employ, and this girl who was gathering roses was Mr. Mills' daughter, Fleece. They called her Fleece because her hair was so fine, and thick, and blond, and curling when she was a child—like a little lamb's wool. It was put up now in a graceful knot at the back of her head, but was still all of a fleece over her brow and about the shell-like ears.

"Good morning," said Morris, looking at her with admiring eyes.

"Good morning—here's a rose for you," she answered, and laughed.

That laugh! She was always laughing—giggling, the spiteful girls said. Just a little bubble and ripple of a sound, that she closed every remark with, whether grave or gay. It was a sweet, musical sound, and yet it always made Morris uncomfortable. He felt as if she were laughing at him. He was glad enough of the rose—she threw it at him over the yard fence, and he caught it dexterously in his left hand, and almost involuntarily lifted it to his lips.

Then Fleece laughed again, and ran up the path.

Morris walked on with the rose in his hand, and love in his heart. Oh, yes, he did love her, but what was the use of it? If he told her she would laugh at him. She was not deep enough to understand a love like his—she was nothing but a pretty, shallow, laughing creature, as full of fun and frolic as a kitten.

But he kept the rose all day long in the pocket of his coat. When the sun grew too warm and he threw the coat aside on a pile of lumber, he remembered to take out the rose and put it in his blouse. There his mother found it that night, when she took the blouse to sew up a rent in the sleeve.

"What old flower is this?" she asked. "Shall I throw it in the wood box?"

Morris was lying stretched upon a lounge, reading a morning paper. Handsome enough he looked to please any girl's fancy in his bright dressing gown and slippers, one arm under his dark, fine head, the other holding the paper in an easy, graceful way. But the paper dropped, and the dark cheek flushed hotly at this sudden question his mother had put.

"No," he said, "give it to me. I—I want to keep it, mother."

The mother handed him the flower, and stitched away in silence for a moment. Then she said:

"Is it the love token of some girl, Morris? I think you might tell your mother if it is. I am getting old and weary, my boy, and very willing to resign my duties into younger hands. We have a cozy home here, and a good enough one for any girl. If you bring a good wife home, Morris, no one will give her a heartier welcome than your mother."

"It was no love token, mother," Morris said, gravely. "Only a rose that Fleece Mills tossed me as I passed by this morning."

"Fleece Mills is a vain, pretty, giggling girl, Morris," said the mother, not lifting her eyes to her son's face. "She has never known a care or sorrow, and looks upon life as a good joke, and nothing more. She is not like our neighbor's daughter, Jane Smith."

"Not at all like her," answered Morris, quietly, with his hand shading his eyes from the lamplight. "Jane always looks on the serious side of things, and I never saw her more than smile, and she always seems sorry for having done that."

"Jane is a good girl," said Mrs. Gurnee, quickly, "and a very conscientious girl. Modest, earnest, proper in her behavior and viewing life in its true sense. She would not be petting young men with roses. Yet she cares more for you, Morris, than Fleece Mills does, or ever can; and Jane is a pretty girl, Morris—pretty enough to please any man's taste."

"Yes, I think she is pretty," answered Morris, as if he had just thought of it for the first time, which was true.

"And she would make a good wife, Morris."

But Morris had no answer to this. He arose, presently, and went to his room, and lay there thinking, thinking. His mother was growing old, he was receiving a good salary, his home was paid for, and he was twenty-six years old. It would be better all around if he should bring home a wife.

Jane Smith was a pretty and a good girl, and he believed she cared for him, or would grow to if he asked her. She was too prudent, too sedate, too regardful of the "proprieties," to allow herself to care for any man until asked. His mother liked her; why not end the matter by asking Jane to be his wife? But Fleece—oh, Fleece! laughing Fleece, Fleece, Fleece! and saying the name over softly again and again, he fell asleep and dreamed he stood before the altar, plighting his vows to Jane Smith; and just as he was about to utter "I will," which would bind him forever to her, Fleece Mills pelted him in the mouth with a blood-red rose, and then stood and laughed at his silence-confusion.

He overtook Jane Smith the next morning as he was going to his work, and walked a few squares with her. She was pretty, with such soft black hair and dusky eyes, and she actually smiled at him once. They passed Mr. Mills', and Fleece was watering a hanging basket in the open window, and looked and said "Good morning," and then laughed.

"What a giggling girl Fleece Mills is!" said Jane, gravely. "She seems to think life was made for laughter. I wonder if she ever has a serious thought?"

But their ways separated here, and Morris was spared a reply. Ah, well, Jane was right—his mother was right—Fleece was a light, vain girl, a human butterfly, and he was a fool to think of her. He would think of her no more.

He saw a good deal of Jane Smith for a few weeks after that, and quite made up his mind to please his mother and asking Jane to be his wife, when an accident occurred. He fell from a scaffolding, and was carried home a helpless mass of broken bones and bruises. His mother fainted at the sight of her son borne by four strong men.

Neighbors crowded in to render assistance. Jane Smith came to the door.

"Is that you, Jane?" she called. "Oh, come in. They tell me he is not dead, only hurt and bruised. I am glad you have come to be with me."

But Jane shook her head.

"You have plenty to help you, I see," she said, "and if I stay, people will talk. They will say I was bold to thrust myself in the way when I was not needed. I must not forget my dignity or sex, you know. I will come every few hours and inquire how he is, and if you need help, send for me. I shall pray for his recovery, dear Mrs. Gurnee."

She was turning to go, when some one rushed past her into the room.

It was Fleece Mills, all wrapped in a white shawl, her face white, her blue eyes dilated. She looked like a vision. Unmindful of the presence of any third party, she sprang to the side of Mrs. Gurnee, and put her arms about her, the tears flowing down her cheeks.

"Oh," she cried, "I am so sorry for you—so sorry. Tell me, is he dead—will he die? I have heard such cruel tales, a dozen different ones, on my way here."

"No; he lives; he is terribly injured, but he will get well; they tell me so."

Then Fleece arose, and the old gladness came back to her face, as she said:

"I am so glad—so glad! Thank Heaven!"

And then she laughed.

Morris, surrounded by physicians and attendants in the next room, heard the laugh.

"Who is that?" he cried, in a clear, strong voice. "Who laughed?"

"It was I—Fleece Mills," she said, and went toward the door.

"Come here," he responded. "I want you. I must go through a painful operation; my shoulder is dislocated, and my limbs broken in two places. I am internally injured also, and I may not live through it all. Come and touch my hand before you go."

"But I am not going, Morris," she said, bending over him. "I came to stay, to comfort your mother, and to be with you while you need my care. If you will let me, I will stay here while they are setting your limb. I will hold your hands, and if you look right in my eyes, I think you can endure it."

"But, my dear young lady," interposed the head physician, "it will be trying to strong nerves. We have forbidden his mother the room, and if you faint or scream, it will unnerve the patient and prove fatal."

"I shall not faint or scream," she said quietly.

"But," persisted the physician, "you do not know the ordeal. We dare not administer chloroform because of his internal troubles, and he may show such agony that you cannot endure it."

"He needs me, and I shall remain," she said. "You need not fear for me."

"God bless you!" whispered Morris, and clung to her hands.

It was a terrible hour, but Fleece Mills did not wince or waver. She stood at her post, white as death, but smiling bravely, and touching the sufferer's brow with tender, cool hands, and speaking to him in low, soothing tones when the pain grew most intense. And he never once took his eyes from her face.

"You have been very courageous, and have helped us perform a most dangerous operation," said the physician, when the last bandage was adjusted, the last bruise bathed. "The young man will live. The only fear was that he had not vitality enough to carry him through the operation. Now that he has endured it so well, he will recover."

And again Fleece laughed—a ripple that filled all the room and brought a smile to the white face of the sufferer.

"God bless that laugh!" he said, feebly. "Now go and rest, Fleece."

And as soon as Fleece was outside the door she fainted dead away. Only a swoon, however, which she recovered from readily, and was soon at her post again.

"How heartless of that girl to laugh in the house of suffering," said Jane Smith. "How bold of her to thrust herself upon them in such a way. I wonder what Mrs. Gurnee thinks of her. I know Morris must be disgusted."

But Morris' conversation with his fair nurse a few days later did not savor of disgust.

"I have loved you so hopelessly for a whole year," he said.

"Why didn't you tell me so?" she asked.

"Because I feared you would laugh at me. You were always laughing at me."

Here Fleece rippled into a laugh again.

"There, I knew you would," said Morris; "it is just as I expected."

"But I was not laughing at your love for me," she said, "only at the idea that you would think I would laugh," and she laughed more than ever, and Morris joined her.

"You men are so blind," she added. "I have loved you two years, and tried to make you see it. At last I threw a blood-red rose in bloom at you, and thought surely you knew that meant love. But only the next day I saw you passing by with pretty, black-eyed Jane Smith, and I nearly died of jealousy."

"But I did not dream you would love a poor carpenter," he said.

"My father was a poor carpenter," she answered, proudly, and then added, softly and reverently, "and so was the dear Savior, my Master. Why should I be ashamed to have my—my—husband a carpenter?"

And she buried her blushing face in his bosom.

Morris recovered in an incredibly short space of time from his hurts and broken bones, and in a very brief time thereafter the bells rang forth his wedding chimes.

"Of all the girls out of the whole world," said Mrs. Gurnee, "you have chosen the best one for a wife and for a daughter to me."

It is said that Fleece laughed just after the clergyman pronounced them man and wife, but I don't know how true it is. But certain it is that the laugh Morris used to so object to has become the sweetest sound on earth to him.—New York Weekly.

A DENVERITE IN BERLIN.

Prussian Police and Matrimonial Adventures of Albert Adams.

An American gentleman named Albert Adams, said to hail from Denver City, has been attracting the attention of the Berlin police. A short time ago Adams arrived in Berlin, where he at once put himself into communication with a matrimonial agency with several rich ladies on its books, anxious to enter the state of wedlock. Adams, although a man of prepossessing appearance, had far more substantial advantages, among these being several gold mines, of which he claimed possession, an annual income of 175,000 marks, and a colossal ranch, over whose illimitable fields 15,000 to 16,000 wild horses careered. Among the ladies on the books of the matrimonial agency was a widow who most fascinated the enterprising Adams. She was wealthy, a lover of adventure, and had no objection to be mistress of the Colorado ranch. Adams and the widow were engaged, and together they visited the latter's relatives, who would not understand why Adams never possessed any pocket money. In Hamburg he induced his trusting fiancee to sell 20,000 marks' worth of shares and to send the proceeds to his London address. When the relatives heard of this they felt it their duty to acquaint the police, with the result that the owner of the Colorado gold mines was arrested at the railway station just as he and his friend were about to proceed to London to be married. The police have discovered, among other things, that Adams occupied an abject room in one of the poorest quarters of the city. They have also secured the widow's 20,000 marks.—London Telegraph.

Ill Luck Averted.

"My dear," said Mrs. Spenders, by way of preliminary, "would you consider an opal unlucky?"

"I would if I got a bill for one and had to pay it," began her husband, sternly.

"Oh!" she interrupted, "I'm so glad I ordered a diamond instead."—Catholic Standard.

FARM AND GARDEN

ABOUT SOIL.

The investigation of the physical characteristics of soils deals chiefly with the classification of soils according to the amounts of particles of various sizes which constitute the soil. In order to secure uniformity of classification and description a conventional table of sizes has been adopted by the Bureau of Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, and the soils are described in the terms of this table. Thus all material above two millimetres (about 1-12 of an inch) are classed as gravel and stone; from one millimetre to one-half millimetre, or about the size of clover seed, the grains are called coarse sand; from one-half to one-quarter millimetre the grains are classed as medium sand; from one-quarter to one-tenth millimetre as fine sand; from one-tenth to five one-hundredth millimetre as very fine sand. So far all grains are readily distinguishable by the eye as separate fragments of various minerals, and a little knowledge of the appearance of different minerals enables one to identify the grains as belonging to one or more of a half dozen common rock and soil forming minerals. The next two grades, silt (5-100 to 5-1000) and clay (smaller than 5-1000 millimetre) are impalpable powders when dry, and their mineral composition can be made out only under a high power microscope by a person skilled in the recognition of material in small fragments.

Pure silt when moist is not gritty, like the different grades of sand, or plastic and cohesive like the extremely minute particles of clay.

The various grades of sand usually make up the skeleton or framework of the majority of soils. They render a soil more or less open or porous, depending both on the size of the sand grains and their relative proportions in the total mass. The silt renders a soil solid and somewhat compact making it particularly adhesive even when wet. The clay, if present in proportions above 10 to 15 per cent, renders a soil waxy and adhesive when wet and either granular and cloddy when dry or else solid and impervious.

The gradation of soils according to the size of the component grains is a classification according to the soil texture. It is the common classification of the practical farmer, and the mechanical analysis, and standard sizes of grains are merely used in order that the terms used in one locality may be more widely intelligible. Thus soil made up of large grains, possessing an open, porous structure, draining freely and working easily, is, by common acceptation, a sand. But one locality might consider a given sand as coarse, while in a different locality it would be estimated as only medium. Similarly soils locally known as clays frequently find their place in a wider classification as clay loams or heavy loams. A county abounding in clay soil might give rise to a local classification of lighter lands as sands, when they actually deserve to be called sandy loams.

The physical properties of soils depend not only on the texture of the soil, the size of the component grains, but also upon the structure of the soil—that is, the arrangement of the soil particles in space, the title, as it is frequently called. Thus a clay soil may be granulated and loamy, easy to till, well drained and well aired, or it may be so puddled and mixed that it forms a slimy, plastic mass when wet and dries to a consistency of concrete. In both cases the mechanical analysis might show almost identical texture, but mere inspection would show a vast difference in the arrangement of soil grains, the structure. The first soil would be seen to consist of a lot of clay pebbles or grains, each made up of thousands of much more minute individual grains. Each compound grain is in itself minutely porous; while between it and its surrounding granules large pore spaces exist. The second soil is made up of a mass of minute grains so evenly distributed that no large pore spaces intervene, and only the most minute openings exist in the soil. The first soil is in good condition, suited to crop production, easy to till, productive. The second is quite often barren and unproductive. With the same chemical composition and the same texture, but with such a difference in structure, the first soil forms a fertile, productive field; the second forms a barren waste fit only to support weeds or to furnish clay for brickmaking.—Tribune Farmer.

GET THE CALF STARTED RIGHT.

It is worth while to get the calf started right. Everything depends upon it, so it will not lose a day in gaining.

I would select a high grade Shorthorn or Hereford calf, bred from a registered bull of the beef type. Feed the cow corn and cob meal with bran mixed, and a little oil meal, with all the clover hay the cow wants. The cow should be milked while the calf is young, as she will give more milk than the calf will take at first. As soon as the calf will take all the milk, let it have it. Continue to feed the cow all she will eat clean. The calf will soon learn to eat. It should be fed some grain just as soon as it can be encouraged to eat. A mixture consisting of one-half whole oats, one-quarter bran, and one-quarter shelled corn is very satisfactory for a young calf receiving milk. The whole grain is always fresh, while the ground grain is sometimes tainted and musty. Grain feeding before weaning not only saves milk, but it lessens the shrinkage which is likely to follow. I think no single food is more satisfactory to supplement milk for a growing calf than whole oats.

When the calf is six months old, it should be weaned. Continue to feed well of the mixture mentioned above. Give it access to salt and fresh water. This feed and care should continue until the calf is about 10 months old, when it should weigh from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds, and will be a fine beef animal.—M. A. in Indiana Farmer.

DRAINING THE WET SPOTS.

The business man is constantly going through his factory or store looking for places where there is a leak or where he can utilize space or material to better advantage than before. It seems almost impossible to induce farmers to work along similar lines, yet there are hundreds of farms through the country that need just this attention. We are all familiar with the man who will scatter his operations over many acres far from his home and barns when right close by there may be a few acres which would yield him enormous returns if properly prepared.

The low spots which might be made exceedingly fertile are most often neglected. Frequently a few furrows struck just right will provide all the drainage necessary to make a place for celery which would bring in large returns. Instead of reclaiming this valuable strip of ground the average farmer with many acres either pays no attention to it or turns the swine on it to wallow. Possibly such a strip of ground has remained uncultivated for years, and is practically virgin soil, needing only a little time and expense to make it very valuable. A good time now to plan out what to do with such places in early spring. —Indianapolis News.

INDIGESTION IN SWINE.

One of the symptoms of indigestion in swine is their great desire to eat dirt, particularly if it be found in rather dry lumps. The way the average hog is fed is enough to make it a chronic dyspeptic, and there is little use in giving medicine to a hog that is suffering from indigestion. Begin at the root of the trouble and furnish variety in the food. See that there is some green matter in the shape of vegetables fed daily; in the season when it can be reached give the swine some old sod to gnaw at. Put considerable salt in the food; the eating of the dry dirt is an indication of the craving for salt. Try some dried blood meal in the slop and also mix lime water with the slop from time to time. A fair amount of variety, coupled with considerable green food, will do more to keep the digestive organs in good condition than anything else.—Indianapolis News.

CHAR THE CORN.

Once or twice a week char a few ears of corn in the fire and feed to the fowls. They relish it and it helps to keep them in good condition. It takes the place of charcoal to a certain extent, which all poultrymen know is excellent for fowls.

Slippery Seats and Love.

"Have you ever noticed how slippery those cane covered seats in some of the trolley cars are?" asked a friend of mine today. "The carpet-covered seats and the wooden ones are all right, but those cane-covered affairs certainly keep you a guessing. The minute you sit down you put out your hand, almost instinctively, to keep from slipping off. If you are sitting next to a pretty girl you will surely drift toward her, and she, poor thing, cannot avoid you. I was going up to Troy last night and a young couple got on the car near the Union Station. Of course they wanted to sit as close to each other as possible, but they had a great deal of trouble in doing so. He kept slipping toward the motorman and she kept sliding toward the conductor. Every few minutes he would "move forward" to regain his seat by her side. She blushed every time he attempted to drift back to her and the passengers had a great deal of amusement at their expense. They had taken their seat near the center of the car when they go on, but by the time we got to Watervliet they were both down in the corner near the conductor."—Albany Journal.

Prof. William Smart, the political economist, says that if British wealth were divided equally each person would receive $195.48 a year, or $3.62 a week.

The construction of a municipal telephone system in Hull, Eng., has brought about a speedy reduction in rates.

Byron and Napoleon.

The more I think of Byron more clear it becomes to me that is, first, second and third, a figure. He was the child of a loose marriage, that constant ... luce armies of discordant ... His upbringing was tragic; ... riage was tragic; his love ... tragic; his death, which at ... thought only tragic-farce. ... tragedy. Byron and Napoleon temporaries, were the analogous complements of each other. ... the passive tragedy of the ... tive temperament as poet; ... pression; Napoleon is the ac... edy of the imaginative temperament as warrior and world-conquering deeds. Byron invested in an abortive attempt at ... Greece; Napoleon, as the ... abortive attempt at expressing dictated memoirs) in St. H...

Cremation in Germany.

Statistics for the German ... show a further increase in the number of cremations, there having been cremated 1,281 bodies in ... 1,074 bodies in 1903, an increase of 19 per cent and double the number cremated in 1901. The Government ... had 701 incinerations; Hamburg, 189; Mainz, 158; ... 155; Offenbach, 123, Mannheim, 56, and Karlsruhe, 50. Of the bodies cremated, 598 were those of males and 472 females; 1,050 were Evangelical, 142 of the Catholic faith, 44 were free thinkers and 37 were of other religious views.

Illiterate Russians.

Nearly one-half of the men in the Russian army are unable to read and write. In the German army the percentage is only 0.07.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. R. H. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

The Dixie ... Pensacola, Fla., is 250 ft. ...

Ladies Can Wear Shoes One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease a powder. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Accept any substitute. Trial package FREE by mail. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Skeletons are now being sold for $1.15.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Fair-headed people have the best ...

Jamaica Ginger Pills cured me of ... my life three years ago.—Mrs. Thomas Hinks, Maple St., Norwalk, N.Y., Feb. 1.

Eggs are current coin in Mexico, Donegal and Leitrim, Ireland.

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullen is Nature's great remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, all throat and lung troubles. At druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Pumps were invented in ... 1425.

The Peabody Fund.

To the sum of $2,000,000 ... George Peabody between 1867 and 1872, out of which the Peabody Buildings for the poor were erected in London, there has since been added $4,793,255, received for rent and interest, making the total fund, according to a report just issued, $7,... As more money comes in more buildings are erected.

The Eternal Feminine.

Grandfather, doing some carpenter work, and finding he needed some screws, sent little Mary to the hardware store to get some for him. When she got there she could not remember the word "screw." At last she said, "Grandpa wants some nails with rings on."—Life.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price, 75c. per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

"Toby's" Avatar.

Johnson was compiling the dictionary.

"Yes," he explained, "I'm trying to collect a few words for the circus letters."

Starting with "aggregation," he ... ed for polysyllables.

An Old Prisoner.

James McCardle, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., who will be 100 years old in June next, has since 1852 been receiving a pension as a British soldier of 6 pence a day (or little more than a quarter) for disability.

The Present Rate Law.

The duties of the present Interstate Commerce Commission are to correct all discriminations in railroad rates. If it finds that an unjust rate is in effect, the railroad is notified. If it declines to change it, the Commission may bring suit in Court and if the Court decides in favor of the Commission's finding, the railroad must obey, or its officers may be brought up for contempt of Court and summarily dealt with.

Women in France may wear trousers in public by paying a yearly tax of 50 francs for the privilege.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price, 75c. per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

"Toby's" Avatar.

Johnson was compiling the dictionary.

"Yes," he explained, "I'm trying to collect a few words for the circus letters."

Starting with "aggregation," he ... ed for polysyllables.

An Old Prisoner.

James McCardle, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., who will be 100 years old in June next, has since 1852 been receiving a pension as a British soldier of 6 pence a day (or little more than a quarter) for disability.

The Present Rate Law.

The duties of the present Interstate Commerce Commission are to correct all discriminations in railroad rates. If it finds that an unjust rate is in effect, the railroad is notified. If it declines to change it, the Commission may bring suit in Court and if the Court decides in favor of the Commission's finding, the railroad must obey, or its officers may be brought up for contempt of Court and summarily dealt with.

Women in France may wear trousers in public by paying a yearly tax of 50 francs for the privilege.

O. THOMPSON MAKES ... TO CORRESPONDENT

Birmingham, Ala., March ... 1906

Mr. W. E. ...

Evening Star, Washington, D. ...

I have just read your ... the President ... shington Star and other papers ... cannot withhold ... my indignation at the vile and ... statements made by you ... me personally in ... on and it is manifest ... a purpose on your ... your charges ... made.

Why you should ... baseless statements ... uttered upon your ... ter lend the base use ... through which I discovered and ... to be generated and ...

You make the statement ... the facts, impressing ... belief that you personally ... matters you state, and ... no less evidence thereof, than ... your zeal in the role you have ... med without any regard ... rity.

You are personally a stranger to ... and if you were ever informed ... as to the propriety of ... pointment or qualification of any ... pointee recommended by the ... dent's Referees" in Alabama the same ... unknown to me. Even if true, the ... matters about which you have written ... cannot be personally known to you ... You are not a citizen or resident of ... Alabama, and it is unreasonable to ... suppose your concern about the ap... pointments to office in Alabama is important ... founded upon any personal interest ... you have in such, nor is it general ... any interest you have in the ... al welfare of the people of Alabama ... otherwise, you would have made ... aint to the President, proved your ... and obtained judgement of ... mnation against the referees. ... such action on your part a dispos... tion or purpose to serve and promote ... the public welfare by your arraign... ment of myself as one of the "Presi... dent's referees," is not a part of the ... spiration of your libel, but it must ... be its incubation and existence in ... service of some personal and ... able cause or incentive.

An honorable gentleman, who loves ... truth for truth's sake, and who will ... not lend himself to bear false witness ... against his neighbor; a brave man, ... with a lofty and chivalrous spirit, who ... will not hire out his words and anger, ... and intensify falsehood as he is paid ... for it, is always prepared and will ... furnish the true source from which ... he gathers the material with which he ... hails the character of his fellow ... man.

Now to relieve you to some extent ... of embarrassment in this behalf, will ... you permit me to inquire of you ... whether or not your source of information is derived from a defeated ... candidate for political leadership in ... the republican party of this state, or ... some one of his satellites, and who ... is not so much concerned about the ... propriety of appointments in Alabama as they are mortified and ... animated by their own disappointments in seeking power and political ... preferment in this state? If you are a ... just and honorable man you will read... ily give the source ... your information ... in this matter, and thus show ... your confidence has been betrayed ... that you have been misled and im... posed upon by some designing and ... unscrupulous man or men.

This is the only way of escape open ... to you to avoid the stigma of being ... a slanderer, and without which ... you must receive the condemnation ... of all gentlemen.

I now direct your attention to the ... following replies to your charges ... which I shall treat seriatim.

SLANDER NO. 1.

You charge that the present referees ... of Alabama upon whom President ... Roosevelt depends for advice in the ... matters of patronage are "said" to be ... honorable men, but now have reduced ... the voting strength of the party to ... 25,000 at the recent election in Nov... ember.

It is unfair to compare the republican vote of 1904 in Alabama with ... that cast in 1900. Because by the go... ing into effect in 1901 of the new constitution of the state, 177,000 colored voters of the state out of a colored voting population of 181,000 were disfranchised. Perhaps there are at present but 3,000 registered colored voters in the state. The decrease in the republican vote in Alabama, about which you write, and for which you assign us as responsible, is due alone solely to the operation of the new constitution.

If it was not your purpose to unjustly discredit the President's advisers in Alabama why did you not compare the vote of the two elections occurring under the provisions of the new constitution? You must know it to be a fact that the opposition to the democratic party after the adoption of the new constitution in 1902 was less than 25,000, and that the opposition vote in 1904, under the "new ref-

Byron and Napoleon.

The more I think of Byron the more clear it becomes to me that ... first, second and third, a ... figure. He was the child of a ... marriage, that constant source ... armies of discordant nat... his upspringing was tragic; his ... was tragic, his loves ... his death, which at first ... was tragic-farce, is ... Byron and Napoleon, ... the analogues ... of each other. Byron ... of the times ... as poet, using ... Napoleon is the active ... of the imaginative temperam... world conqueror, ... Byron inevitably ... of action ... inevitably in ... at expression ... St. Helena.

Conversion in Germany.

... during the German emp... in the ... are having ... in 1901 ... increase of ... number ... The Gothic cremat... Hamburg, ... Heidelberg, ... Mannheim, ... and Darmstadt 46, ... were ma... were of ... Catholic, ... were Fr... of uncle's crimi...

Illiterate Russians.

... of the soldiers ... are unable to re... in the German army t... only 0.07.

Beware Sham.

... Allen's For... ... Don't ... Lobelia Expe... J. Colby, Al...

Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein is Nature's great remedy—Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup and Consumption, all throat and lung troubles. At druggists 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

... were invented in the ...

The Peabody Fund.

To the sum of $... left ... George Peabody between 1862 ... Institute which the Peabody bu... ... for the poor were erected ... Lon... ... have since been ad... $1,2... ... received for rent and ... first, making the total fund, acc... ... annual report issued, $7,293.... ... more money comes in more bu...

The Eternal Feminine.

Grandfather, doing some carpent... work and finding he needed so... screws, sent little Mary to the ha... ware store to get some for him. Wh... she got there she could not remem... the word "screw." At last she st... "Grandpa wants some nails with ru...

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Native Wrens.

... the dict... ... trying ... for the circus ... ... "combination," he h... ... ies.

An Old Prisoner.

James McCardle, of Jamaica Pl... Mass., who will be 100 years old ... June next, has since 1852 been d... a pension as a British soldier ... (about a day (or little more than ... a quarter) for disability.

The Present Rate Law.

The duties of the present Interst... Commerce Commission are to cor... discriminations in railroad ra... It finds that an unjust rate ... fixes the railroad is notified. If it ... claims to change it, the Commission ... bring suit in Court and if the Court ... cides in favor of the Commission's ... finding, the railroad must obey, ... others may be brought up for ... tempt of Court and summarily d... with.

Women in France may wear t... gers in public by paying a yearly ... of 50 francs for the privilege.

J. O. THOMPSON MAKES REPLY TO CORRESPONDENT W. E. CURTIS

...ham, Ala., March 24, 1905.
Mr. W. E. Curtis, Correspondent Evening Star, Washington, D. C.:

I have just read your "arraignment ... the President's referees" in the Washington Star and other papers. ... cannot withhold the expression ... my indignation at the vile and libelous statements made by you. You ... me personally in your communication and it is manifest if there was ... a purpose on your part to injure ... charges would never have ... been made.

Why you should make such false ... statements can only be ... your evident desire to ... pervert and mis-state ... pertaining to the current ... administration of politi... Alabama, and become ... of a malicious libel, for ... purpose unknown to me. ... gentlemen who are al... ed by lofty motives never ... the role you assume, and ... themselves to be a conduit ... which falsehood and slander ... generated and published.

You make the statements as positive facts, impressing the reader with the belief that you personally know the matters you state, and without ... evidence thereof, thus betraying your zeal in the role you have assumed without any regard for ve...

You are personally a stranger to ... as you were ever informed or ... as to the propriety of any ... or qualification of any ap... recommended by the "Presi... referees" in Alabama the same ... unknown to me. Even if true, the ... about which you have written ... personally known to you. ... are not a citizen or resident of ... and it is unreasonable to ... your concern about the ap... to office in Alabama is ... upon any personal interest ... nor is it generated ... nor have you have in the general welfare of the people of Alabama, ... you would have made com... to the President, proved your ... obtained judgement of con... demnation against the referees. With... action on your part a disposition ... purpose to serve and promote ... welfare by your arraign... of myself as one of the "Presi... referees," is not a part of the ... of your libel, but it must ... to the accusation and existence in ... of some personal and ig... or incentive.

An honorable gentleman, who loves ... truth's sake, and who will ... himself to hear false witness ... his neighbor; a brave man, ... and chivalrous spirit, who ... will not hire out his words and anger, ... ready falsehood as he is paid ... is always prepared and will ... the true source from which ... the material with which he ... the character of his fellow ...

Now to believe you to some extent ... embarrassment in this behalf, will ... permit me to inquire of you ... whether or not your source of information is derived from a defeated ... for political leadership in ... republican party of this state, or ... of his satellites, and who ... concerned about the ... of appointments in Ala... mortified and ... by their own disappoint... seeking to cover and political ... in this state? If you are a ... honorable man you will read... the source of your informa... in this matter, and thus show ... confidence has been betrayed, ... been misled and im... by some designing and ... men.

... way of escape open ... brand of falsifier ... without which ... denunciation ... gentlemen.

I now direct your attention to the ... your charges ... slander.

SLANDER NO. 1.

... that the present referees ... upon whom President ... depends for advice in mat... are "said" to be ... have reduced ... strength of the party to ... the recent election in No...

It is unfair to compare the republican vote of 1904 in Alabama with ... cast in 1900. Because by the going into effect in 1901 of the new constitution of the state, 177,000 colored voters of the state out of a colored voting population of 181,000 were disfranchised. Perhaps there are at present but 3,000 registered colored voters in the state. The decrease in the republican vote in Alabama, about which you write, and for which you arraign us as responsible, is due alone and solely to the operation of the new constitution.

If it was not your purpose to unjustly discredit the President's advisers in Alabama why did you not compare the vote of the two elections occurring under the provisions of the new constitution? You must know it to be a fact that the opposition to the democratic party after the adoption of the new constitution in 1902 was ... than 25,000, and that the opposition vote in 1904, under the "new reform order of things" was more than 25,000, thus showing an increase in the opposition vote, since I have been chairman of the republican committee.

Taking into consideration the fact that there are over 232,000 white persons of voting age in Alabama and fully 200,000 registered white voters in the state, is there not sufficient concern why democratic advisers should employ their time in fortifying and strengthening the following of that party which polled only 79,000 votes for Parker, instead of criticising the leadership of the republican party in this state which succeeded in polling nearly 25,000 votes for Roosevelt, and caused a great number of voters to decline to vote the democratic ticket.

A great majority of the white persons of voting age in Alabama refrained from acting with the democratic party, and a larger number of these voters would have acted with the republicans but for the misrepresentation and abuse of the republican President and of the republican party indulged in by partisan newspapers and politicians who are seeking to direct republican affairs, and to meddle in republican politics.

SLANDER NO. 2.

You state the following as facts:

"The chairman of the board, who is also chairman of the republican state committee, is J. O. Thompson, of Tuskegee, whose brother was recently the democratic member of Congress from that district. Another brother has been a leader in the populist party. Mr. Thompson is a man of good standing and family, but is no more competent to judge of the qualifications of candidates for office than any one of the 22,000 republicans who voted for Roosevelt at the last election. He assigned himself to the most important office in the state, that of collector of internal revenue, and has thirty-five deputies traveling through Alabama at the expense of the government, and drawing government salaries, in keeping up the organization he has formed."

It is true that I had a brother who was a democratic member of Congress, but it is utterly untrue that I ever had a brother who was a leader in the populist party. It is ludicrously, not to say, meanly false, to say that "as chairman I assigned myself the most important office in the state," because at the time I was appointed collector of internal revenue I was neither chairman nor referee. That I have my deputies traveling through Alabama at the expense of the government to keep up the organization I have formed, is absolutely slanderous for such state of affairs would be impossible, with my office ranking as it does as high as any in the United States, and agents of the department continually traveling over the state and overlooking the work of my deputies. In refutation of this slander, reference is made to the department at Washington, and to any fair-minded truthful man in Alabama republican or democrat.

SLANDER NO. 3.

Your statement that my associate, Mr. Charles H. Scott, is "no more disinterested nor better qualified than Mr. Thompson," is a gratuitous statement on your part, without a semblance of fact to sustain it.

Had you wanted to know the facts and if you had been as diligent in getting at the truth as you were in trying to serve some partisan end against the referees, you could have ascertained that Captain Scott is a man of wealth and standing, a southerner, a native of Montgomery, Ala., who has not asked office under the administration, nor is he going to do so. You could also have learned from those who no doubt inspired your libel, as to Captain Scott's ability, that his prowess was well known from the manner in which he emasculated them in their efforts to defeat him for national committeeman, by placing in his stead a man of open hostility to the President as well as to republican principles. You could also have learned that a very prominent position was offered one of Captain Scott's brothers who declined the same, and that no member of his family is an office holder, or expects to be, and that the work he has done in the upbuilding of the party in Alabama has been of the most unselfish nature.

SLANDER NO. 4.

You refer to a third referee "who is not working in harmony with his confreres, and who is causing them a great deal of trouble." It is well known in Alabama as well as elsewhere, that there is no third referee.

SLANDERER NO. 5.

You state that "upon the recommendation of Scott and Thompson the President recently appointed a postmaster at the town of Dothan, a thriving place of about 5,000 people, a political henchman of Thompson's, who lived 193 miles away. The citizens of the place were not consulted and very few had ever known or heard of the appointee. He did not pretend to become a citizen of Dothan, but went there simply to hold the office, and expects to return to his former residence when his term is out."

In answer to this will say that Mr. Trammell, who we recommended for appointment at Dothan, moved there a long time before there was a vacancy in the office. He came to us with a petition signed by something like seventy-five per cent of the patrons of the office, including county and city officials, democrats, bankers, lawyers, merchants farmers, mechanics, etc., all asking for his appointment. He also furnished us with a certificate signed by the democratic probate judge that he was a qualified voter at that place. His appointment was held up; numerous charges were filed against him, probably by the same men who are now furnishing you with your information. Numerous investigations followed by the department and Trammell's appointment followed after he had been completely exonerated by the agents of the government. The papers in this case are on file in Washington and I presume you will have no trouble in seeing them if you are as anxious to clear up these charges as you were to make them.

SLANDER NO. 6.

You state "That the previous postmaster at Dothan whom Trammell succeeded was also appointed upon the recommendation of Scott and Thompson, and was killed by the sheriff of the county as he was attempting to escape from the consequences of a seduction." In answer to that I wish to say that neither Mr. Scott nor I had anything on earth to do with the appointment of Mr. Millican, the former postmaster at Dothan, but he was recommended by our predecessors in the party organization. An investigation of the records of the postoffice department will disclose these facts.

SLANDER NO. 7.

You refer to the appointment of Jere Dennis, whom you designate as a deputy in the internal revenue service at Birmingham, as postmaster at Marion, Perry county, Alabama. If you would refer to the files of the postoffice department at Washington, you will find among those asking the appointment of Mr. Dennis, the name of your friend, W. F. Aldrich, before his removal as referee. They will also show that he was not endorsed until he had furnished us with the backing of the patrons of the office. Probably 90 per cent signed his petition. They were preachers, lawyers, school teachers, bankers, merchants, farmers and all classes of citizens of Marion. Dennis was never in any way connected with the internal revenue service in Alabama, and he was a resident of Marion long prior to the vacancy.

SLANDER NO. 8.

You refer to the appointment of a man named Barnes as postmaster at Andalusia, against whom you allege a fraud order has only recently been issued by the postmaster general, and who had been charged with using the mails for unlawful purposes. You say he was also charged with assault and that still the President appointed him.

In regard to his case I will say that Mr. Barnes was, at the time of his appointment as postmaster at Andalusia, a deputy United States marshal at Montgomery, but at the same time residing at Andalusia. He came to us backed by the petition of the patrons of the office, and we have never yet heard, save from your statement, that there had been a fraud order issued against him by the postoffice department. We hardly believe this could be true, for if it had been undoubtedly it would have been called to the attention of the United States marshal under whom he was serving, and by the court officers for whom he served papers, and it is hardly possible that they would have permitted him to remain in office under the circumstances.

In regard to the other charge will say that I am informed that the patrons of the Andalusia office are now petitioning the President to retain Mr. Barnes in the office, which is a complete vindication of the charge, for knowing the temperament of the people of that intelligent community I can say for them that they would not tolerate any man in office resting under such a charge.

The records of the country and also the actions and statements of disinterested officials severely and directly contradict your statements and show them to be false and libelous, and which falsities you could easily have ascertained, and which an honorable, truthful, fair-minded and impartial gentleman would have ascertained before indulging in the role of scandal-monger, generating and publishing libelous publications against his fellow man. In view of such facts is it not an act of audacity and impudence on your part to claim for yourself honor and truth, and expect honorable men to hold you in esteem and respect?

Will you tell the public whether the wines and viands of some Alabama host so infatuated and exhilarated you, or was it some more ulterior purpose which so beclouded all sense of honor, truth and justice, that you have become a scandal-monger, incubating falsehoods and giving them currency through the columns o the metropolitan press? The facts herein stated justify the question, and a sense of truth, justice and honor demands your answer.

JOSEPH O. THOMPSON.

Dispatch Discredited.

London, England.—A news agency dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the report published on Saturday that a new international loan of $100,000,000 would shortly be issued is now discredited.

INJURED THE PARTY

Work of Republican Leaders in Alabama. Selection of Officials.

THE PRESIDENT CENSURED FOR UNWISE APPOINTMENTS.

It is Claimed That the State Referees Have Urged Action That Has Made the Chief Executive Unpopular.

BY WM. E. CURTIS.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star and Chicago Record-Herald.

Montgomery, Ala., March 18, 1905.

Since the suppression of the negro vote, twenty years or more ago, the republican party of Alabama has been a limited monopoly, making considerable agitation and attracting considerable attention at national conventions and when there has been federal patronage to bestow, but without any voting power. It has been divided into two or more factions by the struggles for leadership, the chairman of the state committee usually being recognized by the President as the chieftain and highest authority. Hence, in the absence of senators and representatives in congress to consult, the President usually has been governed by the advice of the state chairman, and the latter has exercised autocratic power in directing the organization and has selected the men to fill the federal offices. During recent years this authority and responsibility in Alabama, as in other southern states without republican representation in congress, has been intrusted to a committee of prominent republican politicians known as referees. These referees have been recognized by the President, as they have been selected by him as the most competent republicans in the state to advise him concerning appointments; and ever since the beginning of the first McKinley administration they have practically distributed the patronage. Their recommendations have usually been final with the president. They have taken the best offices themselves, as a rule, and in order to perpetuate their power and influence have assigned the next best to their most useful lieutenants, regardless of residence or qualifications. The natural consequence is a compact and effective organization, which has been able to control state and county conventions and select the delegates to national conventions.

Clashing of Interests.

For obvious reasons it has been contrary to the personal interests of these leaders to increase the numerical strength of the party, and they are accused of trying to prevent the election of republican representatives and other officials who might interfere with their distribution of the patronage. They have not wanted any more republicans. Although the party is very small, it is altogether too large. There are not enough offices to go around, and the lack of them has caused factional strife and rivalries between aspirants. That is the reason why the republican party in Alabama—and the same is true in other southern states—has been growing smaller and smaller every year. Men of character and influence who believe in republican principles have been kept out and even driven out of the organization.

The present referees in Alabama, upon whom President Roosevelt depends for advice in matters of patronage, are said to be honorable men, but they have reduced the voting strength of the party to 22,000 at the recent election in November. The chairman of the board, who is also chairman of the republican state committee, is J. O. Thompson, of Tuskegee, whose brother was recently the democratic member of Congress from that district. Another brother has been a leader in the populist party. Mr. Thompson is a man of good standing and of good family, but is no more competent to judge of the qualifications of candidates for office than any one of the 22,000 republicans who voted for Roosevelt at the last election. He assigned himself to the most important office in the state, that of collector of internal revenue, and has thirty-five deputies traveling through Alabama at the expense of the government and drawing government salaries, keeping up the organization he has formed.

His associate is a real estate dealer of Montgomery, Charles H. Scott—also a very agreeable gentleman, but no more disinterested and no better qualified than Mr. Thompson.

The third referee, who is not working in harmony with his colleagues and is causing them a great deal of trouble, is Mr. Aldrich, of Montevallo, the only republican representative from Alabama in the House of Representatives for several years. Mr. Aldrich is a man of character, wealth, ability and unquestioned integrity. He owns large coal deposits and is interested in various commercial and industrial enterprises. Everybody agrees that by reason of his disinterestedness he is qualified to advise the President concerning appointments, and everybody outside of their organization agrees that the other two men are not.

Some Illustrations.

This may be demonstrated by a few illustrations. Upon the recommendation of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Scott the President recently appointed as postmaster at the town of Dothan, a thriving place of about 5,000 people, a political henchman of Thompson's who lived 193 miles away. The citizens of the place were not consulted, and very few, if any, had ever known or heard of the appointee. He did not pretend to become a citizen of Dothan, but went there simply to hold the office and expects to return to his former residence when his term is out. But that is not the worst. The appointee had just been acquitted of murder. He shot an enemy on the street, but escaped conviction on a plea of self-defense, and it was not agreeable for him to remain at his home.

The previous postmaster at Dothan, whom he succeeded and who was also appointed upon the recommendation of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Scott, was killed by the sheriff of the county while attempting to escape from the consequences of a seduction.

President Roosevelt was not allowed to know any of these circumstances.

Marion, Perry county, is an educational center, with a college and several other schools for young women and men. It is one of the most cultivated communities in the state and does not lack material in either party for postmaster, yet Jerry Dennis, a deputy in the internal revenue office at Birmingham, was brought across the state to fill that office because Messrs. Thompson and Scott wanted a man there who could be depended upon to keep up the organization.

Andalusia is the center of the turpentine trade, a growing town of 2,500 population, with plenty of citizens qualified to fill the office of postmaster. Yet these referees imported a man named Barnes, against whom a fraud order had only recently been issued by the Postmaster General at Washington, and who had been charged with using the mails for unlawful purposes. He was also charged with assault upon his stepdaughter. And yet the President appointed him. Dozens of similar cases might be cited to show the manner in which he has been deceived by the referees in their efforts to secure an organization that will perpetuate their power.

The President's Confidence Shaken.

There is reason to believe, however, that the President's confidence in Messrs. Thompson and Scott is not so strong as it formerly was, because Mr. Aldrich, the other referee, in opposition to these and several other recommendations, has endeavored to convince the President that he is being deceived and betrayed.

The strongest sign in that direction is an order issued by the President about a month ago prohibiting office holders from taking part in political affairs, and requiring them to resign from state and local committees. Twenty-eight of the thirty-five members of the republican state committee are office holders, and about ten of them—all postmasters—have already resigned from the committee. The other members show no signs of doing so, and Mr. Thompson still sticks.

One of his friends explained to me that it is not practicable, or even possible, for him to resign, and that the President does not intend that he should do so. As chairman of the state committee he is responsible for the well-being of that organization, and if he dropped out the whole thing would go to pieces, a catastrophe which the President would be the last to provoke. Therefore it is understood that Mr. Thompson shall continue to exercise his triplicate authority as referee, chairman of the state committee and collector of the internal revenue until the next state convention, when his successor will be duly elected.

But it is quite certain that if the President ever learns the truth about Mr. Thompson and the mischief his policy has caused that gentleman will be relieved of some of his responsibilities. Such men as he have made the republican party disreputable, and the unpopularity of the President in this state is due almost entirely to the appointments he has made upon the recommendations of these referees.

A Southern Man's View.

I have questioned several prominent citizens on that subject. Jeff M. Falkner, general counsel for the Louisville and Nashville railroad in Alabama, said: "McKinley was very popular in the south; altogether the most popular President we have had since the war. If he had lived he would have built up a great following in this section. Our people believed that he was sincere in his friendship for and interest in them. It is undoubtedly true that he appointed more negroes to office than Roosevelt, but they were mostly decent men, while Roosevelt's selections have not always been such. Many of Roosevelt's appointments have been scandalous, and while we may admire his dash, they have destroyed confidence in his judgment and his honesty. No President can be honest and sincere in his regard for a people who selects such men to represent his administration in office as Roosevelt has done. He has shown very little sense and we are afraid of him. He is liable to break out like measles at any time."

Mr. Falkner suggested that the President was doing Booker Washington a good deal of harm and weakening the latter's influence by consulting him concerning appointments in Alabama, because people hold Washington responsible for several bad ones with which he has had nothing to do. He says that every time Washington goes to the White House the fact is telegraphed all over the country, and the natural inference is that he is there either voluntarily or by invitation to confer concerning the patronage of this state.

It is also alleged that Mr. Thompson, of the board of referees, who resides at Tuskegee, is using Mr. Washington as a tool. People say that when Thompson feels that his influence is not strong enough to land his favorite he suggests that the President confer with Washington, and before the latter starts for the capital endeavors to convince him that his candidate is the best man.

Illiterate Russians.

Nearly one-half of the soldiers in the Russian army are unable to read and write. In the German army the percentage is only 0.07.

PASS IT ON.

If the Man Under You Does Good Work, Tell Him So.

"You're great little wife, and I don't know what I would do without you." As he spoke he put his arms about her and kissed her, and she forgot all the care in that moment. And, forgetting all, she sang as she washed the dishes, and sang as she made the beds, and the song was heard next door, and a woman there caught the refrain, and sang also, and two homes were happier because he had told her that sweet old story, the story of the love of a husband for a wife. As she sang the butcher boy who called for the order heard it and went out whistling on his journey, and the world heard the whistle, and one man, hearing it, thought: "Here is a lad who loves his work, a lad happy and contented."

And because she sang her heart was mellowed, and she swept about the back door the cool air kissed her on each cheek, and she thought of a poor old woman she knew, and a little basket went over to that home, with a quarter for a crate or two of wood.

So because he kissed her and praised her the song came, and the influence went out and out.

Pass on the praise.

A word, as you make a rift in the cloud; smile, and you may create a new resolve; a grasp of the hand, and you may repossess a soul from hell.

Does your clerk do well?

Pass on the praise.

Tell him that you are pleased, and he will appreciate it more than a raise. A good clerk does not work for his salary alone.

Teacher, if the child is good, tell him about it; if he is better, tell him again; thus, you see, good, better, best.

Pass on the praise now. Pass it on in the home. Don't go to the grave and call, "Mother." Don't plead: "Hear me, mother. You were a good mother, and smoothed away many a rugged path for me."

Those ears cannot hear that glad admission. Those eyes cannot see the light of earnestness in yours. Those hands may not return the embraces you now wish to give.

Pass on the praise today.—Argenta Hustler.

An Acceptance Card.

The editor takes pleasure in stating that your story, entitled "The Buzz of the Buzzard," is accepted for the "Surething Magazine." The acceptance of an article, however, does not necessarily imply that it possesses merit. Any one of a number of reasons may lead to its acceptance—such, for instance, as a specious timeliness, the fact that it will exactly fit an empty space, any kind of notoriety attached to the writer's name, the possession by the magazine of a useless illustration, purchased by mistake, which, in an emergency, can be made to misillustrate some of its incidents, or even temporary aberration on the part of the editor. The absence of criticism is kindly asked to be excused, owing to the vast number of manuscripts which the editor daily returns without reading at all. Check in payment for your story will, in all probability, be sent you some day; meanwhile, the editor would counsel the beautiful virtue of patience.—Life.

A Mechanical Paradox.

Our dummy engine has done some good work during the past week or 10 days. On a rough estimation the whistle has made 31,000 miles, and the actual mileage made by the engine was about 1000 miles. One would judge by that the whistle was far ahead of the engine, but it is still on the engine.—Woodruff (Ark.) Free Press.

A girl who has worked in a restaurant at Colorado Springs for a number of years has just come into a tidy little legacy of $2,000,000 from a distant English relative.

Byron and Napoleon.

The more I think of Byron ... more clear it becomes to me th... first, second and third, a ... figure. He was the child of a ... marriage, that constant sour... ... armies of discordant nat... ... upbringing was tragic; h... ... was taught his loves ... ... hot youth, which at firs... ... mere tragic farce, is a... ... Byron and Napoleon, ... were the analogues ... ... each other. Byro... ... ... post, using ... ... Napoleon as the active ... ... the unobservative temperam... ... ... Byron mechanically ... ...

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

THE UNION and Yellow Jacket	$1.00
THE UNION and Home & Farm	1.00
THE UNION and Dixie Home	1.00
THE UNION and Saturday News	1.25
THE UNION and Weekly Age-Herald	1.25
THE UNION and Atlanta Constitution	1.25
THE UNION and Weekly Advertiser and Map of Ala., U. S. and World	1.50
THE UNION and Twice-a-Week Globe-Democrat	1.50
THE UNION and Tom Watson's Magazine	1.50
THE UNION and Tri-weekly Atlanta Constitution	1.50

If there are other papers you desire, call on us and get full list and rates.

ROBBERY AS A STEADY JOB.

On the night of February 24th John W. Johnston was arrested in the postoffice at Thorsby, which he had entered for the purpose of robbery by Postmaster J. Bice and several men who were in ambush inside. Joe Gabbard, who had given Mr. Bice the tip about the fellow in advance, below tells what Johnson told him (Gabbard) while Johnson was trying to get Gabbard to join him. The account is given as Postmaster Bice wrote it down at Gabbard's dictation, and while there is a more or less palpable romancing in the tale, still it may give a clue to the perpetrator of some robberies in the places named. The projected attempt on the Marbury's is coming pretty close home, and the facts could no doubt be easily ascertained as to whether he worked there or not, and also about the man he claims to have robbed in Montgomery. According to this statement, it would be a Godsend if the U. S. court would put him away for a good long term, and thus protect property and maybe life. "He first told me about a robbery in Oklahoma or Kansas City. He said he rode 120 miles and back, had 3 horses stationed on the road; held up a restaurant man and got $600. He was arrested, but proved he was 120 miles away that night and so got clear of the charge. He said that he left his home because he shot a man; put 14 buckshot in him. He then worked a while for the Kansas City Coal and Coke Co., and while there said he got $1,200 worth of diamonds and jewelry; said he went from there to St. Louis, and while there took up with a show and came south as far as Montgomery, and came from there to Marbury and went to work; he panned to rob Mrs. Marbury of her jewelry and also the store of money, but the reason he did not carry out his plan was that a man there sold out (as he and his wife had parted) and as he (Johnston) thought that the fellow had about $900, Johnston went to Montgomery with him and got him drunk and robbed him of $40, which was all that he could find on the fellow. As Johnston's partner had left him he had to get another, so went to Birmingham and from there to Thorsby, where he got work at the planing mill. He was there about ten days when he revealed his secrets to me. He told me that just down the road there was $5,000 that could be got by just going and getting it; told his plans to get it and where it was at; said we could buy tickets to Clanton and get off there, and catch the first freight train for Marbury, get there after dark and watch the bookkeeper until the last man went in and then we could hold him up and get the money, buck and gag him, and then go to the dwelling house and get in and chloroform the family, and take what money, jewelry and diamonds they had; and then we make our way back to Thorsby before daylight and be ready to go to work as usual; that did not work so well with me, so he proposed to rob the postoffice at Thorsby; said he could watch until $1,200 or $1,400 was there, and it could be easily got, for if he could not catch on to the combination of the safe we could easily blow it open by using nitro-glycerine extracted from dynamite. He said he could get 1-2 pint of the stuff from 4 pounds of dynathem; he did get one suit of clothes, and he did not intend to pay for them when he could get them so easy without; he said he would bring me two suits, but I told him I did not want them; he did get one suit o fclothes, a pair of shoes, 3 or 4 pairs of gloves, and I don't know how many suits of underwear and one razor; he said there wasn't any money in the drawer to fool with; he also planned to rob the drug and jewelry store, for he wanted to make some presents, and sell the rest. I would not help him; I always had some excuse, but I was watching all the time to get the law on him; while he was watching to get a chance at the postoffice he asked me to watch also, as he wanted to get in there when no one was sleeping there. After I got his plan I told Mr. Bice, so I agreed to partner with Johnston in robbing the postoffice in order to catch him, so I carried out Johnston's plan with my own also, to catch him; he told me that when he would steal jewelry or things like that he would go way off to sell it; he said he and two others held up an express train and robbed it of $5,000, but did not tell me the name of the place; as near as I could find out his range was in Oklahoma and Kansas. He also said he and a couple of others tackled a bank safe, but that he stepped on something that lighted up the whole place and they had to skip without anything."

ACTUAL COTTON RECEIPTS.

The following are the REAL figures as to the number of bales of cotton received in Clanton up to Wednesday, April 12th, 1905, for this cotton season; the figures are taken from the books of the L. and N. R. R. and the cotton ware house:

Received and shipped by R. R.	6,573
In ware house	264
Total receipts	6,837

THE UNION gets its figures in the only way in which to make an impartial, correct report. Last year at this time the receipts were 6,648, so you see if there was so much larger crop in 1904 than in 1903, that some farmers are holding their cotton. STAND FIRM, HOLD your COTTON and REDUCE your ACREAGE, and the fight is won. Reading Daniel J. Sully's letter in this paper. You know he has stood by you in the past, and is willing to help you again, if YOU WILL try to HELP YOURSELVES.

TO THE COTTON GROWERS OF THE SOUTH.

If you wish to win your battle and obtain a fair price for your cotton you must reduce your acreage very considerably. You have surprised the world by the manner in which you have held your cotton. Surprise it again by cutting down your cotton acreage. Do not be led astray by the present steadiness of prices. Three causes have contributed to bring about this rise of more than a cent a pound. First, the urgent demand arising from an unprecedented consumption. Second, your courage and wisdom in making the buyer meet your terms. Third, the belief that you would cut your acreage to such an extent that the supplies from this crop and the growth of 1905-6 would make a commercial crop no larger than the world needs. The first two causes lose their force the moment it is known that there is a prospect for a moderately large crop next year. Even if the mills take 12,000,000 bales during the current season, this would leave a carry-over of 1,500,000 bales. Hence the necessity of a smaller crop this year. Do not let any rise in prices between now and the end of the planting season deter you from reducing your acreage. Such an advance would be merely anticipating that you were making the decrease which your friends have advised you to make. If the June report of the Government shows that you have failed to make sufficient reduction the only persons who would be gainers by the advance would be the speculators who sell out their futures at a profit. The price of the cotton you produce will be regulated by the actual, not the expected, reduction. In this matter of acreage reduction bear in mind three suggestions: Don't depend on your neighbor to do the reducing. Don't rely on bad weather to cut down the size of the crop. Don't put a large acreage into cotton simply because it is too late to plant corn or other diversified crops. It would be far better to let part of your land lie idle than to run the risk of raising a crop so large as to make possible another period of low-priced cotton. I am making this appeal to you because I regard the next few weeks as critical to the South and because I believe that every man who is interested in the welfare of the South should urge the importance of a reduced acreage.

DANIEL J. SULLY.

No. 43 Exchange Place, New York City, April 7, 1905. tf

EASTER EGG HUNT.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church of Clanton will give an Easter egg hunt on Saturday, April 22d. The hunt will begin at 4 p. m. on the lot at the west side of Mr. Crit Jones' residence on Second avenue. Entrance fee for hunters, 5 cents. Everybody invited to come, especially the children.

AGAINST STOCK LAW.

Mr. Editor:

Allow me a little space to congratulate G. W. Jones for his opinion on stock law in Chilton county. I say "hurrah" for G. W. Jones, and for all citizens of Chilton who believe in freedom, and in building fences and keeping gates shut. I'll bet ten cents that Mr. Jones don't stand back when his fence begins to decay, but splits more rails and repairs it, instead of paying a surveyor to run out a whole section of land in order to get one string of fence, as some have done in this part of Chilton Co. May God and the Probate Judge stir up the pure minds of the people to let stock law and their neighbors' fencing alone, and if they need a fence go to work and build one. This is what I call the People's Party business, is what I voted last, and what I vote now. Goodby, Mr. Editor. Kiss Mr. G. W. Jones for me, a liner of Beat 1 and 2.

Z. S. AVERY.

THORSBY.

Seventeen of our people went to Pensacola on Saturday's excursion. Though all looked tired on their return, they seemed to have enjoyed the trip. Mr. Haggerty left here Saturday with the intention of spending the remainder of his visit south at Pensacola, but returned with the excursionists on Monday. We welcome him back. The following left Thorsby for different parts of the north on Sunday: Mrs. Jesame, Oliver Jeseme, Miss Nora Jeseme, Mrs. Stubrud and son and Mr. and Mrs. Talley. Mrs. Flowers and daughter have gone to live with the former's son at Cottondale, Ala. Many of us will miss them. The Misses Mary and Petra Olson left for North Dakota Monday. Mr. Warnick and family, who spent some days here visiting relatives and friends, have returned to their home in Powderly, Ala. The many friends of Mr. J. Williams will be sorry to learn of the painful and serious accident that occurred to him Saturday. In jumping from a runaway he broke and dislocated his right ankle. Dr. Stabler is attending him and latest reports are that he is resting quite easy. We all wish him a speedy recovery. Mr. Deni, of Shelby, was a pleasant visitor here Sunday. Mesdames H. Michelson, W. Michelson, J. Olson and Anderson, who have been guests at the Thorsby inn for several weeks, left for Chicago on the 11th inst. The Literary Club entertained a large number of their friends at the beautiful home of Miss Kirkby in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. White on Friday. Miss Kirkby played several fine instrumental pieces during the evening. A guessing game in which Mrs. G. Michelson was awarded the first prize was enjoyed by all. Dainty refreshments were served during the evening. Mr. C. H. White and family left yesterday for Marshall, Minn. We will welcome their return to us. Friends of Mrs. J. Robinson will be glad to hear that she is up and about again after her illness of several weeks. The frost of last Thursday night killed many of the grapes in this locality. Ed Snyder and wife, of Prattville, are visiting relatives here.

"TWO OF US."

BEAT 9 ITEMS.

More pretty weather, but the night of the 7th we had one of the hardest freezes for April since 1900. R. W. Scott and J. R. Collins made a trip to Clanton Saturday. J. P. Barrett and son, Charlie, were in Montevallo Thursday. In this vicinity, some of those who joined the cotton association have sold their cotton, while others who did not join are holding theirs. On one farm here that had 80 acres in cotton last year and used 63 sacks of guano, this year has only 30 acres with 30 sacks of guano; how is that? Thomas Childress took a pleasure trip to Pensacola Saturday. Farmers are about finished planting corn, and are putting their cotton ground in shape. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins went to Clanton Tuesday to lay in spring supplies.

NIM ROD.

LOMAX.

Cotton planting starts this week, if the weather is favorable. J. J. Culp was in our town Saturday. J. H. Jackson's saw mill is doing a good business. Just a few words in reply to Mr. G. W. Jones' letter in last week's UNION. I was glad to hear from him on the stock law question and accord him the right to his opinion, the same as I to mine. I don't say that stock law makes us any more civilized, but that stock law follows civilization. In regard to ill feelings between neighbors, I've known of a great deal more ill feelings where there was no stock law than I ever knew where there was stock law, caused by stock trespassing. I know by experience of stock law. I lived in the stock law counties many years, part of that time as a renter and with a large family of children, but I had plenty of milk and butter most of the time. But not so here. I find milk an dbutter a scarce article, though people could do better here than many places where they have stock law, as it is more productive here. Mr. Jones should shrdluun tive here. Mr. Jones referred to the pretty ranges of York, Ala., but did not say how they were here. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Jones has got every foot of his land fenced, also his neighbors? Mr. Jones lives about 3 miles from Clanton, and isn't it a fact that the road is fenced from his house to Clanton with the exception of a few hundred yards? I've often heard of the lane that never turns, and this one reminds me of it. Wouldn't it be better to prepare a few acres for our cattle and hogs, and do away with this long lane which is so expensive? One acre of prepared pasture to the cow is sufficient, then the man that has 40 acres and two cows would only have to fence 2 acres where he's now fencing 40, and would get better results. Would it not be economy to have stock law? Civilization has pushed its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific and stock law has followed from the Atlantic to the Coosa river, and has crossed that river in many places and went on, and will soon cross it here and do away with long lanes and "blue john" milk. And we'll have better steak, richer milk and butter, and more of it. I think it's cheaper for me to wait for the coming of stock law than to move to it. Let's hear from some one else who lives on that long lane. With best wishes to all and success to THE UNION and its many readers, I am, respectfully, "OBSERVER."

DIXIE TIMES.

Everybody is planting corn and bedding for cotton, but all have laid out less ground for cotton than ever before. About stock law we don't need it, though we do need good stock. I think the Lomax boys are off their "casip" about stock law, for I live close to the stock law here and it gives us a lot of trouble with stock, and I don't want any stock law in mine, but let the majority rule. Mr. Gandy, of Billingsley, was here Sunday. J. C. Barrett and sister and Miss Alice Culp went to Alpine church Sunday. R. L. Barrett has built one and a half miles of straight fence the past winter. Miss Nanny Harris and sister and Tom Gragg were visitors to Miss Ida Barrett Sunday. It's a long time since we've heard anything from "Sunshine" and would like to have her come again through our paper. Tom Kemp was a visitor to Mr. Blount's family last week. Walter Grimes, of Birmingham, was in Stanton Sunday. F. D. Moore and wife and William Weaver were visitors to the Barrett family last week. With love to THE UNION and its readers,

"WASH BOY."

NOTICE!

The Rev. T. E. Pinegar, of Sterling, Ala., has been appointed to organize Chilton county in behalf of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, and will be here about April 14th.

BEAT FOUR.

Everything is quiet in this part of the world. Talk on stock law is heard on every side. We are sorry to say that Wiley Foshee is very sick at the home of his son Fate, but hope he will soon be better. Several of our young people attended the singing at Cedar Grove Sunday and reported a nice time. Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Littlejohn visited her parents in beat 3 Sunday. We're glad to welcome Elbert Littlejohn in our midst again and hope he'll remain with us. One of our boys lost his hat last week. We don't know why he lost it, but a pretty girl was just behind him, and we expect he wanted an excuse to go back. Alfred M. * * * * * * comes over in Beat 4 every Sunday for his health. We wish him success. With best wishes for the readers of THE UNION. We'll come again next week.

"LONESOME JOE."

RANDOLPH.

Rev. Harrison filled his appointment at the Methodist church Sunday night. Rev. Connell, of Stanton, is expected to preach at the Baptist church next Sunday. Prof. T. J. Martin visited his old home in Chilton Saturday. F. J. Fitts, of Hubbard, was here Saturday "en route" to Selma. J. D. Glasscock and family were in town last week. Mr. G. is one of the true and tried Populists of Chilton, a brother of Commissioner Glasscock. John T. Weeks was out hunting last week near Thomas' Mill on Six Mile. He reports seeing one deer. George Coe killed a catamount in that locality several weeks ago. Misses Sallie, Pearl and Celestia Crumpton, of Macedonia, were here Monday. Mr. Gardner, of Rock Run, was in town Monday. Frank Sailer and family, of Sylacauga, have moved into the Cole house. There was some hail west of town Friday night. In considering Chilton's officials, while we can freely praise them all, we are forcibly impressed with Commissioner W. H. Conway. He is devoted to his people, self-sacrificing, public spirited, true to his convictions, honest and brave; the county should congratulate itself in having such a wide-awake Commissioner as Mr. Conway. Come again, all ye correspondents of THE UNION. Success to the People's paper.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

LIBERTY HILL.

Wiley Foshee and his son Fate are sick with "La Grippe." Mrs. John Littlejohn is still on the sick list. Mrs. R. C. Riggins is improving. Little Esther Vickers is getting along fairly well. Rev. Harmon, of Tallassee, preached an excellent sermon here Sunday last to an attentive congregation. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cooper and son, Stanley, visited C. C. Swint's family Saturday and Sunday. Elbert Littlejohn and Frank Hays went to Pensacola on the excursion Saturday. They returned Monday and report a nice time. Mr. and Mrs. Felix Eiland, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Culpepper, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Littlejohn, have been visiting their sick father, Wiley Foshee. Miss Bertha Wilkerson visited her aunt, Mrs. Dock Ayers, Saturday and Sunday. Lee T. Vickers was a visitor at Dock Ayers' Sunday. I see C. C. Swint is planting cotton. Say, brother, don't plant over your agreement. Corn is doing well. Every one says they've a fine stand, and intend to work their corn m up-to-date style. Good wishes to our people and its many readers.

"BROWN EYES."

Judge Reynolds spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Montgomery and Demopolis.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St.

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes & FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. — Alabama

..My Specialty..

SHOES made of Leather.
SHOES that are Reliable.
SHOES made to Wear.
NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Flour and Feed Stuffs, Tobacco and Snuff.

Every Department Full and Complete.

J. W. SMITH.

Former Post-office Building. Clanton, Ala.

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

Pure Water Prevents Fever

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

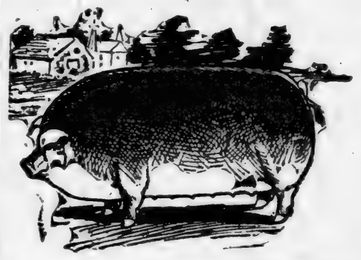
Thorsby, Alabama.

WOODLAWN FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eggs 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices before you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX, Maplesville, Ala.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

COUNTY AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

...g Term—Third Monday in May.
... Term—Fourth Monday in No-
...r.
...—L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
...itor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
...k—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

...ng Term—Second Monday in
...
... Term—Second Monday in Sep-
...r.
...ancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
...egister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

...t Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

...ond Monday February, first Mon-
... April, first Monday June, second
... July, second Monday August,
... Monday November.

County Officers.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. T. Callen.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

...rst District—W. H. Conway.
...cond District—Alex Glasscock.
...rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
...urth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

...n. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

...stors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

...eth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley, R. F. D. No. 1.

...Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

...Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 1st Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

...Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman 1st Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

...Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman, 1st Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

...New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 1st Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

...Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 1st Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

...Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

...Collins Chapel Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

...Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

...Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

...Mars Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

...Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Friday before the second Sunday; J. ...Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

...Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. ... Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song ...rvice every 2nd and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

...Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—3rd Saturday, Clanton.

...Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. ...—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

...Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. ...—First Saturday, Clanton.

...Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. ...—First Saturday, Billingsley.

...Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

...Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. ...—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

...Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. ...—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

...Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

...Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and Fourth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

...Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and 3rd Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

...Geronermo Tribe, No. 30—First and 3rd Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

...Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

BIG STORE,

The Head of The Procession.—

Clothing, Hats, Sho

URNITURE,

ND BURIAL NECESSITIE

I. MULLINS,

Alaban

y Specialty..

ather.

are Reliable.

S made to Wear.

NOT a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.

roceries, Flour and Fe

Tobacco and Snuff.

artment Full and Complete.

W. SMITH.

uilding Clanton, Alab

ual Insurance Associat

of Alabama.

SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

People and for the People.

n County Branch

zed February 3rd, 1900.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
Sec'y.-Treas.

' Dwellings, Outbuildings and tock against Loss by Fire, Wind e Cheapest, Safest and Most nsurance Known to Man.

56-100 of 1 percent.

shed upon application to LACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Al

Prevents Fever

S FURNISH PURE WAT

e water or no charge ma
Address
I. E. SARBER CO,
bama.

WOODLAW

FARM.

Barred
Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh egg
50c. Packing for ship
10c extra.

PURE BRED

Duroc
Jersey
Hogs.

Write us for prices b
you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alab

Practical Watchma
and Optician

Eyes Correctl Fitted

Mail orders promptly

RTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Circuit Court.

ring Term—Third Monday in May.
ll Term—Fourth Monday in No-ber

dge—L. L. Brower, Tuskegee.
Solicitor—W. B Bowling, Dadeville. lerk—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

ring Term—Second Monday in ril
ll Term—Second Monday in Sep-
ber.
ancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
egister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan-

County Court.

First Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

econd Monday February, first Mon-
April, first Monday June, second day July, second Monday August,
Monday November.

County Officers.

dge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
reasurer—W. T. Callen.
heriff—J. M. Morgan.
olicitor—J. O. Middleton. ax Assessor—A. C. Mims. ax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

irst District—W. H. Conway. econd District—Alex Glasscock. hird District—R. P. Kendrick. ourth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

rof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

. P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

on. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

astors and clerks are cordially ask-to send the editor any news regard-their churches which they would e published. Also if there are any ors in these notices please send corions

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

outh Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd unday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings-y, R. F. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st nd 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason,
Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman,
Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman,
Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman,
Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee,
Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd unday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Collirene Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas
Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas,
Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Mars Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st unday G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor;
unday before the second Sunday; J.
Abercrombie, clerk, Verbena.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev.
. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song
ervice every 2nd and 4th Sunday af-noons. Prayer meeting every Wed-esday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—rd Saturday, Clanton.

Amarde Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—First Saturday, Clanton.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—First Saturday, Billingsley.

Soloman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 304 Saturday on or before full on, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
Saturday on or before full moon,
elsen.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No.
—Tuesday on or before full moon,
anton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Satdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304— Second and rth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and rd Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Geronemo Tribe, No. 90—First and rd Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs rdially invited. E. B. Langston, C.
R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second
d fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to April 12, '05, 6,837.
Price on same date, 7 3-8c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 13 3-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

A great stock of Easter Hats just received by Madame M. E. Wishart, the Thorsby milliner. Ladies, you can't afford to miss this opportunity to see real style.

T. K. Littleton was in Clanton Friday.

'Squire J. S. Dennis was a pleasant visitor Friday.

G. C. Ensign, one of the proprietors of the Twin Tree Lumber Co. at Maplesville, and Hon. J. F. Thompson, of Centerville, solicitor for the 4th circuit, were in Clanton Friday.

L. B. Pounds was in Clanton Saturday.

The Misses Berdita and Jennie Eiland and brother Clarence were visitors here Saturday.

Bud Culp and mother were in town Saturday.

M. L. Bates was in Clanton Saturday.

'Squire J. J. McDowell was a pleasant visitor Saturday. The 'squire complains about the dropping off in marriages in his district. It does please him to marry a couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Kelley's infant died last week and was buried at Cedar Grove.

J. E. McDowell was in Clanton Saturday.

B. F. Massey was in town Saturday.

J. F. Hayes and Elbert Littlejohn returned Monday from an excursion to Pensacola. From what they say, they had the "time of their lives," took in the U. S. Navy, and in fact everything in sight. Frank says there aren't any red hills about Pensacola, such as he usually sees Sundays.

Madison Bean and wife, the Misses Mary and Ida Bean and Bertha Littleton were visitors in Clanton Monday.

C. O. Gray was in town Monday.

Gus Marcus, R. F. Bates and H. M. Mahan were in Clanton Monday. Mr. Marcus now lives near Longview in Shelby county, having bought a beautiful place there. He took The Advertiser map home with him. Gus knows a good thing when he sees it.

C. W. Reynolds, of Jemison, lost his home and part of his furniture by fire last week. Prof. R. E. Sessions, who boards with Charley, lost some of his effects. Mr. Reynolds, like a wise man, carried insurance—$600 on the house and $200 on the furniture—which will give him a start again.

W. G. Culp was in Clanton Monday.

Chas. Eastlund, the carpenter, is at work at Dr. Hayes' new office, having got in some lumber.

Henry Honeycutt and Sam Collins returned from McDavid, Fla., Saturday. They said the fish did not bite very well, but that their outing was very good all the same. Sam says there are some mighty pretty girls in that region, and he wasn't much disappointed at not catching fish.

"United States Deputy Marshal J. F. Goodgame and Deputy Collector W. W. Battle raided a still in the northern portion of Chilton county yesterday and captured a whole outfit with Joe Willis, a white man, who is charged with running it.

"It was a copper still of 65 gallons capacity. Willis was brought before Commissioner Elmore today and bound over under a $300 bond, which he made.

"This is the first still captured in this portion of that county in two years and Mr. Goodgame and Mr. Battle are to be congratulated.

"Mr. Goodgame is making a good

Squire A. F. Childress, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hayes and family, all of beat 9, were in town Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins were in Clanton Tuesday.

A. D. Massey was in town Wednesday.

Fonda Culp went to Montgomery Wednesday to visit U. S. Commissioner Elmore. He was accompanied by U. S. Deputy Marshal J. F. Goodgame and several friends.

Don't forget that Dr. Montague, President of Howard college, will preach at the Clanton Baptist church on the third Sunday.

Everybody should hear Mrs. McConaughey at the Teachers' Institute in Thorsby April 14-15, on the subject of "Better School Buildings."

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John Eastlund and Miss Hosie Price. J. K. Driver and Mrs. Becky Connell. J. T. Allen and Miss Norma Scroggins. T. A. Carden and Miss Minnie Martin

MACEDONIA.

Editor Union:

In your last issue I notice one correspondent of my doctrine on stock law, and I want to say "hurrah" for him. He says "when the old settlers want stock law" he will be resigned to their will. It's not the old residents that want this sad fate put on us. I'll tell you what one old man said to me on the subject, that he had several orphan grandchildren to raise, and half of their support came from the range, by cattle, hogs and sheep, and if this was taken from him he'd be obliged to suffer. I know in some sections that some men have fenced all their land and are not helping to keep up the range. Judge Denson, Richardson and others say that we have one of the noblest counties in the state. Was it made so by stock law? I say no, it has been made so by being FREE, so let's STAY FREE. I've some good friends who think the time has come to imprison this county, but those will be to blame who will force this on the people of Chilton. I don't criticise any one for their opinion, but want to discuss any subject with respect. Readers of the banner know that I've been sorely criticised on other subjects, and I see in a certain program that it is to be carried further in a public meeting. Now, those who think such a law will help us, stop and think it over again. With respects to all.

S. E. WALDRUP.

NOTICE!

If you have timber lands for sale, want to buy a good home for $25.00 cash and the balance on long payments to suit purchaser, or if you want a good paying position, write

The Marbury Lumber Co.,
Marbury, Ala

BEAT ONE.

Spring time is here upon us with all its flowers and showers; the showers are hindering the farmers in their planting work. Several of our neighbors took a couple of days' outing last week on the Coosa river hunting and fishing. B. M. Gentry was one of our welcome visitors last Friday. We're glad to say Mrs. Joseph Littleton is much improved in health. Fayette Vines and family, of Thorsby, visited relatives here recently. Rev. Art Foshee filled his regular appointment at the new church on first Sunday. J. M. Robinson lost a fine mule last week. News being out, I'll close and try to do better when I write again.

"SNOW BALL."

ROCKY MOUNT.

The Chilton County Musical Convention will meet with the Rocky Mount class (2 miles east of Jemison) in a special session the 5th Sunday in April. Bring your "Singing for Joy" song books and a whole lot of good things to eat, and spend the day and have a good time.

tf "ONE OF THE BOYS."

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

G. A. Zimmerman, Complainant, vs. C. A. Zimmerman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. Osmond Middleton, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her residence is, to affiant, unknown, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, C. A. Zimmerman, is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in THE UNION, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said C. A. Zimmerman, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 12th day of May, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 11th day of April, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
4-13-05 4t

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE,
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.
tf. T. M. Driver.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAX-PAYERS.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

The tax collector of Chilton county has filed in my office a list of delinquent taxpayers and of real estate upon which taxes are due. The persons named below or owners unknown are reported as delinquent, and the following real estate is reported as assessed to them, to-wit.

BEAT NO. 1.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co., or Owner Unknown: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 and the E. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 36, T. 24, R. 15. Tax and costs, $5.44.

BEAT NO. 2.

Jennie S. Edler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4, Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.54.

Mrs. L. C. Latham: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 3, T 23, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.49.

W. B. Strong: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 21, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 3.

W. E. Edwards: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 23, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.06.

Mary Jackson: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 4, T. 22, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.19.

BEAT NO. 4.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co.: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 34, T 21, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.18.

Samuel M. Pickler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4, Sec. 35, T 24, R 14; and the E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 31, T 21, R 17; and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 20, R 12; and the W. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 8, T 22, R 16. Tax and costs, $41.05.

The Southern Mineral Land Co., or Owner Unknown: All of Sec. 15, T 24, R 12; and the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 21, T 24, R 12; and the N. 1-2 of Sec 22, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $24.07.

The Magnetic Ore Co., or owner unknown: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 16; and the N. 1-2 and the E 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 23, R 15; and the S. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 23, R 15; and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23, R 15. Tax and costs, $33.75.

BEAT NO. 5.

S. H. Glen: The S. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E 1-4 of Sec. 1, T 20, R 16; and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 20, R 16; and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 20, R 16. Tax and costs, $10.84.

BEAT NO. 6.

J. M. Askins: The S 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 14. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 7.

James Broadnax: The S. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 21, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.56.

Frank Fuller: One house and lot in Ridersville, Alabama, known as the Frank Fuller residence. Tax and costs, $4.58.

BEAT NO. 8.

John V. Coe: The E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 22, T 20, R 13, and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 23, T. 20, R 13. Tax and costs, $6.93.

Mrs. C. Paul: The N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 16. T. 20, R 11. Tax and costs, $7.02.

W. J. Stoudermire: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 18, T 21, R 11; and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 21, R 11. Tax and costs, $4.44.

H. B. & G. B. Shearer: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 20, R 12. Tax and costs, $6.79.

BEAT NO. 9.

J. Amtoft: The N. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 8, T. 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.86.

Mrs. Claura I. E. Collins: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.96.

Paul C. Goetch: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.03.

John Peterson: The N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 5, T 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.74.

R. C. Reinertson: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.90.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of said county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 8th day of May, 1905, and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed against you, and for fees and costs. After the decree is granted in each of the above cases, additional costs in the way of tax commissioners' fees will be added and collected. This 5th day of April, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLS,
tf Judge of Probate.

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No 1.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth."
J. C. JONES,
Clanton, - - - Alabama.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2513-2519 Morris Ave., - BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Gelder's Restaurant,
Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

There is Nothing : : : That Will Endure

By President Eliot, of Harvard.

I HAVE often wondered if our civilization will leave anything to the archaeologist of 2000 years hence to study. You have studied materials that have endured under the earth for 3000 years. I have found it difficult to find any such durable things in our buildings, arts and great manufactures.

Do we make any vases that record, as the Greek vases, our costumes, arts, religion, etc.? None. It may be that ours are not worth recording. Instead we attempt to put the records of 2000 years ago on our vases, much to the confusion of the archaeologists 2000 years hence.

Across the river there is a structure of concrete durable in spite of the frost of winter and the heat of summer. Will it stand?: What will be the ruins of the Stadium 2000 years hence, or will the structure of steel and concrete stand?

All the products of our trade and commerce are the temporary. Our stone walls are mere veneers of three or four inches thick backed up by bricks. If you examine the producers of our great industries, they are perishable in a high degree and all are becoming more so.

The old books of Germany will last, but ours will not, for the paper will rot or dry in a short period hence. Where, then, shall we find material for the archaeologist 2000 years hence?

There is only one thing that will last—our subways. There are our chances. The Brooklyn Bridge, which is the foremost of our engineering structures, needs constant care.

I trust that out of your labors as they penetrate the minds of our people will come worthier arts and buildings to record our civilization to the future.

Ship Sinks at Wharf.

New Orleans.—The Southern Pacific steamship Louisiana, Captain Whitney, partially capsized toward the shore side and then sank at her wharf The ship arrived from Havana and was to have sailed for the same port. She was formerly in the New York and New Orleans trade and had recently been extensively rebuilt. It is expected that the vessel can be raised. No lives were lost. The cause of the accident has not been learned.

Norfolk, Va.—Daniels Knowles, 75 years of age, one of the few survivors of those who fought on the Confederate ram Merrimac in the fight with the Monitor in Hampton Roads during the civil war, is dead. He was a veteran of two wars, having served in the United States navy during the Mexican war. On the Merrimac during the Hampton Roads fight he was a gun captain and commanded the big Dahlgren gun crew during the two days' fight.

HUNGRY TIME.

When I was getting better,
And they propped me up in bed,
Oh, didn't I feel hungry!
But I knew the doctor'd said,
He can't have much to eat yet;
So I thought of things instead.

I thought of basket picnics,
And of mince and apple pie;
Of sandwiches and doughnuts,
And the tarts I used to buy.
I seemed to taste them, almost,
Such a hungry boy was I.

My mother'd sit and read me
Any story I'd pick out,
I guess you know already
What the stories were about.
I'd listen and imagine;
And it helped me do without.

But oh, I want to tell you
That there's nothing you can make,
In thinking or in stories,
In a dream or when awake,
That for tastes as splendid
As the first real slice of cake!

—Arthur H. Folwell in Youth's Companion.

MR. AND MRS. BUSHY TAIL.

It was a clear, cold January morning, and Mr. Bushy-Tail was sitting at the door of his house. Such a queer house it was—spreading below, bearing the marks of frequent attacks from Mr. Woodpecker, who often passed that way. Bushy-Tail had labored long to fashion his house, and to stock it with a winter supply for himself and his dear wife. His patient little jaws had often ached with the heavy loads he had brought to the mellow old tree. Mr. Jack Frost had come in autumn and opened the prickly burs. Uncle Wind had shaken the leafless boughs, when Mr. and Mrs. Bushy-Tail, eyes snapping and plumes waving, had gathered in the harvest. Now they could play with a clear conscience, and Bushy-Tail's heart leaped for joy as he hopped to the ground. His brisk little wife followed him, and the two scampered away for a morning frolic over the crisp snow.

Down the woodland path came a sturdy little figure, well enveloped in overcoat, cap and tippet. With one hand he carried slate and books closely strapped together; with the other he swung the dinner-pail. This was Billy Black on his way to school. As he passed Bushy-Tail's house his merry whistle ceased, and his bright black eyes took on a look of cunning. Cautiously he approached the tree, climbed to one of the lower branches and peeped in at the open door. Quickly he drew off his mitten and thrust his hand into the opening, carefully groping about until he found the apartment sought for—the storeroom. Then it was surprising how fast the little hand went in empty and came out full, till a cry from old Aunty Bushy-Tail, awakened from her comfortable nap by this intrusion, cut short all further operations. For the old aunty still had sharp teeth, and Billy knew this to his sorrow. So he quickly withdrew his hand and hurried on his way to school.

It was an unlucky morning for him. The columns of figures refused to be added, and the letters in the spelling lesson danced about and made faces at him. One thought cheered him—the contents of his dinner-pail, sandwiches, apple pie, doughnuts and cheese. He could hardly wait for the clock to strike twelve, and when the teacher sent him to the next house on an errand, just as he was going to open the pail, he could have cried for disappointment. But there was no use complaining, so with a mumbled "Yes'um," he started on his way.

It was late when he came back, and he was hungrier than ever—half-starved, he said. He pulled off the cover to his pail before he pulled off his red mittens, but oh, what a terrible surprise! The dinner was gone. In an instant he understood it all, and a howl of rage and despair sounded through the deserted room, followed by the angry wail, "Teacher, the boys have stole my dinner!" It was no use to try to comfort him; for he must live through the afternoon, ever conscious of a big, aching void, and then run two miles before he could have even a piece of bread and butter.

Soon the bell rang and the boys emerged from coasting on the hill back of the schoolhouse. Billy took his geograph, and tried to study. Strangely enough, the lesson described how the small furbearing animals of New England gather their winter supplies. He threw down the book and opened his grammar. O dear! The first sentence to be diagramed was, "The squirrels gather their store of nuts for the long, cold winter." Billy hid his face behind his book. Through his shame and hunger this thought came to him: "If it is so hard for a fellow to lose his dinner, what must it be to go without your dinner all winter long?"

Four o'clock came at last, and a resolute little fellow was once more ready to face the cold. He was hungry, but he did not complain or try to find out and punish the thief who had invaded his dinner-pail. He only ran as fast as he could over the crackling snow to the wood path which led to his home. The thought of the steaming supper waiting for him, and then of another supper, and of the joy that it would bring.

The theft had been discovered. When old aunty sounded the alarm, Mr. and Mrs. Bushy-Tail scampered home, but only to find the empty storehouse. Shrill notes of anger rent the air, but only for a short time. The Bushy-Tails are noted for their courage, and it's no use to cry for spilled milk. They soon stopped wailing and started out in quest of food, for now they must fight famine. But little remained for them, only a few scattered, frozen buds, so with heavy hearts and light loads they wended their way homeward and entered the dor of their dwelling. O joy! The floor was piled high with beautiful beechnuts, from which old aunty was already taking her supper. A little brown hand had been suddenly thrust into the living-room, and as suddenly withdrawn. This time it entered full and left empty, and the process was repeated until the last beechnut was taken from Billy's pocket.

The Bushy-Tails never knew the history of the matter. They only knew that the lost was found. They danced about and chattered their joy to each other, for they were very happy, and as Billy sat down to a good, warm supper he was as happy as they.—Elizabeth Perley in Youth's Companion.

THE CIVILIZED SQUIRREL.

Whether or not it will presently be necessary to put steam heat into the squirrel houses in the trees of Central Park, New York, is an interesting question. These popular little animals are now so thoroughly pampered by the public that they have abandoned their old self-dependent habits. They no longer sleep a great part of the winter away, as is natural to them in this latitude. As their usual partial dependence upon a state of semi-torpor to protect them from the effects of the cold is broken up, it may be that they suffer a good deal from the temperature of such nights as these.

To determine whether all the public pampering of the park squirrels is good for them, or whether they are being cut off in their prime by a not sufficiently simple life, the park authorities are going to take a census of the little animals and keep track of them. The squirrels are certainly getting peanuts by the bushel. Some of them have grown so critical that they refuse to accept single nuts, and insist upon having access to the bag in order that they may make their choice. Others scorn peanuts altogether and search the pockets for candy and other dainties.

They have grown tame even beyond squirrel precedent. Experience has made some of them shy of children, and especially of boys of about the age of twelve, but elderly gentlemen of benevolent appearance have been seen decorated with as many as five squirrels at once. It will certainly be surprising if the squirrel census should indicate that present conditions are unfavorable to them, for they swarm in apparently increasing numbers, and are all plump and lustrous.

That is an impression that squirrels are hurtful to tree vegetation and destructive to birds. In their wild state they certainly are, for they nip off buds in winter and ravage birds' nests in spring. But our park squirrels are so well fed that they have little occasion to engage in either of these forms of depredation.—New York Mail.

To Live Long.

The latest food craze is curdled milk of a special kind, prepared on a Bulgarian recipe. It is the new remedy against growing old.

The substance is called yaghurt, and can now be obtained in tins in Paris. It is supposed to be fatal to all the hostile bacteria in the intestines, while friendly microbes thrive upon it.

Yaghurt looks very like ordinary cream cheese gone bad, and tastes similarly. People who wish to live to a hundred breakfast off yaghurt exclusively, but many who have tried it prefer to die young.—New York Globe.

To have a pretty home, avoid glaring contrasts of color.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is now known that laziness is a disease, but we have not noticed that more than 4,000 patents have been taken out on medicines to cure it.

King Leopold of Belgium has given up his automobile. If he gives up all his bad habits Europe will be shy a monarch, observes the Jacksonville Times-Union.

An Austrian inventor has compressed 300,000 newspapers and built a small but perfectly seaworthy yacht with the material thus obtained. What would American say if their dailies were as dry as that, asks the Boston Transcript.

A peculiar fact is that 1905 began on Sunday and will end on Sunday, and therefore has fifty-three Sundays. This will not occur again in 11n years, declares the Leesburg (Va.) Washingtonian.

Don't lose sight of the fact that those who do not work are fed, clothed and housed by those who do work; that they ride in flowery beds of ease, upon the backs of those who toil, and that the worse than useless breed is rapidly increasing, says the Stockton Advocate.

A whole cooked rhinoceros was served at the dinner of the Canadian Camp in this city, says the New York Evening Sun. A course of welsh rabbits and lobster Newburg ought to be a good preparation on the part of the guests for the strenuous evening.

There is so much idle money in the world, remarks Town Topics, that China's offer to pay indemnities to date in gold is unacceptable to bankers and brokers, who prefer payment by instalments, with their usual commissionrs and perquisites.

The moment a man reaches the stage where he thinks more of his dinner than he does of his duty, more of his coat than he does of his character, more of his standing in "society" than he does of doing his plain duty as a man and citizen—that moment he ceases to be a factor in the preservation of the State, declares the Rev. T. B. Gregory.

It is through a government examination that entry must be made to a civil service position, and there is nothing short of a mania in France for drawing a public salary, states the Indianapolis News. The result has been the most uniform and stereotyped system of training that youths were ever subjected to. There are nearly 400,000 paid officials under the French government. For every voter one person holds some sort of a public office.

Just what are the force and scope of electricity as a factor in the world of transportation is a problem that men engaged in the business are studying with care, and as yet without definite conclusion. The opinion of a well known railroad man advanced in The Indianapolis News recently was that it would soon usurp the place of steam as a motor for short distances, or, rather, he cited this as the opinion of electrical engineers.

The imports of tropical and subtropical products into the United States reached in 1904 the large value of $465,000,000, states the Louisville Courier Journal. In round numbers, we imported $114,000,000 worth of sugar, $88,000,000 worth of coffee, $33,000,000 of flores; of tropical fruit $25,000,000, of tobacco $23,000,000; of tea $17,000,000. The per capita importation of such products has risen from $3.63 in 1870 to $5.69 in 1904. Some grief is expressed in these large and increasing importations but we are obliged to import something to pay for our exports, as we prefer not to give them away.

Keep on the right side of your hired man, advises the Indianapolis News. Treat him well so long as he is in your employ, and if he does not deserve good treatment, or respond to it do not keep him. A good hired man will appreciate good usage and kind favors and pay for them by the extra amount and better quality of his services. It is courtesy to treat all men decently. In the case of your hired man, it is also policy and economy. Be liberal with him, not only at the table, but give him occasionally a spare day for amusement and recreation. Any intelligent hired man will work harder and perform his labor better when he feels that his employers appreciate well doing.

The Society of Physical Research has $5,000 in hand and asks for $25,000 more "to explore the soul." It would be worth as many millions to ascertain definitely whether man has a soul. Before organizing an expedition to search the unknowable, why not expend the money in exploring the body? inquires Town Topics. The questions whether and why and how disease are hereditary have never been answered satisfactorily. Scientists have not yet explained why nature provides a vermiform appendix, except for the pecuniary benefit of surgeons. Of what use are the almond-shaped tonsils on each side of the throat, except to be cut out to prevent inflammation? There are a hundred puzzles from tip to toe of the human anatomy to be solved before the exploration of something we are not sure we posses is in order.

USES FOR HOT WATER.

Although beauty doctors do not sing the praises of hot water treatment for the toilet, here are many ways in which this in invaluable. To drink a bowl of it every night is splendid for the digestion and warrants a good sleep and clear complexion. A bag of hot water at one's feet when one has a cold; to the back when it aches and to the nape of the neck when one has a headache or feels sleepless is one of the best remedies.

When the eyes become inflamed a douche of hot water gives them strength and restfulness, and when the feet are tired a good soaking in hot water is one of the best of remedies. Steam the face with it once a week for the complexion, bathe the cheeks in it when a color is wanted. Cold sores, fever blisters and pimples bathed in very hot water drys them up in short order, and it but not least the hot water bag is indispensable to the household pains and aches which visit every human being, and the hat water bag is a cure for all.

CHEESECLOTH THE HOUSEWIFE'S HELP.

A careful housewife can attain wonders with a bolt of cheesecloth. She can transform summer ugliness in a home to a dream of color beauty. For instance, the woman who has to stay in town the greater part of the summer and does not wish her house to become a prey to dust and flies, will wrap up her pictures and bric-a-brac with newspapers, or at best with dingy old covers; anything for protection. Now, with a very small amount of trouble and expense, cheesecloth wrappings will answer the same purpose, and yet add beauty to the rooms instead of ugliness.

Small china and glass ornaments strewn around the drawing room or sitting room may be put away in some convenient closet while the larger pieces and the picture may be entirely covered with cheesecloth, the softness of which makes it easy to handle, and yet it will give ample protection against dirt and flies.

I remember seeing last summer a perfectly charming room that a friend of mine had converted from a rather stiff parlor. Matting took the place of heavy rugs, and pretty white art ticking, with a pink rose design, covered the furniture. Every picture, mirror, and large ornament either of china or bronze, was entirely wrapped in pale pink cheesecloth. Curtains of the same material and color (reaching to the sills), adorned the windows, and were tied back with pink ribbons. The effect was simply delightful. The same woman had made her dining room equally attractive to using yellow cheesecloth in it, and one of the upstairs rooms was covered with sky-blue.

The whole color scheme was carried out in its coverings, and these invariably toned in with the wall paper. Her house was in this way well taken care of, but instead of being made ugly, was quite "a thing of beauty," and she laughingly said it would be "a joy forever," as next year it would be the same old story; the cheesecloth would wash, and even if it faded a little, would still retain its delicate color—at all events, it was a vast improvement upon newspapers and similar wrappings.—Amy D'Arcy Wetmore, in Woman's Work.

RECIPES.

Candied Brazil Nuts—Put a c of water in a saucepan over the add three cupfuls of granulate gar, and let it boil gently till it ens when a little is dropped in water; flavor with extract of le Take a nut meat in a pair of s tons or a pair of confectioners' t Set the saucepan where the syru keep hot, but not boil; dip th meat into the syrup. Wave it g back and forth till cool, then lay buttered paper. Continue this cess till all the nut meats are ca It is a slow process, as only or be dipped at a time, and often meat has to be dipped the s time. All sorts of nuts may b died in this way, but Brazil nut English walnuts are best. T nice work to teach the children

Shrimps a la Creole—Shrim prepared in the chafing dish make licious supper dish. Chop hal small onion and a clove of garlic and fry in two ounces of butter. Put in a can of shrimps and cook fifteen minutes over the hot water pan, adding half a pint of canned tomatoes, a few tablespoonfuls of French peas, season with salt and red pepper.

Nut Pralines—Pralines are delicious; as a rule they are made with hickory nuts, but they are better with English walnuts. Take two cupfuls of hickory nut or English walnut meats, two cupfuls of light brown sugar, a small saltspoonful of cream of tartar, half a cupful of water, and a saltspoonful of extract of vanilla. Put the water, sugar and cream of tartar together in an enamelled saucepan over a slow fire. Stir gently till the sugar is dissolved, then boil till it spins a thread when dropped from a spoon. Lift the saucepan from the fire, add the nuts and vanilla, and stir until thick as cream and a little sugary; then drop in little pats on buttered paper or places well butter-

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. DR. H. C. SWENTZEL.

Subject: The Divinity of Christianity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—For the first of a series of sermons on "The Religion of Jesus Christ," the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Swentzel, rector of St. Luke's Church, Clinton avenue, near Fulton street, preached Sunday on "The Divinity of Christianity." The text was from I Timothy i:11: "The Glorious Gospel of the Blessed God." Dr. Swentzel said in the course of his sermon:

Christianity shows the credentials of divinity. It is not a set of doctrines and principles which men or even the best of them have invented, but it professes to come directly from the infinite Jehovah Himself. It is not simply one among the world's religions.

It stands alone and is unique in the manner and method of its origin. It was not whispered into the ear of a seer by the Almighty; it is not the result of visions; it is not the product of learning and piety. It comes directly from the infinite God, who actually adopted human nature in order that He might talk with mankind face to face. It is immeasurably more divine than the religion of Moses and the prophets because it was delivered personally by the incarnate Lord Himself. The themes of which He treats are of such tremendous moment that any solution of them ought to be carefully scrutinized. Who and what is God? Who and what is man? What is the true ideal for the present? What is the outlook for the future? What of immortality and heaven? To these interrogatories the Lord speaks with tones of infallibility which popes and synods have not dared to initiate or even to claim. The author of the Sermon on the Mount was the eternal Son of God and His religion is nothing less than "the glorious gospel of the blessed God."

To say that Jesus of Nazareth is a divine Being is not synonymous with the error which calls Him a divine man. There have been many divine men—men who had a mission and a message from the Most High, men who were called to lead humanity to better and nobler things; sons of men who were filled with God's spirit, and counted not their life dear if it were spent in His service, prophets of reform, prophets of liberty, prophets of philosophy or literature or art. In the hall of fame stand the images of the vast army of divine souls who have been the champions of God's cause and the captains of His hosts in every clime. In a far loftier sense, in a literal sense which warrants no jugglery of words and no legerdemain of metaphysics, was Jesus Christ, God's Son, His only Son. The Christian Scriptures propose this sublime truth which should be hailed with universal acclaim. It is constantly assumed in the four gospels, even as it was by Himself, that, though He was born of the Virgin Mary, He was still, in the later language of the Nicene Creed, "God of God, Light of Light, Very God of Very God."

In one way or another Our Lord declared His divinity time and again. He made Himself God's equal with such plainness that even His enemies could not mistake it. They accused Him of sacrilege so strongly that they wrung from Him the well-remembered reply: "Say ye to Him whom the Father hath sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemer, because I said I am the Son of God?" It is true that He loved to speak of Himself as "the Son of Man," but that title really was His assertion of deity. He might have been a son of man without being a divine personage, but He could not be truly the son of man unless He were, more than all, the Son of God. It is no wonder than when the people beheld His moral perfection and saw His works and listened to the truths as they seemed to come from the mouth of God, they asked, "Who is this Son of Man?" The record of the memorable interview, which has often been conspicuous in the church's regard, should not lightly be put aside. The Lord said to His disciples, "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am? Whom say ye that I am?" Then [illegible] the great [illegible] the [illegible] e of [illegible] s as-

That thee
And had vary entuword man

[illegible] chris-
His itude will-
And
dus-
He give f the supre-
Mas-
the dis-dis-r to ture.

it He be heard aright He will stimulate thought and investigation. Better than ourselves did He know that the real advancement of the multitudes is in harmony with His plans and that the period of the finest piety will be a time of the greatest enlightenment. The divinity of Christ should not be treated as a brutum fulmen. Rather is it a truth—a fact—which should steady and hold Christian people amid the growth of ideas and the struggle of theories. Whatever truths may be discovered, whatever thinkers may say or print, whatever conclusions may ensue in the intellectual world, the Christian religion is forever true, because it is nothing less than "the glorious gospel of the blessed God."

It is on this basis that the honest doubter may take his stand. Doubts are not necessarily sinful. People who never think will never doubt. It could scarcely be expected that Christianity would not cause intellectual disturbances. It has to do largely with mysteries incomprehensible and unfathomable. It presents doctrines which it is not always easy to reconcile even with the best ideals of good men. Ordinarily people training for such exalted conceptions as are presented of Mary. We are so[illegible] things, circumstances [illegible] our time and energy to [illegible] pations; we live in a w[illegible] and the constant tend[illegible] that the only things [illegible] while are the things w[illegible] There are doubts which [illegible] pride and conceit; there [illegible] who are convinced that [illegible] break away from a [illegible] was instituted [illegible] there are those who are [illegible] sundel that they know [illegible] much for them to [illegible] Gospel of Bet[illegible] Holy Sepul[illegible] ives. Of course they [illegible] form—they say that [illegible] the Son of God. To [illegible] the Lord's day may [illegible] refuge, this safe [illegible] storms. When doubts [illegible] we should do our best [illegible] them, we should remember in the [illegible] of contradictions and [illegible] against the [illegible] of Christianity and [illegible] mistake because He [illegible] God.

Christianity [illegible] divinity of the [illegible] cause of this divinity it [illegible] has endured thus long [illegible] and connections and [illegible] survive until the end of [illegible] the many forms of [illegible] ater is that it has [illegible] powers of darkness and [illegible] the day in every [illegible] field. From the outset [illegible] been made to banish it [illegible] of the earth. More than [illegible] appeared that "the glorious [illegible] the Blessed God" might [illegible] obliterated; but somehow [illegible] battle the banners of the [illegible] waved in triumph and [illegible] won.

Does any one inquire [illegible] outcome? does any [illegible] "Watchman, what of the [illegible] answer is Victory, a better [illegible] dom, a nobler Church, a [illegible] Let the winds blow and [illegible] roar; let the powers of [illegible] do their worst; let the [illegible] achievements of the future [illegible] thousandfold the knowledge [illegible] quests of the past. Christ [illegible] abide with ever increasing [illegible] it is founded on a rock, [illegible] is the incarnate Son of God.

Justice Reigns Supreme.

In this God's world, with [illegible] whirling eddies and mad [illegible] where men and nations [illegible] without law, and judgment [illegible] just thing is sternly [illegible] think that there is, there [illegible] tice?

It is what the fool hath [illegible] heart. It is what the wise [illegible] were wise because they [illegible] knew forever not to be [illegible] again, there is nothing [illegible] One strong thing I find [illegible] the just thing, the true [illegible] friend, if thou hadst all [illegible] of Woolwich trumpling [illegible] support of an unjust [illegible] finite bonfires visible [illegible] of thee to blaze centuries [illegible] victory on behalf of [illegible] thee to call hail, to sing [illegible] baton and say, "In God's [illegible] —Thomas Carlyle.

The Hidden Sin.

A majestic tree fell at its [illegible] on a calm evening, when [illegible] scarcely a breath of air [illegible] had withstood a century of [illegible] now was broken off by [illegible]

The secret was disclosed [illegible] ing. A boy's hatchet had [illegible] into it when it was a [illegible] The wound had been grown [illegible] hidden away under [illegible] but it had never healed [illegible] heart of the tree it [illegible] decay, ever eating [illegible] deeper into the trunk, until [illegible] tree was rotted through and [illegible] own weight when [illegible] its best.

So do many live and [illegible] to be at their supreme [illegible] sin or fault of [illegible] wounding and obsessing [illegible] the heart.—Dr. J. R. M[illegible]

God's Double Purpose.

God manifestly has a [illegible] in view in bestowing [illegible] an individual, namely, the [illegible] individual and the larger [illegible] benefits that others may [illegible] through the individual. T[illegible] He said, "Blessing I will [illegible] and multiplying I will [illegible]

It is an experimental [illegible] are enriched in the best [illegible] parting them to others. [illegible] graces are enriched by [illegible] into gracious ways of [illegible] that character is improved [illegible] of character building [illegible] truth more securely and [illegible] in us by teaching it to [illegible] up one's gifts and [illegible] impoverish and darken [illegible] —Examiner.

Be In Earnest.

There are many [illegible] make for accomplishment [illegible] greatest of these is earn[illegible]

Enthusiasm is the [illegible] the steady glow. It [illegible] which shines through [illegible] simplest deeds and plainest [illegible]

Earnestness impresses [illegible] is powerless. If you [illegible] ideas will develop, plans [illegible] will suggest themselves [illegible] will follow.

No one can work earnestly [illegible] is a downright belief in [illegible] for which he is working, [illegible] to back it against the world [illegible] and Adapted.

The Way of Freedom.

If you will let Him walk [illegible] in your streets and sit [illegible] your offices and be with [illegible] homes and teach you in your [illegible] and abide with you as [illegible] Presence in your hearts [illegible] shall know what freedom [illegible] while you own yourselves [illegible] men, know you are the sons [illegible] Phillips Brooks.

Sacrifice.

The candle is consumed by [illegible] flame, but its exhaustion [illegible] to the world. So is he who [illegible] self on the altar of a noble [illegible] fice.—United Presbyterian.

U-NA MEASURES UP TO THE ST[illegible]

NGLE SAM—"A High Sta[illegible] ed of Any Catarrh Reme[illegible] n Endorsed by so Many Prominent People."

BEST FOR THE BOWE[illegible]
Cascar[illegible]
CAND[illegible]
CATHA[illegible]
LIFE'S WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

ANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, [illegible] on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul breath, [illegible] ache, sour eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. [illegible] you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all [illegible] chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what [illegible] CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well [illegible] take our advice, start with Cascarets today under a [illegible] refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never [illegible] Sold by druggists. Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. Address for free booklet.

Franklin [illegible] the night [illegible] at the age of [illegible]

[illegible] in 30 minutes. Wonderful [illegible] Boston, New [illegible] St. Louis. Book [illegible]

The [illegible] In [illegible] cents. [illegible]

2 CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE
ONOMY BLUE
Full Quart Best In[illegible] Bluing.

O POSITION
Y TUITION AFTER
TION IS SECURED
DRAUGHON'S
TICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
Nashville, Atlanta, Little Rock
Ft. Worth
OURSE BY MAIL FREE

Potash

THOUGH[illegible]
Mrs. S. W. M[illegible]
Began to t[illegible]
Pills w[illegible]
Mrs. S[illegible] street [illegible] dead of the [illegible]

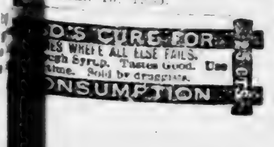
ERMAN KALI WORKS
[illegible] St., or [illegible], Ga.—[illegible] Broad Street.

ES, FOR ALL SEWING MACHINE. Standard Goods Only. Free trial [illegible] to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
S.
Am. 15, 1905.



...G STORE,
...ead of The Procession.—
...othing, Hats, Sho...
...NITURE,
...URIAL NECESSITIES.
MULLINS,
Alaban...
...Specialty..
...Reliable.
...de to Wear.
...a Cheap Shoddy Shoe.
...eries, Flour and Fe...
...obacco and Snuff.
...nt Full and Complete.
...V. SMITH.
...ng Clanton, Alab...

...Insuranc... Associat...
...f Alabama.
...CIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
...le and for the People.
...County Branch
...Febr... 3rd, 1900.
...ALLACE C. EDLER,
Sec'y.-Treas.
...Dwellings, Outbuildings and ...
...k against Loss by Fire, Wind...
...Cheapest, Safest and Most
...rance Known to Man.
...-100 of 1 percent.
...ed upon application to
...CE C. EDLER, Clanton, Al...

Prevents Fever...
...FURNISH PURE WAT...
...water or no charge ma...
...Address
I. E. SARBER CO.,
...ma.

WOODLAW...
FARM.
Barred Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh egg...
50c. Packing for ship...
10c extra.

PURE BRED
Duroc Jersey Hogs.
Write us for prices b...
you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alab...

Practical Watchma... and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly ...a.

...FFICIALS.

...Circuit ... Term—Third Monday in May.
...Term—Fourth Monday in No...

...S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
...W. B. Bowl..., Dadeville.
...Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

...ring Term—Second Monday in ...
...Term—Second Monday in Sep...
...W. W. Whitesides.
...S. A. Stewart, Clan...

County Court.

...st Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

...second Monday February, first Mon...
...April, first Monday June, second ...
...and Monday August, ...
...November.

County Officers.

...dge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
...easurer—W. T. Callen.
...heriff—J. M. Morgan.
...licitor—J. O. Middleton.
...x Assessor—A. C. Mims.
...y Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

...st District—W. H. Conway.
...cond District—Alex Glasscock.
...rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
...urth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

...of J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

...R. D. ... Calera.

State Senator.

...n W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

...tors and clerks are cordially ask...
...send the editor any news regard...
...their churches which they would ...
...publish. Also if there are any ...
...on the notices please send cor...

MISSIONARY BAPTIST.

...Rev. J. E. Moo... 3rd ...
...E. B. Popwell, clerk, Bl... ...
...P. O. No. 1.

...A. C. Swindall, ...
...W. I. Mullins, clerk.

...Rev. T. J. Deason, ...
...H. A. Harris, clerk.

...Rev. S. Smitherman
...W. M. Wood, clerk.

...Rev. G. W. Freeman.
...H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

...Rev. S. Smitherman, ...
...W. M. Pierce, clerk.

...Rev. A. L. Foshee, ...
...J. J. McDowell, clerk.

...Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd ...
...J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

...Rev. J. H. Thomas
...J. W. Littleton, clerk.

...Rev. J. H. Thomas
...R. S. Chandler, clerk.

...Rev. J. H. Thomas, ...
...T. J. Headley, clerk.

...Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st ...
...G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

...Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; ...
...the second Sunday; J. ...
...clerk, Verbena.

...M. E. Church—Rev. ... pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song ... every 2nd and 4th Sunday af... ... meeting every Wed...

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

...nton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—... Saturday, Clanton.

...A. F. and A. M., No. ... Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

...A. F. and A. M., No. ... First Saturday, Clanton.

...A. F. and A. M., No. ... First Saturday, Billingsley.

...A. F. and A. M., ... Saturday on or before full ...

...A. F. and A. M., No. ... Saturday on or before full moon, ...

...A. F. and A. M., No. ... Tuesday on or before full moon, ...

I. O. O. F.

...ison Lodge—First and third Sat...

...nton Lodge, No. 394—Second and ... Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

...ck Jack Camp, No. 190—First and ... Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

...onermo Tribe, No. 90—First and ... Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs ...ally invited. E. B. Langston, C. ...; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

...reka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second ...ourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to April 12, '05, 6,837.
Price on same date, 7 3-8c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 13 3-8c.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

A great stock of Easter Hats just received by Madame M. E. Wishart, the Thorsby milliner. Ladies, you can't afford to miss this opportunity to see real style.

T. K. Littleton was in Clanton Friday.

'Squire J. S. Dennis was a pleasant visitor Friday.

G. C. Ensign, one of the proprietors of the Twin Tree Lumber Co. at Maplesville, and Hon. J. F. Thompson, of Centerville, solicitor for the 4th circuit, were in Clanton Friday.

L. B. Pounds was in Clanton Saturday.

The Misses Berdita and Jennie Eiland and brother Clarence were visitors here Saturday.

Bud Culp and mother were in town Saturday.

M. L. Bates was in Clanton Saturday.

'Squire J. J. McDowell was a pleasant visitor Saturday. The 'squire complains about the dropping off in marriages in his district. It does please him to marry a couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Kelley's infant died last week and was buried at Cedar Grove.

J. E. McDowell was in Clanton Saturday.

B. F. Massey was in town Saturday.

J. F. Hayes and Elbert Littlejohn returned Monday from an excursion to Pensacola. From what they say, they had the "time of their lives," took in the U. S. Navy, and in fact everything in sight. Frank says there aren't any red hills about Pensacola, such as he usually sees Sundays.

Madison Bean and wife, the Misses Mary and Ida Bean and Bertha Littleton were visitors in Clanton Monday.

C. C. Gray was in town Monday.

Gus Marcus, R. F. Bates and H. M. Mahan were in Clanton Monday. Mr. Marcus now lives near Longview in Shelby county, having bought a beautiful place there. He took The Advertiser map home with him. Gus knows a good thing when he sees it.

C. W. Reynolds, of Jemison, lost his home and part of his furniture by fire last week. Prof. R. E. Sessions, who boards with Charley, lost some of his effects. Mr. Reynolds, like a wise man, carried insurance—$600 on the house and $200 on the furniture—which will give him a start again.

W. G. Culp was in Clanton Monday.

Chas. Eastlund, the carpenter, is at work at Dr. Hayes' new office, having got in some lumber.

Henry Honeycutt and Sam Collins returned from McDavid, Fla., Saturday. They said the fish did not bite very well, but that their outing was very good all the same. Sam says there are some mighty pretty girls in that region, and he wasn't much disappointed at not catching fish.

"United States Deputy Marshal J. F. Goodgame and Deputy Collector W. W. Battle raided a still in the northern portion of Chilton county yesterday and captured a whole outfit with Joe Willis, a white man, who is charged with running it.

"It was a copper still of 65 gallons capacity. Willis was brought before Commissioner Elmore today and bound over under a $300 bond, which he made.

"This is the first still captured in this portion of that county in two years and Mr. Goodgame and Mr. Battle are to be congratulated.

"Mr. Goodgame is making a good deputy marshal."—Montgomery Journal of Monday.

Reese Gibson had his preliminary trial before 'Squire Langston, of Jemison, Monday, charged with attempt to murder his wife, and was bound over to the grand jury in $500. 'Squire Langston deputized Grady Reynolds to bring him to Clanton and turn him over to the sheriff. When the accommodation reached Thorsby, Gibson said he wanted a drink, and walking up to the end of the car he made a dash through the door and ran. Grady, nothing daunted, put after him and after quite a chase overhauled him and took him back to the train, which Conductor Brooks had kindly held, and brought his prisoner to Clanton and lodged him in jail. It shows good nerve on Grady's part. He is only sixteen years old and as many people think Gibson is not right in his mind, it required courage for a boy to tackle him. Hurrah for Grady.

'Squire A. F. Childress, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hayes and family, all of beat 9, were in town Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins were in Clanton Tuesday.

A. D. Massey was in town Wednesday.

Fonda Culp went to Montgomery Wednesday to visit U. S. Commissioner Elmore. He was accompanied by U. S. Deputy Marshal J. F. Goodgame and several friends.

Don't forget that Dr. Montague, President of Howard college, will preach at the Clanton Baptist church on the third Sunday.

Everybody should hear Mrs. McConaughey at the Teachers' Institute in Thorsby April 14-15, on the subject of "Better School Buildings."

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John Eastlund and Miss Hosie Price. J. K. Driver and Mrs. Becky Connell. J. T. Allen and Miss Norma Scroggins. T. A. Carden and Miss Minnie Martin

MACEDONIA.

Editor Union:

In your last issue I notice one correspondent of my doctrine on stock law, and I want to say "hurrah" for him. He says "when the old settlers want stock law" he will be resigned to their will. It's not the old residents that want this sad fate put on us. I'll tell you what one old man said to me on the subject, that he had several orphan grandchildren to raise, and half of their support came from the range, by cattle, hogs and sheep, and if this was taken from him he'd be obliged to suffer. I know in some sections that some men have fenced all their land and are not helping to keep up the range. Judge Denson, Richardson and others say that we have one of the noblest counties in the state. Was it made so by stock law? I say no, it has been made so by being FREE, so let's STAY FREE. I've some good friends who think the time has come to imprison this county, but those will be to blame who will force this on the people of Chilton. I don't criticise any one for their opinion, but want to discuss any subject with respect. Readers of the banner know that I've been sorely criticised on other subjects, and I see in a certain program that it is to be carried further in a public meeting. Now, those who think such a law will help us, stop and think it over again. With respects to all.

S. E. WALDRUP.

NOTICE!

If you have timber lands for sale, want to buy a good home for $25.00 cash and the balance on long payments to suit purchaser, or if you want a good paying position, write
The Marbury Lumber Co.,
Marbury, Ala

BEAT ONE.

Spring time is here upon us with all its flowers and showers; the showers are hindering the farmers in their planting work. Several of our neighbors took a couple of days' outing last week on the Coosa river hunting and fishing. B. M. Gentry was one of our welcome visitors last Friday. We're glad to say Mrs. Joseph Littleton is much improved in health. Fayette Vines and family, of Thorsby, visited relatives here recently. Rev. Art Foshee filled his regular appointment at the new church on first Sunday. J. M. Robinson lost a fine mule last week. News being out, I'll close and try to do better when I write again.

"SNOW BALL."

ROCKY MOUNT.

The Chilton County Musical Convention will meet with the Rocky Mount class (2 miles east of Jemison) in a special session the 5th Sunday in April. Bring your "Singing for Joy" song books and a whole lot of good things to eat, and spend the day and have a good time.

tf "ONE OF THE BOYS."

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

G. A. Zimmerman, Complainant, vs. C. A. Zimmerman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. Osmond Middleton, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her residence is, to affiant, unknown, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, C. A. Zimmerman, is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in THE UNION, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said C. A. Zimmerman, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 12th day of May, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 11th day of April, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
4-13-05 4t

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE,
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.
tf. T. M. Driver.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAX-PAYERS.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

The tax collector of Chilton county has filed in my office a list of delinquent taxpayers and of real estate upon which taxes are due. The persons named below or owners unknown are reported as delinquent, and the following real estate is reported as assessed to them, to-wit.

BEAT NO. 1.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co., or Owner Unknown: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 and the E. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 36, T. 24, R. 15. Tax and costs, $5.44.

BEAT NO. 2.

Jennie S. Edler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4, Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.54.

Mrs. L. C. Latham: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 3, T 23, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.49.

W. B. Strong: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 21, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 3.

W. E. Edwards: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 23, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.06.

Mary Jackson: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 4, T. 22, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.19.

BEAT NO. 4.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co.: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 34, T 21, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.18.

Samuel M. Pickler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4, Sec. 35, T 24, R 14; and the E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 31, T 21, R 17; and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 20, R 12; and the W. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 8, T 22, R 16. Tax and costs, $41.05.

The Southern Mineral Land Co., or Owner Unknown: All of Sec. 15, T 24, R 12; and the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 21, T 24, R 12; and the N. 1-2 of Sec 22, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $24.07.

The Magnetic Ore Co., or owner unknown: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 16; and the N. 1-2 and the E 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 23, R 15; and the S. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23 R 15; and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23, R 15. Tax and costs, $33.75.

BEAT NO. 5.

S. H. Glen: The S. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E 1-4 of Sec. 1, T 20, R 16; and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 20, R 16; and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 20, R 16. Tax and costs, $10.84.

BEAT NO. 6.

J. M. Askins: The S 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 14. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 7.

James Broadnax: The S. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 21, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.56.

Frank Fuller: One house and lot in Ridersville, Alabama, known as the Frank Fuller residence. Tax and costs, $4.58.

BEAT NO. 8.

John V. Coe: The E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 22, T 20, R 13, and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 23, T. 20, R 13. Tax and costs, $6.93.

Mrs. C. Paul: The N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 16, T. 20, R 11. Tax and costs, $7.02.

W. J. Stoudermire: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 18, T 21, R 11; and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 21, R 11. Tax and costs, $4.44.

H. B. & G. B. Shearer: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 20, R 12. Tax and costs, $6.79.

BEAT NO. 9.

J. Amtoft: The N. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 8, T. 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.86.

Mrs. Claura I. E. Collins: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.96.

Paul C. Goetch: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.03.

John Peterson: The N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 5, T 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.74.

R. C. Reinertson: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.90.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of said county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 8th day of May, 1905, and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed against you, and for fees and costs. After the decree is granted in each of the above cases, additional costs in the way of tax commissioners' fees will be added and collected. This 5th day of April, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLS,
tf Judge of Probate.

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No 1.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS
FOR SALE.
Troy Special & Mule Brand
"Are the Best on Earth."
J. C. JONES,
Clanton, - - - Alabama.

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.,
Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.
County and Office Supplies a Specialty.
Ask for Estimates.
2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA

Gelder's Restaurant,
Good Meals at Reasonable Prices.
110 North 20th Street,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

There is Nothing That Will Endure

By President Eliot, of Harvard.

I HAVE often wondered if our civilization will leave anything to the archaeologist of 2000 years hence to study. You have studied materials that have endured under the earth for 3000 years. I have found it difficult to find any such durable things in our buildings, arts and great manufactures.

Do we make any vases that record, as the Greek vases, our costumes, arts, religion, etc.? None. It may be that ours are not worth recording. Instead we attempt to put the records of 2000 years ago on our vases, much to the confusion of the archaeologists 2000 years hence.

Across the river there is a structure of concrete durable in spite of the frost of winter and the heat of summer. Will it stand?: What will be the ruins of the Stadium 2000 years hence, or will the structure of steel and concrete stand?

All the products of our trade and commerce are the temporary. Our stone walls are mere veneers of three or four inches thick backed up by bricks. If you examine the producers of our great industries, they are perishable in a high degree and all are becoming more so.

The old books of Germany will last, but ours will not, for the paper will rot or dry in a short period hence. Where, then, shall we find material for the archaeologist 2000 years hence?

There is only one thing that will last—our subways. There are our chances. The Brooklyn Bridge, which is the foremost of our engineering structures, needs constant care.

I trust that out of your labors as they penetrate the minds of our people will come worthier arts and buildings to record our civilization to the future.

Ship Sinks at Wharf.

New Orleans.—The Southern Pacific steamship Louisiana, Captain Whitney, partially capsized toward the shore side and then sank at her wharf. The ship arrived from Havana and was to have sailed for the same port. She was formerly in the New York and New Orleans trade and had recently been extensively rebuilt. It is expected that the vessel can be raised. No lives were lost. The cause of the accident has not been learned.

Norfolk, Va.—Daniels Knowles, 75 years of age, one of the few survivors of those who fought on the Confederate ram Merrimac in the fight with the Monitor in Hampton Roads during the civil war, is dead. He was a veteran of two wars, having served in the United States navy during the Mexican war. On the Merrimac during the Hampton Roads fight he was a gun captain and commanded the big Dahlgren gun crew during the two days' fight.

HUNGRY TIME.

When I was getting better,
And they propped me up in bed,
Oh, didn't I feel hungry!
But I knew the doctor'd said,
He can't have much to eat yet;
So I thought of things instead.

I thought of basket picnics,
And of mince and apple pie;
Of sandwiches and doughnuts,
And the tarts I used to buy.
I seemed to taste them, almost,
Such a hungry boy was I.

My mother'd sit and read me
Any story I'd pick out;
I guess you know already
What the stories were about.
I'd listen and—imagine;
And it helped me do without.

But oh, I want to tell you
That there's nothing you can take,
In thinking or in stories,
In a dream or when awake,
That ever tastes as splendid
As the first real slice of cake!
—Arthur H. Folwell in Youth's Companion.

MR. AND MRS. BUSHY-TAIL.

It was a clear, cold January morning, and Mr. Bushy-Tail was sitting at the door of his house. Such a queer house it was—spreading below, bearing the marks of frequent attacks from Mr. Woodpecker, who often passed that way. Bushy-Tail had labored long to fashion his house, and to stock it with a winter supply for himself and his dear wife. His patient little jaws had often ached with the heavy loads he had brought to the hollow old tree. Mr. Jack Frost had come in autumn and opened the prickly burs, Uncle Wind had shaken the leafless boughs, when Mr. and Mrs. Bushy-Tail, eyes snapping and plumes waving, had gathered in the harvest. Now they could play with a clear conscience, and Bushy-Tail's heart leaped for joy as he hopped to the ground. His brisk little wife followed him, and the two scampered away for a morning frolic over the crisp snow.

Down the woodland path came a sturdy little figure, well enveloped in overcoat, cap and tippet. With one hand he carried slate and books closely strapped together; with the other he swung the dinner-pail. This was Billy Black on his way to school. As he passed Bushy-Tail's house his merry whistle ceased, and his bright black eyes took on a look of cunning. Cautiously he approached the tree, climbed to one of the lower branches and peeped in at the open door. Quickly he drew off his mitten and thrust his hand into the opening, carefully groping about until he found the apartment sought for—the storeroom. Then it was surprising how fast the little hand went in empty and came out full, till a cry from old Aunty Bushy-Tail, awakened from her comfortable nap by this intrusion, cut short all further operations. For the old aunty still had sharp teeth, and Billy knew this to his sorrow. So he quickly withdrew his hand and hurried on his way to school.

It was an unlucky morning for him. The columns of figures refused to be added, and the letters in the spelling lesson danced about and made faces at him. One thought cheered him—the contents of his dinner-pail; sandwiches, apple pie, doughnuts and cheese. He could hardly wait for the clock to strike twelve, and when the teacher sent him to the next house on an errand, just as he was going to open the pail, he could have cried for disappointment. But there was no use complaining, so with a mumbled "Yes'um," he started on his way.

It was late when he came back, and he was hungrier than ever—half-starved, he said. He pulled off the cover to his pail before he pulled off his red mittens, but oh, what a terrible surprise! The dinner was gone. In an instant he understood it all, and a howl of rage and despair sounded through the deserted room, followed by the angry wail, "Teacher, the boys have stole my dinner!" It was no use to try to comfort him; for he must live through the afternoon, ever conscious of a big, aching void, and then run two miles before he could have even a piece of bread and butter.

Soon the bell rang and the boys trooped in from coasting on the hill back of the schoolhouse. Billy took his geography and tried to study. Strangely enough, the lesson described how the small fur-bearing animals of New England gather their winter supplies. He threw down the book and opened his grammar. O dear! The first sentence to be diagramed was, "The squirrels gather their store of nuts for the long, cold winter." Billy hid his face behind his book. Through his shame and hunger this thought came to him: "If it is so hard for a fellow to lose his dinner, what must it be to go without your dinner all winter long?"

Four o'clock came at last, and a resolute little fellow was once more ready to face the cold. He was hungry, but he did not complain or try to find out and punish the thief who had invaded his dinner-pail. He only ran as fast as he could over the crackling snow to the wood path which led to his home. The thought of the steaming supper waiting for him, and then of another supper, and of the joy that it would bring.

The theft had been discovered. When old aunty sounded the alarm, Mr. and Mrs. Bushy-Tail scampered home, but only to find the empty storehouse. Shrill notes of anger rent the air, but only for a short time. The Bushy-Tails are noted for their courage, and it's no use to cry for spilled milk. They soon stopped wailing and started out in quest of food, for now they must fight famine. But little remained for them, only a few scattered, frozen buds, so with heavy hearts and light loads they wended their way homeward and entered the door of their dwelling. O joy! The floor was piled high with beautiful beechnuts, from which old aunty was already taking her supper. A little brown hand had been suddenly thrust into the living-room, and as suddenly withdrawn. This time it entered full and left empty, and the process was repeated until the last beechnut was taken from Billy's pocket.

The Bushy-Tails never knew the history of the matter. They only knew that the lost was found. They danced about and chattered their joy to each other, for they were very happy, and as Billy sat down to a good, warm supper he was as happy as they.—Elizabeth Perley in Youth's Companion.

THE CIVILIZED SQUIRREL.

Whether or not it will presently be necessary to put steam heat into the squirrel houses in the trees of Central Park, New York, is an interesting question. These popular little animals are now so thoroughly pampered by the public that they have abandoned their old self-dependent habits. They no longer sleep a great part of the winter away, as is natural to them in this latitude. As their usual partial dependence upon a state of semi-torpor to protect them from the effects of the cold is broken up, it may be that they suffer a good deal from the temperature of such nights as these.

To determine whether all the public pampering of the park squirrels is good for them, or whether they are being cut off in their prime by a not sufficiently simple life, the park authorities are going to take a census of the little animals and keep track of them. The squirrels are certainly getting peanuts by the bushel. Some of them have grown so critical that they refuse to accept single nuts, and insist upon having access to the bag in order that they may make their choice. Others scorn peanuts altogether and search the pockets for candy and other dainties.

They have grown tame even beyond squirrel precedent. Experience has made some of them shy of children, and especially of boys of about the age of twelve, but elderly gentlemen of benevolent appearance have been seen decorated with as many as five squirrels at once. It will certainly be surprising if the squirrel census should indicate that present conditions are unfavorable to them, for they swarm in apparently increasing numbers, and are all plump and lustrous.

That is an impression that squirrels are hurtful to tree vegetation and destructive to birds. In their wild state they certainly are, for they nip off buds in winter and ravage birds' nests in spring. But our park squirrels are so well fed that they have little occasion to engage in either of these forms of depredation.—New York Mail.

To Live Long.

The latest food craze is curdled milk of a special kind, prepared on a Bulgarian recipe. It is the new remedy against growing old.

The substance is called yaghurt, and can now be obtained in tins in Paris. It is supposed to be fatal to all the hostile bacteria in the intestines, while friendly microbes thrive upon it.

Yaghurt looks very like ordinary cream cheese gone bad, and tastes similiarly. People who wish to live to a hundred breakfast off yaghurt exclusively, but many who have tried it prefer to die young.—New York Globe.

To have a pretty home, avoid glaring contrasts of color.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It is now known that laziness is a disease, but we have not noticed that more than 4,000 patents have been taken out on medicines to cure it.

King Leopold of Belgium has given up his automobile. If he gives up all his bad habits Europe will be shy a monarch, observes the Jacksonville Times-Union.

An Austrian inventor has compressed 300,000 newspapers and built a small but perfectly seaworthy yacht with the material thus obtained. What would American say if their dailies were as dry as that, asks the Boston Transcript.

A peculiar fact is that 1905 began on Sunday and will end on Sunday, and therefore has fifty-three Sundays. This will not occur again in 110 years, declares the Leesburg (Va.) Washingtonian.

Don't lose sight of the fact that those who do not work are fed, clothed and housed by those who do work; that they ride on flowery beds of ease, upon the backs of those who toil, and that the worse than useless breed is rapidly increasing, says the Stockton Advocate.

A whole cooked rhinoceros was served at the dinner of the Canadian Camp in this city, says the New York Evening Sun. A course of welsh rabbits and lobster Newburg ought to be a good preparation on the part of the guests for the strenuous evening.

There is so much idle money in the world, remarks Town Topics, that China's offer to pay indemnities to date in gold is unacceptable to bankers and brokers, who prefer payment by instalments, with their usual commissions and perquisites.

The moment a man reaches the stage where he thinks more of his dinner than he does of his duty, more of his coat than he does of his character, more of his standing in "society" than he does of doing his plain duty as a man and citizen—that moment he ceases to be a factor in the preservation of the State, declares the Rev. T. B. Gregory.

It is through a government examination that entry must be made to a civil service position, and there is nothing short of a mania in France for drawing a public salary, states the Indianapolis News. The result has been the most uniform and stereotyped system of training that youths were ever subjected to. There are nearly 400,000 paid officials under the French government. For every voter one person holds some sort of a public office.

Just what are the force and scope of electricity as a factor in the world of transportation is a problem that men engaged in the business are studying with care, and as yet without definite conclusion. The opinion of a well known railroad man advanced in The Indianapolis News recently was that it would soon usurp the place of steam as a motor for short distances, or, rather, he cited this as the opinion of electrical engineers.

The imports of tropical and subtropical products into the United States reached in 1904 the large value of $465,000,000, states the Louisville Courier Journal. In round numbers, we imported $114,000,000 worth of sugar, $88,000,000 worth of coffee, $33,000,000 of fibres; of tropical fruit $25,000,000, of tobacco $23,000,000, of tea $17,000,000. The per capita importation of such products has risen from $3.63 in 1870 to $5.69 in 1904. Some grief is expressed in these large and increasing importations but we are obliged to import something to pay for our exports, as we prefer not to give them away.

Keep on the right side of your hired man, advises the Indianapolis News. Treat him well so long as he is in your employ, and if he does not deserve good treatment, or respond to it do not keep him. A good hired man will appreciate good usage and kind favors and pay for them by the extra amount and better quality of his services. It is courtesy to treat all men decently. In the case of your hired man, it is also policy and economy. Be liberal with him, not only at the table, but give him occasionally a spare day for amusement and recreation. Any intelligent hired man will work harder and perform his labor better when he feels that his employers appreciate well doing.

The Society of Physical Research has $5,000 in hand and asks for $25,000 more "to explore the soul." It would be worth as many millions to ascertain definitely whether man has a soul. Before organizing an expedition to search the unknowable, why not expend the money in exploring the body? inquires Town Topics The questions whether and why and how disease are hereditary have never been answered satisfactorily. Scientists have not yet explained why nature provides a vermiform appendix, except for the pecuniary benefit of surgeons. Of what use are the almond-shaped tonsils on each side of the throat, except to be cut out to prevent inflammation? There are a hundred puzzles from tip to toe of the human anatomy to be solved before the exploration of something we are not sure we posses is in order.

USES FOR HOT WATER.

Although beauty doctors do not sing the praises of hot water treatment for the toilet, here are many ways in which this in invaluable. To drink a bowl of it every night is splendid for the digestion and warrants a good sleep and clear complexion. A bag of hot water at one's feet when one has a cold; to the back when it aches and to the nape of the neck when one has a headache or feels sleepless is one of the best remedies.

When the eyes become inflamed a douche of hot water gives them strength and restfulness, and when the feet are tired a good soaking in hot water is one of the best of remedies. Steam the face with it once a week for the complexion, bathe the cheeks in it when a color is wanted. Cold sores, fever blisters and pimples bathed in very hot water drys them up in short order, and it but not least the hot water bag is indispensable to the household pains and aches which visit every human being, and the hat water bag is a cure for all.

CHEESECLOTH THE HOUSE-WIFE'S HELP.

A careful housewife can attain wonders with a bolt of cheesecloth. She can transform summer ugliness in a home to a dream of color beauty. For instance, the woman who has to stay in town the greater part of the summer and does not wish her house to become a prey to dust and flies, will wrap up her pictures and bric-a-brac with newspapers, or at best with dingy old covers; anything for protection. Now, with a very small amount of trouble and expense, cheesecloth wrappings will answer the same purpose, and yet add beauty to the rooms instead of ugliness.

Small china and glass ornaments strewn around the drawing room or sitting room may be put away in some convenient closet while the larger pieces and the picture may be entirely covered with cheesecloth, the softness of which makes it easy to handle, and yet it will give ample protection against dirt and flies.

I remember seeing last summer a perfectly charming room that a friend of mine had converted from a rather stiff parlor. Matting took the place of heavy rugs, and pretty white art ticking, with a pink rose design, covered the furniture. Every picture, mirror, and large ornament either of china or bronze, was entirely wrapped in pale pink cheesecloth. Curtains of the same material and color (reaching to the sills), adorned the windows, and were tied back with pink ribbons. The effect was simply delightful. The same woman had made her dining room equally attractive to using yellow cheesecloth in it, and one of the upstairs rooms was covered with sky-blue.

The whole color scheme was carried out in its coverings, and these invariably toned in with the wall paper. Her house was in this way well taken care of, but instead of being made ugly, was quite "a thing of beauty," and she laughingly said it would be "a joy forever," as next year it would be the same old story; the cheesecloth would wash, and even if it faded a little, would still retain its delicate color—at all events, it was a vast improvement upon newspapers and similar wrappings.—Amy D'Arcy Wetmore, in Woman's Work.

RECIPES.

Candied Brazil Nuts—Put a cupful of water in a saucepan over the fire, add three cupfuls of granulated sugar, and let it boil gently till it hardens when a little is dropped in cold water; flavor with extract of lemon. Take a nut meat in a pair of sugar tons or a pair of confectioners' tongs. Set the saucepan where the syrup will keep hot, but not boil; dip the nut meat into the syrup. Wave it gently back and forth till cool, then lay it on buttered paper. Continue this process till all the nut meats are candied. It is a slow process, as only one can be dipped at a time, and often each meat has to be dipped the second time. All sorts of nuts may be candied in this way, but Brazil nuts and English walnuts are best. This is nice work to teach the children to do.

Shrimps a la Creole—Shrimps prepared in the chafing dish make a delicious supper dish. Chop half of a small onion and a clove of garlic and fry in two ounces of butter. Put in a can of shrimps and cook fifteen minutes over the hot water pan, adding half a pint of canned tomatoes, a few tablespoonfuls of French peas, season with salt and red pepper.

Nut Pralines—Pralines are delicious; as a rule they are made with hickory nuts, but they are better with English walnuts. Take two cupfuls of hickory nut or English walnut meats, two cupfuls of light brown sugar, a small saltspoonful of cream of tartar, half a cupful of water, and a saltspoonful of extract of vanilla. Put the water, sugar and cream of tartar together in an enamelled saucepan over a slow fire. Stir gently till the sugar is dissolved, then boil till it spins a thread when dropped from a spoon. Lift the saucepan from the fire, add the nuts and vanilla, and stir until thick as cream and a little sugary; then drop in little pats on buttered paper or places well butter-

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. DR. H. C. SWENTZEL.

Subject: The Divinity of Christianity.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—For the first of a series of sermons on "The Religion of Jesus Christ," the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Swentzel, rector of St. Luke's Church, Clinton avenue, near Fulton street, preached Sunday on "The Divinity of Christianity." The text was from I Timothy 1:11: "The Glorious Gospel of the Blessed God." Dr. Swentzel said in the course of his sermon:

Christianity shows the credentials of divinity. It is not a set of doctrines and principles which men or even the best of them have invented, but it professes to come directly from the infinite Jehovah Himself. It is not simply one among the world's religions.

It stands alone and is unique in the manner and method of its origin. It was not whispered into the ear of a seer by the Almighty; it is not the result of visions; it is not the product of learning and piety. It comes directly from the infinite God, who actually adopted human nature in order that He might talk with mankind face to face. It is immeasurably more divine than the religion of Moses and the prophets because it was delivered personally by the incarnate Lord Himself. The themes of which He treats are of such tremendous moment that any solution of them ought to be carefully scrutinized. Who and what is God? Who and what is man? What is the true ideal for the present? What is the outlook for the future? What of immortality and heaven? To these interrogatories the Lord speaks with tones of infallibility which popes and synods have not dared to initiate or even to claim. The author of the Sermon on the Mount was the eternal Son of God and His religion is nothing less than "the glorious gospel of the blessed God."

To say that Jesus of Nazareth is a divine Being is not synonymous with the error which calls Him a divine man. There have been many divine men—men who had a mission and a message from the Most High, men who were called to lead humanity to better and nobler things; sons of men who were filled with God's spirit, and counted not their life dear if it were spent in His service, prophets of reform, prophets of liberty, prophets of philosophy or literature or art. In the hall of fame stand the images of the vast army of divine souls who have been the champions of God's cause and the captains of His hosts in every clime. In a far loftier sense, in a literal sense which warrants no jugglery of words and no legerdemain of metaphysics, was Jesus Christ God's Son, His only Son. The Christian Scriptures propose this sublime truth which should be hailed with universal acclaim. It is constantly assumed in the four gospels, even as it was by Himself, that, though He was born of the Virgin Mary, He was still, in the later language of the Nicene Creed, "God of God, Light of Light, Very God of Very God."

In one way or another Our Lord declared His divinity time and again. He made Himself God's equal with such plainness that even His enemies could not mistake it. They accused Him of sacrilege so strongly that they wrung from Him the well-remembered reply: "Say ye to Him whom the Father hath sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemer, because I said I am the Son of God?" It is true that He loved to speak of Himself as "the Son of Man," but that title really was His assertion of deity. He might have been a son of man without being a divine personage, but He could not be truly the son of man unless He were, more than all, the Son of God. It is no wonder than when the people beheld His moral perfection and saw His works and listened to the truths as they seemed to come from the mouth of God, they asked, "Who is this Son of Man?" The record of the memorable interview, which has often been conspicuous in the church's regard, should not lightly be put aside. The Lord said to His disciples, "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am? Whom say ye that I am?" Then it was that Simon Peter made the great confession, "Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God." In advance of His birth the archangel gave this assurance to the Virgin Mother, "That holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." And when the end came and Jesus had breathed out His life on the Calvary cross, the words of the Roman Centurion were a fitting finale for the record of His mortal career, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

The divinity of the Founder of Christianity justifies the certitude of His disciples. This absolute certitude should be appreciated. We should willingly take the Lord at His word. And yet He does not demand that the disciples shall enslave themselves—He who came to make them free, to give them "the liberty of the glory of the children of God." That liberty is surely not a dead letter. The Divine Master would not put shackles on the human intellect. He does not discourage the conservatism which disdains to consider the present or to look for a golden age in the future. If He be heard aright He will stimulate thought and investigation. Better than ourselves did He know that the real advancement of the multitudes is in harmony with His plans and that the period of the finest piety will be a time of the greatest enlightenment. The divinity of Christ should not be treated as a brutum fulmen. Rather is it a truth—a fact—which should steady and hold Christian people amid the growth of ideas and the struggle of theories. Whatever truths may be discovered, whatever thinkers may say or print, whatever conclusions may ensue in the intellectual world, the Christian religion is forever true, because it is nothing less than "the glorious gospel of the blessed God."

It is on this basis that the honest doubter may take his stand. Doubts are not necessarily sinful. People who never think will never doubt. It could scarcely be expected that Christianity would not cause intellectual disturbances. It has to do largely with mysteries incomprehensible and unfathomable. It presents doctrines which it is not always easy to reconcile even with the best ideals of good men. [illegible] trained [illegible] ceptions [illegible] presented by [illegible] of Mary [illegible] schooled [illegible] things, [illegible] ces assign[illegible] our time [illegible] endeavor to temp[illegible] pations; [illegible] live [illegible] a world of [illegible] and the [illegible] constant tendency is [illegible] that the [illegible] ly things that are [illegible] while are [illegible] e things which [illegible] There are [illegible] ubts which proceed [illegible] pride and [illegible] onceit; there are [illegible] who are convinced that it is [illegible] break away from a religion [illegible] was instituted nearly 2000 [illegible] there are those who are seriously [illegible] suaded that they know [illegible] much for them [illegible] consent to [illegible] Gospel of Bethlehem and Calvary [illegible] Holy Sepulchre and the Mount [illegible] ives. Of course they deny [illegible] form—they say that Jesus was [illegible] the Son of God. To us who [illegible] the Lord's divinity there is [illegible] refuge, this safe hiding place [illegible] storms. When doubts arise [illegible] we should do our best to dispel [illegible] them, we should remember [illegible] ment in the face of mysteries [illegible] contradictions and of alleged [illegible] against the intellect that [illegible] of Christianity would have [illegible] mistake because He was [illegible] God.

Christianity is [illegible] divinity of the Founder, and [illegible] cause of this divinity that [illegible] has endured thus long and [illegible] and connections and progress [illegible] survive until the end of time [illegible] the many tokens of its heavenly [illegible] acter is that it has confronted [illegible] powers of darkness and has [illegible] the day in every struggle and [illegible] field. From the outset an effort [illegible] been made to banish it from [illegible] of the earth. More than once [illegible] appeared that "the glorious Gospel [illegible] the Blessed God" might possibly [illegible] obliterated; but somehow after [illegible] battle the banners of the cross [illegible] waved in triumph and God's truth [illegible] won.

Does any one inquire respecting [illegible] outcome? does any one [illegible] "Watchman, what of the night?" [illegible] answer is Victory, a better [illegible] dom, a nobler Church, a purer [illegible] Let the winds blow and the [illegible] roar; let the powers of evil [illegible] do their worst; let the advance [illegible] achievements of the future surpass [illegible] thousandfold the knowledge and [illegible] quests of the past. Christianity [illegible] abide with ever increasing glory [illegible] it is founded upon a rock, and that [illegible] is the incarnate Son of God.

Justice Reigns Supreme.

In this God's-world, with its whirling eddies and mad foam, where men and nations perish without law, and judgment for a thing is sternly delayed, do we think that there is, therefore, no justice?

It is what the fool hath said in his heart. It is what the wise, in all ages, were wise because they denied and knew forever not to be. I affirm again, there is nothing else but justice. One strong thing I find here and there, the just thing, the true thing, the friend, if thou hadst all the [illegible] of Woolwich trundling at thy [illegible] support of an unjust thing, [illegible] finite bonfires visibly waiting [illegible] of thee to blaze centuries long [illegible] victory on behalf of it, I would [illegible] thee to call halt, to fling down [illegible] baton and say, "In God's name [illegible]"—Thomas Carlyle.

The Hidden Sin.

A majestic tree fell at its prime on a calm evening, when the [illegible] scarcely a breath of air stirring. [illegible] had withstood a century of storms [illegible] now was broken off by a zephyr.

The secret was disclosed at last [illegible] ing. A boy's hatchet had been [illegible] into it when it was a tender [illegible] The wound had been grown over [illegible] hidden away under exuberant [illegible] but it had never healed. There [illegible] heart of the tree it stayed, a [illegible] decay, ever eating a little farther [illegible] deeper into the trunk, until at [illegible] tree was rotted through and [illegible] own weight when it seemed [illegible] its best.

So do many lives fall when they [illegible] to be at their strongest because [illegible] sin or fault of youth has [illegible] wounding and consequent weakening [illegible] the heart.—Dr. J. H. Miller.

God's Double Purpose.

God manifestly has a double [illegible] in view in bestowing blessings [illegible] an individual, namely, the good [illegible] individual and the larger and [illegible] benefits that others may [illegible] through the individual. To Abraham [illegible] He said, "Blessing I will bless [illegible] and multiplying I will multiply [illegible]

It is an experimental fact that [illegible] are enriched in the best things [illegible] parting them to others. So [illegible] graces are enriched by leading [illegible] into gracious ways of living. [illegible] that character is improved by [illegible] of character building in others [illegible] truth more securely and deeply [illegible] in us by teaching it to others. [illegible] up one's gifts and hide one's [illegible] impoverish and darken one's own [illegible] —Examiner.

Be in Earnest.

There are many human [illegible] make for accomplishment, [illegible] greatest of these is earnestness.

Enthusiasm is the flash; earnestness [illegible] the steady glow. It is that [illegible] which shines through and glorifies [illegible] simplest deeds and plainest [illegible]

Earnestness improves where [illegible] is powerless. If you are in earnest [illegible] ideas will develop, plans and methods [illegible] will suggest themselves and success [illegible] will follow.

No one can work earnestly who [illegible] is a downright believer in the [illegible] for which he is working, and willing [illegible] to back it against the world.—Selected and Adapted.

The Way of Freedom.

If you will let Him walk [illegible] in your streets and sit with [illegible] your offices and be with you [illegible] homes and teach you in your [illegible] and abide with you as the [illegible] Presence in your hearts, you [illegible] shall know what freedom [illegible] while you own yourselves the [illegible] men, know you are the sons of [illegible] Phillips Brooks.

Sacrifice.

The candle is consumed by [illegible] flame, but its exhaustion gives [illegible] to the world. So is he who [illegible] self on the altar of a noble [illegible] fice.—United Presbyterian.

U-NEEDED MEASURES [illegible] TO THE PERUNA THE GREAT TONIC
SENATORS, MINISTERS, CONGRESSMEN, DOCTORS, GOVERNORS, PRESIDENTS, HOSPITALS
UNCLE SAM "A High [illegible]
ed of Any Catarrh [illegible]
n Endorsed by so M[illegible]
Prominent People."
BEST FOR THE
Cascarets
THEY WORK WHILE YOU [illegible]
RANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, [illegible]
d, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul [illegible] after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dark [illegible] arly you are sick. Constipation kills more people [illegible] chronic ailments and long years of suffering. [illegible]
CARETS today, for you will never get well and stay [illegible]
. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today. [illegible] ey refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. [illegible] let free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, [illegible]
Franklin invented the light-[illegible]od at the age of 46.
cured in 20 minutes by Woolford's [illegible]ry Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all [illegible]sts, $1. Mail orders promptly filled. [illegible] E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.
life-saving dogs are valuable aids to [illegible]lice department of Paris.
O CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE
ONOMY BLUE
[illegible]gs Full Quart Best Liquid Bluing.
[illegible]rs on the market. Ask dealer, or we [illegible]nd by mail package upon receipt of 10c [illegible]pe and dealer's name.
RIDGES-McDOWELL CO., Louisville, Ky.
SO POSITION
[illegible]Y TUITION AFTER [illegible]SITION IS SECURED [illegible]0 who clip this notice and send to DRAUGHON'S
CTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
[illegible]omery, Nashville, Atlanta, Little Rock or Ft. Worth without giving notes, pay EVERY [illegible] of tuition out of salary after [illegible]position is secured. If not secured [illegible]y required.
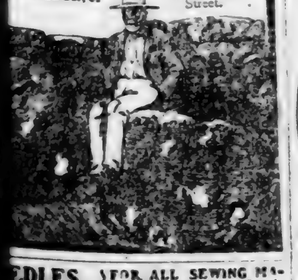
COURSE BY MAIL FREE
[illegible]ot ready to enter you may take [illegible]s by mail FREE until ready. [illegible] would save time, living expenses, [illegible]r complete at home and get [illegible]. D. P. B. C. Co. has $50,000 [illegible] 17 bankers on Board of Directors [illegible] and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTY [illegible] states to back every claim it [illegible]. Established SIXTEEN years [illegible]nd send this notice to day.
Potash
necessary for cotton to produce [illegible]gh yields and good fibre.
Write for our valuable books on [illegible]rtilization; they contain information [illegible]on that means dollars to the [illegible]rmers. Sent free on request. [illegible]rite now while you think of it to the
GERMAN KALI WORKS
[illegible]w York— Atlanta, Ga.—
[illegible] Nassau St., or 2½ So. Broad Street.


EDLES, FOR ALL SEWING MACHINE. Standard Goods Only. Free catal. free to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
UTTLES, PAIRS.
Am. 15. 1905.
PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION men. training ceptions of Mary things, our time pations;

and the
that the while are
There are pride and who are convinced that it is break away from a religion was instituted nearly 2000 y there are those who are serio suaded that they know enti much for them to consent to Gospel of Bethlehem and Calv
Holy Sepulchre and the Mount ives. Of course they deny form—they say that Jesus the Son of God. To us who b the Lord's divinity there is refuge, this safe hiding place storms. When doubts arise, we should do our best to di them, we should remember ev ment in the face of myster contradictions and of alleged against the intellect that the of Christianity could have mistake because He was the God.

Christianity is divine becaus divinity of the Founder, and cause of this divinity that Chri has endured thus long and all and connections and progres survive until the end of time.
the many tokens of its heaven acter is that it has confronted powers of darkness and has the day in every struggle and field. From the outset an e been made to banish it from of the earth. More than once appeared that "the glorious C the Blessed God" might pos obliterated; but somehow afte battle the banners of the cro waved in triumph and God's tr won.

Does any one inquire respecti outcome? does any one c
"Watchman, what of the night answer is Victory, a better C dom, a nobler Church, a purer Let the winds blow and the roar; let the powers of evil a do their worst; let the advan achievements of the future sur thousandfold the knowledge a quests of the past. Christians abide with ever increasing glo it is founded on a rock, and th is the ineffable Son of God.

Justice Reigns Supreme.

In this God's world, with it whirling eddies and mad foam-where men and nations perish without law, and judgment for but that thing is sternly delayed, d think that there is, therefore, force?

It is what the fool hath said heart. It is what the wise, in all were wise because they denie knew forever not to be. I t again, there is nothing else but One strong thing I find here the just thing, the true thing friend, if thou hadst all the a of Woolwich trundling at thy support of an unjust thing, finite bonfires visibly waiting of thee to blaze centuries long victory on behalf of it, I would thee to call halt, to fling do baton and say, "In God's name —Thomas Carlyle.

The Hidden Sin.

A majestic tree fell at its pri on a calm evening, when the scarcely a breath of air stirri had withstood a century of stor now was broken off by a zephyr.

The secret was disclosed at ing. A boy's hatchet had bee into it when it was a tender
The wound had been grown o hidden away under exuberan but it had never healed. There heart of the tree it stayed, a decay, ever eating a little fart deeper into the trunk, until at tree was rotted through and fe own weight when it seemed its best.

So do many lives fall when th to be at their strongest becaus sin or fault of youth has wounding and consequent weak
the heart.—Dr. J. R. Miller.

God's Double Purpose.

God manifestly has a double in view in bestowing blessing an individual, namely, the good individual and the larger and benefits that others may through the individual. To A
He said, "Blessing I will ble and multiplying I will multipl
It is an experimental fact th are enriched in the best things parting them to others. So it graces are enriched by leadi into gracious ways of living.
that character is improved by t of character building in othe truth more securely and deeply in us by teaching it to others.
up one's gifts and hide one's l impoverish and darken one's o —Examiner.

Be in Earnest.

There are many human for make for accomplishment, greatest of these is earnestne Enthusiasm is the flash; ear the steady glow. It is that which shines through and glor simplest deeds and plainest wo Earnestness improves where is powerless. If you are in ideas will develop, plans and will suggest themselves and will follow.

No one can work earnestly is a downright believer in th for which he is working, and to back it against the world.— and Adapted.

The Way of Freedom.

If you will let Him walk in your streets and sit with your offices and be with you homes and teach you in your and abide with you as the Presence in your hearts, shall know what freedom while you own yourselves the men, know you are the sons o
Phillips Brooks.

Sacrifice.

The candle is consumed by flame, but its exhaustion g to the world. So is he who self on the altar of a noble fice.—United Presbyterian.

U-N... ASURES UP TO THE STANDARD.

NCLE SAM—"A High Standard is Re-red of Any Catarrh Remedy That Has en Endorsed by so Many Trustworthy d Prominent People."

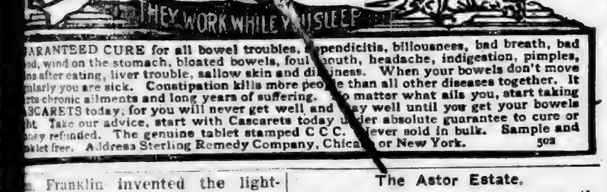
BEST FOR THE BOWELS
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC



ARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, ...pendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad od, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, fou... mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, ns after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move larly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It ates chronic ailments and long years of suffering. ...o matter what ails you, start taking SCARETS today; for you will never get well and ...ay well until you get your bowels ht. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today ...der absolute guarantee to cure or ney refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. ...ever sold in bulk. Sample and oklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chica... or New York. 502

...n. Franklin invented the light-rod at the age of 46.

...h cured in 20 minutes by Woolford's
...ary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all
...ists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled
... E. Ditchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

...e life-saving dogs are valuable aids to
...olice department of Paris.

50 CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE
ECONOMY BLUE
...kes Full Quart Best Liquid Bluing.
...ks on the market. Ask dealer, or we ...d by mail package upon receipt of 10c.
...ame and dealer's name.
...Bennett McIlwaine Co., Louisville, Ky.

50 POSITION
...AY TUITION AFTER
...SITION IS SECURED
...10 who clip this notice and send to
DRAUGHON'S
...ACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
...domery, Nashville, Atlanta, Little Rock or Ft. Worth
...without giving notes, pay EVERY
...of tuition out of salary after ...position is secured. If not secured
...ew reasons.
COURSE BY MAIL FREE
...not ready to enter you may take
...es by mail FREE until ready,
...would save time, living expenses,
...or complete at home and get di-...D. P. E. P. C. Co., has $300,000.0
...of 25 members on Board of Direc-
...and TWENTY Colleges in THIR-
...N states to back every claim it
...es Established SIXTEEN years.
...and send this notice to-day.

Potash
...is necessary for cotton to produce
...high yields and good fibre.
...Write for our valuable books on ...fertilization; they contain informa...tion that means dollars to the ...farmer. Sent free on request.
...Write now while you think of it
...to the
GERMAN KALI WORKS
...New York— Atlanta, Ga.—
...229 Nassau St., er 22½ So. Broad ...Street.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS
FOR ALL SEWING MACHINE. Standard Goods Only. Free trial. Write to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
Am. 15, 1905.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

WIT and HUMOR of THE DAY

Little Ferdie.

There once was a laddie named Ferdie,
So talkative, earnest and wordy,
Each scolding he got
Was as if it were not;
Of no scolding a syllable heard he.
—New York Mail.

The Third Floor.

Lady (in department store)—"Have you some candelabra?"

Clerk—"Yes, ma'am, but the canned goods are on the third floor."—Cornell Widow.

Plumage Birds.

Mr. Wise—"What did you do at your Audubon Club to-day?"

Mrs. Wise—"We passed a resolution condemning cuckoo clocks."—San Francisco Call.

Suggesting a Clew.

Teacher (at waifs' mission)—"Who wrote the Epistle to the Romans?"

Swipsey de Bootblack—"Wasn't dere no name signed to it, ma'am?"—Chicago Tribune.

At the Concert.

Angeline—"Doesn't she sing beautifully?"

Grace—"Sings well enough, but see how her dress hangs! Isn't a sight?"—Boston Transcript.

Couldn't Lose It.

Hix—"How did that old millionaire make his money?"

Dix—"He invented a suspender buckle that turned into a night latch key."—Detroit Free Press.

The Beginning of Knowledge.

"You really don't believe, then, that a man is ever too old to learn?"

"Certainly not. I've known men to get married at the age of seventy-five or more."—Philadelphia Press.

The Transmitter.

Lillian—"Wasn't it sweet of your husband to send you a kiss by wire?"

Mabelle—"I haven't decided yet. I am suspicious that telegraph operator was a woman."—Detroit Free Press.

All Things Come.

"It took you an awfully long time to pull that fellow's tooth," said the assistant.

"Yes," answered the dentist, grimly, "he married the girl I loved."—Detroit Tribune.

A Hot One.

Judge Knox (in the courtroom)—"I've lost my hat."

Attorney—"That's nothing. I lost a suit here yesterday."—New York Press.

Removed the Cause.

Miss Black—"You weren't looking at all well when I saw you the other day; are you better now?"

Mrs. Black—"Yes, the dressmaker 'phoned that the bill she sent me the other day was meant for somebody else."—Detroit Free Press.

As They Heard Him.

D'Auber—"I was certainly tickled at what Crittick said about me."

Knox—"Why, what was that?"

D'Auber—"You heard him. He said I was a deft colorist."

Knox—"I understood him to say 'daft.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Paying For Gas.

"What is a retainer, pop?"

"A retainer, my son, is the money people pay us lawyers before we do any work."

"Oh, I see. It's like those pay gas meters. The people have to pay the money before they get any gas!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Shines When Abroad.

Deacon Jones—"You must be very happy in your family since your husband became converted. I never saw a more zealous convert; he actually makes a business of religion."

Mrs. Grimes—"Yes, I suppose that is the reason we don't see much change in him at the house. He never was a man to bring his business home."—Boston Transcript.

The Penalty of Greatness.

"Yes," said the railroad president, "I suppose I am a bigger man than the President of the United States, and am probably looked up to on a par with the King of England or the Emperor Germany, but being great has its penalty."

"What particular penalties do you refer to?" he was asked.

"Well, I just had a sample of them. As I was about to enter the office I slipped and dropped my cane. A man sprang forward and picked it up and restored it, and when I bowed my thanks he stepped back and said:

"'That's all right as far as it goes, Mr. President, but, you see, I am looking for a deadhead pass to San Francisco!'"—Chicago News.

The Astor Estate.

In 1830 John Jacob Astor was the only man in New York who was worth $1,000,000. Now the entire Astor estate is rapidly approaching the billion dollar mark.

BABY ONE SOLID SORE

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Forty Boils on Head—Spent $100 on Doctors—Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura For $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Doctors and medicines had cost over $100, with baby growing worse. Then we spent less than $5 for Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) Mrs. G. H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Ave., Milwaukee, Wis."

Large oil wells have been discovered in the northern part of Roumania, and petroleum is now being exported to many parts of Europe, where it takes the place of American and Russian petroleum.

Many Own Land.

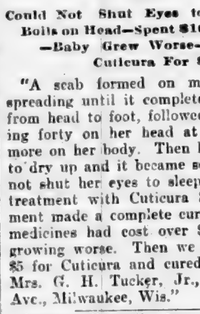
In Denmark there are 224,000 rural landowners. More than half have not more than one acre, 96,000 have less than four acres, and only 2,000 have more. The small landowners mainly occupy themselves with the egg and fowl industry.

South Africa exports about $26,000,000 worth of diamonds to London every year.

THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of Colorado Springs Began to Fear the Worst—Doan's Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of 428 St. Urain street, Colorado Springs, Col., President of the Glen Eyrie Club, writes:



"I suffered for three years with severe backache. The doctors told me my kidneys were affected and prescribed medicines for me, but I found that it was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. I have now enjoyed the best of health for more than four months, and words can but poorly express my gratitude."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

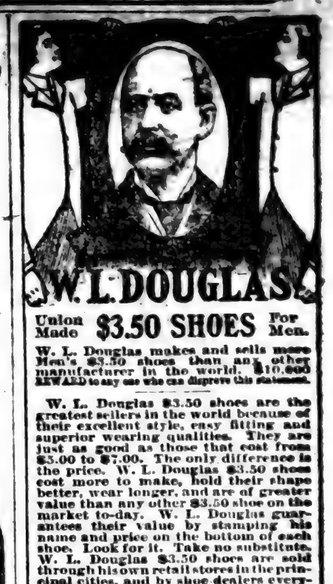
Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.



Union Made $3.50 SHOES For Men.

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more Men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. $10,000 REWARD to any one who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost from $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

EQUAL $5.00 SHOES.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for years, and consider them equal to any $5.00 shoe now on the market. They have given entire satisfaction."—Wm. H. Anderson, Real Estate Agent, Kansas City, Mo.

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

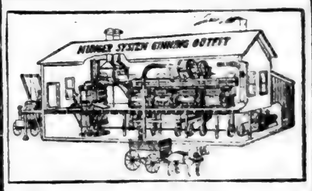
W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest patent leather produced.

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear Brassy.

W. L. Douglas has the largest shoe mail order business in the world. No trouble to get a fit by mail. 25 cents extra prepays delivery.

If you desire further information, write for Illustrated Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.



You want only the best

Cotton Gin Machinery

Ask any experienced Ginner about

Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

We would like to show you what thousands of life long customers say. Write for catalog and testimonial booklet.

Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga. Birmingham, Ala. Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee,

the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

LION COFFEE is sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages, and reaches you as pure and clean as when it left our factory.
Lion-head on every package.
Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE
WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

TRADE MARK. CRAB ORCHARD WATER

IS A CERTAIN CURE FOR

Dyspepsia
Sick Headache
Constipation...

Stimulates the Liver, cures Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Irregularities of the Bowels.

A NATURAL product, prepared by concentration; a genuine natural water.

Crab Orchard Water Co., Louisville, Ky.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO AVERY & McMILLAN,
51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—
MACHINERY

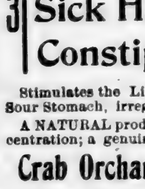
Reliable Frick Engines. Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

500 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

United States Government is spending $30,000,000 on New Naval Station, adjoining which we offer 100 Lots to first 100 purchasers at low price of $165 each. Send $5 to-day and secure best unsold lot. Balance $5 monthly. New electric railway traverses through property. $600,000 viaduct, many factories and improvements building in same neighborhood. Their completion will advance price five hundred per cent. MEXICAN GULF LAND COMPANY, 500 Hib. Bank Bldg., New Orleans, La.



Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

VINCHESTER

'NEW RIVAL" BLACK POWDER SHELLS.

It's the thoroughly modern and scientific system of loading and the use of only the best materials which make Winchester Factory Loaded "New Rival" Shells give better pattern, penetration and more uniform results generally than any other shells. The special paper and the Winchester patent corrugated head used in making "New Rival" shells give them strength to withstand reloading.

BE SURE TO GET WINCHESTER MAKE OF SHELLS.

"IT ACTS LIKE MAGIC."

THE GREAT AND SUCCESSFUL ANIMAL TONIC AND REGULATOR for Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Thirteen years in successful use. Sold by 20,000 dealers in 38 states. Saves grain, promotes life, health and vigor, makes stock raising profitable. Invaluable to Stock Owners. Natures remedy, composed of life giving roots, herbs and barks, no mineral poisons. Horses do more work. Cows give more milk. Hogs fatten quicker. Pigs grow faster. Cures and prevents disease. If your dealer does not keep it we will send prepaid by express a 10lb package of the famous MAGIC STOCK FOOD on receipt of $1.00 in stamps or currency. Safe delivery and satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Free copy of valuable book on Stock and Poultry sent on application. Poultry raising can be made pleasant and profitable by using MAGIC POULTRY FOOD. 10lb package for $1.00 express paid. Address MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors silk, wool and cotton equally well and is guaranteed to give positive results. Ask dealer or we will send post paid at 10c a package. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Ill.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM.

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev. P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Rubb; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie O. Shivers.

wm.of ahrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Eiland.

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO.
J. W. MOORE.
H. L. DAVIS.
W. O. PERRY,
Committee.

tf

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Fever. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 33, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
Register.

3-23-05 6t

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

"The Magazine That Has An Idea Back Of It."

Have you heard that Hon. Thos. E Watson, of Georgia, has begun the publication of a magazine?

You know who Mr. Watson is? He's the man who wrote "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," and "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson." He was the People's Party candidate for President last year.

First number of Tom Watson's Magazine was published Feb. 25. It is $1.00 per year. You will miss the most interesting 128-page magazine in America if you fail to subscribe. Now we will send you the magazine and THE UNION, your best county paper, for $1.50 per year for both. Don't delay with your subscriptions, but send them in at once. tf

NOTICE!

The Executive Committee of Chilton County S. C. A. is hereby called to meet at Clanton on Saturday, April 8th, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of organizing, and attending to such other business as may come before the body.

tf J. W. SORRELL, Chairman.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham, has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman, Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results. tf

SPECIAL OFFER! !

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50. tf

M. Rouvier, the new French Premier, is a dangerous man about whom to prophesy, says the London Globe. When he was a young man he left the Marseilles bank in which he was a clerk, his employer telling him that he would never get on in banking or finance. Since that famous valediction he has been five times Minister of Finance and President of one of the most successful banks in France. Not a bad record for a man who was declared to "have no head for figures."

MUST CONSENT

An Interview with a Jap of High Position, Who Expects an Indemnity.

BARON SUYEMATSU SPEAKS.

Mikado Decides on No Peace Because of Unwillingness to Skin Bear Before it is Shot.

London, England.—Baron Suyematsu, formerly Japanese minister of the interior, has written an interesting and significant article for The Outlook, under the heading, "War and Indemnity—the Japanese Claim."

The whole trend of the article is intended to show that Japan will carry on the war until Russia consents to pay indemnity. The Baron says:

"A canon of the Japanese Bushido is 'one should not unsheath the sword unless in case of absolute necessity, nor restore it to its sheath unless one is totally overcome or has secured equitable satisfaction for one's cause.' This is our ideal in internat tercourse. The sword of Japan is drawn, and the aim for which it was unsheathed has scarcely been attained. We want a peace which will secure tranquillity in the far east for at least a generation or two.

Was Caprice With Russia.

"The world should know that in the present war Japan staked her very existence, whereas with the enemy it was a mere war of caprice. Why, then, in case of defeat, should not Russia be made responsible in equitable accordance with the nature of the affair? I believe, therefore, that in case of the adversary asking for peace, the satisfaction which she will have to make to Japan should include making good the material loss of Japan; in other words, indemnity."

Baron Suyematsu says further:

"Japan has not formulated definite terms of peace, because she might be accused of skinning the bear before it is shot. We have, however, outlined our idea."

The article argues out the righteousness of Japan's position in demanding indemnity as a basic condition and controverts the idea which he says, he finds prevalent outside of Japan, that Japan is willing to make peace at any price. "Some say," the Baron continues, "that for humanity's sake an armistice should be concluded with a view to negotiating peace.

"It is all very well to talk of humanity, but no injustice must be perpetrated in the name of humanity. If a proposition arising out of the question of humanity gives more advantage to one more than another of the contending parties, it can not be justice."

Baron Suyematsu treats sarcastically the special plea that Russia should be allowed to "save her face," and compares Japan to a dwarf fighting a giant, and says:

Glad Bubble Is Pricked.

"The public at large seems to have gauged the relative value of Russia and Japan. They are glad that the large bubble which had been causing a nightmare to so many people for so long a time has been pricked. They have seen that it was no use to suppress Japan's movements by the combined force of western powers. Yet there seems for the instant in the air a sort of compassion for our adversary. This idea arising out of some psychological instability is inconsistent."

The Baron refers to the announcement of St. Petersburg early in the war that an enormous indemnity would be demanded, and that the terms would be dictated in Tokio. "We are far from assuming such an attitude," the writer says, "but we believe that justice ought to be done us. No mere sentiment shall be allowed to decide the merits of the cause."

In conclusion Baron Suyematsu says:

"Some say that Japan might be induced to forego a claim for indemnity, provided England and America gave good assurance for future peace. We appreciate, of course, the general sentiment of England and America. We are anxious to maintain the best friendship with these two countries, more particularly than other countries. We should, therefore, be very sorry if we were to be told that we should forego, on account of that friendship, any claim to what we deem just to demand."

Anniversary of Greek Independence.

Canea, Island of Crete—This being the anniversary of Greek independence revolutionists and liberals held demonstrations in different towns of the island in favor with the union with Greece.

Twenty Injured.

Kingsley, Kans.—Twenty or more passengers were injured, but none killed by a collision of the Chicago express and California limited train on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad at 10 o'clock Monday night. Both trains were eastbound. No 8, the Chicago express, was standing at the station when No 4, the limited, crashed into it at high speed.

New Railway Examination System.

Cincinnati, O.—The Queen and Crescent is putting its engine men and trainmen through severe tests in the interest of safer, better and more expeditious service. The management has quietly put into effect a system of "surprise tests," which are calculated to awaken engineers to their responsibilities.

In a circular letter addressed to engineers previous to the inauguration of the "surprise tests," the engine men were advised to follow printed rules to the letter, and not to rely on "customary practice" in cases of doubt.

The circular was headed "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Safety." The company started in on its secret tests. Engine men never knew when a red light would be turned against them or when they would be placed in a position to choose between their own discretion and the letter of printed rules.

The campaign of "surprise tests" not only included the use of semaphore signals, but whistle signals of all sorts, placing of rear-end flagmen, torpedo tests, burning fuse tests and all kinds of safety signals.

The time and places for the tests were kept secret. Engine men and trainmen did not know when a trainmaster, a road foreman, a superintendent or train rule examiner was standing behind the glare of a red light or in the shadow of a section house.

A train rule examiner is a new functionary. The Queen and Crescent has appointed one for every division. The manner in which their duties are arranged is illustrated in the case of an engineer who unwisely followed what he thought was "customary practice" instead of plainly printed rules. When this engineer failed in the surprise test he was notified to appear before the train rule examiner. The latter subjected him to a rigid examination on his knowledge of the rules.

The engineer passed a high average and the record was certified to the Superintendent. The latter looked it over, saw that the engineer could quote the rules correctly, and, therefore, was correct in assuming that the engineer's failure at the "surprise test" was entirely due to carelessness.

It became the duty of the Superintendent to decide what disciplinary measures were necessary.

Since the "surprise tests" were inaugurated the discipline of the engine men has greatly improved. General Manager W. A. Garrett said yesterday he was much gratified by results.

In order to ineffaceably impress upon every engineer the fact that speed is not the first consideration the management of the company has given orders that the words "Safety Before Speed" shall be stenciled in bright letters in the cab of every locomotive where the eyes of the engineer will constantly see them.

A feature of the new system is placing every engineer on record as to his views. When the original circulars were sent out, engineers were asked to write their views as to whether they thought that the record of a certain Chicago line could be equaled. This record showed 590 "surprise tests" in one month without a single failure on the part of the engine men subjected to the sudden surprises. In every case the Q. and C. engine men expressed the belief that they could reach that record, and now the company is holding them to this view.

An official of the company said yesterday that the percentage of failures in the last month's tests was very small and that the system of checking the men up unexpectedly and under conditions which arise daily was having a beneficial effect.

Young Woman Receives Hero Medal.

Des Moines, Ia.—For her heroism in saving the life of a companion skater from drowning last winter, Miss Lavina Steele, assistant state librarian, is in receipt of a Carnegie medal for her brave rescue. George Hill, a young man with whom Miss Steele was skating, broke through the ice and was immersed in ten or twelve feet of freezing water. After a desperate struggle in which her own life was in peril Miss Steel dragged him from his position and saved his life.

Barn Fired by Incendiary.

Hamilton, Ala.—Some incendiary set fire to the barn of George Palmer, who lives eight miles north of Hamilton, and burned two horses, 200 bushels of corn and six bales of cotton. When Palmer discovered the fire it was impossible to save any of the contents of the barn. Four of the six bales of cotton belonged to a Mr. Harper, the father-in-law of Palmer.

Negro Hanged in Arkansas.

Texarkana, Ark.—Elias Powell, colored, was hanged here for the murder of J. M. Gardner, a white farmer, five years ago. The execution was witnessed by twenty-five, the maximum limit under the Arkansas law.

L. and N. Ditched Near Lynnville.

Decatur, Ala.—Louisville and Nashville passenger train No. 1, southbound, was wrecked near Lynnville, Tenn., fifty-nine miles north of here at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. The engine, baggage, mail and express cars were ditched. No one is reported hurt, except the mail agent. He is not seriously injured.

Hydrogen was discovered by Henry Cavendish at the age of 53.

JAPS AGAIN PRESS NORTH

After Several Sharp Skirmishes Oyama Drives Russians On.

LOSSES HAVE BEEN HEAVY

Czar's Cavalry Has Been Engaged in the Defense—Japanese Forming a Chain of Supply Stations in Their Rear—Togo Reported—Riots in Baltic Provinces.

Gunshu Pass, Manchuria.—Rapidly increasing activity by the Japanese against points on the road to Kirin betrayed a movement in force in that direction on the part of at least one of Marshal Oyama's armies. The column using Kaiyuan as a base was operating vigorously over a long stretch of the military road northeast of that place, and has captured several points of minor but undoubted importance in the past few days. A half brigade of infantry with two squadrons of dragoons attacked the Russian garrison twenty-six miles northeast of Kaiyuan, in Aishenkao, and after a sharp fight, in which the losses on both sides were heavy in proportion to the numbers of troops engaged, the Japs drove the Russians northward.

Hot pursuit of the retiring Russians was made by the Japanese cavalry, but it ceased when the retreating forces had drawn six miles from Aishenkao. The dragoons retired on their infantry and the Japs hastened to fortify the position. It was evident Marshal Oyama intended establishing a chain of fortifications along the Kirin road, for he has pursued the same policy with every town and village northeast of Kaiyuan taken recently. The successful turning movement against the Russian left in the battle of Mienhuachieh at night gave the Mikado's troops a decided advantage in position. It appeared impracticable at this stage of the marshal's general move for General Linevitch to check him to any valuable extent.

There seemed to be little doubt Oyama had dispatched a cavalry column with flying artillery for a rapid movement north through Manchuria toward Tsitsihar. It was evident, too, the Marshal was massing large bodies of his troops for an important move, and it was the belief of military experts here that he intended to force the fighting on a much larger scale than at present in the immediate future. He has hampered the Russian commander terribly by the destruction of stores at Hussital, Kaiyuan and Changtu, as well as at other places, and the Czar's soldiers have been suffering keenly from shortage of provisions and forage.

General Linevitch has been relying largely largely on his Cossack cavalry and horse batteries for defense of the army from the attacks of Japanese raiders. Mistchenko's Cossacks have been the most active command in the Russian army, and their losses of late have been severe. They engaged in a brisk skirmish with the advance guard of the Japanese centre, retiring with several killed and many wounded after drawing the enemy's heavier field artillery fire.

Togo's Fleet Off Mindanao.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Daily News from Batavia, Java, says: "Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted south of the island of Mindanao, the southernmost of the Philippine group."

Riots in Baltic Provinces.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Reports of peasant uprisings in the Baltic provinces, especially in Lithuania and Courland, continue to be extremely disquieting. At Werra, where a regiment of Cossacks fired on a mob which had complete possession of the town, the rioters were dispersed, but the latter broke up into smaller bands, which terrorized the neighboring land owners. Similar incidents occurred at other places. The smaller bands drive off cattle, burn barns and fodder and help themselves to grain and provisions. Dispatches from dozens of places tell of panic produced by the depredations of roving bands of peasants.

FROM FACTORY TO PALACE.

J. G. Phelps Stokes to Take Poor Jewish Girl as Bride.

New York City.—The engagement of J. G. Phelps Stokes, member of an old and very wealthy New York family, to Miss Rose Harriet Pastor, a young Jewess, who until two weeks ago was a special writer on the Jewish Daily News, and prior to that worked in a Cleveland cigar factory, has been announced. The date for the wedding has not been definitely settled, but the event will take place some time in July.

On July 13, 1902, Miss Pastor was assigned by the city editor of the Jewish Daily News to interview Mr. Stokes, who was then as now a resident worker in the University Settlement in Rivington street.

Miss Pastor is twenty-five years old. She was born at Augustove, Russia. When twelve years of age she came to America with her parents and drifted to Cleveland, Ohio. It was after years of hardship and by dint of hard work she finally obtained a position on the journal referred to.

Her forthcoming marriage has created a great stir among her friends and the "Fifth Avenue" society circles.

Killed by Earthquake.

Four hundred Indian soldiers were killed by the earthquake at Dharmsala, India.

Czar Not at Review.

Contrary to his usual custom, the Czar failed to review the parade of the Horse Guards on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception in St. Petersburg, Russia, but extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to prevent an outbreak.

President at San Antonio.

President Roosevelt arrived at San Antonio, Texas, to attend the Rough Riders' reunion, after speaking at Austin, Waco and other places in the State.

RENEWS CONTROVERSY

Rev. Dr. Gladden Again Attacks Rockefeller Methods.

Talks of Monte Carlo and Lotteries—S. C. T. Dodd, Solicitor For Standard Oil, Replies.

Boston, Mass.—The Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, Ohio, has broken forth again in violent invective against the acceptance of the $100,000 Rockefeller gift, which has already been partly spent by the American Board of Foreign Missions. In an article which will appear in the current number of the Congregationalist over his signature Dr. Gladden prints extracts from letters he had received. The article says:

"The Prince of Monte Carlo has never been convicted of crime, and is said to be a cultivated, benevolent gentleman. Would they (the members of the American board prudential committee) accept $100,000 from him for foreign missions, or from the Louisiana Lottery in the days of its prime, when it fleeced its victims under sanction of the State?

"No public utterance of mine has ever brought me a tithe of the responses which have been pouring in on me for the last week. The voices are at least twenty to one in support of the position I have taken. I must beg the brethren who disagree with me to understand that they are dealing with a force whose strength they cannot afford to despise.

"There are those who seem to say that all money, no matter how wickedly obtained, not only may, but must be accepted when offered in aid of religion or charity. It would seem, then, that if, standing in my church door, I see a man knocked down and robbed in the street and the footpad brings me part of the money I must take it. It will go just as far in 'doing good' as any other money and I have no right to refuse it."

Standard Oil Attorney Replies.

New York City.—S. C. T. Dodd, chief solicitor of the Standard Oil Company, made a statement with reference to the recent discussion as to the acceptance of a gift of $100,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller for missionary work. Mr. Dodd said that the accusation that Mr. Rockefeller made his money dishonestly "if false, is vile, and being made by ministers in the pretended interest of morality, is doubly vile."

Mr. Dodd said also that the Standard Oil Company does not own a share of stock in a railroad company, does not control any railroad company, and that since the enactment of the Interstate Commerce law, has not received lower rates than other shippers by rebates, arrangements, devices or plans of any character.

With reference to gas and copper enterprises Mr. Dodd says that neither the Standard Oil Company nor Mr. Rockefeller has any connection or interest, directly or indirectly, with those companies or with their organization.

ROOSEVELT AT SAN ANTONIO.

Greets His Rough Riders, Making Speech at Fair Grounds.

San Antonio, Texas.—At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, became Colonel Teddy Roosevelt, the idolized commander of the First United States Volunteer Cavalry, better known as the Rough Riders, and "hail fellow well met," with his old comrades at the fair grounds.

At 9.30 o'clock in the morning a Citizens' Committee of San Antonio met President Roosevelt and his party at his private car, in which he had enjoyed a good night's rest, and escorted him to Fort Sam Houston, where he reviewed the National troops. Returning to the city the President was driven to the speakers' stand, directly before the battle-scarred Alamo, where he delivered an address. Immediately afterward he joined his comrades at the fair grounds, the original mustering-in place of the regiment.

The city was a blaze of bunting and flags, and even the sombre old Alamo, the shrine of Texas, had not escaped, but was gayly festooned.

Rough Riders were everywhere and the city was theirs. All days the railroads poured thousands into the city, and the reception accorded the President was boundless in its enthusiasm.

TAFT HEAD OF GOVERNMENT.

Has Taken Over the Foreign Affairs of the Nation.

Washington, D. C. — The unusual sight was witnessed of foreign diplomats going to the War Department instead of to the State Department to conduct business. Secretary of War Taft entered upon his duties as head of the Nation's foreign affairs as soon as the President went away, although Mr. Loomis retains the title of Acting Secretary of State.

Mr. Taft is now at the head of the Government, so far as Washington is concerned. His most important conference in his capacity as head of the State Department was with Minister Takahira, of Japan. Mr. Takahira talked to Secretary Taft of the general situation in the East and of the peace outlook, but not with the idea of making any proposals or requests. His visit, it was understood, was for the purpose of acquainting Mr. Taft with the situation as Japan views it, and of getting in touch with the Secretary.

BALLOON CROSSES CHANNEL.

Jacques Faure Reaches Calais From Folkestone in Four Hours.

Calais, France.—Jacques Faure's balloon, which left Folkestone, England, at 11 p. m., made a successful passage of the Channel, landing near Calais at 3 o'clock the next morning.

The balloon encountered a severe storm, but was not injured, and its three occupants were in good health and spirits when they landed.

Thorsby Business Directory

Commercial Club OF THORSBY

DEFINITE and RELIABLE information furnished to persons who desire to locate in the South

A. M. Johnson
Groceries and Delicatessen

J. J. STANLEY
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBERRY
General Merchandise

G. W. Freeman
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks, Tobaccos and Cigars.

Thorsby Wine Co.
Lofthus & Bromberg, Props.

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Toilet Articles.
LICENSED PHARMACIST

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jeweler

E. H. Adams
General Merchandise
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSBY
General Merchandise

J. R. PARNELL
General Merchandise.

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart
Millinery and Notions

The Thorsby Inn
G. C. Michelson, Prop.
Good Beds and Meals.

A Langville & Son
BLACKSMITHS and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in WAGONS and BUGGIES

C. L. Forsman
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

VOL. II.

ROOSEVELT SHOOTS BEAR

Six Hundred Pound Bruin the First Day.

NO FOOLHARDY RISKS

Executive Arrives at New Castle, Makes Speech and Immediately Starts For Camp Twenty Miles Away Protest Against Caged Animals Be-Hunted.

New Castle, Col.—President Roosevelt with his usual luck, killed his bear before he got to his camp the first day. The Presidential party went to the hunting grounds, and after fifteen miles out the dogs struck a trail and the President insisted on following after bruin.

Within a half hour the dogs had overtaken the bear. The President dismounted and, after waiting in order to avoid hitting the dogs, pumped several shots into the badly fagged beast, killing him.

It was a cinnamon bear, weighing about 600 pounds. Goff skinned the animal and the party finally succeeded in reaching camp about five o'clock in the evening. The day was sunshiny and pleasant.

A parade had been planned at New Castle, but it did not take place. It had been arranged to form a procession led by a miners' brass band, a wild bear and the President's party in the rear. This pageant was to march through the village street and into the hills, where the bear was to be turned loose and given a start of several minutes.

The New State Humane Society broke up these plans on the ground that the bear should be allowed to return to the village and harm no one, as it had been caged so long that it was vicious. After the Humane Society had interfered the captors of the bear tried to sell it to the President's guides, but they said they would rather keep their game wild, as domesticated animals had no attractions for them.

Soon after the party started from New Castle for an easy canter over the hills to the permanent camp, which is situated on East Divide Creek, on Charles Goff's ranch, twenty-three miles southwest of New Castle. There is about a foot of snow in that region, but bear tracks were seen there.

Before starting the President announced that he was not going to struggle hand to hand with a grizzly bear or wrestle any mountain lions with his hands. He said he did not expect to get a large amount of game, and would feel satisfied if he should get a bear during the whole hunt. His new hunting rifle was exhibited with much pride as a protection he would confidently keep between himself and danger.

The President and his hunting party left New Castle at ten minutes to 9 o'clock in the morning and waited more than two hours for an official train that had been sent to Redstone. It had been intended that the Special Government should be established while the President was away in the mountains hunting bear and game.

The President shook hands with most of the 400 citizens of New Castle after he had been introduced by Mayor Frank H. Norris.

The party was photographed, the President made a brief address, shook hands with the train crew and looked over the specially decorated locomotive that drew his train from Colorado Springs.

The run to New Castle was pleasant. Many bonfires lighted the way during the night and inhabitants of the towns along the railroad stayed up until far into the morning to cheer the President as he passed. Getting up early, the hunting and breakfast of fresh mountain trout, while all viewed from the car windows the magnificent scenery along the Colorado Midland Railroad.

Just Basalt the first car of the special train hit a rock that had slid down to the edge of the track. The only damage done was the knocking off a cap of the rear truck of the baggage car.

When the train arrived in New Castle the President, dressed in his shooting suit of heavy tan duck, greeted the people from the rear platform. He was cheered wildly. After a speech of welcome and conventionalities had been observed the President gave personal supervision to his hunting outfit, carefully sheathed his knife and felt its sharp edge, unlimbered his gun and saw that it was in fine working order and climbed over the horse that had been saddled for his ride to camp. The horse is white, weighing about eleven hundred pounds, and is about fourteen and one-half hands high. It is said to be one of the surest-footed mountain horses in Colorado, but it is not noted for speed.

Frank Goff, Jake Borah and Brick Pomeroy, guides in mountain costumes, assisted themselves in arranging for the hunt. In addition to the President's personal party, which was composed of himself, Dr. Alexander Lambert, of New York, and P. B. Stewart, of Colorado Springs, ten men rode to the hunting camp. Five men were already at the camp with everything ready for the comfort of the party.

Czar Refuses Petition.

Emperor at his palace in Tsarskoe-Selo refused the Russian people a petition for reforms in the government, but promised to take up the matter when the state of the country permitted.

people
ulted ooled ome world story which h pro
Mon
P. Pond
Supreme Purpose
Ga.
Ark.
Ala.
Phillips Bridge
The Way to Freedom.
Sacrifice.
The candle is consumed by flame, but its exp
to the world. So is he who self on the altar of noble and fidelity.—United Presbyterian.

RU-NA MEASURES UP TO THE STANDARD.

UNCLE SAM "A High Standard is Required of Any Catarrh Remedy That Has Been Endorsed by so Many Trustworthy and Prominent People."

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

...all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad ...ed bowels, tongue coat, headache, indigestion, pimples, ...ll waste and dizziness. When your bowels don't move ...ation kills more people than all other diseases together. It ...ours of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking ...Cascarets and stay well until you get your bowels ...work. Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or ...your money back. 10 C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and ...booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 502

...CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE
...NOMY BLUE
...Bluing.

...O POSITION
...TUITION AFTER
...TION IS SECURED
...DRAUGHON'S
...TICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
...Nashville, Atlanta, Little Rock
...COURSE BY MAIL FREE

Potash

...SEWING MA...
...Standard Goods
...Free Catal. sent to
...BUTLER
...CO., 913 Locust
...LOUIS, MO.

...OS CURE FOR...
...Use
...ONSUMPTION

The Astor Estate.

In 1850 John Jacob Astor was the ...man in New York who was worth ... Now the entire Astor es... is certainly approaching the billion ... mark.

BABY ONE SOLID SORE

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Forty Boils on Head—Spent $100 on Doctors—Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura For $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, ...and it completely covered her ... She had 7 sores, having ... on her head at one time, and ... on her body. Then her skin started ... up and was so bad she could ... shut her eyes to sleep. One month's ... with Cuticura Soap and Oint... made a complete cure. Doctors and ... bills had cost over $100, with baby ... worse. Then we spent less than ... Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) ... H. Tucker, Jr., 235 Greenfield ... Milwaukee, Wis."

...large oil wells have been discov... in the northern part of Roumania. ... petroleum is now being exported ... many parts of Europe, where it ... to take place of American and Rus... petroleum.

Many Own Land.

In Denmark there are 224,000 rural ...owners. More than half have not ... than one acre; 96,000 have less ... four acres, and only 2,000 have ... The small landowners mainly ... themselves with the egg and ... industry.

South Africa exports about $26,000,... worth of diamonds to London ... year.

THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of Colorado Springs Began to Fear the Worst—Doan's Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of 428 St. Vrain Street, Colorado Springs, Col., President of the Glen Eyrie Club, writes:

"I suffered for three years with severe backache. The doctors told me my kidneys were affected and prescribed medicines for me, but I found that it was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. I have now enjoyed the best of health for more than four months, and words can but poorly express my gratitude."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WIT and HUMOR of THE DAY

Little Ferdie.

There once was a lad the named Ferdie,
So talkative, earnest and wordy,
Each scolding he got
Was as if it were not
Of no scolding a sy'able heard he.
—New York Mail.

The Third Floor.

Lady (in department store)—"Have you some canned salmon?"

Clerk—"Yes, ma'am, but the canned goods are on the third floor."—Cornell Widow.

Plumage Birds.

Mr. Wise—"What did you do at your Audubon Club today?"

Mrs. Wise—"We passed a resolution condemning cuckoo clocks."—San Francisco Call.

Suggesting a Clew.

Tex. Ingot (at waifs' mission)—"Who wrote the Epistle to the Romans?"

Swipsey de Bootblack—"Wasn't dere no name signed to it, ma'am?"—Chicago Tribune.

At the Concert.

Augusta—"Doesn't she sing beautifully?"

Grace—"Sings well enough, but see how her dress hangs! Isn't it sight?"—Boston Transcript.

Couldn't Lose It.

Hix—"How did that old millionaire make his money?"

Dix—"He invented a suspender buckle that turned into a night latch key."—Detroit Free Press.

The Beginning of Knowledge.

"You really don't believe, then, that a man is ever too old to learn?"

"Certainly not. I've known men to get married at the age of seventy-five or more."—Philadelphia Press.

The Transmitter.

Lillian—"Wasn't it sweet of your Lusband to send you a kiss by wire?"

Mabelle—"I haven't received it yet. I am suspicious that the telegraph operator was a woman."—Detroit Free Press.

All Things Come.

"You look very unhappy for a time to find that fellow's tooth," said the assistant.

"Yes," answered the dentist, grimly, "he married the girl I loved."—Detroit Tribune.

A Hot One.

Judge Knox (in the courtroom)—"I've lost my hat."

Attorney—"That's nothing. I lost a suit here yesterday."—New York Press.

Removed the Cause.

Miss Black—"You weren't looking at all well when I saw you the other day; are you better now?"

Mrs. Black—"Yes, the dressmaker 'phoned that the bill she sent me the other day was meant for somebody else."—Detroit Free Press.

As They Heard Him.

D'Auber—"I was certainly tickled at what Critick said about me."

Knox—"Why, what was that?"

D'Auber—"You heard him. He said I was a deft colorist."

Knox—"I understood him to say 'daft.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Paying For Gas.

"What is a retainer, pop?"

"A retainer, my son, is the money people pay us lawyers before we do any work."

"Oh, I see. It's like those pay gas meters. The people have to pay the money before they get any gas!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Shines When Abroad.

Deacon Jones—"You must be very happy in your family since your husband became converted. I never saw a more zealous convert; he actually makes a business of religion."

Mrs. Grimes—"Yes, I suppose that is the reason we don't see much change in him at the house. He never was a man to bring his business home."—Boston Transcript.

The Penalty of Greatness.

"Yes," said the railroad president, "I suppose I am a bigger man than the President of the United States, and am probably looked up to on a par with the King of England or the Emperor Germany, but being great has its penalty."

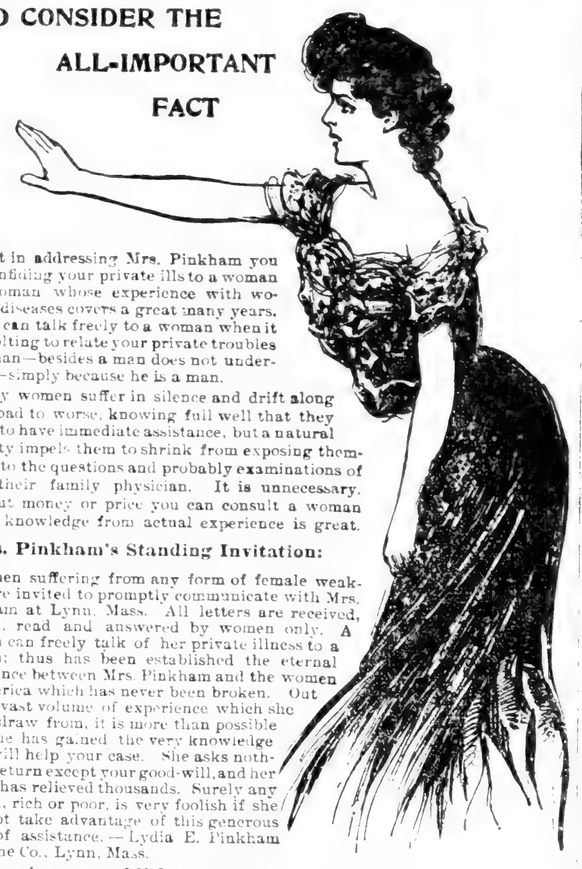
"What particular penalties do you refer to?" he was asked.

"Well, I just had a sample of them. As I was about to enter the office I slipped and dropped my cane. A man sprang forward and picked it up and restored it, and when I bowed my thanks he stepped back and said:

"'That's all right as far as it goes, Mr. President, but, you see, I am looking for a deadhead pass to San Francisco!'"—Chicago News.

STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee,

the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

LION COFFEE is sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages, and reaches you as pure and clean as when it left our factory.
Lion-head on every package.
Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE
WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

WINCHESTER

'NEW RIVAL" BLACK POWDER SHELLS.

It's the thoroughly modern and scientific system of loading and the use of only the best materials which make Winchester Factory Loaded "New Rival" Shells give better pattern, penetration and more uniform results generally than any other shells. The special paper and the Winchester patent corrugated head used in making "New Rival" shells give them strength to withstand reloading.

BE SURE TO GET WINCHESTER MAKE OF SHELLS.

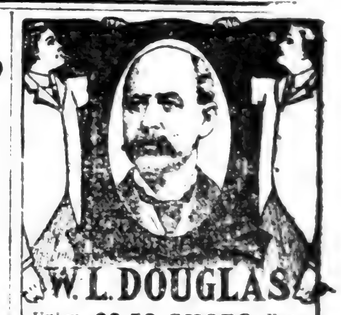
"IT ACTS LIKE MAGIC."

THE GREAT AND SUCCESSFUL ANIMAL TONIC AND REGULATOR for Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Thirteen years in successful use. Sold by 20 000 dealers in 33 states. Saves grain, promotes life, health and vigor, makes stock raising profitable. Invaluable to Stock Owners. Natures remedy, composed of life giving roots, herbs and barks, no mineral poisons. Horses do more work. Cows give more milk. Hogs fatten quicker. Pigs grow faster. Cures and prevents disease. If your dealer does not keep it we will send prepaid by express a 10lb package of the famous MAGIC STOCK FOOD on receipt of $1.00 in stamps or currency. Safe delivery and satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Free copy of valuable book on Stock and Poultry sent on application. Poultry raising can be made pleasant and profitable by using MAGIC POULTRY FOOD. 10lb package for $1.00 express paid. Address MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors silk, wool and cotton equally well and is guaranteed to give perfect results. Ask dealer or we will send post paid at 10c a package. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Ill.



W. L. DOUGLAS

Union Made $3.50 SHOES For Men.

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more Men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. $10,000 REWARD to any one who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost from $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

EQUAL $5.00 SHOES.

...for Style
...for Comfort
...for Service
...for Fit
...for Wear
...for Value
...for Best Leather

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

...for Style
...for Comfort
...for Fit
...for Wear

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear Brassy.

...for Style
...for Comfort
...for Fit
...for Wear

If your dealer cannot supply you, write for Illustrated Catalog.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

Cotton Gin Machinery

...Cotton Seed Oil Mill Machinery

Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

We would like to show you what thousands of our long customers say. Write for catalog and to-date special booklet.

Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga.
Birmingham, Ala.
Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

TRADE MARK. CRAB ORCHARD WATER

IS A CERTAIN CURE FOR

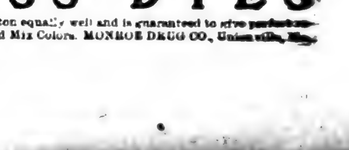
3 Dyspepsia
Sick Headache
Constipation... 3

Stimulates the Liver, cures Bilious... Sour Stomach, irregularities of the Bowels. A NATURAL product, prepared by concentration; a genuine natural water.

Crab Orchard Water Co.,
Louisville, Ky.

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO
AVERY & McMILLAN,
51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.
—ALL KINDS OF—
MACHINERY
Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.



BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.
Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

500 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

United States Government is spending $20,000,000 on New Naval Station, adjoining which we offer 10c Lots to first buyers at low price of $10 each. Send $5 to-day and secure best unsold lot. Balance $5 monthly. New electric railway building through property. $8,000 viaduct, many factories and improvements building in same neighborhood. Their completion will advance prices five hundred per cent. MEXICAN GULF LAND COMPANY, 806 Hibernia Bank Bldg., New Orleans, La.

Dropsy CURED Given Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 20 to 40 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM.

To Be Held at Thorsby, April 14-15, 1905.

FRIDAY.

10 a. m.—Devotional exercises, Rev P. G. Maness

10:30 a. m.—Welcome address, J. L. Ruffin; response, V. J. Gragg.

11 a. m.—Address to teachers, Robert Jones.

11:30 a. m.—To what extent should the Bible be taught in the public schools? E. Y. McMorries, Miss Nannie Q. Shivers.

wffl.of shrdlu un nn

1:30 p. m.—The need of better school buildings, A. E. Davis.

2:30 p. m.—The law in regard to public schools and how to enforce it, B. R. Richardson, J. N. Goss.

3:30 p. m.—The value of pedagogy to the teacher, P. G. Maness, C. J. Eiland

SATURDAY.

9:00 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—The results of local taxation, Miss Celestra Dunlap, W. B. Speer.

10:30—The teachers' work, Robert Sessions, Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

11:00 a. m.—Criticisms of the teacher, J. U. Crumpton, J. H. Anderson.

12 noon—Song and adjournment.

R. A. RASCO.
J. W. MOORE.
H. L. DAVIS.
W. O. PERRY,
tf Committee.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken and cures Constipation, Heart-Burn Vertigo Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Fever. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera Ala tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H E. No. 25461, for the S½ of S½ of S½ Section 33, Tp. 21 S of R 16 E

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. L. Dramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
3-23-05 6t Register.

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

"The Magazine That Has An Idea Back Of It."

Have you heard that Hon. Thos. E Watson, of Georgia, has begun the publication of a magazine?

You know who Mr. Watson is? He's the man who wrote "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," and "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson." He was the People's Party candidate for President last year.

First number of Tom Watson's Magazine was published Feb. 25. It is $1.00 per year. You will miss the most interesting 128-page magazine in America if you fail to subscribe. Now we will send you the magazine and THE UNION, your best county paper, for $1.50 per year for both. Don't delay with your subscriptions, but send them in at once. tf

NOTICE!

The Executive Committee of Chilton County S. C. A. is hereby called to meet at Clanton on Saturday, April 8th, at 10 a. m. for the purpose of organizing, and attending to such other business as may come before the body.

tf J. W. SORRELL, Chairman.

NEW MILLINERY.

Mrs. M. E. Wishart, of Birmingham has opened a millinery store at Thorsby and is prepared to do the millinery business of this part of our county. This lady has occupied a very responsible position in Loveman Joseph & Loeb's millinery department for five years, and is a complete mistress of styles and workmanship. Pay her a call and you will be pleased, as her taste, experience and goods will achieve the most satisfactory results.

tf

SPECIAL OFFER! !

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

M. Rouvier, the new French Premier, is a dangerous man about whom to prophesy, says the London Globe. When he was a young man he left the Marseilles bank in which he was a clerk, his employer telling him that he would never get on in banking or finance. Since that famous valedictionhe has been five times Minister of Finance and President of one of the most successful banks in France. Not a bad record for a man who was declared to "have no head for figures."

MUST CONSENT

An Interview with a Jap of High Position. Who Expects an Indemnity.

BARON SUYEMATSU SPEAKS.

Mikado Decides on No Peace Because of Unwillingness to Skin Bear Before it is Shot.

London, England.—Baron Suyematsu, formerly Japanese minister of the interior, has written an interesting and significant article for The Outlook, under the heading, "War and Indemnity—the Japanese Claim."

The whole trend of the article is intended to show that Japan will carry on the war until Russia consents to pay indemnity. The Baron says:

"A canon of the Japanese Bushido is 'one should not unsheath the sword unless in case of absolute necessity, nor restore it to its sheath unless one is totally overcome or has secured equitable satisfaction for one's cause.' This is our ideal in internal tercourse. The sword of Japan is drawn, and the aim for which it was unsheathed has scarcely been attained. We want a peace which will secure tranquillity in the far east for at least a generation or two.

Was Caprice With Russia.

"The world should know that in the present war Japan staked her very existence, whereas with the enemy it was a mere war of caprice. Why, then, in case of defeat, should not Russia be made responsible in equitable accordance with the nature of the affair? I believe, therefore, that in case of the adversary asking for peace, the satisfaction which she will have to make to Japan should include making good the material loss of Japan; in other words, indemnity."

Baron Suyematsu says further:

"Japan has not formulated definite terms of peace, because she might be accused of skinning the bear before it is shot. We have, however, outlined our ideas."

The article argues out the righteousness of Japan's position in demanding indemnity as a basic condition and controverts the idea which he says, he finds prevalent outside of Japan, that Japan is willing to make peace at any price. "Some say," the Baron continues, "that for humanity's sake an armistice should be concluded with a view to negotiating peace.

"It is all very well to talk of humanity, but no injustice must be perpetrated in the name of humanity. If a proposition arising out of the question of humanity gives more advantage to one more than another of the contending parties, it can not be justice."

Baron Suyematsu treats sarcastically the special plea that Russia should be allowed to "save her face," and compares Japan to a dwarf fighting a giant, and says:

Glad Bubble Is Pricked.

"The public at large seems to have gauged the relative value of Russia and Japan. They are glad that the large bubble which had been causing a nightmare to so many people for so long a time has been pricked. They have seen that it was no use to suppress Japan's movements by the combined force of western powers. Yet there seems for the instant in the air a sort of compassion for our adversary. This idea arising out of some psychological instability is inconsistent."

The Baron refers to the announcement of St. Petersburg early in the war that an enormous indemnity would be demanded, and that the terms would be dictated in Tokio. "We are far from assuming such an attitude," the writer says, "but we believe that justice ought to be done us. No mere sentiment shall be allowed to decide the merits of the cause."

In conclusion Baron Suyematsu says:

"Some say that Japan might be induced to forego a claim for indemnity, provided England and America gave good assurance for future peace. We appreciate, of course, the general sentiment of England and America. We are anxious to maintain the best friendship with these two countries, more particularly than other countries. We should, therefore, be very sorry if we were to be told that we should forego, on account of that friendship, any claim to what we deem just to demand."

Anniversary of Greek Independence.

Canea, Island of Crete—This being the anniversary of Greek independence revolutionists and liberals held demonstrations in different towns of the island in favor with the union with Greece

Twenty Injured.

Kingsley, Kans.—Twenty or more passengers were injured, but none killed by a collision of the Chicago express and California limited train on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad at 10 o'clock Monday night. Both trains were eastbound. No 8, the Chicago express, was standing at the station when No 4, the limited, crashed into it at high speed.

New Railway Examination System.

Cincinnati, O.—The Queen and Crescent is putting its engine men and trainmen through severe tests in the interest of safer, better and more expeditious service. The management has quietly put into effect a system of "surprise tests," which are calculated to awaken engineers to their responsibilities.

In a circular letter addressed to engineers previous to the inauguration of the "surprise tests," the engine men were advised to follow printed rules to the letter, and not to rely on "customary practice" in cases of doubt.

The circular was headed "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Safety." The company started in on its secret tests. Engine men never knew when a red light would be turned against them or when they would be placed in a position to choose between their own discretion and the letter of printed rules.

The campaign of "surprise tests" not only included the use of semaphore signals, but whistle signals of all sorts, placing of rear-end flagmen, torpedo tests, burning fuse tests and all kinds of safety signals.

The time and places for the tests were kept secret. Engine men and trainmen did not know when a trainmaster, a road foreman, a superintendent or train rule examiner was standing behind the glare of a red light or in the shadow of a section house.

A train rule examiner is a new functionary. The Queen and Crescent has appointed one for every division. The manner in which their duties are arranged is illustrated in the case of an engineer who unwisely followed what he thought was "customary practice" instead of plainly printed rules. When this engineer failed in the surprise test he was notified to appear before the train rule examiner. The latter subjected him to a rigid examination on his knowledge of the rules.

The engineer passed a high average and the record was certified to the Superintendent. The latter looked it over, saw that the engineer could quote the rules correctly, and, therefore, was correct in assuming that the engineer's failure at the "surprise test" was entirely due to carelessness.

It became the duty of the Superintendent to decide what disciplinary measures were necessary.

Since the "surprise tests" were inaugurated the discipline of the engine men has greatly improved. General Manager W. A. Garrett said yesterday he was much gratified by results.

In order to ineffaceably impress upon every engineer the fact that speed is not the first consideration the management of the company has given orders that the words "Safety Before Speed" shall be stenciled in bright letters in the cab of every locomotive where the eyes of the engineer will constantly see them.

A feature of the new system is placing every engineer on record as to his views. When the original circulars were sent out, engineers were asked to write their views as to whether they thought that the record of a certain Chicago line could be equaled. This record showed 590 "surprise tests" in one month without a single failure on the part of the engine men subjected to the sudden surprises. In every case the Q. and C. engine men expressed the belief that they could reach that record, and now the company is holding them to this view.

An official of the company said yesterday that the percentage of failures in the last month's tests was very small and that the system of checking the men up unexpectedly and under conditions which arise daily was having a beneficial effect.

Young Woman Receives Hero Medal.

Des Moines, Ia.—For her heroism in saving the life of a companion skater from drowning last winter, Miss Lavina Steele, assistant state librarian, is in receipt of a Carnegie medal for her brave rescue. George Hill, a young man with whom Miss Steele was skating, broke through the ice and was immersed in ten or twelve feet of freezing water. After a desperate struggle in which her own life was in peril Miss Steel dragged him from his position and saved his life.

Barn Fired by Incendiary.

Hamilton, Ala.—Some incendiary set fire to the barn of George Palmer, who lives eight miles north of Hamilton, and burned two horses, 200 bushels of corn and six bales of cotton. When Palmer discovered the fire it was impossible to save any of the contents of the barn. Four of the six bales of cotton belonged to a Mr. Harper, the father-in-law of Palmer.

Negro Hanged in Arkansas.

Texarkana, Ark.—Elias Powell, colored, was hanged here for the murder of J. M. Gardner, a white farmer, five years ago. The execution was witnessed by twenty-five, the maximum limit under the Arkansas law.

L. and N. Ditched Near Lynnville.

Decatur, Ala.—Louisville and Nashville passenger train No. 1, southbound, was wrecked near Lynnville, Tenn., fifty-nine miles north of here at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. The engine, baggage, mail and express cars were ditched. No one is reported hurt, except the mail agent. He is not seriously injured.

Hydrogen was discovered by Henry Cavendish at the age of 53.

JAPS AGAIN PRESS NORTH

After Several Sharp Skirmishes Oyama Drives Russians On.

LOSSES HAVE BEEN HEAVY

Czar's Cavalry Has Been Engaged in the Defense—Japanese Forming a Chain of Supply Stations in Their Rear—Togo Reported—Riots in Baltic Provinces.

Gunshu Pass, Manchuria.—Rapidly increasing activity by the Japanese against points on the road to Kirin betrayed a movement in force in that direction on the part of at least one of Marshal Oyama's armies. The column using Kaiyuan as a base was operating vigorously over a long stretch of the military road northeast of that place, and has captured several points of minor but undoubted importance in the past few days. A half brigade of infantry with two squadrons of dragoons attacked the Russian garrison twenty-six miles northeast of Kaiyuan, in Aishenkao, and after a sharp fight, in which the losses on both sides were heavy in proportion to the numbers of troops engaged, the Japs drove the Russians northward.

Hot pursuit of the retiring Russians was made by the Japanese cavalry, but it ceased when the retreating forces had drawn six miles from Aishenkao. The dragoons retired on their infantry and the Japs hastened to fortify the position. It was evident Marshal Oyama intended establishing a chain of fortifications along the Kirin road, for he has pursued the same policy with every town and village northeast of Kaiyuan taken recently. The successful turning movement against the Russian left in the battle of Mienhuachieh at night gave the Mikado's troops a decided advantage in position. It appeared impracticable at this stage of the marshal's general move for General Linevitch to check him to any valuable extent.

There seemed to be little doubt Oyama had dispatched a cavalry column with flying artillery for a rapid movement north through Manchuria toward Tsitsihar. It was evident, too, the Marshal was massing large bodies of his troops for an important move, and it was the belief of military experts here that he intended to force the fighting on a much larger scale than at present in the immediate future. He has hampered the Russian commander terribly by the destruction of stores at Hussitai, Kaiyuan and Changtu, as well as at other places, and the Czar's soldiers have been suffering keenly from shortage of provisions and forage.

General Linevitch has been relying largely largely on his Cossack cavalry and horse batteries for defense of the army from the attacks of Japanese raiders. Mistchenko's Cossacks have been the most active command in the Russian army, and their losses of late have been severe. They engaged in a brisk skirmish with the advance guard of the Japanese centre, retiring with several killed and many wounded after drawing the enemy's heavier field artillery fire.

Togo's Fleet Off Mindanao.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Daily News from Batavia, Java, says: "Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted south of the island of Mindanao, the southernmost of the Philippine group."

Riots in Baltic Provinces.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Reports of peasant uprisings in the Baltic provinces, especially in Lithuania and Courland, continue to be extremely disquieting. At Werra, where a regiment of Cossacks fired on a mob which had complete possession of the town, the rioters were dispersed, but the latter broke up into smaller bands, which terrorized the neighboring land owners. Similar incidents occurred at other places. The smaller bands drive off cattle, burn barns and fodder and help themselves to grain and provisions. Dispatches from dozens of places tell of panic produced by the depredations of roving bands of peasants.

FROM FACTORY TO PALACE.

J. G. Phelps Stokes to Take Poor Jewish Girl as Bride.

New York City.—The engagement of J. G. Phelps Stokes, member of an old and very wealthy New York family, to Miss Rose Harriet Pastor, a young Jewess, who until two weeks ago was a special writer on the Jewish Daily News, and prior to that worked in a Cleveland cigar factory, has been announced. The date for the wedding has not been definitely settled, but the event will take place some time in July.

On July 13, 1902, Miss Pastor was assigned by the city editor of the Jewish Daily News to interview Mr. Stokes, who was then as now a resident worker in the University Settlement in Rivington street.

Miss Pastor is twenty-five years old. She was born at Augustove, Russia. When twelve years of age she came to America with her parents and drifted to Cleveland, Ohio. It was after years of hardship and by dint of hard work she finally obtained a position on the journal referred to.

Her forthcoming marriage has created a great stir among her friends and the "Fifth Avenue" society circles.

Killed by Earthquake.

Four hundred Indian soldiers were killed by the earthquake at Dharmsala, India.

Czar Not at Review.

Contrary to his usual custom, the Czar failed to review the parade of the Horse Guards on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception in St. Petersburg, Russia, but extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to prevent an outbreak.

President at San Antonio.

President Roosevelt arrived at San Antonio, Texas, to attend the Rough Riders' reunion, after speaking at Austin, Waco and other places in the State.

RENEWS CONTROVERSY

Rev. Dr. Gladden Again Attacks Rockefeller Methods.

Talks of Monte Carlo and Lotteries—S. C. T. Dodd, Solicitor For Standard Oil, Replies.

Boston, Mass.—The Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, Ohio, has broken forth again in violent invective against the acceptance of the $100,000 Rockefeller gift, which has already been partly spent by the American Board of Foreign Missions. In an article which will appear in the current number of the Congregationalist over his signature Dr. Gladden prints extracts from letters he had received. The article says:

"The Prince of Monte Carlo has never been convicted of crime, and is said to be a cultivated, benevolent gentleman. Would they (the members of the American board prudential committee) accept $100,000 from him for foreign missions, or from the Louisiana Lottery in the days of its prime, when it fleeced its victims under sanction of the State?

"No public utterance of mine has ever brought me a tithe of the responses which have been pouring in on me for the last week. The voices are at least twenty to one in support of the position I have taken. I must beg the brethren who disagree with me to understand that they are dealing with a force whose strength they cannot afford to despise.

"There are those who seem to say that all money, no matter how wickedly obtained, not only may, but must be accepted when offered in aid of religion or charity. It would seem, then, that if, standing in my church door, I see a man knocked down and robbed in the street and the footpad brings me part of the money I must take it. It will go just as far in 'doing good' as any other money and I have no right to refuse it."

Standard Oil Attorney Replies.

New York City.—S. C. T. Dodd, chief solicitor of the Standard Oil Company, made a statement with reference to the recent discussion as to the acceptance of a gift of $100,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller for missionary work. Mr. Dodd said that the accusation that Mr. Rockefeller made his money dishonestly "if false, is vile, and being made by ministers in the pretended interest of morality, is doubly vile."

Mr. Dodd said also that the Standard Oil Company does not own a share of stock in a railroad company, does not control any railroad company, and that since the enactment of the Interstate Commerce law, has not received lower rates than other shippers by rebates, arrangements, devices or plans of any character.

With reference to gas and copper enterprises Mr. Dodd says that neither the Standard Oil Company nor Mr. Rockefeller has any connection or interest, directly or indirectly, with those companies or with their organization.

ROOSEVELT AT SAN ANTONIO.

Greets His Rough Riders, Making Speech at Fair Grounds.

San Antonio, Texas.—At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, became Colonel Teddy Roosevelt, the idolized commander of the First United States Volunteer Cavalry, better known as the Rough Riders, and "hail fellow well met," with his old comrades at the fair grounds.

At 9:30 o'clock in the morning a Citizens' Committee of San Antonio met President Roosevelt and his party at his private car, in which he had enjoyed a good night's rest, and escorted him to Fort Sam Houston, where he reviewed the National troops. Returning to the city the President was driven to the speakers' stand, directly before the battle-scarred Alamo, where he delivered an address. Immediately afterward he joined his comrades at the fair grounds, the original mustering-in place of the regiment.

The city was a blaze of bunting and flags, and even the sombre old Alamo, the shrine of Texas, had not escaped, but was gayly festooned.

Rough Riders were everywhere and the city was theirs. All days the railroads poured thousands into the city, and the reception accorded the President was boundless in its enthusiasm.

TAFT HEAD OF GOVERNMENT.

Has Taken Over the Foreign Affairs of the Nation.

Washington, D. C. — The unusual sight was witnessed of foreign diplomats going to the War Department instead of to the State Department to conduct business. Secretary of War Taft entered upon his duties as head of the Nation's foreign affairs as soon as the President went away, although Mr. Loomis retains the title of Acting Secretary of State.

Mr. Taft is now at the head of the Government, so far as Washington is concerned. His most important conference in his capacity as head of the State Department was with Minister Takahira, of Japan. Mr. Takahira talked to Secretary Taft of the general situation in the East and of the peace outlook, but not with the idea of making any proposals or requests. His visit, it was understood, was for the purpose of acquainting Mr. Taft with the situation as Japan views it, and of getting in touch with the Secretary.

BALLOON CROSSES CHANNEL.

Jacques Faure Reaches Calais From Folkestone in Four Hours.

Calais, France.—Jacques Faure's balloon, which left Folkestone, England, at 11 p. m., made a successful passage of the Channel, landing near Calais at 3 o'clock the next morning.

The balloon encountered a severe storm, but was not injured, and its three occupants were in good health and spirits when they landed.

Thorsby

Business Directo

Commercial Cl
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and RELI
information furnished t
who desire to locate in the

A. M. Johnso
Groceries and Delicate

J. J. STANL
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBE
General Merchandis

G. W. Freem
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks,
and Cigars.

Thorsby Wine
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, P

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Articles.
LICENSED PHARMAC

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jew

E. H. Adams
General Merchand
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSB
General Merchandis

J. R. PARNEL
General Merchandis

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wis
Millinery and Notio

The Thorsby
G. C. Michelson, P
Good Beds and Meal

A Langville &
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in WAGONS and BUG

C. L. Forsm
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Oven

T

VOL III.

SEVELT SHOOTS BEAR ANOTH

a Six Hundred Pound Bruin the First Day.

ES NO FOOLHARDY RISKS

Executive Arrives at New Castle, Makes Speech and Immediately Starts For Camp Twenty Miles Away Protest Against Caged Animals Before Hunted.

e State Humane S
plans on the ground that t return to the village and harm ren, as it had been caged so long it was vicious. After the Humane ty had interfered the captors of bear tried to sell it to the Presi
's guides, but they said they would their game wild, as domesticated als had no attractions for the ident.

noon the party started from New le at an easy canter over the hills e permanent camp, which is situ at East Divide Creek, on Charles y's ranch, twenty-three miles west of New Castle. There is t a foot of snow in that region, bear tracks were seen there.

fore starting the President an ced that he was not going to strug and to hand with a grizzly bear rangle any mountain lions with hands. He said he did not expect g a large amount of game, and d feel satisfied if he should get bear during the whole hunt. His firing rifle was exhibited with pride as a protection he would antly keep between himself and er.

President and his hunting party ed New Castle at ten minutes to o'clock in the morning and waited than two hours for an official that had been sent to Redstone, re it had been intended that the
of Government should be estab
d while the President was away e mountains hunting bear and game.

President shook hands with most e 400 citizens of New Castle after had been introduced by Mayor ge H. Norris.

party was photographed, the dent made a brief address, shook s with the train crew and looked the specially decorated locomotive drew his train from Colorado gs.

run to New Castle was pleasant.
bonfires lighted the way during ght and inhabitants of the towns the railroad stayed up until far the morning to cheer the President passed. Getting up early, the had breakfast of fresh mountain while all viewed from the car ows the magnificent scenery
the Colorado Midland Railroad.
r Basalt the first car of the spe train hit a rock that had slid to the edge of the track. The damage done was the knocking f a cap of the rear truck of the iceroy.

en the train arrived in New Castle
President, dressed in his shooting es of heavy tan duck, greeted the e from the rear platform. He cheered wildly. After a speech made and conventionalities had observed the President gave per supervision to his hunting outfit.
unsheathed his knife and felt its edge, unlimbered his gun and saw it was in fine working order and d over the horse that had been ed for his ride to camp. The al is white, weighing about eleven red pounds, and is about fourteen one-half hands high. It is said to e of the surest-footed mountain ers in Colorado, but it is not for speed.

n Goff, Jake Borah and Brick P.
, guides in mountain costumes,
d themselves in arranging for the
In addition to the President's nal party, which was composed nscif, Dr. Alexander Lambert, of York, and P. B. Stewart, of Colo springs, ten men rode to the hunt mp. Five men were already at mp with everything ready for omfort of the party.

Czar Refuses Petition.

Emperor at his palace in oe-Selo refused the Russian y's petition for reforms in the h, but promised to take up the ion when the state of the country itted.

BULL GO

Suarez, Tw
Fe

Cap Ma matador was gored a bull fight himself the Suarez fin continued
ing from h

The thro admiration cheered an rings, brac while the revolting though it should not

STEA

The Sagam

Boston, steamship Boston fro ing been i by icebergs
the vessel fog prevai she was f great mass high above dered the hours had could pick bergs.

For Announc for a great York City, Design of present a auspices, w Museum of

VERSY

Thorsby

Business Directo

Commercial Clu
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and RELIAB
information furnished to pa who desire to locate in the So

A. M. Johnson
Groceries and Delicates

J. J. STANLE
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBER
General Merchandise.

G. W. Freeman
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks, To
and Cigars.

Thorsby Wine
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, Pro

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and To Articles.
LICENSED PHARMACI

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jewe

E. H. Adams
General Merchandi
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSB
General Merchandise.

J. R. PARNELL
General Merchandise.

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wish
Millinery and Notion

The Thorsby I
G. C. Michelson, Pro
Good Beds and Meals.

A Langville & S
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in
WAGONS and BUGG

C. L. Forsma
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. III. CLANTON, ALA., APRIL 20, 1905 NO. 4

OSEVELT SHOOTS BEAR

s a Six Hundred Pound Bruin the First Day.

KES NO FOOLHARDY RISKS

f Executive Arrives at New Castle, ol. Makes Speech and Immediately Starts For Camp Twenty Miles Away —Protest Against Caged Animals Be- ng Hunted.

ew Castle, Col.—President Roose- with his usual luck, killed his bear before he got to his camp other day. The Presidential party ted to the hunting grounds, and miles out the dogs struck and the President insisted after bruin.

half hour the dogs had bear. The President dis- and after waiting in order the dogs, pumped sev- the badly fagged bear.

cinnamon bear, weighing pounds. Coff skinned the the party finally succeed- camp about five o'clock The day was sunshiny parade had been planned at New but it did not take place. It been arranged to form a process- led by a miners' brass band, a bear and the President's party horseback. This pageant was to through the village streets and the hills where the bear was to turned loose and given a start of State Humane Society broke up on the ground that the bear to the village and harm dren, as it had been caged so long it was vicious. After the Humane ety had interfered the captors of bear tried to sell it to the Presi- 's guides, but they said they would their game wild, as domesticated mals had no attractions for the sident.

t noon the party started from New e at an easy canter over the hills the permanent camp, which is situ- d at East Divide Creek, on Charles ney's ranch, twenty-three miles thwest of New Castle. There is ot a foot of snow in that region. bear tracks were seen there.

efore starting the President an- ced that he was not going to strug- hand to hand with a grizzly bear strangle any mountain lions with e hands. He said he did not expect ag a large amount of game, and uld feel satisfied if he should get bear during the whole hunt. His d hring rifle was exhibited with at pride as a protection he would stantly keep between himself and

President and his hunting party ched New Castle at ten minutes to o'clock in the morning and waited e than two hours for an official l had been sent to Redstone. had been intended that the Government should be estab- d where the President was away the mountains hunting bear and game.

shook hands with most the 100 citizens of New Castle after had been introduced by Mayor ge H. Norris.

e party was photographed, the sident made a brief address, shook ds with the train crew and looked the specially decorated locomotive drew his train from Colorado gs.

e run to New Castle was pleasant. camp fires lighted the way during t and inhabitants of the towns g the railroad stayed up until far the morning to cheer the President he passed. Getting up early, the y had breakfast of fresh mountain t, while all viewed from the car lows the magnificent scenery g the Colorado Midland Railroad. ear Basalt the first car of the spe- train hit a rock that had slid to the edge of the track. The damage done was the knocking of a cap of the rear truck of the Viceroy.

hen the train arrived in New Castle President, dressed in his shooting ts of heavy tan duck, greeted the ple from the rear platform. He cheered wildly. After a speech ings and conventionalities had n observed the President gave per- supervision to his hunting outfit. examined his knife and felt its edge, unjumbered his gun and saw it was in fine working order and ed over the horse that had been ted for his ride to camp. The al is white, weighing about eleven dred pounds, and is about fourteen one-half hands high. It is said to one of the surest-footed mountain bers in Colorado, but it is not ed for speed.

hn Goff, Jake Borah and Brick P. lls, guides in mountain costumes, ed themselves in arranging for the

In addition to the President's onal party, which was composed Ainsworth, Dr. Alexander Lambert, of York, and P. B. Stewart, of Colo- o Springs, ten men rode to the hunt- ng camp. Five men were already at camp with everything ready for comfort of the party.

Czar Refuses Petition.

e Emperor at his palace in rskoe Selo refused the Russian ers's petition for reforms in the rch, but promised to take up the stion when the state of the country mitted.

ANOTHER PANAMA PLAN

New Proposition Made the Govern- ment by Linden W. Bates.

Prominent Engineer Asserts His Method Will Save Time and Millions in Money.

Washington, D. C.—Two big boxes were delivered at the White House a day or two before President Roosevelt departed for the West by Colonel Edwards, Chief of the Insular Bureau of the War Department. When opened they were found to contain beautiful models of relief maps of the Panama Canal. President Roosevelt, Cabinet Ministers and other callers examined the maps with great interest, as also have Chairman Shonts, Chief Engineer Wallace and the members of the new Panama Canal Commission.

These models present in graphic form an entirely new project for solving the physical problem at Panama, and this project was deemed so promising that for its consideration President Roosevelt ordered the creation of a board of consulting engineers, composed of the most eminent professional men to be found in the world. During the coming autumn it is expected the board of engineers will assemble in this city and probably go to the Isthmus to make a thorough investigation and decide upon the plan to be adopted.

The new project is the work of Lindon W. Bates, the eminent hydraulic engineer. Mr. Bates is an American, but most of his work has been done abroad. As a youth he had valuable experience in building mountain railways in the West. He executed an important contract on the Chicago drainage canal. There he invented and built a hydraulic dredge which has revolutionized dredging throughout the world. He built monster dredges for the Mississippi River Commission. The Belgian Government invited him to prepare plans for the enlarged harbor at Antwerp. He carried out important dredging work for the Russian Government on the Volga. He prepared plans for the Indian Government for improving the river at Calcutta, one of the most difficult pieces of engineering in the world. He devised plans for similar work at Adelaide and other ports in Australia for the Australian Government; also for the improvement of the St. Lawrence for the Dominion Government, and many more in various countries.

Last year he visited the Isthmus and made a careful study of the Panama problem. The result is the present project, which is entirely new and differs materially from any previous plan.

The principal feature of Mr. Bates' scheme is the creation of lakes out of the swamps near the terminals of the canal, which will not only obviate the necessity for most of the excavation in those places always of the most unhealthy character, but will also enable greater speed through the lakes than in the canal banks, reducing the time across the Isthmus from thirteen hours, estimated by a sea level canal, to eight and a half or nine hours. These lakes he proposes to form by the construction of barrages between the hills so as to impound the waters of the Chagres River, which are to be diverted partly toward the Atlantic and partly toward the Pacific. The lakes are to be fitted with spillways to discharge surplus waters, such as floods from the Chagres, into both oceans. Twenty-six miles of the distance across the Isthmus would by this plan be through the lakes. Either two or four locks would be necessary, and Mr. Bates figures the canal could be completed by 1913, as against 1915-16, for a sea level canal. The cost of the canal completed would be $145,000,000, whereas the sea level project will cost $230,000,000.

BULL GORES FAMOUS MATADOR.

Suarez, Twice Wounded, Regains His Feet and Fights Back.

Cap Martin, France.—The famous matador of Seville, Antonio Suarez, was gored in the face in the course of a bull fight here. Before he recovered himself the bull gored him in the back. Suarez finally regained his feet and continued the fight with blood streaming from his wounds.

The throng of spectators, in frenzied admiration of the matador, rose and cheered and shouted. Women threw rings, bracelets and purses to him, while the men threw coins. The usual revolting cruelty was displayed, although it was arranged that the bulls should not be killed.

STEAMER HELD BY ICE.

The Sagamore a Prisoner to Bergs For Sixteen Hours.

Boston, Mass. — The Warren Line steamship Sagamore, which arrived at Boston from Liverpool, reported having been imprisoned for sixteen hours by icebergs on the Grand Banks. When the vessel reached the banks a dense fog prevailed, and when this lifted she was found to be surrounded by great masses of ice, which towered high above her. Captain Fenton ordered the engines stopped, and sixteen hours had passed before the steamer could pick her way through the icebergs.

For New School of Arts.

Announcement was made of plans for a great school of fine arts, in New York City, to be called the Academy of Design of Columbia, and to absorb the present academy under university auspices, with the co-operation of the Museum of Art.

MORE REFORMS PROMISED

Russian Authorities Making Concessions to Czar's Subjects.

REPORTS FROM THE FRONT

General Linevitch Active With Cavalry Skirmish Movements—Tells of Rout of Jap Forces—Governamental Insurance For Russian Subjects and Shorter Working Hours For Laborers.

Tokio, Japan.—It was reported that the main force of the Russians, which retired in the direction of Hsingking, has reached Kirin. The rear guard, which was estimated at 12,000 men, continued in the vicinity of Harlung Cheng, closely in touch with the Japanese vanguard. The main force, which retired from Kaiyuan, over the Kirin road, was reported at Kirin with a rear guard of 8000 men, at Itsuchow, Haklusu, and at Sulipao, keeping in touch with the Japanese forces.

The following official announcement was made:

"Our force advancing eastward via the Fushun and Hailung road encountered and defeated the enemy on the morning of the 12th at Erhhoulu, seven miles east of Yingpan. The enemy's strength was one regiment of infantry, six squadrons of cavalry, and four guns. Our force then occupied Tsangshih, about nineteen miles east of Yingpan. The enemy in retreating toward Hailung fought at every step."

Prince Charles Anton Hohenzollern, representative of the Emperor of Germany with the Japanese armies at the front, will leave for home Sunday next.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Russian troops have successfully raided the railroad in the direction of Kaiyuan (about twenty miles north of Tie Pass), Manchuria. A dispatch from General Linevitch to Emperor Nicholas, says:

"Our cavalry destroyed the railroad and wires near Yakutzu, and between Kaiyuan and Changtu, and cut the telegraph line near Kaiyuan."

More Reforms Promised.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—In receiving a delegation of workmen from Moscow, Finance Minister Kokovsoff gave notice to the workmen of Russia that a Government commission was formulating legislation to remedy the greater part of their grievances, including State insurance against sickness, accident and age, and for shortening the hours of labor, abolishing the prohibition of unions and criminal punishment for strikes, and for the establishment of an industrial court in which employers and employes shall be represented.

This interview with the Minister of Finance, lasting an hour and a half, is another indication of the general conciliatory spirit of the Government. The evident desire to cure, wherever possible, the maladies of the empire was manifested by the peasant commission, the Finnish and Polish concessions, and the establishment of the Bouligan commission.

The Government throughout takes the stand that all these reforms are too great to be lightly or hastily handled, and that premature and ill-considered legislation would be worse than none at all. It appeals to the dissatisfied to give their rulers a full and fair chance to accomplish the legislation they demand.

Developments, however, all point to a crisis in the present agitation among the workmen of the cities and the peasants in the country on May Day, and appeals are pouring in from all quarters of Russia for military protection.

The St. Petersburg workmen are preparing a great demonstration. Arms and bombs in large quantities have been smuggled in, and bloodshed on a large scale is feared. Wealthy persons who ordinarily go to villas on the islands of the Neva or to neighboring country places this year are going abroad.

The Government has taken few special measures to meet the situation, evidently relying on the troops and police to guard the capital.

The news received from the interior is alarming, especially from the Baltic Provinces, where the entire population is in a state of intense excitement. The cities are being flooded with revolutionary proclamations calling on the people to rise on May Day. The criminal classes are taking advantage of the situation to pillage and plunder, while in the country the landlords are powerless to cope with the peasants, and demand the stationing of troops at every station.

BROOKLYN WOMAN FOUND.

Mrs. E. W. Weaver Suffering From Dementia in Pennsylvania.

Lancaster, Penn.—Mrs. E. W. Weaver, the wife of a teacher in the Brooklyn (N. Y.) High School, was found suffering from dementia on the road outside of the Lancaster County Hospital.

Mrs. Weaver had been visiting at the home of her father, L. C. Oberlin, at Norwood, near this city. While sitting on the porch at the Oberlin house she started for a walk in the yard. She was apparently in excellent health. That was the last seen of her until the other night, although searching parties had scoured the country for her.

She was taken to the home of her parents. She was unable to tell where she had been, but is supposed to have been wandering about the country.

ENGLAND HONORS CHOATE

Greatest Gathering of Kind in History of Inns of Court.

Banquet by Famous London Bar Association Given Our Retiring Ambassador.

London, England. — "Farewell, rejoice! He goes back to his home with his duty well and nobly done, taking the universal respect and admiration of a kindred nation and his own."

Thus concluded Lord Chancellor Halsbury's tribute at parting with American Ambassador Choate, who recently was uniquely distinguished by election as a member of the Middle Temple, who was honored by the greatest gathering of the kind of the bench and bar in the history of the Inns of court.

The Attorney-General, Sir R. B. Finlay, seconded the toast, saying:

"This is no ordinary occasion. Never has a worthier man occupied the post of Ambassador to Great Britain, and none has carried away deeper affection. Never was there a more welcome guest at the Inns than this consummate advocate, great diplomatist and genial man of the world."

The assembly was an extraordinary one in character, and numbered nearly 400 members of the bench and bar, including almost every leading Justice and barrister in England. Mr. Choate sat between Lord Halsbury and Lord Macnaghten, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary. Ranged on both sides were the venerable Privy Councilors, each wearing his decorations and orders.

Other notable personages present were Lord Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice; Sir Richard Henn Collins, Master of the Rolls; Viscounts Knutsford and Llandaff, Lords James of Hereford and Dunboyne, H. H. Asquith, formerly Home Secretary, and all the members of the American Embassy.

The great dining hall of the Middle Temple is a vast oaken chamber, its high roof supported by heavy beams, the sides of the walls panelled with insets of coats of arms, its windows of stained glass. At one end of the hall is Watt's masterpiece of fresco, "Legislation," representing lawmakers from the time of Moses.

At the other end is a screened musicians' gallery, ornamented with carved life-sized figures. It was occupied by a few select women guests, not dining, but simply looking on. On high movable pedestals huge roasts were carved before the guests by the Inns carver perched above the assembly.

The entire scene had a strange, but delightful, Old World air. As the guests took their places they remained standing until the Lord Chancellor had pronounced grace, "Benedictus, benedictam."

The first toast was drunk after the simple words, "The King." The second, pronounced by the Lord Chancellor, was "The President, the great Magistrate of a great Nation."

Mr. Choate arose, looking somewhat pale after his recent illness. He was greeted with prolonged but dignified applause. He spoke at considerable length, addressing the assembly as "Brothers all." He said in part:

"Words cannot express my gratitude for this unique and overwhelming honor. For an American lawyer to be the guest of the bench and bar of England on an occasion graced by the applauding presence of so many of their most distinguished members overcomes him with a sense of his own unworthiness. I can only suppose that in my person and over my head you intend an unexampled honor to the country I represent. I thank you all from the bottom of my heart. I am especially grateful to my friend, the Lord Chancellor."

Mr. Choate paid tributes to his personal friends, Lord Chancellor Halsbury and Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, and said that the new diplomacy to which the Lord Chancellor had said he belonged had made his task here easy.

The men with whom he had had to deal at the Foreign Office, the late Lord Salisbury and Lord Lansdowne, were both of that school, saying what they meant and meaning what they said. He had always found them anxious to maintain the friendliest relations, always willing to meet America half way, and never with a card up their sleeves.

His task had been easy because there were Queen Victoria and King Edward on one side and President McKinley and President Roosevelt on the other. The English people and Americans were ever determined to be friends.

MAYOR DUNNE CALLS DARROW.

Mine Workers' Counsel Has Charge of Chicago Traction Litigation.

Chicago, Ill.—Mayor Dunne took the first step in the direction of shaping his municipal ownership campaign by placing Clarence S. Darrow in charge of all traction litigation. Mr. Darrow was counsel for the United Mine Workers before the arbitration board appointed by President Roosevelt.

GREEKS SLAY 30 ALBANIANS.

Burn a Village—Many Persons Wounded and Captured.

Salonika.—A Greek band attacked and burned an Albanian village near Klissura.

Thirty persons were killed and many more were wounded and captured.

BRITISH BUDGET ISSUED

Shows a Surplus For Second Time Since Boer War.

Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Reads Statement Before the House.

London, England.—For the first time since the war, with the exception of one year, the British budget, read to the Commons, showed a surplus. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was greeted with an outburst of enthusiasm by a crowded house when he announced that the revenue of the year just closed exceeded his estimate by almost $15,000,000, showing that the trade of the country had turned the corner, and whereas a year ago there was a heavy deficit there had now been established something more than an equilibrium between the revenue and expenditure.

Although 1904 began badly, a bountiful crop of cotton had revived the Lancashire industries, shipbuilding showed signs of recovery and the iron and steel industries had slightly improved. Nevertheless, while the country was on the path of moderate but steady recovery it could not be said that 1904-05 had been wholly satisfactory from the viewpoint of commerce and finance. There had been much pauperism and distress.

In analyzing the items of revenue the Chancellor of the Exchequer said the sugar duty promised to prove an expanding revenue, and tea fell short of the estimates, mostly during the last quarter of the year, so, perhaps, this was attributable to holding shipments on the chance of a reduction in the duty. The export of coal marked a record, but the decline in the excise duties on spirits, which began in 1900, continued. The consumption of beer and spirits was less in 1904 than in any of the preceding fifteen years. In fact, said Mr. Chamberlain, the habits of the people are changing, and this must be taken into account in considering the financial situation. The majority of the people are finding other employment for the money they used to spend in public houses. Outdoor recreation and excursions are becoming more popular.

Turning to the expenditure of 1904-05 Mr. Chamberlain said it had been below the estimates, and the actual realized surplus for the year was $7,070,000. The national debt had been reduced by $37,790,000, and at the close of the year stood at $3,775,360,000.

Dealing with the finances of the new year, Mr. Chamberlain estimated the expenditure for 1905-06 at $705,160,000, and the revenues on the existing basis of taxation at $720,020,000, leaving a surplus of $14,860,000. The surplus at his disposal from last year, Mr. Chamberlain said, was small, but he had no doubt regarding what had the first claim on the country's resources. The first thing to do was to restore the national credit.

He proposed that $5,000,000 should be added to the fixed debt charge to create a sinking fund for the $50,000,000 in treasury bonds falling due in December, and which he proposed to reissue as new bonds for ten years with the condition that one-tenth be drawn and repaid each year.

Mr. Chamberlain regretted that he was unable to relieve the income taxpayer, as the cost of reducing the tax by two cents would be $11,100,000, and he had not the necessary money. He proposed to take off on July 1 the extra duty of four cents per pound put on tea last year.

Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the House, congratulated Mr. Chamberlain on the clearness of his statement and his provisions in regard to the national debt.

FIVE DROWNED IN HUDSON.

Fisherman Who Started to Take Men Across in Skiff Loses Life.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—James Malloy, a fisherman, of Barrytown, started across the Hudson River in a rowboat at that place at night with six men, and before he reached the other shore the boat capsized and Malloy and four of the men were drowned.

The men whom Malloy started to take across the river were bound for Ulster Landing, directly opposite Barrytown. The little steamer that was to have conveyed them across the river had departed, and, as there were no large boats in the water, Malloy offered to take them to their destination in his skiff. The men accepted the invitation and all six got in the little skiff. A strong flood tide was running and a heavy wind from the north made the river exceptionally rough. When the boat was about two-thirds across the river persons on the Barrytown shore heard cries for help. Two young men, sons of Nathan Griffin, of Ulster Landing, put out in a rowboat and succeeded in rescuing two of the men, who were found clinging to the keel of the overturned skiff.

KILLED AT INITIATION.

Pistol Used Was Supposed to Contain Only Blank Cartridges.

Little Rock, Ark.—While Ebenezer Runyan was being initiated by the local lodge of a secret order at Felsenthal, Ark., he was shot and instantly killed. Charles Filler was officiating, and was using a revolver which, in some way, had been loaded, although it was supposed to contain only blank cartridges. The bullet entered Runyan's brain.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St, Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

L. V. STABLER, M. D
Physician & Surgeon
Office Over Horn's Drug Store
Thorsby, Alabama

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 9 to 1 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Springs
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon. Calera, Ala.

F. M. Foshee, of Clanton, is with the above house and would be pleased to have all Chilton county people call on him.

Naval auto-boats promise to add new terrors to war.

A Battle With Polar Bears

By Arthur P. Silver.

A curious story told by a veteran whaler. How the whaling crew went in search of a whale they had killed, only to find the carcass in possession of a dozen ferocious Polar bears! The battle royal that ensued was a most exciting affair.

IN the pursuit of the arduous calling of Arctic whaling the crews of whaling ships are often called upon to face extraordinary hazards. Seldom, however, after killing their whale, are they obliged to wrest their booty from a troop of ravenous Polar bears, angrily disputing possession of their prize. The thrilling story of such an unparalleled encounter was narrated to me under the following circumstances:

It was a lovely evening in June when we swung clear of Port-aux-Basques Harbor, and, catching a light land breeze, steered northwards towards the coasts of Labrador. Our craft was a smart Nova Scotia-built schooner of about a hundred and fifty tons, and our crew were picked from a settlement of the nearest modern representatives of the old Norsemen—the sturdy fishing folk of the iron-bound coasts of Newfoundland. I was peculiarly attracted by the first mate, Harry Jewer, a man still in the prime of life, with hard-bitten, weather-roughened features, yet with a merry twinkle in his eye that bespoke a happy Hibernian temperament and a capacity for facing with equal cheerfulness the sunshine and the storm of an adventurous career. His face was tanned like leather with being so often set against the blinding glare of sunshine from illimitable glistening fields of drifting ice, and deeply scarred and seamed by repeated scourgings of fierce winds armed with stinging ice fragments, which smite like the knotted cords of cruel whips.

Notwithstanding this hard and perilous mode of life his character had been fashioned into a hearty admiration of this awful beauty, grandeur and terror of the great Arctic solitude. Like many others of his class, he was captivated by the fascinating glamor which the Arctic casts like a spell upon those who have once penetrated its mysteries. An opportunity came to listen to the tale of his varied exploits when suddenly one afternoon the wind grew light, and we ran into a heavy smoke-like bank of grey fog which obscured all around us. When at length we emerged there was no breath of wind. The sun beat down on a sea motionless and becalmed.

At this moment, to my great delight, Harry, pulling at his blackened clay pipe, tainting the balmy sea air with pungent odors, seated himself at my side and told me the following tale of a strange adventure that befell him in the Far North:

It was in Lancaster Sound, on board the good ship Aurora, that I found myself in the summer of 1896. We were after "right" whales, and had already taken five on this voyage. While nearly all our casks were full to bursting with oil, we had room to stow away the blubber of yet another carcass. This the crew were anxious to accomplish as speedily as possible, for after a nightless period, the sun was now beginning to dip each day below the horizon for a few hours at a stretch, and cool fitful northwesters were giving warning of the approach of winter. If only we could secure our booty and turn our course to the south, "with the Newfoundland girls pulling at the tow-rope," as the saying is in the fo'c'sle, everyone would be happy. For although the seafarer, wherever you find him, cannot remain content ashore for long, one of the greatest of all the pleasures of his calling is the return home with a pocket full of coin after a successful voyage.

A good Greenland or Arctic "right" whale is worth a lot of money. "Right" whales are those producing whalebone, and a good specimen is worth at least six hundred to seven hundred pounds. There are other large whales which we let alone—the "finners" or rorquals, and even the giant "blue whales," as the biggest of them are not worth one-tenth part of the value of the "right" whale. Of late these valuable prizes, as well as the "sperm" whale, are getting scarce, but in those days they were abundant. Each man was sure to come home with a snug little sum to his credit, what with wages and his share of the "bounty," as the men's narrow percentage of interest in the net profits is termed.

"There she blows!" All hearts fairly throbbed for joy as the look-out from the "crow's nest" cheerily shouted the glad news of an enormous "right" whale sighted against the sun in the offing. Blithely the ropes sang out through the tackle-blocks while the men took their places, and as the little flotilla of boats darted away with alacrity from the black sides of the great ship, like so many arrows shot from a bow, a strange gleam came into the men's eyes, and their bronzed faces relaxed in a smile as if they already anticipated their triumph.

They made towards a spot where at intervals of from ten to fifteen minutes a white column of spray was seen to shoot high in the air from the extremity of a black rolling mass which glittered in the sun's rays like wet indiarubber. My boat led, and all hands gave me a cheer when I threw the harpoon, which with a heavy thud embedded itself deeply behind the huge central fin of the mighty whale. Those were the "good old days" of whaling, before the craft was made comparatively easy by modern methods; before the days of the fast steamship armed with the fatal "harpoon gun."

After the stroke the whale suddenly headed away from the boats, sent up an enormous jet of water and blood some twenty feet in the air, lashed the water into foam with a terrible flurry of his gigantic tail, and then suddenly dipped beneath the surface of the ocean. To such a vast depth did he plunge in his agony of pain and fright that two boats were compelled to join their lines to ours; and three times he dived, staying under nearly twenty minutes on each occasion, before we could get near enough to lance him in a vital part. Unfortunately, as he sped away he drew on the boats towards a large field of ice known to be in the vicinity before it was actually sighted, because of the extraordinary coldness pervading the atmosphere.

As the custom is with a wounded whale, he made to get under the ice in hot haste. The only chance for success was to finish him before he disappeared beneath the floe. He would have to come up once more to breathe before he could dive beneath the ice-floor, and we got ready to dispatch him. Soon the line began to grow slack, and up, up he came with startling speed. For a few minutes there was an awful flurry on the surface, while our boat became entirely obscured by the flying spume. The creature had been pierced with lances until the water was reddened with blood, yet so padded with fat was he after his summer's gorging on herrings that the lances failed to reach a vital organ. To our great chagrin he dived under the ice, and, as the boats could now no longer follow him beyound the edge of the ice-field, the order was reluctantly given to cut the line, abandon the prize, and return to the ship. Very keen was the disappointment of the men. Here was a fine whale "gone to the deuce!" Gone, too, cut clean away from the grasp of the men, was half a ton of good whalebone. However, there was a feeling pervading the fo'c'sle all that evening that I would not yet give up, but would organize a search party, and each one hoped that he might be one of those chosen to go out to try and retrieve the lost booty.

On the morning following, after thinking the matter over, I decided that the whale must be dead, as the lances had been driven well home, and had drawn so much blood. Thereupon I picked out six of the best men on board to help me hunt for the carcass. Two rifles were stowed in the boat, and enough biscuit to last the seven of us for a couple of days.

All day the men rowed hard, while I swept the sea with my glasses. The vast ice-floe had slowly drifted southward, and it was a long time ere we came up with it, which we did towards nightfall. In the clear water behind its wake we made out an island of black rock fringed with a wide tawny sand beach, and soon we sighted something unusual on a yellow bar that ran far out from the island among the beating waves. Presently, to our great joy, it revealed itself as the stranded body of the dead whale.

The men were delighted at the prospect of recovering the valuable whalebone, for here was prize enough even if it became necessary to abandon the blubber.

That night we camped in a sheltered cove of the island, and needing no rocking, for we were tired out after our long pull. What was our astonishment next morning when we found our prize in possession of a company of Polar bears! There were a round dozen of them—not to speak of a couple of yearling cubs which kept close to their dams—all fighting, snarling and tearing at the flesh of the whale. It was evident that a pitched battle would be necessary to decide whether the carcass belonged to us who had killed the whale or to the bears who were now in full possession. Bigger than grizzlies, at times raising to their full height as dancing bears are trained to do, the monsters before us bore out the reputation of Lancaster Sound for its extremely large breed of bears, noted for their ravenous propensities and extreme daring and ferocity.

It was at the ebb of the tide—dead low water—when we decided to make our attack. The boat was brought round and headed towards the sand-spit where lay the stranded body of the whale. The feeding bears had apparently scented battle from afar, for two of the biggest took to the water and swam far out towards the boat. These became an easy prey, for they were dispatched while swimming alongside; but there still remained ten, and of these ten, five were indeed formidable monsters. Seeing the fate of their companions, the remainder of those which had entered the water returned to the beach. Five lined up in front of the whale, while the other five, including the two she-bears with their cubs, fell to the rear of the carcass—exactly like a fighting corps held in reserve. The receding tide had left a broad border of shelving sand, so that when our party landed we were still some sixty yards from the front squad of bears.

A trusted shot at one end of the line and myself at the other were armed each with a rifle and had fifty rounds of ball cartridge between us. The other men were equipped with long whalers' lances. I opened the conflict by dropping on my right knee and taking deliberate aim at the largest bear. There was a moment's pause. Then came the sharp report of the rifle followed by an angry roar, and through the smoke, the bear, only slightly wounded, made a rush at us. The spearmen promptly fell back, but the other rifleman knelt down with great coolness and discharged his gun at the furious animal. Again, however, the wound was not fatal. Springing to his feet the man made a lunge at the infuriated bear with his empty gun, but with a swift blow the great brute sent the rifle flying in the air, and with another laid low the unfortunate sailor. The forepaws of the bear were laid on the shoulders of the prostrate man, and the hind feet were being brought to bear with repeated efforts to rip his tough tarpaulin jacket, when, carried away by my excitement, I rushed up and, with the muzzle of my gun held almost at the ear of the savage beast, literally blew its head to fragments. Unmindful of a few hurts and a stream of blood trickling from his face and neck, the fallen man, to our amazement, jumped to his feet and, apparently half-crazed by his recent mauling, performed something very like a war-dance on the dead body of his late assailant.

The bears now appeared to be somewhat cowed by the death of their comrades. The reserve line was weakened by the desertion of the two she-bears with their cubs, and the four monsters in the front rank did not seem much inclined to take the aggressive.

All wild beasts, however, will usually forget their fear of man on three occasions: at mating time, when their young are in danger, and when their food is threatened. There was nothing for it, therefore, but to keep blazing away at the front guard until all were wounded. Finally, I ordered an advance of my little force, whereupon the disconcerted animals suddenly broke and fled, carrying away the rear line in their retreat. The bears were utterly routed.

We were now kept busy for hours in skinning the slain bears and in cutting out the whalebone from the jaws of the prize. Then, well satisfied with our work, we loaded down the boat with our spoils and proceeded on our way to rejoin the ship. But our perils were not yet over. A breeze sprang up which rapidly developed into a gale, accompanied by blinding sleet and snow showers, until our position grew hazardous in the extreme. Great white-capped waves broke over the heavy-laden boat, and we were kept incessantly occupied baling out the water.

Nevertheless we rowed on doggedly for hours, until at length our wrists grew swollen, and it really seemed as if out of the peril of the bears we had rushed into a greater danger still. Fainter and fainter grew our hopes of safety, as the gale rose and the billows rushed past madly, driven to fury by the scourging blasts.

Suddenly, through a rift in the driving storm-clouds the awful form of a towering iceberg was seen, rearing its glistening columns against the dull greyness of the snow-darkened sky. The weather-side of the iceberg received the full shock of the long, grey-green rollers as they swung up and broke again and again over its shelving icy strand, while the steep ice-side, sinking sheer into the ocean depths, kept the water there as calm as some landlocked harbor. Quickly we seized the proffered opportunity. By herculean efforts the boat was brought up against the full force of opposing wind and tide, and safely steered to the ice-side of the iceberg. Then the ice anchor was got out and she was made fast to the giant berg. The next danger which confronted us was that in the long wait we might perish of cold. There was coffee aboard and fresh water, but how were we to manage for fuel and cooking utensils? I thought for a moment, and then ordered the men to pare off wood shavings from the thwarts, flooring and gunwale of the boat until we collected a good-sized parcel of fuel. For a stove we perforated the bottom of a large kettle, hanging a smaller one over the fire. Soon we were able to pass round a draught of steaming hot coffee, which wonderfully cheered our spirits. This was repeated towards the break of day. Then the storm gradually subsided, and we knew that the danger was over. Once more we steered our course to the ship, and finally arrived safely with the rich prize of the whalebone which had cost us so much labor and peril.

Some of the rest of the crew were anxious to be allowed to visit the derelict carcass for another bear hunt, but the captain was known to hold white bears in high respect, and it surprised nobody when he announced his immediate intention of proceeding homewards. And so the ship's course was set towards the Straits of Belleisle, where, like a jagged tooth gnawing at the Arctic current, the Island of Newfoundland rears its rocky bastions out of the cold, ice-laden seas.

The snow-white skin of one of the biggest of the bears now decorates the little front parlor of my cabin, and furnishes an excuse for a frequent revival of the story of the battle between a boat's crew and a dozen Polar bears.—The Wide World Magazine.

Fighting Seasickness.

There is one place in a ship where the voyager may be at rest. This writer discovered it during a mid-Atlantic storm, when he went down to the bathroom, tumbled into a warm sea bath and floated. The vessel was performing the most amazing antics, but the water in the bath kept its usual gravity and the bather floated with a smile upon its bosom.—London Chronicle.

THE PULPIT.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. F. F. SHANNON.

Subject: The Thousandfold Man.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Sunday morning, in Grace M. E. Church, the pastor, the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, had for his subject "The Thousandfold Man." The text was from Joshua xxiii:10: "One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you, as He spake unto you." Mr. Shannon said:

World building is not so interesting as man building. Some philosophers held that tasks are interesting in proportion as they are difficult to perform. If this be good logic, then swinging worlds into space must take secondary rank to building a man in time. We have no intimation that God had any trouble stringing planets along the path of His power. Yet the centuries unite in the verdict that God has had much trouble in producing the divine style of manhood. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that God never undertook a vaster plan than to build a man. Worlds play out His purposes in the harmony of gravitation. They spell out His plans in the law of obedience. But man ofttimes thwarts those purposes and destroys those plans by setting his own will over against the will of God. Thus he wanders, a kind of lost human pleiad, through the space called time, always and ever coming to himself, but never wholly arrived.

Yet man is God's human world—greater than any star-world twinkling in space, because he thinks, loves, feels and wills. Now, some men exercise these functions more largely than their fellows. Then we label them with that ancient degree called greatness. After conferring the degree, we spend the rest of our lives musing over what such men did when they got together. They may have been great thinkers, great fighters, great talkers, great writers, or great friends. But in the last analysis, the greatness men adore is the adoration great men have given to God. This is why we never tire of studying the friendship of Moses and Joshua. They are two links in the golden chain which moors this old world to the throne of God. Napoleon said that history is a fable about which men are agreed. Rather say history is a stream flowing out from the Eternal Heart. Sitting along its shores, like deathless sentinels, are the men God raised up for handing His name and truth down the ages.

Our text asks for a consideration of the thousandfold man, and the reason for his multiplied power. "One man of you shall chase a thousand!" More startling words could hardly knock at the door of the human intellect. They are too vast in their outranging meaning to be easily comprehended. Naturally enough, the mind asks for a second consideration of them. But a second reading fails to rob them of their significance. Really big things don't grow less on second sight. Like St. Peter's, their bigness only helps the mind expand to a more capable appreciation of their true dimensions. It is so with men, and it is so with the great objects in nature. Just so a great sentence like this, pregnant with large thought, is not stripped of its treasure by a second or third reading. It is a thought centre round which the mind may revolve with increasing profit.

Strictly speaking, then, what is meant by one man chasing a thousand? Does it mean that one man, by his physical prowess, can drive a thousand men before him? You wonder at the folly of such a question. Still some people are so fond of measuring life and men by the yardstick of physical bulk that its absurdity may mock them into a better view. Physical things never did run smoothly on a spiritual track; and they never will, because it is impossible. The thousandfold man, according to Joshua, is the man in league with God, housing God's purposes and co-operating with God's plans, awaiting God's signals and answering God's voices, watching God's strides in history and hearing God's truth, dropped in golden numbers, from "the harp of God's eternal years." He is the man with his feet on the earth, his head among the stars, and his heart located in heaven, because heaven is located in his heart. He is the son of yesterday, the man of to-day, the heif of to-morrow—grateful for yesterday's goodness, inspired by to-day's blessings, and rejoicing in to-morrow's hopes. And he is all this because he is in league with God, and knows it; because he is in love with God, and feels it; because he is living in obedience to God, and wills it.

Moreover, the thousandfold man is the man God waits for. It has ever been "one man of you" who has opened the largest doors of opportunity and achievement in the history of the world. One man and God—they are absolutely unconquerable. Grasping the tangled threads of history, they have tied them into one solid knot of divine purpose. And that purpose for ever stands the pledge of a better world and a nobler race. Do you wonder that even God can afford to wait for such a man? Then let your wonder give away before this mighty fact: God has to wait, so long as the world remains constituted as it is, for a man to come forward and say, "Here am I—use me." God answers back, "I have to use you, because I haven't anything else to use." When a man comes out like that from the littleness of self into the largeness of God, that moment he stands forth in God's universe a thousandfold man! Chasing a thousand becomes the business of his life. Chasing a thousand temptations, chasing a thousand sins, chasing a thousand civic wrongs, chasing a thousand social evils! But does he stop there? Never! Chasing a thousand lost men toward God, chasing them into fellowship with Jesus Christ, chasing them up from their haunts of sin toward the splendor touched peaks of a pure and radiant manhood! That is the mission of the thousandfold man. And in these days the mission is crying as with the lips of God. Where is the man?

Furthermore, if history teaches one lesson it is this—God has His waits and pauses. And for what? Why, for some man to lay hold of His purposes and carry them out. God has been waiting, and still waits, for men in the everyday walks of life to be true to Him. O, men, that means you and that means me! God calls a few men to carry on great reforms. He calls all men to carry on a reform within their own lives. And it is the man who will do this in God's way, and in the spirit of Jesus Christ, that becomes the thousandfold man. He is the determining factor in this world's progress toward universal righteousness. He holds the balance of power which will usher in the millennial dawn. Gone forever the man fearing spirit. Gone forever that stolid indifference. Gone forever that fast shut pocketbook. He lives for God. He talks for God. He gives for God.

Consider, also, one of the two reasons for the multiplied power of the thousandfold man: "For the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you." Any man is braver for the battle if he knows that God is his champion. He may have been ready to show the white flag, leave the field in defeat, steal away in disgrace. Then let him lay vital hold of the truth that God is fighting for him. Instantly every ingredient of cowardice will vanish from his nature. Something akin to omnipotence begins to play along the nerve of his arm. The soul's battlesongs of victory began to swell the rising harmonies in his heart. Championed by God, he knows that, though the worlds may fall, he shall not meet with defeat. Camping along the path of his destiny is the Sleepless General, who holds the stars in His hand, and the interests of His child in His heart. What magnificent music for the soul to hear, as we go out to life's battle: "For the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you."

Let us give the truth its proper setting in our lives. We hear so much o finen fighting God's battles. And we rejoice that this is so. But let not the lesser truth obscure the greater—that God is fighting our battles. And do we not sometimes get so busy fighting God's battles that we forget that God is fighting our battles, which is of much more importance. It may be that God could get along without our reinforcements, after all. But if God's troops fail to come up, a spiritual Waterloo awaits us for certain. Let us make room for this neglected truth in our creed. It will make us better soldiers of the cross. It is one of the silent forces which builds the thousandfold man.

But some man says, "How does God fight for me? I want to know." God is not in the habit of doing things as man does them. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that God does not fight for us after the manner of men. His methods are not man's methods, and His weapons are not carnal weapons. Briefly, here are a few battlefields where God has fought for you: On the Judean plains shepherds are watching their flocks by night. Suddenly the heavens are musical with choirs of singing angels. Then one great golden star, as if driven out of its course by the finger of God to signal the shepherds, trembles above the manger. Coming to the spot, they find the babe wrapped in swadling clothes. That was the beginning of God's greatest battle for you—and the battlefield was a manger! But that Babe increased in stature and wisdom. He reached the highest type of manhood known to man or God. Great as a teacher, He was greater as a man. Great as a man, He was greater as a God, for in Him the fullness of Godhead made its home. For the first time, man was taught by a Life how to live his own life. God fought for you in the incarnation of His Son. God fought for you in the mysterious agony of Gethsemane. God fought for you in the blood-red suffering of Calvary. God fought for you in the darkness of the tomb. God fought for you on Mount Olivet, when Christ was taken up, the glory of His ascending body throwing a shining splendor over the track yours will go. In countless ways, the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you! He fights for you in the blessings He rains upon you day by day. In your home, in your business, in your society, in every privilege you enjoy, God fights for you. God's battlefields are smokeless, but they are victorious!

We discover the second reason for the multiplied power of the thousandfold man in the last clause of my text: "As He spake unto you." It is Joshua's way of telling us that God always keeps His engagements. "O," says some one, "he is talking about God's promises now—and they are old." Yes, let us admit the promises are old. But in growing old they have kept their youth. What sturdy youngsters they are! We can't afford to rule them out on account of age. Most of the best things in this world are old. The sun is old, the stars are old, the ocean is old, the mountain is old, love is old, music is old, father is old, mother is old, our dearest friends are old. But we are not ashamed of them on that account. So God's promises are old. But they have grown old so gracefully that we ought to be proud to walk life's pathway, keeping step to their mighty music. What would we do without them? Certainly this world would be a very lonely place, if the old promises didn't now and then steal into our hearts and hush their fears. A man's spiritual exchequer is worth something when he knows it is backed by promises as changeless as God Himself. "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." That promise alone is enough to make a man a spiritual millionaire. But, remember there are over 33,000 in God's Word that sing the same tune. The thousandfold man makes much of the old promises, because they have made much of him.

Sermonettes.

God keeps a reward for the man who who does right.

It is a lopsided religion that leaves the coachman at the curb.

The best evidence of your own salvation is your interest in that of others.

When God takes our hand He asks us to take the hand of another.

There is no comfort in Repose when its head is pillowed on an aching heart.

The circumference of influence depends upon the man at the centre of the circle.

By the prayerful study of the Scriptures comes the knowledge of the divine will.

Many a parent has entered the gates of pearl because the hand of a little child was on the latch.—United Presbyterian.

THE SUNDAY S

INTERNATIONAL LESSON C FOR APRIL 23

Subject: The Entr... salem, John xii.... Matt. xxi., 9—M... Commentary on the Day's...

I. The triumphal pro... 12:36. 12. "The next ... the supper. This was ... commonly called Palm S... people." Vast crowds ... at the Passover. In the ... a census was taken and ... tained that there were 2... present at this feast. "J... Jesus and His disciples ... and went to Bethpha... lage between Bethany ... Here they stopped ... two of His disciples to ... colt on which he rode ... When this was produced ... toward Jerusalem. There ... from Galilee who knew ... ally, and great numbers ... tracted to Bethany, ... recent resurrection of ... "Branches of palm tree... a demonstration of the ... palm and other boughs ... triumphal procession." ... "And cast... Confusion ... coats, we get the idea. ... Some took off their ou... the harness and boots, ... as a kind of sadnic; ... garments in the way, a ... to a king (2 Kings 9:13) ... ered leaves and twigs ... "Hosanna." Hosanna is ... into Greek letters of the ... we pray" (Psa. 118:25). ... shout of, "Salvation! ... "King cometh." Jesus ... peated King over the ... 39), and is accepted by ...

14. "As it is written." ... 15. "Fear not." There ... for fear. The King is ... His people. "Daughter of ... church; God's true Is... on colt." Here was t... humility over pride and w... eur, of poverty over affl... meekness and gentleness o... malice. The horse and ... were suggestive of war, ... the symbol of peace. Wh... in sight of Jerusalem, w... shouted Jesus wept over ... saw its sins and the sorro... lation which were so soo... upon it. 16. "Understood ... was the events themselves ... ring that were dark to t... were not seen in their tru... magnifying, as a prefigura... ing, of a suffering Messiah. ... then remembered." The ... the disciples was corrected ... once. What they did not ... now, they understood when ... rection and ascension had ...

II. The cause of Christ's ... (vs. 17-19). 17. "The p... The repeated references to ... of Lazarus greatly strength... tor'ic evidence of the mir... are quite inconsistent with ... either (a) a misunderstan... deliberate fraud. 18. "Fo... "This" is emphatic; other ... made but little impression, ... had convinced even Christ's ... 19. "The world." An ... form of expression also in ... great popularity.

III. Greeks seeking Jes... 22:8, 20. "Certain Greeks." ... inal word "Hellenes" mean... of Greek nationality, born ... the Greek race. "To worshi... Greeks were proselytes to t... religion (Exod. 20:10, etc.... Philip." It is not known ... should come to Philip first ... was because they had some ... quaintance with him. "We ... Jesus." Not merely to see ... but we would speak with H... taught by Him. It should ... sire of every heart to see ... "Andrew and Philip." Her... to God is this union, when ... ters of the gospel agree and ... gether to bring souls to Ch...

IV. Jesus teaches the w... (vs. 23-26).

23. "Jesus answered—t... Lord spake primarily to t... and secondarily to His disc... the meaning of His impen... (2) of the necessity of fait... Him in it, (3) of the blessi... thereto. "The hour." ... "Should be glorified." The ... come when the old prophesi... 3: 60:3) are to be fulfilled. ... siah's kingdom is to be set ... whole earth, and Christ is t... place on the right hand of ... "And die." The seed must ... der to liberate the life-germ ... it to become fruitful. Chri... to complete His redemptive ...

25. "Loveth His life." ... translated life is often tran... as in verse 25. The mean... he who makes the pleasur... and rewards of this life his ... cern, and sacrifices his ri... and integrity in order to o... "shall lose it"—shall lose it ... even the earthly rewards th... to gain, and shall lose his ... nally. "That hateth his li... other hand, he who sacri... necessary, all worldly ... Christ's sake and the gos... 8:35), "shall keep it"—shal... nal life.

26. "Serve Me." Christ ... in a twofold sense: He inst... and appoints them their ... who wishes to serve Christ ... come a disciple to be taug... servant to obey. "Let him f... Let him act out the above ... as Christ had done and wa... do. This is Christ's answe... quest of the Greeks. Christ ... follow the methods and ... Christ. "Where I am." In ...

Order From Japan.

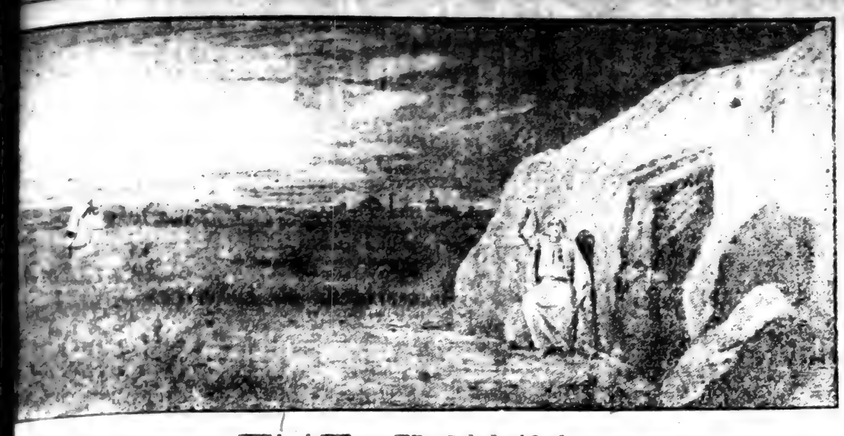
Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The ... government has ordered 5... stocks from a manufacture...

Of all the generals in th... peace or in war, the greate... eral Amnesty. He doesn't c... the field of action until the ... erals have had their fling. ... he does come he makes all ... down their arms, conclude... Louis Republic.

looking toward Gilbert, who ... drawn a chair up close to her ... ted himself in it, answered. ... w can a poor old body like me ... the church, which is a full ... e away? (Why, it is as much ... go to creep across the room." ... n't you ride?" asked Gilbert. ... without a horse," answered Mrs. ...

... is so," said Gilbert. "And it ... mean shame, it is, that even ... ere are so many horses in the ... re is not of 'em to take you ... ch."

... won't talk about that now," ... Ames. I shouldn't have ... bout this, but you see you ..., and I am afraid that you ... thinking that P don't half ap... what you have brought, but ..., I do. What an angel your



THE DAWN.

BY ANNIE H. WOODRUFF.

...n the dreaming
...ay fade away;
... to joy and
...coming day;
...ed night,
...s of the night.

When breaks the dawn of hope, the saddened soul
The future seams through gay, rose-tinted beams;
Away its burdens, sorrows swiftly roll,
And bright and best the gift of being seems;
Before that sun life's ills all fade away,
And leave the spirit free, and glad, and gay.

When breaks the dawn of love, the guilty heart—
Revealed—unlovely, desp'rate and undone—
Beholds its dark, vile denizens depart,
Before that glorious, life-giving sun;
Rejoicing that a dear Redeemer's love
Hath power to lift it for His courts above.

...on the Resurrection born,
...hath turned to glorious day,
...s of earth arise new-morn—

Joint heirs with Him who washed their sins away;
The shadows that have dimmed so long—so long!
Shall vanish at the first glad burst of song.

—Ram's Horn.

AN EASTER SURPRISE

BY ALICE MAY DOUGLAS

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

...I have bought you ...you want most ...anything." With these ...Gilbert placed the ...he had brought ...chair by the couch where ...was lying, removed his ...quite out of breath, went ...cook stove from which the ...long, fresh was supplied ...

...gray hair upon the ...and removing ...said, "God ...bless you, ...dearest Easter ...

...those frosted cakes and pies ...things are what you wanted ...anything, are they?" observed Gilbert, with a look of tenderness in his roguish black eyes.

...was somewhat perplexed. She ...to tell her young ...who had so often cheered the ...of her life with such pleasant ...from his mother as the ...That she did want what he ...ought very, very much was a ...indeed, but for the help that she ...received from Gilbert's mother, ...could not be able to live without ...upon the city for help, and ...deliberate fraud. 18. "This ...morning she was wondering ...had food enough in the house ...for over the morrow. It would ...if she had not, for the morrow ...is Easter Sunday. But, still, ...really want Dan's welcome food ...

...the world? ...did not. She ...thing that ...more ... whole ...now? ...of the ...was ...Philip," it is not known ...should come to Philip first ...was because they had some ...with him. "We ... Not merely to see ... but we would speak with Him ...taught by Him. It should be ...use of every heart to see Christ ...," said Philip." How ...could it be thus unless, when ...lives of the gospel agree and ...gether to bring souls to Christ ...thing else in the ...national church ...Sunday in ...Easter. I was ...on this day ...and want to his reward above. ...seldom that I miss ...church, no matter ...you go this year?"

...k into the basket ...And just taken

...toward Gilbert, who ...climbed up close to her ...himself in it, answered, ...old body like me ...which is a full ...Why, it is as much ...across the room." ...asked Gilbert. ...horse," answered Mrs.

...is so," said Gilbert. "And it ...is a shame, it is, that even ...so many horses in the ...not of 'em to take you ...

...won't talk about that now," ... Ames. I shouldn't have ...this, but you see you ... I am afraid that you ...thinking that I don't half appreciate what you have brought, but ...I do. What an angel your mother is to remember me in this way."

"If she is an angel," said Gilbert, "I guess I will be getting home to her before she flies away."

"Will you take the basket back?" asked Mrs. Ames.

"I might as well," answered Gilbert. Then he began to help Mrs. Ames unpack it.

All the way home Gilbert was trying to discover some plan by which to get Mrs. Ames to church upon the next day. "I never heard her say before that she wanted anything," he mused, "and now that she has spoken her mind, it is too bad I cannot get the thing she wants. It is funny, too, that one who wants to go to church so much can't get there, while there are so many who could go, but you can't get 'em to."

On reaching home Gilbert carried the basket into the kitchen, and then went for his rake to finish up the spring cleaning he was giving the lawn. As he stepped into the stable for the rake he saw something which surprised him very much. You will never be able to guess what it was, so I will tell you. It was a little black pony, standing as contentedly in the stall as if that had always been her stall, while near by was a little basket wagon, which Gilbert was certain belonged to the pony, and of course both pony and wagon belonged to him, for he was the only child in the family.

He rushed up to the pony, patted her, threw his arms about her neck, and said, "Oh, you little dear thing, where did you come from, and what is your name?"

The pony tried to answer him in pony talk as best she could, but as long as Gilbert had never had a pony before, he could not quite understand this. So back into the house he ran, right into his mother's sewing room, almost into her arms.

"Oh, mother, where did she come from? Do tell me quick," he shouted, evidently forgetting his low home tones.

"What?" asked his mother.

"Why, the pony."

"Grandpa sent it to you," replied the mother. "How do you like it?"

"Like it!" exclaimed Gilbert, "why no one could have given me a single thing that I would like half so well. Don't you want a ride right off?"

"I think I will wait a few days, thank you," said Mrs. Dennis.

"But I can't wait," said Gilbert, so back to the stable he went, and soon had the pony harnessed to the wagon. He had learned how to harness a horse when he was on Uncle Fred's farm last summer, and he now had no trouble in harnessing "his own horse," as he had already begun to call his pony. He then drove out of the stable, along the road in front of the window where his mother was, so that she could see him.

She nodded to him pleasantly and waved her hand, and he gathered the reins in one hand so that he could wave back. Then he drove down the street.

And where did he go? Ah, he went to the first place he had thought of going when he had first realized that he had a pony of his own, and that was to call upon Mrs. Ames.

She did not live far off, but it took him a long, long time to reach her house. Why did it? Simply because he met so many boys and girls he knew, and he must keep stopping and telling all where he got the pony. After awhile he met Will White, his chum, and gave him a ride, allowing him to drive a part of the way.

When he reached Mrs. Ames' home he saw her at the window eating one of the apples he had just carried her. "Here, Will, hold the reins," he said, as he stopped his pony in front of the house; "I have an errand here."

Mrs. Ames, who had seen him coming, met him at the door.

"Here's the conveyance that is to take you to church to-morrow," he said, pointing toward his new present.

"Why! why! why!" was all that Mrs. Ames could say, but when she noticed that Gilbert was waiting for her answer, she said, "at ten o'clock."

Then she went back into the house to see if her Sunday clothes needed any mending, and Gilbert and Will drove off, choosing the longest way home for the sake of the ride.

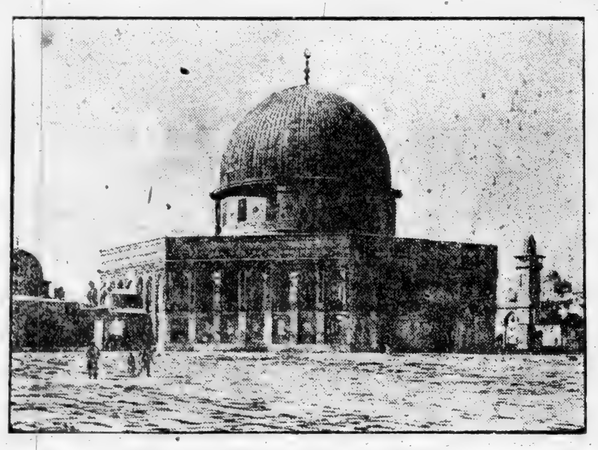
Gilbert drove up again in front of the little white house the next morning. The wagon was so low that Mrs. Ames, in spite of her lameness, could get into it with out much trouble.

Gilbert took the longest way to the church, so that his passenger could enjoy the balmy spring air.

"It is so nice to be out of doors again," she said, "and this is the first time I've been out since fall."

At the church door Gilbert left Mrs. Ames in care of the sexton, telling him to take her up in front, since she was hard of hearing. Then he drove back home, to walk to church with the rest of the family.

It was a beautiful Easter service. Everything went to make it so; the floral decorations, the music and the sweet story of the Resurrection the preacher told in so simple yet so impressive a manner. All present enjoyed the service, but none more than did Mrs. Ames and Gilbert, she, because this was her first day at church for a whole year, and Gilbert because he had been able to bring her there; then the fact that there was a pony all his own in the stable at home, added not a little to his enjoyment, and he could not help thinking of this all the time, even if it was Sunday—yes, and Easter Sunday.—Observer.



MOSQUE OF OMAR---City of Jeruselem.

The Easter Birth.

Again the flower shoot cleaves the clod;
Again the grass-spear greens the sod;
Again buds dot the willow rod.

The sap released within the tree
Is like a prisoned bird set free,
And mounteth upward buoyantly.

Once more at purple evening dream
The tender-voiced, enamored stream
Unto the rush renews its theme.

How packed with meaning this new birth
Of all the growing things on earth—
Life springing after death and dirth!

Thou, soul, that still dost darkly grope,
Hath not this, in its vernal scope,
Some radiant resurrection hope.

"The Tomb Closed by a Stone."

We know that the door of the Lord's tomb was closed by a stone rolled before the opening. Such a stone was lately found.

In a garden about a mile north of the city there was seen a little hollow. A spade was used to deepen this hollow, and a tomb was found, into which the earth had been falling.

The stone of this door was rounded on the edges so that it would roll, and on the nearly at front of it was something written. This writing is what is called Cufic, but on one has been able to read it.

The tomb was cut out of the rock, and we must go down a few steps to enter. So Peter and John and Mary are all said to have "stooped down and looked into the sepulcher."

The floor was so cut that there was a seat left on the side, and in the middle a table was left about six feet by three feet, and rising two feet above the floor. On this the body would be laid, rolled in linen with fragrant herbs, and on the seat the friends would sit when they made daily visits. After a time the body would be placed in a cavity, and then the cavity would be closed with masonry.

Somewhat like this must have been the tomb of Joseph in his garden, and on some such table the body of the Lord was laid. The stone was then put in place, and was sealed by a cord fastened with wax to the stone and the wall. Then all was still until the Divine saying was fulfilled: "After two days will He revive us; in the third day He will raise us up, and we shall live in His sight."

This was the victory of life over death, of good over evil. So did our Lord show that He is "the resurrection and the life."—Youth's Companion.

Jingles.

I.

I've hunted all around about
Among the garden rows;
And looked in every corner,
But what do you suppose?
Though I've asked everybody,
Not anybody knows
In what part of the garden
The Easter egg plant grows.

II.

Little hen, speckled hen,
Eastertide has come again;
Do me a favor now, I beg,
Lay me a pretty Easter egg.

III.

The little white rabbits, so they say,
Lay bright-colored eggs on Easter Day;
Green and purple and red and blue,
I've seen the eggs, so I know 'tis true!

At Easter-Tide.

Music and crowds, and day a perfect flower
A-blossom from its calyx, night;
And we two, captives of the witching hour,
Lulled in its leash of song and light.

Before the altar, like the morn's white soul,
The lilies breathe their fragrant prayer;
And all the air is quick with dreams they toll
From April's fancy-haunted lair.

Dim hopes and thrills, too vague for word of tongue,
And strange insistent moods of gloom,
As if some strain that Persian Omar sun
Were prisoned in their sweet perfume.

Or were our souls at some far Eastertide,
Of which to-day is still a part,
Before the altar folded side by side
Within one lily's golden heart?

—John Dahl White.

Lord of Life.

Most glorious Lord of Life! that on this day
Didst make Thy triumph over death and sin,
And, having harrowed hell, didst bring away
Captivity thence captive, us to win;
This joyous day, dear Lord, with joy begin;
And that we, for whom Thou didst sin,
May live forever in felicity!
And that Thy love, we, weighing worthily,
May likewise love Thee for the same again;
And for Thy sake, that all like dear didst buy,
With love may one another entertain.
So let us love, dear love, like as we ought:
Love is the lesson which the Lord us taught.

—Edmund Spenser.

Those Easter Belles.

Those Easter belles, those Easter belles,
Full half of them are wicked sells
That never hear, nor heed the chime
Of church bells—save at Easter time.

Those howling swells, those howling swells,
Now turning out, in swift pell mells,
Are hastening, bent on nothing else,
But flirting with those Easter belles.

Those Easter belles, those Easter belles,
How many a lie the poet tells
Who his reluctant muse compels
To sing your praises—Easter belles!

—Madeline Bridges, in Life.

EASTER BONNETS.

I went to walk on Easter Day,
In my new Easter bonnet,
And every Daffy by the way
Had one like mine upon it,

EVERY DAFFY HAD ONE, TOO!

With big wide frills and ribbons gay!
Nurse said 'twas very silly
'Cause I was 'fraid they all would say I copied Daffy Dill!

—E. S. T., in Little Folks.

TALKS WITH OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE LAND OF THE STORY BOOKS.

At evening, when the lamp is lit,
Around the fire my parents sit,
They sit at home, and talk and sing,
And do not play at anything.

Now, with my little gun, I crawl
All in the dark along the wall,
And follow round the forest track
Away behind the sofa back.

There, in the night, where none can spy,
All in my hunter's camp I lie,
And play at books that I have read
Till it is time to go to bed.

These are the hills, these are the woods,
These are my starry solitudes,
And there the river, by whose brink
The roaring lions come to drink.

I see the others far away,
As if in firelit camp they lay,
And I, like to an Indian scout,
Around their party prowled about.

So when my nurse comes in for me,
Home I return across the sea,
And go to bed with backward looks At my dear Land of Story Books.

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

THE BOY WHO DARES.

When I was a boy in my native town there was a boy in the same town who would "never take a dare," and who was always daring to do all sorts of foolhardy things on his own account. I remember that he used to dare to stand on the railroad track until the engine was almost upon him, and he would dare to climb out on the branches of the tallest trees. He would dare to walk on the tops of high walls of unfinished buildings. He would dare to do even sillier things than those I have mentioned, for I remember that once, when the other boys dared him to do it, he walked the entire length of the main street of the town wearing an enormously large hoopskirt, while he had a tin pan on his head for a hat.

Of course, a boy like this would dare to do things that were not only silly, but he would dare do things that were wrong and that were a source of annoyance and trouble to others. One day he dared bring a dead mouse to school and throw it over on the girls' side of the room during the session of the school. Of course, there was a wild scramble for the top of their seats on the part of the girls, who did not know that the mouse was dead. This threw the school into an uproar, and the boy who threw the mouse dared to tell a lie and declare that some one else threw it. The proof against him was overwhelming and he received the whipping he deserved.

I have never known one of these "never take a dare" boys to do anything really brave and heroic. Standing on a railroad track until the train is almost upon one is not the act of a brave nor of a sensible boy. It is not proof of either physical or moral courage. The man or the boy who rushes in front of an advancing train to save a little child from death is a real hero, because the deed is inspired by a desire to save another at the risk of one's own life; but to deliberately place one's life in jeopardy merely to "take up a dare" is as silly a deed as a boy can perform.

The boy who dares to do a thing of this kind will some time dare to smoke and drink, and he is quite sure to be a boy who has such full confidence in his ability to take care of himself that he will go where he pleases and do as he pleases with impunity. It is doing the boy who dares to do anything and everything no injustice to say that he is a fool, but unfortunately for him he belongs to the class of fools of whom it has been written that "the follies of the fool are known to the world, but are hidden from himself."

The boy who rushes into danger merely "to show off," or because he will not "take a dare," is not nearly so wise or brave as the boy who, seeing danger, does not overlook nor rush into it unless it is necessary to do so.

"A valiant man
Ought not to undergo or tempt a danger,
But worthily, and by selected ways;
He undertakes by reason, not by chance."

—J. L. Harbour, in the American Boy.

RANDOLPH AMONG THE BOYS.

The celebrated John Randolph, when at the zenith of his power as a leading member of Congress had three wards (nephews) at the school of the Rev. Drury Lacy, Prince Edward County, Virginia, and used to be a frequent visitor there.

It was Lacy's custom to hear his boys recite their Latin and Greek grammar lessons before breakfast, and Randolph was known, more than once, to come from Bizarre (two miles) and enter the schoolhouse by sun-up. At nine o'clock the schoolhouse was formally opened, when the boys read verses in the Bible until the chapter or portion was finished. Randolph always seemed highly pleased at this exercise, read his verse in turn, and with Lacy sometimes would ask questions. On one occasion, while reading one of the books of the Pentateuch, he stopped a lad with the question:

"Tom Miller, can you tell me who was Moses' father?"

"Jethro, sir," was the prompt answer.

"Why, you little dog, Jethro was his father-in-law!"

Then putting the question to four or five others by name, not one of whom could answer, he berated them soundly for their carelessness and inattention in reading, saying:

"When you were reading last week William Cook read the verse containing the name of Moses' father, and have you forgotten it already?"

Just then a young man caught the name, and unable to repeat the verse of the Bible, repeated a part of a line from Milton: "The potent rod of Amram's son," etc.

"Ah," said Randolph, "that is the way you learn your Bible—get it out of other books, what little you know of it," and with an excessively solemn manner and tone added: "And so it is with us all, and a terrible proof of our deep depravity it is, that we can relish and remember anything better than 'The Book.'"

This utterance, simple as it was, filled every one with awe, and made him feel guilty, while at the same time it imparted a reverence for the Bible which was never felt before, and which, from one mind at least, was never effaced. Randolph was so well pleased with the young man who quoted from his favorite author, however, that in a short time—as soon, perhaps as he could get it from Richmond—he presented him with a beautiful copy of Milton's "Paradise Lost," with a suitable inscription in his own elegant handwriting.—New York Mail.

THE DOG AND THE BONE.

I have sometimes seen a dog bury in the ground a bone for which he did not seem to have any present need. I have always understood that he did this on the principle which actuates a provident man to lay up something "for a rainy day." This may be, though I have never known a dog to dig up the bone afterward; yet some persons tell me they have known him to do this. I should think the dog must be hard pressed by famine that would attempt to gnaw a bone covered with clay and dirt, as this bone must be after being buried in the ground. If the dog hides it away through any such provident foresight as this, it must be the slight remnant, a mere adumbration, of a former instinct of his race. He does not pursue this practice in the steady, methodical way in which an ant or a bee or a squirrel lays up a stock of food against a time of need. With him it is only a fitful and rare occurrence. His long domestication and the ages through which he has received his food from the hand of his master, have obliterated largely the sense of this necessity from his mind, if he may be supposed to have a mind.

The fox, when he has had the good fortune to capture several fowls at the same time, will, it is said, secrete such as he has no present need for under a bush or behind a log. I remember that in Rowland Robinson's pleasant book, "Sam Lovell's Boy," a young fox is represented as doing this. "He began burying the leg of a lamb in the loose earth, but desisted when he saw that the eyes of all his mates were upon him, then unearthed the half buried treasure and sought a new hiding place. I do not understand that the wolf has this food hiding instinct. Gilbert White, of Selborne, says in his quaint way that he had "some acquaintance with a tame brown owl," which, when full, hid, like a dog, what he could not eat.

"The origin of most of our domestic animals," says Darwin, "will probably forever remain vague. But I may be state," he continues, "that, looking to the domestic dogs of the whole world, I have, after a laborious collection of all known facts, come to the conclusion that several wild species of Canidæ have been tamed, and that their blood, in some cases mingled together, flows in the veins of our domestic breeds." He mentions a dog whose great-grandfather was a wolf, and this dog still betrayed its wild ancestry in the fact that it never approached its master in straight line when called. But which species of the Canidæ from which the dog may have descended has the food hiding instinct or habit I have nowhere seen stated.—Forest and Stream.

THE SUNDAY SC...

INTERNATIONAL LESSON CO...
FOR APRIL 23.

...ays Ch...
...SRY Ver...
Commentary on the Day's L...

...original proce...
...the next day ...
...would be ...
...and Palm Sunday ...
...crowds were ...
...In the time ...
...and it w...
...2.700 ...
...st. "To Je...
...sins left ...
...ge, a w...
...Bethany And J...
...disciples to bring ...
...to ride into J...
...ered He ...
...There w...
...know Jesus ...
...wonders had ...
...to Bethany, excited ...
...resurrection of Laz...
...branches of palm trees." ...
...shouting of their joy ...
...and waved branches ...
...success and ...
...Considering the ...
...we get the following ...
...look off their outer ...
...and bound it on ...
...of sadness; others ...
...the way, a mark ...
...(Luke 9:33); othe...
...and twigs and ...
...He seems in a re...
...streets of the world ...
(Psa. 118:25). It w...
...of salvation! Sa...
...Jesus Christ ...
...King over the church ...
...is accepted by the ...
...Scripture is written." In Z...
...coming." There is ...
...The King is able ...
..."Daughter of Sion ...
...God's true Israel. ...
...Here was the tra...
...lowly pride and worldly ...
...pomp of poverty over affluence ...
...and ease over ...
...The horse and the ...
...of war, the ...
...and removing ...
...peace. When ...
...Jerusalem, which ...
...had wept over the ...
...the sorrows a...
...Were so soon ...
...Understood ...
...those themselves had ...
...If were dark to them ...
...so soon in their true li...
...as a prefigurative ...
...a suffering Messiah, ...
...The ignor...
...corrected ...
...What they did not ...
...understood when ...
...accession had take...
...The cause of Christ's ...
...17 Psa. 17. "The peo...
...The repeated references to the ...
...of Lazarus greatly strengthen ...
...the miracle ...
...are quite inconsistent with the ...
...either of a misunderstanding ...
...deliberate fraud. 18. "This ...
..."This" is emphatic; other mira...
...had little impression, but ...
...last convinced even Christ's ...
19. "The world." An exa...
...form of expression sho...ing ...
...pejoratively.
III. Greeks seeking Jesus ...
22-30. "Certain Greeks." T...
...word "Hellenes" means ...
...of Greek nationality, born G...
...the Greek race. "To worship ...
...Christ were proselytes to the ...
...religion (Acts 2:10, etc.). ...
Philip." It is not known w...
...should come to Philip first ...
...was because they had some ...
...with him. "We w...
...Jesus." Not merely to see H...
...but we would speak with Him ...
...taught by Him. It should be ...
...use of every heart to see Chr...
..."Sir, we would see Philip." How ...
...could it be thus unless, when th...
...lives of the gospel agree and ...
...gether to bring souls to Christ ...
IV. Jesus teaches the way ...
(Vv. 23-26).
...answered them ...
Lord spake primarily to the ...
and secondarily to His disciples ...
the meaning of His impending ... of the necessity of faithf...
Psa. 8:5, 6) of the blessing ...
Hellenic. "The hour." T...
"Should be glorified." The ...
come when the old prophesies ...
3, 60:3) are to be fulfilled. ...
...kingdom is to be set u...
...place on the right hand of ...
"And die." The seed must ...
...die to liberate the life-germ ...
...to become fruitful. Christ ...
...to complete His redemptive ...
25. "Loveth His life." T...
...translated life is often transla...
...as in verse 27. The meaning ...
...he who makes the pleasures ...
...of this life his ...
...sacrifices his right ...
...in order to obt...
...shall lose in ...
...eternity. Rewards that ...
...and shall lose his ...
...But he who sacrifi...
...all worldly ...
Christ's sake and the gospe...
...shall keep it"—shall ...
...nal life.
26. "Serve Me." Christ is ...
...in a twofold sense: He instru...
...and appoints them their w...
...he wishes to serve Christ ...
...come a disciple to be taug...
...servant to obey. "Let him fo...
...let him act out the above ...
...as Christ had done and was ...
...do. This is Christ's answer ...
...quest of the Greeks. Christ ...
...follow the methods and ex...
Christ. "Where I am." In ...

Order From Japan.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The ...government has ordered 5... stocks from a manufacture...

Of all the generals in th... peace or in war, the greate... eral Amnesty. He doesn't e... the field of action until the ... erals have had their fling, ... he does come he makes all ... down their arms, concludes ... Louis Republic.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST....

THE UNION And Yellow Jacket	$1.00
THE UNION And Home & Farm	1.00
THE UNION And Dixie Home	1.00
THE UNION Saturday News	1.25
THE UNION And Weekly Age Herald	1.25
THE UNION And Atlanta Constitution	1.25
THE UNION and Weekly Advertiser and Map of Ala., U. S. and World	1.50
THE UNION And Twice-a-Week Globe-Democrat	1.50
THE UNION And Tom Watson's Magazine	1.50
THE UNION And Tri-weekly Atlanta Constitution	1.50

If there are other papers you desire, call on us and get full list and rates.

STOCK LAW.

We will print everything that comes to us on the Stock Law question, whether for or against, that has any NEW POINTS in it. Write on one side of the paper only. If you haven't anything NEW to advance, just say, "I endorse Mr. G. W. Jones," or "I'm against him," either way, and we will print that.

MAIL FACILITIES.

We have a number of complaints from our subscribers about the way they get their mail (and the way they don't get it also). Now, if any one of our people have any complaints to make come to our office, and put them in shape for the Washington authorities. "Uncle Sam" pays Postmasters and Carriers to attend to that business, and if they think it is too much work to do the thing properly, let them resign and others can try it. We urgently ask our subscribers to report to us any DELAY or NON-DELIVERY of the Union or any of the papers it clubs with. Don't delay, but do it now.

CLANTON.

Well, here I come. I've got my crop planted, so thought I'd drop you a hint or two, but I'm not going to waste the ammunition I've saved for the next campaign, but just scatter a few shots. It looks like the fall of the year to see so much cotton on the streets, and my what sick folks. Well, it's enough to make a fellow sick to hold cotton and then sell it for 7 cents when he could have sold it for 10. I'm like the sanctified folks, I believe the Lord will take care of his own, but I expect the most of us will be afraid to risk him next time that cotton is 10 cents. The cotton growers' association is moving on, and I predict great things for it in the future, but you must keep politics out, and whenever a candidate puts his head up you must take it off, but you know this people are hard to fool, and it will take more than a little washing soap and blarney to represent them in the Legislature. Old farmers, keep your eyes skinned, and what you don't see, I'll tell you, and all I'll charge you is the best office in the county that you have to fill next time. I can't decide which office I want. I look at the sheriff's office mighty wishful one time, but there is Mr. Morgan; he'll be mighty disappointed if he don't get it, but I reckon disappointments are fair in politics, and so I may decide to take the sheriff's office. And then I look at the office of representative, but I can't tell a lie and I'd be no good there, and then there is Mr. A. C. Smith, he's getting mighty popular with the people, and many of them seem to want him to run for the Legislature on our ticket, and do you know I'd like to see all good men line up for him the next battle, and let those so-called republicans that work for the democratic ring, and carry it all the information they can during a campaign, go hang. It's enough to make any man blush for shame to know what passed between these so-called Republicans and the Democratic clique last campaign, it will all come out some time. I know a good deal about it, and I'm a poor hand to keep such secrets. Here's what I mean: Let the Populists and true Republicans and good democrats line up together, and then let the bogus republicans and the court house ring get out in the open on the other side, under their true colors, and then we'll have pure politics. If I wanted a Federal office I'd call myself a republican and work for the democratic ring, get all the news I could from true republicans and carry it to the ring of demmies, that's the way it was done the last campaign; but "all's well that ends well." Let me drop a hint to all of you that want to elect our ticket next time, to get up behind our paper, THE UNION, don't you know that the democrats are doing all they can for the banner, trying all they know how to reinstate Criton with our people, and at the same time trying to get them to drop THE UNION? They talk against Mr. Edler and run him down, etc., but THE UNION represents our people, and even if I didn't like the editor I'd take the paper that WORKS for US. Keep your eyes open, old farmers, and let's push our paper and get ready for the next campaign, for I don't want to take any risk, and I've told you I'll be in it somewhere, I'm like Hobson, "I'm looking over the field." Well, don't the democrats make you sick slobbering over Roosevelt? Aren't they the greatest set of hypocrites you ever saw? Just read some of their papers before election and now. It's enough to make one sick and disgusted, but it shows that there is nothing to the democratic party. All they can do is to criticise and object to what others do. But ain't it wonderful how they can "holler nigger" during a campaign and drive their crowd together like frightened sheep. At present you might take a fine tooth comb and rake Chilton over and you'd hardly find a democrat, but when the bosses get out and holler "nigger" they'll come out of the bushes. It looks like as if another fishing trip or two to Florida, we may lose one, if not two, of our clerks, but we hope for the best. Well, goodby, brethren, and don't forget what I've said about the Legislature. Traveling in foreign countries didn't bring the coveted honor. Say that word honor makes me think of an old farmer over in Coosa some years ago. He had accumulated a good pile of THIS WORLD'S goods, so he says "wife, we've got money enough now, let's get some honors," so he started and went to all the people's meetings and gave them lots of good advice, but the people said "too late." I'll meet you at court next month if I'm up with my crop and the Lord is willing.

JUST A VOTER.

RANDOLPH.

Cold weather. Some of our farmers have cotton up. Prof. Martin's school closed Friday night with a concert. A large crowd attended. Everything carried out well and was a success. Miss Sallie Crumpton, of Macedonia, has a position at the Randolph Hotel. Louis Meroney, of Selma, came up Saturday night on a visit to his mother. Walter LeNoir and wife were in town Saturday. Pastor S. Smitherman, of Briarfield, was a welcome visitor last week. Mr. McCormick and Miss Ervin, of Decatur, have been visiting Mr. J. C. Harrison. Miss Pearl Meroney went home with her brother Sunday to Selma. Misses Selma Patterson and Rena Wright and J. W. Wright, Jr., visited the family of Z. J. Jones Friday night. Among our visitors the past week we noticed F. J. Fitts, Fonny Williams and J. L. Palmer. Mrs. P. M. McKerall left for Birmingham last week on a visit to her mother. Clerk Sam W. Collins is a model for the young men of Chilton. He is a Populist of the true ring, a young man of the people, TRUE to the great common people that elected him; Chilton should appreciate her Clerk.

Read THE UNION and get the news.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

BEAT FOUR.

Everybody and his family are planting cotton, and corn is looking well, even if it is wintry weather. Wiley Foshee is still very sick, but his son is doing fairly well. Rev. A. L. Foshee preached a very interesting sermon at Liberty Hill Sunday to a large congregation. Alfred Maddox, of Pleasant Grove, attended preaching at Liberty Sunday. Miss Lillie Mims visited her sister Sunday. G. G. went to see his best girl last Sunday and seemed pleased with his visit. F. H. was seen strolling along the sunny lane Sunday with a broad smile on his face. His companion was merry, and Madame Rumor says "wedding bells will soon be ringing." Hurrah for G. W. Jones and Z. S. Avery and all of us. We hear that some are planning to catch "Old Lonesome Joe" and hold him till h's recognized; they'll have to hustle if they trap him. Ta! ta! Catch me if you can.

LONESOME JOE.

AGAINST STOCK LAW.

Editor Union:

A few words to "Observer." Don't you have some cows that you have to keep up, to keep them out of the field? You surely don't want cows kept up that neither jump nor tear down fences, and bother nothing but the grass God put here for them. I've never owned a "Blue John" cow. I reckon what you call "blue john milk" has had the cream skimmed off. Good readers, don't it look like "Observer" could have plenty of milk and butter here if he would just prepare him two acres of land? It seems like he has tried it or seen it tried before he came here. It may be that it costs too much to prepare those two acres. I left Chilton in March, 1904, went to Elmore Co. They've stock law there and I tell you I couldn't buy milk and butter more than half the time I was at Prattville Junction. Allie Long, a man that worked for me, he didn't own a cow, but he had one hog, and he put a collar on it and used to stake it out where it could get some grass. The cows there, some were common and some were good stock. The common stock belonged to poor men and the fine ones to rich men. Mr. Scott owned more cows than any man I knew of. As regards beef, it sold there at 6 and 7 cents, and here it sells at 5 and 6; that shows that beef would be higher here if we had stock law. I was raised on Coosa river and my father raised a great many hogs, which cost him but little, as they would be on the range till fall, and then he would turn them into the pea field and then they were worth double the money they had cost him. I was on Mulberry last winter, where I saw lots of fine fat hogs, and I'm satisfied they cost their owners but little. We've but little range from here to Clanton on the "long lane." Must we get stock law here, and then fence against other beats that don't want it? To get the benefits of our own pastures we would have to fence as much as we do now, is the way I look at it. A little more about Elmore. While I was working there the station agent asked me to go in a potato patch where one of his hogs had rooted up a few hills, and the owner of the patch wanted $1.00 for damages. I've been here near 5 years and have never been called on to assess damages for stock trespassing. What is the matter with J. S. J. at Coopers? Success to THE UNION and "Observer."

G. W. JONES.

KALONAH.

Our cotton association meets the 3d Saturday in each month, so last Saturday we met and elected D. W. Killingsworth as our delegate to attend the meeting at Clanton the 1st Saturday in May. Well, G. W. Jones is my man after his piece in last week's paper. He is just right about stock law. Some say they are tired of making fences. Tell me what better will stock law make it for them, for it will take a better fence to keep stock in than to keep them out. We don't need any stock law in District 55. What would the man do that doesn't own land, rent it and pay a dollar a month for each head of stock he owns? And then feed them into the bargain. Never, if we can help it. W. J. Reliford and R. B. Price were visitors of John Patton here last night. Bless THE UNION and Mr. Jones.

"LITTLE BILL."

THORSBY.

Mrs. Simonton and children left for Arkansas last week. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Peck, who have been pleasant visitors at the Thorsby Inn for some months, left for their Chicago home on the 12th. Mr. and Mrs. Winslow left for Indiana last week. Mr. Carlson, who has been visiting his father here, has returned to his northern home. Mr. Dennis, of Marion, spent last Wednesday with us. Mrs. Davidson, of Chicago, is visiting her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Amundson. Miss Susie Horn, who has been sick for several days, is improving. Mr. and Mrs. Schive, of Illiopolis, Ill., have come to make their home with us. We welcome them, and wish Mr. Schive success in the jewelry business. The frost of Sunday night did considerable damage in this locality; old Jack Frost doesn't receive a warm welcome when he visits Thorsby. THE UNION Sunday School one and all to their Easter entertainment, to be given at the College Hall on Sunday night. Mr. A. L. Wambem and family left for St. Ausgor, Iowa, on the 17th. We deeply regret saying goodby, but hope to see them here again. Miss Nannie O. Shivers has returned to her Montevallo home. The attendance at the Teachers' Institute held here Friday and Saturday was not large, but very interesting. The reception given in honor of the teachers and visitors was enjoyed by all. The paper read by Mrs. Conaughey, of Montevallo, was highly appreciated by those in attendance.

"TWO OF US."

BEAT FOUR.

A few words in reply to "Observer" about stock law. I don't see where he got his idea that stock law follows civilization. There wouldn't be any trespassing of stock if he would keep his fences up and gates shut. What is grass for if not for stock to eat? God put it here for that purpose. Who does the stock law benefit? Why, the man that owns the most land. It don't benefit the renter. "Observer" says "one acre of prepared pasture was sufficient for one cow," but he did not say for how long. It would take a cow but a few weeks to eat all that was on the one acre. So he wouldn't get any better, nor as good, results as he does now without stock law. Stock law won't pass over here so long as there are so many people like Brothers Jones, Avery, me and others. I think that "Observer" would be glad to get "blue john" milk if he had stock law. He says it's cheaper for him to wait here for stock law than to move to it. I've always found it a good idea when I wanted anything to go to it, and not wait for it to come to me. So let "Observer" fence off an acre for each of his cows and keep them there and feed them on corn cobs if he thinks he can get more milk that way. I've plenty to do without roping my hogs and carrying them to the oaks to feed on acorns, as we'd have to do if we had stock law. So, if he wants stock law let him move to a county where they have it and not bother us people that were born and raised here and don't want it. I endorse all that Brothers Jones and Avery say. I don't believe those that want stock law know what it is. It will only keep the lazy man from splitting rails and building fences, and not only that; it will keep the little children of many poor men from having milk and butter with their bread. In the name of the most Holy One, what will become of the poor renter and widow women? There are widowed ladies living in this community without one to help them, but with the aid of their cows and pigs they make an honest living. Stock laws make enemies of good friends. Communities that are at peace now will speak evil of each other. Stock law means simply this: No stock for the poor man. With best wishes to the Union and its many readers,

"SCHOOL BOY."

MARS HILL.

I see so many nice articles in your paper that it entices me to write again. Of course I'm glad to see so many expressing their opinion on the different questions, more especially on stock law, for that certainly is a warm subject, and wherever two or more men get together they argue on stock law. I wish I knew enough about it to express myself in the arguments, but all I know is by reading after it. My belief is that we need something to better our country communities, and if stock law will do it, let's have it, and the sooner the better. I've never lived in a stock law country, so I've no experience, but it does seem to me that we could fence against our own stock better, easier and with less expense than we can against everybody's stock. As "Observer" says about ill feelings, I don't think stock law will increase them much, for we've got them now and will have them until the "millenium" comes. Some say, "Oh! there would be people who would run around nights and turn your stock out and lead them into their fields just to get you into it for damages." Well, I say if that be the case, let's have the law and run such people out of the country.

A nice rain has fallen after some pretty weather and everything is growing.

J. D. Scott and family were pleasant visitors Sunday. Mr. Scott is a son of our neighbor, O. P. Scott. A "sing" was given in honor of David on Sunday night at C. L. Langston's, and we certainly had a nice time, especially us young folks.

D. W. Scott and son, Morgan, and A. J. Scott and son, Columbus, went to Montevallo Friday, and D. W. brought back a new $47 Studebaker wagon, but he had to sell a bale of cotton for 7 1-4 cents.

M. L. Scott is up with his work and goes fishing day and night.

Success to the Union and its readers. "DAD'S PLOW BOY."

MARS HILL.

People of this section are doing nicely. The Farmers' Alliance met Saturday afternoon, but having no urgent business on hand soon adjourned. Some of our singers here were at the singing at Mount Moriah. Miss Fannie Johnson, of Jemison, was a pleasant visitor here Sunday. The Scotland Ball players are moving slow at present, but intend to hustle when the weather warms up. Armon Scott, of Randolph, visited friends and relatives here Saturday. D. W. Scott says that his new wagon has banished his blue feelings.

"WHISTLING RUFUS."

MACEDONIA.

There will be religious services at the Waldrup school house, near this place, on the fifth Sunday and Saturday before (April 29-30) conducted by Mr. B. H. Barton, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Barton is a young man, an able and fluent speaker. All are invited to attend. The services will be strictly undenominational. He is traveling under the auspices of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Allegheny, Pa. Very respectfully, tf W. R.

SPECIAL OFFER! !

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

AS I READ THE BIBLE.

By Rev. Job Reynolds.

Justification is a change of state, a new standing before God; repentance is a change of mind, a new mind about God; regeneration is a change of nature, a new heart from God; conversion is a change of life, a new life for God; adoption is a change of family, a new relationship toward God; sanctification is a new condition with God; glorification is sanctification completed. The light of Heaven is the face of Jesus; the joy of Heaven is the presence of Jesus; the melody of Heaven is the name of Jesus; the theme of Heaven is the work of Jesus; the fullness of Heaven is Jesus himself. The word itself is a lamp to guide and direct us; medicine to heal us; a sword to defend us; a fire to inflame us; water to cleanse us; salt to season us; milk to nourish us, and a key to unlock Heaven. That is what the Bible is to us, and a good deal more if we would only live it. May God help us to live right.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St. THE BIG STORE, Cor. Ave 7th S

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Sho

FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. — — Alaban

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WAT

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

Thorsby, Alab

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Associat

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and tents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

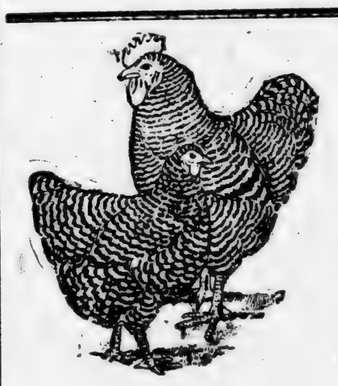
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Al

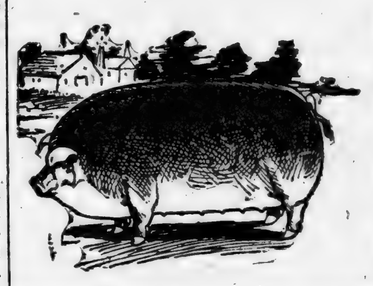


WOODLAW FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eg 50c. Packing for shi 10c extra.



PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,

Maplesville, Alab

DISPATCH PRINTING C

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers. County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM,

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Pric

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

GEN R L MERCHANDISE A FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Bra

"Are the Best on Earth."

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alab

AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

Circuit Court.

Term—Third Monday in Ma
Term—Fourth Monday in No

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
ator—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

—Second Monday in
Term—Second Monday in Sep

Chancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.

Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

nd Monday February, first Mon
April, first Monday June, second
July, second Monday August,
Monday November.

County Officers.

ge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds. asurer—W. T. Calloway.
riff—J. M. Morgan.
Editor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

District—W. H. Conway.
nd District—Alex Glasscock.
rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
th District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

tors and clerks are cordially ask send the editor any news regard their churches which they would published. Also if there are any in these notices please send cor ns.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

h-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd y. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billings F. D. No. 1.

nton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

tnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, unday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

erty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman unday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

edonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman unday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

w Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

lar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee unday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

ion Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, ay. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton llins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

ion Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

easant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

rs Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st ay. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

thel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; ay before the second Sunday; J. bernathy, clerk, Verbena.

cky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song ice every 2nd and 4th Sunday af oons. Prayer meeting every Wed ny night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

nton R. A. Chapter, No. 116— d Saturday, Clanton.

eaude Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Clanton.

ntury Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Billingsley.

zeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 534—Saturday on or before full n, Marbury.

mison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Saturday on or before full moon, son.

nton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Tuesday on or before full moon, ton.

I. O. O. F.

mison Lodge—First and third Sat ys.

nton Lodge, No. 304— Second and h Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

ack Jack Camp, No. 190—First and Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

mo Tribe, No. 90—First and Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs ally invited. E. B. Langston, C. J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

reka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second fourth Saturdays.

CLANT

Total re
Price on Total re
Price

PER

BIG STORE, Cor. Ave. 7th St.

The Head of The Procession.

Clothing, Hats, Shoes

URNITURE,

D BURIAL NECESSITIES.

I. MULLINS,

Alabama

ter Prevents Fevers.

LS FURNISH PURE WATER

water or no charge made. Address

E. SARBER CO.

Alabama

ual Insurance Associati

of Alabama.

SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

People and for the People.

n County Branch

ized February 3rd, 1900.

N. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

rs' Dwellings, Outbuildings and C

Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind

he Cheapest, Safest and Most Insurance Known to Man.

56-100 of 1 percent.

nished upon application to

LACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

WOODLAWN FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eggs 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.

PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices before you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX,

Maplesville, Alabama

H PRINTING CO

Makers and Lithographers.

Office Supplies a Specialty.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

's Restaurant

at Reasonable Prices

North 20th Street,

NGHAM, ALABAMA.

MERCHANDISE AND

ERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

cial & Mule Brand

he Best on Earth.

C. JONES,

Alabama

TS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

Circuit Court.

Term—Third Monday in May.
Term—Fourth Monday in No

—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
ctor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
k—Sam W. Collins.

ancery Court.

Second Monday in Term Second Monday in Sep
er.
ncellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides,
gister—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clan

County Court.

t Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

ond Monday February, first Mon
April, first Monday June, second day July, second Monday August,
Monday November.

County Officers.

ge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
asurer—W. T. Callen.
riff—J. M. Morgan.
itor—J. O. Middleton.
Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

t District—W. H. Conway.
ond District—Alex Glasscock.
rd District—R. P. Kendrick.
rth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

of. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

n. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

stors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

eth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley, R. F. D. No. 1.

anton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

hestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 1st Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

iberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman, 2nd Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

acedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman, 4th Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

ew Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 1st Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

oplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

nion Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

ollins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

nion Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 2nd Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

easant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 3rd Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

ars Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

ethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Saturday before the second Sunday; J. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

ocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. J. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song service every 2nd and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—3rd Saturday, Clanton.

Amazde Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —First Saturday, Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., 334—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. —Tuesday on or before full moon, Clanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No 304—Second and 4th Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and 3rd Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

mo Tribe, No. 90—First and 3rd Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to April 19, '05, 7,048.
Price on same date, 7 1-8c.
Total receipts same week, '04, 6,648.
Price same date, 13 3-8c.

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

The therometer at Clanton Station showed 32 degrees on Sunday night, and 35 on Monday night. Pretty cool for the last half of April.

A. L. Collins was a pleasant visitor Thursday.

R. A. Hancock was in Clanton Thursday. He is having a bad time with a carbuncle.

H. N. Martin was in town Thursday.

W. Q. Childress was a pleasant visitor Friday.

S. S. Scott was in Clanton Thursday.

J. E. and W. C. Robinson were in town Thursday.

J. W. McDowell was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

W. R. Taylor was in Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. I. R. Lindsey and Coke Sharbutt and wife were visitors in Clanton Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ward were in town Saturday.

Terrell Ward, of Jemison, who has been visiting J. P. Crumpton, went home Saturday. Mr. Ward says his brother, who has been soldiering in the Philippines, will soon be at home.

C. C. Swint was in Clanton Saturday.

R. A. Smith was in town Saturday.

R. W. Foshee, M. L. Giles, G. L. Giles and T. W. Atchley were in town Saturday.

H. I. Honeycutt spent Sunday at his father's in Beat 3.

M. F. Lett was in Clanton Saturday.

J. M. Curlee was in town Saturday. He says he is holding onto his cotton.

H. C. Martin, of Jemison, was in Clanton Saturday.

W. H. Bean was a pleasant visitor Monday.

"Buck" Arledge was a welcome caller Monday.

Rev. B. H. Vickers was in town Monday, bringing his daughter, Esther, who is improving slowly. The little one has been sick ten months.

Miss Zella Mims left Saturday for Jacksonville, Ala., where she will attend school. Her grandfather, Assessor A. C. Mims, accompanied her as far as Calera.

R. A. Miller was in Clanton Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robbins were in town Tuesday.

W. H. Cleckler was a pleasant visitor Tuesday.

'Squire J. N. Dennis was in Clanton Tuesday.

Two of Thorsby's brightest and prettiest girls, the Misses Anna Howard and Carol Olson, were visitors to Clanton Tuesday.

Asst. U. S. District Attorney J. Sternfield, of Montgomery, was in Clanton on business Tuesday. Mr. Sternfield is a very genial gentleman and very successful in his profession.

President Montague, of Howard college, preached in the Baptist church Sunday, giving the large congregation an exceedingly able, scholarly discourse. After the sermon he made an appeal for funds for his college, and received pledges for several hundred dollars. W. I. Mullins, E. M. Pinckard and Tipton Mullins gave $50 each; Mrs. E. A. Mullins, Mrs. C. V. Heath and Joseph Johnson, $25 apiece, and numerous smaller sums, making a nice total for Clanton, showing that people who give hundreds for higher education could very easily be induced to give thousands for the cause of absolutely necessary education at their doors.

F. M. Foshee, at present with A. Stein, of Calera, was in Clanton Monday.

There was a small blaze in Clanton Tuesday afternoon, E. H. Foshee's stable being destroyed by fire. A horse was saved, but the feed, etc., was lost.

Henry Carter was given up by his bondsmen Tuesday and is now in jail at Montgomery. He is charged with perjury by the U. S.

Joe Burnett was in Clanton Wednesday.

Tillman Adams was taken to Montgomery on Wednesday by Dep. Marshal J. F. Goodgame to answer to a charge of selling liquor without a license.

The Postoffice Inspector in charge of Rural routes came to Clanton Wednesday to investigate a proposed new route from there. 'Squire J. N. Dennis will take him over the ground.

Wiley Foshee was in Clanton Wednesday. He has had a hard spell of sickness, but is on the mend now.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Robert Gore and Miss Mary Bean.
Treadwell Smith and Miss Effie Gentry.

COLORED.

Dave King and Pearl Aldridge.

EASTER EGG HUNT.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church of Clanton will give an Easter egg hunt on Saturday, April 22d. The hunt will begin at 4 p. m. on the lot at the west side of Mr. Crit Jones' residence on Second avenue. Entrance fee for hunters, 5 cents. Everybody invited to come, especially the children.

tf

BEAT 9 SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION,

To Be Held at New Salem Church, Sunday, April 30th, Commencing at 9:30 a. m.

PROGRAM.

9:30 a. m. Devotional service by the President.

10 a. m. Should an Unconverted Person be Allowed to Teach in the Sunday School?—F. Eiland.

10:30 a. m. How Can We Get Young Men Interested in the Sunday School?—Willie Sorrell.

11 a. m. What is the Relation of the Church to the Sunday School?—J. W. Hayes.

11:30 a. m. How Can We Secure Lesson Study on the Part of the Scholars?—Daniel Merchant.

12:00 Adjournment for dinner.

1:30 p. m. The Sunday School as an Educational Force—Prof. R. A. Rasco.

2 p. m. Sabbath Desecration; Its Effects on the Sunday School.—J. J. Stanley.

2:30 p. m. How Can We Make Our Work so Helpful to the Churches That it Will be Recognized by all as Necessary?—Miss Anna Howard.

3 p. m. How to Teach a Temperance Lesson—Mrs. John Winslow.

Short discussions on all subjects will be allowed. Exercises to be interspersed with music and song.

A cordial invitation is extended to all. Come with your baskets well filled with good things. Let us spend the day together in doing good.

J. BICE, President.

MINUTES OF CHILTON COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE HELD AT THORSBY APRIL 14-15, 1905.

Institute called to order by Supt. J. W. Moore.

Devotional. Reading scripture and prayer with songs.

Welcome Address—Prof. J. L. Ruffin.

"To What Extent Should the Bible be Taught in the Public Schools?"—Miss Nannie O. Shivers. Discussed by Supt. J. W. Moore and Prof. Robert Sessions.

Enrollment of teachers.

Noon.

Afternoon session opened with song.

"Need of Better School Buildings"—A. E. Davis.

Solo.

"School Improvements"—Mrs. J. L. McConaughy. Discussed by Miss Shivers and others, with the view of organizing School Improvement Associations. Unanimous vote of interest in the movement taken.

"The Teacher's Work"—Sketch of life of Thomas Arnold—Prof. R. E. Sessions.

Adjournment.

SESSION OF 15TH.

Institute opened at 10 a. m. with song and prayer by Prof. R. A. Rasco.

Informal discussion of "School Improvement Association."

"Results of Local Taxation"—W. B. Speers. Discussed by Mr. E. H. Parrish and Profs. Ruffin, Rasco and Moore. Motion requesting the County Board to keep the matter of local taxation before the people was carried.

"Work of the Teacher"—Miss Mary Lee Maxwell.

Talk by Miss E. M. Haley.

Following resolution offered by Prof. Sessions was adopted:

"Resolved, That we, the teachers of Chilton County Institute, do hereby tender our thanks to Mrs. J. L. McConaughy for her presence and work of inspiration among us in our session at Thorsby April 14-15.

"Resolved 2, That we declare ourselves in harmony with the great work of organizing "School Improvement Associations" in which she is engaged.

Resolved 3, That we, by reason of appreciation of the great importance of this work, do all in our power to establish such organization in our respective fields of labor."

Committee on resolutions made following report:

"Resolved, That we, the teachers of Chilton county, assembled in an Institute at Thorsby, hereby desire to express our thanks and appreciation to the people of Thorsby for the kindness and hospitality extended us while in their midst; and especially do we wish to tender our thanks to Prof. Ruffin and Misses Gerrold and Shivers for their efforts in entertaining the teachers and visitors at the dormitory last evening.

"Respectfully submitted,
"W. B. SPEER,
"A. L. GRANT,
"MISS MARY L. MAXWELL,
"Committee."

Resolutions adopted unanimously.

Song and adjournment. The following teachers were enrolled, viz.: J. H Anderson, C. M. Baker, A. E. Davis, E. W. Miller, J. W. Moore, J. L. Ruffin, W. B. Speer, R. E. Sessions, R. A. Dickinson, A. L. Grant, R. A. Rasco, G. B. Wheeler, Mrs. J. L. McConaughy, Misses Hattie Garner, Maud Gerrold, Mary F. Jackson, E. M. Haley, Mary Lee Maxwell, Della Wambem, Nannie O. Jackson, Ella Williams.

A. E. DAVIS, Sec'y.

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No 1.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAX-PAYERS.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

The tax collector of Chilton county has filed in my office a list of delinquent taxpayers and of real estate upon which taxes are due. The persons named below or owners unknown are reported as delinquent, and the following real estate is reported as assessed to them, to-wit.

BEAT NO. 1.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co., or Owner Unknown: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 and the E. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 36, T. 24, R. 15. Tax and costs, $5.44.

BEAT NO. 2.

Jennie S. Edler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4, Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.54.

Mrs. L. C. Latham: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 3, T 23, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.49.

W. B. Strong: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 21, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 3.

W. E. Edwards: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 23, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.06.

Mary Jackson: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 4, T. 22, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.19.

BEAT NO. 4.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co.: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 34, T 21, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.18.

Samuel M. Pickler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4, Sec. 35, T 24, R 14; and the E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 31, T 21, R 17; and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 20, R 12; and the W. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 8, T 22, R 16. Tax and costs, $41.05.

The Southern Mineral Land Co., or Owner Unknown: All of Sec. 15, T 24, R 12; and the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 21, T 24, R 12; and the N. 1-2 of Sec 22, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $24.07.

The Magnetic Ore Co., or owner unknown: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 16; and the N. 1-2 and the E 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 23, R 15; and the S. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 23, R 15; and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23, R 15. Tax and costs, $33.75.

BEAT NO. 5.

S. H. Glen: The S. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E 1-4 of Sec. 1, T 20, R 16; and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 20, R 16; and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 20, R 16. Tax and costs, $10.84.

BEAT NO. 6.

J. M. Askins: The S 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 14. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 7.

James Broadnax: The S. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 21, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.56.

Frank Fuller: One house and lot in Ridersville, Alabama, known as the Frank Fuller residence. Tax and costs, $4.58.

BEAT NO. 8.

John V. Coe: The E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 22, T 20, R 13, and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 23, T. 20, R 13. Tax and costs, $6.93.

Mrs. C. Paul: The N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 16, T. 20, R 11. Tax and costs, $7.02.

W. J. Stoudermire: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 18, T 21, R 11; and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 21, R 11. Tax and costs, $4.44.

H. B. & G. B. Shearer: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 20, R 12. Tax and costs, $6.79.

BEAT NO. 9.

J. Amtoft: The N. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 8, T. 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.86.

Mrs. Claura I. E. Collins: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.96.

Paul C. Goetch: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.03.

John Peterson: The N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 5, T 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.74.

R. C. Reinertson: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.90.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of said county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 8th day of May, 1905, and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed against you, and for fees and costs. After the decree is granted in each of the above cases, additional costs in the way of tax commissioners' fees will be added and collected. This 5th day of April, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLS,
tf Judge of Probate.

A good neighbor is one who isn't too neighborly.

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.

tf. T. M. Driver.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.,

Furniture and Rugs.

—SOLE AGENTS—

Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.

Catalogue for the asking.

1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PAUL CALAME,

205 21st Street

Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician

Eyes Correctly Fitted

Mail orders promptly filled

TO THE COTTON GROWERS OF THE SOUTH.

If you wish to win your battle and obtain a fair price for your cotton you must reduce your acreage very considerably. You have surprised the world by the manner in which you have held your cotton. Surprise it again by cutting down your cotton acreage. Do not be led astray by the present steadiness of prices. Three causes have contributed to bring about this rise of more than a cent a pound. First, the urgent demand arising from an unprecedented consumption. Second, your courage and wisdom in making the buyer meet your terms. Third, the belief that you would cut your acreage to such an extent that the supplies from this crop and the growth of 1905-6 would make a commercial crop no larger than the world needs. The first two causes lose their force the moment it is known that there is a prospect for a moderately large crop next year. Even if the mills take 12,000,000 bales during the current season, this would leave a carry-over of 1,500,000 bales. Hence the necessity of a smaller crop this year. Do not let any rise in prices between now and the end of the planting season deter you from reducing your acreage. Such an advance would be merely anticipating that you were making the decrease which your friends have advised you to make. If the June report of the Government shows that you have failed to make sufficient reduction the only persons who would be gainers by the advance would be the speculators who sell out their futures at a profit. The price of the cotton you produce will be regulated by the actual, not the expected, reduction. In this matter of acreage reduction bear in mind three suggestions: Don't depend on your neighbor to do the reducing. Don't rely on bad weather to cut down the size of the crop. Don't put a large acreage into cotton simply because it is too late to plant corn or other diversified crops. It would be far better to let part of your land lie idle than to run the risk of raising a crop so large as to make possible another period of low-priced cotton. I am making this appeal to you because I regard the next few weeks as critical to the South, and because I believe that every man who is interested in the welfare of the South should urge the importance of a reduced acreage.

DANIEL J. SULLY,
No. 43 Exchange Place, New York City, April 7, 1905. tf

ROCKY MOUNT.

The Chilton County Musical Convention will meet with the Rocky Mount class (2 miles east of Jemison) in a special session the 5th Sunday in April. Bring your "Singing for Joy" song books and a whole lot of good things to eat, and spend the day and have a good time.

tf "ONE OF THE BOYS."

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

G. A. Zimmerman, Complainant, vs. C. A. Zimmerman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. Osmond Middleton, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her residence is, to affiant, unknown, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, C. A. Zimmerman, is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in THE UNION, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said C. A. Zimmerman, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 12th day of May, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 11th day of April, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
4-13-05 4t

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Liver. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 33, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
3-23-05 6t Register.

Australia's Gain.

It is estimated by the Commonwealth statistician that since 1892 the population of Australia has gained 27,558 by new arrivals and lost 29,000 by departures.

YOUR SHOE MONEY

Will go farther and last longer if you Insist upon having the Right kind of Shoes. Your dealer will sell you the

"ALWAYS JUST CORRECT"

CLOVER BRAND SHOES

If you ask him for them; if he hasn't got them, they're worth waiting for until he gets them.

The RIGHT SHOES for ALL SORTS of WEAR

You can pay as little or as much as you want to. For the most for your money, buy "Rigeur."

Wertheimer-Swarts Shoe Co.

LARGEST FINE SHOE EXCLUSIVISTS

ST. LOUIS, U. S. A.

A Strange Bird.

A strange bird caught by Mr. Hawkins at Monroe, Conn., proves to be of the class of swimming birds, one name for which is the diver. They go in flocks and contrary to the usual custom of migrating birds, come North in September and go South in the spring.

Children Dying.

At this season of the year, when warm days follow cool nights and the eating of fruit and vegetables affecting the stomach, bowels, etc., we hear of so many children dying. Give them Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial, the great specific for all bowel troubles and children teething.

Sold by all Druggists, 25 and 50c bottle.

An Old Love Letter.

The oldest love letters were found recently. They were written by a Babylonian gentleman about 2,200 years before Christ, and were sent to a woman in Sapparra. It is surprising to find that, barring a slight quaintness of diction, they might have been written yesterday. One of these letters is addressed to the writer's "little sheep" and it is declared that "you alone are my life. I could spend eternity in the light of your eyes."

Dyspepsia of Women

ABSOLUTELY NEEDLESS AGONY

Caused by Uterine Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has peculiar uterine-tonic effects also.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Maggie Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:

"For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which so degenerated my entire system that I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and nothing that I ate tasted good and it caused a disturbance in my stomach. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a fine tonic, and in a few days I began to enjoy and properly digest my food. My recovery was rapid, and in five weeks I was a well woman. I have recommended it to many suffering women."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement or has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

10 CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE
ECONOMY BLUE
Makes Full Quart Best Wash Bluing

15 years on the market. Ask dealer, or we will send by mail, package upon receipt of 10c in stamps and your dealer's name.
Bringers Mfg. Co., Louisville, Ky.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS. FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES Standard Goods Only. Free catalogue to Dealers. BLEELOCK MFG. CO. 915 Locust St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

500 PER CENT. PROFIT IN NEW ORLEANS LOTS

United States Government is spending millions on New Naval Station, adjoining which we offer 100 lots to first purchasers at low price of $125 each. Send $5 today and secure first choice. Balance 50 monthly. New electric railway and all through property. Sewers, streets, many trees and improvements, according to state height-board. Their completion will make these lots five hundred per cent. MEXICAN GULF LAND COMPANY, 59 Hibernia Bank Bldg., New Orleans, La.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

If afflicted with sore eyes use Thompson's Eye Water

Hydrogen was discovered by Henry Cavendish at the age of 53.

A Heavy Fine.

Under the Elkins law any railroad company which pays rebates in any form, or any shipper who accepts them, is liable to a fine of from $1000 to $20,000 upon conviction. It also prohibits the carrying of freight at less than the published tariffs. The Interstate Commerce Commission is empowered to detect and prosecute violators of this statute. President Knapp, of the commission, states that since this law was passed rebate paying has been as rare as forgery.

French Printing Trade Exhibition.

Following British precedent of 1904, an international exhibition of printing, papermaking, journalism, engraving and all graphic arts is to be held in Paris in 1906. It is to be the largest show of the kind ever held. Paper manufacturing and wood pulp making will, it is stated, be shown in operation.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Nickle's Worth of Jumps.

"A small boy came into my store the other day," remarked the druggist, "and asked for five cents' worth of 'jumps.' Now what do you suppose he wanted?"

When everybody gave it up the druggist told them what the boy had been sent for was hops.—New York Press.

The cost of the British expedition into Tibet was $4,063,750, all of which Tibet will have to pay.

Wasp Expert.

Studying wasps for scientific purposes is the recreation of Miss Wilhelmina Enteman, who is at present investigating the conditions of their life in California. Though biological investigations have had her attention for only five years, Miss Enteman has studied wasps from childhood, and has traveled extensively in making her investigations. She thinks them a much maligned insect, and finds them vastly interesting, insisting that they are as industrious as bees and as wise as ants. Wasps possess the sharpest eyes of any insect, she has ascertained, and while possessed of a vast amount of curiosity, they are no more quarrelsome than other little animals. During the years of her study, Miss Enteman has very seldom been stung while handling the fiery little midgets, though moving them from tiny wire cages and feeding them on the tip of her finger.

HONEST CONFESSION.

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly confession of the fact.

A case in point is that of an eminent practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads.' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons. I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does. I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for ten years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

"The Good Old Times."

According to one of the old English chronicles, royalty, in 1234, had nothing for a bed but a stack of straw. Even in the days of Queen Elizabeth at least half of the population of London slept on boards. Blocks of wood served as pillows. The sleeping chambers of the queen were daily strewn with fresh rushes. Henry VI., immediately on arising, tossed off a cup of wine. Tea, coffee and chocolate were, of course, unheard of at that time. Sugar was to be had only in drug stores, and then by the ounce. These were the good old times.

The Crown Prince's Salary.

In the British civil service estimates for 1905-06 is an item for $100,000, "as a grant to the Prince and Princess of Wales in aid of the expenses they may incur on the occasion of their visit to India. The expense of the voyage to and from India is provided for in the navy estimates. The Prince of Wales draws annually from British taxpayers $100,000. The Princess receives $50,000 a year.

New System of Telegraphy.

Germany has a new system of quick telegraphy, by which signs can be transmitted at the rate of 2,000 a minute. It has been successfully tried between Berlin and Koenigsberg, a distance of 500 miles.

Gold Inspected by Roentgen Rays.

The interior of a piece of gold bearing quartz was inspected recently with the Roentgen rays in an Oregon town, and veins of gold are said to have been as plainly visible as if they had been on the surface.

Chinese Harvest.

All Chinese fruits are picked green and ripened off the plant. The Chinese farmer is too anxious to sell his crop or too much afraid of thieves to wait until the fruit is properly ripened.

Historic St. Helena.

Longwood, Bonaparte's house in St. Helena, is now a barn. The room in which he died is a stable. On the site of his former grave is a machine for grinding corn.

Australia's Gain.

It is estimated by the Commonwealth statistician that since 1892 the population of Australia has gained 27,558 by new arrivals and lost 29,000 by departures.

A Town of Men Only.

On the borders between China and Russia, in Asia, is a good sized town known as Marianatchin, which is inhabited exclusively by men. An old law forbids women to live there.

The name of Mother Goose's husband was Isaac Goose, and her rhymes were first printed by her son-in-law, Thomas Fleet, a printer, in Boston.

The capital invested in electric lines of the United States, including street railways, is $2,167,634,000.

ALL BROKEN DOWN.

No Sleep—No Appetite—Just a Continual Backache.

Joseph McCauley, of 144 Sholto street, Chicago, Sachem of Tecumseh Lodge, says: "Two years ago my health was completely broken down. My back ached and was so lame that at times I was hardly able to dress myself. I lost my appetite and was unable to sleep. There seemed to be no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. Four boxes of this remedy effected a complete and permanent cure. If suffering humanity knew the value of Doan's Kidney Pills they would use nothing else, as it is the only positive cure I know."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

California Building.

California's building at the Lewis and Clark exposition is in the form of a Greek cross, each wing being a reproduction of an old Spanish mission.

A Cracked Bell.

A bell, which was rescued red hot from a burning church at Hopkins, Mo., cracked just like the old Liberty bell when cold water was thrown upon it.

No Hebrew House of Worship.

In Spain Hebrews are not permitted to erect and maintain houses of worship. They have no civil rights and exist in the kingdom only as aliens.

A Japanese Custom.

Japanese mothers do not kiss their children, though they may press their lips to the forehead or cheeks of a very young baby.

A French Invention.

A peculiar method of charging cloth with electricity, in order to furnish heat to the wearer, has been invented by a French engineer.

The queen of Holland has given 500,000 francs for the erection of a hospital for crippled children at The Hague.

The total number of passengers carried by electric lines each year in the United States is 5,830,000.

The strikes reported in Canada during 1904 involved a loss of 671,227 working days.

FARM AND GARDEN

BUYING CLOVER SEED.

The increased attention being given to the growing of clover upon farms where the hay is fed upon the farm renders the purchase of clover seed an important matter. This is one of the earliest seeds to be sown in the spring and therefore the purchase of the seed is one of the things needing early attention. It is well to take time by the forelock, says Practical Farmer, and get your clover seed on hand ready for sowing. And right here we would like to warn those who have to buy clover seed that low priced seed is always the most costly. Not only most costly in the actual amount paid for the clover seed that is gotten, but costly in the seeding of your fields with all manner of four weeds, for a very low price for clover seed means poorly cleaned seed. If one gets, for instance, clover seed for $5 a bushel, when recleaned seed is selling for $7 or more, the recleaned seed is always the lowest in price of the pure seeds that are in the bushel, and, being clean, do not provide for filling your land with weeds. The best way to buy clover seed is to start early and get samples from the dealers. Examine these samples closely and sort out all impurities in the shape of weed seeds and trash, and then compare the samples. Get seeds that are clear of weed seeds, if you have to pay double price for them. We are frequently called upon to advise how to get rid of broad-leaf plaintain and narrow-leaf plantain, two weeds that have gotten spread more through clover seed than in any other way. We know farms so infested with the narrow-leaf plantain that it is almost impossible to grow clover on them now, the weed having gotten complete possession of the ground. When you find a real clean sample of seed buy it at whatever the price may be as compared with badly cleaned seed, and get a guarantee from the dealer that the seed shall come up to the sample. We will never get rid of oxeye daisy, plantain and wild carrot until we quit sowing the seed in clover. Then, too, of recent years the creeping yellow clover has spread over the country through unscrupulous dealers who have imported the seed in immense quantities for the purpose of adulterating red clover seed. You will need a magnifying glass to distinguish the various weed seeds and adulterations, and it will pay to learn the various seeds and their appearance. Then buy your clover seed from first class men who have made a reputation for good seed, and who are not going to sacrifice it, and do not expect to get the best seed except at the best price, for it is the worst sort of extravagance to buy low priced seed, especially of clover and grass.

PROFIT FROM FALL PIGS.

Last fall I had about seventy-five pigs come the last of September and the first of October. I let these pigs follow the sows for about eight weeks and while they were with the sows I used slop freely, also fed corn. When I took them from the sows I used oats and shorts and a little corn ground made into a warm slop. They had a good warm place and a good run on about four acres of rye. I took the very best care of them I could, but they did not seem to grow. They were hearty, ate well and were given bedding about twice a week so as to keep them clean and dry and did everything I could, but must say I made a failure on that lot of fall pigs. I suppose if a man had a few and used milk he could make them pay a little better. But I find that the cost of fall pigs is too great to make me any money and I think the readers of this article will agree with me.

On the other hand, I have had fine luck with spring pigs. I had twenty sows farrow about two hundred pigs, and at the last count I had 175 head of good, thrifty shotes, about one hundred of them weighing about 180 pounds, the balance around 140 pounds. I think if a man tries to raise a great many hogs he better have them come in the spring. He will have enough fall pigs out of his spring litters to keep him busy through the winter, and in the spring they will go out and make a good hog in a little while.

I expect to breed thirty sows for spring farrow commencing to pig about April 20 to May 20. I aim to have all my sows come in as near together as possible. I used two boars and hand bread all my sows, so I always get good litters. I expect some of your older hog raisers can, no doubt, tell me a great deal more than I know about raising hogs, as I am young in the business, but I am doing fairly well at it—J. P. Fletcher in the Massachusetts Ploughman.

GROWING CARROTS FOR STOCK FEED.

For several years we have been raising carrots on a rather small scale, feeding them to both horses and cattle with good results; and we know that their value when properly used is far in excess of what the analysis would seem to indicate. The food value of one carrot is very small indeed; but one carrot a day will go far toward keeping a horse in a thrifty condition. For milk cows, too, they are excellent, keeping up the appetite, toning up the digestive organs and increasing the flow of milk. They will be found especially valuable to the farmer who has who has only dry feed for his cows during the winter. They should be sown thickly in rows only far enough apart to permit of cultivation with horses as soon as the ground is thoroughly warm. A rich, loose, loamy soil is the best, and there is little danger of its being too rich. If it can be well manured a month or so before planting—the fall before is still better—and the manure thoroughly mixed with the soil, it will go far toward assuring a good yield. If manure is not available a generous quantity of fertilizer can be profitably used. The following formula is recommended: Nitrogen 3 per cent, available phosphoric acid 8 per cent, potash 5 per cent, at the rate of 500 or 600 pounds per acre. It is well to use plenty of seed so as to insure a good stand. Two or three pounds are said to be sufficient for an acre. Three or four ounces will plant a patch large enough for a trial. After the plants have come up well they should be thinned out to three or four inches apart. It is sometimes necessary to make two thinnings. The thinning and the first cultivation are likely to be rather tedious, as the young plants are very delicate. After they get started cultivation is comparatively easy, all that is necessary being to keep the weeds down and the top of the soil loose and mellow.—The Epitomist.

HAIRY VETCH.

Hairy vetch is one of the plants which has responded most energetically and vigorously to the nitro culture treatment. I would advise you in this connection to write to the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a copy of the bulletin on experiments in "soil inoculation" recently issued by Dr. Moore. Wherever I have tried it the vetch has done well without soil or seed inoculation, but Dr. Moore's experiments have apparently demonstrated that it will grow much more vigorously when so treated. It is one of the best of all leguminous crops to fertilize poor soils. The only objection to it is that seed is very expensive. Now, I cannot tell you whether alfalfa would follow vetch healthfully and normally without additional treatment with nicro organisms. I imagine not, but it would be a very simple matter to treat the seed, and this you could do in the case of both vetch and alfalfa by securing a package of the suitable bacteria from the Bureau of Plant Industry. A crop of vetch turned under would be an excellent preparation for a seeding of alfalfa. If you sow spring wheat in your young orchard, then, by all means, leave a strip of at least three feet on each side of your apple tree rows, this strip to be cultivated throughout the forepart of the season. If you can seed it with a leguminous crop in midsummer or a little later then I think you are putting your young trees into excellent shape for winter. Hairy vetch is one of the best orchard cover plant one may use.—Tribune Farmer.

POULTRY PRODUCTS.

There are few industries less likely to suffer by competition, or that offer a fairer return for well selfdirected labor, than the raising of poultry on a moderate scale. Eggs and chickens will ever be in demand. The young and the old, the rich and the poor, appreciate and enjoy them; our restaurants and hotels are seldom fully supplied, and our large city markets usually take all they can get and then are not fully supplied. A small area of land well formed, properly equipped with a warm poultry house and stocked with carefully selected fowls, will most surely be a source of continuous profit. Of course this profit will greatly depend upon the cost of food and the care and attention given them. I always feed a variety of food to my poultry; corn, wheat and oats with plenty of green food, will surely increase the laying as well as the fattening of our poultry.—Louis Campbell in Poultry Products.

BRREAKING THE COLT.

The breaking of a colt is oftentimes done in a vicious and brutal manner which often ruins the animal for life. It is good policy to catch and handle them when quite young, all the time quietly and gently teaching them to lead. The colt will never forget this kind treatment in his earlier days, and when he is being broken to harness a colt handled in this manner will be far less troublesome.

Caesar was murdered at 56. Grant was only 43 when the Civil War ended.

Napoleon and Wellington were the same age at Waterloo, only 46.

SCIENCE & MECHAN

The French Government has recommended an appropriation of $ for the International Congress for the International Congress on Tuberculosis, to be held shortly in

A dispatch from Cheshire that at Neshal, North ... recently, a mass of rock slipped Leonard and Lake ... A wave ... twenty feet high ... rest, the fall swept the ... laborers ... carrying away ... dogs ...

Edward Dowse ... plumbing of the ... was ... improved ... cock which ... waste of water ... slight ... of the ... tained ... applied ... demonstrated.

The ... Physicians ... Boston ... "goose step" ... man and ... Thanksgiving ... ject, in which ... portion of this ... for numerous kick and foot ... among the troops ... the sores on ... consequence of ... to this antiquated ...

The silk production of ... 1903 is estimated at 59,897,0... avoirdupois, not including consumption on ... amount of which is difficult to ... mate. China still leads in ... try. Its exports of silk ... 14,016,000 pounds, as against ... 000 pounds exported by Japan, Turkestan and India ... ported 1,980,000 pounds. ... Italy is far in the lead in ... tion, the amount for 1903 being ... 000 pounds. Turkey in Asia ... press together produced ... pounds, France 1,023,000 pounds, other European countries ... 2,651,000 pounds.

In 1873 a great ... named Dimonys, was discovered ... the Peruvian Andes. But ... specimen was found, and this ... preserved in the Berlin Museum. ... spring Doctor Goeldi of Para ... covered the Dinonys in the ... of Brazil. Its natural habitat ... supposed to be the almost ... regions lying among the foothills ... the Andes, between Brazil, Bolivia ... Peru. The animal is described ... minding one of an immense ... advanced in development ... bear. It is about two feet long, ... a bushy tail nine inches long ... and has a waddling gait. Its ... ter is "a combination of a ... movements and style one could ... It seems well provided for, ... but "knows ... haste." Doctor Goeldi keeps ... and her young ones in a cage.

Tale of a Russian Shell.

The offending battery at St. ... burg which fired ... shell ... for Palace Square ... recalled an anecdote of another ... sian battery. It was at the ... Warsaw, where a Russian ... dered the battery ... on a certain point. Nothing ... this, and the Muscovite ... artillery ... impossible ... manded. "I ... orderly. "Consider ... Your shells are ... you expect?" retorted the officer. ... won't explode. See for yourself." ... took up a shell, fitched the ... held it out to the Marshal, ... with his hands behind him ... result. If the shell had ... men would have been blown to ... But the match went out, and the ... shal remarked simply: "You ... right."—London Chronicle.

Rickrack Daisies.

Rickrack is white cotton braid ... in points, and of very much use ... for sewing into elaborate designs ... a coarse lace.

Now one of the charming ... dresses for misses shows a ... of daisies on appliqués, which ... ing but our old friend rickrack ... are fifteen points to each ... daisies, which means that ... fifteen points have been ... thread and drawn ... crochet motif that ... of the daisies.

A liberal sprinkling of ... on the blouse and on the ... front panel of the skirt ... it into a handsome dress. ... whose mamma cannot afford ... dress for her can easily ... herself and put ... on a ... would otherwise be plain.

Could Not Agree.

It was at one ... Dante Gabriel Rossetti, ... William and Swinburne and ... Meredith should live together ... certain house. Meredith ... see Dante Gabriel Rossetti ... fast and changed his plans. ... himself tells the story: "It ... noon," he says. "Rossetti ... risen, though it was an exquisite ... On the breakfast table, on a ... rested five thick slabs of bacon ... which five rigid eggs had ... to death. Presently Rossetti ... in his dressing gown, with ... down at heel, and devoured the ... repast like an ogre." That ... too much for Meredith—and he ... ficed three months' rent rather ... it repeated.—Kansas City Journal.

NOSE ... THE PROFILE

... woman ...
... and the ...
... to a per...
... the ...
... some ...
... Side face ...
... is pretty ...
... nose ...
... a ...
... unshapely ...
... front ...

... crooked ...
... the face ...
... is pert ...
... woman ...
... short ...
... grow ...

... There ...
... that ...
... woman ...
... unfortunately ...
... in ...
... her nose.

... must ... The ...
... the ... a ...
... out actually ...
... or off she will be, speaking from ...
... standpoint of her complexion.

... vegetarian complexion is a ... not to be forgotten by those ... have observed ... If you doubt ... there is such a thing, you can ... sure yourself by attending a ... tarian banquet. The women ... be ever so plain, but they are ... filled by a clear and even brilliant complexion.—Health.

NEW CONCEITS IN CUSHION TOPS

... effect of lace may always be ... to the one color room by the ... duction of a sofa pillow of some ... ant or positive coloring, for the ... room, the blue or porcelain ... pillow, for the ivory-tinted room ... arlet pillow, and for the blue ... a bronze cashmere or the sun... of a golden yellow pillow ... are artistic touches.

... distinctive feature which the ... lings in this ... too pro... ... housekeeping, in the use of ... lasses ... ribbons ... the heavy rope cord around ... edge. The bigger the tassels the ... in vogue the pillow, and ... h, together with the cords, they ... be had in all colors, black, ... best frame for ... spreading flowers which form ... centers.

... entire goat or calf-skin, either ... ed or untanned, ... and is held ... to the pillow by ... er strings run through eyelet ... in the seam and interlaced ... the pillow's satin back. Burnt ... ont and painting a ... ed ... a background for the ... features of ... of the full bloom of a California ... poppy, and not infrequently ... of country life with the hay... ers, the lovemakers and the fun... ers are shown.

... girl who has blistered her ... and the hands of her friends ... to get sufficient needles from ... knotty pine boughs to bring an ... of the woods to her city home, ... find large and small oblongs in ... coarsest of linen pine crash, dec... ... in green and brown with pine ... and needles. The fronds ... be first soaked into a close ... cheese cloth bog. On a dark, ... day a whiff of their fresh ... ness will recall the pleasure of ... steep mountain climb in search ... balsam.—Newark Advertiser.

...HING OF THE NURSERY.

... nursery should be the sun... pleasantest room in the house. ... sible let it occupy the south... corner and be arranged con... tly and furnished simply. Fin... e soft or hard wood floor in oil ... use rugs. These should be ... n daily to free them from dust. ... the floor frequently.

THE NOSE AND THE PROFILE.

[illegible] a study of [illegible] says: The [illegible]pe of your nose [illegible] You can look over [illegible]nd hardly see a [illegible]n when the side [illegible]ffect is apt to be [illegible] view.

[illegible]graceful looked at [illegible] become ugly [illegible]n looked at from [illegible] is actually one-

[illegible]used by bury- the face in the pillow. As the [illegible]nclined, and [illegible] begins as a little [illegible]er face buried [illegible] a pug nose, or

[illegible] fashion now for the [illegible] nasally. But the [illegible] do not turn up [illegible]d to let well [illegible] is a great dif- [illegible] nose that is [illegible] tip tilted and [illegible] tortured until, it

[illegible] were taken in child- [illegible]ained there would [illegible] ugly noses. The [illegible] of a soft cartilage [illegible] can be bent this

[illegible] lump which in time [illegible] prominent Roman [illegible] if treated in [illegible] it can be per- [illegible] less aggressive [illegible] massaged daily and [illegible] with the finger tips [illegible] down from its proud and [illegible] with the nose is [illegible] There are few noses [illegible] ought to look. [illegible] highly colored.

[illegible] of this is poor [illegible] can be remedied in [illegible] all of which [illegible] the same time. [illegible] the clothing, [illegible] Tight collars and [illegible] the circulation [illegible] very red.

[illegible] must be observ- [illegible] woman eats the [illegible] food, and plenty of it [illegible] to blush at the tip [illegible] breath. The near- [illegible] a vegetarian diet, [illegible] embracing it, the [illegible] will be, speaking from [illegible] standpoint of her complexion.

[illegible] vegetarian complexion is a [illegible] to be forgotten by those [illegible] observed it. If you doubt [illegible] there is such a thing, you can [illegible] yourself by attending a [illegible] banquet. The women [illegible] be ever so plain, but they are [illegible] by a clear and even bril- [illegible] complexion.—Health.

NEW CONCEITS IN CUSHION TOPS.

[illegible] effect of life may always be [illegible] to the one color room by the [illegible] of a sofa pillow of some [illegible] or positive coloring, for the [illegible] the light or porcelain [illegible] pillow, for the ivory-tinted room [illegible] scarlet pillow, and for the blue [illegible] a bronze cushion or the sun- [illegible] of a golden yellow pillow; [illegible] artistic touches.

[illegible] distinctive feature which the [illegible] shows in this never too plen- [illegible] finishing, is the use of [illegible] diagonal ends to [illegible] the heavy rope cord around [illegible] The bigger the tassels the [illegible] to make the pillow, and [illegible] together with the cords, they [illegible] in all colors, black forms [illegible] for the artistic heads [illegible] flowers which form

[illegible] or calfskin, either [illegible] cushioned, forms a novel [illegible] to the pillow by [illegible] run through eyelet [illegible] and interlaced [illegible] pillow's satin back. Burn- [illegible] and paint brush make the [illegible] a background for the [illegible] of high-checked In- [illegible] the room of a Califor- [illegible] and not infrequently [illegible] country life with the hay- [illegible] lovemakers and the fun- [illegible] shown.

[illegible] who has blistered her [illegible] the hands of her friends [illegible] sufficient needles from [illegible] pine boughs to bring an [illegible] of the woods to her city home, [illegible] large and small oblongs in [illegible] of linen pine crash, dec- [illegible] in green and brown with pine [illegible] and needles. The fronds [illegible] be first sewed into a close [illegible] cloth bog. On a dark, [illegible] day a whiff of their fresh [illegible] will recall the pleasure of [illegible] mountain climb in search [illegible] balsam.—Newark Advertiser.

[illegible]HING OF THE NURSERY.

[illegible] nursery should be the sun- [illegible] pleasantest room in the house. [illegible]sible let it occupy the south- [illegible] corner and be arranged con- [illegible]ently and furnished simply. Fin- [illegible] the soft or hard wood floor in oil [illegible] use rugs. These should be [illegible]en daily to free them from dust. [illegible] the floor frequently.

Let the furniture be of light wood, and durably made. Have shades, not drapery curtains at the windows, which should open easily from top and bottom. Give each child a separate bed, and use a crib for the baby until old enough for a single bed. The baby's sleep will be sweeter and more quiet, and mother's rest more refreshing. Hang a few bright pictures on the wall; though cheap, see that they are good; arrange low book shelves, and have a closet where the children may learn to keep their playthings in order.

Let each child have its own shelf or cupboard, but teach unselfishness and regard for others' rights, while respecting his own.

Keep in a little closet, out of the children's way, a bandage roll, a little lint; plaster for cuts, a pair of scissors, a sponge, castile soap, sweet oil, listerine, camphor, arnica, vaseline, some simple salve and some liniment. When needed they will be at hand. Children require a great deal of fresh air, sunlight and sleep. Cold weather should not prevent young infants from being taken outdoors in the late morning and early afternoon. In very cold weather, wrap it well and give it the air in the sunny part of the day. In warm weather it should be brought in before the change of the evening air is felt.—Newark Advertiser.

STYLES IN BUCKLES.

The hallmark of the smart bodice or coat, whether fur or cloth, is the buckle which adorns it. The immense vogue of rosettes, high girdles, directoire hats, and fancy shoes has brought with it an unprecedented use of buckles, from the tiniest clasp to huge plastrons of filigree and enamel which nearly encircle the waist.

Truly wonderful in brilliancy and beauty of design is the endless variety of this telling finish to a woman's get-up. Cut steel and jet buckles are in high favor, while the white metal is delicately tinted in all the soft shades. Metal or leather buckles are set off by marquis stones, which show the same color as the belt or ribbon.

Rhinestones, emeralds and rubies are employed in profusion as studding for miniature reproductions of animals and tiny chips in green, purple, red, blue and yellow sprinkle hand-buckles of Egyptian filigree. The girl who is fortunate enough to have an old cameo, large or small, cannot use it to better advantage than as the center of a buckle showing the wing design. Mosaics are also employed in the same way.

Peculiarly suited to the very broad metal buckles are the popular design of Egyptian wings or the spreading bat wings These curve gracefully from the middle, both back and front, nearly encircling the waist, and are remarkably stunning in gunmetal inlaid with an occasional tiny rhinestone.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

NEW STYLES AND OLD FASHIONS.

Novelty in this season's fashions is perhaps the keynote to its extravagance and elegance. New ideas are coming forth every day, and they are all beautiful in the extreme. The new theatre scarfs made of chiffon and crepe de chine are among the latest and they are embroidered in beautiful style, with all sorts of flowers and quaint designs. Inside of the evening cloak they give a decidedly soft finish.

Suits of tan broadcloth with dark velvet collars, are quite the thing for spring days, and although they have been worn considerably they are indeed popular.

Artificial flowers are worn on many of the dainty frocks for afternoon and evening functions, and they make attractive decorations.

Quills are much in favor again. They make plain hats extremely smart and give a touch of chicness to the shape.

Bunches of velvet violets nestle among the lace trimmings of the new and latest hats.

HOUSEHOLD WORK PROMOTES FIGURE.

The fountain of youth today is largely to be had in exercise and the will, with plenty of fresh air. Before going to sleep a few exercises should be gone through with open windows, inhaling the good fresh air. A stepladder to run up and down is a great incentive to health; wind exercises, hip exercises, rotary motions, all keep the body lithesome, and prevent stoutness. Then diet has to be considered; too much liquid should never be taken with meals; too much meat is bad. There is nothing beter for the figure than household work. It takes a great deal to persuade an ordinary woman that it is continuing these things that make a success of it, not starting them and then leaving them to fate.—Washington Times.

Of course, the veil must match the costume, no matter what the shade of the gown.

When such lace is used, very effective models are turned out.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

What is in a man is more potent than what is about him.

There's a world of difference between faith and credulity.

People who live at a rattling pace usually have many loose joints.

A man is not called upon to prove his faith in Divine Providence by his personal improvidence.

The church that runs behind on the preacher's salary is not likely to run ahead on spiritual power.

The Kingdom of God can rule in my heart because it asks something of me as well as gives something to me. —W. Charter Pigott.

Not what has happened to myself today, but what has happened to others through me, that should be my thought.—Frederick Deering Blake.

No doubt many who have gone wrong on earth will be higher in heaven than those who have forgotten charity in denouncing them.—Woman's Life.

The spirit of God is your companion. Most exalted of all beings, He abides with you on the footing of a friend, to teach, persuade, purify and bless.—George Bowen.

I am glad to think that I am not bound to make the world go right; I am bound to discover and to do, with cheerful heart, the work that God appoints.—Jean Ingelow.

COFFIN PLATES AS ORNAMENTS.

Cheerful Customs of the Good Old Times in Maine.

In New England, 100 years ago, it was by no means uncommon for people to provide their coffins long before their death and keep the same in their houses, where they could see them every day. It was perhaps a custom having the same purpose and significance as the skeleton at the feasts of the ancient Greeks, to remind the living in their hours of levity of the seriousness of life and the certainty of death.

This was not the idea, however, of a man named Lindsey, whom people now living in Leeds may remember, or at least have heard of. He built his own coffin many years before he died, and used to keep it in a chamber of his house. He used it generally to keep beans in. It was a very fine coffin, made of mahogany and nicely finished and polished. Mr. Lindsey made it with his own hands, and gave as reason that if he left the task of providing him with a coffin to his sons it would be just like them to put him in a hemlock one, and "send him through hell snapping." Perhaps the boys did not relish the implication. At any rate, they did not like to have the coffin about the house, and took it away one night and threw it into the river. It was found several miles below, considerably broken and battered as it went over the rips, and old Lindsey heard about it, drove down and got it, and was finally buried in it.

Another queer custom that prevailed in this section of Maine down to a comparatively recent date was that of removing the plate from the coffin after the funeral and just before the body was lowered into the grave, and keeping it in the best room in the house among the ornaments and bric-a-brac. The writer saw one of these gruesome exhibits on the mantel of a Lincolnville parlor not more than 25 years ago, and we shouldn't be surprised if quite a number of them could be found in the old houses throughout Maine.—Bangor News.

No Monopoly of Brains.

One of the many hopeful signs of the times is the apparent decay of the breed of so-called great men—these mighty personalities that in former times stood out like a solitary tree in a vast prairie. The reason for it, of course, is the distinction of all those old-time monopolies of brains which stunted all human beings except a few who, by chance rather than by superiority of fibre, grew and developed. There are thousands, literally thousands, of men now living who, if they had lived a century or so ago and had done a work similar to that which they are doing without any very sonorous fanfare upon the trumpets of fame, would have been the talk of the world and the main topic of history. And how many of the so-called great achievements of so-called great statesmen, soldiers and thinkers of former times, would be impossible today, because those achievements depended chiefly upon the ignorance and incapacity of the overwhelming mass of the men of their day!

Truly, this is the age of opportunity.—Saturday Evening Post.

Another French Pretender.

Pretenders abound in Paris, finding it an agreeable ante-chamber to the throne of this or some other country. I had the honor of a presentation the other evening to Prince Charles of Bourbon, said by some to be the grandson of Louis XVII., whom vulgar historians made to die in his prison of the Temple at the age of 11. This was obviously too young for the purposes of succession, but the Prince says that the boy who died was a substituted youth, weak and scrofulous, and that his grandfather only ceased to be in 1845. The Pretender has certainly a most remarkable resemblance to the features of the Sixteenth Louis. I asked him if a ministerial crisis was not favorable to his cause. "Yes," he said, "in a general way, certainly," but his eyes did not flash as I expected Pretender's eyes to do. And he explained the reason of his resignation. "I await the signal of the people of France; it is for them to decide the hour."—London Pall Mall Gazette.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE
Heartily Approves of Peruna For the Nerves.

IN a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centres. The nerve centres are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centres become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centres. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves and thus nourishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Buy a bottle of Peruna to-day. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

There are no less than 540 agricultural societies scattered over Servia.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle.

Asparagus is said to be the oldest plant used for food.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Immigration into Canada is increasing rapidly.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Soda water is now prescribed for hunger.

Paris is to have a special kind of street light to indicate the whereabouts of branch postoffices.

NO TONGUE CAN TELL

How I Suffered With Itching and Bleeding Eczema Until Cured by Cuticura.

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. (Signed) Mrs. A. Etson, Bellevue, Mich."

Large Families.

It is from Russia that the record families of modern times have come. In 1757 the Empress Catherine gave audience to a peasant woman who had fifty-seven children, all living. A Moscow moujik pensioned by the czar in 1782 had eighty-two children, all of whom had survived.

Write Quick FOR A Big Bargain

To better advertise the South's Leading Business College, four scholarships are offered young persons of this county at less than cost. WRITE TODAY.

GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton Business, Shorthand and Telegraphy College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

WORMS

"I write to let you know how I appreciate your Cascarets. I commenced taking them last November and took two ten cent boxes and passed a tape-worm 16 ft. long. Then I commenced taking them again and Wednesday, April 6th, I passed another tape worm 20 ft. long and over a thousand small worms. Previous to my taking Cascarets I didn't know I had a tape-worm. I always had a small appetite."
Wm. F. Brown, 154 Franklin St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Best For The Bowels
Cascarets
CANDY CATHARTIC
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped CCC. Guaranteed to cure or your money back.
Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or N.Y. 990
ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

Kills 'em Quick

Magic Death Powder

NOT A POISON but a remarkable discovery which is very effective in causing stupefaction and death to all kind of Insects infesting Poultry, Animals, Plants and Houses. Put up in a box ingeniously arranged for conveniently dusting or blowing the powder where wanted. Send 25c to MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn., and get a box by mail. A beautiful picture, in colors, suitable for framing, given FREE with each order during the next 30 days. Rid your Chickens of Lice, Pet Animals of Fleas, etc. Your House of Red Bugs, Flies and Mosquitoes by the use of MAGIC DEATH POWDER. Address MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.
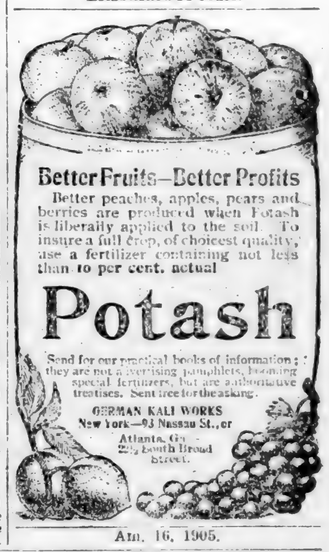
Established 14 Years.



Better Fruits—Better Profits

Better peaches, apples, pears and berries are produced when Potash is liberally applied to the soil. To insure a full crop, of choicest quality, use a fertilizer containing not less than 10 per cent. actual

Potash

Send for our practical books of information; they are not advertising pamphlets, treating special fertilizers, but are exhaustive treatises. Sent free for the asking.
GERMAN KALI WORKS
New York—93 Nassau St., or Atlanta, Ga.
2½ South Broad Street.

Am. 16, 1905.

Say Plainly to Your Grocer

That you want LION COFFEE always, and he, being a square man, will not try to sell you anything else. You may not care for our opinion, but

What About the United Judgment of Millions

of housekeepers who have used LION COFFEE for over a quarter of a century?
Is there any stronger proof of merit, than the

Confidence of the People and ever increasing popularity? LION COFFEE is carefully selected at the plantation, shipped direct to our various factories, where it is skillfully roasted and carefully packed in sealed packages—unlike loose coffee, which is exposed to germs, dust, insects, etc. LION COFFEE reaches you as pure and clean as when it left the factory. Sold only in 1 lb. packages.

Lion-head on every package.
Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

GOOD LUCK

Free Premiums

To further introduce Good Luck Baking Powder, we are offering valuable premiums free to all users. On the label of every can will be found a coupon. Cut out these coupons and save them. The little gift book inside each can illustrates the many articles and tells how to get them free. Besides these valuable premiums, you get a superior baking powder and it costs you but 10c per pound can.

GOOD LUCK Baking Powder

possesses excellent leavening qualities. It is powerful in generating gas, therefore makes exceedingly light bakings. Its positive purity assures you of good baking results. Through these superior qualities Good Luck Baking powder has reached the largest sale of any baking powder in the world. Carloads and trainloads are shipped to all sections of the country. This tremendous sale makes it possible for us to sell it at the little price of 10c per pound can. Insist upon having Good Luck Baking Powder and get a superior article at a moderate price.

THE SOUTHERN MFG. CO.
Richmond, Va.

BAKING POWDER

NOTICE!

If you have timber lands for sale, want to buy a good home for $25.00 cash and the balance on long payments to suit purchaser, or if you want a good paying position, write

The Marbury Lumber Co.,
Marbury, Ala

LIST OF GRAND JURORS.

For the Spring Term, 1905, of Chilton County Circuit Court.

J. M. Merchant, Beat 7; C. R. Letcher, Beat 7; Joseph Cox, Beat 1; John Crumpton, Beat 3; J. W. Littlejohn, Beat 4; D. M. Martin, Beat 8; Robert Milford, Beat 6; Joel Friday, Beat 8; A. L. Foshee, Beat 4; J. N. Glasscock, Beat 1; J. L. Smith, Beat 2; A. T. Hathcock, Beat 6; W. E. Thomas, Beat 2; A. F. Mims, Beat 9; L. Moore, Beat 10; Sam Pate, Beat 9; William Veazey, Beat 3; Albert Gore, Beat 11; Charley Robinson, Beat 5; Charley Foshee, Beat 6.

FOR PETIT JURY.

First Week.

J. P. Merchant, Beat 7; F. M. Moore, Beat 8; C. C. Crumpton, Beat 2; R. W. Ward, Beat 4; Monroe Ramsey, Beat 7; J. W. Edwards, Beat 4; Charley Littlejohn, Beat 7; J. R. Martin, Beat 9; Lincoln Collins, Beat 9; N. A. Kicker, Beat 4; J. M. Bean, Beat 9; P. T. Hinkle, Beat 4; E. M. Giles Beat 4; Jack Grooms, Beat 7; J. R. Thomas, Beat 10; John A. Collins, Beat 9; H. M. Mahan, Beat 1; Wash. Wilson, Beat 10; R. Calloway, Beat 7; T. J. Cook, Beat 2; P. C. Smith, Beat 9; S. E. Bruce, Beat 4; J. C. Veazey, Beat 3; J. M. Potts, Beat 4; Secar Harris, Beat 8; W. R. Pate, Beat 9; W. G. J. Dorminy, Beat 1; John Edwards, Beat 6; Charley Shaw, Beat 2; John Ramsey, Beat 8; Albert Wilson, Beat 6; R. T. Busbee, Beat 2; C. C. Cost, Beat 3; S. S. Scott, Beat 5; Gus Marcus, Beat 11.

Second Week.

B. F. Nummey, Beat 6; J. M. Huff, Beat 8; Thomas McCormick, Beat 7; G. C. Kemp, Beat 7; S. H. Driver, Beat 1; E. N. Wilson, Beat 10; J. T. Cooley, Beat 4; D. S. Robinson, Beat 10; J. F. Anderson, Beat 8; W. R. Lowery, Beat 2; H. W. Giles, Beat 8; M. P. Chandler; Henry Splann, Beat 2; D. F. Jacks, Beat 10; W. A. Pool, Beat 6; W. D. Z. Foshee Beat 4; S. B. McCary, Beat 7; H. W. Varden, Beat 3; J. P. Cost, Jr., Beat 2; W. F. Deshazo, Beat 3; W. F. Maddox, Beat 9; R. J. Williams, Beat 3; J. C. Gaylor, Beat 5; A. C. Atcherson, Beat 7; William Bearden, Beat 7; B. F. Calfee, Beat 3; J. L. Burnett, Beat 11; B. L. Martin, Beat 1; John Cobb, Beat 2; James Huett, Beat 6; A. Horn, Beat 9; R. C. Middlebrook, Beat 1; R. H. Bean, Beat 9; H. A. J. Harris, Beat 10; S. E. Waldrup, Beat 3.

NOTES.

This court bids fair to be a big one. Clerk Collins has issued about 450 subpoenas for witnesses so far. Every one expects the grand jury to do its full duty.

RAID IN CHILTON.

Officers Capture Two Big Stills and Arrest White Man.

United States Deputy Marshal J. F. Goodgame and Deputy Internal Revenue Collectors E. N. Winters and W. W. Battle raided two large stills at daylight yesterday morning in the northern part of Chilton county. They stayed up all night on the work, and succeeded in capturing and destroying two big copper stills, 2,200 gallons of beer, 46 fermenters and a large amount of other paraphernalia used in the distilleries.

Joe Curtis, a white man, was captured near the still and was immediately arrested on a charge of illicit distilling. He was arrested and brought to Montgomery and this morning taken before United States Commissioner John A. Elmore. The preliminary hearing of Curtis was set for Monday, May 1st, and the defendant was released on a temporary bond of $500.

Last June Mr. Goodgame was appointed a deputy. He has been doing excellent work in Chilton county and the territory near by. It is said that he has brought in more cases from this district than has ever been known before.—Montgomery Journal.

NOTICE.

Dissolution of Partnership.

The partnership hitherto existing between A. A. Jackson and J. P. Robinson, under the firm name of Jackson & Robinson, is this day dissolved by mutual consent, J. P. Robinson retiring from the business, which will be carried on by A. A. Jackson, who assumes all indebtedness of the late firm, and to whom all notes and accounts due the late firm must be paid.

A. A. JACKSON.
J. P. ROBINSON.

Lomax, Ala., April 6, 1905. tf

Of all the generals in the world, in peace or in war, the greatest is General Amnesty. He doesn't come upon the field of action until the other generals have had their fling, but when he does come he makes all men lay down their arms, concludes the St. Louis Republic.

Rural Routes Established.

Washington, D. C.—Rural routes ordered established May 15: Centerville, Bibb county, route 3, population 550, houses 135; Inverness, Bullock county, route one, population 500 houses 125; Moulton, Lawrence county, route one, population 600, houses 148; Vincent, Shelby county, route two, population 453, houses 108; Leighton, Colbert county, route one, population 550, houses 126; Prattville, Autauga county, route one, population 580, houses 138; Seale, Russell county route one, population 751, houses 167.

Rural carriers appointed: Hillsboro route, Robert H. Pitt carrier, Joseph Terry substitute; Somerville, route 1, Fred M. Swift carrier, Clifton B. Lewis substitute.

Mangled By Coreans.

Versailles, Ky.—Dr. Wiley H. Forsythe, formerly of Versailles, who is in Korea as a medical missionary, was recently attacked by a band of Corean rebels, according to advices received here and horribly wounded.

Dr. Forcythe was called into the interior to attend a Corean gentleman who had been shot by robbers. He stopped for the night at the village of Mankao. During the night the house was broken into by the rebels and Forcythe, being unarmed, was at their of his ears severed and he received mercy. His skull was fractured, one other dangerous wounds. Dr. Forcythe went to Corea last year.

Carrie Nation Sentenced.

Wichita, Kans.—In the district court here Carrie Nation, Myra McHenry and Mrs. Lucy Wilhoit were found guilty of destroying property and sentenced by Judge Wilson. Mrs. Nation was fined $500 and given four months in jail; Mrs. McHenry two months and a fine of $150, and Mrs Wilhoit twenty-five days in jail and a fine of $150.

Sentence was suspended pending good behavior. The offense was committed September 30th last when the three women broke the windows of a wholesale liquor house. The women voluntarily surrendered some time ago.

Only Two Persons Hurt.

Vicksburg, Miss.—Only two persons were injured in the derailment of north-bound passenger train No. 12 on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad near Hardee station. The injured are James DeCoureney, the express messenger, and Adelaide Smith, a negress.

The ditching of the train was caused by the opening of a switch leading to a spur track. The train was running forty-eight miles an hour at the time. Both engineer and fireman escaped.

Terrific Explosion Near Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn.—At a late hour Thursday night a heavy detonation was heard here, accompanied by a shaking of houses, that suggested an earthquake. Investigation showed that 5,000 pounds of dynamite and 600 kegs of powder had exploded at Baker's Station, seventeen miles northeast of here, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, where a tunnel is being constructed. Half an acre of ground was torn up where the explosive was stored. It is not known if any lives were lost.

In Spain Hebrews are not permitted to erect and maintain houses of worship. They have no civil rights and exist in the kingdom only as aliens.

Alabama Postmasters Appointed.

Washington, D. C.—Postmasters appointed: Bush, Barbour county, Florie R. Bush; Clear Creek, Chilton county, John W. Hawkins; River View, Chambers county, Manly M. Hunt. Mrs. Ollie P. Crews has been appointed postmaster at Helberger, Perry county, vice William F. Moore, resigned.

The first iron discovered in America was in Virginia.

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE.
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

"The Magazine That Has An Idea Back Of It."

Have you heard that Hon. Thos. E Watson, of Georgia, has begun the publication of a magazine?

You know who Mr. Watson is? He's the man who wrote "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," and "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson." He was the People's Party candidate for President last year.

First number of Tom Watson's Magazine was published Feb. 25. It is $1.00 per year. You will miss the most interesting 128-page magazine in America if you fail to subscribe. Now we will send you the magazine and THE UNION, your best county paper, for $1.50 per year for both. Don't delay with your subscriptions, but send them in at once. tf

STATE HAPPENINGS

Of General and Local Interest as They Occur.

Both Found Dead.

Gadsden, Ala.—Two miners, Bob Heald, white, and Horace Williams, a negro, were found dead in the ore mines of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company in Attalla about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, and their death is a mystery.

Two shifts are worked at the mines. Some time after midnight the air became foul and the fifteen miners came up from the lower entry, which is three-quarters of a mile from the opening. After the men came up Bob Heald, who operated the pump, said he was going down to see what was the trouble, and the negro volunteered to go with him.

The men were gone so long the waiting miners became alarmed, and one of the number volunteered to go down and see what was the trouble. When he reached the entry where was located the pump the negro Williams was found lying flat on his back, barely breathing, while Heald sat bolt upright against the pump, cold in death.

Will Have New Park.

Gadsden, Ala.—The city council appointed a committee to meet with the Daughters of the Confederacy and ascertain just what their views were on the turning into a park of the land owned by the city overlooking Coosa river.

The Daughters have proposed to put out shrubbery and keep the park in order if the city will lay out walks, drives, etc., and place a fountain in the park. The Daughters also obligate themselves to erect a monument to the memory of Emma Sansom in the park. The work of converting the lot into a park will be commenced at once and pushed to an early completion, and Riverside Park will soon be a reality.

Branch of Brenau College Secured.

Eufaula, Ala.—The deal has been consummated whereby the Union Female College has been leased for a period of ten years to President Van Hoose, of the Brenau College, of Gainesville, Ga. The papers have been signed and Prof. Van Hoose has returned home to make preparations to move here and begin the work of some needed improvements. When these are completed the professor will at once enter upon the work of canvassing for the institution. Citizens are highly elated over the prospects of having one of the finest institutions in this section of the State, and it is believed that it will prove a fortune to the city to have the influence and cooperation of so able an educator.

Injured in Foundry Explosion.

Ensley, Ala.—An explosion of hot metal in the foundry at the steel plant resulted in three well-known steel workers being injured. None of the men were seriously hurt, and it is thought that they will be able to resume their duties in a few days.

The injured are: Alderman E. J. Owen, who received slight injuries; W. Palmer, the foreman of the foundry, who was badly burned on the face, arms and hands, and N. F. Riddle, the craneman, who was painfully hurt by being knocked off of a crane. Mr. Palmer, who was the worse hurt of any of the men, was carried to the Cunningham Hospital for treatment.

Superintendent Shook Hurt.

Ensley, Ala.—J. W. Shook, superintendent of the furnaces for the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company, was painfully, but not seriously, injured by being struck by a piece of flying steel. Mr. Shook was standing near where the lumps of steel from the steel plant were being broken up, preparatory to remelting, when a piece struck him on the shoulder, inflicting a very painful injury.

National Bank Established.

Evergreen, Ala.—The First National Bank of Evergreen, Ala., has been authorized to begin business with a capital of $25,000. A. R. Jones is president; Lawrence Wild, vice-president; C. E. Baker, cashier.

Wedding Causes Sensation.

Florence, Ala.—A marriage which caused a decided sensation occurred here at the court house. The principals were Mr. John C. Wilson, the son of a prominent wholesale groceryman of this city, and Miss Louise Ross, of Sheffield. The bride is the daughter of Frederick Ross, at one time a prominent official of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad.

Schley Leaves Mobile.

Mobile, Ala.—Rear Admiral W. S. Schley, who has been in attendance upon the Masonic convention and who has been the recipient of many social courtesies during his stay in Mobile, has left for Washington.

Slayer of Professor Hardy Captured.

Selma, Ala.—Information received here from Camden, Wilcox county, says that a deputy sheriff in Waco, Tex., has wired Sheriff Albritton that Will Ptomey, who shot Prof. Claude Hardy at Pineapple, had been arrested there.

The shooting of Professor Hardy caused a sensation in Wilcox county, and posses scoured the woods for many days in search of the negro.

Two New Corporations.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Leeds Improvement Company, with a capital stock of $80,000 and offices at Birmingham, has filed a notice of its incorporation with the secretary of state. The incorporators are W. J. Cameron, J. B. Elliott, G. R. Harsh, A. W. Smith, D. T. Smith, E. N. Tutwiler and E. F. Enslen.

The Brighton Water Works Company, of Brighton, also filed a notice of its incorporation with the secretary of state, having a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are J. A. Eastis, S. Stewart and J. H. Farr.

Postoffice Employe Arrested.

Birmingham, Ala.—Charles Ellis, a young man employed in the general delivery at the Birmingham postoffice, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement, it being alleged that he appropriated a letter containing three $1 bills, mailed at Haleysville, Ala., to James L. Grosvenor, Birmingham.

A preliminary trial was given before United States Commissioner Birch and the defendant was held to bail in the sum of $300 to appear before the grand jury. The defendant has a large acquaintance.

$400 Reward Offered.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks has offered a reward of $400 for the capture and delivery to the sheriff of Cullman county of John Williams, the white man who shot and almost instantly killed State Senator Robert L. Hipp near Joppa Tuesday afternoon.

The governor was in conference over the long distance telephone with a representative citizen of Cullman. He had the matter of a reward in this consideration, however, before he was interviewed by any one.

Steamboats Busy.

Gadsden, Ala.—The steamboats on the Coosa are now doing good business, and all of them are kept busy. The steamer Wagnon arrived from Rome with a large cargo of miscellaneous freight and 125 bales of cotton She loaded 400 sacks of guano and returned at once to Rome. The steamer Alabama brought in eighty-five bales of cotton the same day and a raft of logs and several barges filled with lumber, and returned below with several hundred sacks of guano.

Two Men Are Shot Near Tallassee.

Dadeville, Ala.—Reports have reached here of a shooting affray which occurred twenty miles from here, near Tallassee.

James Weldon and his son, Reed, were shot by Dolphus Golden and both fatally wounded. The elder Weldon was shot in the back and his son in the side with a shotgun. The Weldons were unarmed. Deputies have seen sent to arrest Golden. The shooting was the result of past differences.

To Have Telephone Exchange.

Jacksonville, Ala.—J. L. Brown, manager of the Anniston office of the Southern Bell Telephone exchange, was in this city and plans were perfected by which Jacksonville will have a local telephone office at an early date.

Thus far Manager Brown has succeeded in placing thirty phones, and as soon as he secures a few more orders, he says, he will return to this city to put in the fixtures at the Jacksonville office.

Anniston Troops Inspected.

Anniston, Ala.—The Calhoun Rifles were inspected in their armory at Oxford Thursday night by Capt. J. C. Goodfellow, U. S. A., and Gen. W. W. Brandon, adjutant-general of the state. The inspection was most creditable, and the inspection officers paid the company, officers and men, high compliments on their good showing.

Sheriff of Choctaw.

Montgomery, Ala.—W. D. Wilcox, of Butler, has been appointed sheriff of Choctaw county by Governor Jelks to succeed A. B. Cook, whose resignation was sent in a few days ago.

To Regulate Sale of Morphine.

Union Springs, Ala.—The city council has passed an ordinance to regulate the sale of cocaine, morphine and other kindred drugs. This became necessary since so many negroes are becoming addicted to the habit.

Furnace Relighted.

Pratt City, Ala.—No. 3 furnace of the Republic Iron and Steel Company at Thomas was relighted and the first run of iron made. This plant has been closed down for the past several weeks, during which time the furnace has been relined from bottom to top and repaired in many ways.

All three of the furnaces and the three batteries of coke ovens are in blast at Thomas, and the indications are that all former records will be broken during the coming months.

The only handicap that the company is now confronted with at Thomas is the scarcity of labor. It is stated that the company is in need of about 200 men to work around the furnaces, coke Prosperity in Athens.

Athens, Ala.—Athens is soon to have a large and profitable industry. The Hollon-Blow Stave Company has secured a splendid location here and will at once erect a $20,000 stave finishing mill, which will give a large number of laborers employment at good wages.

A cracker and candy factory will soon be added to the other industries of Athens, and will be managed by Mr. Henry Christensen.

Moonshiners Captured.

Scottsboro, Ala.—A big wildcat raid was made Friday, and three mountain moonshiners captured red-handed and landed in the county jail. Messrs. Roote, deputy collector, and Henry Arnold, a deputy United States marshal, received information several days ago that a large moonshine still was in operation. They found a large fifty-gallon copper wildcat still in full blast and caught Bill Lyman, John Lyman and Bill Peak red-handed.

The latter were nervy and in the place of trying to make their escape showed fight. One of the Lymans made for his shot gun, a Colt's 45-calibre, but it hung somehow in the scabbard and Deputy Marshal Henry Arnold got the drop on him, and after disarming him took charge of his pistol.

Besides capturing the fifty-gallon still in operation, they also got a brand new still of sixty-gallon capacity, just set up preparatory to making a run, together with fifty gallons of beer, mash and singlings and sixteen gallons of the pure "mountain dew."

The copper worm and the two stills were taken in charge by the revenue officers, together with the prisoners.

The prisoners are all young men and do not look the desperate men that the mountain "wildcatter" usually are.

Cement Bluffs Sold.

Montgomery, Ala.—The governor has sold to C. S. Batchelder of Salt Lake City and J. W. McIntyre of St. Louis rights to mine cement at Oven's Bluff forty miles above Mobile, on the Alabama river on lands owned by the state for $15,000.

Several capitalists of the west have gone into the company which is to mine cement by a new process with a capital of one million dollars. The mines will be located on deep water to Mobile all the year round and it will be possible to float the product into Mobile for very little freight. It has always been hard to get a uniform cement, but with the new process and the Alabama product, it will be easy. Several Alabama men are in the scheme. The idea will be to get to work in time to catch the Panama trade. Part of the money to the state has been paid over.

Mr. Batchelder is a cement expert with a wide knowledge of the business.

Another Act Smashed.

Montgomery, Ala.—The supreme court of Alabama has declared unconstitutional the act of the last legislature attempting to repeal an act of the legislature of 1899 which established the county court of Morgan county. The case in which the decision was rendered was that of the state of Alabama ex rel. Massey Wilson, attorney-general, vs. D. W. Speake, judge of the Eighth judicial circuit.

A mandamus was issued directed to Judge Speake compelling him to restore to the docket of the county court a certain case in question.

Bank for New Market.

Huntsville, Ala.—The New Market Banking and Trust Company has been incorporated under the laws of Alabama to engage in the banking business at New Market, Ala. The officers W. E. Rodgers, J. W. Cochran, T. C. Yarbrough, vice-president, and T. C. Wesson, cashier. The capital stock is $10,000, and is held by a majority of the leading business men of the village. W. F. Yarbrough, J. M. Payne, W. E. Dodgers, J. W. Cochran, T. C. Wesson, L. P. Esslinger, J. O. Orman, A. J. Wilson and Thomas Wilson have been elected directors.

Wounded by Brother.

Mobile, Ala.—Dr. W. F. Cobb, a prominent physician of Barlow Bend, was brought to this city Friday night on the 10:55 Southern train seriously wounded by a gunshot wound in the face which was accidentally done by his brother. He was taken to an infirmary. His condition is considered precarious.

Another Gretna Green Wedding.

Dadeville, Ala.—Wesley Partridge and Miss Annie Partridge, well-known young people of Dadeville, were married at the county court house in Columbus, Ga. It was a Gretna Green affair.

An Old Lady Injured.

Centerville, Ala.—Friday Mrs. Rachael Owens, one of the oldest citizens of this section, sustained severe injuries from a fall. On account of her advanced age it was at first thought that her wounds were fatal, but the physician now says that she will recover.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—The contract has been let with J. T. Heflin to bore a well at the intersection of Cotton and Greensboro streets, between the court house and the McLester Hotel, and the work will be commenced within a few days. The contract calls for a well eight inches in diameter and 1,000 feet deep, if necessary to go that far.

Governor Refuses Bond Bids.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks has refused to accept any of the bids opened April 4th for the issue of $8,000,000 of refunding bonds to take the place of bonds coming due within the next fifteen months. He says that the number of bids at prices large enough to justify the state in selling were too small to be counted as covering the situation and he has, therefore, decided to sell none at all.

Thorsby

Business Direct

Commercial
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and REL
information furnished to who desire to locate in the

A. M. Johns
Groceries and Delicat

J. J. STANL
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE

MRS. MARY R. RASB
General Merchandi

G. W. Freem
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks
and Cigars.

Thorsby Wi
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, P

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Articles.
LICENSED PHARMA

A. Malmgre
Watchmaker & Je

E. H. Adams
General Merchan
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNS
General Merchandi

J. R. PARNEL
General Merchandi

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market

Mrs. M. E. Wi
Millinery and Noti

The Thorsby
G. C. Michelson, P
Good Beds and Me

A Langville &
BLACKSMITH
and HORSESHOER
Dealers in WAGONS and BUG

C. L. Forsm
Brick Yar

J. BICE
Charcoal Ove

TH

VOL. III.

GENERAL STATE

Current News Garnered as It the Plant of Report

Raid on "Moonshiners."

Ala.—J. O. Thompson
Ala.—J. C. Montgomery
Marshals R. A. Smith, W. S.
Smith, made near Pe
and still in operation to Jasper by a part of araigned before United Stat loner Shields and plead the charge of operating ill. He was placed under bon r before the United Sta
Huntsville in May and bond
$300. Collector Thomp
inder of the party are still in county making diligent sear t stills. It is reported that more illicit distilling going on ection of county north of the county line than there has twenty years.

Boy Had Narrow Escape.

, Ala.—A small boy living near street, where the Williams
s, as the big steam street roller nated, is rolling the newly street, came near meeting orrible death. Engineer Wood ning the machine straight nd not paying attention to the en he had occasion to reverse engine.
udden stopping of the machine
he little boy, who was stealing from his perch and his cries as roller approached him lead to ping of the engine just in time nt it crushing the little form lifeless mass. Warning has iven by the authorities for to keep their children off the r, and it is hoped that here-trouble will be had.

Repairing the Bridge.

en, Ala.—The Louisville and e road has a large force of work reflooring the bridge Coosa river at this point. The over this bridge is enormous.
w floor has to be put in every four months, and it is becomquite an item to the railroad
The travel is so heavy that e is made in putting down the r. pproaches to the bridge on es are being greatly strength-made more substantial. The hat the Louisville and Nash-ill build a new and much bridge across the river here oon as the Altoona extension eted is believed by many, as nt bridge will not hold up the ains that will necessarily have through Gadsden and over the Child Killed at Open Grate.

on, Ala.—The 3-year old child nd Mrs. James McDowell, who w miles from the city, died night, from the effects of eived Monday. It seems that was playing near the open e, when its clothing caught d after suffering untold for nearly two days, the little succumbed at 8:30 o'clock
night.

Preacher Retails Liquor.

mery, Ala.—The Rev. Tillman of Clanton, Ala., a regularly minister of the Methodist as bound over to the federal United States Commissioner nder a bond of $200 on the retailing liquor without a

Building a Boat.

lis, Ala.—Mr. Alex Sledge is power boat built, the frame is already completed. The going on at the waterworks when completed it will be wing service. It will be proeam.

rts More Coke Ovens.

ham, Ala.—The Woodward
pany has blown in another coke ovens of more than s coke oven plant at Dolo-ween Birmingham and Bes-
The company is now in a po-furnish all its own needs for furnaces to be supplied att. The new furnaces, the of the Woodward Company, wn in the first part of next

00 Fire in Montgomery.

mery, Ala.—Fire gutted the Gerson & Co., and Steagall causing a loss of $15,000, well covered by insurance.

Wreck
Mobile while dryi hauled in Mobile an north of an open full speed cars on a Engineer caught un and his ri addition to from whic were:
Thomas
two finger
Richard right arm the body.
Charles recovered.
Arthur bruised ab

Gunters convicted in the fir
ting. Th to be hu
Winkle,
January 1
Watts h public roa late in th Winkle p back with The perp which W rted. Wi but his c tled.
Watts day dug place whi kle's grav

Po Washin appointed county, vi
Rural rou
15: Cal
1, popula ville, De tion 123 dale coun houses county, s houses.

Le Scottsbo young far loading lo his leg b and thro crushing

Co Montgom of convict state convi
Boyd Lum
Richburg
Under th state will oners and
This is an excepti state.

A Gadsden and his a bankment mond was narrow es

ured.
...ridge and ...mountain ...sandwiched and ...Mexico ...and Horses ...states now ...on several ...one side ...in the ...Land ...

Thorsby
Business Directo

Commercial Cl
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and RELI... information furnished to ... who desire to locate in the ...

A. M. Johnso
Groceries and Delicate...

J. J. STANL
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBE
General Merchandi...

G. W. Freema
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks, T... and Cigars.

Thorsby Wine
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, Pr...

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and T... Articles.
LICENSED PHARMAC...

A. Malmgren
Watchmaker & Jew...

E. H. Adams
General Merchan...
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSB...
General Merchandi...

J. R. PARNEL...
General Merchandi...

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wi...
Millinery and Notio...

The Thorsby ...
G. C. Michelson, P...
Good Beds and Mea...

A Langville & ...
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in WAGONS and BUG...

C. L. Forsm...
Brick Yar...

J. BICE
Charcoal Oven...

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL. III. CLANTON, ALA., APRIL 27, 1905 NO. 5

GENERAL STATE NEWS.

Current News Garnered as It Falls From the Plant of Report.

Raid on "Moonshiners."

...Thompson, col... accompanied ... Montgomery, V. S. ... R. A. Smith, W. S. ... and City Marshal ... raid on an illicit ... Mill, in Winston ... a forty-gallon ... Cantrell was ... by Deputy Montgom... raiding party. ... arraigned before United States ...sioner Shields and pleaded ... the charge of operating an ... He was placed under bond ... before the United States ... in May, bond being ... Collector Thompson and ... party are still in ... diligent search ... It is reported that ... distilling going on ... north of the ... than there has ...

Boy Had Narrow Escape.

...Ala.—A small boy living near ... was the Willipus... ... the big steam street roller ... is rolling the newly ... street ... near meeting ... Engineer Wood ... the machine straight ... not paying attention to the ... he had occasion to reverse ... engine. ... sudden stopping of the machine ... the little boy, who was stealing ... from his perch and his cries as ... rolling machine reached him lead to ... of the engine just in time ... it crushing the little form ... mass. Warning has ... given by the authorities for ... to keep their children off the ... and it is hoped that here... trouble will be had.

Repairing the Bridge.

...Ala.—The Louisville and ... road has a large force of ... now reflooring the bridge ... river at this point. The ... this bridge is enormous, ... floor has to be put in every ... four months, and it is becom... quite an item to the railroad ... The travel is so heavy that ... is seldom passing down the ...

...ces to the bridge on ... is being greatly strength... more substantial. The ... Louisville and Nash... now and much ... across the river here ... Altoona extension ... observed by many, as ... will not hold up the ... that will necessarily have ... Birdsden and over the ...

Child Killed at Open Grate.

...Ala.—The 2-year-old child ... Mrs. James McDowell, who ... miles from the city, died ... from the effects of ... Monday. It seems that ... was playing near the open ... clothing caught ... suffering untold ... two days, the little ... at 8:30 o'clock ...

Preacher Retails Liquor.

...Ala.—The Rev. Tillman ... Clanton, Ala., a regularly ... minister of the Methodist ... was bound over to the federal ... by United States Commissioner ... a bond of $200 on the ... selling liquor without a ...

Building a Boat.

...Ala.—Mr. Alex Sledge is ... a new boat built, the frame ... already completed. The ... on at the waterworks ... completed it will be ... service. It will be pro... ...

Starts More Coke Ovens.

...ham, Ala.—The Woodward ... has blown in another ... coke ovens of more than ... coke oven plant at Dolo... ...ham and Bes... company is now in a po... all its own needs for ... furnaces to be supplied af... The new furnaces, the ... Woodward Company, ... in the first part of next ...

$5,000 Fire in Montgomery.

...mery, Ala.—Fire gutted the ... Gerson & Co., and Steagall ... causing a loss of $15,000, ... well covered by insurance.

Poll Tax Report.

Montgomery, Ala.—The reports of the tax collectors of the state for the year shows that the total collections of poll taxes for the year 1904 have been $62,750. Of this amount $2,447 is credited to 1903, $1,309 to 1902, and $499 to 1901. Those counties which have the largest amounts in 1904 taxes are given as follows: Blount, $1,172; Clay, $1,109; Cullman, $1,700; Etowah, $1,167; Houston, $1,017; Jefferson, $4,763; Madison, $1,220; Marion, $1,110; Marshall, $1,657; Mobile, $1,510; Montgomery, $1,657; Morgan, $1,405; Pike, $1,019; Randolph, $1,222; Shelby, $1,089; St. Clair, $1,040; Tallapoosa, $1,093; Tuscaloosa, $1,123; Walker, $1,430. The smallest comes from Russell county, which pays $153, while Macon pays only $223, and Greene $248. It is shown that for the year 1904, therefore, the taxes of this class collected amounted to $58,945.

The collections for the year 1903 were the first under the new lay by which a man may leave off his tax and disfranchise himself. These ran back to cover 1901. They were, for that year, $132,663, divided as follows: 1903, $118,726.50; 1902, $11,347.50; 1901, $2,589.

For 1902 the total collections were $101,819, and so far in the fiscal year of 1905 they have been $90,275.81.

Wreck on the Mobile & Ohio.

Mobile, Ala.—Thursday afternoon while trying a new engine just overhauled in the Whistler shops of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, five miles north of Mobile, the engine ran into an open switch, and while going at full speed ran into a string of box cars on a siding. The impact threw Engineer Jack Meade out, and he was caught under the front of the tender and his right leg cut off at the hip, in addition to numerous other injuries, from which he died. Those injured were:

Thomas Kohl, leg broken and lost two fingers.

Richard Kelley, right leg broken, right arm broken, badly bruised about the body.

Charles Spicer, knocked senseless; recovered.

Arthur Sanders, colored, badly bruised about face and head.

To Hang for Murder.

Guntersville, Ala.—Bob Watts was convicted in the circuit court of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung. The crime for which Watts is to be hung was the killing of Jack Winkle, a Confederate soldier, on January 11, 1905.

Watts hid behind a large tree on the public road which Winkle was to pass late in the evening from work, and as Winkle passed he shot him in the back with a .38-calibre Martin rifle. The purpose was to secure money which Watts supposed Winkle carried. Winkle was mortally wounded but his cries brought help and Watts fled.

Watts had purposely on the same day dug a hole near the road at this place which was supposed to be Winkle's grave.

Postoffice Appointments.

Washington, D. C.—Forest E. McVay appointed postmaster at Winn, Clarke county, vice Joseph Cravey, resigned. Rural routes ordered established May 15: Caledonia, Wilcox county, route 1, population 421, houses 100; Crossville, DeKalb county, route 1, population 433, houses 103; Killen, Lauderdale county, route 1, population 500, houses 121. Waterloo, Lauderdale county, serving 550 people and 140 houses.

Leg Broken by a Log.

Scottsboro, Ala.—Andy Wilhelms, a young farmer living near town, while loading logs had the misfortune to get his leg broken by a chain breaking and throwing a huge log on him, crushing both bones in his leg.

Contracts for Convicts.

Montgomery, Ala.—The state board of convict inspectors has leased 150 state convicts, males, to the Henderson Boyd Lumber Company for service at Richburg for $30 a month each.

Under the terms of the contract the state will feed and care for the prisoners and guard them.

This is regarded by state officials as an exceptionally good contract for the state.

Automobile Accident.

Gadsden, Ala.—Joe W. Hammond and his automobile fell down an embankment Thursday and Mr. Hammond was painfully injured, making a narrow escape from death.

Court House to Remain.

Edwardsville, Ala.—Captain Sedberry, state examiner, who was sent up from Montgomery to examine the petition for the removal of the court house from Edwardsville to Heflin, has been here examining the papers. Thursday was the day for the trial, and after examining the petition it was found that 196 had withdrawn and about 400 were unqualified. There being only 875 on the petition asking for the removal, this left only 275 of the 1,445 asking for the removal.

They then adjourned until Friday morning at 8 o'clock. The leaders came up from Heflin and had a meeting with their lawyers, and Friday they withdrew the petition, thus closing a strong fight, which in all probability settles the question for the future, as the new jail is to be commenced at once, the contract already being let, which calls for the completion by October, 1905.

White Man Kills an Old Negro.

Gadsden, Ala.—Pink Jones, white, aged about 30, shot and killed Fayette Jelks, colored, aged 65, near Attalla about 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Jones had threatened to kill W. S. Hathaway on sight, and had lain in wait for him as he came along the trail coming from his work at the furnace. Jones and the negro were together when Hathaway came upon them. Jones commenced cursing Hathaway and threatening to kill him. Hathaway told him he was unarmed. Jones then cursed the negro and without a word of warning emptied the contents of his gun into the negro's left breast, causing instant death. Jones escaped. The negro Jelks was an herb doctor, old and inoffensive. Jones has a bad reputation.

Tragedy Near Mobile.

Mobile, Ala.—Friday night Frank Joulian, proprietor of a road house on Bay Shell road, was called to his door and asked if he had wine. He replied, "No, but we have beer," and then turned to re-enter the house, when he was shot, supposedly by John Ellis, a contractor, formerly of Indian Territory, but who has been a resident of Mobile for some months.

Ellis was accompanied by Earle Rosselle in a single buggy. Another couple was also accompanying them—John Morris, alias Robert Mohr, and Della Howard.

The shooting is the sequel of a personal encounter some weeks ago between Ellis and Joulian in a saloon in this city, in which Ellis was worsted. All parties were arrested. Ellis was slated for shooting with intent to murder and the other three as witnesses.

Joulian was taken to the City Infirmary, and the chief of police at 1 a. m. was called upon to take his dying statement.

Coffee County Raid.

Troy, Ala.—Deputy Collector E. N. Winters and Deputy Marshals A. B. Colquitt and A. J. Collier came to Troy Friday morning from a raid in Coffee county. Willie Houston and Willie Arrington were brought before United States Commissioner Tutwiler by Deputy Marshal Collier, charged with illicit distilling, and were committed to jail in default of bail. Deputy Marshal Colquitt brought W. H. Stone before United States Commissioner Tutwiler, and he pleaded guilty and was bound over to await the action of the next federal grand jury under $200 bond. Two illicit distilleries were destroyed by the officers near Roeton on the 19th inst., one of them belonging to Hurston and Arrington and the other to W. H. Stone.

Decatur, Ala.—Sheriff J. H. Wiggins silently slipped away to Birmingham Thursday afternoon and during the night took from the Jefferson county jail John Collier and Harvey Smith, the two negroes who have been under arrest there for some time, charged with the murder of Miss Belle Bloodworth.

Three Burned to Death.

Greensburg, Pa.—By the explosion of a bottle of gasoline in the home of John E. Kunkle three children of the family were burned to death and a fourth so fearfully injured that her recovery is a matter of doubt.

Demopolis, Ala.—Demopolis is trying to secure the Alabama, Pensacola and Western railway. The Commercial club is considering a proposition from R. D. Patterson in this connection. A double track road from Memphis to Pensacola is proposed. This city is asked to give $20,000 in cash, depot facilities, etc.

Windham Taken to His Home.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Rev. Sam H. Windham, the insane man who went into a room with the Rev. Sam Jones, the evangelist, Friday and threatened to kill him, was taken to his home in Ozark, Ala., late in the afternoon. He had little to say except to thank the jailers for their kindness to him.

FRANCE FORCES RUSSIA

Rojestvensky's Fleet Ordered to Leave Kamranh Bay.

ADMIRAL TOGO IN READINESS

Japanese Commander Lies in Wait For the Czar's Armada—France Not Strong Enough to Force Her Neutrality, But Sends Urgent Message to St. Petersburg.

Tokio, Japan.—France has informed this Government that it has taken all necessary measures to prevent the Russian Baltic fleet from remaining any longer in French territorial waters. It has been assumed here that this effort by France is in the form of a message to St. Petersburg requesting the departure of the hostile squadron from Kamranh Bay immediately. The warships of France in the China Sea, it has been recognized here, are not powerful enough to enforce neutrality.

Two cruisers, a gunboat and five torpedo boats constitute the French navy on the coast of Annam, and Tokio understands that the French Ministry has not the physical power at this time to enforce its sovereignty. A formal request to Russia, however, if made, as is intimated by cable here, would bring the situation to a crisis. Should Rojestvensky decline to sail from Kamranh and Callao bays and thus defy the power of France, there would be no reason why Japan should not attack the Russian fleet in the harbors of French Indo-China.

The Tokio Government had directly requested that France observe neutrality, and was wholly satisfied with the intimation from M. Delcasse that Russia has been informed her hostile fleet has remained too long in the harbors of Annam. The Japanese Foreign Department sent to Paris direct proof that several battleships and cruisers had been for three days well within the three-mile limit. M. Delcasse was courteously told that the French officials in the Province of Annam could confirm this statement by cable.

This message to France was followed by one to London identical in character, but it was understood that Baron Hyashi requested the English Admiralty Department to send its British China squadron to the coast of Annam, so that plain observance might be had of the breach of neutrality should the Russian squadron continue to remain in French territorial waters. The insistence of Japan that the Russian squadron must depart has aroused great enthusiasm in Tokio, not because of the diplomatic phase of the subject, but because it made certain the belief that Admiral Togo was ready to strike, and simply wanted to force the Russian ships out into the China Sea.

Once Rojestvensky was forced to sail from Kamranh and Callao bays, the sea fight could not be long delayed. He could go southeast, of course, to one of the Philippine Island ports, where, however, he would be permitted to remain only a short time. He could go northeast to Hong Kong, a British port, where strict neutrality also would be observed. From either a Philippine or British port he would be at once reported to the Japanese navy, and on his departure would be subject at once to attack.

It was unofficially reported here that Rojestvensky has sailed with all his ships on a course southeast, which would bring him between the Paracels Islands and the Philippines. This rumor came from responsible officials in the Imperial Navy Department, but could not be confirmed.

Asked directly the question whether Rojestvensky's squadron had departed from Kamranh Bay, Baron Kosako answered by saying the ships were in the harbor at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Paris, France.—As a result of communications between the governments in Paris and St. Petersburg, the Russian Minister of Marine forwarded urgent orders to Admiral Rojestvensky to rigorously respect the neutrality of French waters. This was a precautionary measure. In addition special instructions have been sent to the Governor-General of Indo-China, M. Beau, and Foreign Minister Delcasse instructed the French Minister at Tokio to give the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs assurance that it was France's purpose to preserve strict neutrality, these being similar to the assurances given to Dr. Motono, the Japanese Minister in Paris.

THROUGH BURNING BRIDGE.

Mail Section of Chicago-Florida Express on the Southern Wrecked.

Rome, Ga.—A part of the first section of the northbound Chicago-Florida express on the Southern Railway was wrecked in a burning trestle six and a half miles from Rome. No one was killed, but several of the crew were injured. The section carried only baggage and express and mail cars. The engine passed over the burning bridge, but the two cars following went into the burning structure. The damage is reported to be heavy.

ROJESTVENSKY CUTS CABLE.

Repeats Dewey's Famous Action at Battle of Manila Bay.

London, England.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Singapore learns that Russian agents have cut the cable between Foochow and Formosa.

PERISH IN CONVENT FIRE

Four Bedridden Old Women and Nine Girls Among Victims.

Other Sisters in Quebec Institution Brave Death to Save Children Until Overcome by Smoke.

Montreal, Quebec.—Fourteen lives were lost in a fire which early in the morning destroyed the little convent of St. Anne, in the village of St. Genevieve. Sister Marie Adjeteur, music mistress of the convent, sacrificed her life in attempting to rescue the young girl pupils, nine of whom perished with four aged women.

Sister Marie Robertine and Sister Marie Therese of Jesus were badly burned. All of the old women who were lost in the fire were too feeble to leave their beds, and were burned to death without being able to help themselves.

The flames started in the quarter of the convent used as a home for aged women of the village, and spread with such rapidity that there was little time for anybody to escape. The brave sisters dashed through the halls risking death to save their charges. The children who perished were penned in the dormitory and had been overcome by smoke when the sisters forced their way to the rescue. Sister Marie Adjeteur was found in the centre of the group of bodies of the nine pupils on the second floor of the building. The other two sisters were found in the halls by volunteer firemen of the village and were carried out almost dead.

The convent was a branch of the Order of the Sisters of St. Anne of Lachine, and was built many years ago. Its gray stone walls and massive construction made it an interesting place to visitors to the little village of St. Genevieve. The village is in the parish of Jacques Cartier County, on Reviere des Prairies, three miles from Beaconsfield and five miles from Pointe Claire. When the fire broke out shortly after midnight the inmates of the convent were sleeping. On the first floor was the hospice for old women, one of whom gave the first alarm.

The flames spread from floor to floor with unaccountable rapidity, for the building was supposed to be constructed in such a way that it would resist fire. The dormitory on the second floor had thirty girl pupils, in ages from eight to eighteen years. The sisters' sleeping rooms were on the same floor. Frightful excitement followed the alarm. The flames spread to the dormitory before the children could reach the halls. The little ones were huddled at one of the windows when the sisters broke into the room. In terror they shrieked to the latter to save them.

Many times the sisters ran back and forth to the dormitory, rescuing children until the flames drove out all but Sisters Marie Adjeteur, Marie Therese and Marie Robertine, who plunged into the furnace to save the nine little ones. Sister Marie Adjeteur had the group of nine about her when, overcome by smoke, she dropped and perished with them. The other two sisters groped their way out of the dormitory, but fell in the hall.

Bucket brigades were formed by villagers, but their efforts were unavailing. Attempts were made to connect by telephone with St. Claire, but for some reason the town could not be raised, and the hope of summoning aid from Montreal had to be abandoned. The convent burned until there was nothing left but its picturesque stone walls, which stand blackened and gaunt. The bodies of the fourteen were recovered by men who risked their lives to get them.

NAVY DISPLAY FOR PAUL JONES.

Squadron of Warships to Bring His Body to the United States.

Paris, France.—The State Department has advised Ambassador Porter that an American squadron will be sent to take the body of Paul Jones to the United States, probably in June. It is expected that the French Government will participate in an imposing funeral pageant when the body leaves Paris. Detailed plans have not yet been made, but it probably will take place just before the Franch national holiday, July 14. Large forces of French soldiers and sailors will form the escort.

The following cable messages have been exchanged:

"Admiral Dewey to Ambassador Porter:

"'Cordial congratulations upon the wonderful results of your search.—George Dewey, Admiral United States Navy.'"

"Ambassador Porter to Admiral Dewey:

"'Happy to receive congratulations concerning the father of the American Navy from his most illustrious successor.'"

COLLEGE BUILDING BURNED.

Vanderbilt University Suffers Loss of $200,000—Water Supply Inadequate.

Nashville, Tenn.—The main building of Vanderbilt University, the leading educational institution of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was destroyed by fire, the loss being estimated at $200,000.

Owing to an inadequate water supply and a strong wind the structure could not be saved. Flying sparks ignited several small residences and stables on Hayes and Church streets, several blocks away, and these burned despite the efforts of the firemen. The origin of the flames in the university is not known.

Vanderbilt University was founded in 1875 by Commodore Vanderbilt.

Professional Cards.

Attorneys.

William M. Adams,
Attorney-at-Law,
CLANTON.
Office, Adams Place. Practices in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on Improved Farm Lands.

A. C. Smith. J. O. Middleton.
Smith & Middleton,
Attorneys-at-Law.
Practice in All Courts.
Office 6th St., Opposite Court House,
CLANTON.

Physicians.

Dr. V. O. Campbelle,
Physician and Surgeon,
Office over Roper's Store.
CLANTON.

N. S. JOHNSON, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at
Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

L. V. STABLER, M. D
Physician & Surgeon
Office Over Horn's Drug Store
Thorsby, Alabama

DR. E. G. HYMAN
DENTIST
Office in Tipton Mullins' Building
Office Hours 8 to 12 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m.
CLANTON

H. C. Junkerman
DENTIST
OFFICE: Franzen Building
Thorsby, Alabama.

PURE GOODS
The following SPECIAL BRANDS always in stock

Big Rock	I. W. Harper
Rose Valley	Upper Crust
Upper Ten	Kentucky Taylor
Joe Gideon	American Malt
Murray Hill	Budweiser Rye
Pleasant Hill	Deep Spring
Green River	AAAA Lincoln County
Jack Daniel No. 7	Wilson
Old Spring	Good Wood
Shaw's Malt	Club House Rye, 10 years old.
Jefferson County Rye	Cascade, 14 years old.
Old Harvest Corn, 5 years old

I carry a Full Line of Barrel Goods which I sell in Jugs from half gallon up. Mail orders promptly filled.

A. STEIN,
Bank Saloon, Calera, Ala.

F. M. Foshee, of Clanton, is with the above house and would be pleased to have all Chilton county people call on him.

In addition to our Complete Stock of DRUGS Etc.
You will find a full line of
SCHOOL BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC. SEEDS.
PAINTS OILS and GLASS.
CLANTON DRUG COMPANY

NOTICE.

Blank Deeds, Mortgages, and all official forms for Justices of the Peace, etc., for sale at The Union Office. Only best approved forms are used. Come in and give us your order. tf.

PRETTY THINGS TO WEAR

New York City.—Blouse jackets made with postillion effects are among the latest the season has to offer and are exceedingly chic and fashionable. This one is made in box pleats that give exceptionally good lines to the figure, and is shown in chiffon broadcloth with vest and cuffs of velvet, revers and turnover cuffs of heavy lace, a combination that always is satisfactory and effective. The design, however, is appropriate for all seasonable suitings, and when velvet is too heavy, silk or any contrasting material that may be preferred can be substituted. The postillion with basque extension is separate and can be used or omitted as preferred.

BLOUSE JACKET.

The jacket consists of the fitted lining, fronts, back, vest and revers, which are stitched to the fronts, their under edges being extended to give the stole effect. Both fronts and back are box-pleated and are joined to the belt. The sleeves are arranged over linings, which are faced to form the cuffs, and are full above the elbows, with roll-over flare cuffs that give an exceedingly smart touch, but which can be reversed, as shown in the small view, whenever preferred. The postillion and basque are attached to the belt.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is five yards twenty-one, four and one-half yards twenty-seven, or two and one-half yards forty-four inches wide, with one and three-fourth yards of all-over lace and one and one-half yards of velvet to make as illustrated, and two and one-half yards of silk for lining.

This is Silk Year.

This is a silk year, and ribbons of great beauty are used lavishly on the new hats. As a rule they are of the softest and most pliable silks, and are put on, not in stiff bows, but folded and crushed into rosettes. Several tones of a color are used in these rosettes, giving a flower-like effect.

Tucked Blouse or Shirt Waist.

Dainty waists made of fine lawns and tucked in lingerie style are among the most attractive of the season and are shown in many variations. This one is eminently simple and can be laundered with ease at the same time that it is smart and attractive. As illustrated, the material is Persian lawn, the tie and belt being of pale blue, but the waist is adapted both to similar thin materials and to all those suited to tucks, whether of silk, wool or cotton. The sleeves are quite novel and are tucked at the wrists where they are joined to the straight cuffs.

The waist is made with fronts and back, the back being plain, simply being drawn down in gathers at the waist line, while the fronts are tucked at the shoulders and are finished with a regulation box pleat. The sleeves are in shirt waist style, finished with openings which are cut beneath the tucks and finished invisibly. The collar consists of the stock and the tie, which are made complete and finished at the centre back.

A Late Design by May Manton.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is three and seven-eighth yards twenty-one, three and three-fourth yards twenty-seven, or two yards forty-four inches wide, with one-fourth yard of bias silk for tie.

Again the Shirt Waist.

Evidently the shirt waist suit is to be as good as ever. It is certainly trim and smart and positively distinguished as compared with skirt and waists totally unrelated to each other. In white lawn there are dainty affairs as fetching as they will be suitable. Fine tucks, Valenciennes lace, embroidery and French knots are noted in the decoration of these crisp suits. There are cape-yoke effects and there are straight up-and-down effects. The skirts show only enough trimming to keep them in countenance with the waist.

Cloth Skirts.

Cloth skirts are this season worn with velvet jackets. This is a new idea and one which bids fair to be decidedly popular. This jacket, however, to be in good style, must be one cut with basques and to be quite elaborately trimmed. The skirt is of broadcloth, matching exactly the color of the jacket.

SAGE DROVE BARGAIN IN LOAD OF HAY

The Economical Millionaire Made Neighbor Pay For Ride in Work of Hired Man.

Russell Sage has not squandered very much on clothes and personal luxuries during his long life, still he has spent some pretty large sums on horses, his love of which has amounted almost to a passion. Some time ago he paid $10,000 for a team of trotters for use at his country place on Long Island, and the first time he was to drive them he asked Frank Tilford, who was a neighbor of his, to go with him. How Uncle Russell made the rotund Tilford pay for his outing is still told with great glee throughout the countryside.

After driving a little way a team was seen approaching drawing a load of salt hay out from the meadows along the shore. Immediately said Sage:

"I am paying too much money for bedding for my horses. Now we'll see what this man wants for his load of hay."

So the stranger was stopped and the aged financier began negotiations.

"What do you want for that load of hay?"

"Five dollars," was the reply.

"Five dollars?" said Sage; "why it is not worth a cent more than three. It does not cost you anything; all you have to do is to cut it."

"Well," replied the farmer, "it takes a good half a day's work and the use of my horses and wagon."

But Sage would not pay $5, so a compromise was made on $4 for the load delivered.

"Where shall I leave it?" said the farmer.

"At Frank Tilford's," said Uncle Russell, and turning to Tilford, as they drove on, he said:

"You see, Frank, if he knew that hay was for Russell Sage he would not let it go for less than $7. And by the way, when he leaves it at your place, just let your man bring it over to my barn."

WISE WORDS.

Joy is not in things, it is in us.—Rev. Charles Wagner.

Formal creeds are but cloaks for man's spiritual ignorance.

The anguish of longing is preferable to the fullness of satiety.

The intellectual culture which sterilizes the heart is a crime against nature.

Industrious wisdom often prevents what lazy folks think inevitable.—Simmons.

Bar the lobby—the bane of every legislative body!—Governor Mickey, of Nebraska.

Our civic progress depends largely on the provisions of education.—Mayor McClellan, of New York.

Nature has decreed that nothing fraught with life shall escape the bitterness of nature's strife.

Many a man's reputation would not know his character if they met on the same street.—Elbert Hubbard.

I prefer a less great name in military annals to having 30,000 lives on my conscience.—General Stoessel.

Fate never wounds more deeply the generous heart than when a blockhead's insult points the dart.—Johnson.

To make knowledge valuable, you must have the cheerfulness of wisdom. Goodness smiles to the last.—Emerson.

Of all the cants in this canting world, though the cant of hypocrites may be the worst, the cant of criticism is the most tormenting.—Sterne.

The liar generally passes his time boasting of his hatred of liars, thinking thereby to cover his own defects; but he neither hoodwinks others or himself.—Lavator.

In a London Restaurant.

The old farmer had dined well, as befitted a son of the soil when in London on a visit, but to the waiter's surprise he evinced a tendency to depart without bestowing a tip on the man who had supplied his wants.

He fussed about the old gentleman, and cast his "you-aren't-going-to-forget-me" stare on him, but to no purpose. Then he determined that severe measures would have to be adopted.

"Perhaps you are not aware, sir," said he, "that the waiters here receive no wages. Ahem!"

"Then," said the old farmer, "the more fules you to work for naething, when I wad gie ye half a crown a week and your meat tae fricht craws!" —Tit-Bits.

Test of Friendship.

There is no truer test of friendship than one which will understand the silences which often fall between people. You are sitting with a friend, talking interestingly, suddenly the conversation lags, stops altogether, and the two of you sit silent, possibly for half an hour, without a word being spoken. And yet neither misses anything, the calm content and serenity of spirit which pervade all the surroundings prove the sympathy which exists that makes understanding complete. That is the real friendship which respects moods and demands nothing which it is not willing to bestow in return.

German Religious Statistics.

A recent study of the confessional statistics in Germany is the subject of detailed analysis in the Tablet, according to which there were in 1900 in the empire 35,131,104 Protestants and 20,231,141 Roman Catholics. Besides these the census recorded 203,793 "other Christians," 35,000 Old Catholics and 586,833 Jews—not quite so many as in New York City.—Churchman.

THE PULPIT.

AN ELOQUENT SUNDAY SERMON BY DEAN F. K. SANDERS, OF YALE UNIVERSITY.

Subject: The Most Beautiful Book.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—In the absence of Dr. A. J. Lyman, the pastor, the pulpit of South Congregational Church was occupied Sunday by Dean F. K. Sanders, D. D., the head of the Divinity School of Yale University. He took for his subject "The Most Beautiful Book in the World," and said:

My theme rests on the authority of one renowned for his literary knowledge, Renan, who is deservedly famous as a student of literature and of the Bible. He declared that the gospel of Luke was the most beautiful book in the world. No one can, of course, test this statement who is not familiar with the gospel. To the superficial reader it is only one of the stories of the life of Jesus. The skill, the power, the pathos and the sympathy of the writer become clearer with every rereading of the book. An early tradition spoke of Luke the painter, and said he had painted a portrait of the Virgin. That tradition, whether true or not, was not very far from right. It may be said that he gave us, in a fashion, the most beautiful picture of Mary of Nazareth; it stands out before us with lively distinctness. Everything goes to show that Luke was a Greek, familiar with the best literature of his day, a keen observer and careful investigator. He seems to have had unusual opportunity for observing and describing the life and personality of the Lord. Among other things he gives evidence of possessing the true historic spirit. You will notice how he is interested in tracing the Lord's active ministry from place to place. The story is told in an orderly fashion that helps us to arrange the facts far better than the other gospels could. You will notice also that Luke is fond of following up the physical and moral growth of our Lord. He is also careful to connect his story with the history of the time—with Roman and Syrian history. He is careful to place the life of Jesus in its larger environment and to show what Jesus was in relation to the world about him, and we shall see why it was that that point of view laid such hold upon him. This was natural to a cultured Greek, and it was necessary if his purpose was to influence his cultured countrymen.

What is it, we may ask, that constitutes a beautiful book, and does this third gospel possess those attributes in a supreme degree? It would seem to me that a beautiful book ought to have in the first place a noble conception, which in some way awakens and dominates the soul, and it ought to have a skillful, but simple plan of development rightly grasped and enjoyed. There must be good taste and right judgment in the choice of the material which enables us to grasp details and to see the gradual unfolding which the writer would set forth. And there should be felicitous expression of everything which the writer seeks to set forth. These are the fundamentals of a beautiful book.

First, in its beautiful conception. The theme is the active life of Jesus, and it is far more than that; it is the broad life which He lived with others. Luke loses no chance to show how outsiders sought opportunities to come in contact with Jesus and always evoked a response. We see His parents, disciples, friends and casual acquaintances with entire directness, and yet it was not Jesus the man that Luke tells about, but the Lord Jesus. Luke never forgets that those to whom he refers are now the risen Lord and the apostles of the church. A famous critic said: "Luke ever spares the twelve, especially Peter." He omits many little details even regarding our Lord, such as the agony in the garden, and many about the apostles, especially Peter, which are given in Matthew and Mark. Why? Apparently because he did not think it was worth while. He was studying the work of the Lord in reverent fashion. It was not his purpose to simply put down facts, but to show those facts which would bring out the explanation of the fact that Jesus was the risen Lord of humanity, and that the twelve were the "glorious company of the apostles." It was not even just that, but to show Jesus in all His power, and greatness, and holiness, and grace, the friend of all who were in any kind of need, the Saviour of human kind, the one power to whom the whole world ought to bow. That seems something like the thought that was in the mind of Luke.

But to go to the plan of development. It is extremely simple. Mark's gospel consists of a series of scenes which bring out the life of Jesus with startling realism. Luke and Matthew are not like that. Luke seeks to give the historical association, a plain and simple view of the development of the life, and it is unique in its simplicity. He has two chapters devoted to the infancy and boyhood of Jesus, and in the last two verses he shows the thirty years of growth of Jesus. Then two chapters serve to bring us to the point when, in full maturity, and with absolute command over Himself and His purposes, He was ready for the work which opened before Him. So three or four chapters give us the preparation for this public ministry, tell us of John the Baptist, how Jesus came to him, the details of the baptism and temptation; then follows the genealogy, and we are prepared for the actual story of the active work of Jesus. Then comes the story of His ministry, from Galilee to Jerusalem, and then the last week in Jerusalem, the Passion, and lastly the resurrection and ascension, easy to follow and comprehensive. Luke adds six out of twenty miracles and eighteen out of twenty-three parables and a great deal of choice material.

In the third place is the exquisite taste and sympathy. Luke's gospel is a universal gospel. He emphasizes the fact that the ministry of Christ was for all. Dante called Luke the writer of the story of the gentleness of Christ. He alone tells the stories of the good Samaritan, the prodigal son, the great supper, the Pharisee and the publican, the dinner in the house of Simon, and, lastly, the story of the repentant robber. All is a part of his great theme. Nor was it accidental that Luke shows us so many types of women and gives them honor, a strange thing in his day. His remarkable delineation of Mary, the mother of Jesus, with her strong, deep womanliness, gentle, trustful and pure, resolute and self-controlled; how is it done? Just a word here and there. Truly we call his the gospel of womanhood, but it is only a part of that broader vision of the true purposes of Jesus and His work.

Perhaps the most direct proof of the quality of Luke's gospel is in its charm of expression. Where can you find anything more exquisite than the story of the birth at Bethlehem, or of the scene in the synagogue at Nazareth, or than the pathetic story of the widow's son, or of the woman "that was a sinner?" We should need to take a whole book to make such profound impressions. The stories of Mary and Martha and of Zacheus of that walk to Emmaus—how impossible to read it without having our hearts burn within us also! Luke was truly a portrait painter. An ancient legend said Luke was the founder of Christian art.

Now the last and finest test of perfection is unity. Passages in the book of Luke are like gems in a royal crown. The book is a tribute of a reverent disciple to the Lord Christ, showing His relationship to man and striving to convey the impression of His personality. As if Luke should say: "Cannot you see that He embodied the universal ideal of a perfectly God-like life; that He over-passed human possibility and gave in His life the evidence of being divine?" To be appreciated the book must be constantly and reverently read until it is fixed in the memory. Then it will do its constructive work in our souls. It will encourage us, that gospel of Luke, to let the whole Bible have its right of way in our lives, and it will suggest the way in which the Bible can become, in our hearts, the source of genuine and constant upbuilding.

The Pulpit Vitalized.

Pulpit power, which for a time seemed to be on the wane, is returning, and it is largely because the preaching is less of a literary character, less of finished essays and topical discussions, semi-secular. It is now more vitalized and energized with the Spirit's power. Those who heard some of our most famous preachers ten years ago would scarcely believe they were the same men speaking if heard to-day. Dr. Gunsaulus, who used to deliver those polished sermons in Plymouth Church, Chicago, ten years ago, could not hold the great audience in the down-town auditorium which he addresses now if he used those old-time sermons, or better ones of the same order. Something seemed to come into this fine man's life a few years ago which admonished him that nothing but the power of God could make a sermon great, and he has been preaching great sermons since that day. Dr. Hillis used to charm a literary audience in Central Music Hall with an essay which glittered like a newly cut stone from the hands of a lapidary, but if reports are true, that is not the kind of sermons that Dr. Hillis is preaching now. Indeed, he himself is quoted recently as saying that oratorical pulpit flights are the bane of preaching, and that clergy and laity shared an equal responsibility in the saving of souls. "The preacher," said Dr. Hillis, "must not treat on topical subjects Sunday after Sunday, but must preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. The church is not the preacher's field; it is his force, and it is the man who has not crossed the church's threshold for years upon whom you have a claim." It is that possibility which makes a preacher's work inspiring, but also tremendously responsible. What Sabbath may he not have among his hearers a soul that is hungering and thirsting for the bread and the water of life? What an infinite crime to give him a stone, or quite as bad, a handful of artificial flowers."

Be Good For Something.

The highest virtue consists of more than merely being good. It is being good for something; and good for something not to one's self alone, but to others and to God. That negative, self-complacent virtue which is only a strict abstention from evil, is of a quality far inferior to the virtue which suppresses evil or helps another to resist it. Virtue, in the old Latin sense, is synonymous with valor. It implies not only an espousal, but a championship, and, if necessary, a fight. Virtue is not only being good, but doing good, and the better we are the more we ought to do. We believe in these words of R. R. Bowker:

"It is bad for the ignorant and the vicious to do ill. It is worse for the educated and honest to do nothing."

Disloyalty.

When a Christian is at peace with any sin in his own life, when he is reconciled to any evil habit, or becomes indifferent to anything in his own character which renders him unlike Christ, he is disloyal to his Master. In like manner, when a citizen of the Kingdom of God is at peace with any sin of society, becomes reconciled to any evil habits of the community or indifferent to anything that is inconsistent with the full coming of God's Kingdom on earth, he is disloyal to the kingdom.—Josiah Strong, D. D.

Open the Doors.

You close your doors and brood over your own miseries and the wrongs people have done you; whereas, if you would but open those doors, you might come out into the light of God's truth, and see that His heart is as clear as sunlight toward you. If you would but let Him teach you, you would find your perplexities melt away like the snow in the spring till you could hardly believe you ever felt them.—George Macdonald.

Christ Walks on Our Feet.

Christ would still seek the lost, but He must do it now on our feet: He would still minister, but He must do it with our hands; He would still warm and comfort and encourage and instruct, but He must do it with our lips. If we refuse to perform these offices for Him, what right have we to call ourselves members of His body in vital union with Him?—Josiah Strong.

A Wonderful Light.

If you are willing to choose the seeming darkness of faith instead of the illumination of reason, wonderful light will break upon you from the Word of God.—A. J. Gordon.

THE SUNDAY SCH

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COM FOR APRIL 30.

Subject: Jesus Washing the Feet, John xiii., 1-14—Gold Gal. v., 13—Memory Verses, Commentary on the Day's L

I. At the supper table "The Passover." This was three great Jewish feasts called the feast of "unlea because only unleavened allowed. "Hour was com approaching agony and de was no uncertainty wi perfectly did He work that He knew when He the close of His earthly part unto the Father passion and ascension this departure, as taking one hour. "His own." H "Which were in the world." to continue longer in its difficulties. "Loved unto end." 1. To the intermo love (margin of R. V.). 2 without end.

2. "Supper being ended the meal having begun had already reclined. It Luke's account that as t reclining couches as the ancient custom required explained the washing feet by Jesus a rebuke on humility and pride now put." Judas formed days before this, on the what happened at the hou the leper; see Matt. 26:14 knowing." This verse is s unclouded perception of H the Father, the commission from Him, and His approac to Him, possessed His so incarnation Jesus came t His death and resurr to God. Christ came fro bring God to us. He went to bring us to God.

II. Jesus washes the d vs. 4, 5).

4. "Riseth from supper ter they had taken their pl table. The washing steps place before the singu His garments." His ou cloak which would incom leaving the tunic, which w dinary dress of a servant "Himself." The girding readiness for service. To to complete the full dress or slave. A bold condesc Master, who was about glory, and the aspiring d were too lofty to wash feet, and were anxious stations in life. 5. "Beg We have a very expressive meaning of this action. that it was performed to ample of humility, or eve tration. It was simply menial service that ought to done by the disciples, but w refused or neglected to do. arose and performed the se vice Himself. No wonder conscience-smitten disciples amazed, and that Peter felt i must not wash his feet.

III. A conversation wi 6-11). 6. "Then cometh it was Peter's turn to be Lord, dost Thou." Dost Thou of God, the Messiah, perform ble office of a servant for Peter had often seen the h his Lord, but never as in th and he recoiled with an un sense of shame and astonish other disciples seem to have Jesus to wash their feet in s attire. The loaves packed them, mingled them, and sent them for to the Mount of Olives, and t afterward Ebenezer and his were on their way to join the s [illegible] Five [illegible] them than other lozenges, Sabina," he said, 14: a still clearer understand the crucifixion; better s tecost; a full knowledge Jesus did for His own was in eternity.

8. "Shalt never." Not nity shalt Thou wash my Thee not." With the he of which this is only a p wilt not submit to this [illegible] to that. "No part with M 1. The first condition of was submission to Christ. washing was a symbol of cleansing, and so Peter Christ's words (v. 9). "N only." He goes from o the other. 10. "He that Bathed; for it was the Jews to bathe twice, themselves for the pas "Ye are clean." You are sincere. Jesus did not re hearts were cleansed from that did not take place "But not all." This which only Judas could IV. Christ teaches hu 14). 12. "Know ye done." Consider what I the meaning and signific That He intended His di the spiritual meaning of t seen from what follows. 13 and Lord." One who has whose example should be and whose commands o "If I then." The Master nity, authority or power by descending love. He was tr in that He stooped to m ble work when others refus "Ye also ought." The servan greater than his master, and do well to imitate Me. If has entered your understandi all strife for position, and o in service to each other.

The Field of Sports

The Highlanders won from 9 to 1.

The New York Giants defe umbus by a score of 9 to 4.

Four balloons held a race f land across the channel to F

The Giants easily defeated City Eastern League team a Ground.

The Highlanders disposed Newark nine at Americus Park.

The Napier boats were firs ond respectively in the 100 race at Monaco.

PRAYER FOR THE NATIO

[illegible]tion's God, enthroned [illegible]
[illegible] Thou the prayer we [illegible]
[illegible]Thou our land in Thy [illegible]
[illegible]ugh all the days that [illegible]

[illegible]e foes [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]

THE SUNDAY SCH

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMM
FOR APRIL 30.

Subject: Jesus Washing the Disc
Feet, John xiii. 1-14. Golden
Gal. v., 13—Memory Verses, 12
Commentary on the Day's Le

PRAYER FOR THE NATION.

[illegible] above,
[illegible] we raise to Thee;
[illegible] great love
[illegible] that are to be.

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] God,
[illegible] endless toil,
[illegible]
[illegible] Rome of old

We pray not for our land's increase;
Nor ask to wield the tyrant's rod;
We pray that wickedness shall cease;
We pray for righteousness, O God!

Keep Thou our hands from all taint free;
Keep Thou our hearts sincere and pure;
Keep Thou our eyes upraised to Thee;
Keep Thou our feet steadfast and sure.

Our nation's God, enthroned above,
Hear Thou the prayer we raise to Thee;
Keep Thou our land in Thy great love
Through all the days that are to be.

—Thomas Curtis Clark.

AN HONEST HOUSEMAID.

* * * * * * *

BY THEODORE DAHLE.

EBENEZER MORGAN, [illegible], was a striking [illegible]. He was large, he [illegible] and he was con-
[illegible]nal, and he knew [illegible] and beef them any [illegible]nteresting city. He [illegible] million invested in [illegible] a million in railway [illegible], half a million in [illegible]nough money at his [illegible]m, on demand, with [illegible] of this life.

[illegible] was that he had [illegible] of loss of memory.
[illegible] would set out for [illegible]get where it happened
[illegible]mbered that it was [illegible]nd when he set out
[illegible]d forget his name
[illegible]way, and in trying [illegible]ame he ceased to [illegible]ived. These were [illegible]sets of his absent-
[illegible] were others.

[illegible]erved to his daugh-
[illegible] in a putty con-
[illegible]You kin pack up for [illegible]he sos I've got ter
[illegible]'s a machin' order.
[illegible]e starts 'fm New [illegible]we kin catch that.
[illegible]th' upper deck."

[illegible]poppa," exclaimed
[illegible].
[illegible]t's what I ordered,
[illegible] of it but you kin
[illegible]ebec war really th'

[illegible] ready, poppa. I [illegible]go on.'
[illegible] around to th' stores
[illegible]k six trunks of fe-[illegible]d by th' day after [illegible]t. Now I'll jest [illegible] pork deal with [illegible]n we'll git to New

[illegible]'s only daughter
[illegible]ontrol one. When her [illegible] set on a thing she [illegible]use to oppose him;
[illegible]ong wanted to go to [illegible]e went to the [illegible] trunkfuls of [illegible]ings packed them,
[illegible] set them for-
[illegible] Castle, and two [illegible]er and his [illegible]way to join the [illegible] them thar

[illegible]Sabina," he said,
[illegible]away.
[illegible]," she answered.
[illegible]e said, and they

[illegible] few moments
[illegible] boat cast her [illegible]s going out of [illegible]father followed

[illegible] with Me." Be [illegible] disc
[illegible] captain on [illegible] to Christ
[illegible] you stop
[illegible] was a symbol of [illegible]Peter und [illegible] one ex
[illegible] deaf.
[illegible]ng paper?" de-
[illegible]."
"I've been fussin' [illegible]
[illegible]Skew, an',
[illegible] my um-

[illegible] soothing-
[illegible] when you
[illegible] which

[illegible] lost you
[illegible]began. Mebbe

* * *

[illegible]. They put [illegible]. It was prob-
[illegible]ost Americans
[illegible]They saw the [illegible]d Ebenezer never [illegible] even himself.
[illegible]stors he went out
[illegible]s back again—
[illegible]s he regarded [illegible] morning at [illegible]long after th'

[illegible]g some di'- [illegible]ools. I reckin you [illegible]em."
[illegible]Sabina, grate-
[illegible]to think on it.
[illegible]ary true korrector."
[illegible]xpansive smile and [illegible] fumbling in [illegible]l from a wallet [illegible] notes. "Here's [illegible]," he went on,
"I ain't counted
[illegible] nuf' enough.
[illegible]" Sabina put
[illegible]

[illegible] shopping in [illegible] and Oxford
[illegible] all sorts of [illegible] necklets, and all
[illegible] all sorts of hats,
[illegible]sons, and what not.
[illegible]two hundred-guinea
[illegible] it was a weather
[illegible] a musical box and a [illegible] one.

"Anybody likely to git this watch, Mr. Jeweler, do you think, if I leave it about?" he asked.

The jeweler laughed.

"I don't exactly understand, sir."

"No, I guess you won't. I've lost four 'bout this size an' quality in six months, an' I'm beginnin' ter think they kin jump. I ain't got the mem'ry I had. I winds' em up carefully, and then slips 'em off the swivel an' uses 'em fr a letter weight, an' then goes out an' does a deal with Jabe Skew or somebody, an' when I cum back I ag'in or swopped it fer a bale of cotton, don't know whether I've picked it up or giv' it in change fer a ten-dollar bill. I figure you don't sell anchors, do you? No, I guessed you wouldn't. Good-day."

When he and Sabina had reached the street, he turned back into the shop.

"Say, Mr. Jeweler," he said, "I don't happen ter hav tuk too little discount fer cash off thet thar bill, do I?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "Your memory seems excellent in that way."

"Thank you! I'm glad I've kip all right up to now."

They came back laden with as many parcels as they could conveniently carry, and several were delivered after they arrived at the hotel. The following day he sat in the room, examining the jewelry and some of the other parcels, while Sabina was out buying picture post cards. It was cold, and he had ordered a fire, by which he sat while he looked at the heap of purchases on his knees. Suddenly he was moved to put some more coal on the fire. He rose from his chair, laid the jewelry on the floor, scooped out the coal from the scuttle, threw it on the fire, and then shoveled up the jewelry and deposited it among the coal. Then he set out to find Sabina in the Strand, but turned into the Charing Cross railway station, booked to Paris and boarded the Dover train within two minutes of its departure. All the rest of that day and night Sabina wept copiously, and next morning she was just going out to inform the police that her millionaire father was missing, when a telegram arrived from Paris.

"Just remembered I am in Paris, Hotel Loudres," it said. "Come at once. EBENEZER."

Sabina placed everything she could find in her trunks, too troubled and alarmed to examine what went in and what was left out, locked them, paid the bill, and posted to Paris.

Half an hour afterward Arabella, the chambermaid, was busy in the forsaken rooms.

"Them there Americans do fly off!" she said, as she cleaned up the fireplace. In due course she looked at the coal scuttle, and saw a number of small packages and boxes. When she opened them, with wide-staring eyes, you could have knocked her down with her duster. Nobody being in the room to do anything of the sort, she sat on the hearthrug and counted one beautiful gold chronometer, two diamond bracelets, six jeweled rings of various sorts, one diamond pendant necklet, four pairs of jeweled earrings, six wondrous brooches, one pair of jeweled opera glasses, and sundry smaller articles too numerous to mention.

"They would set me up for life!" exclaimed Arabella, her eyes glittering back at the diamonds. "It's about the valuablest coal scuttle I've ever seen."

Being an honest girl, she took the jewelry to the hotel manager and told her story.

The manager, generally a quiet man, who thought he had long ago ceased to be surprised at anything, gave a long, low whistle.

"Not less than five thousand pounds' worth! Thank you! They will come back for those, and you shall be rewarded," he said.

The manager was prescient. A few hours later he received a telegram:

"Parcels left on hatrack important. Hold till our return.

"EBENEZER MORGAN."

"Hatrack!" exclaimed the manager, laughing till his sides shook.

Half an hour afterward came another telegram:

"Father doubtful. If not on hatrack, try coal scuttle.

"SABINA MORGAN."

"She's hit it!" said the manager, who was still chuckling.

* * * * * * * *

"So you're the gal that found the jewlry," said Ebenezer, who had returned to the Elysium. "Consarn me! I calc'late y' putty considerable honest. What's y' name?"

"Arabella Jenkins, sir."

"Waal, Priscilla——"

"Arabella, father," corrected Sabina, smiling her apologies at the girl.

"Pardon me, Rebecca; I never war no guns on names. Now, luk y'ere. We live in Chicago, me an' my daughter, an' you kin bet Chicago is th' greatest town on 'arth.' Waal, I allus calc'late ter git my daughter a honest female f'm Yarrup t' do her hair an' sich like. There ain't nobody honest in Chicago outside ourselves, you-kin reckonon thet, an'——"

"Yes," interrupted Sabina, "and we'll give you eighty pounds a year."

"Yaas," Ebenezer went on, "she'll give y' eighty pounds a year. Money ain't no object. I reckin I kin put my name to 'bout ten million dollars. Belinda, an' thar ain't more'n about a few on us Evin' kin do thet."

Arabella stood stupefied, without speech, or the means of speech.

Ebenezer proceeded:

"Mebbe y' don't think eighty pounds adekate. I'll make it ninety pounds if y'll come an' be as honest as y' can, an' do my daughter's hair, an' sich. There's enough jewelry left round our house in Chicago to tempt th' honestest female breathin'. I'r all I knaw, if y' come y' will find my gold chronometer in th' washin'. Now, if——"

"But, sir," faltered Arabella, "I was going to be married."

"To who?" demanded Ebenezer.

"To a policeman, sir, when I can afford it," said Arabella.

"All right. I reckin thet p'liceman'll keep. We're arter somebody honest. Th' jew'lry that gets lost in our house amounts to a fortune. Say, Sabina, kin we afford one hundred pounds? Tell y' what, Amarilla, w'll give y' one hundred pounds."

"I'll come," said Arabella.

"Thet's right," exclaimed Ebenezer. "You'll enj'y it. Shake!"

* * * * * * * *

One day while out shopping Arabella met Ebenezer.

"Guess I'll walk aside of you," he said.

"I was just going some errands for Miss Morgan, sir," she remarked.

"All right; you kin do them arter. I happened ter wander across a pars'n yesterday," he went on, "an' he give me a tickit, an' I said to him thet when I war passin' his church some day this week I'd give him a call, an' y' may as well come in, kase, you see, I ain't no hand at——"

Arabella understood and went in.

A fortnight later a member of the Metropolitan Police Force received this letter:

"Dere Sir—You will be surprised to here from me so soon. My name is Mrs. Ebenezer Morgan, and you can get married to somebody else if you want to. I relees you from your engajement. Enklosed plese find order for two-and-six as a smole token of my esteme. Yours trudly,

"MRS. EBENEZER MORGAN."

—New York Weekly.

Changes in Wheat Belt.

Vermont was once the granary of New York City. It now produces only one bushel of wheat to more than 200 in Minnesota, the banner State.

Rochester was once known as the "flour city." Now it is called the "flower city." But New York still raises as much wheat as Wisconsin. Maryland produces more than either, Texas nearly twice as much and Pennsylvania three times as much. Only eight States surpass Pennsylvania in wheat raising.

Kansas produces nearly as much wheat as both the Dakotas, which are much more often mentioned as wheat States.

Only a trifle more than half of the wheat crop grows west of the Mississippi. Illinois, Indiana and Ohio still produce 80,000,000 bushels, which is more than any far Western State, and over one-eighth of the whole crop.

Little Delaware raises more wheat than all New England. Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina raise 35,000,000 bushels.

New York is the second flour-milling centre in the United States, though far behind Minneapolis, which can grind 82,000 barrels a day to New York's 14,000.—Chicago Chronicle.

About St. Patrick.

His baptismal name is said to have been Sucat.

Little is known of him.

He was born in Nemthur.

Nemthur, Scotland, is now Dumbarton.

He was born in 396 and died in 469.

His father was the deacon Calpurnius.

In 411 Patrick was captured by the Picts and sold into Ireland as a slave.

After six years he escaped this slavery and devoted himself to the conversion of Ireland.

Then he prepared for the priesthood, entering upon his mission about 425.

It was in the year 441 that he was consecrated a Bishop.

Of his writings there were his confessions and an epistle.

One prominent authority says that the only thing actually known of him is that he existed.

And not a word as to his greatest deed of effectually fixing matters so the sons of the Emerald Isle cannot see snakes!—Philadelphia Record.

Courtships in Shakespeare's England.

In Shakespeare's England courtship was not the prolonged and romantic affair it is now. The young folks did not make and unmake engagements as they pleased without consulting their parents. The etiquette of betrothal was almost as formal and as rigid as that of marriage is to-day. It consisted of three observances—the joining of hands, a kiss, and interchange of rings, all in the presence of witnesses, and usually in church. The man had to promise under oath to "take this woman whose name is N. to wife within forty days." It is needless to say that under such circumstances—engagements never lasting as much as six weeks, partners usually chosen by the parents, marriages at the age of fourteen and honeymoon trips unknown—there was much less opportunity than there is now for the development of romantic love.—Henry T. Finck, in Harper's Magazine.

SOUTHERN FARM NOTES.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE PLANTER, STOCKMAN AND TRUCK GROWER.

The Farmer's Axioms.

The dictionary says: "Axiom, a self-evident truth." The definition applies to the following from the Southern Cultivator:

1—The first requisite of good farming is good soil.

2—The best way to procure and retain a rich soil is by deep and fine tillage. No particle shonld be larger than a pea.

3—Another most important factor in good farming is thorough preparation of soil before planting. It can not be done after the seed are in the ground.

4—Fineness and depth constitute the mechanical condition of the soil; and this is of far greater importance than its natural character, whether of clay, of loam, or of sand.

5—Rotation is the only method that will make both the land and the owner rich.

6—Don't cultivate to kill weeds and grass, but to work the land so thoroughly that weeds and grass can not grow.

7—Farming is an art, and he who produces the most from a given area is the best artisan.

8—While fixed rules of agriculture can not always be laid down, certain principles are fixed and remain the same forever. Practices are conditional, as the time of planting and crops to be planted; but preparation of the soil and the method of planting are principles and are applicable to all localities.

9—Certain principles must be thoroughly understood; the four most important ones are—enriching the soil, deep tillage, manuring and rotation.

10—The successful farmer is one who adds wealth to his pocket, and wealth to his soil at the same time.

11—Live stock farming, dairying, grain, hay or cotton farming must all be followed by such a system that no matter how much one sells, the soil is not robbed of more than is returned to it.

12—Vegetable matter is the best form in which manure can be applied to the soil.

13—One acre well fixed and rightly manured is better than four ill prepared.

14—Plants do not live upon the soil, but they live in it, and can only grow upon the soluble food it contains.

15—The feeding roots of any plant are delicate white fibers, so small as rarely to be seen with the naked eye, hence the importance of keeping the soil fine and moist.

16—Killing grass is not the main object of cultivation; it is the conserving of moisture, by preventing capillary attraction from wasting it upon the air.

17—"There is more in the man than there is in the land." The spirit of the man working upon the land can work wonderful changes.

18—Heat, water and manure is the trinity it takes to make vegetation grow.

19—The farmer should drive the food raised on his place to market on foot. In other words, he should feed to cattle and sell the cattle, retaining all the manure for his soil.

20—Put all the money you clear back into the soil until you get up to the very highest state of fertility that can be attained.

21—Keep your tools under shelter; shelter is cheaper than buying new tools.

22—Have good barns for all cattle; they can live on much less feed during the winter when properly sheltered from the cold and rain.

23—Good tools are much cheaper than labor; the farmer who does not use improved machinery is placed at great disadvantage.

24—Save your money — the more money you save the more force you can expend at the right time.

Fertility in Ton of Cotton Seed.

By giving the fertilizing constituents contained in cottonseed the same valuation that was assigned them in unmixed fertilizing materials during the past year, one ton of cottonseed will be worth $13.15 commercially, as a fertilizing substance. This amount represents the value of reserve plant food material that is taken from the farm in every ton of seed sold. If seed are sold then cottonseed meal or some other suitable nitrogenous fertilizing material should be returned to the soil in order to maintain the supply of plant food. A nitrogenous material is advised, because over eighty-three per cent. of the value of cottonseed is due to their content of nitrogen. However, the best way, because in most instances the cheapest, to return to the soil the equivalent of nitrogen removed in the seed is by the growth of some leguminous crop, such as cowpeas, vetch, alfalfa, soy and velvet beans, all the clovers, etc. When the whole plants or the vines only of these legumes are returned to the soil either directly or after their passage through the bodies of animals, an average good crop will restore to the soil as much or more nitrogen than was removed in the seed of the previous cotton crop. The growth of vetch and bur clover in rotation with cotton following cotton or corn is treated at some length in a bulletin of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, issued in July, 1904, hence this phase of the subject will not be taken up here. The mineral fertilizing constituents — phosphoric acid and potash—in a ton of cottonseed are worth $2.24, when valued according to the price paid for them in unmixed fertilizers during the past year. This amount of the mineral fertilizing constituents, of course, should be returned each year to the soil in some suitable available form.—Progressive Farmer.

Judicious Plowing and Harrowing.

The most of our Southern soils—especially those of clayey formation— can be handled better in the winter than in the spring. It gives the air and frost a longer time to work on the particles; in other words, there is a longer time for unavailable plant food to be changed into the available form. Sandy soils and those that easily leach by the spring and winter rains, perhaps can better be plowed in the spring. They readily dry off in the spring and planting is never materially delayed. When spring comes, and the frost is gone and the soil is dry, then comes the use of the disc and spring tooth harrows. But do not hurry. It will take another frost to remedy the evil done by plowing or harrowing a wet soil. A crop is often materially lessened by this injudicious rush to plow or to cultivate. A soil that has been plowed during the winter is usually compacted and hardened by spring time. In this case a replowing in the spring is advisable. We have increased the yield as much as twenty-five per cent. by an extra spring plowing. But when this intensive plowing is neither necessary nor advisable, the disc or spring tooth harrow, or both, will not only cut up and level and fine, but put the soil in thorough preparation for planting. When a dry spring comes, and the soil is dry and hard, let the roller be used in connection with the above mentioned tools so as to thoroughly prepare the soil. The clods and lumps must be gotten rid of. If they must exist, have them at the top of the soil, but not in the soil. Here is where diligent tillage comes in, and here is where cultivation of corn has its greatest value—before the corn is planted.—Progressive Farmer.

To Prevent Damage by Cut Worms.

I send you a plan or contrivance for preventing cutworms from cutting cabbage plants. It is this: Take a piece of moderately stiff paper (any kind will do) about five inches square (5x5). Fold this twice (making a small square) and cut a small tip from folded corner. Unfold and cut from one side, following the crease to notch in centre made by cutting folded corner. To make it look more uniform while the paper is folded as above stated, pass scissors in a curve around cutting off corners. This, too, makes it look better. When this is done, and a little dirt moved from around the stem of plant, open slit to receive stem; draw the paper till the stem has reached the notch. Then draw one edge of the slit over the other till the paper assumes a funnel shape and the notch fits snugly around stem of plant. To hold it in this position draw a little dirt up around the paper, being careful to not get it too high that Mr. Worm may walk over, and sprinkle a little dirt on the inside to keep paper from being misplaced by the wind. Since the worm does his work just above the surface, it is very important that the paper be a little below the surface. This plan, of course, gives some trouble, but a hand can place the paper about as fast as setting the plant, and if properly done there will be no loss of plants by the worms cutting them, and the little extra work is nothing compared to the loss and worry that is often experienced by gardeners.—Florida Agriculturist.

Test Your Seed Corn.

As a rule, the Southern farmer is not sufficiently careful with his selection of his seed for the next crop. A test for germination should be made; ordinarily, there is scarcely a farmer in a hundred that tests his seed corn so as to know what per cent. will germinate. Half crops and failures are often from this one trouble alone.

Let me suggest that the reader try a little different method this year. Get a sample, say, a hundred grains of seed corn, and then plant in a tomato can or box or even fold the grains in a cloth and lay the same in a shallow pan where it will be kept warm and moist somewhere in the living room of the house, and in a few days' time the experimenter can see for himself how many of the grains have germinated. This will give full information in reference to the quantity of seed to plant on each acre. — Progressive Farmer.

Wreck; 100 Cattle Killed.

Dallas, Tex.—At Bruceville, McClellan county, about twenty miles south of Caco, on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway, a stock train crashed into a fast freight train, overturning the engine of the stock train and crushing beneath it H. C. Sanders, fireman, of Smithville, killing him instantly. Several other trainmen were slightly injured. Several cattle cars were badly damaged, about 100 head of stock killed and as many more badly maimed.

Mobile, Ala.—The Italian ambassador, Mayor des Planches, was hospitably entertained Friday by the Italian vice consul, John Ivulich. During the day he visited the agricultural district. That night a smoker was held in his honor at the Commercial Club, attended by leading citizens.

Many practical talks setting forth the advantages of this part of the country for the Italian immigrant were made, and the ambassador made happy replies, first in English and then in Italian.

LITTLE THINGS Worth Knowing

A black bear with pink eyes has recently been killed in Pennsylvania by a party of hunters. It is not known whether the bear is a freak or an example of some new species.

A Japanese porter at San Francisco saved $30 during the past two months, and last week he borrowed $1, and so sent $40 to Japan for the war fund. This is an example of Japanese spirit.

A novel sight was seen in St. Margaret's Church, Lowestoft, England, recently, when a thanksgiving service was held for the good harvest of the sea. The walls were draped with fishermen's nets, life buoys were placed in the pulpit and chancel, and even cured herrings appeared among the "decorations."

There is a hospital for diseased fishes at Vienna University, where the pathology of fish is studied. Here are some of the "cases:" A carp is being treated for an inflammation resembling appendicitis; ten others are suffering from smallpox; a porpoise from the Adriatic with inflammation of the lungs; a trout with cataract in both eyes, and another with dropsy.

Serpent worship still survives in India, and a snake shrine is said to be as much an attraction in a house on the Malabar coast as a garden in a country home in the United States. Serpents are, however, most unobtrusive, and unless one walks noiselessly and barefooted in the dark, as Hindoos do, snakebite is an improbable contingency.

The worst thing that can happen to a man in Siam is to get into debt, from which there is never any escape, owing to the exorbitant interest charged. Once in debt there is no appeal, the debtor being stripped of his clothes and compelled to work in fetters, generally for the rest of his life, to pay the interest. Drunkards are not permitted to give evidence in the law courts of Siam. The Buddhist priests, clad in yellow robes, are to be seen everywhere in Bangkok, and it is quite common for young men to enter the priesthood, which affords them an easy and luxurious existence, owing to the liberality of the populace toward any one sanctioned to the service of Buddha.

In Russian cities, according to an English traveler, the taking of a cab is a matter of bargaining, for though there is a printed tariff somewhere, the cabman cannot read it. If you know the distance you walk along the cab rank calling out your destination and your price—about a quarter of what you would pay in London and a tenth of the New York demand. When you have passed the last cab you will hear a clatter behind, and a driver will implore you to step in. If you do not know the distance you ask the fare; divide the answer by four and walk on. Curses! Invocation of saints! Drivers raise their arms to heaven in horrors. Walk calmly on, and there is a race to pick you up. Nor is there ever a dispute at the end.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

In One City the Affectionate Are Weak; in Another, Strong.

"If Tom is nine, attends school in New York and kisses Flossie," says the Chicago Chronicle, "he will be classed with the feeble-minded. But if Tom is nine, attends school in Chicago and kisses Flossie, he may be reprimanded, but neither his sanity nor his taste will be questioned. And that is one difference between New York and Chicago.

"In New York if Tom walks by the side of the desk of Flossie, with her flaxen curls and laughing eyes, and does not glance at her, he is immediately classed among the boys of promise. And in Chicago if Tom passes by the side of Flossie, with her flaxen curls and laughing eyes, and does not glance at her, he is classed among those who lack discernment."

The Chronicle is moved by the recently reported remark of Dr. Brann, physician to the New York School Board, that "affection in a superabundant proportion is a sure sign of feeble-mindedness," and that the child needs watching who "rushes into a room and throws his arms about the teacher, declaring his most violent love for her."

Truant Officer Bodine, of Chicago, has also something to say: "As a truant officer I have seen many children between the ages of seven and fourteen, and have rare opportunities of studying them. Always have I discovered that when they were healthy they possessed much spirit, which must exhaust itself in some manner. Some choose play, some affection, some temper. Never did I suspect, however, as I gazed upon the display of affection that I was gazing upon the proof of insanity."

A Physiological Discovery.

Little Mildred had had a nightmare, and was telling the family about it the next morning.

"When I woke up," she said, "I was still scared, and my heart was beating a tattoo——"

Here her elder sister interrupted. "How could your heart beat a tattoo?" she asked sarcastically.

"I guess it could do it on the drums of my ears, couldn't it?" demanded Mildred indignantly.—Youth's Companion.

The present fashion of shoes was introduced into England in 1633.

The Field of Sports.

The Highlanders won from M
9 to 1

The New York Giants defe unions by a score of 9 to 4.

Four balk-line held a race fr land across the channel to Fr

The Giants easily defeated the City Eastern League team at Oriental

The Highlanders disposed of Newark [illegible] at American Park

The Napier boats were first and respectively in the 100 race at Monaco.

THE UNION.

Published every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Wallace C. Edler, Ed. and Pub

Subscription price, in advance, per year, $1.

For advertising rates, call at the office, Seventh street, between First and Second avenues.

Entered April 15, 1903, at Clanton, Ala., as second class matter, under act of congress of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications to the Union must be signed by the writer's real name as well as that name which they wish to put in the paper. Letters must reach the editor Tuesday morning to get in the same week. While we will publish any and all communications complying with these requirements that do not contain any improper language, we are not responsible for the opinions expressed. tf

UNION CLUBBING LIST. . . .

The Union And Yellow Jacket	$1.00
The Union And Home & Farm	1.00
The Union And Dixie Home	1.00
The Union Saturday News	1.25
The Union And Weekly Age Herald	1.25
The Union And Atlanta Constitution	1.25
The Union and Weekly Advertiser and Map of U. S. and World	1.50
The Union And Twice-a-week Globe Democrat	1.50
The Union And Tom Watson's Magazine	1.50
The Union And Tri-weekly Constitution	1.50

If there are other papers you desire to club with us call on us and get full list.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Prof. J. W. Moore, our able county superintendent of education, has presented THE UNION with a little book of which contains the Rules and Regulations adopted by the Board of Education for Chilton county. It ought to be in the hands of every Trustee, Teacher and patron of our schools and Professor Moore says he will mail one to any person asking for it and enclosing a two cent stamp for postage, as long as the supply holds out.

THORSBY.

Gen. I are looking bright in Thorsby now, while the main fruit promises to be rather light in quantity, the quality will be excellent. They are making a good thing out of strawberries. Mr. Feist has a number of acres in this luscious fruit and has been shipping to Birmingham for the last two or three weeks. He gets ahead of Cullman; others are setting out large lots of strawberries. The Thorsby Real Estate Company was incorporated last week. The object of the company is to deal in real estate and to promote immigration to Thorsby and vicinity. The incorporators are M. J. Soberg, M. J. Barrett, Gust. Berlin, John A. Carlson, C. F. Carlson, John Newstrom, S. E. Norton, I. V. Stabler, E. N. Dyrhood, G. C. Michelson, and G. H. Gerald. The officers are M. J. Barrett, Pres.; M. J. Soberg, Vice Pres.; G. H. Gerald, Secretary, G. C. Michelson, Treasurer. The day of the real estate speculator and liar is past. He has retired to a back seat, and prospective settlers are no longer kept under guard until they buy or leave. Many new people are coming to Thorsby; one of the latest arrivals is Mr. Olaf Schive, who comes from Hiopolis, Ill., and is well thought of at his old home, as the following article clipped from the State Center Record, a newspaper published at Hiopolos, shows: "Olaf Schive, our amiable jeweler, who has been in business here for the past 12 years, leaves next Tuesday for Thorsby, Ala., where he and his wife will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Schive have made many friends during their residence here who deeply regret their decision to leave, but all unite in wishing them abundant success in their new home."

The policy of Chinese officials is getting to be more and more: "China for the Chinese."

The importance of good lights in the evening is not generally appreciated. A poor light is very trying and injurious to the eyes. We can remember when one tallow candle was the usual light for a family at night and if two were burning at one time it was considered great extravagance. The following from the Inland Farmer is very good: "If we were to name the greatest achievements of the closing days of the last century, we would unhesitatingly place the perfection of the lamp among the first."

A hundred years ago there was a very decided feeling in this country that princes and dukes and earls were a bad lot, both as to those then existing and as to those who were going to exist. That opinion at that time was both reasonable and just, the Hartford (Conn.) Courant opines. To enlarge General Hawley's memorable phrase, each generation must be judged by the light that it has; and that was exactly the light in which those early generations of freemen on this continent worked.

When the women see the heroine in the hero's arms on the stage; when they read in the last chapter of a book that the hero and heroine are embracing, how they applaud! But when they see the man next door kiss his wife good-by before starting for work, observes the Atchison (Kan.) Globe, how they laugh and wonder "how long it will last."

A man who gave the British the worst licking they ever "toted," whipping 12,000 veterans of Waterloo in one-half hour with 6000 raw troops, killing 2000 British, and losing but eight men himself. A man who had the courage to defy the whole banking system of the United States when opposed to the welfare of the common people. That man was General Andrew Jackson.

Jules Verne in his stories sought to anticipate science and "the long results of time," and in not a few notable instances he succeeded. His story of "Around the World in Eighty Days" seemed almost incredible a quarter of a century ago, but the fictitious record no longer seems wonderful, now that the actual record has made eighty days rather slow going for the world encircler. His "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" has also been realized in good part, and in many other cases facts have caught up to his fiction. Possibly they will yet catch up to some more, predicts the New York Tribune.

While we are inclined to criticise English railroads with much freedom, they have a record in one respect which our own railroad managers must look upon with respect. The gross earnings of the English roads never showed an unfavorable fluctuation, as compared with a previous year, of over one and one-half per cent. With all the talk of poor railway management, of decadent industries, and of the economic evils of war, it is confusing to find that the commercial development of Great Britain, measured by her gross railroad traffic, presents an almost unbroken record of advance. Net earnings, however, have been badly cut into by the rise in wages and by the higher cost of fuel, concludes Frank A. Vanderlip, in Scribner's.

Whenever anyone is released from jail or penitentiary after a long sentence, we read that while he was in poor or down-right bad health when he entered he comes out as hearty as a brick. Yet almost without exception jails and penitentiaries are insanitary, sunless places, with no facilities for precautions usually taken by those who wish to get or keep healthy. The mystery lies in two words, says the Washington Star, regularity and diet. The first is perhaps the more important. Clock-like regularity; everything done on the second, and on the same second every day; a recognition of the fact that the body is a machine. Then, as a supplement to this, a simple diet—plain, not too varied—enough to eat, but not too much.

Dr. Henry Smith Williams contributes to Harper's Weekly an article on "Electricity in Modern Life." He does not believe that electricity is any more marvelous than some other natural forces—heat or gravitation, for example. Not only may electricity be felt, but it may be generated through other forms of energy; "it may be stored away and measured; it may be conducted at will through tortuous channels, or obstructed in its flight by the intervention of non-conductors. But gravitation submits to no such restrictions. It eludes all our senses, and it absolutely disregards all barriers;" moreover, "no man has the slightest inkling as to what gravitation is. * * * There is nothing unique, nothing preternaturally marvelous about the phenomena of electricity."

The talk of society in Washington is on a higher plane than in any other city, because the proportion of clever men and women is very much greater there, and the distinguished men of this and other countries are the chief food for thought and sentiment in drawing rooms and at dinner tables; and, among lesser things, I was struck with the fact that everybody is good-looking, the old men stately, the young men handsome, the women both. It is the only city where every man takes off his hat when a woman enters an elevator, continues the Delineator. Every newspaper costs a cent more than its price. Whenever there is a piece of ground that is unoccupied, Washington plants trees and shrubs on it and not dead walls. And lastly, as I look over the beautiful Capital City, I think with a thrill of Daniel Webster's motto: "I was born an American, I will live an American, I will die an American."

LOMAX.

Rev. Joe Gibson preached here Sunday. Elder Redd will preach here on the 5th Sunday and Saturday, in place of Elder W. Lively. There will also be singing on the 5th Sunday beginning at 8 o'clock. Reuben Jackson has a new boarder—it's a girl. A. A. Jackson has a late arrival at his house—a girl also; Mr. Jackson is not a believer in "race suicide," for he now has ten children, equally divided as to sex. James Barrett was a visitor at Mr. Jackson's Sunday. Now a few words in reply to Mr. Jones and others. I always did love to shoot when ammunition and game was plentiful. Yes, I've some cows that I keep up so that they won't be tempted to go into a field, and make ill feelings with my neighbors. I've got the cows in a small patch, and the fence in some places is not over 3 feet high, so if they were very mischievous they would get out. I know my fence is not good, but it is an average one. I haven't the timber to build a good fence, and this is the case with others. Last winter I paid 10 cents per hundred for old field pines to make 8 foot rails just to fence against other people's stock. As to what will become of the poor renter, I hink he will be better off than he is now, for the Landlord can and will give him a better chance than he has now, as the farm will not be so expensive when so much fencing doesn't have to be kept up. I know of two renters who are very close neighbors to Mr. Jones. They both know by experience about stock law, and they are now in favor of it. I also know ten others that live within a mile of Mr. Jones that own small tracts of land and have lived in stock law and know what it is by experience, and they are in favor of stock law. Can Mr. Jones or "School Boy" point out 12 persons within one mile of them who know what stock law is by experience, and who oppose it now? Unless they can I claim the head mark. I'd like to hear some one on the opposite side discuss the matter from an economical standpoint. I claim that to have stock law would be economy for all classes. Always look at things from the standpoint of economy and you'll be crowned with success. Hurrah for "Dad's Plow Boy." With best wishes to Mr. Jones and other opponents and The Union and the cause it stands for.

"OBSERVER."

CENTER HILL.

Everythiig is doing well in this section at the present writing. The spring sunshine is appreciated by all with the attendant flowers. Some of our neighbors are in poor health, but we hope they will soon be well again. W. C. Martin has received his new buggy, so look out, girls; there is a chance for a ride. A good deal of corn and little cotton being planted here, we're glad to say, and hope other sections are doing the same; "charity begins at home." Let's raise what we want to eat, and then cotton for a surplus. If this first attempt misses the waste basket, I may come again. Success to THE UNION and its many readers.

"SUBSCRIBER."

COOPER.

Everything is doing well in this section is planted and ready to plow, and most of the cotton is planted. I see where "Observer" has got his shovel in where there is no dirt, about stock law. I say stock law is not a good thing. I lived in Autauga county last year under stock law and made a crop there, and about 3 days in each week was law suits. Who did it benefit? The lawyers. Who did it hurt? The prosecutors. I knew one man that the hogs got in his crop. He went to the owner and asked him to put up his hogs, and the man said they were not his hogs; next day the hogs got in and ruined two acres of watermelons, and my friend he killed the hogs; then the owner "came out of the bushes" and claimed the hogs. One sued for damage to his crop, the other sued him for killing his stock, and it cost them about $35 apiece. Who got the money, the man that was damaged? No. Any one that has lived under stock law knows that it keeps up strife among neighbors. "Observer" must be forgetful. Now, Mr. Observer, I want to know who you are. Stick your face from behind the door and let me take a peep at it. Four of my closest neighbors run from stock law; my nearest neighbor just quit his home in Chambers county and come over here and bought land. If the "hot place" is any worse than stock law I'm going to try hard to keep away from it. We had an election here in Beat 10 last year, and we beat stock law by 7 to 1, so Mr. Observer, if you want stock law, you'll have to move to it, for if you live to be as old as Methuselah you'll never see stock law in this county.

Respectfully.

J. S. JONES.

Motion Against Pleadings.

Jefferson City, Mo.—A motion has been filed in the supreme court by Attorney General Hadley to strike out the pleadings filed by the Standard Oil Company to his information alleging combination to control the supply and price of oils in this state.

Camp Selects Delegates.

Knoxville.—Joe Johnson Confederate camp in Union met and selected Charles H. Smith and John Miller as delegates to the Louisville reunion and Derby L. Donahew and Alex Monroe as alternates. Resolutions of respect were passed on the death of Gen. W. B. Date and Col. James E. Carter.

WHERE NEW FOODS FOR MANKIND ORIGINATE

Every Week, From Somewhere, a Vegetable, or a Fruit, or a Nut is Added to the World's Bill of Fare.

Man will eat 200 or 300 more foods in the year 2000 than he eats now, said a chemist. A movement is on foot among the world's governments to increase the varieties of our foods, and every week a new vegetable or fruit or nut is added to the international bill of fare. It is by a study of the food of savages that we get our new foods. Savages eat many things we regard as weeds of poisons, but which we can refine.

That is how we got our new delicacies in the past. Egg plant and tomatoes, for instance, we had never thought of eating till certain Peruvian savages showed us the way. Oats, barley and rye originated from weeds that grew on the shores of the Mediterranean. The buckwheat came from a wild Siberian plant. Melons, cucumbers, horseradish and onions were weeds of the East. The pumpkin was regarded as a poison for a long time, and with no little fear did some adventurous person of the past test it as a food.

Turning to the foods of our future, we find that the Klamath Indians alone eat forty kinds of vegetables that are unknown to us. Scientists are testing these vegetables, and are finding them to be palatable and nutritious.

Among them is the wichpi, which grows on the margins of the Western lakes. Its stems contain a white pith that, eaten raw, is as sweet and pleasant as a lump of milk chocolate. Then there is the kotsonoka, or goose foot. The goose foot bears in August small black seeds. These seeds the Klamaths roast, grind and make into cakes and gruel. The wokas, or yellow water lily, is the Klamaths' staple food. It is made into bread and into porridge.—Week's Progress.

Description of General Bell.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, the Denver jurist, at a recent address to a civic body in this city, was trying to give a fitting description of Adjutant-General Bell, the head of the military government in the Cripple Creek district in Colorado a year ago. The Judge said he did not want to use any harsh terms, and, besides, the subject was a difficult one to handle and give exactly the right shade to the description.

So finally, after making some general comment, he said that he believed the incident of a Scotchman he had met in Victor one day would give his hearers a very clear idea of the man.

"I met this man on the street one day," said the Judge, "at the time of the military control, and I asked him what he thought of General Bell. The man pulled my ear close to him and whispered this interesting tale:

"'I was up yesterday morning at dawn. The sun was just coming up and the moon and stars were just getting dim. Over there on the peak of Straw Mountain I saw General Bell sitting. He had a sword in his hand 100 feet long. He watched the sun a while and looked over at the planets.

"'All of a sudden he waved his sword around his head and bellowed, so that the mountain rang and reverberated with the tones. He shouted:

"'"Sun, moon, and stars! Right about face! Forward, march!"'

"Then, the man said, he watched the sun come up and the stars and moon go down, smiled to himself and went back to his quarters."—Chicago Chronicle.

Just For Show.

An Easterner on his way to California was delayed by the floods in Kansas, and was obliged to spend the night in a humble hotel—the best in the town. The bill of fare at dinner time was not very elaborate, but the traveler noticed with joy that at the bottom of the card, printed with pen and ink, was a startling variety of pies.

He liked pies, and here were custard, lemon, squash, rhubarb, Washington, chocolate, mince, apple and berry pies, and several other varieties. He called the waitress to him.

"Please get me some rhubarb pie," said he.

"I'm afraid we haven't got any rhubarb pie," she drawled.

He took another glance at the list. "Well, get me some squash pie, please."

"We haven't got that, either."

"Berry pie?"

"No."

"Lemon pie?"

"No."

"Chocolate pie?"

"I'm sorry, we——"

"Well, what on earth are they all written down here for? On to-day's bill of fare, too?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said the girl, apolgetically. "That list is always written down there for show when we have mince pie, because when we have mince pie no one asks for anything else."—Youth's Companion.

Kept the Rough Rider at Home.

J. H. Mizner, who resides here, was one of President Roosevelt's famous Rough Riders. Two years ago, when the President visited Vallejo and Mare Island, Mizner was one of the four Rough Rider aides to the President. He sent the following telegram to the President on inauguration day:

"Sorry cannot be with you; children teething. Congratulations."

Since the President was here Mizner became the happy father of twin boys, and the President is aware of this fact, which gave him much pleasure. The President wired his thanks for the kind congratulations of his former Rough Rider, and said that the excuse for non-attendance was good.—Vallejo Correspondence, Sacramento Bee.

Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St, THE BIG STORE, Cor. 2nd Ave and 7th St,

—Is at The Head of The Procession.—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, FURNITURE,

COFFINS AND BURIAL NECESSITIES.

W. I. MULLINS,

Clanton. — Alabama

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association

of Alabama.

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE

By the People and for the People.

Chilton County Branch

Organized February 3rd, 1900.

W. M. WILSON, President. WALLACE C. EDLER, Sec'y.-Treas.

INSURES Farmers' Dwellings, Outbuildings and contents and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind, Lightning. The Cheapest, Safest and Most Sensible Method of Insurance Known to Man.

Average Yearly Cost for Four Years 56-100 of 1 percent.

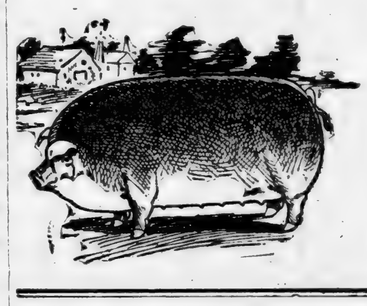
Full particulars furnished upon application to WALLACE C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala.

WOODLAWN FARM.

Barred Plymouth Rocks

PURE BRED

Setting of 15 fresh eggs 50c. Packing for shipping 10c extra.



PURE BRED

Duroc Jersey Hogs.

Write us for prices before you buy. Address,

W. Y. NIX, Maplesville, Alabama

DISPATCH PRINTING CO.

Blank Book Makers and Lithographers.

County and Office Supplies a Specialty.

Ask for Estimates.

2113-2119 Morris Ave., BIRMINGHAM, Ala.

Gelder's Restaurant

Good Meals at Reasonable Prices

110 North 20th Street,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE AND FERTILIZERS

FOR SALE.

Troy Special & Mule Brand "Are the Best on Earth."

J. C. JONES,

Clanton, - - - Alabama

Pure Water Prevents Fevers.

DRILLED WELLS FURNISH PURE WATER

We guarantee water or no charge made. Estimates given. Address

I. E. SARBER CO.

Thorsby, Alabama

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

Circuit Court.

Spring Term—Third Monday in May.
Fall Term—Fourth Monday in November.
Judge—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
Solicitor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
Clerk—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

Spring Term—Second Monday in March.
Fall Term—Second Monday in September.
Chancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

County Court.

First Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

Second Monday February, first Monday April, first Monday June, second Monday July, second Monday August, first Monday November.

County Officers.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. [illegible]
Sheriff—J. M. Merrell.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Moss.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—R. P. Kendrick.
Fourth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

A. P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send the editor any news regarding their churches which they would wish published. Also if there are any errors in these notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Beth-Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley R. F. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. J. Mullins, clerk.

Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 3rd Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman 3rd Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 2nd Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee 4th Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Collins Chapel—Rev. J. H. Thomas 3rd Sunday. J. W. Lapsley, clerk.

Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas 2nd Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 4th Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Mars Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; 3rd Sunday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abernathy, clerk, Verbena.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song service every 2nd and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Third Saturday, Clanton.

Amande Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 420—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 423—First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 737—First Saturday, Billingsley.

Bozeman Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 534—Saturday on or before full moon, Marbury.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 421—Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 422—Tuesday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and Fourth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and 3rd Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Peronermo Tribe, No. 90—First and 3rd Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. of R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

G STORE, Co
of The Procession.— thing, Hats, Sh
NITURE,
URIAL NECESSITIES
MULLINS,
Alabam

Insurance Associati
Alabama.
AL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE and for the People.
ounty Branch
ebruary 3rd, 1900.
WALLACE C. EDLER,
Sec'y.-Treas.
vellings, Outbuildings and C against Loss by Fire, Wind eapest, Safest and Most ance Known to Man.
100 of 1 percent.
upon application to
E C. EDLER, Clanton, Ala

WOODLAW
FARM.
Barred
Plymouth Rocks
PURE BRED
Setting of 15 fresh eggs
50c. Packing for shipp
10c extra.
PURE BRED Duroc
Jersey
Hogs.
Write us for prices be you buy. Address,
W. Y. NIX,
Maplesville, Alaba

PRINTING CO
ers and Lithographers.
e Supplies a Specialty.
BIRMINGHAM, AL

Restaurant,
Reasonable Price
th 20th Street,
HAM, ALABAMA.

ERCHANDISE AN TILIZERS
R SALE.
al & Mule Bran
Best on Earth."
JONES,
Alaban

Prevents Fevers.
FURNISH PURE WAT
ater or no charge made.
Address
SARBER CO.
Alab

COURTS AND COUNTY OFFICIALS

Circuit Court.

Spring Term—Third Monday in May.
Fall Term—Fourth Monday in November.
Judge—S. L. Brewer, Tuskegee.
Solicitor—W. B. Bowling, Dadeville.
Clerk—Sam W. Collins.

Chancery Court.

Spring Term—Second Monday in May.
Fall Term—Second Monday in September.
Chancellor—Hon. W. W. Whitesides.
Register—Mrs. S. A. Stewart, Clanton.

County Court.

First Monday in each month.

Commissioners' Court.

Second Monday February, first Monday April, first Monday June, second Monday July, second Monday August, first Monday November.

County Officers.

Judge of Probate—L. H. Reynolds.
Treasurer—W. T. Callen.
Sheriff—J. M. Morgan.
Solicitor—J. O. Middleton.
Tax Assessor—A. C. Mims.
Tax Collector—T. J. Hubbard.

County Commissioners.

First District—W. H. Conway.
Second District—Alex Glasscock.
Third District—R. P. Kendrick.
Fourth District—Moses Robinson.

Supt. of Education.

Prof. J. W. Moore, Clanton.

County Surveyor.

A. P. R. Dahl, Calera.

State Senator.

Hon. W. R. Oliver, Calera.

COUNTY CHURCHES.

Pastors and clerks are cordially asked to send this editor any news regarding their churches which they would like published. Also if there are any errors in the notices please send corrections.

MISSIONARY BAPTISTS.

Beth Salem—Rev. J. E. Moore, 3rd Sunday. E. B. Popwell, clerk, Billingsley R. F. D. No. 1.

Clanton—Rev. A. C. Swindall, 1st and 3rd Sundays. W. I. Mullins, clerk.

Chestnut Creek—Rev. T. J. Deason, 3rd Sunday. H. A. Harris, clerk.

Liberty Hill—Rev. S. Smitherman 3rd Sunday. W. M. Wood, clerk.

Macedonia—Rev. G. W. Freeman, 2nd Sunday. H. H. Armstrong, clerk.

New Salem—Rev. S. Smitherman, 2nd Sunday. W. M. Pierce, clerk.

Poplar Springs—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 4th Sunday. J. J. McDowell, clerk.

Union Point—Rev. A. L. Foshee, 2nd Sunday. J. N. Miner, clerk, Clanton.

Verbena—Rev. J. H. Thomas 3rd Sunday. J. W. Littleton, clerk.

Union Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas 2nd Sunday. R. S. Chandler, clerk.

Pleasant Grove—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 4th Sunday. T. J. Headley, clerk.

Mars Hill—Rev. J. H. Thomas, 1st Sunday. G. W. Gothard, clerk.

Primitive Baptists.

Bethel—Elder J. W. Howell, pastor; Sunday before the second Sunday; J. T. Abercrumby, clerk, Verbena.

Rocky Mount M. E. Church—Rev. Mr. Carroll, pastor, 2nd Sunday. Song service every 2nd and 4th Sunday afternoons. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

Clanton R. A. Chapter, No. 116—Meets Saturdays, Clanton.

Amanda Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 630—Fourth Saturday, Cooper.

Clanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 633—First Saturday, Clanton.

Century Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. 687—First Saturday, Billingsley.

Boyett Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. [illegible] Saturday on or before full moon, Boyett.

Jemison Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. [illegible] Saturday on or before full moon, Jemison.

Stanton Lodge, A. F. and A. M., No. [illegible] Thursday on or before full moon, Stanton.

I. O. O. F.

Jemison Lodge—First and third Saturdays.

Clanton Lodge, No. 304—Second and fourth Saturdays.

Woodmen of the World.

Black Jack Camp, No. 190—First and third Mondays.

I. O. R. M.

Geronermo Tribe, No. 90—First and third Mondays sleep. Visiting chiefs cordially invited. E. B. Langston, C. R.; J. H. Patton, Sachem.

L. M. P. A.

Eureka Lodge, of Thorsby—Second and fourth Saturdays.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Total receipts to April 26, '05 ...7,151
Price on same date 6 3-4
Total receipts same week 1904...6,648
Price same date 13 1-2

PERSONAL AND LOCAL.

Judge Reynolds and wife and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds, visited Montgomery Friday, returning Saturday.

G. N. Foshee was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

The traffic in flowers and huckleberries at McDavid, Fla., is on the boom, some of our Clanton people have contracted for large quantities.

W. D. Z. Foshee and son, Howard, were pleasant visitors Saturday.

J. H. Burkhalter was a welcome caller Saturday.

W. E. Littlejohn was in Clanton Saturday.

P. K. Villadsen, the furniture manufacturer of Thorsby, was in town Saturday.

W. B. Hubbard and wife visited Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. Littlejohn was in town Saturday.

Lum Smith, wife and the Misses Nola and Mabel Smith were in Clanton Saturday.

G. W. Foshee and wife were in town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Littlejohn were in Clanton Saturday.

Misses Callie and Dovie Smith were in town Saturday.

Rev. W. P. Lowery and wife were in Clanton Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Hubbard, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Gibbons, of Beat 3, were in town Saturday.

J. H. Thompson was a vicitor here Saturday.

A. A. Jackson, of Lomax, was a pleasant visitor Monday.

There was a large congregation at the Methodist church Sunday, both morning and evening. The church was prettily decorated with flowers, etc. The Easter song service at night was very good. It is a great pleasure to hear Mrs. Chandler, the organist.

Rev. Joe Gibson was in town Tuesday.

Judge R. M. Honeycutt, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Honeycutt and family spent Monday and Tuesday at Birmingham.

Attorney A. C. Smith spent Tuesday in Thorsby attending to legal business.

Attorney J. Osmond Middleton went to Birmingham Wednesday on business, and will be absent several days.

The Hon. Julius Sternfeld, of Montgomery, assistant United States district attorney, spent Tuesday in our town, and the law-breakers are trembling in their shoes.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Pate Cleckler and Miss Mary Cleckler; W. C. Gothard and Miss Berthenia Headley.

Colored.

Alex Lykes and Anna Hall.

NOTICE!

If you have timber lands for sale, want to buy a good home for $25.00 cash and the balance on long payments to suit purchaser, or if you want a position as log cutter, teamster or in saw mill or planing mill, write

The Marbury Lumber Co.,
Marbury, Ala.

MACEDONIA.

There will be religious services at the Waldrup school house, near this place, on the fifth Sunday and Saturday before (April 29-30) conducted by Mr. B. H. Barton, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Barton is a young man, an able and fluent speaker. All are invited to attend. The services will be strictly undenominational. He is traveling under the auspices of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Allegheny, Pa. Very respectfully,

W. R.

tf

NOTICE.

Dissolution of Partnership.

The partnership hitherto existing between A. A. Jackson and J. P. Robinson, under the firm name of Jackson & Robinson is this day dissolved by mutual consent. J. P. Robinson retiring from the business, which will be carried on by A. A. Jackson, who assumes all indebtedness of the late firm, and to whom all notes and accounts due the late firm must be paid.

A. A. JACKSON.
J. P. ROBINSON.

Lomax, Ala., April 6, 1905. tf

BESSIE.

Everything is moving nicely in this section. I'm in sympathy with a neighbor of mine who ordered a pair of bellows. He went to Jemison to get them, expecting to find some one with a wagon who would carry them for him, but couldn't find any one going out his way. Finally Ike Edwards said he would bring them as far as his road went, and then Mr. Leach shouldered his bellows and toted them the rest of the way. They weighed 70 pounds and are mighty unhandy to tote. He made the trip all right, but looked mighty wearied.

"LONE STAR."

THORSBY LETTER.

Mr. George Kilgore, of Clanton, was a visitor here on the 18th. The Ray family left for Andalusia last week. Mr. Robinson spent a few days with his family last week. Mr. J. P. Johnston, who has been a resident of Thorsby for five years, left for his former home in Iowa. Mr. Sundell has purchased the Johnson residence and has taken possession of it. Mr. Schive has purchased the old Faegre vineyard from Mr. Sarber. He will erect a beautiful new residence in the near future. We are glad to welcome Miss Erickson to Thorsby, who has come to make her home with her father. Mrs. Dr. Nix left for her new home in Samford on Saturday last. Although she was among us for a short time, we were very sorry to see her leave. Mr. John Hawkins, who has been a pleasant visitor at the Neal home during the winter months, has returned to his northern home. Railroad officials have been in town taking measurements for a new depot. They are also speaking of making a park just east of the side track. The Easter entertainment given by the Union Sunday school was a grand success. The hall was crowded with a very attentive audience. Friends from Jemison and Clanton were with us. Mr. Wagner, of Montgomery, spent Monday in Thorsby with Mr. Phalin. Mr. Johnson is entertaining friends from the north. Mr. Feast is making daily shipments of strawberries. This week Mr. S. E. Norton will complete setting out sixteen acres in strawberries. Many other parties are engaged in the same industry. Mrs. A. Horn and Miss Anna Howard left on Tuesday to attend the State Sunday School Convention in Birmingham. They are delegates from the Union Sunday school. Although the heavy hail not long ago severely injured the fruit, growers are still looking forward to quite a fair crop. Mr. Annudson's daughter, Mrs. Davidson, who has been a welcome visitor from Chicago, returned home on Tuesday, much to the regret of her parents and friends. Miss Maud Gerald and Miss Pearl Pettis were sent as delegates to the Sunday School convention in Birmingham.

"TWO OF US."

RANDOLPH.

Cotton comes in, and while the price is no better, still Randolph has an enormous trade. Mrs. L. V. Hubbard, of Ashby, was in town last week. Quint Meroney, of Birmingham, came down Sunday on a visit to his mother Mrs. McKerall returned from a visit to Birmingham last week. Mrs. J. L. Thomas and children visited here Sunday en route to Active. A number of our young people attended the Baptist rally at Antioch Sunday. J. P. Gentry, the popular merchant of Bessie, was in town last week en route to Selma. Willie Merchant and family were in town Saturday. D. H. Hodgens and children, of Pleasant Grove, were visitors last week. Come again, Mr. H. Mrs. J. F. Armstrong and daughter, Miss Dora, were in town last week. Mr. and Mrs. Boge Rasberry, of Antioch, passed through here last week on their way to visit relatives near Thorsby. G. W. Hodgens, one of the true friends of reform in Chilton, was here Saturday. By the way, THE UNION is "all right" with so much interesting correspondence. It is OUR paper, so we must all back it up. It would have pleased all Chilton populists if they could have heard a cerain minister of Bibb eulogizing Chilton, particularly beat 9, and in advance of Bibb. So let the people rule in their own way, support their own paper, do their own thinking, and energy will continue to prevail. Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Waldrup were visitors Monday. Luther Palmer has very much improved the P. O. building by adding a new front Porch. Health to THE UNION and its readers.

"ONE OF THE BOYS."

LETTER FROM W. H. CONWAY.

Editor Union:

I've been asked to say a few words in your paper about cotton seed oil mill, guano mixer and ware house, all connected. I think it would be a good investment for Chilton county. It will cost about $17,000 to equip them. There is a good dividend for the stockholders and it builds up the community in which it is built. It encourages stock raising and stock feeding for profit. It makes a home market for cotton seed and country produce. We need to build up home markets, a start of this kind would bring a yarn mill. Now, farmers, we could take stock and pay for it in cotton seed. Every farmer in our county should take stock in an enterprise of this kind. I suggest that each district have a meeting on May 3rd at 7 p. m. and discuss the above subject and elect two delegates to meet with the county association on May 6th at Clanton. I will invite a good speaker to meet with us on that day. Thanking you for past favors I remain yours for better times,

W. H. CONWAY.

Jemison, Ala., R. F. D. No. 2.

Ship To Be Sold.

Norfolk, Va.—It is announced that the Italian bark Baltimore of Castlemore, Italy, which was libeled by the United States court here yesterday by Vincent Cacacce, of Portsmouth, Va., will not give bond, but will shortly be sold under the libel proceedings here.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

The tax collector of Chilton county has filed in my office a list of delinquent taxpayers and of real estate upon which taxes are due. The persons named below or owners unknown are reported as delinquent, and the following real estate is reported as assessed to them, to-wit.

BEAT NO. 1.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co., or Owner Unknown: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 and the E. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 36, T. 24, R. 15. Tax and costs, $5.44.

BEAT NO. 2.

Jennie S. Edler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4, Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.54.

Mrs. L. C. Latham: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 3, T 23, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.49.

W. B. Strong: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 21, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 3.

W. E. Edwards: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 23, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.06.

Mary Jackson: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 4, T. 22, R 12. Tax and costs, $4.19.

BEAT NO. 4.

Cahaba Timber Mining and M. F. G. Co.: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 34, T 21, R 13. Tax and costs, $4.18.

Samuel M. Pickler: The S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4, Sec. 35, T 24, R 14; and the E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 31, T 21, R 17; and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 20, R 12; and the W. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4, Sec. 8, T 22, R 16. Tax and costs, $41.05.

The Southern Mineral Land Co., or Owner Unknown: All of Sec. 15, T 24, R 12; and the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 21, T 24, R 12; and the N. 1-2 of Sec 22, T 24, R 12. Tax and costs, $24.07.

The Magnetic Ore Co., or owner unknown: The S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 16; and the N. 1-2 and the E 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 23, R 15; and the S. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 23, R 15; and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 23, R 15. Tax and costs, $33.75.

BEAT NO. 5.

S. H. Glen: The S. 1-2 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E 1-4 of Sec. 1, T 20, R 16; and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, T 20, R 16; and the N. 1-2 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 20, R 16. Tax and costs, $10.84.

BEAT NO. 6.

J. M. Askins: The S 1-2 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 27, T 21, R 14. Tax and costs, $3.96.

BEAT NO. 7.

James Broadnax: The S. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 17, T 21, R 12. Tax and costs, $3.56.

Frank Fuller: One house and lot in Ridersville, Alabama, known as the Frank Fuller residence. Tax and costs, $4.58.

BEAT NO. 8.

John V. Coe: The E. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 22, T 20, R 13, and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 23, T. 20, R 13. Tax and costs, $6.93.

Mrs. C. Paul: The N. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 16, T. 20, R 11. Tax and costs, $7.02.

W. J. Stoudermire: The S. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 and the S. W. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 18, T 21, R 11; and the N. W. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 21, R 11. Tax and costs, $4.44.

H. B. & G. B. Shearer: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 and the N. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 19, T 20, R 12. Tax and costs, $6.79.

BEAT NO. 9.

J. Amtoft: The N. E. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of Sec. 8, T. 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.86.

Mrs. Claura I. E. Collins: The N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of the S. E. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.96.

Paul C. Goetch: The N. 1-2 of the N. E. 1-4 of the N. E. 1-4 of Sec. 15, T 24, R 13. Tax and costs, $3.03.

John Peterson: The N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 5, T 22, R 14. Tax and costs, $2.74.

R. C. Reinertson: The S. E. 1-4 of the N. W. 1-4 of the S. W. 1-4 of Sec. 12, T 22, R 13. Tax and costs, $2.90.

This is to notify you to appear before the Probate Court of said county at the next term thereof, commencing Monday, the 8th day of May, 1905, and there to show cause, if any you have, why a decree for the sale of said real estate should not be made for the payment of the taxes assessed against you, and for fees and costs. After the decree is granted in each of the above cases, additional costs in the way of tax commissioners' fees will be added and collected. This 5th day of April, 1905.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
tf Judge of Probate.

NOTICE!

THE NORTHCUT JACK, one of the best in the country, is at my place 2 1-2 miles west of Thorsby.

tf. T. M. Driver.

A Great Combination Offer

We will furnish the Twice-a-Week issue of the

St. Louis Globe-Democrat

WITH

The Union

FOR

$1.50 Both Papers One Year Only $1.50

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is issued Semi-Weekly, eight pages or more, every Tuesday and Friday. It is Republican in Politics and has no equal or rival as a Great Modern Newspaper.

If you want all the news of the World's Fair, all the news of the national campaign, and all the news of all the earth, you must have the Globe-Democrat during the coming year.

NOW IS THE TIME.

Send us $1.50 To-Day and get your best home paper and the Greatest Newspaper of the World's Fair City, both for a full year. Address

The Union, Clanton, Ala.

Ben M. Jacobs & Bros.
Furniture and Rugs.
—SOLE AGENTS—
Globe-Wernicke Elastic Book Cases and Filing Cabinets.
Catalogue for the asking.
1011 First Ave., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

PAUL CALAME,
205 21st Street
Birmingham, Ala.

Practical Watchmaker and Optician
Eyes Correctly Fitted
Mail orders promptly filled

ROCKY MOUNT.

The Chilton County Musical Convention will meet with the Rocky Mount class (2 miles east of Jemison) in a special session the 5th Sunday in April. Bring your "Singing for Joy" song books and a whole lot of good things to eat, and spend the day and have a good time.

tf "ONE OF THE BOYS."

TOM WATSON'S MAGAZINE.

"The Magazine That Has An Idea Back Of It."

Have you heard that Hon. Thos. E Watson, of Georgia, has begun the publication of a magazine?

You know who Mr. Watson is? He's the man who wrote "The Story of France," "Life of Napoleon," and "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson." He was the People's Party candidate for President last year.

First number of Tom Watson's Magazine was published Feb. 25. It is $1.00 per year. You will miss the most interesting 128-page magazine in America if you fail to subscribe. Now we will send you the magazine and THE UNION, your best county paper, for $1.50 per year for both. Don't delay with your subscriptions, but send them in at once. tf

NOTICE!

The Chilton County Farmers' Alliance will meet with Collins Chapel Alliance on Friday and Saturday, April 28-29, 1905, the original date having been changed.

ALEX G. DAKE.
tf Secretary and Treasurer.

UP-TO-DATE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photographer Lyon has spent the past month in the best gallery in the state getting new ideas in Photography. He will keep his CLANTON GALLERY open from the 1ST to the 15TH of each month. tf

SPECIAL OFFER! !

The Union, Weekly Montgomery Advertiser, and a great white and black map of Alabama, United States and world, three in one, with a picture of every president from Washington to Roosevelt, all for $1.50.

tf

NOTICE!

The black Jack "Jim" known as the Davis Jack will stand this season, commencing March 27th and 28th at John Jones' sawmill, beat 10, and every two weeks at the same place during the season. Remainder of time at my place.

J. M. WILLIS,
Clanton, R. F. D. No 1.

Sixteen thousand Russian immigrants reached this country in December, but not many Japs, notes the New York World.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. 7th District, Northeastern Division.

G. A. Zimmerman, Complainant, vs. C. A. Zimmerman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. Osmond Middleton, of counsel for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her residence is, to affiant, unknown, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, C. A. Zimmerman, is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in THE UNION, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said C. A. Zimmerman, to answer, plead or demur to the Bill of Complaint in the above cause on or before the 12th day of May, 1905, and failing so to do within thirty days thereafter a Decree Pro Confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 11th day of April, 1905.

S. A. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

By:
SMITH & MIDDLETON,
Attorneys for Complainant.
4-13-05 4t

A NEW DISCOVERY.

A great improvement, the Dixie Liver Regulator, does not gripe nor sicken, and cures Constipation, Heartburn, Vertigo, Dyspepsia, Kidney troubles and Lazy Liver. For sale by all Dealers and by Shelby Drug Co., Calera, Ala. tf

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 20, 1905.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Clerk of Circuit Court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 29, 1905, viz: Viney Pellam widow of Robert Pellam, H. E. No. 35464, for the Se 1-4 of Se 1-4, Section 33, Tp. 21 n of R 16 e.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

William Rutland,
D. I. Deramus,
A. H. Hunt,
A. J. Dennis, all of Verbena, Ala.

ROBERT BARBER,
3-23-05 6t Register.

The speed of a wild duck is above ninety miles an hour.

The King of Spain has been fined in Madrid for overspeeding his automobile. Good for Spanish justice!

A Song of Worry

What's the use to sit an' worry if you [illegible] thought to win"
Kick the worry out the winder—let the [illegible] shine in!
Time ain't stagnant—
He's a flyin'
W'y, livin' is half a sin!

What's the use? There ain't a reason,
[illegible] shadder of a rhyme,
When the world rolls on in music, an' the [illegible] keepin' time!
Time ain't cryin'—
He's a flyin',
An' you're on the wings of Time!

Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution

A MAID IN A FOG

BY SARAH LINDSAY COLEMAN

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The rain had broken into the plans of the pleasure-seekers. It had forced them to the shelter of the cabins at the foot of the mountain, and in good-natured, friendly groups they trailed through the long mountain-top grass, their faces wet with the fog that hung in a heavy cloud in the stunted trees above them.

As the girls passed, eyes blue and black and brown challenged Gray, but he only shook his head. He wanted his pipe and solitude, and he declared that it was his imperative duty to remain behind not only to see that the mules were well packed but in order to bring all the lost things down the mountain, from handkerchiefs to girls.

In spite of the reproach in more than one pair of bright eyes he let them all pass. He noticed that the mist was settling thicker, but the mountain was as familiar to him as the outlines of his own hand, and, in cheerful unconcern, he smoked pipe after pipe.

A distant call from somewhere in the mantling fog roused him from his reverie. It was a woman's voice. Some one of them had lagged behind and had been lost among the dozen cattle trails that ran in a bewildering network across the mountain.

"Yes," he shouted. He got to his feet, knocked the tobacco from his pipe, stuffed it in his pocket and plunged in the direction of the calling voice. Now it sounded faintly from the right, now from the left; now it shed away to come again from an entirely new direction, and from what sounded like a great distance.

"Keep still!" he shouted. "I will never find you!" There was an imperative ring in his voice, "Now call."

As the voice called louder, buoyed and strengthened by the knowledge of his human nearness, he plunged into the opaque mist certain, and in a moment, guided by the sobbing sound of panting breath, he had almost stumbled upon the girl.

"Oh," she cried in passionate relief as her rescuer came up to her, "how good it is to be found! It hasn't been more than a century has it? But you will find them for me, won't you? They were just ahead. I lost them all in a minute—and then the path stopped. I ran up higher. I tried to get back to the cave. We had agreed on the cave in case of trouble but I could not find it. I lost my head the loneliness was desperate. It overmastered me, and the fog caught me by the throat." She sank down on a log, trembling violently, and began to sob like a little child.

When the sound had twisted and strained Gray's heartstrings until it was a physical impossibility to endure it longer, he touched her arm gently. "Please don't," he said. "The fog's lifting a little. I'll get you out of this all right."

The girl looked up. In the oval of her pale face her eyes seemed unnaturally large and dark. "You are very good," she said, controlling her voice with an effort, "and then I've been extremely babyish, but— —" Her words died on her lips; she started at Gray unbelievingly.

"You, she gasped. "You here—in America?"

Gray paled under his tan. "It's where I belong—here in America," he said slowly.

"But I thought—" The girl looked at him as if she doubted the evidence of her own senses. "I—don't understand," she said helplessly.

"It's very simple," Gray said, and he smiled; "the devil tempted me and I fell—the dear, good devil."

"I must be stupid," she said; "but I don't in the least understand."

"Then let's us begin at the very minute you entered the dingy little foreign hole of a hotel and found me drumming at that piano. If you remember, you flung off your rich furs and ordered me to begin at once. 'I shall sing this,' you said in a voice that was final, and I did my poor best to accompany you. It didn't occur to me to refuse to obey the mandate of a princess of the blood royal, nor was I willing to bore a princess with tiresome and awkward explanations. The simplest thing to do was to play without quarreling with fate, and so I did. Of course I ran the risk of your seeing through me. And I was quite nervous, for fear the old codger himself would bolt in and spoil things. But risk is the savor of life. You didn't find me out, and he didn't come in, and—"

"You!" she gasped. "You here in America?"

"For a lesson, yes," the girl broke in with, "but there was a month of lessons."

"There were also some good American dollars," reproachfully.

"Oh," understandingly. Then plaintively, "I thought I was learning such a lot."

"You need not try to make me sorry," Gray laughed. "I'll agree that borrowed joy exacts a heavy interest; I'll agree to a good many things, but I won't be sorry. Except for one thing—I felt like a sneak thief to take your money. I couldn't give it to the old Shylock for he had been paid too much, but I hit on an excellent plan, I turned it all over to the little beggar you thought so picturesque—the little fellow that ran after you always."

"Oh, but that was foolish," impulsively.

"Every thing I did was foolish," Gray said gravely. "I lived from lesson to lesson, and you didn't get such bad ones, for I literally sat at the old fellow's feet. I fell to dreaming night and day, of all sorts of forbidden things. Down to the day I got your note that said your mother was ill and you were leaving for some indefinite country you didn't think it worth while to mention. I was foolish. It was pretty evident even to a chap as far gone as I that you were ending the thing. I couldn't follow. I didn't know whether to try Jericho or Texas. And to think that I might never have found you but for this blessed fog!"

At the sound of something that rang in his laughter, the girl got up from the log and moved away down the trail, alert, like a bird ready to take flight.

Gray followed down the aisle of spectral trees, the light gone out of his eyes.

"Was your mother very ill?" he asked, at length.

"Not very," the girl said. There was a curious little sound in her throat that might have been a laugh or a sob. Whatever it was, it sent the light leaping into Gray's eyes again. With a single stride he had overtaken her. "Look at me," he commanded.

She marched straight ahead.

"Then she wasn't ill," he said. "She didn't send for you?" No answer.

Gray caught her hand. She struggled to free it. "Oh, it's no good," he said. "You've got to tell me. Did she?"

"No," said the girl defiantly. "She wasn't ill at all. I got homesick for America."

"But why?" gently.

She lifted her eyes and tried to brave it through with a laugh. "Why? What a ridiculous question! Why does one want home?"

Gray looked down at her steadily. The blood poured into her cheeks, and her head dropped.

"Sometimes one wants home because one is afraid to listen to a heart that pleads for a man. Was that it, dear? Was it your heart pleading for me in spite of the gulf between an American heiress and a poor foreign music teacher? Was that why you felt safer with an ocean between? Answer me."

But again she was silent.

"Was it?" gently.

For answer she hid her face in the depths of his coat. "Oh, I can't help it," she cried. It's been a miserable time. Prince or pauper, I don't want to help it. Be good to me, dear."

It was then, as she lifted her face to his, that the clouds fell apart, leaving great reaches of blue sky. From the sea of vapor the mountains here and there lifted their heads; a shaft of sunlight struck to the depths of the girl's tender eyes, and lo! the earth was enchanted.

He noticed that the mist was settling thicker.

FABLE OF THE WISE HEN.

How She Discomfited an Arbitration Committee and Avenged Deceit.

Once upon a time (very recently) a hen went upon a strike and refused to lay. Other hens followed her example and the scarcity of hen fruit which resulted caused eggs to retail for something like 50 cents per dozen. In other words, strictly fresh eggs laid by scab hens were worth about 5 cents each in the shell. Even cold storage eggs, which were deadly explosive and had to be handled with care, brought 30 cents.

The people got together and remonstrated with the hens, but it did no good. Finally an arbitration committee waited on the hens and tried to persuade them to go back to work. The arbitration committee pointed out that only the rich can afford to eat eggs, but the hens refused to work. The arbitration committee then told the hens that if they persisted in the strike they would bring race suicide on themselves.

Then a wise old hen arose and spoke as follows:

"In the spring when us hens wish to sit the people give us porcelain doorknobs to sit on. If porcelain doorknobs are as good as eggs to sit on they ought to be as good to eat as eggs. Tell the people to eat porcelain doorknobs."

The arbitration committee could not answer this argument and departed in tears.

Moral—Deceit will come home to roost.

Joke Carried Too Far.

"This artificial limb business is getting to be something wonderful," said George Moore, of the Gilsey house. "When a man can wiggle the fingers of an artificial hand it is uncanny. Practical jokes of terrible effect are possible with the artificial limb, and the victim is such in the true sense of the word.

"A man came in here not long ago and walked up to the clerk and in a friendly way reached across the counter to shake hands. Then he wheeled away and left his hand in the grip of the clerk.

"The clerk fainted—actually fainted, although he realized, I believe, that the hand he held was but an artificial one. The man who wore it had devised a scheme by which he might throw it off by pressing a spring. The delight he took in the joke ceased when his victim collapsed."—New York Telegraph.

Grand Duke Advocates Boldness.

Some critics of Russian autocracy say that the Grand Duke Vladimir has some excuse for his hatred of popular movements and secret societies. His father, Alexander II.—the man who on his accession to the throne at once made peace in the Crimean war and emancipated the serfs—was assassinated by nihilist bombs. The grand duke is said to have carefully studied the details of the history of the French revolution, with the express object of avoiding the perils and dangers of any such catastrophe in Russia, and he is convinced that if Louis XVI.'s ministers had been bolder they might have saved France as a kingdom.

Willowwood.

I sat with Love upon a woodside well,
Leaning across the water, I and he;
Nor ever did he speak nor look at me,
But touched his lute wherein was audible
The certain secret thing he had to tell.
Only our mirrored eyes met silently
In the low wave; and that sound came to be
The passionate voice I knew, and my tears fell.

And at their fall, his eyes beneath drew hers;
And with his foot and with his wing-feathers
He swept the spring that water'd my heart's drought.
Then the dark ripples spread to waving hair,
And as I stoop'd, her own lips rising there
Bubbled with brimming kisses at my mouth.

—Dante Gabriel Rossetti.

Subject to Approval.

William F. King of the Merchants' association tells a story of a boy who had a faculty of losing one job and getting another almost simultaneously. Meeting him on the street one day, a friend said to him: "Well, Jack, who are you with now?"

"I'm with John Smith & Co."

"Is this a permanent connection at last?" asked the friend.

"I can't tell about that yet," replied Jack. "I'm only there on memorandum, you see."—New York Times.

SOCKS AS GOOD AS MONEY.

Their Convenient Use in Backwoods Games of Chance.

Ole Oleson, a "lumberjack," walked into town the other day carrying 1,750 pairs of gloves and mittens, 1,175 pairs of socks and eighty-three pounds of tobacco.

He offered the goods for sale at about one-fourth of their value and was arrested on suspicion. He protested to the police that he came into possession of the goods honestly. When pressed he declared that he won the articles at poker in the lumber woods.

Oleson said he had been in the woods many months. The lumberjacks received no money while in the woods, but were expected to wait until they returned to town for their pay. At the company "store" in the woods the men could get such articles as they desired, however, having them charged against their time. Accordingly the men used merchandise instead of checks in their games.

Oleson said he played in good luck, and in one game where socks were the stakes, he won 1,175 pairs of the hosiery on three aces. The other man held a trio of kings.

In a game for mittens, Oleson said, the limit was high, and in three hours of play he had mittens enough to supply a regiment of soldiers.

His story sounded reasonable and he was released to go and "cash in his checks."—Ashland (Wis.) Cor. Minneapolis Tribune.

A Floral Clock.

Many flowers show a susceptibility to changing conditions of light and weather which make them most interesting. This phenomenon has been utilized by an Ohio landscape gardener to form a unique decoration to the grounds of the Rockefeller country place at Tarrytown. This is a flower bed which can be used as a clock. The bed is circular and divided into twelve parts. Each contains a figure composed of a flower which opens or closes at the corresponding hour. Thus the two space is occupied by the 11 made of hawk weed, which closes at 2 p. m. precisely. The hands are stationary, of course, and are composed of the common yellow dandelion, which opens at half past 5 and closes at half past 8 p. m., and point to arrangements of flowers representing these figures. Among the flowers used are the snow thistle, which opens at 5 a. m. and closes at 4 p. m. The blue chicory, the goat's beard, the morning glory, poppy, water lily, the pimpernel, the marigold, the Star of Bethlehem, the passion flower, the beauty of night, the white lychnis and the blue convolvulus, all of which have different time for opening and closing.

Husband as a "Nice Doggie."

There are a lot of women in this world who think that there's only one side to the married relation, and that's their side. When one of them marries she starts right out to train her husband into kind old Carlo, who'll go down town for her every morning and come home every night, fetching a snug little basketful of money in his mouth and wagging his tail as he lays it at her feet. Then it's a pat on the head and "Nice doggie."

And he's taught to stand around evenings, retrieving her gloves and handkerchief and snapping up with a pleased licking of his chops any little word that she may throw to him. But you let him start in to have a little fun scratching and stretching himself, or pawing her, and it's "Charge, Carlo!" and "Bad doggie!"—From "Old Gorgon Graham."

Mr. Cleveland's Musical Criticism.

Once, during his second term, Grover Cleveland was asked to speak at a function in a certain town and when he arrived at the depot, the wind was blowing a gale, sleet was driving and hailstones nearly as large as marbles were fiercely falling.

Of course, the inevitable brass band was there, and at the sight of the president, the performers struck up with all the strenuosity at their command. "That is the most realistic music I ever heard," remarked Cleveland. "What are they trying to play?" asked Secretary Olney, who accompanied him. "Hail to the Chief!" replied the president with a cheerful smile.

A Doubting Heart.

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas,
They wait in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

—Adelaide A. Procter.

Had Watched Her Mamma.

A prominent society woman who is very blonde has a small daughter, aged 4, of an equally fair type. Frances is fond of watching her mother's toilette, and that she has profited by the secrets of the dressing table and the frequent use of a pencil was proved at luncheon a few days ago. Said a doting aunt:

"It's too bad Frances' eyebrows and lashes are not dark. She would be a beautiful child."

"Huh!" exclaimed the precocious youngster. "I guess they'll be dark when I am big enough to write 'em like mamma does."—New York Times.

Made Social Exile and Outcast by His Umbrella

Sad Plight of Truly Good Man Forced to Seek Refuge in Den of Iniquity on the Sabbath Day.

This is a faithful narration of the adventures of a Newark man who was, for a time, made a social exile, an outcast, by his umbrella. All doors that he approached were closed to him, even those of his home. It happened in this wise:

The man works hard on Saturdays, late into the night, and when he does arises and breakfasts on Sunday he feels the need of out-door air. This air he will have, no matter what the weather.

He was seen two or three weeks ago knee deep in the snow, floundering stolidly along, bent on getting his exercise and driving the fag and cobwebs from his brain. But last Sunday it was raining, an icy sleet filled the air, and the man raised his umbrella and the little pellets pattered on it like the rain on the garret roof.

After he had gone a mile or so he found that the hand that held the umbrella was getting tired. He was a nervous man and he wondered if he was developing rheumatism or if incipient paralysis was upon him.

The lameness soon extended throughout his arm, even unto the shoulder, and at last the man realized that the umbrella was getting very heavy. But he went on with his walk, since no bodily discomfort could divert him from his constitutional.

At last the man could not hold the umbrella in his hand and had to let the shaft rest upon his shoulder. Still he plodded stubbornly on, until he reached the outskirts of the city. Then he thought he would take a car back to his home, and that was when his troubles really began.

He hurried over to a car with his umbrella sagging about his head, his progress much impeded by its weight. He put one foot on the car step and started to let down his umbrella. He wrestled with it until the conductor said some harsh things, gave the motorman the bell and left the man standing in the street wrestling with the umbrella.

It had as complete a roof of ice as any Esquimau's house in the farthest North, or anywhere else. The roof glistened as if made of glass. The man exerted all his strength, but the ribs simply bent under the strain and the coating of ice was not so much as cracked.

The man strode on for a few blocks, thinking. He came to a little notion store where they sell newspapers, and thought he would go inside and thaw out the umbrella, but after an ineffectual struggle to get inside the door he gave it up and walked on.

The situation was getting serious. He tried another place, a harbor of refuge, as it was a Sunday school and the children within were singing joyous hymns that brought him a feeling of comfort, as if here at last he would surely find help out of his odd misfortune.

But here again he could not enter. There was no double door and the umbrella absolutely refused to be crushed through the narrow door space.

Further on down the street he came upon two or three children playing on a stoop and he told them he would give them ten cents for a can of hot water. They looked at him as if they thought he was crazy. He raised the ante to a quarter. Then one of the boys asked him if it wasn't a can of beer he wanted.

This was too much for the man, for he is strictly temperance, and if he had not been, the thought of patronizing a saloon on Sunday would have been utterly abhorrent. So he took up his tramp again.

The umbrella's weight seemed to increase with every step, until the man felt as if he was literally carrying the roof of his house over his head. He got out his jackknife and tried to scale the ice off, but could not accomplish much, so afraid was he of cutting through the cloth.

Once he was on the point of letting the cover and removing it, to throw into the gutter, but a glance at the gold handle deterred him. There was an inscription on the handle telling how the umbrella had been presented by a body of grateful employees. The man knew that his whole history looked to him to carry that umbrella on every stormy day and then to appear at the factory on the next rainy day without it would make him have rarely [illegible] dead patriot. Washington, D. C. [illegible]

He wished the umbrella was anywhere but where it was, and had it been a swearing man he would have cursed the luck that made him take that particular rain shield from the stand in his hallway when he started out.

When he got within a quarter of a mile of his home the umbrella seemed to weigh at least fifteen pounds. He was fairly out of breath and despondent. He knew when he got home he would be no better off than he was out of doors, for he could not get the thing into his house and his house has no areaway along which he might have carried it to the back yard.

Just then he saw a gleam of warm light over the green curtain hung in a saloon window. He hesitated. Then his eyes fell upon the sign "Side Entrance" upon a door.

The door was double. He pushed in fact half fell against it, and both sides fell open. His qualms of conscience were stilled now, and he marched, dragging his icebound umbrella behind him.

The few men in the saloon looked up in surprise when they saw him enter, and there was a faint attempt to escape, for the men recognized him as a prominent church worker and they feared he was out on a little tour of his own to gather information against violators of the Sunday law. But the man pulled himself together sufficiently to say that he had sought a warm place in which to thaw out his umbrella, and the bartenders and every one else saw that he was much more [illegible] than they were, so they let it pass.

In less than three minutes the ice slid from the umbrella in great sheets and the man gave the head bartender a quarter for the fuss he had made on the floor. He says that was the most uncomfortable walk he ever took in his life, and that the next time he goes for his Sunday walk in a storm he'll wear a mackintosh and let it go at that.—New York Sun.

The World's Medical Heroes

For the "Hall of Fame" twenty-nine names were selected in 1900, none of which was that of a physician, and this year twenty-six more will be named. Among the great men who have influenced American life for good and advanced the cause of civilization there can be no doubt with the considerate that medicine has furnished as many as any other calling or profession. Why, then, were medical men excluded? Simply because of the traditional failure on the part of the world to recognize the value of professional life to the community. This blindness should be done away with. The Western Medical Review proposes to nominate five medical heroes for the honors in the ballotings of 1905 for the Hall of Fame, and gives the names of Reed, Ramsay, Warren, Sims and Holmes. The suggestion occurs that it might be better for the professional world to limit their ballotings, and elect two, or at most three, physicians of honor. Warren, it seems, should be the first named, as the discoverer of anesthesia has lessened human suffering, and at the same time advanced science immeasurably. As St. John the Baptist of the gospel of protection against infectious disease Holmes deserves the gratitude of Americans and of the world.—American Medicine.

Sighing of the Children

(One million seven hundred and fifty thousand children between the ages of 5 and 15 toil in the mines and factories of this country.)

Have you heard the Cry of the Children,
The pitiful wail of the Little Ones?
Out of the mines and the workshops,
Out of the slums and the alleys,
Where cold and famine and fever,
Where cruel neglect and oppression
Rob life of its joy and sunshine
And change its bright Spring into Winter.

Oh, the heartrending Cry of the Children,
Rising up in chorus pathetic,
A dirge and a dead march of childhood,
Appealing to men and to angels,
And crying aloud unto heaven
For judgment against the oppressors!
Oh, the sorrow and anguish and heartbreak
In the pitiful wail of the children!

Oh, list to the plea of the children,
The moan and the sigh of the little ones!
Their voiceless yet eloquent protest,
From the death-breeding slums of the city,
From the danger and dark of the mines,
From the hovels of vice and of sin,
Where blows and children's tears
Take the place of love and caress.

We hunger in God's land of plenty,
We languish for love and for kindness,
We sicken and die in the darkness,
With no one to help or to pity,
We toil in the mills and the factories,
Like slaves, in the glad days of childhood.
We long for the fields and the flowers,
To ramble about in the woodlands,
Yet we sicken and die in the prisons
Oh, merciful God and Life-giver,
Have pity where man has no pity.

—E. F. Austin, in Reader.

John Adams' Stormy Wooing

Parson Smith of the Old First church at Weymouth, Mass., had two daughters, Mary and Abigail. They were attractive young maidens and in due time had lovers. Mary chose a man after the parson's wish, a man of substance and of standing in the community. Abigail, however, chose John Adams, a young lawyer of the neighboring town of Braintree, much to the parson's chagrin.

In the pulpit at the Sunday service the worthy divine gave voice to his opinions in a sermon delivered from the following Scripture texts: "He hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her," Luke x, 42; "For John came neither eating nor drinking; and ye say, he hath a devil." Luke vii., 33.

Notwithstanding the eloquence of the eminent divine, and his defeat to the match, the young lawyer won the bride, and Abigail Adams, as the wife of our president, achieved world-wide fame, and is enshrined in the hearts of all true Americans as a loyal and true woman, the wife and also the mother of a president.

CUBAN MINISTER
Recommends Pe

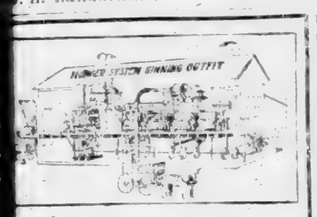
Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the U

[illegible] article in The [illegible] on [illegible] the Esteban Duarte Mat[illegible] the spirit of [illegible] speech [illegible] have rarely [illegible] dead patriot. Minister to the Peruna M[illegible] Washington, D. C. See Opportunities

"Peruna I can recommend as a medicine. It is an excellent tonic, and it is also an efficacious remedy for almost universal complaint of mankind."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

Congressman J. H. [illegible] of [illegible] one of the most [illegible] of the House of [illegible] letter written from Washington, D. C., [illegible] gives his experience [illegible] Peruna, in the [illegible] words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Rankhead.



You want only the best

Cotton Gin Machinery

Ask any experienced Ginner about

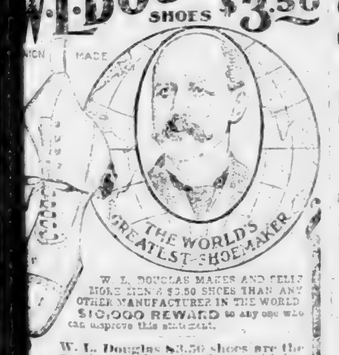
Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

We would like to show you what thousands of Ginning customers say. Write for catalog and testimonial booklet.

Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga. Birmingham, Ala. Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50



W. L. DOUGLAS MAKES AND SELLS MORE MEN'S $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY OTHER MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD. $10,000 REWARD to any one who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the [illegible] sellers in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost from $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

"The Best I Ever Wore."

[illegible] to say that I have worn your $3.50 shoe for the past five years, and it is the best I ever wore."—Rev. Frank T. Kephart, 1st Baptist Church, Jefferson St., Louisville, Ky.

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt in his $3.50 Shoes. It is one of the finest patent leathers produced.

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear brassy.

W. L. Douglas has the largest shoe mail order business in the world. No trouble to get a fit by mail. 25 cents extra for each pair. If you desire further information, write for Illustrated Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS.

FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES. Standard Goods Only. Free catalogue to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO. 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

CON

Crab

WA

Dys Sick Cons

The Three

Nature's

In Use

SOLD

CRAB ORC

$50

PAY T POSITIO

First to wh

DR
PRACTICA

Montgomery, [illegible]

COUR

If not [illegible]

Text [illegible]

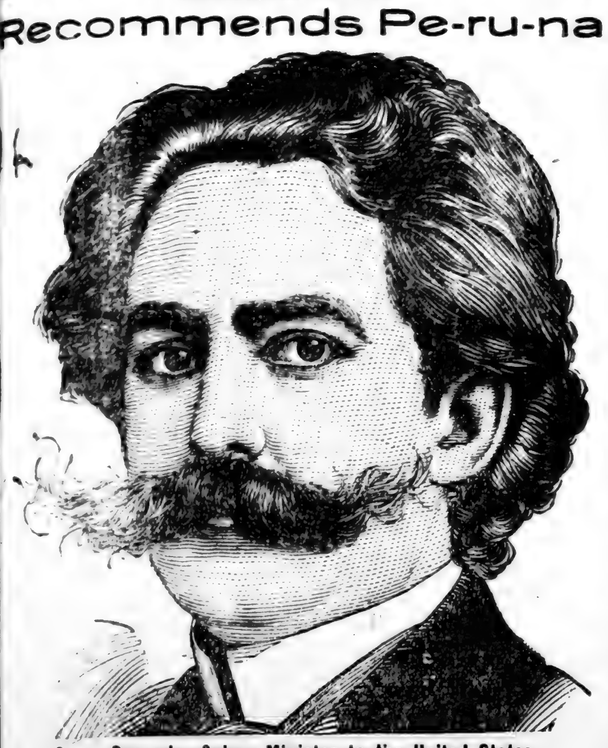
GERMAN [illegible]

A Toba

is depen

CUBAN MINISTER TO THE U. S.

Recommends Pe-ru-na



Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States.

Cuban Minister to the United States, is an orator born. In an article in The Cosmopolitan Magazine for July, 1899, by George Kennan, who heard Quesada speak at a banquet in Teatro Martinez, Matanzas, Cuba, he said: "I have seen many audiences under the influence of eloquent speech and in the grip of strong emotional excitement; but I have never witnessed such a scene as at the close of Quesada's eulogy upon the ... Maine." In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, written from Washington, D. C., Senor Quesada says:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening ... and it is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Manuel de Quesada.

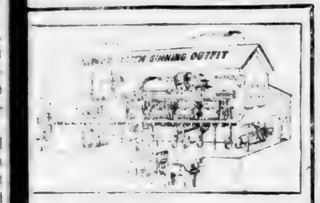
H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in the city of Washington, D. C., writes to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best ... I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. It is a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

There is but a single medicine which is a radical specific for catarrh. It is Peruna, which has stood a half century test and cured thousands of cases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O. All correspondence held strictly confidential.



Cotton Gin Machinery

... experienced ... about

Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

... to show ... thousands of ... say, ... and ... ket.

Continental Gin Co

... N. C., Atlanta, Ga. ... Birmingham, Ala. ... Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50

THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOEMAKER

... AS MAKES AND SELLS MORE $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD. ... REWARD to any one who ...

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the ... sellers in the world because of their ... excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are ... as good as those that cost you from $4.00 to $5.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and ... have a greater value than any other shoes on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

"The Best I Ever Wore."

... Douglas $3.50 ... Ask ...

... Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear brassy.

... the largest shoe mail order ... No trouble to get a fit ... extra prices ... every. ... further information, write for Illustrated Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS. FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES. Standard Goods Only. Free catalogue to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Japanese strictly enforce a law which forbids the use of tobacco by boys under 20 years of age.

CONCENTRATED

Crab Orchard WATER

TRADE MARK.

—A SPECIFIC FOR—

Dyspepsia
Sick Headache
Constipation...

The Three "Ills" That Make Life a Burden.

Nature's Great Remedy

In Use for Almost a Century.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CRAB ORCHARD WATER CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

First 10 who clip this notice and send to

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

Montgomery, Nashville Atlanta, Waco, Little Rock or Ft. Worth

... without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured. If not secured no pay required.

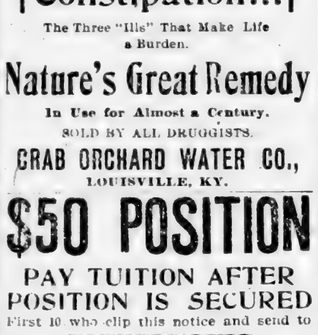
COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mail FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete it home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co., has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

Am. 17, 1905.

A Tobacco Grower's Profit

is dependent upon a properly balanced fertilizer.



No crop is so easily spoiled as tobacco. The fertilizer must be right, and to be right it must contain at least 10% actual

Potash

Test it: Supply one patch with fertilizer with plenty of Potash, another with little or no potash, and note the results. Every tobacco grower should have our little book, "Tobacco Culture"—it will be sent free—write to:

GERMAN KALI WORKS, 93 Nassau St., N. Y., or Atlanta, Ga.—22½ South Broad St.

The Poet Herbert.

Herbert was a true child of an eager, individualistic, realistic age. In its full tide he lived. An exceptionally wide acquaintance with its leaders of philosophy, poetry and the church brought his impressionable nature to accept the ideals as matters of course. He has not the hardy and spacious nature that asks fundamental questions. His mind is receptive, even if anticipatory. Too proud and independent for an imitator, and ever disposed to build his own pathway, he still employs in that building only the material he finds at hand. Rarely does he desire more. Small modifications, readjustments, the application of refinement and elevation where coarseness had been before—these rather than revolutionary measures are what he adds to the intellectual stock of his age. He is no Wordsworth, Keats or Browning; he is related to his time rather as an early Gray or Arnold, as one who voices with exquisite art what those around him already feel. But if the ideals of his time shaped him, he in turn shaped them. Through his responsive heart and dexterious fingers they attained a precision, beauty and compelling power which bore them far past the limits of that age.

How the Canal Will Be Dug.

Within limits, we now know just about what will be done. The bottom width of the cut will be 200 feet and the depth 40 feet. The Suez canal, averaging 115 feet wide at the bottom and permitting a draft of only 27 feet 10 inches, has proved too small. Several of the great new battleships of the British navy can now go through it only with hazard, and none of the larger freighters, fully loaded, such as have proved most economical for the trans-Atlantic trade, could go through. Even the larger German lines trading to the Orient often lose their steerageway and sheer against the sides. The Panama canal will be able to admit even larger vessels. There must be one lock—a tide lock—near Miraflores, and possibly one at Bohio, to reduce excavation.

Value of Farm Products.

Agriculture is still king in America. The value of the farm products of 1904 reaches the inconceivable sum of $4,900,000,000; exceeds by two-thirds the gross earnings of all the railroads; by three-fourths the market price of all the gold, silver, copper and other minerals; by five-sixths capital of all the national banks. Besides this, the American farmer owns $1,150,000,000 worth of horses and expends every year $100,000,000 for machinery. Here is food for thought for the statesman and the politician, the professional and the business man, the inventor and the publisher. Now, as in Colonial times, the embattled farmers are omnipotent.

The Japanese have just caused the Korean government to adopt the gold standard, and 10,000,000 yen will be borrowed from Japan with which to establish a currency in Korea.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

When the Back Aches and Bladder Troubles Set In, Get at the Cause.

Don't make the mistake of believing backache and bladder ills to be local ailments. Get at the cause and cure the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills which have cured thousands.

Captain S. D. Hunter, of Engine No. 14, Pittsburg, Pa., Fire Department, and residing at 2729 Wylie avenue, says:

"It was three years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that was mostly backache, and they fixed me up fine. There is no mistake about that, and if I should ever be troubled again I would get them first thing, as I know what they are."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Railway Ambulance.

Railway carriages transformable into ambulance compartments for the use of passengers who have taken ill have been provided on the Prussian railways for express routes.

Spartan Story Revived.

A missionary of Hamada, Japan, writes that he attempted to condole with the mother of a soldier whose funeral he was attending. But she said to him: "You should congratulate me. Is it not the greatest honor my son could have had—to die for his country?"

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO AVERY & McMILLAN,

51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

—ALL KINDS OF—

MACHINERY

Reliable Frick Engines, Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors, Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

In some of the London schools the boys take lessons in cooking.

Ask Your Dealer For Allen's Foot-Ease. A powder. It rests the feet. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Sore, Hot, Callous, Aching Sweating Feet and Ingrowing Nails. Allen's Foot-Ease makes new or tight shoes easy. At all Druggists and Shoe stores, 25 cents. Accept no substitute. Sample mailed FREE, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

The crown forests of Russia comprise 30,000,000 acres belonging to the Czar.

Popular Cars.

The Pope-Hartford and Pope-Tribune gasoline cars and runabouts meet the specific demands of a large class of automobile users. They are simple in construction, free from complication and efficient. Prices from $500 to $1600. For finely illustrated catalogues and descriptive matter, address Dept. A, Pope Manufacturing Co., Hartford, Conn.

Glass houses may soon be made stone-proof.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

A former army officer plays a hand organ on the streets of Sheffield, England.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle.

Fruits grown in China are usually inferior in flavor.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The Peruvian railways have all been consolidated.

The Effect of Warm Days and Cool Nights.

A leading physician writes that he has noticed warm days and cool nights always affect the bowels, and suggests some preventative remedy. Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial is the only one that can be absolutely relied upon. It never fails to cure.

Sold by all Druggists, 25 and 50c bottle.

The great London fire occurred in the year 1666.

BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Face Like Raw Beef—Thought She Would Lose Her Ear—Healed Without a Blemish—Mother Thanks Cuticura.

"My little girl had eczema very bad when she was ten months old. I thought she would lose her right ear. It had turned black, and her face was like a piece of raw meat, and very sore. It would bleed when I washed her, and I had to keep cloths on it day and night. There was not a clear spot on her face when I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now it is completely healed, without scar or blemish, which is more than I had hoped for. (Signed) Mrs. Rose Ether, 291 Eckford St., Brooklyn, N. Y."

Every year the British mint issues over 8,000,000 copper coins.

Cannot Reduce a Rate.

It is stated in Washington that under the Townsend rate bill if a rate is fixed by the commission it cannot be lowered by a railroad. Should an emergency arise calling for a decreased rate the railroads or shippers would have to appeal again to the commission, there being no latitude allowed, whatever the circumstances. Hitherto a maximum rate has been the rule, but no such concession is made under the proposed legislation.

Remedy Against Old Age.

Curdled milk of a special kind, prepared only on a Bulgarian recipe, is now supposed to be a remedy against growing old. M. Xavier Dybovski has made a communication on the subject to the Academy of Medicine. The substance is called yaghurt, and can now be obtained in tins in Paris. It looks very like ordinary cream cheese gone bad, and tastes similarly. The solid portion is mixed with a white, thin liquid which is exceedingly sour. People who wish to live to a hundred, breakfast off yaghurt exclusively.

The largest Bible class in Great Britain is at All Saints' church, Sheffield. The average attendance is 1,600.

Ivory Congratulations.

A very famous American dentist met the English husband of an American friend of mine with the genial congratulation: "My dear sir, I wish you joy! You have married a first-rate set of teeth."—Fortnightly Review.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

English Shopkeepers.

The upper class in England is sinking; the middle is rising rapidly, and those who belong to the former keep shops in assumed names, while those who belong to the latter endeavor to conceal that they themselves are connected with trade. The conversation of both, however, betrays that they are shopkeepers.—London Truth.

Where Horseradish Are Raised.

The village of Baiersdorf, which has the reputation of raising the finest horseradish in Europe, is about 22 miles south of Bamberg, on the line of railroad to Nuremberg. Horseradish is cultivated almost exclusively on about 1,335 acres of the moist grounds of the valley of the River Regnitz.

Green chrysanthemums were exhibited at a flower show in Essex, England.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davision Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I might have have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.

"I dreaded the approach of my menstrual period every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain at my monthly periods. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

"IT ACTS LIKE MAGIC."

THE GREAT AND SUCCESSFUL ANIMAL TONIC AND REGULATOR for Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Thirteen years in successful use. Sold by 20,000 dealers in 33 states. Saves grain, promotes life, health and vigor, makes stock raising profitable. Invaluable to Stock Owners. Nature's remedy, composed of life giving roots, herbs and barks, no mineral poisons. Horses do more work. Cows give more milk. Hogs fatten quicker. Pigs grow faster. Cures and prevents disease. If your dealer does not keep it we will send, prepaid by express a 10lb. package of the famous MAGIC STOCK FOOD on receipt of $1.00 in stamps or currency. Safe delivery and satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Free copy of valuable book on Stock and Poultry sent on application. Poultry raising can be made pleasant and profitable by using MAGIC POULTRY FOOD. 10lb package for $1.00 express paid. Address MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC

GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 502

10 CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE ECONOMY BLUE

Makes Full Quart Best Wash Bluing

15 years on the market. Ask dealer, or we will send by mail package upon receipt of 10c. in stamps and your dealer's name.

BRIDGES-McDOWELL CO., Louisville, Ky.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Facts Are Stubborn Things

Uniform excellent quality for over a quarter of a century has steadily increased the sales of LION COFFEE,

The leader of all package coffees.

Lion Coffee

is now used in millions of homes. Such popular success speaks for itself. It is a positive proof that LION COFFEE has the Confidence of the people.

The uniform quality of LION COFFEE survives all opposition.

LION COFFEE keeps its old friends and makes new ones every day.

LION COFFEE has even more than its Strength, Flavor and Quality to commend it. On arrival from the plantation, it is carefully roasted at our factories and securely packed in 1 lb. sealed packages, and not opened again until needed for use in the home. This precludes the possibility of adulteration or contact with germs, dirt, dust, insects or unclean hands. The absolute purity of LION COFFEE is therefore guaranteed to the consumer.

Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every package. Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

A Song of Worry

What's the use to sit an' worry if you
[illegible] who thought to win?
[illegible] the worry out the winder—let the [illegible]sunshine in'
Time wasn't oughtn' -
[illegible]
Worryin' is half a sin'

What's the use? There ain't a reason,
[illegible] ladder of a rhyme
When the world rolls on in music, an' the [illegible] keepin' time!
Time ain't crvin' -
[illegible]
An' you're on the wings of Time!

—Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

A MAID IN A FOG

BY SARAH LINDSAY COLEMAN

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The rain had broken into the plans of the pleasure seekers. It had forced them to the shelter of the cabins at the foot of the mountain, and in good-natured, friendly groups they trailed through the long mountain-top grass, their faces wet with the fog that hung in a heavy cloud in the stunted trees above them.

As the girls passed, eyes blue and black and brown challenged Gray, but he only shook his head. He wanted his pipe and solitude, and he declared that it was his imperative duty to remain behind not only to see that the mules were well packed but in order to bring all the lost things down the mountain, from handkerchiefs to girls.

In spite of the reproach in more than one pair of bright eyes he let them all pass. He noticed that the mist was settling thicker, but the mountain was as familiar to him as the outlines of his own hand, and, in cheerful unconcern, he smoked pipe after pipe.

A distant call from somewhere in the muffling fog roused him from his reverie. It was a woman's voice. Some one of them had lagged behind and had been lost among the dozen cattle trails that ran in a bewildering network across the mountain.

"Yes," he shouted. He got to his feet, knocked the tobacco from his pipe, stuffed it in his pocket and plunged in the direction of the calling voice. Now it sounded faintly from the right, now from the left; now it died away to come again from an entirely new direction, and from what sounded like a great distance.

"Keep still!" he shouted. "I will never find you!" There was an imperative ring in his voice, "Now call."

As the voice called louder, buoyed and strengthened by the knowledge of his human nearness, he plunged into the opaque mist curtain, and in a moment, guided by the sobbing sound of panting breath, he had almost stumbled upon the girl.

"Oh," she cried in passionate relief as her rescuer came up to her, "how good it is to be found! It hasn't been more than a century has it? But you will find them for me, won't you? They were just ahead. I lost them all in a minute—and then the path stopped. I ran up higher. I tried to get back to the cave. We had agreed on the cave in case of trouble but I could not find it. I lost my head the loneliness was desperate. It overmastered me, and the fog caught me by the throat." She sank down on a log, trembling violently, and began to sob like a little child.

When the sound had twisted and strained Gray's heartstrings until it was a physical impossibility to endure it longer, he touched her arm gently. "Please don't," he said. "The fog's lifting a little. I'll get you out of this all right."

The girl looked up. In the oval of her pale face her eyes seemed unnaturally large and dark. "You are very good," she said, controlling her voice with an effort, "and then I've been extremely babyish, but— —" Her words died on her lips; she started at Gray unbelievingly.

"You, she gasped. "You here—in America?"

Gray paled under his tan. "It's where I belong—here in America," he said slowly.

"But I thought—" The girl looked at him as if she doubted the evidence of her own senses. "I—don't understand," she said helplessly.

He noticed that the mist was settling thicker.

"It's very simple," Gray said, and he smiled;" the devil tempted me and I fell- the dear, good devil."

"I must be stupid," she said; "but I don't in the least understand."

"Then let's us begin at the very minute you entered the dingy little foreign hole of a hotel and found me drumming at that piano. If you remember, you flung off your rich furs and ordered me to begin at once. 'I shall sing this,' you said in a voice that was final, and I did my poor best to accompany you. It didn't occur to me to refuse to obey the mandate of a princess of the blood royal, nor was I willing to bore a princess with tiresome and awkward explanations. The simplest thing to do was to play without quarreling with fate, and so I did. Of course I ran the risk of your seeing through me. And I was quite nervous, for fear the old codger himself would bolt in and spoil things. But risk is the saver of life. You didn't find me out, and he didn't come in, and—"

"You!" she gasped. "You here in America?"

"For a lesson, yes," the girl broke in with, "but there was a month of lessons."

"There were also some good American dollars," reproachfully.

"Oh," understandingly. Then plaintively, "I thought I was learning such a lot."

"You need not try to make me sorry." Gray laughed. "I'll agree that borrowed joy exacts a heavy interest; I'll agree to a good many things, but I won't be sorry. Except for one thing—I felt like a sneak thief to take your money. I couldn't give it to the old Shylock for he had been paid too much, but I hit on an excellent plan. I turned it all over to the little beggar you thought so picturesque—the little fellow that ran after you always."

"Oh, but that was foolish," impulsively.

"Every thing I did was foolish," Gray said gravely. "I lived from lesson to lesson, and you didn't get such bad ones, for I literally sat at the old fellow's feet. I fell to dreaming night and day, of all sorts of forbidden things. Down to the day I got your note that said your mother was ill and you were leaving for some indefinite country you didn't think it worth while to mention. I was foolish. It was pretty evident even to a chap as far gone as I that you were ending the thing. I couldn't follow. I didn't know whether to try Jericho or Texas. And to think that I might never have found you but for this blessed fog!"

At the sound of something that rang in his laughter, the girl got up from the log and moved away down the trail, alert, like a bird ready to take flight.

Gray followed down the aisle of spectral trees, the light gone out of his eyes.

"Was your mother very ill?" he asked, at length.

"Not very," the girl said. There was a curious little sound in her throat that might have been a laugh or a sob. Whatever it was, it sent the light leaping into Gray's eyes again. With a single stride he had overtaken her. "Look at me," he commanded.

She marched straight ahead.

"Then she wasn't ill," he said. "She didn't send for you?" No answer.

Gray caught her hand. She struggled to free it. "Oh, it's no good," he said. "You've got to tell me. Did she?"

"No," said the girl defiantly. "She wasn't ill at all. I got homesick for America."

"But why?" gently.

She lifted her eyes and tried to brave it through with a laugh. "Why? What a ridiculous question! Why does one want home?"

Gray looked down at her steadily. The blood poured into her cheeks and her head dropped.

"Sometimes one wants home because one is afraid to listen to a heart that pleads for a man. Was that it, dear? Was it your heart pleading for me in spite of the gulf between an American heiress and a poor foreign music teacher? Was that why you felt safer with an ocean between? Answer me."

But again she was silent.

"Was it?" gently.

For answer she hid her face in the depths of his coat. "Oh, I can't help it," she cried. It's been a miserable time. Prince or pauper, I don't want to help it. Be good to me, dear."

It was then, as she lifted her face to his, that the clouds fell apart, leaving great reaches of blue sky. From the sea of vapor the mountains here and there lifted their heads; a shaft of sunlight struck to the depths of the girl's tender eyes, and lo! the earth was enchanted.

FABLE OF THE WISE HEN.

How She Discomfited an Arbitration Committee and Avenged Deceit.

Once upon a time (very recently) a hen went upon a strike and refused to lay. Other hens followed her example and the scarcity of hen fruit which resulted caused eggs to retail for something like 50 cents per dozen. In other words, strictly fresh eggs laid by scab hens were worth about 5 cents each in the shell. Even cold storage eggs, which were deadly explosive and had to be handled with care, brought 30 cents.

The people got together and remonstrated with the hens, but it did no good. Finally an arbitration committee waited on the hens and tried to persuade them to go back to work. The arbitration committee pointed out that only the rich can afford to eat eggs, but the hens refused to work. The arbitration committee then told the hens that if they persisted in the strike they would bring race suicide on themselves.

Then a wise old hen arose and spoke as follows:

"In the spring when us hens wish to sit the people give us porcelain doorknobs to sit on. If porcelain doorknobs are as good as eggs to sit on they ought to be as good to eat as eggs. Tell the people to eat porcelain doorknobs."

The arbitration committee could not answer this argument and departed in tears.

Moral—Deceit will come home to roost.

Joke Carried Too Far.

"This artificial limb business is getting to be something wonderful," said George Moore, of the Gilsey house. "When a man can wiggle the fingers of an artificial hand it is uncanny. Practical jokes of terrible effect are possible with the artificial limb, and the victim is such in the true sense of the word.

"A man came in here not long ago and walked up to the clerk and in a friendly way reached across the counter to shake hands. Then he wheeled away and left his hand in the grip of the clerk.

"The clerk fainted—actually fainted, although he realized, I believe, that the hand he held was but an artificial one. The man who wore it had devised a scheme by which he might throw it off by pressing a spring. The delight he took in the joke ceased when his victim collapsed."—New York Telegraph.

Grand Duke Advocates Boldness.

Some critics of Russian autocracy say that the Grand Duke Vladimir has some excuse for his hatred of popular movements and secret societies. His father, Alexander II.—the man who on his accession to the throne at once made peace in the Crimean war and emancipated the serfs—was assassinated by nihilist bombs. The grand duke is said to have carefully studied the details of the history of the French revolution, with the express object of avoiding the perils and dangers of any such catastrophe in Russia, and he is convinced that if Louis XVI.'s ministers had been bolder they might have saved France as a kingdom.

Willowwood.

I sat with Love upon a woodside well,
Leaning across the water, I and he;
Nor ever did he speak nor look at me,
But touched his lute, wherein was audible
The certain secret thing he had to tell:
Only our mirrored eyes met silently
In the low wave; and that sound came to be
The passionate voice I knew, and my tears fell.

And at their fall, his eyes beneath drew hers;
And with his foot and with his wing-feathers
He swept the spring that watered my heart's drought.
Then the dark ripples spread to waving hair,
And as I stooped, her own lips rising there
Bubbled with brimming kisses at my mouth.

—Dante Gabriel Rossetti.

Subject to Approval.

William F. King of the Merchants' association tells a story of a boy who had a faculty of losing one job and getting another almost simultaneously. Meeting him on the street one day, a friend said to him: "Well, Jack, who are you with now?"

"I'm with John Smith & Co."

"Is this a permanent connection at last?" asked the friend.

"I can't tell about that yet," replied Jack. "I'm only there on memorandum, you see."—New York Times.

SOCKS AS GOOD AS MONEY.

Their Convenient Use in Backwoods Games of Chance.

Ole Oleson, a "lumberjack," walked into town the other day carrying 1,750 pairs of gloves and mittens, 1,117 pairs of socks and eighty-three pounds of tobacco.

He offered the goods for sale at about one-fourth of their value and was arrested on suspicion. He protested to the police that he came into possession of the goods honestly. When pressed he declared that he won the articles at poker in the lumber woods.

Oleson said he had been in the woods many months. The lumberjacks received no money while in the woods but were expected to wait until they returned to town for their pay. At the company "store" in the woods the men could get such articles as they desired, however, having them charged against their time. Accordingly the men used merchandise instead of checks in their games.

Oleson said he played in good luck, and in one game where socks were the stakes, he won 1,175 pairs of the hosiery on three aces. The other man held a trio of kings.

In a game for mittens, Oleson said, the limit was high, and in three hours of play he had mittens enough to supply a regiment of soldiers.

His story sounded reasonable and he was released to go and "cash in his checks."—Ashland (Wis.) Cor. Minneapolis Tribune.

A Floral Clock.

Many flowers show a susceptibility to changing conditions of light and weather which make them most interesting. This phenomenon has been utilized by an Ohio landscape gardener to form a unique decoration to the grounds of the Rockefeller country place at Tarrytown. This is a flower bed which can be used as a clock. The bed is circular and divided into twelve parts. Each contains a figure composed of a flower which opens or closes at the corresponding hour. Thus the two space is occupied by the II made of hawk weed, which closes at 2 p. m. precisely. The hands are stationary, of course,, and are composed of the common yellow dandelion, which opens at half past 5 and closes at half past 8 p. m., and point to arrangements of flowers representing these figures. Among the flowers used are the snow thistle, which opens at 5 a. m. and closes at 4 p. m. The blue chicory, the goat's beard, the morning glory, poppy, water lily, the pimpernel, the marigold, the Star of Bethlehem, the passion flower, the beauty of night, the white lychnis and the blue convolvulus,, all of which have different time for opening and closing.

Husband as a "Nice Doggie."

There are a lot of women in this world who think that there's only one side to the married relation, and that's their side. When one of them marries she starts right out to train her husband into kind old Carlo, who'll go down town for her every morning and come home every night, fetching a snug little basketful of money in his mouth and wagging his tail as he lays it at her feet. Then it's a pat on the head and "Nice doggie."

And he's taught to stand around evenings, retrieving her gloves and handkerchief, and snapping up with a pleased licking of his chops any little word that she may throw to him. But you let him start in to have a little fun scratching and stretching himself, or pawing her, and it's "Charge, Carlo!" and "Bad doggie!"—From "Old Gorgon Graham."

Mr. Cleveland's Musical Criticism.

Once, during his second term, Grover Cleveland was asked to speak at a function in a certain town and when he arrived at the depot, the wind was blowing a gale, sleet was driving and hailstones nearly as large as marbles were fiercely falling.

Of course, the inevitable brass band was there, and at the sight of the president, the performers struck up with all the strenuosity at their command. "That is the most realistic music I ever heard," remarked Cleveland. "What are they trying to play?" asked Secretary Olney, who accompanied him. "Hail to the Chief!" replied the president with a cheerful smile.

A Doubting Heart.

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead,
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas,
They wait in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

—Adelaide A. Procter.

Had Watched Her Mamma.

A prominent society woman who is very blonde has a small daughter, aged 4, of an equally fair type. Frances is fond of watching her mother's toilette, and that she has profited by the secrets of the dressing table and the frequent use of a pencil was proved at luncheon a few days ago. Said a doting aunt:

"It's too bad Frances' eyebrows and lashes are not dark. She would be a beautiful child."

"Huh!" exclaimed the precocious youngster. "I guess they'll be dark when I am big enough to write 'em like mamma does."—New York Times.

Made Social Exile and Outcast by His Umbrella

Sad Plight of Truly Good Man Forced to Seek Refuge in Den of Iniquity on the Sabbath Day.

This is a faithful narration of the adventures of a Newark man who has, for a time, made a social exile, an outcast, by his umbrella. All doors that he approached were closed to him, even those of his home. It happened in this wise:

The man works hard on Saturday, sometimes into the night, and when he does arises and breakfasts on Sunday he feels the need of out-door air. This day he will have, no matter what the weather.

He was seen two or three weeks ago knee deep in the snow, floundering stolidly along, bent on getting his exercise and driving the fag and cobwebs from his brain. But last Sunday it was raining, an icy sleet filled the air, and the man raised his umbrella and the little pellets pattered on it like the rain on the garret roof.

After he had gone a mile or so he found that the hand that held the umbrella was getting tired. He was a nervous man and he wondered if he was developing rheumatism or if incipient paralysis was upon him.

The lameness soon extended throughout his arm, even unto the shoulder, and at last the man realized that the umbrella was getting very heavy. But he went on with his walk, since no bodily discomfort could divert him from his constitutional.

At last the man could not hold the umbrella in his hand and had to let the shaft rest upon his shoulder. Still he plodded stubbornly on, until he reached the outskirts of the city. Then he thought he would take a car back to his home, and that was when his troubles really began.

He hurried over to a car with his umbrella sagging about his head, his progress much impeded by its weight. He put one foot on the car step and started to let down his umbrella. He wrestled with it until the conductor said some harsh things, gave the motorman the bell and left the man standing in the street wrestling with the umbrella.

It had as complete a roof of ice as any Esquimau's house in the farthest North, or anywhere else. The roof glistened as if made of glass. The man exerted all his strength, but the ribs simply bent under the strain and the coating of ice was not so much as cracked.

The man strode on for a few blocks, thinking. He came to a little notion store where they sell newspapers, and thought he would go inside and thaw out the umbrella, but after an ineffectual struggle to get inside the door he gave it up and walked on.

The situation was getting serious. He tried another place, a harbor of refuge, as it was a Sunday school and the children within were singing joyous hymns that brought him a feeling of comfort, as if here at last he would surely find help out of his odd misfortune.

But here again he could not enter. There was no double door and the umbrella absolutely refused to be crushed through the narrow door space.

Further on down the street he came upon two or three children playing on a stoop and he told them he would give them ten cents for a can of hot water. They looked at him as if they thought he was crazy. He raised the ante to a quarter. Then one of the boys asked him if it wasn't a can of beer he wanted.

This was too much for the man, for he is strictly temperance, and if he had not been, the thought of patronizing a saloon on Sunday would have been utterly abhorrent. So he gave up his tramp again.

The umbrella's weight seemed to increase with every step, until the man felt as if he were literally carrying the roof of his house on his head. He got out his jackknife and tried to scale the ice off, but did not accomplish much, so afraid was he of cutting through the cloth.

Once he was on the point of cutting the cover and removing the frame, throw into the street a glass and the gold handle detained him. There was an inscription on the handle telling how the umbrella had been presented by a body of grateful employees. The man knew that his wife's story looked to him to carry that umbrella on every stormy day and not to appear at the factory on the first rainy day without it would make her angry.

He wished the umbrella was anywhere but where it was, and he had been a swearing man he would have cursed the luck that made him buy that particular rain shield from the stand in his hallway when he started out.

When he got within a quarter of a mile of his home the umbrella seemed to weigh at least fifteen pounds. He was fairly out of breath and famished to eat. He knew when he got home he would be no better off than when he was out of doors, for he couldn't do the thing into his house and his home has no areaway along which he might have carried it to the back yard.

Just then he saw a gleam of warm light over the green curtain that hung a saloon window. He hesitated. Then his eyes fell upon the sign "Side entrance" upon a door.

The door was ajar. He pushed it, in fact half fell against it, and the sides fell open. His qualms of conscience were stilled now, and he marched, dragging his recalcitrant umbrella behind him.

The few men in the saloon looked up in surprise when they saw him enter, and there was a false move to escape, for the men recognized him as a prominent church member and they feared he was out on a little tour of his own to gather information against violators of the Sunday law. But the man pulled himself together sufficiently to say that he had sought a warm place in which to draw out his umbrella, and the bartenders and every one else saw that he was much more unhappy than they were, so they let it pass.

In less than three minutes the umbrella in great slides from the umbrella in great slides and the man gave the head bartender a quarter for the muss he had made on the floor. He says that was the most uncomfortable walk he ever had in his life, and that the next time he goes for his Sunday walk in a storm he'll wear a machintosh and let it go at that.—New York Sun.

The World's Medical Heroes

For the "Hall of Fame" twenty-nine names were selected in 1900, none of which was that of a physician, and this year twenty-six more will be named. Among the great men who have influenced American life for good and advanced the cause of civilization there can be no doubt with the considerate that medicine has furnished as many as any other calling or profession. Why, then, were medical men excluded? Simply because of the traditional failure on the part of the world to recognize the value of professional life to the community. This blindness should be done away with. The Western Medical Review proposes to nominate five medical heroes for the honors in the ballotings of 1905 for the Hall of Fame, and gives the names of Reed, Ramsay, Warren, Sims and Holmes. The suggestion occurs that it would be better for the professional mind to limit their ballotings, and elect two, or at most three, judged as the honor. Warren, it seems, should be the first named, as the discoverer of anesthesia has lessened human suffering, and at the same time has advanced science immeasurably. As John the Baptist of the gospel of protection against infectious diseases Holmes deserves the great gratitude of Americans and of the world.—American Medicine.

Sighing of the Children

One million seven hundred and fifty thousand children between the ages of 5 and 15 toil in the mines and factories of this country.

Have you heard the Cry of the Children,
The pitiful wail of the Little Ones?
Out of the mines and the workshops,
Out of the slums and the alleys,
Where cold and famine and fever,
Where cruel neglect and oppression
Rob life of its joy and sunshine,
And change its bright Spring into Winter.

Oh, the heartrending Cry of the Children,
Rising up in chorus pathetic,
A dirge and a dead march of childhood,
Appealing to men and to angels,
And crying aloud unto heaven
For judgment against the oppressors!
Oh, the sorrow and anguish and heartbreak
In the pitiful wail of the children!

Oh, list to the plea of [illegible]
The moan and the [illegible]
Their voice [illegible]
From the [illegible]
[illegible]city.
From the danger and dark of the [illegible]mines.
From the hovels of [illegible]
Where slaves and [illegible]
Take the place of [illegible]

Once he was on the point of cutting the cover and removing [illegible]

We hunger in God's [illegible]
We languish for love [illegible]
We sicken and die in the [illegible]
With no one to help [illegible]
We toil in the mills and [illegible]
Like slaves, in the glad days of childhood.
We long for the fields and the [illegible]
To ramble about in the woods [illegible]
Yet we sicken and die in the [illegible]
Oh, merciful God and His angels [illegible]
Have pity where man has failed!

—B. F. Austin, in Ram's Horn.

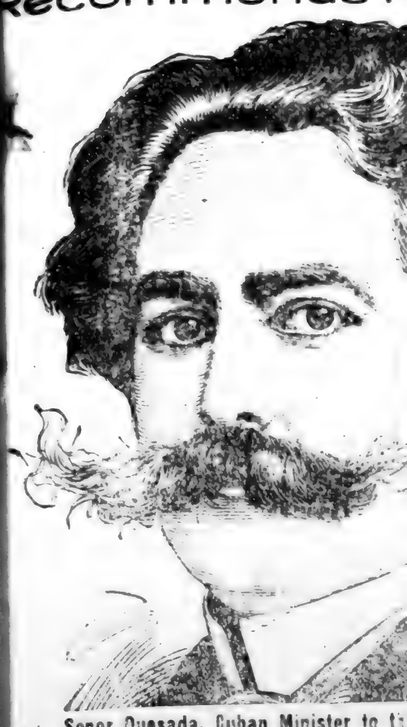
John Adams' Stormy Wooing

Parson Smith of the Old First church at Weymouth, Mass., had two daughters, Mary and Abigail. They were attractive young maidens and in due time had lovers. Mary chose a man after the parson's wish, a man of substance and of standing in the community. Abigail, however, chose John Adams, a young lawyer of the neighboring town of Braintree, much to the parson's chagrin.

In the pulpit at the Sunday service the worthy divine gave voice to his opinions in a sermon delivered from the following Scripture texts: "Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her." Luke x. 42; "For John came neither eating nor drinking; and ye say he hath a devil." Luke vii., 33.

Notwithstanding the eloquence of the eminent divine, and his appeal to the match, the young lawyer won the bride, and Abigail Adams, as the wife of our president, achieved world fame, and is enshrined in the hearts of all true Americans as a loyal true woman, the wife and also the mother of a president.

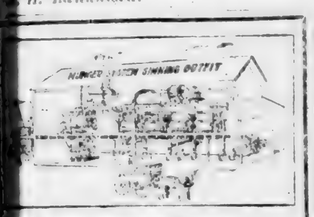
CUBAN MINISTER Recommends P



Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to [illegible]

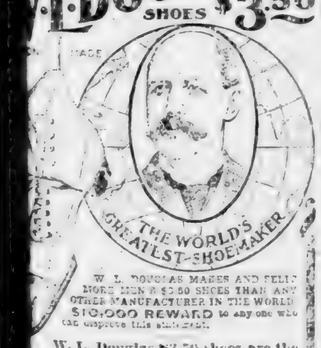
"Peruna I can recommend medicine. It is an excellent tonic, and it is also an efficient almost universal complaint. Gonzalo De Quesada.

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better. —H. H. Rankhead.



You want only the best
Cotton Gin Machinery
Ask any experienced Ginner about
Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger
We would like to show you what these [illegible]
Write for catalog and testimonial booklet.
Continental Gin Co
Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50



W. L. DOUGLAS MAKES AND SELLS MORE MEN'S $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY OTHER MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD
$10,000 REWARD to any one who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. They are just as good as those that cost from $5.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cannot be made, look and their shape better, wear longer, and give greater value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitute. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

"The Best I Ever Wore."

I write to say that I have worn your [illegible] the best I ever [illegible] Rev. Paul Hepler, [illegible] Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

The finest patent leather procurable.

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear brassy.

W. L. Douglas has the largest [illegible] in the world. No matter where you get a pair, [illegible] extra [illegible] every [illegible] If you desire further information, write for Illustrated Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS. FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES. Standard Goods Only. Free catalogue to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO., 913 Locust St., ST. LOUIS, MO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

CUBAN MINISTER TO THE U. S.
Recommends Pe-ru-na

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States.

Cuban Minister to the United States, is an orator born. In an outbreak for July, 1899, by George Kennan, who heard Quesada speak [illegible] Theatre, Matanzas, Cuba, he said: "I have seen many audiences under excitement speech and in the grip of strong emotional excitement; but I never heard such a scene as at the close of Quesada's eulogy upon the [illegible]."

In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, written from [illegible], Senor Quesada says:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and it is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

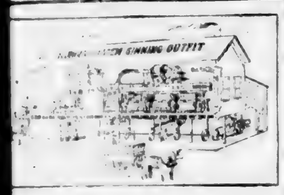
[illegible] H. Bankhead, of Alabama, most influential member of Representatives, in the Washington, D. C., [illegible] to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following letter:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable [illegible] a tonic and catarrh cure. I know of nothing better."—W. H. Bankhead.

There is but a single medicine which is a radical specific for catarrh. It is Peruna, which has stood a half century test and cured thousands of cases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O. All correspondence held strictly confidential.



Manufacturers only the best

Cotton Gin Machinery

Sold by experienced Salesmen about

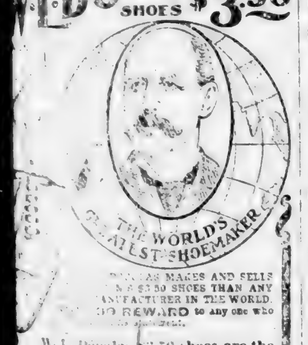
Pratt, Eagle, Smith Winship, Munger

We would like to show you thousands of customers say. Send catalog and [illegible] booklet.

Continental Gin Co

Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Ga. Birmingham, Ala. Memphis, Tenn., Dallas, Tex.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50



W. L. DOUGLAS MAKES AND SELLS MORE $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD. $5000 REWARD to any one who can prove [illegible]

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the leaders in the world because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. The prices are the same as those first cost from $10.00 to $7.00. The only difference is the price. W. L. Douglas shoes cost more to make, hold their shape better, wear longer, and are of greater value than any other shoe now on the market to-day. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom of each shoe. Look for it. Take no substitutes. W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are sold through his own retail stores in the principal cities, and by shoe dealers everywhere. No matter where you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach.

"The Best I Ever Wore."

I have worn your $3.50 shoes and find them the best I ever wore.
Frank T. Ripley, Ex-Mayor, Ky.

Boys wear W. L. Douglas $2.50 and $2.00 shoes because they fit better, hold their shape and wear longer than other makes.

[illegible] Custom in his [illegible] to [illegible] of Leather produced.

Fast Color Eyelets will not wear brassy.

W. L. Douglas shoes are the largest shoe mail order business in the world. No trouble to get a fit by mail. Every pair sold is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. If you desire further information, write for Catalogue of Spring Styles.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

NEEDLES, SHUTTLES, REPAIRS.

FOR ALL SEWING MACHINES. Standard Goods Only. Free catalogue to Dealers. BLELOCK MFG. CO. 913 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

The Japanese strictly enforce a law which forbids the use of tobacco by boys under 20 years of age.

CONCENTRATED

Crab Orchard WATER

TRADE MARK

—A SPECIFIC FOR—

Dyspepsia Sick Headache Constipation...

The Three "Ills" That Make Life a Burden.

Nature's Great Remedy

In Use for Almost a Century.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CRAB ORCHARD WATER CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.

$50 POSITION

PAY TUITION AFTER POSITION IS SECURED

First 10 who clip this notice and send to

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

Montgomery, Nashville, Atlanta, Waco, Little Rock or Ft. Worth

may, without giving notes, pay EVERY CENT of tuition out of salary after good position is secured. If not secured no pay required.

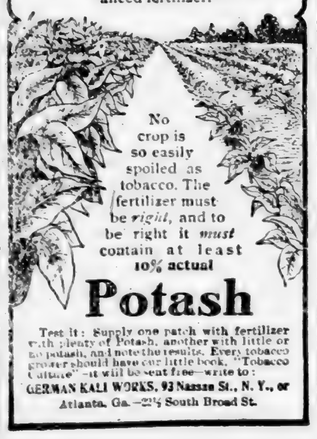
COURSE BY MAIL FREE

If not ready to enter you may take lessons by mail FREE until ready, which would save time, living expenses, etc., or complete at home and get diploma. D. P. B. C. Co., has $300,000.00 capital, 17 bankers on Board of Directors and TWENTY Colleges in THIRTEEN states to back every claim it makes. Established SIXTEEN years. Clip and send this notice to-day.

Am. 17, 1905.

A Tobacco Grower's Profit

is dependent upon a properly balanced fertilizer.



No crop is so easily spoiled as tobacco. The fertilizer must be right, and to be right it must contain at least 10% actual

Potash

Test it: Supply one patch with fertilizer with plenty of Potash, another with little or no potash, and note the results. Every tobacco grower should have our little book, "Tobacco Culture"—it will be sent free—write to: GERMAN KALI WORKS, 93 Nassau St., N. Y., or Atlanta, Ga.—2½ South Broad St.

The Poet Herbert.

Herbert was a true child of an eager, individualistic, realistic age. In its full tide he lived. An exceptionally wide acquaintance with its leaders of philosophy, poetry and the church brought his impressionable nature to accept the ideals as matters of course. He has not the hardy and spacious nature that asks fundamental questions. His mind is receptive, even if anticipatory. Too proud and independent for an imitator, and ever disposed to build his own pathway, he still employs in that building only the material he finds at hand. Rarely does he desire more. Small modifications, readjustments, the application of refinement and elevation where coarseness had been before—these rather than revolutionary measures are what he adds to the intellectual stock of his age. He is no Wordsworth, Keats or Browning; he is related to his time rather as an early Gray or Arnold, as one who voices with exquisite art what those around him already feel. But if the ideals of his time shaped him, he in turn shaped them. Through his responsive heart and dexterious fingers they attained a precision, beauty and compelling power which bore them far past the limits of that age.

How the Canal Will Be Dug.

Within limits, we now know just about what will be done. The bottom width of the cut will be 200 feet and the depth 40 feet. The Suez canal, averaging 115 feet wide at the bottom and permitting a draft of only 27 feet 10 inches, has proved too small. Several of the great new battleships of the British navy can now go through it only with hazard, and none of the larger freighters, fully loaded, such as have proved most economical for the trans-Atlantic trade, could go through. Even the larger German lines trading to the Orient often lose their steerageway and sheer against the sides. The Panama canal will be able to admit even larger vessels. There must be one lock—a tide lock—near Miraflores, and possibly one at Bohio, to reduce excavation.

Value of Farm Products.

Agriculture is still king in America. The value of the farm products of 1904 reaches the inconceivable sum of $4,900,000,000; exceeds by two-thirds the gross earnings of all the railroads; by three-fourths the market price of all the gold, silver, copper and other minerals; by five-sixths capital of all the national banks. Besides this, the American farmer owns $1,150,000,000 worth of horses and expends every year $100,000,000 for machinery. Here is food for thought for the statesman and the politician, the professional and the business man, the inventor and the publisher. Now, as in Colonial times, the embattled farmers are omnipotent.

The Japanese have just caused the Korean government to adopt the gold standard, and 10,000,000 yen will be borrowed from Japan with which to establish a currency in Korea.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

When the Back Aches and Bladder Troubles Set In, Get at the Cause.

Don't make the mistake of believing backache and bladder ills to be local ailments. Get at the cause and cure the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills which have cured thousands.

Captain S. D. Hunter, of Engine No. 14, Pittsburg, Pa., Fire Department, and residing at 2729 Wylie avenue, says:

"It was three years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that was mostly backache, and they fixed me up fine. There is no mistake about that, and if I should ever be troubled again I would get them first thing, as I know what they are."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Railway Ambulance.

Railway carriages transformable into ambulance compartments for the use of passengers who have taken ill have been provided on the Prussian railways for express routes.

Spartan Story Revived.

A missionary of Hamada, Japan, writes that he attempted to condole with the mother of a soldier whose funeral he was attending. But she said to him: "You should congratulate me. Is it not the greatest honor my son could have had—to die for his country?"

Avery & Company

SUCCESSORS TO AVERY & McMILLAN,

51-53 South Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

—ALL KINDS OF—

MACHINERY

Reliable Frick Engines. Boilers, all Sizes. Wheat Separators.

BEST IMPROVED SAW MILL ON EARTH.

Large Engines and Boilers supplied promptly. Shingle Mills, Corn Mills, Circular Saws, Saw Teeth, Patent Dogs, Steam Governors. Full line Engines & Mill Supplies. Send for free Catalogue.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

In some of the London schools the boys take lessons in cooking.

Ask Your Dealer For Allen's Foot-Ease. A powder. It rests the feet. Cures Corns, Bunions, Swollen, Sore, Hot, Callous, Aching, Sweating Feet and Ingrowing Nails. Allen's Foot-Ease makes new or tight shoes easy. At all Druggists and Shoe stores, 25 cents. Accept no substitute. Sample mailed FREE, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

The crown forests of Russia comprise 30,000,000 acres belonging to the Czar.

Popular Cars.

The Pope-Hartford and Pope-Tribune gasoline cars and runabouts meet the specific demands of a large class of automobile users. They are simple in construction, free from complication and efficient. Prices from $500 to $1600. For finely illustrated catalogues and descriptive matter, address Dept. A, Pope Manufacturing Co., Hartford, Conn.

Glass houses may soon be made stone-proof.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

A former army officer plays a hand organ on the streets of Sheffield, England.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle.

Fruits grown in China are usually inferior in flavor.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never Fails. Sold by all druggists, $1. Mail orders promptly filled by Dr. E. Detchon, Crawfordsville, Ind.

The Peruvian railways have all been consolidated.

The Effect of Warm Days and Cool Nights.

A leading physician writes that he has noticed warm days and cool nights always affect the bowels, and suggests some preventative remedy. Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial is the only one that can be absolutely relied upon. It never fails to cure.

Sold by all Druggists, 25 and 50c bottle.

The great London fire occurred in the year 1666.

BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Face Like Raw Beef—Thought She Would Lose Her Ear—Healed Without a Blemish—Mother Thanks Cuticura.

"My little girl had eczema very bad when she was ten months old. I thought she would lose her right ear. It had turned black, and her face was like a piece of raw meat, and very sore. It would bleed when I washed her, and I had to keep cloths on it day and night. There was not a clear spot on her face when I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now it is completely healed, without scar or blemish, which is more than I had hoped for. (Signed) Mrs. Rose Ether, 291 Eckford St., Brooklyn, N. Y."

Every year the British mint issues over 8,000,000 copper coins.

Cannot Reduce a Rate.

It is stated in Washington that under the Townsend rate bill if a rate is fixed by the commission it cannot be lowered by a railroad. Should an emergency arise calling for a decreased rate the railroads or shippers would have to appeal again to the commission, there being no latitude allowed, whatever the circumstances. Hitherto a maximum rate has been the rule, but no such concession is made under the proposed legislation.

Remedy Against Old Age.

Curdled milk of a special kind, prepared only on a Bulgarian recipe, is now supposed to be a remedy against growing old. M. Xavier Dybovski has made a communication on the subject to the Academy of Medicine. The substance is called yaghurt, and can now be obtained in tins in Paris. It looks very like ordinary cream cheese gone bad, and tastes similarly. The solid portion is mixed with a white, thin liquid which is exceedingly sour. People who wish to live to a hundred, breakfast off yaghurt exclusively.

The largest Bible class in Great Britain is at All Saints' church, Sheffield. The average attendance is 1,600.

Ivory Congratulations.

A very famous American dentist met the English husband of an American friend of mine with the genial congratulation: "My dear sir, I wish you joy! You have married a first-rate set of teeth."—Fortnightly Review.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

English Shopkeepers.

The upper class in England is sinking; the middle is rising rapidly, and those who belong to the former keep shops in assumed names, while those who belong to the latter endeavor to conceal that they themselves are connected with trade. The conversation of both, however, betrays that they are shopkeepers.—London Truth.

Where Horseradish Are Raised.

The village of Baiersdorf, which has the reputation of raising the finest horseradish in Europe, is about 22 miles south of Bamberg, on the line of railroad to Nuremberg. Horseradish is cultivated almost exclusively on about 1,335 acres of the moist grounds of the valley of the River Regnitz.

Green chrysanthemums were exhibited at a flower show in Essex, England.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davision Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I might have have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.

"I dreaded the approach of my menstrual period every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain at my monthly periods. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

"IT ACTS LIKE MAGIC."

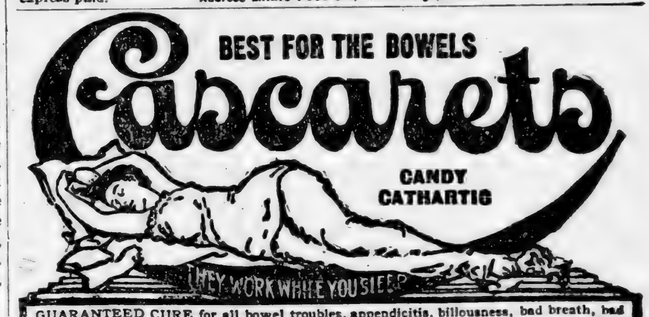
THE GREAT AND SUCCESSFUL ANIMAL TONIC AND REGULATOR for Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Thirteen years in successful use. Sold by 20,000 dealers in 33 states. Saves grain, promotes life, health and vigor, makes stock raising profitable. Invaluable to Stock Owners. Nature's remedy, composed of life giving roots, herbs and barks, no mineral poisons. Horses do more work. Cows give more milk. Hogs fatten quicker. Pigs grow faster. Cures and prevents disease. If your dealer does not keep it we will send prepaid by express a 10lb package of the famous MAGIC STOCK FOOD on receipt of $1.00 in stamps or currency. Safe delivery and satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Free copy of valuable book on Stock and Poultry sent on application. Poultry raising can be made pleasant and profitable by using MAGIC POULTRY FOOD. 10lb package for $1.00 express paid. Address MAGIC FOOD CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascarets

CANDY CATHARTIC



GUARANTEED CURE for all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow skin and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It starts chronic ailments and long years of suffering. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and stay well until you get your bowels right. Take our advice, start with Cascarets today under absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. The genuine tablet stamped C C C. Never sold in bulk. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York. 902

10 CENTS BUYS A PACKAGE ECONOMY BLUE

Makes Full Quart Best Wash Bluing

15 years on the market. Ask dealer, or we will send by mail package upon receipt of 10c. in stamps and your dealer's name.

BRIDGES-McDOWELL CO., Louisville, Ky.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Facts Are Stubborn Things

Uniform excellent quality for over a quarter of a century has steadily increased the sales of LION COFFEE,

The leader of all package coffees.

Lion Coffee

is now used in millions of homes. Such popular success speaks for itself. It is a positive proof that LION COFFEE has the Confidence of the people.

The uniform quality of LION COFFEE survives all opposition.

LION COFFEE keeps its old friends and makes new ones every day.

LION COFFEE has even more than its Strength, Flavor and Quality to commend it. On arrival from the plantation, it is carefully roasted at our factories and securely packed in 1 lb. sealed packages, and not opened again until needed for use in the home. This precludes the possibility of adulteration or contact with germs, dirt, dust, insects or unclean hands. The absolute purity of LION COFFEE is therefore guaranteed to the consumer.

Sold only in 1 lb. packages. Lion-head on every package. Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE

WOOLSON SPICE CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Medical Heroes

honors in the Hall [illegible] names of Rush and Holmes that it might [illegible] fessional votes and chosen [illegible] physicians [illegible] should [illegible] discovery [illegible] human [illegible] time [illegible] rably. As the gospel of [illegible] ous disease [illegible] gratitude [illegible] world.—American Magazine.

the Childre

Stormy Wooin

the following Scripture texts: "[illegible] chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her." "For John came neither eating nor drinking, and ye say, He hath a devil." Luke vii., 33.

Notwithstanding the eloquence of the eminent divine, and his glowing [illegible] the march, the young lawyer with [illegible] and Abigail Adams, as the wife of our president, achieved world-wide fame, and is enshrined in the hearts of all true Americans as a loyal, true woman, the wife and also mother of a president.

AN ALABAMA WOMAN'S

Resolution Creates a Sensation in Its Attack on the Morman Church.

THE CHURCH IS TREASONABLE.

Convention Endorses Her Stand—Interesting Proceedings of Patriotic Organization.

Washington, D. C.—After a recess of one day, the congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution reconvened to conclude its business. There was a notable diminution in the attendance, many of the Daughters having left the city.

President General Fairbanks extended an invitation to the president general-elect, Mrs. Donald McLean, and to C. A. Kauffman, of South Carolina, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, to take seats on the stage. Mr. Kauffman delivered a brief address in which he felicitated the D. A. R. on its achievements and complimented its outgoing and incoming officers.

An echo of the election of Mrs. McLean came at the close at the reading of the minutes when President General Fairbanks expressed regret that Mrs. Sternberg's motion to make Mrs. McLean's election unanimous had not been carried unanimously. Mrs. Ballinger, District of Columbia, urged that some of the "noes" had been withdrawn, but the president general held that all had not been withdrawn and that the election of Mrs. McLean was not unanimous.

Mrs Donald McLean, the president general-elect, on motion of Mrs. Murphy, of Ohio, was elected chairman of the Continental Memorial Hall Committee, the action being in accordance with precedent.

Mrs. McLean on Platform.

During the announcement of the new state regents, Mrs. McLean was escorted to the platform. She presented to President General Fairbanks a beautiful floral star, the emblem of the New York City Chapter, and said that the star was the pledge of loyalty of the chapter to the national organization. Mrs. McLean then said that in accordance with the sentiments expressed by the floral piece she desired to present from New York Chapter a practical testimonial in the form of checks for $1,000 from Mrs. Jas. H. Aldrich; $10 from Mrs. James W. Randall and $100 from Mrs. A. J. Robinson as contributions to the Continental Hall fund.

At 1 o'clock a recess was taken for luncheon. When the congress reconvened at 3:30 p. m. a discussion which occupied considerable time was continued. It related to a construction of the constitution as to the admission of members of Children of the American Revolution to the D. A. R. A motion by Mrs. Day, of Tennessee, which had precipitated the discussion, finally was passed. By its provisions the national board is directed to interpret literally the constitution as it now stands. This will enable members of the D. A. R. of eligible age to become members of the D. A. R. without payment of initiation fees.

A proposition was made by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Williams, of Maryland, that the society take steps looking to the deposit of the remains of John Paul Jones at the naval academy at Annapolis. Amendments were offered requesting that the remains be deposited in Philadelphia and Fredericksburg, Va. The whole question finally was laid on the table. A resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a committee to wait upon the Fifty-ninth congress to obtain permission for the interment in the National cemetery at Arlington of the remains of Pierre Charles, l'Enfant.

Mrs. Murphy, of Ohio, offered a resolution which was adopted providing that the president general appoint a special committee to promote the introduction into the public schools of the United States of the system of a "school city." The idea is to promote the teaching of good citizenship in the public schools and induce the school children to govern themselves in their schools.

Mrs. Goode's Statement.

Mrs. Goode, of Alabama, brought to the attention of the congress the Mormon question in a sensational statement. She declared that the Mormon church was violating, through its leaders, the laws of the land; that it was a treasonable institution owing its highest allegiance to its own organization, and that it was a stain on the good name of the United States. She offered therefore this resolution:

"That as daughters of the patriots we most earnestly call upon the national congress to pass such remedial legislation as will put a stop to polygamy and polygamous living and political control of the Mormon hierarchy.

"And that this congress also urge the United States senate to refuse Mr. Reed Smoot, of Utah, an apostle of of this church, and one of its highest officers, the right to continue as senator of the United States.

"And that we further urge an amendment to the federal constitution making polygamy, under whatever guise or pretense a crime against the United States."

Mrs. Allen, state regent of Utah, claimed the right to second the resolution, her position being taken, she said, upon purely patriotic grounds. She wanted the word "church" eliminated from the resolution and the word "hierarchy" substituted.

"This is a hierarchy we are dealing with," she declared, "and the overthrow of the government is what it is at." The change was made. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

Mrs. Richardson, state regent of South Carolina, presented to President General Fairbanks a beautiful drawing of the Fairbanks coat-of-arms, and an illuminated card bearing the insignia of the Palmetto state and the name of the D. A. R. chapters of that state.

A recess then at 5:15 was taken until 8 o'clock.

At the night session the convention voted to go ahead with the work of collecting funds for its completion. The treasurer general, Mrs. M. E. S Davis, of the District of Columbia, stated that $53,000 is on hand with which to continue the work of construction.

After expressing the usual resolutions of thanks the congress adjourned sine die, the delegates late reassembling at the Ebitt house to greet the new president general, Mrs. Donald McLean, of New York.

Survived the Shock.

Florence, Ala.—Charles Venson, foreman of a telephone construction gang, is alive and at work again after having 22,000 volts of electricity pass through his body. The accident occurred in Sheffield Saturday. Venson was working with some telephone wires, when by mistake he caught hold of a wire of the Sheffield Street Car Company, which was heavily charged. He was standing in the mud and this caused the current to pass through him. His hand was horribly burned, and it was four hours before he was restired to consciousness. It was thought at first that the man was dead, and his recovery is considered almost miraculous.

A Skyscraper for Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala.—A trade was consummated Friday whereby James H. Cook and George Laurie, of Montgomery, purchased for $26,000 the old Baptist church property on the triangular block bounded by North Court, Coosa and Bibb streets and Madison avenue, on which the new owners expect to erect a ten or twelve-story steel structural office building.

Oil Fight in Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo.—A motion was filed in the supreme court by Attorney-General Hadley to strike out the pleadings filed by the Standard Oil Company and the Republic Oil Company to his information alleging combination to control the supply and price of oils in this state. These pleading deny the allegations set forth in the information filed by the attorney-general and at the same time attack the constitutionality of the anti-trust law.

Attorney-General Hadley in his motion contends that such pleadings cannot be filed in the supreme court and bases this contention on decisions in the case of former Attorney-General Crow vs. fire insurance companies several years ago.

Boys Charged With Housebreaking.

Jasper, Ala.—Dan Willingham and Charles Williams, two boys between the age of ten and twelve years, have been lodged in the county jail on a charge of breaking into houses at Horse Creek. The boys are alleged to have maliciously entered four stores, a blacksmith shop and one dwelling at Horse Creek within the past few weeks. Every effort of the parents of the boys failed to have any effect on them, and it was necessary to have them locked in the county jail.

Shipping Strawberries.

Brewton, Ala.—At Castleberry, 12 miles north of here, it is estimated that there are over 1,500 berry pickers present on account of the opening of the strawberry season. The population of the town is ordinarily about 250, but estimates place those now located there at several thousand.

Seven car loads were shipped during the first three days of last week, and indications point to a heavy crop, probably 125 car loads. There are 600 acres in this vicinity devoted to the succulent fruit.

"Beef Trust" Inquiry.

Chicago, Ill.—The federal grand jury which is investigating the business affairs of the meat packers, resumed their probe into the details of the sausage casing business, as carried on by the packers.

Storm's Great Havoc.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Telegraph linemen returning from expeditions to repair lines leading out of this city report that the damage done by the Cullman Ships First Strawberries.

Cullman, Ala.—The first shipment of strawberries from this place this season was made Friday. They were handled by J. D. Searcy, shipping clerk of the German Farmers' Strawberry Association, and consigned to Douglass Bros., Birmingham. The berries were of a very fine variety, large and of a very delicious flavor, which is generally charactoristic of the Cullman berry.

Fast Freight is Wrecked.

Shreveport, Lla.—A fast freight train on the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroad, which left Shreveport, east bound, was wrecked near Haughton, thirty miles from this city. Twelve freight cars were derailed, and two unknown tramps, one white and the other a negro, were killed. None of the trainmen were injured. The cause of the wreck has not been ascertained.

Lottery Tickets in San Antonio.

San Antonio, Tex.—United States secret service officers seized a printing plant here with which lottery tickets have been printed. Several arrests have been made in connection with the affair. It is said that tickets for several Mexican lotteries have been printed here and distributed all over the country.

Woman Leaves Millions.

Milwaukee, Wis.—All of the vast estate of Mrs. Lizette M. Schandein, widow of Emil Schandein, daughter of Philip Best, and sister of Mrs. Frederick Pabst, is left to immediate members of her family by provisions of the will, which was filed Saturday. There are no bequests to charity.

It is estimated that the estate amounts to from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Fear to Doom Niagara Falls.

Albany, N. Y.—In the assembly the Niagara "grab" bill was made a special order for next Wednesday. The passage of the bill was prevented by the republican leaders, who have become alarmed at the scandal created by it. Gov. Higgins does not desire the Niagara "grab" bill to reach him. It is expected the bill either will be killed or laid aside permanently on Wednesday.

New Railroad Officials.

Mobile, Ala.—T. F. Whittlesey, of Toledo, O., was appointed general manager of the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, vice E. E. Dewey. S. H. Jones was appointed chief engineer of the same road and the Gulf and Chicago railway, vice A. N. Bullitt.

Walked Into River While Asleep.

Gadsden, Ala.—The body of John Espy, the deckhand who while asleep walked into the river, has been recovered. The body was found about 25 miles above Gadsden and buried on the river bank near where he was taken from the water. The body of the other negro deckhand who was drowned the day after Espy has not been recovered.

Darling Still in Jail.

Washington, D. C.—The state department has received advices from Guatemala City, dated ten days ago, to the effect that the American lawyer, Joseph S. Darling, held there for contempt of court, was still in jail, although he might have secured his freedom at any time by giving bail to the amount of only $120, which he refused to do as a matter of principle.

Bankers File Assignment.

Bowling Greeen, Ky.—P. J. Potter's Sons, private bankers, with a capital stock of $75,000 and $750,000 deposits have filed a deed of assignment. It was one of the oldest banks in Southern Kentucky. It is announced that they will pay dollar for dollar without touching their large real estate holdings.

Gold Mining Company Dissolves.

Jersey City, N. J.—Stockholders of the Joseph Ladue Gold Mining and Development Company voted to dissolve the company at a meeting in Jersey City Friday. Similar action had already been taken by the directors. The company had an authorized capital of $5,000,000.

Farmer Drops Dead.

Coshocton, O.—George Ashcroft, a wealthy farmer, fell dead across the foot of his bed when he arose to put extra covering over his wife, who had been ill. In less than three hours she, too, died from the shock. They were born on the same day.

To Probe Combine.

Cleveland, O.—County Prosecutor Keeler has issued subpoenas for a number of prominent local coal dealers to appear before the grand jury Monday to testify in connection with an investigation into the charge that a combine known as the Cleveland Retail Coal Dealers' Association regulates the prices in this city.

Drove Into Excavation.

Huntsville, Ala.—Dr. James L. Darwin was seriously cut and bruised Saturday night by driving his buggy into an excavation on Clinton street. He was thrown out on the electric railway and in some manner one leg was cut to the bone.

As Count Leo Tolstoi is the greatest anarchist in the world, the plain American citizen who reads his blast against government, in the London Times, and yet concludes that he wants to go on supporting the government of the United States, may feel that he needs no further instruction on the subject, remarks the New York Mail. The lesser anarchists cannot tell him anything that Tolstoi does not know.

CANAL GOVERNMENT LEGAL

Attorney General Renders Opinion Upholding Administration.

BARRETT COWES PANAMA ARMY

Ommission or Inaction of Congress No Bar to Continuance of Our Rule—President's Power Ample—Fifty Panama Soldiers Threatened Mutiny Last November, But Mr. Barrett Warned Them

Washington, D. C.—Attorney-General Moody has rendered an opinion about the effect of Congress' failure to legislate for the government of the Panama Canal zone, under which the Government will now go ahead just as if there had been legislation. The failure of Congress to take action was not accidental, but deliberate. The House was determined to clean out the old Walker Canal Commission. It passed a bill for that purpose, presented by Representative Mann, of the Commercial Committee, and bearing the stamp of that committee's approval.

The influence of some members of the commission blocked the bill in the Senate, where a counter bill was introduced. Whatever may have been the reasons of Congress for failing to re-enact or complete its legislation, the proper presumption is that it was of the opinion that the power conferred upon the President was ample and continued until it should otherwise direct, and that it rested content on the knowledge that until it should otherwise direct the existing temporary government survived and went out to perform its functions and duties as already marked out.

"The Secretary of War on March 6, 1905, cabled to the Governor of the canal zone that the administration of government there would continue as before. The principle is that where a territorial government under the authority of the United States, temporary and provisional in character, has its origin in lawful authority, it continues to enforce the law and serve the usual purposes of civilized institutions until it is legally displaced. This principle arises ex-necessitate and means that anarchy shall not follow because there has been a legislative omission or failure to provide a new and permanent status.

"This principle must be equally applicable whether the original rightful authority was an exercise of the war power or whether it rested, as here, upon temporary and provisional laws of Congress."

Barrett Saves the Day.

Diplomatic correspondence made public at the State Department contains a dispatch from Minister Barrett at Panama giving an account of the assistance rendered by him in averting trouble there at the time of the attempted revolution led by General Huertas last November.

After it had been arranged that General Huertas should resign and the Panama Army disband a hitch occurred. About fifty soldiers marched, unarmed, to the Government House, followed by a great crowd, and informed the President of the republic that they would not accept the Government's plan to pay them off in two installments, but demanded the whole amount at that time.

Minister Barrett, who was present at the time, advised the President to be absolutely firm, but the soldiers persisted and muttered threats against the President. The Minister, in informing the State Department of the incident, said:

"When this word came up from the street I saw that there must be no further delay in bringing matters to an end, and, taking General Guardia, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and War, with me, I went down stairs and out upon the sidewalk in front of the soldiers who were there assembled. In brief words I told General Guardia to say to them that the United States with its forces stood back of the Government in this crisis, and that they must accept the terms of the Government or accept the consequences.

"They were warned that if they did not accept these terms and engaged in any acts of insurrection, riot or mutiny, they would be dealt with in a most summary way, and that if necessary the naval forces in the bay and the marines at Ancon and Empire would be used to maintain order, with the severest punishment for those who were responsible for disorder.

"This warning had the desired effect, and the soldiers immediately declared that they would accept the terms of the Government."

GEN. GROSVENOR TO RETIRE.

Will Have Been Twenty Years in Congress at End of Present Term.

Washington, D. C.—General Charles H. Grosvenor, Representative from the Eleventh Ohio District, and one of the foremost Republicans in Congress, has indicated his intention to retire at the end of his present term.

Opponents have gained control of the County Committee in Athens County, where he lives, but he does not admit that this would prevent his return. He has told friends he will be satisfied when he has served twenty years in Congress, and he is now in his tenth term.

For President of D. A. R.

Nominations for president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution were made at the society's meeting in Washington, D. C.

Diplomat's Home Burns.

Paris, Ky.—The handsome country home of Brutus M. Clay, minister to Switzerland, burned Saturday. The servants were so excited that nothing was saved.

Would Succeed Hemenway.

Evansville, Ind.—John H. Foster, of Evansville, was nominated by republicans by acclamation as a candidate to succeed Senator J. A. Hemenway in congress.

GIRL BATTLES WITH APE

Monster Orang-Outang Escapes From His Cage.

Miss Bartles Faces Enraged Beast in Her Father's New York City Store.

New York City.—Pretty eighteen-year-old Lillian Bartles for an hour and a half fought a giant orang-outang which had escaped from its cage. Her father, William Bartles, is an importer of wild animals and has a store at No. 160 Greenwich street. The huge monkey, which stands four feet six in height, and weighs about 110 pounds, was one of a consignment recently received from India.

Reinforcements in the shape of three men, at the end of a fierce struggle, saved the girl from being seriously injured.

The ape acted mostly on the defensive while seeking freedom, so long as the girl was his only adversary, but when the men took a hand he turned savagely upon them and bit one so badly his hand may have to be amputated.

Miss Lillian assists in the big store, in which all manner of animals, birds and fishes are exposed for sale. At 9 o'clock at night the doors had been locked, business was at an end, and she was sitting at her desk busy bookkeeping, when the big orang-outang, without a moment's warning, suddenly seized the bars of his cage and broke them to pieces. The next moment he leaped to the floor.

Miss Bartles was alarmed, but she did not lose her presence of mind. Approaching the huge animal, which was chattering what seemed to be all sorts of horrible threats, she tried to coax it back to its cage. Meanwhile all the various birds and beasts broke out into a perfect bedlam. The din was terrific.

The store was brilliantly lighted, the window curtains up, and quickly an excited crowd of more than a hundred gathered on the sidewalk. Some tried to force the locked doors and aid the girl in her alarming plight.

Miss Bartles fixed her big brown eyes on the brute and tried to cow it into submission. She sought no aid. For a moment it stood chattering, and showing its great white teeth. Slowly she approached it, holding an apple in her hand as bait to lure it into captivity again. When within a foot of it the ape suddenly bounded toward a winding iron staircase, which leads from the store to the residence of the Bartles.

Then a strange chase began. Up two stories the girl followed at the heels of the ape. The door above was closed. The ape turned at bay. Then the situation was reversed.

Down the stairs again flew the girl with the great brute close behind. The courage she had in facing her escaped prisoner began to ooze when she found it pursuing her.

Side-stepping to the rear of the store, she hid for a moment as the now thoroughly frenzied brute dashed down again. Meantime the terrified spectators on the sidewalk were yelling for the police, the fire engines and any sort of help. Three men more plucky than the rest had rushed up the stairs to the Bartles residence and they followed the ape down the stairway to the store.

Seeing himself outnumbered, the monkey then sought to escape through the big plate-glass windows to the street. In these windows are large tanks, containing gold and other fancy fish. Into one of these the monkey dopped, and becoming almost entirely immersed, splashed and floundered like a drowning man. This seemed to cool his excitement to some extent.

Miss Lillian, who had been reinforced by her cousin, Miss Freda Bartles, then rallied and took command of the attack, issuing orders to her three male volunteers. To one she threw a big sack, telling him to put it over the monkey's head. This he did, but dripping with water, and full of fight, the ape sprang from the tank, and fastened his fangs in the man's hand.

The other two fell upon him, however, and, beating him with clubs and sticks, reduced him to submission. He was carried back to his cage in a condition suggestive of his having had an argument with an entire squad of police.

Miss Lillian suffered no worse harm than a few scratches on the hand. The unknown man who aided her and who was bitten by the ape, had his wounds dressed at a neighboring drug store and went home.

HEIR TO THE BELGIAN THRONE.

Son of King Leopold's Brother is to Be Named Officially.

Antwerp.—It was learned here that this year, on the occasion of the seventy-fifth anniversary of Belgian independence, Prince Albert, son of King Leopold's brother, the Count of Flanders, will be publicly proclaimed heir to the throne, as the health of the Count is not sufficiently satisfactory to allow of his succession. This has been tacitly understood for years, but was never officially sanctioned.

LIMOGES STRIKERS RIOT.

Factories of the Havilands Attacked by the Workmen.

Limoges, France.—The strikers who were locked out of the Haviland porcelain works and who made an attack on that and several other factories, sacked Theodore Haviland's works. Among the things which the mob destroyed was a valuable automobile. Several policemen were injured in attempting to protect the property.

Choctaw Agent Dead.

The body of W. H. Ainsley, special representative of the Choctaw Indians at Washington, D. C., was found on a sand bar in the Arkansas River, five miles from Fort Smith. He disappeared from a hotel there.

Togo Captures Colliers.

A dispatch from Saigon said that Admiral Togo's warships had captured a large number of colliers off the Cochin China coast.

Thorsby

Business Directory

Commercial Club
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and RELIABLE information furnished to those who desire to locate in the S...

A. M. Johnson
Groceries and Delicatessen

J. J. STANLEY
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

MRS. MARY R. RASBERRY
General Merchandise

G. W. Freeman
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks, Tobacco and Cigars.

Thorsby Wine Co.
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, Prop.

A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Toilet Articles.
LICENSED PHARMACIST

E. H. Adams
General Merchandise
Fine Line of Shoes.

W. N. HORNSBY
General Merchandise

J. R. PARNELL
General Merchandise.
"MOLINE" Farming Implements and "FLORENCE" Wagons in stock at all times.
J. K. ORR SHOE

J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.

Mrs. M. E. Wisha...
Millinery and Notions

The Thorsby In...
G. C. Michelson, Prop.
Good Beds and Meals.

A Langville & S...
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in WAGONS and BUGGI...

C. L. Forsman
Brick Yard.

J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

T...

VOL. III.

ALABAMA STA...

Items of Interest Gathered Over the Entire...

Woman Killed by Lightning...

Students Are Held U...

Bold Highwaymen Caught...

Raising Money to Build Electric Line...

Investigating Indian Mounds.

Leg Broken by a Fall...

Destruction by Storm...

WITH APE Escapes From
Thorsby
Business Directory.
Commercial Club
OF THORSBY
DEFINITE and RELIABLE information furnished to parties who desire to locate in the South
A. M. Johnson
Groceries and Delicatessen
J. J. STANLEY
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
MRS. MARY R. RASBERRY
General Merchandise.
G. W. Freeman
SHOES, ETC.
Soda Fount, Cold Drinks, Tobacco and Cigars.
Thorsby Winery
—Co.—
Lofthus & Bromberg, Props
A. HORN
Drugs, Stationery and Toilet Articles.
LICENSED PHARMACIST
E. H. Adams
General Merchandise.
Fine Line of Shoes.
W. N HORNSBY
General Merchandise.
J. R. PARNELL
General Merchandise.
"MOLINE" Farming Implements and "FLORENCE" Wagons in stock at all times.
J. K. ORR SHOE
J. L. FOSS
Meat Market.
Mrs. M. E. Wishart
Millinery and Notions
The Thorsby Inn
G. C. Michelson, Prop.
Good Beds and Meals.
A Langville & Sc
BLACKSMITHS
and HORSESHOERS
Dealers in WAGONS and BUGGIE
C. L. Forsman
Brick Yard.
J. BICE
Charcoal Ovens.

THE UNION.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL; SPECIAL FAVORS TO NONE.

VOL II. CLANTON, ALA., MAY 4, 1905. NO. 6

ALABAMA STATE EVENTS.

Items of Interest Gathered as They Transpire Over the Entire State.

Woman Killed by Lightning.

Mrs. R. R. Cameron, wife of a prominent citizen of this county, was killed by lightning Saturday.

Students Are Held Up.

Two students of ... had a rather exciting experience of a hold up on the barracks Saturday ... were approaching the ... just before reaching the ... two men stepped in front ... called hands up, ... however, who were behind a tree and ... or Brownell's rest ... borrowed a pistol ... the police. Nothing of the highwaymen, ... search was made. ... affair of this kind ... students in the ...

Bold Highwayman Caught.

... Saturday a constable ... brought to the ... Taylor, a negro, ... highway robbery. ... T. Andrews, ... Longs, Ala., about ... from the city, a man ... arms covered with ... the store and with ... them hold up their ... of the store. ... took the cash drawer ... containing about $40 and left before ... could get weapons and ... boys, who was ... Mr. Weisinger upon ... robber was none ... Taylor, a yellow ... opened him face ... the tracks of the robber were followed and it was found where he had ... night near his store, and he ... arrested and was identified by ... and the clerk. ... weeks ago a negro, with ... fall of snuff, stopped in the ... Jones and asked Mr. Andrews ... him $5 in current ... of silver. The ... the bill out of the ... negro grabbed the ... out of the store, ... brandishing a pistol. ... that the robber of the ... and of Thursday ... the same party.

To Money to Build Electric Line.

... A large crowd attended ... meeting Friday night ... discuss the proposition from Selma to ... from Marion and ... were present and the ... stated that they ... and right-of-way for ... raised $5,200 and ... in that neighborhood. Mr. Parker, of Summerfield, ... the right-of-way ... every land owner ... a right-of-way and ... line, twenty ... for a park. ... man of the sub- ... for Selma, said ... accomplished ... as they were ... Marion would do. ... meeting then ... the Selma com- ... work secure ...

... by a Fall.

... Smith a transfer ... from his wagon. ... was crossing a ... weeks in ... his leg.

... on by Storm.

... A severe wind and ... struction here ... telephone, ... wires and big ... was blown ... and a negro ...

Investigating Indian Mounds.

... Ala.—The "Gopher," ... member of a party of ... North, arrived ... ville, where the ... engaged in exploring ... mounds in that territory, ... assisted of Clarence H. ... Miller and McDonald, ... Philadelphia. They came up ... intended to take the train ... but finished their explorations ... left for their homes. ... they have been using ... to Pensacola to ... their further use next winter, ... they will resume their relic ...

New Corporations.

Montgomery, Ala.—The following new corporations have been certified to the secretary of state: Certificate of the incorporation of the Mortgage Bond Company, of New York; capital, $2,000,000. Clem Gazzam, of Birmingham, is the Alabama agent. McClure Lumber Company, Detroit, Mich., capital, $40,000. Alabama agent, Charles F. McClure, Eutaw. Montevallo-Dogwood Coal Company, officers in Atlanta; capital, $10,000. The Alabama agent is E. S. Lyman, Montevallo. Tennessee Consolidated Coal Company, Huntsville; capital, $500,000; incorporators, E. L. Hampton and others. Coal is to be mined and handled. Union Pleasure Club, Mobile; capital not given; incorporators, R. L. Haye and others. Object, social and literary, benevolent and pleasure.

Dies From Overheat.

Gadsden, Ala.—G. H. Saye, of Dawson, DeKalb county, died very suddenly from the effects of becoming overheated. He was out several weeks ago fighting a forest fire when he became overheated. From this he contracted a cold which quickly developed into pneumonia and caused his death in three days.

Will Hang in June.

Gadsden, Ala.—Bob Watts, charged with the murder of old man Purd Winkle, tried, found guilty and the death sentence pronounced, will be hanged on the 2nd day of June, 1905. Watts will not make a fight for his life, but will take the sentence of the court and die by hanging.

Murdered and Robbed.

Fruithurst, Ala.—Andrew Sunberg, an old bachelor, about 60 years old, living alone one-half mile north of here, was found dead Friday, lying on the floor with a bullet wound on the body. There is no clue as yet.

A coroner's inquest was held and rendered a verdict that he came to his death by having been shot by a pistol held in the hands of another person. It is supposed the murder was committed for the purpose of robbery, as no money was found on his person. A small drawer where he kept his change was ransacked, and a fine gold watch is missing. Search was made and in another drawer was found a pocketbook containing $122 in currency and about $8,000 in bank deposit certificates and notes.

One Killed and One Injured.

Florence, Ala.—J. C. Smith, a driver for a local transfer line, was the victim of a peculiar accident Friday. He was hauling a load of stone in front of the Southern depot, and just as he crossed the railroad track he attempted to jump from the wagon. As he did so his foot caught in a large stone, and he fell, the stone falling on top of him. His leg was broken above the knee and he sustained other painful injuries. A roustabout on the steamer J. T. Reeder, which was anchored near the Southern bridge Friday was drowned while attempting to board the steamer.

Hail Storm.

Bridgton, Ala.—A hail storm which almost destroyed all growing crops in this community and which came near causing the death of several citizens, occurred Thursday, extending over a belt of about four miles wide, and lasting from twenty to thirty minutes.

The hail stones were nearly as large as hen's eggs.

Cotton and many other crops were almost entirely destroyed. Most of the standing corn was also battered down.

Traffic Still Tied Up.

